Muenster Extends Welcome to Electric Co-op Members

A few years ago a member of the Cooke County Electric Co-operative made a remark that is worth remembering in connection with next Tuesday's Rural Electrification Day program. At the general meeting in the parish hall the man said he'd rather have a daytime meeting because "it's not as interesting to visit a town at night when you can't see anything."

Most likely the fellow doesn't realize it, but he happens to be the original inspiration for Muenster's all out party next week.

His remark was recalled at a Community Council session a little more than a month ago. In line with the well known Chamber of Commerce gab on promoting the home town, his remark was repeated along with a mention of the co-op's general meeting. The fellows carried on from there. "Why not arrange for a daytime meeting and make a real effort to show the visitors we're glad to have them?" And so plans for Rural Electrification Day got under way.

Thanks to swell cooperation and a wonderful streak of luck, the results are far better than anyone had hoped for. First there was the problem of space. When it was discovered that the community circus tent is available and plenty of money was ready to underwrite the cost of leasing it, the plan took on real life. A top notch program featured by outstanding speakers, a big list of prizes and an interesting group of displays was the next objective. Business men responded generously to the prize and display proposals, and Lady Luck took over the job of arranging the list of speakers. The committee aimed high in its plans and it scored three bull's eyes. All three of the men engaged were on the preferred list. All three have crowded speaking schedules. All three were able to accept the committee's invitation.

The net result is that this little community has a program that many a metropolitan center would be proud to offer. Co-op members and hundreds of other expected visitors have a real treat in store for them. When the party is over they'll be glad they came, and they'll know Muenster made a real effort to show it was glad to have them.

There's something illogical and rather exasperating, about this community's attitude toward the Muenster Telephone company. Apparently it's too good to give up but it isn't worth bracing up. That's the way stockholders seemed to feel about it in their meeting a few weeks ago. The big majority was opposed to selling out, but a very small minority was in favor of digging into its jeans for the wherewith to effect a financial rescue of the company.

So the directors have set another meeting date at which they propose to have their problem decided one way or another. They're going to ask for the backing to fix up or the authority to sell out. And if they fail to get action there's nothing left but to give up and let the creditors take over.

Perhaps the principal reason for confusion is that there has been too much loose talk lately about the company being broke, an assumption based on the general knowledge that it has lots of debts and no cash. But a brief glance at the other side of the picture reveals a completely different condition. A comparison of assets and liabilities reveals a very comfortable net worth. A glance at revenue and expenses reveals a very adequate operating basis. In short there's nothing wrong with the company but a shortage of cash.

Of course it does seem strange that an old established business operating at a profit should be in a financial strain. So let's consider circumstances over a few past years and decide whether the present signs are so terrible after all.

First let's keep in mind that the company in the past has been a little too proud of its low rates. While things went smoothly, everything went fine except that no reserve was built up. Then came the realization that replacements and improvements were needed. The company bought a switchboard, an expensive cable, lots of line and poles, even land on which to erect a new building. Every bit of it was sound investment and justified

Community Drive For Red Cross Lags Far Behind Quota

With a total of approximately $250 collected to date this community has little chance of reaching its $475 Red Cross quota this year. That's the report released this week by Mrs. Ervin Hamric, local chairman. She added however that many persons still have not been contacted and the present figure is expected to grow considerably before the drive ends on March 31.

Reports from other communities in the county reveal that the drive is lagging there also and that the county may not reach its $10,000 goal.

During the past week Mrs. Hamric has had two assistants working in their respective localities, E. S. Lawson and Mrs. Herman Fette.

Persons who were not at home when the solicitor called or who have not been contacted may leave their donation at the bank Mrs. Hamric said.

Donors and their contributions to date are:

$5.00 — Muenster State Bank.
$10.00 — Dr. T. S. Myrick, Urban Endres, Muenster Machine Shop, FMA Cheese Plant, Waples Painter Lumber Co., Ed McKinney Shamburger Lumber company, Muenster Enterprise.

BEN SEYLER ENTERS RACE FOR TRUSTEE ON COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD

Interest in the coming school trustee election got a slight boost this week when Ben Seyler submitted his name as a candidate for this precinct's representative on the county school board.

Prior to his announcement Doc Monroe of Gainesville was uncontested for re-election to the position.

The balance of the local race is likely to be a quiet affair. Only four names appear on the ballot and the three high men will be elected.

Candidates are B. J. Sicking, Arthur Hellman, Jerome Pagel and Tony Walterscheid.

