

It's a generally admitted fact that any fixer-upper who does not get down to the real cause of trouble doesn't know much about his business.

Suppose a man brings his car to the repair shop and tells the mechanic "There's something wrong with the running gear, the tires are wearing lopsided?" The mechanic says, "Sorry, fellow, nothing can be done to prevent that, but swapping wheels around frequently will make the tires wear even."

Another man has a bad case of rash. His doctor says "It's something you ate. But don't worry about changing your eating habits. Just use this salve and the rash won't itch quite as much."

The whole country complains to the administration: "Something's seriously wrong with our national economy. In spite of all the money we have, we still can't buy what we need. The few things that are available are priced too high." The administration says "Let's not bother about the cause of your troubles. Let's just set up price controls to make merchants sell at your price."

Can we, by any stretch of the imagination, admit that fixers like that are really doing their jobs?

As concerns the country's economic ailments, the principal causes are so obvious that no thinking man could possibly be excused for overlooking them. Shortage of commodities results from a shortage of production which in turn results from a shortage of willingness to work. High prices result from the administration's own policies of subsidies, purchases, and persistent encouragement of spiraling wages. Profligate official spending and relief to foreign countries are other contributing factors. Not that we should complain about relief. It's our duty to help other nations that are hungry and cold. But there are serious blunders that could and should be corrected to get our country back into the groove.

Perhaps the admission of past mistakes is the reason behind official reluctance to make changes. Politicians do not like to admit they were wrong. They prefer to cover their blunders with some other scheme and hope the voters will not catch on.

On the other hand, this may not even be a blunder. It may be a thoroughly considered and well executed plan to set up a new standard of cheap money by which we can possibly retire our tremendous national debt — with the people who sacrificed and saved bearing the brunt of the burden.

It's possible also that this represents the inevitable damage that comes from playing with fire. Our administration has been courting left-wingers and pinks a long time. Politicians thought they were using a certain group of voters to perpetuate their stay in office. What actually happened is that pinks used the politicians. Our public servants, elected to protect the American way of life, either held their noses or completely lost their sense of smell — and permitted a terrific Moscow stench to develop in our midst. This thing has gone so far that we even consider Moscow remedies for our Moscow brand of troubles. Controls do not relieve shortage. They only control the people who try to do something about relieving their own shortages. Regardless of all the complications that have set in the real solution of our nation's problems is simple. Work and thrift will do the trick. Shortages will vanish fast when labor's attention is concentrated more on achievement than on short hours and big pay. And when production is plentiful prices will get right.

Another factor that would help wonderfully is a reduction of official spending. People themselves will have more to live on when they pay less toward the support of our oversized spendthrift government.

A time worn philosophical axiom tells us that the cause of the cause is the cause of the effect. In this connection we might say that plain human cussedness is the cause of selfish, shortsighted and unsound methods which cause the sorry economic mess we're experiencing today.

The Golden Rule has taken an awful beating in the past few decades. Too few are regulating their principles and their dealings by the kind of treatment they would like to receive. More and more are adopting the cynical attitude that they are justified in clipping the other guy's ear.

Survey This Week to Determine Hospital's Eligibility for Aid

Whether or not the Muenster hospital project will receive the benefit of federal aid will depend largely on the survey made here and at Gainesville Tuesday by Mildred W. Roberts, consultant of the hospital survey and construction division of the State Health Department.

The purpose of the survey is to determine the urgency of this community's need as compared with that of other communities that have applied for help. Priorities will be established on that basis, and if Muenster is fortunate enough to rate a high priority it has a fair chance of getting early consideration.

One important factor discovered by Mrs. Roberts is that the county's hospital facilities are considerably less than the Health Department's record shows. A previous report was based on maximum emergency capacity instead of normal capacity.

Other information secured at Gainesville is that this community leads all the rural areas of the county in agriculture, industrial and oil development. A circumstance also worthy of note is that Muenster, as the center of a large electrical system, a large school district and a large marketing area, is also a logical location as a medical center. Mrs. Roberts secured most of her data from the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce, the county officials and the two Gainesville hospitals.

While in Muenster she inquired into the approximate population of the trade area, the trend toward soil conservation and other agricultural progress, and industrial, trade and scholastic activity. The general financial soundness of the community as revealed by tax records was another favorable indication.

As a result of her survey Mrs. Roberts is convinced of the need of a hospital here, however she is not able to offer any assurance that the project could qualify for federal aid. Priorities are determined by the degree of urgency, and the big question is how many other communities need a hospital more urgently than Muenster does.

Notes On Soil Conservation

Al Wiesman, Tony Walterscheid, Henry Pick, and Paul Fisher are sprig sodding waterways this week with bermuda grass roots. This method has proved to be three to five times faster than the chunk sodding method and also less expensive. In a normal season land that is sprig sodded now will have sufficient coverage by late summer to afford suitable protection for terrace outlet water.

In the H.J. Fuhrman conservation group, two miles east of Muenster, Leonard Hartman is constructing approximately 1600 feet of channel type terraces. He is building these terraces with tractor and two-disc plow, using the island method of construction.

