Virginia, 50 Years Later, Still Believes in Santa Claus

NEW YORK—Just 50 years ago a small girl, panged with doubt, sat down and wrote a letter to a newspaper that asked an immortal question — and received an immortal answer.

The girl was eight-year-old Virginia O'Hanion. Her troubled question: "Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?"

Today little Virginia is a 58-year-old school principal who never since has questioned the reality of Santa Claus.

The newspaperman who answered her back in 1897 with an unsigned editorial published in the New York Sun was Francis P. Church, and his reply has become a part of American Christmas folklore.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy."

Nothing Else Real

Church went on to point out that there is nothing else real and abiding but the beauty of the unseen world whose passwords are faith, fancy, poetry and romance, and concluded:

"No Santa Claus! Thank God, he lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, may ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

Church died a number of years ago, and the little Virginia whose faith in Santa Claus he kept is now Mrs. Edward Douglas, a widow and principal of a public school in Manhattan's lower east side.

Curiously, the girl who asked the famous question and the man who gave the famous answer never met or saw each other.

A trim, pleasant-faced woman with gray hair and blue eyes, Mrs. Douglas recalled that at first she was mildly displeased by the original publication of her letter because schoolmates teased her.

"But the editorial that Mr. Church wrote means even more to me now than then. As each year passes I see more in it."

Its philosophy has influenced her own life, and she still believes with a whole heart in the things for which Santa Claus is one symbol.

Annually people from all parts of America write her the joy they have found in reading the famous editorial. She enjoys them all except a few from cranks who accuse her of personally inventing Santa Claus to confuse the downtrodden masses.

Mrs. Douglas has a daughter and six grandchildren, and her lifetime teaching career has kept her close to the world of childhood. Her school is in a poor neighborhood which is predominantly Jewish.

"Children today are more sophisticated than when I was young," she said. "They begin to have doubts about Santa Claus at an earlier age. One reason is they are more mechanically minded and they just can't figure how Santa can do what he's supposed to with nothing but reindeer pulling him."

Mary, Mother of Jesus is portrayed by Jo Ann Dobbs of Menard in the annual Texas State College for Women presentation of "The Story of the Nativity," written by Pres. L.H. Hubbard.

WISDOM

It taketh age to make a sage,
The wise no longer doubt it;
The older we grow the more we know
And the less we brag about it.

Mix together 1 pound of graham crackers rolled fine, 1 cup chopped maraschino cherries, 1 cup chopped marshmallows, 1 or 2 cups nuts, and one-half pint of heavy whipping cream. Chill in a long refrigerator dish. You'll have ice-box fruit cake.

The name Arkansas is an Indian name signifying "smoky water, with a French prefix meaning "bow".

HOLLYWOOD—"Coin machines have raised more money for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund than all other American products!" This statement was made by Walter Winchell, newspaper columnist and radio commentator, second from left above, here to make a new Cancer Fund movie. The coin machine industry, representing hundreds of thousands of amusement machines, such as juke boxes, pin games and vending machines of all types, has already raised and turned over $120,000 to cancer officials for research on finding the cure for cancer. Coin machine owners, recognizing the public service nature of their equipment, are donating a share of the proceeds of their machines to this cause which benefits all humanity. Peanut vendors, penny weighing scales, and a hundred odd types of very human coin-operated machines are fighting cancer in this way. Shown left to right above are Dave Gottlieb, president of Coin Machine Industries, Inc., Winchell, Herb Jones, vice president of Bally Mfg. WE'VE searched everywhere to find some new way of expressing our greetings to you. Each selection we made was discarded and each time we came back to the old reliable, "Merry Christmas". It just fits the occasion perfectly and we see no reason to change it or to use any other expression.

So when we say, "MERRY CHRISTMAS" please remember that it is expressed with all the sincerity and appreciation we can think of for your loyalty and consideration in the past.

New Santa Claus—New Christmas tree lights

The brilliantly lighted Christmas tree as we know it today originated late in the 16th Century. According to legend, Martin Luther became entranced one night with a starry Christmas sky and returned home to set up for his children a tree illuminated with numerous candles to represent the star-brightened sky.

The first written reference to a Christmas tree is found in the works of an unknown writer of the early 17th Century who said: "At Christmas they set up fir-trees in the parlours of Strasbourg and hang thereon roses cut out of many-colored paper, apples, wafers, gold-foil, sweets, etc. . . ."

But the relationship of light with the observance of Christmas goes all the way back to the birth of Christ when the brilliant Star of the East became the most universal symbol of the Nativity.

Even as the early converts gathered in the catacombs to observe Christmas during the dark days of the Church there were tiny oil burning lamps to brighten their somber surroundings. The interiors of the medieval cathedrals and churches always were banked with rows of flickering candles during the Christmas season, while later in English-speaking countries the dancing light of the Yule log burning in an open fireplace added cheer to the occasion.

