

County orders reprieve from recent burn ban

By Janet Felderhoff

Cooke County Commissioners Court granted residents who do outdoor burning a late Christmas gift. At the regular meeting held on Wednesday, Dec. 26, Commissioners voted unanimously to lift the ban on outdoor burning in unincorporated areas of the County. That ban was instated on Dec. 10 due to the dry conditions and expected extreme windy conditions.

Recent moisture received in the County with the promise of more in the forecast brought about the decision to lift the burn ban.

Sheriff Mike Compton retires his position with the County effective Jan. 1. Commissioners Court honored him during last Wednesday's meeting with a proclamation. It proclaimed Dec. 26 as Mike Compton Day in Cooke County, honoring his loyalty, dedication, excellent work, and contributions to the citizens of Cooke County and the Office of Cooke County Sheriff.

The proclamation noted in part, "Compton was employed as a Texas Highway Patrol State Trooper in August of 1968 in the Tarrant County area; and was transferred to Cooke County Highway Patrol in 1973; and retired from the Cooke County Highway Patrol in August of 1995; was duly elected and assumed the office of Cooke County Sheriff, Jan. 1, 1997. Mike Compton has loyally served the citizens of Cooke County and exhibited all the characteristics of a professional in the performance of his duties for the past 16 years as Sheriff and over 27 years as a Texas State Trooper."

Following an executive session, the Court voted to allow the City of Gainesville to place security devices on County property.

In other business, Commissioners Court:

- Approved elected officials' bonds.
- Approved a cell phone allowance for Scott Otto, District Court bailiff.
- Approved surplus of Polaroid badge maker model #3304 S/N 1002135.
- Rescinded award of drink vending bid to Pepsi Beverage Company.
- Approved interlocal agreement for the North Central Texas Arson Task Force between Cooke, Denton, Montague, and Wise counties and the cities of Denton, Decatur, Gainesville, and Bowie.
- Approved statement of agreement between the American Red Cross - North Texas Region and Cooke County for emergency/disaster planning services.
- Approved the FY 2012 Audit Scope for Cooke County performed by Patillo, Brown, and Hill, LLP.
- Approved contract between Cooke County Justice Center and American BioSource for the purchase of the Cooke County Justice Center kitchen used oil products for a 12-month period beginning Jan. 1 and ending Dec. 31, 2013.
- Accepted a donation in the amount of $40 to the Cooke County Library in memory of Georgia Insel from her Bingo buddies Patti Tucker, Sandra Nichols, Norma Leslie, Trice Henry, Gerry Armstrong, Dana Moss, Vicki Camp, Eula Dickey, Brenda Lawson, Barbara McKinney, Connie Neu, Paula Strait, and Della Turner.

Dreams do come true - Area receives a White Christmas

By afternoon on Christmas Day, a snowstorm blasted through North Texas, depositing about two inches of snow in the Muenster area. Before the snow began, rain fell followed by sleet. Few complained since moisture is much needed. Pictured is the Nativity scene in front of Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

MMH to purchase scope equipment

By Janet Felderhoff

Muenster Memorial Hospital Administrator Michael Kent informed the Board of Directors that he has been in contact with a general surgeon who is interested in performing colonoscopies and EGDs at the Hospital. MMH physician Don Simmons currently performs those procedures and after speaking with him and the other physician, Kent feels that they need to invest in back-up scopes and an upgrade of the monitors.

Dr. Simmons explained, "One set of scopes is adequate, but it does provide for potentially an hour delay in between doing one. If a surgeon is coming in, chances are he will be doing more of them in a row. If you do more than one in a row, the wait time would be significantly decreased by having a second scope." He added that in 10 years of doing scopes, he has had three or four times that he's had a scope become disabled. By having a back up, the procedure can still be performed rather than having the patient whose done the bowel prep repeat that process.

Board President Ronnie Weinzapfel said, "To me, it is a practical thing to do if you are going to do scopes." The scope equipment would match what is now being used. The cost to purchase scope from Olympus is $38,852.12. There was a unanimous vote to make the purchase.

There are growing concerns regarding the Hospital's current two-pipe system for climate control. Two companies were contacted to study the current system and suggest changes. Of the two, Mtech had submitted a proposal prior to the Board meeting.

Mtech suggested replacing the chiller and hot water handlers with a 10-ton heat pump A/C system with five fan/coil units to service the corridor/hallway areas and a 20-ton heat pump A/C system 18 fan/coil unit for the interior zones. Each unit would serve as a separate cooling/heating zone with a local temperature control.

