Begins At 2 O'clock In Parish Hall Basement

Old Gown Parade, Novelty Hat Contest, Programs To Supplement Floral Displays And Contests

Muenster's annual Flower Show will be held on Wednesday, May 22, members of the Civic League and Garden Club decided during their monthly meeting last Friday afternoon. It will take place in the parish hall basement, beginning at 2 o'clock and will continue during the evening hours.

An interesting series of features has been planned for the enjoyment of the guests who come to the show. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock an authority on the subject will conduct a flower arrangement clinic. At 8 o'clock a musical program and a wedding gown parade will be featured and a novelty hat contest will be held. The evening program will be given on the stage in the auditorium, and a single admission will admit a person to all events.

Mrs. T. S. Myrick, president of the club, is general chairman of the flower show and others in charge of the various departments are as follows: Roses, Mrs. J. H. Flood; all roses must be brought in containers; Potted Plants, Mrs. John Wieler; Miniature arrangements, any floral arrangement in a container not higher than 4 inches, Mrs. Jake Pangel; Fancy Work, Mrs. Joe Luke, any needlework not entered in a previous flower show may be exhibited for awards. This division will also include needlework pictures. Wild flowers, Mrs. Joe Swirczynski, all flowers to be brought in containers; Out-of-doors Living Room, Mrs. Herbert Meurer; Annual and Perennials, to be brought in containers, Mrs. Tony Gremminger; Refreshments, Mrs. John Kathman; Wedding Gown Parade and program, Miss Olivia Stock; Novelty Hat Contest, Mrs. Rudy Hellman.

All entries in the flower show should be brought to the parish hall in the afternoon before the event and no entries will be accepted after 8 o'clock a. m. on the day of the show. Members of the committees will be at the hall Tuesday afternoon to register entries.

Out-of-town judges will decide upon the merits of the entries and will award first, second and third place ribbons.

The show is presented for the purpose of displaying achievements of local floriculturists and is open to anyone who wishes to display specimens.

In the novelty hat contest there are two divisions, one for the women and the other, the junior, or school girl division. Hats must be made of fresh flowers, vegetables or fruits, either of one or a combination.

Anyone desiring further information is asked to get in touch with the chairman of the division in which an entry is to be made.

MRS. JOHN EBERHART ELECTED PRESIDENT OF MISSION CIRCLE

Mrs. John Eberhart was elected president of the Saint Anne's Mission Sewing Circle when an annual election of officers was held during a regular meeting last Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Eberhart was also chosen as head of the quilting department, a position she has held for several years. A secretary for the club is to be appointed by the president at the next meeting.

During the part of the afternoon devoted to sewing more than the usual amount of good work was accomplished. Two quilts were completed, numerous new garments made, old clothing was remodeled and a large box of finished articles and hospital bandages was packed for future shipment.

At the close of activities, sweet rolls and coffee were served by Mrs. Felix Becker, 30 members and one guest, Mrs. C. Hoelker of Lindsay, who is secretary of the mission club in her city and who visited the Muenster club during the afternoon.

MILK PRODUCTION NEARS PEAK

Milk production here continues to increase steadily as pastures improve from recent rains. Tuesday the volume received at the cheese factory was 46,900 pounds. Within a week or two the plant expects to reach its peak production of about 50,000 pounds.

FIRES OF WAR LEAP ACROSS THE LOW COUNTRIES

Following upon Germany's lightning invasion there were no unexpected battle fronts Saturday, but many scattered points of major fighting. The main battle sectors in the Netherlands were at Delfzijl (1) and along the Yssel River (2) and the Maas River (4), while a struggle raged in the city of Rotterdam (3). In Belgium the Germans claimed to have advanced to the Albert Canal and taken Maastricht fortress (6), although there was stiff fighting along the canal. Brussels and Antwerp (5) were both attacked by Nazi bombers. Luxembourg (7) was overrun by the invaders, but the Allies were apparently engaging the Germans west of the Moselle River. Authoritative reports Tuesday were that the Holland government had fled to London and the General of the Dutch army had surrendered to the superior Nazi forces.

War Relief Drive Begun By Red Cross

Participating in a national Red Cross drive to raise 10 million dollars for the relief of war torn Europe, the Cooke county chapter, under the direction of Chairman F. X. Schad, this week issues a county-wide request for donations.

A telegram from Red Cross headquarters to Mr. Schad bears the following message:

With the invasion of Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, the war has entered a phase which will inevitably and at once bring widespread and appalling suffering to millions of helpless men, women and children. In order to inaugurate widespread relief measures the American Red Cross is launching at once a campaign for a minimum war relief fund of ten million dollars. Your chair quota is $1,000. Please mobilize at once the entire leadership of your chapter and community in order that your quota may be raised and exceeded without delay. Chapters may retain fifteen per cent of collections to cover their local war relief expense. Letter of instructions follows. Norman H. Davis.

