

Good Grooming Is Topic at 4-H Meet

Sacred Heart's 4-H Club girls had illustrated lectures on Good Grooming at the December meetings Wednesday. Mrs. Yvonne Jenkins gave the talk and showed colored slides. She also distributed leaflets on the subject.

Announcements of interest were the Fire Safety program to be held at Gainesville next Monday night, 7:30, in the community center building, and the Dairy Foods Show, scheduled for Feb. 25. Some of the girls are planning to enter dairy foods demonstrations.

Nancy Haverkamp, reporting for the junior club, listed 42 members present. Rita Trubench, president, presided and Recreational Leaders Shirley Vogel and Deborah Fette led the group in a song after adjournment.

Joan Fisher reported for the intermediate club. Bernadette Yosten, president, conducted the meeting which was attended by 30 members. Annette Knauf called roll and substituted for Secretary Joyce Owen. Adult Leaders Mrs. Paul Fisher and Mrs. Cecil Sims attended.

The American Way

QUEER WAY TO FIGHT COMMUNISM

By John T. Flynn

Are we for communism or against it? That sounds like a silly question. I can hear you say: Of course, we're against communism. And I know the majority of the American people are strongly opposed to communism and all it stands for. But I am not so sure about our political leaders. They say they are opposed to communism and I suppose they are. But they have some strange and devious ways of showing it. Here is what I mean.

The American people are groaning under fantastic taxes. A monstrous proportion of those taxes go into the building up and maintenance of a tremendous military establishment. We are told this is essential because of the menace of communism. Along with this, the politicians have grabbed from the people the inconceivable sum of SIXTY-TWO BILLION DOLLARS for what is called foreign aid — sixty-two billion dollars scattered around to countries all over the world since the end of the Second World War. Here again we are told that this is necessary in order that the countries on the receiving end of your dollars may resist communist infiltration and aggression.

Now let's assume for the moment that all this is really necessary in order to fight communism — though the question naturally arises as to how we are protecting ourselves against the menace of communism when we spend ourselves into bankruptcy. But what are we to think of politicians who, with their right hand, grab our hard-earned dollars "to protect us against communism" and, with their left hand, spend those dollars to shore up communist regimes — and even to soften us up on communism?

Some of your foreign-aid dollars have been pouring out to so-called "neutralist" countries who sway a little bit toward the West while the dollar-giveaways are flowing — and then sway right back again toward the Soviet Union. The naive of our leaders with regard to these countries is almost beyond belief. India is a good example. We have poured hundreds of millions of dollars down that drain. Last month President Eisenhower welcomed a new Indian ambassador to the United States. The President chose the occasion to note the "close friendship" between India and the United States. He said this friendship was strengthened by the fact that both countries share the same political ideals. Surely the President must be aware of the fact that India constantly plays footsie with Soviet Russia. And could he really mean that India and America "share the same political ideals" — when Premier Nehru of India told his people only a year ago that there would be "no retreat" from the goal of socialism in India?

Well On The Way

Even worse than our playing Santa Claus to the neutralist nations — in the name of fighting communism — is our aid to outright communist nations. Your dollars are still flowing to Communist Yugoslavia and Communist Poland. Last month the Communist dictator of Poland sounded off with a violent and anti-American attack. Shortly after this, Poland announced she was standing four-square behind Soviet Russia in its attempt to end the freedom of West Berlin. Sandwiched in between these two diatribes came the news that Communist Poland was due to get another 20-million-dollar "loan" from the United States!

Meantime, we have been having a "cultural exchange" with Soviet Russia. Doves of Soviet delegations — no doubt accompanied by the usual spies and MVD men — have been swarming over the United States. We even had the spectacle of an American audience — at a performance by a Russian ballet troupe — standing at attention while the orchestra played the Star Spangled Banner and the Soviet National Anthem. Now the State Department and the USIA — United States Information Agency — are busy forcing down the throats of the movie exhibitors a batch of Soviet motion pictures, to be shown to Americans who pay their money to go to the movies. The USIA cooked up a deal — which really originated in the mind of a former Soviet ambassador to the United States — to exchange seven American movies for ten Communist movies. USIA made an "agreement" with the Russians not to change the movies. Of course we'll live up to the agreement — but USIA made no provision to police the American movies shown in Russia to see that they were not changed!

And to crown this queer method of "fighting communism" — while we spend ourselves into bankruptcy — the Department of Commerce has lifted the ban on another batch of products which could not, up to now, be exported to communist countries. They involve such "harmless" items as scientific and professional instruments, chemicals, machine tools and electrical and industrial machinery.