Kent noted, "They're saying by getting rid of the chiller, hot water handlers, the pumps, all of that, we could look at an average of about 25% energy cost on the savings." The total cost was not to exceed $250,000.

Board member James Walterscheid wondered if it would always be in the mode for heating in one place and cooling in another. "Some units will allow for heating in one place and cooling in another. Sometimes that's necessary," he commented.

President Weinzapfel said, "My thoughts are to wait until we get our audited report to see where we really stand and then look at this down the line somewhere." Discussion continued around equipment some of which is 48 years old.

Board members whose terms expire in 2013 are John Aytes, James Walterscheid, and T.J. Walterscheid. Application deadline for anyone seeking election to the MMH Board of Directors is 5 p.m. on March 1. These are three-year terms.

The Board approved locations of polling places for the District as Muenster Junior High and Era Community Center. Don Richardson remarked that the Era location is just outside of the Hospital District, but people from Rosston are accustomed to voting there. Rosston has no place to vote except the fire house. Polling locations selected must be reported to the Department of Justice and a response could take up to 60 days, said Kent.

In his CEO report, Kent explained that there are many changes in health care taking place in the near future. He is making telephone calls to Washington and to Austin to help protect rural health care. Some of those issues are possible elimination of CAH status; CAH reimbursement cuts; sequestration's 2% cut to rural hospitals; 35% cut to uncompensated care; and cuts in FLEX and outreach grants. He plans to attend more meetings this year and take some trips to Austin in regard to health care issues. Although the Hospital has not been a member of the National Rural Health Association (NRHA), he feels it is time to join in order to have a voice on a national level.

Chief Nursing Officer Diane Neu reported an average daily census of 9.33 during the month of November. On the day of the meeting, the patient count was 17. She said there are nine patients in the wound care clinic and two cardiac rehab patients.

In other business, the Board:

- Approved Bad Debt Write Offs totaling $40,138.24.
- Approved active medical staff privileges to Richard F. Ammar, M.D. and reappointment of active medical staff privileges to James Stephen Jones, M.D. as recommended by the medical staff.

Cold weather has livestock grazing cool, crunchy lunches

Livestock still found some grazing despite snow and ice that covered the ground on Christmas Day. Temperatures have stayed in the cool ranges, dropping into the teens at night and staying in the 30s and 40s during the day. With little sun to promote melting, drifts of snow remain in some places more than a week after falling.

Regents approve positions

By Darin Allred
NCTC Public Relations specialist

At their regular December meeting, North Central Texas College Regents approved the employment of new mid-year personnel to help the school keep up with growing enrollment.

Regents met Friday in an afternoon meeting held prior to Fall graduation.

The Board voted to use approximately $70,000 from set-aside monies as well as funds from part-time wages for six positions to be filled mid-year. The positions include a full-time librarian for the Flower Mound campus, full-time (from part-time) maintenance position for Flower Mound, full-time (from part-time) business office position for Flower Mound, full-time (from part-time) admissions position for Gainesville, and full-time administrator and dual-credit coordinator for western Denton County.

In other items, Board members adopted a resolution authorizing the issuance of refunding bonds and establishing the parameters for the refunding. The bonds to possibly be re-financed are the 2004 Series bonds that were sold for the construction of the First State Bank Center for the Performing Arts. The current bond market is posting lower rates and could save the institution more than $160,000 over the remaining life of the indebtedness.

Board members also voted to transfer $2.5 million from the general fund to board designated reserves and earmarked $332,499 for a roof replacement project for the Administrative Services Center (ASC 100 Building) on the Gainesville campus. Regents then voted to award a bid for the roof replacement to CBS Roofing Services of Denton. The project will be completed in early March.

Regents heard from Tom Schalk of the accounting firm of Schalk and Smith who presented the 2011-12 NCTC Audit. Schalk gave the College an unqualified audit, the highest mark that See REGENTS pg. 2

What to do if you've lost your wallet/purse

You've lost your wallet. Your whole life is in that purse. You've looked everywhere, called the businesses you recently visited, and asked your friends to check their cars or houses. It's nowhere to be found. Now what?

Losing your wallet or purse is one of the most inconvenient things that can happen. It is also one of the times when you can't avoid the phone calls and long lines at the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) that result. Time is of the essence when it comes to protecting your bank account and identity from malicious fraud. The maximum time you should wait to act is 24 hours. Some companies even have deadlines for reporting lost cards.

Listed below are several key steps to take if you find yourself in this predicament. As long as you do all of these things, the order in which you do them isn't important. Also, the following six items should never be regularly kept in your wallet.