The method of conducting this war relief drive will differ from the annual membership drive, Mr. Schad pointed out. Instead of sending out local representatives the county chapter has designated certain business houses where donors may leave their funds. At Muenster these places are the Muenster State Bank and the Muenster Enterprise and they in turn will submit all receipts to the county chapter. All receipts will be acknowledged by publication, he added.

In the event that response to this plan is not satisfactory, Mr. Schad said it may still become necessary to send out special solicitors as in the membership drives.

Officers Handicapped In Burglary Cases By Delays In Reporting

Petty thieves and burglars have been receiving the best possible cooperation from their victims here during recent weeks. That was the complaint of Constable Frank Hoedebeck Tuesday when he disclosed that men are invariably slow about turning in their reports and thus impose a needless hardship on law enforcement officers.

Among recent thefts mentioned by Hoedebeck are 170 gallons of gasoline stolen from the Shermanhorn lease; a tire from the automobile of William Merrell, bookkeeper for the WPA sewer project; and two tires from a well pulling machine on the Grayburg oil lease.

There are also numerous small jobs of lesser importance.

THERE'S A REASON

People who have been wondering why Junior Crawford does not park his plane overnight in the Fleetman pasture, though he lands it there frequently, can satisfy their curiosity with this explanation of Junior's. Bruno has a red bull that doesn't seem at all friendly toward the red plane, and he thinks it's best not to tempt old Ferdinand.

THEY STAND TOGETHER

NEW CAFE BUILDING FOR JIM LEHNERTZ NEARS COMPLETION

This city's newest business house will be formally opened about the end of next week. That is the opinion expressed Tuesday by Jim Lehnertz, proprietor, as actual construction was nearing completion. Installation of fixtures and furnishings is now under way.

Lehnertz is taking pains to make his cafe-recreation hall the most attractive place of its kind in Muenster. It is made of white brick with neon trimming and set far enough back from the highway to provide convenient parking space.

The inside space of approximately 24 by 36 is divided equally with the cafe and bus station on one side and a recreation room on the other. Fluorescent fixtures will predominate in the cafe lighting.

Dozens Bit By Bowling Bug After Muenster's First Alley Is Opened

The bowling alleys at the K of C hall have taken Muenster by storm. Last Sunday, the first day they were ready for use, men were there all day and late into the night, and succeeding nights have drawn similar crowds.

Many of the contestants, rolling the big balls for the first time, are beginning to feel the fascination that gives bowling first rank among indoor games. Regardless of low scores they are trying to organize a league of several teams and play on a regular schedule.

Present reports are that the cheese plant team has already been organized.

MOVE STANOLIND OFFICE

Workmen for the Stanolind pipe line company this week built a small office near the FMA grain elevator south of the M. K. and T. tracks. The building replaces that recently torn down near E. P. Buckley's home south of Elm Creek and will serve as headquarters for the company's local gaugers.

MRS. JACOB PAGEL ELECTED REGENT OF CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS

Catholic Daughters of America, meeting last Friday, named Mrs. Jake Pagel grand regent of the court during the annual election of officers.

Wilde, lecturer; Mrs. Clarence Hellman, monitor; Miss Elfreda Luke, organist; Mrs. Joe Luke, historian; Mrs. John Mosman, prophetess; Mesdames John Fisher, Henry Hennigan, John Wieler and Robert Yosten, trustees.

Mrs. J. W. Fisher as financial secretary, Mrs. Carra Pagel as sentinel and Miss Anna Hellman as treasurer were returned to the offices for another year.

Following the election, members discussed plans for raising money for the new church, and named Mrs. J. S. Horn as hostess for the monthly social on May 23. She will entertain in the K of C hall. It was also announced that the books had been audited since the last meeting and that they were in perfect order.

Thirty members were in attendance.

1940 Softball Season Opened Tuesday Night

This community's annual season of night baseball was officially ushered in Tuesday night when lights in the ball park were turned on for the first time. Installation of globes and preliminary check-up was made by the electric co-op's line crew under the direction of R. L. McNelly.

Muenster got off to a poor start in the season's opener, losing a one sided game 10 to 5 to Cap's Corner. Prior to that the boys had won four out of five pre season games on Sunday afternoons.

According to Walter Becker, captain of the Muenster team, the local league this year will probably include Muenster, Bulcher, Cap's Corner, Mallard, Dennis, and a team from Bowle. Efforts to organize and draw up a schedule are now under way.

School Board Submits Plan For Merger

If the Linn and Bailey school districts consolidate with Muenster they are assured of a transportation fund equal to their present per capita allotment, according to a decision made Tuesday night by the Muenster school board.