This flickering motion of light, so long identified with the grave observance of early Christmases, was lost completely around the turn of the 20th Century when the electric light replaced the unsafe, outmoded wax candle. But now the electric light itself has reverted to that dancing light effect through its newest development—the Bubble-Lite.

For the first time it is now possible to obtain all the brilliancy and eye-arresting motion that was lost when use of the candle was discontinued in Christmas tree decorating. The Bubble-Lite consists of an "action" candle-shaped three-inch glass tube set in a two-toned translucent plastic base, which in turn houses a low-wattage bulb. This small bulb serves to light up the ornamental plastic base, as well as to generate sufficient heat to whirl the gayly-colored fluid in the glass tube upward in a continually bubbling spiral, while sending rays of light colorfully dancing through the upper glass "candle."

Everything?

Young man to spinster: "You look so cheerful and happy all the time! I always thought unmarried women were sour and grouchy all the time. Why are you so different?"

Spinster: "Well, I have a fireplace that smokes, a dog that barks, a parrot that swears and a cat that stays out all night. What do I need with a man?"

FRICITION, NOT WORK, IS THE CAUSE OF WEAR

All of us, at some time or another, have stood and marveled at the sight of a great engine in a pumping station, or a mighty dynamo in action. Day after day, year after year the machine runs stopping only for short periods at long intervals for minor adjustment.

Ask any engineer and he will tell you that it isn't the work that eventually puts any machine on the scrap heap, it's the friction. And isn't it about the same with the human engine? Hard work doesn't hurt it. It is the friction that wears; the petty jealousies, distrust of associates, envy of other's successes and the conflicts that result from faulty planning.

I HAVE FOUND TODAY

... an excellent thought to close the year on. I've shut the door on yesterday, its sorrows and mistakes. I've locked within its gloomy walls past failures and heartaches. And now I throw away the key to seek another room, and furnish it with hope and smiles and every springtime bloom. No thought shall enter this abode that has a hint of pain, and every malice and distrust shall never therein reign: I've shut the door on yesterday and thrown the key away. Tomorrow holds no doubts for me since I have found today.

Some people are always grumbling because roses have thorns. I am thankful that thorns have roses.

My Prayer

I know three things must always be
To keep a nation strong and free:
One is a heartstone bright and dear
With busy, happy loved ones near.
One is a ready heart and hand
To love and serve and keep the land.
One is a worn and beaten way
To where the people go to pray.
So long as these are kept alive
Nation and people will survive.
God, keep them always, everywhere,
The hearth, the flag, the place of prayer.

Modern Surgery Is Less Hazardous and More Versatile

The dangers of surgery are diminishing as the variety and magnitude of operations are increasing. There is practically no area left in the body which cannot be approached surgically with safety.

For example, tracts in the brain can be cut to improve greatly the condition of some persons previously confined in insane asylums. Defects in the skull resulting from accidents can be filled in completely and permanently with a metal or plastic that the tissues tolerate well. A new drug has made operations for goiter much safer and resulted in less reaction.

Today a lobe or a whole lung can be removed. An operation which requires cutting the nerve supply to the stomach is effective for stomach ulcers. Disease of the liver resulting in shutting off of its necessary circulation is being relieved by shunting the circulation to other vessels through metal tubes.

Modern surgery is only about 60 years old. This period represents almost all the advances in surgical knowledge. During almost every year it is found that some condition is amenable to an operation previously unknown.

Many persons formerly condemned to death, or to a life of permanent disability or discomfort, can now be returned to normal life.

Soft soap was used for cleaning by early Americans, same as it is now.

NEW YORK—First fashion show in the home furnishings field featured the fall meeting of the home furnishings division here. Carpet Institute, Inc. staged the show at a New York hotel. A collection of wool carpets and rugs, selected on the basis of style and color, covering a wide price range, was shown. Six attractive models, like the pretty miss above, paraded on the flood-lighted runway, carrying carpet samples mounted on frames, to the accompaniment of background music and a running commentary by Milo Boulton, master of ceremonies. Each sample was draped with a correlated swatch of drapery fabric.

in areas where contour farming means short turns and sharp curves.

Turner and Childers say equipment makers likewise are devising a wide range of specialty machines for jobs like terracing, posthole digging and silo unloading. There is a "flame" cultivator designed to burn out weeds instead of cut them down.

"Many other specialty items are coming," Turner says, "but what we are really headed for is a machine that will just have four wheels and a power plant. Farmers will mount all their special equipment on this basic piece as they need it. And most of it will be out in front of them where they can see what they're doing."

$10,000 A YEAR FOR READING TO SENATORS

Washington. — The Senate's new groaner will neither moan nor grumble.