THE COURT IS OUT-OF-STEP

"The framers of our Constitution never intended," says the American Farm Bureau Federation in a resolution adopted without opposition at its recent Boston convention, "that there should be vested in the Supreme Court of the United States power to legislate, power to distort the plain language of the Constitution, or power to interfere with matters of purely State or local concern where constitutional privileges and immunities of citizens are in no way bridged."

The convention was, it said "seriously concerned with the present tendency of the Supreme Court to legislate with the acquiescence of the executive branch" and with the further tendency of Congress to relinquish legislative powers. The resolution urged that Congress prescribe proper limitations of the court's jurisdiction, and that it enact "corrective or conforming legislation in those fields where the Supreme Court has invaded the legislative area."

While the Farm Bureau resolution does not refer specifically to any decision or ruling of the court, the delegates are obviously in agreement with former Indiana Congressman Samuel B. Pettengill, who takes issue with the oft-repeated statement that the court's ukase (in the school segregation issue) is "the law of the land."

"But more important than integration or segregation," writes Mr. Pettengill in HUMAN EVENTS, "is the preservation of the Constitution against the brainwashing of the American people now going on to support the curious notion that decision

ARE PARENTS VILLIANS?

by Rev. James F. Finley, former movie and TV critic for THE CATHOLIC WORLD

THERE seems to be a school of scribblers in TV and the movies who can't resist loading the gun and pulling the trigger to blow out parental brains in these parent versus child dramas.

Granted the fact of a horde of ill-tempered, incompetent parents in this or any generation. Nevertheless, such parents are not typical. Yet authors tend on too many occasions to present the mother or father as a nagging or narrow-minded tyrant and the child as a stary-eyed, innocent, fun lovin' puppy who is horribly misunderstood.

Finley

AREN'T CHILDREN supposed to obey? Are they supposed to be permitted absolute liberty or freedom to romp and roam, never being checked, questioned or tested on their hours, activities or companionship?

HERE'S an example of this kind of writing: scene shows high school daughter about sixteen in a car with the local Mr. Wonderful. They're moaning and groaning about going home — after all it's only two A.M., and they've only been parked for three hours in the dark. Reluctantly they decide it's time to depart. After a quick thirty minute front porch farewell, our little heroine goes inside.

Mother waits at the stairs — she's haggard, wild-eyed and leg-weary from playing sentinel since midnight. She asks, "Where have you been?"

"Out," answers daughter curtly.

feeling that one word should solve mother's insomnia problem.

"What could you be doing until this hour?"

"Doing?" screams our girl. "Is that what you think of me, mother?... is that how you trust me?... you keep thinking that way, and some day I'll do all the things you suspect!" With that, Annie hits the stairs four at a time, bangs open her door, and slams it with a flourish of resentment. By now, we all know mother is a wretch of a woman just hounding her little darling to death. Why who ever heard of a parent checking any sixteen-year-old girl on why she was out until nearly three A.M.?

LET'S STOP making villains out of every sincere parent. A good proportion of our very young people find great consolation in dramatizations which justify their own rebellious motions and notions.

Our authors must remember that the real basis of a true presentation of family values must be found in the Fourth Commandment. God allows for no false pity or sympathetically slanted dialogue when he demands, "Honor thy father and mother."

PARENTS HAVE RIGHTS under this canon; children have duties. Obedience is an obligation no matter what the gang does or what the fashion and trend of the day falsely allows.

There is a suspicion some of these writers are not adult themselves when they create scenes prejudicial to parents. Someone should take the pens away from them and give them a rattle. They need to grow up before grinding out any more scripts about family life.

† Paulist Feature Service, Washington 17, D. C.

of the US Supreme Court — any decision — is 'law.'

"... There is not a word in the Constitution which says that a Supreme Court judgment is 'the law of the land', there is not a word which says that public officials or private citizens are legally bound by a decision of the Supreme Court (except the parties to the particular case itself).

"There is not a word in the Constitution which give the Supreme Court the power or right to enact a law, or to amend the Constitution by giving it a meaning which the proposing Congress or ratifying state legislatures, or the people, did not intend it to have.

Mr. Pettengill goes on to observe only the people have the power or right to amend the Constitution and only the Congress to enact Federal law. "This is what is meant," he says, "by a government of law. And Congress has never said that segregated schools are against the law."

Certainly, as the Farm Bureau resolution suggests, it is time for the Congress to assert its prerogatives and its responsibility to the people. We have faced intolerable situations before, and (sometimes) found orderly and dignified solutions. Our need for statesmanship was never greater.

Texas' first producing oil well was drilled at Melrose, Nacogdoches County, in 1856 by Lynis T. Barrett.