Although the provision does not meet the original request of a guaranteed bus system, trustees agreed that it is the fairest and most reasonable solution of the problem. Muenster would not sacrifice any funds by the arrangement for it would pay only what it received in addition to its present per capita allotment, and the districts concerned would profit in several ways.

For either Linn or Bailey the per capita fund is almost sufficient to maintain a bus. By assessing a few dollars per year for each child using the bus—an amount much smaller than present local taxes—it is possible for each district to work out an adequate system of its own. In view of the fact that many persons have been transporting children in their family cars the proposal is regarded as particularly attractive.

No definite step toward consolidation has been made to date, but it is believed that Tuesday's decision will lead to a petition for referendum in the near future.

Muenster as well as the surrounding districts is interested in consolidation and a transportation system. Both the parochial and the public school could thereby increase their enrollment and raise their scholastic rating. It also presents an opportunity to eliminate local school taxes for many persons who have derived no benefit therefrom, and, finally, it serves as another bond of unity for this extensive community.

Henry Lynch Enters Race For Sheriff

Henry A. Lynch, well known Cooke county citizen, authorizes The Enterprise to announce his candidacy for sheriff of Cooke county, subject to the Democratic primary in July.

Mr. Lynch, who is 44 years old, is married and is the father of one son who is 19 years of age. Mr. Lynch was born and reared in Cooke county, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lynch, pioneer citizens. He has spent his entire life in Cooke county with the exception of the period he saw foreign service during the world war. He has been engaged in the real estate business in Gainesville for the past several years.

If elected, Mr. Lynch promises to give the citizens an honest, truthful and impartial administration and to enforce all laws to the best of his ability, and to likewise employ deputies who will do the same.

He believes that courtesy, honesty and truthfulness are the factors that should be considered in administering the duties of the office he seeks and on these qualifications he solicits the vote and support of every citizen.

Mr. Lynch is fully acquainted with the duties of the office and states that he expects to cooperate 100 per cent with all city and county officers and especially with the county attorney and commissioners' court in the fulfillment of his duties. Consistent, complete cooperation with the county attorney's office is necessary for an economical administration of both offices and Mr. Lynch assures citizens of that cooperation.

He points out that the police radio station is maintained by both city and county funds and he assures citizens of the rural sections that they will receive the same consideration, assistance and service as city residents, since the radio makes it possible for rural citizens to have the service of the sheriff's department at any hour of the day or night.

An honest administration and an impartial enforcement of his duties at all times is stressed by Mr. Lynch in making his announcement. He intends to make an active campaign and to see as many voters personally as possible. In the meantime he takes this means of soliciting the support and influence of every citizen in Cooke county and assures them of his sincere gratitude for same.

CHAPTER XI

Even the grounds shared the campaign renovation. The rarest and most treasured of small shrubs and plants were removed to the greenhouse, which was padlocked. Stout grilled iron fences enclosed the flower gardens and bushes. Little railings shut off the place where visitors were not to walk.

Cecil Dodd joined them at Shires on the fifth of July, and an old roadster was turned over to him to travel about the state in, meeting committees, arranging rallies, hobnobbing with the press and getting his bearings in general.

In July, Aunt Olympia referring to her "Social Activities" list, invited the Ladies' Aid Society in Maysville to a garden party at Shires. The girls, who thought they knew Ladies' Aids, were amazed at the quantity of refreshments she planned for this event.

"Dear me, it must be a huge Aid," said Helen. "You have food enough for two hundred."

"There'll be two hundred," said Aunt Olympia. "Though it's not a very large Aid. They'll bring all their children and cousins and aunts-by-marriage. They'll take advantage of it being election year and invite all their out-of-town friends."

There were two hundred and fifty at the garden party.

seen don't even belong to our church."

The Senator had no real opposition in the Primary and spent only enough time and money on it to strengthen the party machine and lay the groundwork for the real battle.

The preliminary activities of the campaign were of a mild sort, more in the nature of social pleasantries than warfare. There was frequent attendance at church suppers, fish fries, shore dinners, club picnics, and firemen's balls. There were a few speeches to be made, photographs to be posed for, interviews given and disseminated.

The Senator had figured that six weeks would suffice for the intensive, swing-of-the-state campaign. But he had not reckoned with Brother Wilkie. Six weeks was not enough for the Opposition. In July, while the Senator was blissfully basking in a breathing spell, the Governor swung into action. To take the edge off the Senator's homey old trailer, he established the children, the bel-dame and Len Hardesty in a covered wagon and hit the trail.