Several cooperators are preparing a seed bed this fall for grass plantings of buffalo, bermuda, weeping love, sand love, and little bluestem. All these grasses require a well prepared, firm, clean seed bed for successful stands and proper growth. Cooperators who have already made plans for planting are: Al Wiesman, Joe Starke, J.A. Dennison, A.E. Leslie, J.J. Hartman, H.D. Fields, R.S. Mann, Tony Trubenbach, Ed Cler, Tony Walterscheid, J.B. Klement, and Norbert Klement. Any cooperators who plan to receive grass seed granted to the Upper Elm-Red Soil Conservation District should prepare a seed bed and make plans now as he would for any other crop. Soil Conservation Service technicians state that every effort should be made to give February, March, and April grass plantings of native grass seeds the best seed bed possible as seed is high and scarce due to the summer drought.

R.S. Mann, cooperator in the Clear Creek Conservation Group, reports he carried 60 head of cows for one week on 20 acres of volunteer vetch where abuzzly rye was overseeded. Mr. Mann states, "I sowed all of my open pasture land to hairy vetch with the seed I combined last summer."

The driver of one of these cars was in the act of passing another motorist just as he neared the crest of a hill. He collided head-on with a driver coming over the brow of the hill, and with the terrific impact the lighter car was crushed under the heavy one. The lawbreaker in this accident was killed—so was the other driver, and a passenger was seriously injured. Passing on blind curves and on hills is simply gambling with death. Improper passing accounted for more than 35,000 highway deaths and injuries in 1946, according to the National Conservation Bureau.

Hornets End Season With Crushing 39-13 Win Over St. Mary's

As a grand finale to their 1947 football season the Hornets broke loose with a scoring rampage on Thanksgiving day to overwhelm the Saint Mary's Mustangs of Gainesville 39 to 13. It was definitely a one sided contest except during the third and part of the fourth periods when the visitors, with a slight advantage over Coach Hennigan's pint sized reserves, scored their only touchdowns.

Rufus Bezner, coach of the Gainesville team, joined his boys for the full 60 minutes of play and figured prominently in most of his team's gains.

Ernest Sicking is the lad who caused the visitors most of their grief. In top form, he made a habit of breaking loose for long runs and picking up extra yardage with tacklers hanging on.

He went over for the first two touchdowns, the first after a steady drive down the field following the opening kick-off and the 2nd on a long run from mid-field. He scored again in the fourth period after another drive down the field.

Two Hornets got their first touchdowns of the season during that game. Reynold Reiter, the old dependable at end had nine extra points and lots of pass completions to his credit, but Thursday was his first day to connect with a touchdown pass. To "Little Doc" Myrick the six point thrill is a fitting climax for a swell performance. Shortly after the second half kick-off he intercepted a Mustang pass on the 20 and dashed for pay dirt squirming out of Bezner's grasp as he stepped across. He continued to give a good account of himself with a series of neat tackles.

The Mustangs' first marker came shortly after the next kick-off. A few short gains, 15 yards on a pass, then a 25 yard heave, Bezner to Dudenhoeffer, who raced on 35 yards to the goal. Touchdown number two followed an interception on the 30 and a run back to the Hornets' one foot line. Bezner went over on the next play.

Hennigan's regulars took over with a bang when they returned to the fray. They stormed to two touchdowns, the first scored by Sicking and the other by Gremminger, and were well on their way again when the final whistle stopped them.

Pneumonia Sends Frank Walterscheid To Hospital; Brothers Finish His House

News that their brother was ill and unable to complete his home remodeling job prompted Al and C.M. Walterscheid to immediate action last Saturday.

Accompanied by C.M.'s son, Ervin, they drove to Hereford Saturday, put a coat of stucco on the house and installed bathroom fixtures. They returned here Tuesday night with a report that Frank is back at home, resting well and apparently on the way to recovery.

The use of glue, nails or wire was not permitted. All members of the troop participated in the program.

Scoutmaster Miller stated that in connection with the woodwork program he'd appreciate some local carver attending a meeting and giving the boys some pointers. He's also on the lookout for a wood chain, carved from a solid block, as a model for his youngsters. The next meeting will be held on December 15.

JOHN TODD LINCOLN BELIEVED SELF A JINX

Robert Todd Lincoln, son of Abraham Lincoln, was present at either the assassination or death of every murdered United States President.

The eldest son of the Civil War President was born at Springfield, Ill. During the last year of the Civil War he served as a captain on the staff of General Grant. He later practiced law in Chicago and served as president or director of various banks and industrial corporations. Until his death in 1926 he believed himself to be a jinx on the death of U.S. Presidents.

On April 14, 1865, he was with his father when he died following the shooting by John Wilkes Booth the previous day.

On July 2, 1881, he was with President Garfield, as secretary of war, when President Garfield was assassinated.

Lincoln also was with President McKinley when he died from bullets of Leon Czolgosz, an anarchist, in 1901.

After the assassination of President McKinley, Lincoln refused to attend any function where a President of the United States was to be present. He often stated that the deaths of his father, Garfield and McKinley preyed on his mind and that he believed himself a jinx.

LIVESTOCK THRIVES ON FEED MADE FROM WASTED VEGETABLES

A process for turning vegetable wastes into stockfeed, thus preserving grain in the present world food shortage, has been worked out by American scientists and manufacturers and is now in operation in at least five states.