- Social security card
- Birth certificate
- Every single credit card you own
- Spare house keys
- Your PIN codes
- Receipts

File a police report. As soon as you've given up finding your wallet, assume that someone has it and is not going to return it. Calling the police might seem like an unnecessary step but it is essential for fraud prevention. Please do not call 911 in this situation. The police will give you a report with a report number, and this is very important if you become a victim of identity theft or fraud. You need a real record of the event, instead of trying to explain to creditors later on why you didn't report the loss.

You will also need a new driver's license, and most DMVs will ask for a copy of the police report. The DMV will issue you a new driver's license, which will have the same number as the old one. If you don't have a lost license report filed, how will you explain things if someone hands over your license to the police for a simple administrative summons? You could end up with an outstanding bench warrant that you know nothing about until years later.

Call your bank. Provide your bank with a copy of the police report. If you have a debit card, report it stolen and get the bank to issue you a new one with a new pin number. Unlike credit cards, debit card providers may leave you on the hook for unreported losses and fraudulent charges. You can also be charged overdraft fees. Your bank can notify major check verification companies to keep stores from accepting checks from your account.

Call your credit card companies and report your cards lost or stolen. You may be told to cancel your cards but that is not necessary. Canceling your cards can cause other headaches and mess up your credit score. Every card issuer has a set of procedures for handling lost or stolen cards, and if you report it as such, you won't have as many hassles as you would with cancelled cards. It's also important to act fast with department store credit cards. These cards often have less strict security procedures in place, and store employees won't be as stringent dealing with customers presenting store cards.

Notify the three major credit agencies. Call the three agencies—Equifax, TransUnion, and Experian—and ask them to put a fraud alert on your credit report. Get a copy of your credit reports to check for fraudulent activities a month or two after you've reported your cards stolen.

Lastly, a preventative step that will help if you lose your wallet or purse is to scan everything in your wallet. Keep these scans printed out in a safe place or digitally stored in a protected folder on your computer. This includes not only your driver's license and credit cards, but also health insurance cards and gift cards. You can keep a password protected PDF on your phone or use 'Lost Wallet' apps available for smartphones. However, consider that losing your phone is easier to do than losing your wallet. The goal is to have a backup so you will know instantly what has gone missing and the numbers to call to begin to remedy the situation.

When you are proclaiming peace with your lips, be careful to have it even more fully in your heart.

Travis Felderhoff commissioned 2nd Lieutenant United States Marine Corps.

On Friday, Dec. 14, 2012, Travis Felderhoff graduated from Officer Candidates School in an outdoor ceremony on Brown Field, Marine Corps Base Quantico, Quantico, Virginia. The graduation was a military style ceremonial parade which took place at 8 a.m. Speakers were the Commanding Officer of OCS, Colonel Kris J. Stillings, USMC and Chief of Staff of the United States Air Force, General Mark A. Welsh III, USAF.

Officer Candidate School is a ten-week course designed to train, evaluate, and screen officer candidates to ensure they possess the moral, intellectual, and physical qualities for commissioning; and the leadership potential to serve successfully as company grade officers in the operating forces. Two hundred thirty-two candidates began this class and only 150 of the men and women made it to the graduation date.

Later that morning, Travis received his commission as a 2nd Lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps at a commissioning ceremony at the National Museum of the Marine Corps. Travis received his commission from Commandant of the Marine Corps, General James F. Amos, USMC. After the ceremony, Travis had his 2nd Lt. bars pinned on his uniform by his parents Tim and Ramona Felderhoff, sisters Kelly Luke and Lisa Phillips, and fiancée Kayla Hess. 2nd Lieutenant Travis Felderhoff received his first salute from Sergeant Kory Fitzpatrick, USMC. It is tradition dating back to Revolutionary times that you buy your first salute with a silver dollar; 2nd Lt. Felderhoff presented Sgt. Fitzpatrick with a 2005 Marine Corps Commemorative Silver Dollar.

Attending the event were Tim and Ramona Felderhoff; Jesse, Kelly, Alexa, and Abby Luke; and David and Lisa Phillips. Also attending were Peggy Walterscheid; Vicki Eldridge; Mark and Carol Grewing; and Ricky, Donna and Kayla Hess.

In January, 2nd Lt. Felderhoff will report to The Basic School in Quantico.

Weather whys - freezing fog

Q: What is freezing fog?

A: "Freezing fog is similar to regular fog, with the exception that it occurs at temperatures below 32 degrees," explains Brent McRoberts of Texas A&M University. "Freezing fog is composed of liquid droplets, but unlike regular fog, it will freeze when it contacts a surface, similar to a freezing rain event. The droplets sometimes form crystals similar to snowflakes, and this is called frozen fog. The ingredients for all of this to happen are the same as regular fog: clear nighttime skies, low-level moisture, and light winds."