In August, impelled by the Governor's aggressiveness, the Sloppy-for-Re-election campaign got under way. The old trailer, after standing outdoors three or four days to become plebeianly stained with dust and streaked with rain and dew, was packed for travel. The itinerary was planned to the ultimate minute. The sound truck was loaded with papers, files and books.

The girls enjoyed campaigning. Aunt Olympia hovered over them broodingly, her solicitude not entirely attributable to their value as campaign material. She saw to it—as far as she was able—that they had proper rest, regular meals, abundant exercise. She decreed—and saw that the decree was well publicized—that the place chosen for them to pitch camp each night should provide some recreation for the girls—tennis, horseback riding or swimming; "for the health of our children far transcends a senatorial campaign."

Olympia herself usually went about with a large sewing bag on her arm. In this she carried fresh handkerchiefs, a make-up box, an impressive array of darning cottons, needles and threads (assembled by Hilda), and an old, wornout pair of the Senator's socks, on which she darned photographically with amazing patience. The regular mending and laundry were sent back to Hilda at Shires—without benefit of camera men. The girls were frequently photographed in the act of washing or ironing a set of napkins.

"Poor Adele is doing the laundry this morning," Aunt Olympia would say apologetically to the newsmen, leading them to the best view. "We ran short of linens."

"Auntie, Auntie," Limpy remonstrated confidentially, "you're forgetting you're Scotch. We're going to wear those napkins out if we keep on laundering them half a dozen times a day. Shouldn't we use them at least once, just to get our money's worth out of them?"

Invariably they returned to Shires for the Sabbath, to get a little rest and a few hot meals; and always to attend church, very much en famille, the Senator, Aunt Olympia and the three girls, the cynosure of all eyes.

When Brother Wilkie, the Governor, reached Maysville on a Sabbath Aunt Olympia invited him and his troupe to dinner. She did it with penetrating heartiness, too, as the members stood agape at the church door with Brother Wilkie shaking every hand.

"I want you and the children to come right up with us for Sunday dinner," she proclaimed cheerfully. "You may be our political opponent, Brother Wilkie, but in the house our board, such as it is, is your board."

Len Hardesty, who was usually hard pressed about one thing or another on Sunday morning, had also attended divine worship in Maysville that morning, occupying the corner of the pew directly opposite Senator Sloppy's and gazing uninterruptedly at Adele's slightly flushed profile during the entire service. He put nothing in the collection. Though Olympia had not definitely included him in her invitation, he tucked Adele cozily into his small roadster and arrived at Shires in advance of the main party.

"You may as well lay a place for your two guests," he told Olympia cheerfully. "And don't put me next to the brats. . . Can't they wait till the second table? Or how about serving Adele and me alone in the back yard?"

Even with the campaign well under way, they continued to see a good deal of Len Hardesty. "Too darn much," Aunt Olympia said expressively. He was constantly popping in on them unexpectedly, both when they were on the trail and when they were resting up at Shires. "Hum, squal, I see," he said one Sunday, making note of it. "I'll have a larger portion, Senator, if you don't mind. . . So it's squal, eh? And the Governor and the brats and—worse luck, I!—dine on corned beef and cabbage."

"It does that to appeal to the slaughterhouse vote," said Olympia. "I'll bet he goes right upstairs afterward and fills up on caviar and truffles and French pastry."

"I notice that's a very expensive radio you've got rigged up in your trailer," Len went on. "We've only got a second-hand phonograph in the covered wagon to amuse the brats."

"We had to get a good one to follow the Governor's speeches," said Aunt Olympia. "He mouths his words so you can't understand him on anything less than the best."

"Not, I suppose, figuring that it also enables your pretty wards to amuse themselves dancing on the greensward to New York night-club music?"

"Well, what's wrong with dancing on the greensward? It's one of the most innocent and natural diversions." "Go on, Ollie, you forget who you are trying to kid! . . . Or would it be whom?"

During September, the congressional hearings on un-American and subversive activities almost took the limelight from the state campaigns. The Senator was almost childishly pro-American in his convictions, and followed the reports with morbid avidity. Some of his most ringing speeches were in hot defense of this suddenly jeopardized Americanism and he received a very good press on it.

This obliged the Governor to follow the same tack, though he had no personal experience with subversive elements and thought them a good deal overrated. Still, since subversive elements were definitely not popular with the orthodox, he leaped gallantly to their denunciation.

One day the press reported that in the compulsory registration of foreign agents, some known to be engaged in such activities had not registered. Investigations were under way. The next morning headlines screamed the news that three well-known and popular Washington socialites had been arrested as spies. One of these was Gabriel d'Allott.

That was exciting news for the orphans, and Adele and Limpy had great fun teasing Helen about it. Helen took it good-naturedly.