The scientists went to work on the problem when it was discovered that the United States was throwing away about six million tons of such wastes every year. Businessmen showed immediate interest. Manufacturers produced the machinery needed for the process.

Pea vines, carrot culls, bean vines, broccoli, corn waste, pineapple waste, soy bean foliage, celery leaves, lettuce and similar vegetable wastes are used. They are all processed into a legume meal said to equal alfalfa meal as fodder.

Market Analysts estimate the ready market for such stockfeed at 150,000 tons per year, or more. In time, the market might be developed to handle 25 percent of the total now thrown away on farms and at canneries.

One California firm netted $15,370 on the processing of 6,000 cars of culls. Another in Florida sells celery meal at $60 a ton. Other plants are operating in Texas, Wisconsin, and Maryland.

Some of the processors say the new fodder-making plan is especially profitable because it costs no more to haul the wastes to the dryer than to the garbage heap. Ultimately, it is believed it may develop a market for many vegetable substances now allowed to rot on the farm. In that case, the grower's profit should increase because he will have a larger crop to sell.

NEW MODEL HEATER USES ENGINE HEAT TO WARM INSIDE OF CAR

Washington. — A very simple system for warming the air in closed cars has just been patented here by George W. Crise of Columbus, Ohio. It utilizes the heat generated by the engine, by means of an intake through the top few inches of the radiator. For cool air there is a second intake, directly above the first, that takes in air that has passed through the grille but not through the radiator.

Both intakes are attached to the underside of the hood, and lead to a common duct that opens into the car body, directing the current of warmed air up just inside the windshield and under the top before it diffuses. There are escape valves in the floor for the discharge of used air. Operation of the entire system is controlled by a thermostat within the common duct.

Marry Young? Marry Old?

When Jeb Crowell's daughter, Sue, married nineteen-year-old "Slim" Blake, a lot of folks (especially older ones) began to shake their heads. Young marriages! Tut, tut!

So I looked up some figures. It's true, young American girls and boys marry younger than in other countries. And where do you suppose they had the least chance? I won't name it, but maybe you've guessed. One of those countries that before the war suppressed all individual freedom and tolerance.

That's why I'm not worried about our younger married couples. They were raised in a country that respects one another's right—a country of tolerance and temperance (a lot of bridegrooms are ex-G.I.'s, and it looked to me like their favorite beverage was beer!)

From where I sit, it isn't when you marry that's important. It's the all-important spirit of tolerance and understanding that you bring to marriage.

The American Way
 By George Peck

COMMON SENSE VS. BUREAUCRACY

Every union worker, every non-union worker, has cause to rejoice at a recent decision of the Tax Court in the case of the Treasury Department vs. the Lincoln Electric Company of Cleveland, Ohio. Justice, after hanging for several years in the balance, has at long last been done. The rights of workers as guaranteed to them by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights have been reaffirmed.

It has ever been "The American Way" to reward a worker adequately for the quality and quantity of what he produced, or the efficiency and dispatch of the service he rendered. There never has been a ceiling as to how much an American worker could be paid, and pray God there never will be.

But back in 1942, an official of Uncle Sam's government tried to interrupt this orderly procedure. The Treasury Department pounced on the Lincoln Electric Co., demanding $1,479,000 in additional taxes because that corporation had paid its 1,300 employees too much in wages. It seems the great sin committed by the Lincoln Electric Co. was that it had been paying its workers an average of $5,400 a year. The Treasury Agent in charge of this persecution of the Lincoln Electric Co. asserted: "A man who works with his hands shouldn't be paid as much as $5,000 a year." Now, please bear in mind that this amazing statement was not made by an official of Soviet Russia or Hitler's Germany, but by an accredited representative of Uncle Sam's government.

Because James F. Lincoln, President of the Lincoln Electric Co., believes that "a worker is worthy of his hire," is worth all he can earn, that is why for the past 14 years he has paid his workers, who are really his partners, up to $8,000 a year. And it hasn't been philanthropy, or just a boss trying to be nice to his men — it's been darn good business. During the first ten years due to the incentive system which he installed, the dollar production per worker rose from $5,000 to $28,000 per year.

This enables Jim to pay the Lincoln workers larger wages and also during the same period to cut the price of a welding machine (that's what they make at the Lincoln Electric Company) from $600 to $200. The funny part of all this, is that Uncle Sam was probably the greatest beneficiary of the Lincoln incentive system. Because during the war the efficiency engendered by that system saved the United States government over 100 million dollars.

Your correspondent happened to be present at Washington when Jim Lincoln testified before the House Ways and Means Committee, holding hearings on negotiations of war contracts. Though it was four years ago, I can still see and hear him, as with righteous indignation he stormed before the Committee and told its members he had come to Washington to find out just how much less efficient his company must become, so that it would not be penalized by the very government it was serving so well. No one on the Committee seemed able to answer that question.

And that is exactly what the bumptious official of the Treasury Department was endeavoring to do — to penalize the Lincoln Co. for its efficiency — the efficiency which raised workers wages and lowered the cost of its product to buyers, the greatest of which at that particular time was Uncle Sam himself.