Q: Is it rare and where does it happen most often?

A: "Freezing fog is most common at the tops of mountains, but it can occur anywhere when cold air passes over warm, moist land," McRoberts adds. "Freezing fog is relatively rare since anytime you have fog, the air temperature must cool to the exact level as the dew-point temperature. It is uncommon in Texas to have the sufficient moisture and sub-freezing temperature necessary for freezing fog formation."

Cooke County straining to meet children's needs

The demographic surge in five counties north of Dallas includes a growing number of children who lack health insurance, according to a new report by Children's Medical Center (www.childrens.com).

The 2012 edition of Children's annual Beyond ABC report were released recently at a community symposium moderated by Texas State Senator Florence Shapiro. The report provides reliable data about the health and welfare of area children. It's the second edition focused specifically on five North Texas counties: Collin, Cooke, Denton, Grayson, and Fannin.

While the population trends in North Texas have created pockets of prosperity, Beyond ABC: Assessing Children's Health in the North Texas Corridor shows increased demand for basic child health services. Some 453,403 children now live in the five counties - an 8% increase since Children's last survey of the area in 2010. And all five counties have at least twice the national average of uninsured children, including Cooke County at 23.9% and Grayson at 19.1%.

"One of the things we want to emphasize is that this trend is not just about North Texas, or even the state," said Christopher J. Durovich, president and chief executive officer of Children's Medical Center. "One in nine U.S. children now lives in Texas, so what happens here is important for the entire nation. An alarming number of those children lack medical coverage for even routine care."

But while Medicaid enrollment has ballooned, the percentage of Texas physicians accepting new Medicaid patients has dropped from 42% in 2010 to just 31% in 2012, according to a survey by the Texas Medical Association.

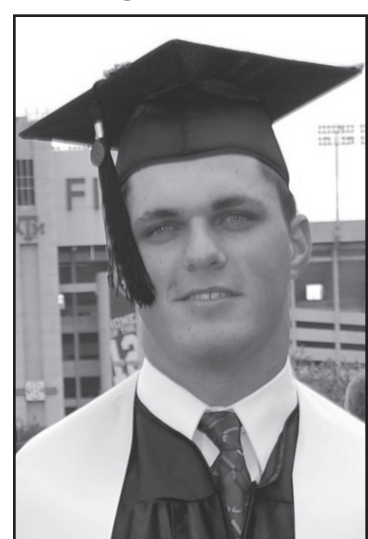

Beyond ABC also looks at other indicators of child health and well-being. It found that 8.5% of children in North Texas live in poverty, defined as an annual household income of $23,050 for a family of four. In Collin County, the number of children living in poverty doubled between 2000 and 2010.

FARM & RANCH

USDA encourages farmers, ranchers to fill out Census of Agriculture

The future of farm programs and rural services is now in the hands of farmers and ranchers across the nation. The U.S. Department of Agriculture is now in the process of mailing out the 2012 Census of Agriculture, which is used by the federal agency to gather consistent and comprehensive agricultural data on every state and county in the nation.

Unlike the U.S. Census, which is conducted every 10 years, the Census of Agriculture is sent to farmers and ranchers across the country every five years by the USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service. The Census looks at land use and ownership, production practices, and other factors.

Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack says the Census provides farmers with a powerful voice. He strongly encourages farmers and ranchers of all size properties to complete and return the Census. All of the information obtained through the paperwork is confidential.

"It helps tell the true story about the state of agriculture in the United States today," Vilsack said.

Veterinary organization: new USDA livestock traceability rule is step in the right direction

The American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) is applauding the U.S. Department of Agriculture's implementation of a new livestock traceability rule.

In a press release, the AVMA states that while the organization is pleased with the new safeguards in place for the country's livestock,

The USDA anticipates that all farmers and ranchers will receive their Census by early January. Those farmers who do not receive one in the mail are encouraged to fill the form out online at agcensus.usda.gov. Federal law requires all farmers and ranchers to participate in the Census.

the AVMA supports a mandatory and uniform national disease traceability and identification system. The goal of such a program, according to the release, is to help "broadly protect the nation's food supply and food animal populations."

The ideal program would be able to trace a large number of animals during a large disease outbreak.

"The AVMA believes this new rule will lay the foundation to further strengthen U.S. animal disease prevention and response capabilities," said Dr. Ron DeHaven, AVMA chief executive officer. "It's our hope that this will lead to a more comprehensive, electronic system that will result in even greater improvements and more rapid animal traceability in the event of a disease outbreak. While it doesn't go as far as we would like, the new rule is a step in the right direction, and we are pleased that it is official."