"No wonder he knew more about things than I do," she said cheerfully. "I'd know things, too, if I were paid a salary for learning them. I'm afraid he wasn't the old paltry-walky I thought him; he didn't tell me what he was finding out."

Even Aunt Olympia thought it was amusing. She said she wasn't at all surprised; she declared that half the ambassadors and all of the diplomats in Washington were spies. She said, "I give you my word, before I go to an embassy reception I take the safety pins out of the broken straps on my slip and have Hilda sew them on. I'm too proud to have foreign spies looking through me at those safety pins."

"It's an outrage," said the Senator, bristling all over with Americanism. "They ought to be shot."

"Not just for looking at a safety pin, Del, surely," said Aunt Olympia.

On the next Sunday Len Hardesty arrived at Shires, too late for church but in ample time for dinner.

"I'm supposed to be down in Washington touching the Committee for more funds," he explained cheerfully. "We're running short. In fact, we're low. We were reduced to hamburgers last night, though I see you have an abundance of fried chicken here. Fairley must be doing all right by you."

"You'd better get along down to Washington," said Aunt Olympia, "or you'll be reduced to canned dog food."

When dinner was over the Senator begged to be excused; he had important work on hand. Aunt Olympia got up and walked off; she was going to take a nap, but whose business was it? Helen had letters to write and Limpy took the box of nuts and the funny papers and went out to the porch. Adele and Len Hardesty, thus considerably left alone, wandered down through the garden and on out into the orchard where they selected a big apple tree, far removed from the house and sheltered by a hedge, and sat down.

For a long time they devoted themselves to the tender, personal things natural to a young couple very much in love, but eventually settled down to speak of other things, of politics, their daily activities, their hopes, their plans.

"Oh, Len!" Adele cried suddenly. "Wasn't it exciting about Gabriel d'Allott?"

"Exciting! I don't see anything exciting about it, but that they didn't catch him months ago. Quote: 'The lousy worm.' End quote."

"But that he should turn out to be a spy! We never dreamed of such a thing! We've had no end of fun with Helen about it."

"With Helen?" "Don't you remember? Gabriel d'Allott was the man who spent all last spring studying the American system with Helen. I told you about it."

"The American system! With Helen," he repeated.

"Oh, it was perfectly all right," she said hastily. "There was nothing flirtatious about it. Helen is dead serious about being engaged to Brick, you know. . . Sh! It's a surprise for Aunt Olympia. . . Gabriel said he was gathering material for a book on the American picture and he got Helen to help him. Though she says he knew more about it than she did. They used to argue for hours about pacifism and armaments and military preparedness and all that. Why, he even warned her against Canada—in an indirect way. We call her the First Assistant Spy."

Len lit his cigarette slowly. "Did she see much of him?"

"Oh, he was hardly ever out of our sight. He went every place we did—not with us! He just met us there by accident, the way you do. He came to the house three or four times a week, afternoons, mostly."

"I see," Len stood up. "Well, beautiful, I've got to be a-flying myself down to Washington, so don't sit there blinking your lashes and looking lonesome, trying to get my mind off the salvation of the nation. According to the papers, Sloppy is taking a few days off to rest his corns. Will you be here the rest of the week?"

"Till Thursday. It isn't for Uncle Lancy's corns. It's so Hilda can get us mended and laundered and fed. It's terrible cooking in that trailer."

"I'll be over before Thursday. Thank Ollie for the chicken."

We all have to work at once, you know, for the sake of the photos, and there's not room for three. Our digestions pay the penalty."

"I'll be over before Thursday. Thank Ollie for the chicken. . . Hamburgers! . . . And to think if it hadn't been for the shortsightedness, the hopeless inefficiency of old Sloppy, I'd be with you on fried chicken instead of over there with the brats on hamburger."

THERE'S A FAIR WAY TO WIN

There's a story about the kind hearted old fellow who always had a good word for his neighbors. Especially in case of a death he could be depended upon to enumerate the deceased's finer qualities. One day when the most worthless reprobate of town passed on, people decided the old man would be stumped at last, that he couldn't make a remark unless it was uncomplimentary. His comment was "Boy's, there's the best whistler this town ever knew."

It can be taken for granted that every person in town was fond of the old fellow. People who point out the good qualities of others always leave a favorable impression. Besides, in studying the good in others, they generally improve themselves.

He picked the hard way to achieve what a deplorable number of us try to accomplish by running down the other person. Since most of us are judged by comparison with others it does seem much easier to appear superior through another's demerits than through our own merits.

Some gossips would never admit that point, however. They claim to be telling things merely because they are interesting. Still, they are careful not to mention faults they have in common with others, and they usually present the gossip in a manner that assumes "of course, I would never be guilty of such a thing."