Bishop Dangler Will Confirm 150 And Remove Old Church Cornerstone

His Excellency Bishop Dangler of Dallas will be here Sunday to officiate at confirmation rites for a class of 150 following the 10 o'clock Mass and to preside at removal of the cornerstone of the old Sacred Heart church immediately afterwards.

Father Herman Laux, pastor, in making his announcements Sunday, asked members of the congregation to arrange their church service schedule to include attendance at the 6 and 8 o'clock masses rather than the 10 o'clock service. Persons to be confirmed and their sponsors will take up the greater portion of the seats. He asked others who attend at 10 o'clock to hear mass in the chapel.

Father Herman also requested orderly routing of traffic after the services when persons gather at the old church site to witness the cornerstone removal. No definite information concerning the contents of the cornerstone is available, but Father Herman expects to find the usual collection of articles including records, letters and coins.

Removal of the cornerstone has been awaiting Bishop Dangler's arrival for several weeks. Remembering that he once expressed a wish to be present when the stone is taken down Father Herman arranged to leave it in place until his next visit. Being here for confirmation presents the ideal occasion.

All that remains of the old church building is the stone foundation which also constituted about five feet of the wall. During the past few weeks the only work on the site was cleaning up and cleaning and stacking old brick.

Ballot Still Blank For City Election

Unless some citizens of Muenster submit their names for the ballot in the very near future, the annual city election on Tuesday, April 5 will be a hundred per cent write-in affair.

Up to Wednesday afternoon not one person has announced for mayor or for any of the three alderman positions.

The deadline for announcing in order to qualify for a place on the official ballot is Friday, March 25, ten days prior to the election.

Council members whose terms expire this year are Mayor J. M. Weinzapfel, J. A. Fisher, Dick Cain and Andy Hofbauer.

Miss Joyce Williams of Orange spent from Friday to Tuesday here with her sisters, Mmes. John and Henry Huchton and Cecil Ayles. Sunday she was joined by her sisters from this city and another sister, Miss Mary Jo Williams of Gainesville, and Ray Temple, on a trip to Bonita to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Williams.

FIRST TALLY SHOWS SCHOLASTIC CENSUS REMAINS ABOUT 520

First tabulations on the scholastic census of the Muenster Independent school district indicate that the school-age population is practically the same as it was last year.

Superintendent John Hoffman reported Wednesday that the count prior to final check-up is 520 and the official figure may vary from it slightly one way or another.

As far as he knows, Hoffman has listed every scholastic age child in the district. In the event that anyone has been overlooked he asks the parents concerned to notify him at once. This is important to the school system, he explained because each child missed represents the loss of one per capita allotment to the school.

Hoffman is especially concerned about children who were not on last year's census. That includes children who have just reached scholastic age and others who moved here from other districts. Those on the former local record have all been checked.

Wendell Richey was ill Monday and absent from classes.

Sponsors Eventful Program For General Meeting Day

The biggest welcome ever extended to members of the Cooke County Electric Cooperative Association awaits them next Tuesday, March 29, when they gather here for "Rural Electrification Day" in connection with their annual general meeting.

Featured by three outstanding speakers, drawings for several hundred dollars worth of prizes, more than thirty exhibits, entertainment programs and a general picnic spirit, the affair is one of the most ambitious ever planned in the history of the community. It is sponsored jointly by the Electric Co-op management and the Muenster Community Council and supported by the generous cooperation of business firms in Muenster, Gainesville and Nocona.

In Circus Tent

The 120x270 big top tent of the Gainesville Community Circus erected on the Muenster softball field will be the center of activities for the event. It was specially leased for the day because no building in the city is adequate for the expected crowd. With a seating capacity of 2500 besides the large area normally used for circus acts, it will be used for the co-op's meeting, for speeches, entertainment, and displays. Other displays and a livestock exhibit by 4-H Club boys will be held outside the tent.

Even in spite of the largest available seating arrangement sponsors of the program expect an overflow crowd. They base their estimate on a good representation of the association's 2500 members besides hundreds of visiting non members.

Three Outstanding Speakers

By far the most impressive feature of the program is its presentation of three outstanding speakers. Any of them would have distinguished the event, but the appearance of all three promotes it to the rank of something exceptional.