But, the bureaucratic belittler of the prowess and worth of American workers has now been relegated to his proper place — the long battle fought by the Lincoln Electric Co. through the courts in behalf of its employees, and incidentally, of employees of all companies, has been won. The Tax Court has ruled that even though a fellow does work with his hands, he can be paid as much as he is worth — with no penalty to the boss who has the good sense and decency to give him a reward commensurate with his performance.

"WORKERS' PARADISE" BEHIND IRON CURTAIN

In the current issue of Collier's there is an article by an American carpenter who worked at his trade in Soviet Russia for fourteen years, which gives a firsthand account of working conditions in that "paradise of the workers." His name is John K. Leino and it is explained that he has been "in or close to the organized working people's movement since boyhood." The whole article is a revelation of much that goes on behind the iron curtain. But one incident which is related in five paragraphs seems to us to sum up the whole matter. It tells of the report of a Russian engineer on his return from a visit to the United States with a delegation which investigated American industrial development. A meeting was called at a Russian factory so that the workers could hear his report, and the director of the factory introduced him by saying that he would "reveal the superiority of the Soviet system, which has so magnificently caught up with and surpassed capitalist America." But this is what he said:

"No Comrades, we have not caught up with America, and we never will, for the reason that our workers lack the material conditions for such progress. Comrades, if you had seen what I saw, you would realize that by the time our industry has reached today's American production level that country will be fifty years ahead of us."

"Why? First of all, the American worker has a full breakfast within fifteen minutes of waking up, and what a zavtrak he eats! Orange juice and milk and porridge and bacon and eggs and toast and coffee. Then it takes him only a few minutes to drive in his own car to the job and be ready when the whistle blows. He works four hours without interruption, the conveyer keeping him always supplied with materials. At noon he eats a nourishing meal, then works four hours more. His wife stays at home, preparing meals, and the store delivers the produkti right to his house. After work he is free to spend his evenings on pleasure trips or visiting friends. He has his private kvartira, often five or six rooms.

"But how is it with us? Our worker in Gorki must wait an hour in the morning before he can get a glass of hot tea with his bread. He spends an hour, maybe two hours, on his way to work. Often the tramcar breaks down, or does not show up at all, then he is late for work, and gets a reprimand. On the job he must wait for materials, or his machine breaks down, or he must see some official about his documents. How many workers in our factory work four hours without interruption?

"Then, after work, he must run to the bread store and wait in a long line for his bread. Then he must wait for supper because his wife is working. Comrades, there are such great differences between the material conditions, our country will never catch up with capitalist America."

The author of the Collier's article then relates of this engineer: "That night he was arrested and he disappeared."

UNAPPRECIATED HELP

The old saying that "eaten bread is soon forgotten" was never better demonstrated than in this day and age as America and American people come under the blistering barrage of Soviet representatives at the U. N., Russian newspapers and radio.

Forgotten is the help United States gave the Soviet Union when her plight was desperate and her fate hung in the balance.

Here, according to the Pittsburgh Press, are the items Uncle Sam sent Russia when she was fighting for her life against Hitlerian forces:

- Planes, 14,570.
- Tanks, armored cars and ordinance vehicles, 12,400.
- Jeeps, 52,000.
- Trucks, 363,000.
- Motorcycles, 35,000.
- Anti-aircraft guns, 8,200.
- Machine guns, 135,000.
- Explosives, 343,000 tons.
- Sub-chasers and torpedo boats, 300.
- Diesel engines, 7,600.

Machine tools, 355 million dollars' worth.

Oil refining equipment, 43 million dollars' worth.

Electric generators, 171 million dollars' worth.

Non-ferrous metals, 810,000 tons.

Alloys, 17,600 tons.

Steel, 2,688,000 tons.

And then throw in such things as entire railroads, and millions of tons of foodstuffs.

This will give you a partial summary, as Alf Landon pointed out the other day, of the gifts the American nation made to Russia to help the Soviets turn back Hitler's hordes.

And since the war the U.S. has sent billions of dollars' worth of foodstuffs, equipment, fuel and other essentials — most of it for free — to Europe.

Yet the Vishinsky and their ilk say that current American proposals to feed and equip

Europe, to help a war-ravaged continent get on its feet, are the tactics of a "war-monger."

HEALTH DEPARTMENT NOTES INCREASE OF SCARLET FEVER CASES

The incidence of scarlet fever is at the present time nearly one-third higher than the seven-year median in Texas. One of the most disabling and dangerous of the diseases usually associated with childhood, actually it is confined to no age limit, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. Fifty-five cases were reported in the state during the week ending November 15, bringing the year's total to 1,242.

The Doctor described scarlet fever as an acute infectious disease, the onset of which is sudden. The first symptoms including sore throat, vomiting, fever, and headache, may appear in three to five days after exposure. These are followed by the distinctive scarlet rash which gives this disease its name, Dr. Cox stated.

Complications can result in prolonged disability or death. Children suffering with scarlet fever may develop sinusitis and middle-ear infections which can lead to mastoiditis. As the germs spread through the child's system, the joints, kidneys, and heart may become involved, causing lifelong invalidism or crippling.