This idea of being better than the next person is all right if it leads to self improvement, but it is contemptible when it drags the other person down or deliberately retards him. And its effects can be seen in business as well as social circles.

There are some who cannot bear the thought of others making as much money as they do. They envy the home town merchant because he's remodeled his home or traded in the old jalopy for a new car, so they take their business out of town. It's a curious thing, but people have been known to boycott friend, neighbor or relative just because they do not want to see him prosper.

Being better, or at least seeming better, is a great game, and most of us are playing it. But the only ones having any real enjoyment from it are the ones who play hard and don't take advantage of the other fellow. Any game is good if it involves sportsmanship, whereas any game is a flop if it involves foul play.

AS WE WANT IT

Apprehension here continues to grow with every new development of the titanic struggle abroad. On all sides we hear pessimistic remarks to the effect that our participation is inevitable. Some say it is a matter of only a few months. Whether the guesses are correct or not, they inspire general public approval of a stupendous armament program.

No doubt the money will be well invested. Adequate fighting strength will be most helpful incase some European bully tries coming after us. The equipment will be worth the money if it only serves to make the toughest respect us.

Such spending by our government will receive enthusiastic approval. However, there is another form of spending that must be retarded and eventually stopped—the gratis funds paid out as relief through several alphabetical agencies.

In simplest terms the practice is wasteful and economically suicidal.

Consider first of all the method of distributing relief money. It is collected through dozens of taxes and then sent out again through dozens of agencies. That involves endless red tape for which the government must hire thousands of clerks, who, incidentally, are better paid than the average worker in business.

The leakage of funds through red tape is tremendous, and all of it could be eliminated if private industry were encouraged to expand and pay in wages what it now has to pay in relief supporting tax.

Then there is the pitiful inefficiency of much of their work. A glaring case is that of WPA workers on the sewer here. Men with picks and shovels and wheelbarrows were digging a pit that, common sense dictates, should have been dug with teams and scrapers. Any farmer knows that on such work two men and a team can accomplish more than two dozen men. Why aren't teams and machines used on all WPA jobs? They say to make jobs last longer. But why make them last? Why not use the most efficient system and accomplish more with the same men and the same time?

None of that seems right, still, it is far less alarming than the effect upon sustaining business. Mounting national debts, government competition and excessive taxation all combine to discourage industry. Government policy is retarding activity that constitutes its principal means of support.

Our government seems to have overstepped its boundaries. It isn't any longer satisfied just to defend against encroachment by fellow man or foreign power, it wants to determine the destinies of its citizens. It seems to forget that progress and stability were founded on private initiative, and that our present plunge into debt followed the policy of official meddling.

There is still another angle to this situation. Indirectly we citizens are to blame for all the confusion caused by the government. Statesmen do not arbitrarily plunge a nation into debt. Our demands on Washington left the men up there with no alternative. They had to spend recklessly and they must continue to spend recklessly until American common sense wakes up and admits it's had enough. The beating has already been a severe one. There's no reason why we should endure more of it.

The coming election is a good time to think over those things. The time has come for people to quit thinking in terms of what certain candidates will hand out, and consider the candidates' ability and willingness to adjust conditions so men can work out their own destinies.

What Others Say

THE VALUE OF CONSISTENCY

Someone has well said, "Do not envy the successful man. Study his methods." We feel that all advertisers can do well to study the methods of a firm like the Cocoa Cola Company who are perhaps the most successful advertisers in the world.

In 1938 the Cocoa Cola Company reported net earnings of more than $25,500,000 for the best year in the company's history. Just the other day the company reported net earnings for 1939 of $27,230,000, an increase from $5.94 per share in 1938 to $6.81 per share last year.

Last week Price Gilbert, Cocoa Cola vice-president in charge of advertising, answered for Chicago advertising men the recurrent question: How do they do it?

The answer, as Mr. Gilbert gave it, is amazingly simple. "We just keep knocking at the customer's door, every day and night."

Just as simple as that. No effort to be the biggest advertiser in any medium, no conscious desire to create a "really outstanding" campaign, no super-clever copy ideas, no rip-snorting contests or premium offers. Instead, a constant, insistent knocking at the door, reiterating one basic theme, telling the story of the pause that refreshes over and over again, never getting too harsh or too high pressure, varying the details so as to avoid monotony, but sticking day after day and year after year to the one basic theme.

Of course, it isn't as simple as all that, as even Mr. Gilbert might admit if pressed. Knocking at the customer's door frequently and at closely spaced, regular intervals is the biggest part of the story; but following through on every advertising and merchandising idea and being alert and alive enough to capitalize on every idea that will stimulate sales or widen distribution, are equally important.