Republican Senators finally agreed Wednesday on Edward E. Mansur Jr., 30 a Jefferson City, Mo., Republican and navy veteran, as reading clerk.

Mansur will replace John C. Crockett, 83, who read bills, amendments and the Senate roll like a motorcycle droning down a lonely highway.

GOP Caucus Chairman Eugene Milliken announced Mansur's election after an audition and said the fellow could read distinctly — and would — for $10,000 a year.

Farm Machines Getting Faster, Simpler, More Efficient and Adaptable

Washington. — Farm machinery is getting faster, simpler to operate, more efficient and more adaptable to varied use on farms of all sizes.

Two Agriculture Department engineers, Louis E. Childers and Arthur W. Turner, see these definite trends:

Tractors—
1. Smaller sizes, lighter weights and increased power in proportion to weight.

"This means mechanized operations are becoming possible on small farms and over rolling or rocky fields not suited to larger equipment," says Childers.

2. Increased equipment as plows and cultivators so that they become virtually part of the tractor.

Auto-Style Precision.
3. Hydraulic controls that give the farmer finger-tip command of his machine and result in safer, speedier work.

4. Simpler attachments for those tools that cannot be mounted.

5. Redesigning of mounted tools and attachments to accommodate them to higher-paced operations.

6. Shields and other safety devices.

7. Automobile-style precision in farm power equipment.

"The days are gone when any old casting would do if a farmer's tractor broke down," Childers says.

Combines and other multiple-use machines—

1. Greater versatility that will permit combines to be used not only for harvesting small grains but for handling legumes and seed crops.

Multiple-Purpose Machines.

2. Development of other multiple-purpose machines in the forage crop field.

3. A tendency toward self-propelled equipment in which the power unit is tightly built into the machine.

"The one disadvantage in this feature is that a power unit is permanently tied to equipment that may be used not more than six or eight weeks in a season," Turner points out.

Haying equipment—

1. A hay chopper that also can pile hay in windrows.

2. A virtually automatic, one-man hay baler that picks hay up and bales it with wire or twine in either square or round bundles.

The engineers emphasize that these trends are extending the benefits of mechanization down to the smallest farms. Moreover, they say the switch to lighter, more compact machines is an aid to soil conservation practices

CHRISTMAS

to Our Many Friends

With the passing of each year, it becomes more evident that the peace of Christmas is enjoyed only because there were those who made every sacrifice that we might enjoy Christmas to its fullest extent. As we extend our Season's Greeting we are mindful that without those sacrifices, we could not enjoy the blessings of peace.

If we strike a solemn note at this glad season of the year, it is only because we are remembering that there were those who gave their all to make it possible for Americans everywhere to observe and enjoy Christmas.

The peace of Christmas is sacred. May we never forget.

SWEDISH TRADITION HONORS ST. LUCY AS CHRISTMAS FAVORITE

St. Lucy's Day, on December 3, inaugurates the Christmas season in Sweden.

On that day the prettiest girl in the household is chosen to impersonate Lucy; very early Christmas morning she will go through the house awakening the household and giving each person a cup of coffee or some sort of sweetened beverage. Her costume is traditionally a white dress with a red sash, and she wears a wire crown entwined with holly leaves and berries — similar to the American cranberry — studded with nine candles.

Liturgically, St. Lucy was martyred about 300 A. D. The story goes that Lucy gave her dowry to the Christians — whose courage she admired — instead of turning it over to her fiancé. The enraged young man informed against her and she was condemned to be burned at the stake; unharmed by the flames, she did not die until thrust through with a sword.

Lucy is commemorated somewhat diversely in Switzerland where she is the legendary wife of Father Christmas. Wearing a round cap over her long braids, a laced bodice and a silk apron, she marches around the village with Father Christmas and distributes gifts to the girls while he looks after the boys.

The Texas Safety Association warns motorists that every time you follow the car ahead too closely, every time you pass on a blind curve, every time you mash the accelerator to the floor, you're gambling a few seconds against the blood and agony and death of 100 persons slated for death during the Christmas holidays.

GUESS WHAT HAPPENED SEPTEMBER 3-14, 1752 ABSOLUTELY NOTHING

Great Britain and her colonies adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1752; the Julian calendar having become 11 days slow by that time, parliament ordered that the day following September 3, 1752, would be September 14, and that the legal year should begin on January 1.

The Gregorian calendar is, in effect, a revised edition of the old Roman calendar. The ancient Roman year began with the month of March and ended with December, the 10th month. January and February were added in the course of time and the celebration of New Year's on January 1 began in 452 B. C.

Continental Europe had universally adopted the Gregorian calendar by 1700 but Great Britain, frowning upon anything originating in Rome as Popish, continued the use of the old calendar — with its legal year beginning on March 25 — until the confusion arising from using a different calendar than the one used by continental Europe prompted the adoption of the Gregorian calendar in 1752.