"A child with any kind of sore throat should be seen by the family physician promptly," Dr. Cox asserted. "If scarlet fever is present, the treatment the doctor prescribes will do much to alleviate discomfort, and reduce the possibility of dangerous complications."

In front of a clothing store on New York's lower East Side, financier and humanitarian Otto Kahn once spotted a sign which read: "Samuel Kahn, cousin of Otto Kahn."

Otto promptly referred the matter to his lawyers and several days later, when he passed the freshly painted sign which now read: "Samuel Kahn, formerly cousin of Otto Kahn."

The first permanent settlement in Texas was made in what is now Ysleta and Socorro in El Paso County.

RAT KILLING PROGRAM COSTS $1.25 PER FARM

Fannin County rats are facing extermination through a campaign now being carried on on the 4,500 farms in the county through the Department of Interior, County Agent V.J. Young reports.

Mr. Young said that the campaign, just about a month old, was scheduled to cover every farm in the county and be completed by April at a cost of $1.25 per individual farm which covers the cost of the poison and transportation expenses of the team putting out the poison.

Dewey Kennedy representative of the Department of Interior, came to Fannin County and trained two workers in the use of the new and highly effective rat poison "1080" which is being used in the campaign. He worked with the teams for a week after giving them a month's training course which time he taught them to identify types of rats and where best to place the cups filled with poison drink.

CHURCHGOING YOUTH UNWELCOME IN PARTY, JOE STALIN DECREES

MOSCOW. — The central committee of the Young Communist Organization of the Soviet Union handed down a ruling Saturday forbidding its members to go to church "or have anything to do with religion."

The Communist youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda published the edict, citing the personal views of Premier Stalin on religion.

Stalin was quoted as saying: "The party can not be neutral with regard to religion."

"It carries out an anti-religious propaganda against all and sundry religious prejudices because it stands for science."

"Some party members have hindered real development of

Digs Up His Cellar, Finds Treasure in Ancient Coins

DUBUQUE, IOWA. — Discovery of a buried treasure of gold and silver coins, some of them minted 125 years ago, was disclosed here. John Berens of Dubuque, who unearthed the treasure while enlarging the cellar in an old house he bought here, said the total face value of the coins was "in the neighborhood of $9,000."

On the advice of his attorney, Berens immediately turned the treasure over to Allan T. Daykin, county auditor, in compliance with state legal procedure in such case. The auditor made an inventory of the coins. The auditor must advertise and post notice of the find, and if the rightful owner can prove ownership within one year, he will receive the money — less 10 per cent which will go to Berens. If no claimant can prove ownership in a year, the treasure will go to Berens.

anti-religious propaganda. If such party members are excluded, it is good, because such 'communists' have no place in the ranks of the party."

Komsomolskaya Pravda said: "It is considered impossible and unpermissible for a Young Communist member to believe in God and observe religious rites."

The paper said the Young Communists' job was to help eliminate "religious superstitions in youth." It added: "To stress religion is contrary, to science and the materialistic outlook."

Weeping Lovegrass Solves Summer Pasture Problem

W.J. Loerwald of the Custer City Conservation group, located four miles northeast of Gainesville, is a firm believer in using weeping love grass for pasture on the sandy soils of that area. "This spring", Mr. Loerwald says, "I seeded seven acres in an old field using seed furnished to me for trial by the Upper Elm-Red Soil Conservation District. I prepared a good seedbed and planted the grass in three foot rows with one hundred pounds of 4-12-4 fertilizer applied under the seed at planting time. An ordinary two-row planter with special seed attachment owned by the District was used. No livestock was put on the grass until July 15th so as to allow the grass to get a good root growth. I estimate that the seven acres furnished sixty days of grazing for several head of livestock beginning around July 15th. Next spring I plan to seed ten more acres of love grass on another abandoned field I have on my farm. During the hot, dry summer days when the other grasses were dry the love grass stayed green and palatable."

Weeping love grass is a perennial grass which once established, will live several years under proper stocking and management.

TRYING HIS LEGS—Aided by a stroller, Roger Morris, III, six-year-old Dallas polio patient at the free clinic of the Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children in Dallas, walks toward a huge mirror in the physio-therapy room. By noting errors in his gait in the mirror without looking down at his feet, he is able to correct his walking stance. Sponsored by public donations, the hospital has aided many handicapped youngsters to regain the use of their afflicted limbs. Its facilities for treating polio victims are unexcelled anywhere in the nation.

na returned to Jonesboro, Ark., Sunday, after a week's vacation. They made the trip by car with Ben Seyler and Herman Swirczynski. While in Jonesboro, Mr. Swirczynski enjoyed a visit with his daughter, Miss Joan, a student at Holy Angels Academy, and his sister, Sister Helen, at Holy Angels Convent.

LOCAL GROUP ATTENDS WEDDING IN DENISON

A group of local citizens went to Denison on Thanksgiving day to attend the wedding of Miss Rose Mary Schnitker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Schnitker, to Stephen O. Bruno, in Saint Patrick's church.

The Muenster party included Mr. and Mrs. T. Miller and family, Mrs. Matt Muller, Arnie, Rosalee, Eva and Jeanette Muller, Mr. and Mrs. George Gehrig and children, and Miss Emma Lou Gehrig, Messrs. and Mmes. Stan and Paul Yosten of Fort Worth were also among guests.