According to the USDA, the new rule states that livestock moved interstate would have to be identified and accompanied by an interstate certificate of veterinary inspection or other documents.

For more information on the rule, visit USDA.gov.

EPA opts not to tighten restrictions on farm dust

The Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) decision not to tighten its restrictions on farm dust came as a big relief to many farmers and ranchers across the nation, according to the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF).

AFBF Regulatory Specialist Andrew Walmsley says the EPA determined there is no need to make regulations on course particulate matter any tougher this year.

"There were many concerns that they might tighten standards for farm dust without a whole lot of scientific evidence," Walmsley said. "There is not evidence that suggests that it causes harmful impacts to human health."

Farmers and ranchers across the nation could have been greatly affected by a change in the rule on farm dust. Under the Clean Air Act, the EPA must review its air quality standards every five years. When the Agency missed that deadline, a federal court ordered them to make a decision by Dec. 14.

Walmsley says the EPA indicated that it would toughen rules for soot, also referred to as fine particulate matter, instead of farm dust, and the Agency has stayed true to its word.

The ruling is important to farmers and ranchers nationwide as a change to the rule could make it difficult to move cattle, plant, plow, and do necessary field work.

"In areas of the country where it tends to be dusty, simply moving cattle could kick up too much dust," Walmsley said. "Driving a truck down a dry dirt road would potentially put areas out of compliance. Everyday farming activities would come under question. It would increase the cost of food. It would make it that much harder for a farmer to be competitive if these standards were tightened."

The EPA could revisit the restrictions again in five years.

County Agent's Report

Vegetable gardening with cool weather plants

If you are a long-time vegetable gardener, or if you want to become one, now is a good time to start making plans for the spring vegetable garden. It will soon be time for planting beets, broccoli, brussel sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, collards, garlic, kale, kohlrabi, turnips, lettuce, and onions. These can all be planted in February. If you want to start even earlier, it is possible to plant radish, rutabaga, and spinach as early as the middle of January. For a complete list of planting dates, you may wish to acquire the Cooke County Master Gardener's "Vegetable Planting Date Guide for Cooke County" that is available at our office.

A successful gardener usually starts with a plan and well prepared soil. Many garden sites do not have the deep, well-drained, fertile soil that is ideal for growing vegetables. If yours is one of them, you will need to alter the soil to provide good drainage and aeration. If the soil is heavy clay, adding organic matter, sand, or gypsum will improve it. Organic matter also improves sandy soils. Therefore, a good activity for a nice winter day would include working in about 50% organic matter into your garden site. Take advantage of all the leaves around your house and your neighborhood. The leaves shredded now and added to the soil will be compost by spring.

One word of caution about preparing the soil now, the wet and cold weather that we have been experiencing over the holidays has been a blessing for farmers and gardeners alike, but never work wet garden soil. To determine if the soil is dry enough for working, squeeze together a small handful of soil. If it sticks together in a ball and does not readily crumble under slight pressure by your thumb and finger, it is too wet for working. Don't become discouraged if your soil doesn't improve immediately. It may take several years to improve the soil's physical condition, so you'll want to add more organic matter periodically.

Other useful information about vegetable gardening can be found in an easily understood "Texas Home Vegetable Gardening Guide," publication E-502, prepared by Extension Vegetable Specialist Dr. Joe Masabni. It is available through our office, or online with other vegetable publications at: <http://aggie-horticulture.tamu.edu/vegetable/>

Spider mite infestations plague Texas corn growers

This year, corn growers in the Texas High Plains region experienced one of the highest rates of spider mite infestations the region has seen in years.

Dr. Ed Bynum, Texas A&M AgriLife entomologist, said corn producers saw increased populations of the Banks grass mite, which is supposedly easier to control than the two-spotted spider mite.

According to Bynum, this year, corn growers had problems controlling the mites, even with multiple applications of insecticides.

A hot, dry summer, mite populations that developed earlier and faster than normal, and a reduced number of spider mite predators due to the application of insecticides for other insects all led to the high numbers of spider mite infestation this year.

For tips on how to control spider mite populations, visit today.agrilife.org.

Did You Know?

The sky isn't really blue - it is black. The color is caused by the sun's rays striking countless specks of dust in the atmosphere.

The swastika did not originate with the Nazis. It is found on Sumerian seals as long ago as 2850 BC, on Assyrian and Persian coins, and the American Indian regarded it as a symbol of good luck.