A. C. Spencer, southwest representative of the Friends of the Land Society, will appear first. He is a special crusader on conservation of soil and natural resources and his message will reveal many alarming facts on the annual toll of erosion and flood in this country. Besides increasing consciousness in a vitally important subject his speech will include many valuable ideas of special interest to his rural audience.

The next to appear is Mark Love of the public relations department of Curtis Candy Company. Enjoying a nation-wide reputation as a top notch entertainer, he is in constant demand for national conventions and other large gatherings. His famous act "The Romance of Uncle Sam" is a forceful, inspiring program on citizenship and appreciation of American ideals.

Spencer and Love will follow the co-op's business meeting which is expected to end about 3 o'clock.

R. E. Jackson of the Texas State College for Women is the third headliner of the day and the principal attraction for the evening program. He is a native Texan and one of the best known humorists in the Southwest. A popular speaker because of his wit and jovial disposition he has appeared as a featured speaker all over Texas and in many other states including New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts and California. His subject will be "Collaboration or Extermination".

Efforts to remedy the troubles at a meeting early this month were nullified when the required representation failed to appear. Accordingly the directors have sent proxy forms with the notice and requested that each proxy be filled out and returned whether or not the stockholder intends to attend the meeting. The special arrangement is intended to get the votes of persons who might forget or change their minds after intending to come. Proxies of those who attend will be returned before the voting starts.

Prizes are second only to the featured entertainers as attractions for Rural Electrification Day. Leading the list are two radio-phonographs offered by the electric Co-op. Only members present at the meeting are eligible to win them.

But no less than 20 other firms will offer other prizes which can be won by any person, member or non member. Visitors will have an opportunity to register for those prizes any time from 10 o'clock until 7:30, when drawings will determine the winners. Winners need not be present at those drawings, and if not present will be notified by mail.

Another feature of special interest to stockmen is a livestock exhibit by 4-H club members under the direction of County Agent B. T. Haws. Cash awards will be given for the best entries.

Though the main program begins in the afternoon exhibitors will be ready to welcome visitors as early as 10 o'clock. The extra time is provided for the convenience of persons who wish to register, see displays or visit in town. Again in the evening a break is provided for visiting or, in many cases, for a trip home to do chores. Several entertainment programs, including a 30 minute radio broadcast by the KGAF orchestra, are scheduled during those periods.

Meanwhile eats and iced drinks will be available on the grounds. A concession operated by the boy scouts will have barbecue sandwiches, hot dogs, candies, soda water and cigarettes.

No Foolin' This Time! Phone Stockholders Will Have to Decide

It's a case of "either-or" when stockholders of the Muenster Telephone Company meet on April 1, to decide their organization's destiny. Either the directors will be authorized to rescue the company by increasing the capitalization or the business will be turned over to its creditors.

In notices mailed out last week directors informed the members that a capital increase is subject to the approval of holders of at least two thirds of the shares, and unless that number of votes can be obtained the board is powerless to act and can only await legal procedure by the company's creditors.

News Of Sick And Injured

Johnny Rohmer underwent surgery at Veterans hospital in McKinney this week and is recovering normally.

Carol, three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hess received treatment at M&S hospital Monday for injury to her lip resulting from laceration by a pitchfork.

Matt Ramsey was a patient for medical treatment at Gainesville sanitarium Thursday to Saturday.

The condition of Charlie Winchester, route 3, shows no improvement. He is confined to his home since suffering a heart ailment several weeks ago.

1.85 INCH RAIN

A slow steady rain through most of the night last Sunday measured 1.85 inches and gave a temporary lift to crops and pastures of this area. However it fell far short of meeting the needs of the soil which had been left powder dry during the long drought of last year and was only partially revived by a few inches of moisture during last month's severe weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Hess had as guests Saturday and Sunday her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Rice of Yarnady, Okla.

Fred Hartman of Norfolk, Neb. is here for a few weeks to visit members of the Pels and Fleitman families.

Messrs. and Mmes. Ray Swirczynski and David Trachta spent Saturday night and Sunday in Fort Worth as guests of the Stan Yostens.

Found: Another Hazard To Telephone Service

Rough weather isn't the only cause of trouble on Muenster telephone lines. Kids with rifles are responsible for some of it, Lineman Bill Fuhrmann discovered Wednesday.

Near the K of C hall he found a bullet hole in the main cable which carries lines to the north part of town and connects with rural lines near the city limit. No wires had been severed but the cable coating was pierced permitting water to get in and short out the lines.

For the sake of better phone service Fuhrmann urges parents to caution youngsters about shooting at the cable ... or at birds on the cable.