MISSES SEYLER ENTERTAIN WITH OPEN HOUSE PARTY

The Ben Seyler home was the scene of a jolly reunion of young people last Wednesday night when open house was held for the friends of Miss Johann, Mary and Margie Seyler, who were home for the holiday and weekend.

Approximately 60 guests enjoyed informal diversion, games and refreshments and the showing of moving pictures by amateur enthusiasts.

IT'S EASY TO SPOT AMATEUR LANDSCAPING COLLEGE STATION

It's easy to spot an amateur landscape gardener. He does two things that give him away. First, he plants too close to the house, especially when the shrubs are small. They look better there, he thinks, and he forgets that when several feet tall, the plant will be crowded and its shape spoiled. Long limbs will scrape paint from the house, too.

Two, the amateur landscaper will often plant too many shrubs. In his enthusiasm, he wants every kind of shrub he sees. The well-planned landscape will look rather barren for the first few years. After that, the shrub growth will fill out the bare spots. An overplanted yard, like an over-crowded home, lacks neatness and symmetry.

Upper Elm-Red Farmers Overseed Pastures And Construct Terraces

Farmers cooperating with the Upper Elm-Red Soil Conservation district who have overseeded pastures with Black Medic Clover include Tony Reiter of the Westview conservation group. The addition of this legume to a pasture gives a high protein plant for grazing and will also increase the nitrogen content of the soil.

Arnold Friske of the Mount Pleasant conservation group five miles southwest of Gainesville is constructing a diversion terrace to protect cropland from water which collects on the slope above the cultivated field. He is also constructing a regular field terrace to control runoff water on a cultivated field. All terraces empty on well sodded pasture which gives proper outlet protection.

George Washington was the only president of America to receive the entire electoral vote.

A HIGH HEEL THAT ISN'T THERE

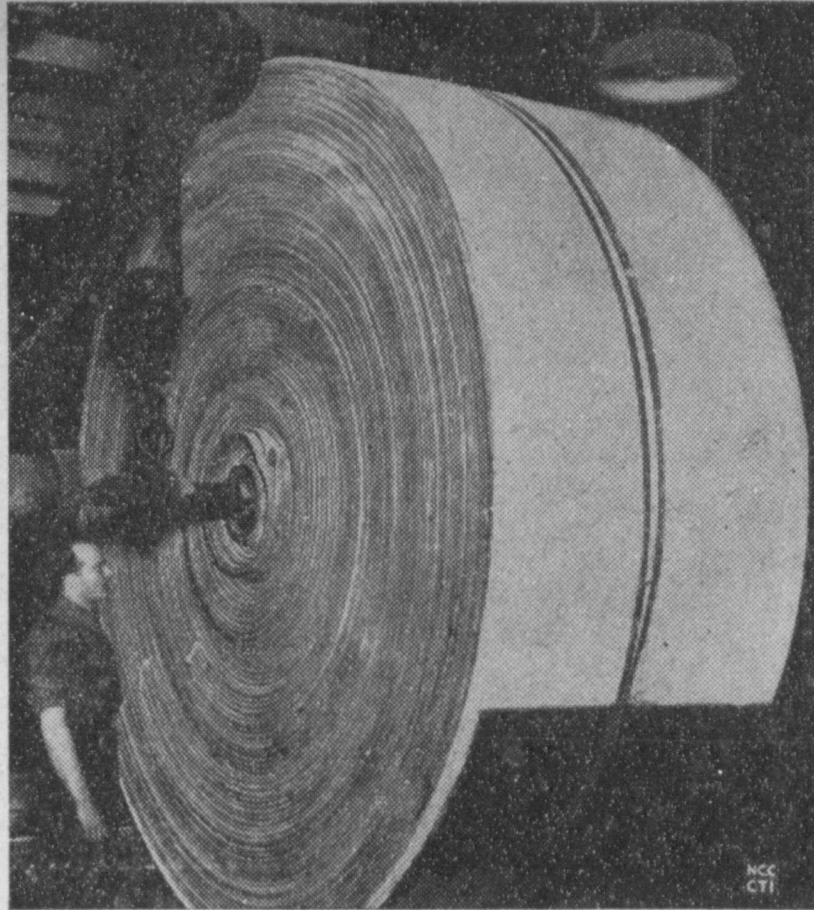

The high heel that isn't there! Confusing isn't it?

It's been patented by Virginian who began work on the idea after he saw some metal beach chairs with no back legs, says National Patent Council.

The first model was made from a regular shoe with heel removed and a new V-shaped arch and sole attached. It has been tested to stand up under 400 pounds' pressure, inventor asserts. He says the shoe makes the wearer's foot appear smaller.

Heel of the foot remains high off the ground as though the shoe actually had one.

What people think of you is not nearly so important as what you are.

Sixteen bales of cotton were used to make this giant conveyor belt, the National Cotton Council reports. One of the largest conveyor belts ever made, the cotton belt is a quarter of a mile long, four feet wide, and weighs eleven tons. Built especially for a limestone crushing plant, it has a capacity of 1,500 tons of limestone rock per hour.