Cocoa Cola thinks it does very little that makes advertising or merchandising news, and day-to-day news of advertising and merchandising developments in the company is notable in the merchandising press principally by its absence. Cocoa Cola just keeps on knocking at the customers' doors, doing a big advertising job, but not the biggest; utilizing every advertising and sales tool it can lay its hands on, but seldom very spectacularly; nursing its merchandising and its distribution machinery along as carefully as a mother guards her young; and selling more Cocoa Cola and making more money year by year, in spite of the return of hard liquor, the growth of competition, the general business situation, and everything else.

Maybe it's a good system.—Menard News.

THE WORKINGMAN PAYS

Who bears the heaviest burden when an unjustified strike is called?—That's easy to answer: The workingman.

The San Francisco Employers' Council recently published a survey of what happened in a number of recent strikes. In one case, 185 employees lost eight-one days' wages—and the strike was finally called off. In another, 153 employees lost sixty-seven days' wages—and the strike was called off. In another, 250 employees lost 107 days' wages—and the strike was called off.

So it goes, down a long list. And in the case of really big strikes, such as that against Chrysler, the wage loss to workers runs far into the millions.

Labor organization is desirable. A well-organized and fairly operated union is a great asset to the laboring man. But the unjustified strike is often the result of unprincipled and self-seeking labor leadership. Such labor leaders don't have to worry—their salaries go as usual.

It's the workingman who pays and pays and pays!—Exchange.

Muenster boosters aren't the only ones who suffered an embarrassing let down from the preliminary census report. Last week the Nocona paper came out with an appeal that every one missed by the census enumerator get his name in without delay. There must have been several hundred names omitted, the paper guesses.

Gainesville is having similar trouble. Just now fellows over there are out looking for extra noses in the hope of making their town show up a little better.

It is quite possible that a few have been missed in practically every town of the country. Census people, making their rounds while others go on with their daily grind, naturally have a good chance of missing some. After which the forgotten man, remembering all the ballyhoo about pertinent and impertinent questions, is not likely to go looking for the enumerator. He's rather glad to be overlooked.

Incidentally, for the benefit of those who were missed and who are reluctant to report now, we hasten to mention that the dreaded inquisition was not so bad after all. Most people, in fact, were delighted to find it so simple and impersonal. It made them wonder what those fellows in Washington did all the fussing about.

So, who ever was left out might as well get on the line. Nothing to worry about. Quite a number of questions, of course, some of them will make a person scratch his head but none of them will make him blush.

About the only embarrassing feature of the census is that it makes liars out of us home town boosters. Con has been guessing the figure at about 750 and more enthusiastic fellows left their imagination soar as high as 1,000. Naturally we can't find a very good answer when Uncle Sam interrupts with the semi-official figure of 595. We can assume that a few were overlooked—enough to put us past the 600 mark, perhaps. When our Nocona friend claims that several hundred must have been missed he's merely letting himself down easy. A second thought may bring that guess down to 100, after which he won't feel so awful bad when an actual check-up scares out two or three dozen.

Muenster is a small country town, all right—a person just doesn't argue with a figure like 595. Along with that figure, however, we could put a list of statistics to show that Muenster is way out in the lead as an up and coming small town. Since the previous census it increased its population more than 29 per cent and increased its business, residential and civic improvements in far greater proportion. This was steady growth while many another North Texas town experienced steady decline. Especially encouraging is the fact that Muenster has prospects for a brighter future. Muenster today has a sound foundation of agricultural, industrial and commercial stability. It has something on which to build a future. Keep an eye on this town the next ten years. Con would risk a modest bet that 1950 will register an advance of well over 29 per cent.

The Ku Klux Klan is breaking into the limelight again with floggings and cross burnings. In spite of the fact that they claim to have a new costume—without masks—they still find it advisable to hide their identity while carrying out some phases of their "reform" program.

According to an estimate in "Nation" magazine, the organization now has a membership of 300,000. That could hardly be true. It doesn't seem possible for that many people to embrace the vicious principles of the mob. Prejudice, hatred and violence are characteristics repulsive to sanity and fairness. However, shreds of evidence here and there point to an affiliation of the Klan with Communism—a plausible alliance, considering the nature of both organizations. Years ago the Klan used to brag about its patriotism, but there never was a more un-American gang. To graduate from that standard to anti-American isn't much of a change after all.

Old timers used to say of the Klan that it was invincible in peace and invisible in war." Should the dreaded European conflict involve our nation, that old quotation will be interesting to remember.

Things have changed an awful lot since the time Mahomet was in his prime. He is credited you know, with a saying that goes something like this: "Very well, if the mountain will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet will go to the mountain."

Nowadays we have the case of the small neutral European nation. I goeth not to war but the war cometh to it.

And there is F. D. R. He sitteth tight and seeketh not a nomination, and, lo, the nomination seeketh him.