Asked if he planned to run again for President, Adlai E. Stevenson replied with this story: After an atomic blast had destroyed the world, one male gorilla emerged from a cave in Africa. Then a female gorilla emerged from another cave, and he said to her, "Do you have anything to eat?" She rushed back to her cave and brought out an apple. "And," said Stevenson, "the male gorilla, staring at the apple said to her 'what I now say to you, 'Now don't start that all over again'."

Method Described For Drying Grain With Solar Energy

A practical way has been found for drying grain with energy from the sun. It is a relatively simple method of converting an unheated-air grain-drying system into a heated-air operation without the necessity of artificial heat. Here's how!

Begin by fastening plywood to the underside of the grain bin roof rafters, leaving an open space about five inches thick. Then paint the bin roof black. The roof absorbs the sun's heat and the 5-inch thick area collects it. Next, reverse the bin fan, pulling the warm air down through the wet grain.

What are the results? On a 70-degree day, with bright sunshine, temperature of the air drawn through the roof "heater" was about 85 degrees. The 15-degree difference is the key to the whole system. Each cubic foot of the 85-degree air takes about twice as much moisture out of wet grain as the same amount of 70-degree air.

If the sun doesn't shine, keep the fan running to cool the grain until it does. In tests, engineers dried shelled corn down from 21% to 14% moisture content with only 3 sunny days out of 23 that it was in storage.

Back in Dallas, Mrs. Endres and Sister Irma helped Leonard celebrate his birthday at a dinner party arranged by his wife at their home. Mrs. Endres also had a pleasant one-day visit with the Frank Schoechs in Dallas. While they were in Beaumont where Sister Irma taught school 21 year ago -- and this was her first visit back -- word got around that she was there and some of her former students came to see her. Among them were three of her first graders, one bringing a little boy to get acquainted with, another who is a school teacher now and one who is a priest. Sister Irma taught in Beaumont six years.

Mrs. Buck Wilson and son Gene spent a part of the recent holidays visiting her mother, Mrs. J. A. Crawford at Recklaw, Texas. Joining them there were Mrs. Wilson's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Wilson of Houston who took his mother and brother back to Houston with them for a visit before they returned to Muenster.

Former Muensterites Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stelzer and their children Geraldine, Terry, Shirley Ann and Matt II, of Norwalk, Calif., visited relatives here the past week. They spent the first part of their vacation in Post with his parents, the Matt Stelzers, and Mrs. Stelzer accompanied them to Muenster. Before coming here they stopped at Bridgeport for a visit with the Maurice Stelzers. This was baby Matt's first trip to Texas.

Jeanette Haverkamp and Lorette Mages returned to Dallas Sunday after two weeks at home with their families, the Lee Haverkamps and Joe Mages. Ann Luke also returned to Dallas Sunday and to classes at St. Paul's Hospital School of Nursing after a two week vacation with her family, the Henry Lukes.

THE FANTASTIC STORY of MUSA-SHIYA THE SHIRTMAKER

(Also Sometimes Drygoods Selling)

If the shipping department of a factory had not made an error, the world would never have known of Musa-shiya the Shirtmaker and the most astounding advertising campaign in history would never have been launched.

Following World War I an English textile factory was getting back on a peacetime basis. In error it sent a full five year backorder of shirting material to Musa-shiya, a Japanese shirtmaker who operated a small shop in Honolulu. Business was poor and Musa-shiya was near bankruptcy, when the customs office informed him that certain bales of cloth and a fat bill for duties awaited his pleasure at the port of Honolulu.

When the little shirtmaker realized what had descended upon him, he asked for time and went into the silence for purpose of mental refreshment. Remembering a friend in a big mercantile establishment, he hid himself there and sought counsel. How in the name of the horned prophet of evil was he ever to get rid of all that English shirting? And in the meantime where was he to put it? His little box of a shop wouldn't hold one bale.

"You'll have to advertise," advised his friend. "Leave it to me. I'll have our advertising agents help you out."

This merely compounded the little Japanese shirtmaker's troubles. Advertising to him was an uncharted sea. The advertising agent called on Musa-shiya and suggested $300 as a modest starter. "Too-o-o much. Maybe I think thirty dollar plenty," said the shirtmaker. He was told that wouldn't even get him in print. The agent explained the costs of various advertisements and finally Musa-shiya agreed to try the plan and what was destined to be the most astounding and far reaching campaign in the history of advertising was launched.