OF COURSE

In 1938, one hour's wages would buy five times as much beef here as in Russia, eight times as much butter and four times as much bread. Today the American's hour earns nine times as much beef, 18 times as much butter and 17 times as much bread as the Russian's. — But the Russians, of course, have the blessing of Communism!

Subjects

A Yank and a British Tommy were halted for passport inspection by a customs officer at a European country.

"Ah, you're a subject of the king!" exclaimed the officer. The Tommy saluted. He snapped: "And proud of it."

The customs officer examined the GI's passport. "And I presume you're a subject of the United States," he said.

"Subject?" the GI asked in a puzzled voice. Then he smiled and thrust out his chest. "Hell no!" he said. "I own part of it."

A multi-millionaire, being interviewed about his self-made fortune, commented: "I never hesitate to give full credit to my wife for her assistance."

"In what way did she help?" the reporter asked.

"Well, if you want the whole truth," replied the wealthy man. "I was curious to find out if there was any income she couldn't live beyond."

Monkey Work

A young Marine, after fighting World War II in Asia's jungles, came back to his Alabama farm with a pet monkey. He found that the monkey could pick cotton faster than he could. So he asked his village banker for a loan with which he could buy 100 monkeys and train them to pick cotton at far lower cost than by human hands.

"No," said the banker, "it's too risky. As soon as you got your monkeys trained, those dam Yankees would come down here and free them."

Which Foot, Paw?

A woman of the backwoods of Kentucky had never worn shoes. The soles of her feet wore calloused and toughened by constant walking on the rough ground. One day she was standing in front of the cabin fireplace when her husband said, "Maw, you'd better move your foot a little mite; you're standing on a live coal."

The woman lifted one eyebrow. "Which foot, Paw?"

Counting both passenger and employee accidents, the railroads last year had the best safety record in their long history, the passenger fatality rate for the calendar year being one death to 628 million miles of travel.

DAIRY COWS LIKE COLD WEATHER-WHEN THEIR BARN IS WARM ENOUGH

Dairy cows like cold weather — if they are properly fed and well housed.

Tight, dry dairy barns are about as good a substitute for grain in the winter time as any, G.G. Gibson, extension dairy husbandman at Texas A. & M. College points out.

Elaborate, expensive shelters are not necessary. But patching of roofs and walls with scrap lumber or tin will keep out rain and cut down cold drafts which lower milk production.

Cows which have to work their way through muddy lanes and feedlots use up energy which would otherwise have produced milk. That's where a slip or freeze comes in to make feed go further by draining off standing water and building up low spots.

Dairymen won't save any grain by cutting down on the milk cow's ration, Gibson says. The cow is going to take care of herself first and if her feed is cut, she'll cut the amount of milk she gives. Always give cows all the roughage that they will clean up daily and feed hay according to milk production to get maximum return.

Another little trick that will hold up milk production is to warm drinking water in cold weather. Milk is approximately 87% water, and if the water is icy cold the cow won't drink as much as she needs. A simple way to warm water is to sink a half oil drum in the trough with rocks and start a fire in it.

RADAR BEAM COP TO SPY ON SPEEDERS

Hartford, Conn. — Motorists who use Connecticut highways for speedways when they see no patrol cars in sight are now up against an ingenious radar traffic beam, especially designed to single out vehicles traveling beyond speed limits.

Capt. Ralph J. Buckley, in charge of traffic for the Connecticut state police, said that the new device, which he described as "an amazing black box," was built especially for the state police and will be put into use on a state-wide scale as soon as his force completes an instruction course.

"It will only be operated for the present to compile data for road surveys and to record speed trends in various sections," Buckley said. "Later we will begin surprising speeders by sending them a post card informing them when, where and how fast they were going. If the warning campaign doesn't cut down speeders we will go to court and use the radar device's charts as evidence."

NEW INSECTICIDE SAID DEADLIER THAN DDT

Philadelphia. — The American Cyanamid Company announced Friday it has developed a new chemical insecticide that is 5 to 25 times more potent than DDT.

Company researchers told a Philadelphia news conference that no species of insect or minute animal life among those tested had been found resistant to the insecticide in the laboratory.

Called "Thiophos 3422," the insecticide was reported tested during the summer by 75 agricultural experiment stations, including federal experiment stations.

Miss Emily Fette returned to Dallas Sunday after a five-day visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fette.

PITTSBURGH, PA. — This boy and his dad are shutting the chimney flue — not to keep out old St. Nick — but to cooperate in the national effort to conserve fuel this winter. With fuel demands at an all time peak, only public saving of heat will assure all homes being warm. Besides closing the chimney when fires are out, Gulf fuel oil research laboratory advises these basic conservation measures: Make sure your furnace gives 100% efficiency — calling the furnace-man if in doubt; keep temperature at or below 70°; shut bedroom doors if windows are open at night; shut off and do not heat little used rooms; seal heat in home by caulking cracks, weatherstripping windows and doors, and insulating roof and walls if possible.

Dr. Carleton Simon, a psychiatrist, attended a party at which a young lady asked him: "Is it possible doctor, for a person to be vaccinated so that the mark doesn't show?" Dr. Simon studied her very revealing gown for a moment, then replied: "If she dresses like you, I'm afraid the only solution is to swallow the vaccine!"