Random ideas swiped from contemporaries:

As long as you are learning something from the fellow who is doing the talking, don't interrupt him. Many people learn much by listening, but no one ever learned anything by talking.

If you want the future to hold something in store for you, you must store away something for the future.

Some one has figured it out that in the Civil War it cost the Union $5,000 for each soldier killed, in the World War $21,000, and in the present war $50,000. Under such circumstances it might be good business to enlist the services of Murder, Inc., the crowd of New York cut throats that hired out to kill a guy for as little as $1.00.

It's not true that the machine age is responsible for all the loss of jobs in this country. For every man that used to be employed in a livery stable there are twenty employed in garages.

MOSQUITO FOOD

Some persons believe mosquitoes are particularly attracted to them. Last week, the U. S. Agriculture Department issued a statement declaring this was quite possible. But it added that human beings are not the favorite food of the female mosquito, the only one that bites. She prefers horses and cattle to humans six to one. Dogs, too, are more popular with mosquitoes than men. But if given a choice between a chicken and a cat and a man, said the statement, the mosquito will take the man.

JOE ZIMMERER AND STELLA FUHRMANN UNITED MONDAY A. M.

LINDSAY, May 16.—The wedding of Miss Stella Fuhrmann and Joe Zimmerer was solemnized at Saint Peter's Church here Monday morning at 8 o'clock with Rev. Conrad Herda, pastor, officiating at the ceremony and at the nuptial high mass.

Miss Regina Fuhrmann, cousin of the bride, played appropriate organ selections as the processional and recessional and assisted the church choir in rendering music for the mass. Spring blossoms were used to decorate the altar.

The bride was attractively gowned in a frock of white moire taffeta. It was made on simple princess lines with a full, floor length skirt, fitted bodice and elbow length sleeves. Her full length veil of illusion was encircled with valley lilies and her arm bouquet was composed of white roses. She wore an antique gold cross and chain, the property of her aunt, Mrs. Joe Fuhrmann.

Attending as maid of honor for her sister was Miss Katie Fuhrmann. She wore a dress of dusty pink chiffon crepe made similar to the bride's, a shoulder corsage of gardenias, and a spray of pink blossoms in her coiffure.

Norbert Zimmerer, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Following the services members of the bridal party and their immediate families enjoyed a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents. At noon dinner was served to a large group of relatives and close friends and an informal reception was held during the afternoon.

The bride's table was laid with a white linen cloth and was centered with a three-tiered cake, topped with a tiny bridal figurine, and flanked with spring blossoms in attractive containers. The silver service used was a wedding gift to the bride's parents 25 years ago.

Mrs. Zimmerer is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Fuhrmann. She lived in Muenster with her parents until a year and a half ago when

The pig was given to Dewey by the people of Iowa and presented by Irving W. Myers, state president of the Iowa Young Republicans club. Dewey was told that if he took the pig back east to his farm it would prove to be a mortgage lifter, just as hogs have been for Iowa farmers.

NUPTIAL AT LINDSAY FOR EDGAR KLEMENT AND ROSE SANDMAN

LINDSAY, May 16.—Solemn vows of matrimony were recited in Saint Peter's church here Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock to unite Miss Rose Sandman of this city and Edgar Klement of Muenster. Rev. Conrad Herda, pastor, officiated at the ceremony and at the nuptial high mass.

Traditional wedding music was given by Miss Regina Fuhrmann, organist, who also assisted with church choir in rendering music for the mass. The altar was decorated with greenery and arrangements of spring blossoms.

The bride was lovely in a princess type frock of white satin. It was made with a full, floor-length skirt, a sweetheart neckline, edged with silk net, and leg-of-mutton sleeves that extended into a point over the hands. Her veil of illusion was held in place with a wreath of lilies of the valley and her arm bouquet was fashioned of Easter lilies. Her only ornaments were a gold chain and locket, gifts from the bridegroom.

Miss Eleanor Henschel of Muenster was the bride's only attendant. She wore a floor length dress of Delft blue organza made with short puffed sleeves, heart shaped neckline, belted waist and tiny ruffled pockets on the skirt. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and wore a spray of the same flowers in her hair.

Walter Klement of Muenster was best man for his brother.

The wedding was followed immediately by breakfast for the bridal party and their immediate families in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Sandman. During the day an informal reunion honored the couple and dinner was served.

The bride's table carried out a wedding theme of white and was centered with a four-tiered cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. The board was further ornamented with cut flowers arranged in vases that were wedding gifts to the bride's parents 27 years ago.

The day's celebrations were concluded with a dance in the Lindsay community hall after which Mr. and Mrs. Klement departed on a honeymoon trip to South Texas. The bride's traveling suit was made of