Two column by five inch ads then started appearing regularly in the Saturday Honolulu Star-Bulletin. The ads were written just the way Musa-shiya talked—in colorful pidgen English which is used throughout the Orient. Here is an example of one of Musa-shiya's ads:

"Well here come storek again—but Musa-shiya, the shirtmaker, is able prepare. Wonderful accumulation of baby things in dry goods selling corner of Musa shop. Everything for the baby—especially diaper. Exclusive of storek, which find most easily, many persons not finding little shop of Musa-shiya the shirtmaker, in King Street, Makai side, between fish market and river."

Tourists started sending copies of Musa-shiya's ads to their friends in many countries. Soon Musa-shiya was receiving orders from all over the world as well as doing a thriving business in Hawaii.

And that is the story of how a well planned, small advertising campaign made an unknown Japanese shirtmaker not only wealthy but world famous.

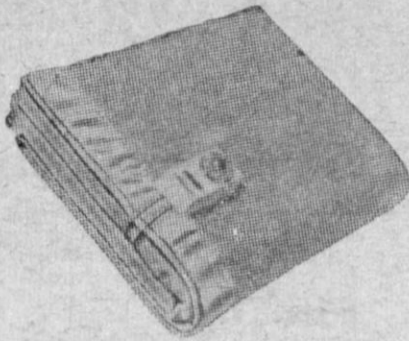

Your local newspaper doesn't promise to duplicate this story for its advertisers, but it does take your sales message into the homes of your customers where full and careful consideration is given your suggestions. Who knows, perhaps you too can be a Musa-shiya.

America's First Jetliners Will Shrink Nation

First Southwest Jet Service through Dallas by mid-1959

One of the most significant advances in U. S. transportation history occurs in January when American Airlines launches the first commercial jet service across the nation with 707 Jet Flagships (shown above).

The most thoroughly tested airliners ever to enter service, the huge 600 mile-an-hour 707 Flagships will trim the nonstop time between Los Angeles and New York, where they will be introduced, to an incredible 4½ hours.

American's big four-engine jets will carry 112 passengers in both first-class and aircoach accommodations (56 in each) and will have considerable cargo carrying capacity. Their speed will shrink the nation another 40 per cent resulting in tremendous savings in time for passengers and shippers.

The principal improvement which may be remembered longer by the passenger than the savings in time is the superior comfort of the great new airliners. American's 707 Jet Flagships are longer, wider and roomier than the slower piston airplanes they will replace and are virtually vibration free because of the turbine engines.

Following the introduction of the 707 Jet Flagships on the transcontinental nonstop route between Los Angeles and New York, service will be expanded to include by mid-1959 San Francisco, Chicago, Dallas, Washington, D. C., Baltimore and Boston.

Revenue for the past year amounted to $14,928.61 and the sources of income, besides the earnings of bonds, were $1,304.63 premiums on new policies and $12,428.15 on an assessment of 30 cents per $100 of insured valuation.

Expenses during the year included $984.34 for fire and lightning losses, $1,905.33 for hail and storm losses and $2,954.09 for administration. This added to $5,843.76 for the total operating expense, which figures to slightly less than 13 cents on $100 of insured valuation.

That unit cost, he said, is about average for the mutual in recent years. The high was 20 cents in '52 and the low was 8 cents in '53. The cost for '57 was 17 cents.

In keeping with recommendations of the state insurance commission, Muenster Mutual continues its policy of building a strong reserve in order to be prepared in case of heavy losses. Also attractive to the directors is a substantial investment in bonds to assure larger income from interest. Their goal is a total reserve of near $75,000, but not to exceed that figure.

Accordingly the delegates at this meeting approved an assessment of 20 cents per $100 of insured valuation next year. At the same time they are looking forward to the following year, planning to make no assessment then unless it is required by heavy losses next year.

All directors of the organization were re-elected as follows: Albert Henscheid, president; John B. Klement, vice president; W. H. Endres, secretary; Victor Hartman, treasurer; and J. W. Hess, director.

Attending the meeting were delegates representing the five districts of the association: Muenster, Lindsay, Valley View, Electra and Windthorst. Each district will have its local meeting sometime in the spring.

situation, reports of widespread troubles in China, and a decline of "neutral" India's pro-Soviet favoritism, lend comforting support to the hope that 1959 will see the beginning of the end of communism. The opportunity is here, if the Christian countries will apply common sense and Christianity in meeting the challenge.

Year end news summaries a few weeks ago implied that the Chinese Nationalist cause is a lost one . . . that the Quemoy-Matsu crisis demonstrated our nation's unwillingness to back the Nationalists in case of a showdown. Con, for one, does not agree. He fervently believes our country will have the good judgment to stop retreating and the honor to stand by a lone and gallant defender of human dignity.