New "One-Arm" Lock

Something to Think About

Uncle Eben, an elderly Negro who tends the garden of a certain Southern family, not only has a way with plants but a comforting philosophy for human beings as well.

Recently the young lady of the house decided, after many arduous sessions at the piano, that her talent did not lie in the field of music. She sadly related her discovery to Uncle Eben.

"Don't you fret, Miss Annie," counseled Uncle Eben. "Some accomplishments are of small use to a pussion. Now you take de owl, Miss Annie. I'll jest bet if dat old bird could talk he wouldn't have no mo' reputation fo' wisdom dan a parrot!"

"I believe you are thinner than the last time I saw you, Mrs. Jones. Are you taking treatments or dieting to lose weight?"

"Oh, no, I'm losing weight because of all the trouble I'm having with my new maid."

"Why don't you fire her?"

"I'm going to, just as soon as she worries me down to 140 pounds."

NEW YORK—No need for Richard to come and open the door for this pretty housewife. Yale's new spring latch, pictured here, features "one-arm" action. The new lock makes it possible for one person to open the door with ease, though encumbered with packages, without having to have both hands free to manipulate key, lock and door knob.

A revolutionary invention, the lock also has new material and mechanical patented improvements which make it impossible for anyone except a master locksmith to pick it. It heads a series of new night latches which are the first new products in the builder's hardware line announced by Yale & Towne since the war.

Her Four Children

Down in Florida a Negro woman applied for relief during the cold spell of last winter. She reported she had four children.

She didn't remember, perhaps even know, the precise age, but on being pressed for more exact information, she told the investigator:

"I got one lap ehile, one creeper, one porch ehile, and one yard young'un."

SANTA CLAUS CALLS ON SCHOOL CHILDREN

Santa Claus was in Muenster Monday to check on all his little friends in both schools. His visit was sponsored by the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce's Retail Trade Committee, and he was accompanied by Claude Jones, Hubert Moss, and Bob Murdock. Students of both schools and their teachers gathered in their respective assembly rooms for Santa's visit. The jolly old fellow conversed with the children and offered a five dollar cash prize to the student who could give the names of his eight reindeer. Denis Hofbauer, a fifth grade student at Sacred Heart school, won the award. Before departing Santa distributed candy kisses to the students and teachers.

The editor of a country newspaper retired with a fortune. When asked the secret of his success, he replied:

"I attribute my ability to retire with a $100,000 bank balance after 30 years in the newspaper field to close application to duty, pursuing a policy of strict honesty, always practicing rigorous rules of economy, and to the recent death of my uncle who left me $98,500."

The question of cheating was being discussed in school just before an examination. "Miss K., what do you think of cheating?" one of the students asked. In a soft tone, the teacher replied, "If you can cheat and live with yourself, that's your business."

Next day the report cards were sent home. Upon returning his, a gangling youth said, "Miss K., I find that I can cheat and live with myself much better than I can fail and live with my mother."

Most men don't mind starting at the bottom as long as they receive top wages.

The tone of a bachelor's voice sounds good when it has a ring in it.

When the hit-and-run driver was brought to trial, his lawyer pleaded eloquently. "Your Honor, the plaintiff must have been walking very carefully. My client is a very careful driver. He has been driving for years." "Your Honor," shouted counsel for the plaintiff. "I can prove that my client should win this case without further argument. He has been walking for forty-five years!"

Thin, lightweight wall tile with the strength of metal and the smoothness of velvet is this new application of Styron, a plastic, according to National Patent Council. The tile is made in an array of pastels, deeper shades and two-color variations. Stability of the patented product gives the tiles a nonwarping, nonchecking quality under ordinary usage and because the color is all the way through the plastic, a scratch does not de-face it. The tile is reported easy to keep clean. It will take a high gloss. Weight is only about half a pound per square foot.

My Neighbors
By BILL PAULSON

"Maybe we Americans are a bunch of dollar chasers but, by Jinx, when taxes take almost a third of what we catch—we gotta chase."

Confetti--- cause chances are he would do the same thing to them.

How many loafing workers, for instance, would approve of minimum work and maximum pay policies if they did the hiring? How many profiteers would willingly be on the other end of their own deals? How many politicians would swap places with those who have to endure the effects of official mischief?

Tracing the series of causes down to rock bottom we find the basic cause is what has been identified by the bishops of the United States as Secularism, the view of life that disregards God, American people, and lots of others as well, don't deny God, but they do ignore Him. Tied up in their own daily affairs they do not even consider their relation to God, their responsibility before Him, nor their part in His Divine plan.

By nature man is a creature endowed with a mind to think and a free will to do as he thinks best. He also has a set of Divinely ordained rules to guide him in his thoughts and actions, and a corresponding responsibility to his Divine Lawgiver to observe these rules.

The millions of men, so created and so endowed were given this world and all its resources to be used and developed for the good of all. In the light of modern advances we can easily see that this world is a pretty wonderful place and that the Creator gave us a mighty good deal.

But we make a terrible mess of things when we ignore God, His rules, and His plans. Harmony turns to discord. Resources that were meant for human welfare are used to spread human misery.

It's a self evident truth that "no man can disregard God and play a man's part in God's world."