At Hood, A. A. Young and C.C. White are working together to get their waterways sodded. Nearby, Cecil Welch and Jim Souhtard are working together to sod waterways that will receive water from both farms.

One small plea on behalf of thousands is made by two-year-old Gordon Strickland of Orange, Texas, who like 20,000 other handicapped youngsters in Texas, is receiving assistance made possible by the annual Easter Seal Sale of the Texas Society for Crippled Children. This year 1,000,000 Texans will receive sheets of the Easter Seals with the request that they buy and use them. The sale dates are March 21 through April 17.

LOCAL ENTRIES WIN FLOCK OF PRIZES AT COUNTY DAIRY SHOW

Muenster 4-H Club boys and local dairymen won at least a dozen ribbons and cash prizes as exhibitors and contestants at the Dairy Day program in Gainesville Wednesday.

4-H winners are Edward Pick first and Eugene Luke third in the Guernsey division; Wilfred Klement second and Paul Fleitman fourth in the Jersey division; Donald Bayer second in the Milking Shorthorn division.

Allan Hoffman tied for first place in guessing the content of the butterfat production of a cow on exhibit and came out in second place in a contest to break the tie. It required estimating the quantity of milk produced by the cow.

Mrs. Norbert Klement and Mrs. Charlie Fisher tied for second place in the cattle judging contest, women's division. A complete list of winners was not available Wednesday night but winning dairymen included Charlie Fisher, Paul Fisher, Al Fleitman and Alfred Bayer in the Guernsey division and Eugene and Tony Klement in the Jersey division.

John Voth of Gainesville, a former Muenster man, exhibited the grand champion of the show, a Milking Shorthorn cow.

Insurance Companies Consider Bartender's Job More Hazardous than Cop's

NEW YORK.— A bartender's job is more dangerous than a policeman's according to life and accident insurance company listings.

These firms grade occupations by risk and raise policy rates as the danger increases. A grade A risk is a white collar worker. Deep sea divers, lion tamers and airplane wing-walkers are at the bottom — grade J.

Pretty far down are barkeepers. They rate F. Cops, however, are only grade E.

Armed with these cold statistics, a reporter talked with some bartenders about the dangerous lives they live.

The boys behind the mahogany all agree that holdup men, burglars and lady drunks are among major occupational hazards.

A brand new source of trouble to a bartender is television. It seems some of the customers get belligerent over the choice of programs.

TOO GOOD TO KEEP

It doesn't always pay to jump to conclusions but sometimes it is only human to do so. We had barely dropped asleep one night when we were awakened by the chickens squawking. My husband did not take time to dress, but it being winter time he had on long winter underwear. Slipping on his shoes, he grabbed his shotgun and made for the hen house and was just in position to demand the thief to come out.

As you know winter underwear has the habit of gaping behind. Just as he had reached the critical moment his old hound dog came up behind him and stuck his nose against him. Well, there was no thief in the chicken house, but we spent the remainder of the night dressing hens. When he let loose 13 old hens had been mowed down. We had baked chicken, noodles, chicken dumplings, creamed chicken, and chicken pie for a week straight run.

He threatened me bodily harm if I ever told it, but it was too good to keep any longer than it took to get to my typewriter.

—A Brave Missouri Man's Wife.

Washington Newsletter

By Congressman Ed Gossett

Washington, D.C., March 19 — The House this week passed a rent control bill. The primary feature of the House Bill was the Williams local option amendment. This amendment would give any town, county or state the right to decontrol itself should it desire to do so. The Senate will pass a different rent control bill. Then a conference between the House and Senate will probably write a different bill. No one knows just what sort of a bill will finally be enacted. I voted against any extension of rent control. While controls may be needed in certain areas, to continue rent control is to extend OPA on just one class of persons, to wit, the owners of rental property. Again, many of us feel that the housing situation would be helped, not hurt, by the removal of rent control. Furthermore, about 85% of rental property is owned, not by big firms or rich people, but by widows, old people, and folks who depend upon meager incomes for livelihood. I have many pitiful letters from people of this class. One lady writes: "I worked in a factory most of my life to pay for my home. I am seventy-six years old and unable to work now. The only income I have now is $21.00 a month from Social Security and $5.00 a week from a two-room furnished apartment with all bills paid. The OPA will not allow me to increase my rent." A man writes: "My wife and I are both sixty-four years old. We are heavily in debt on our property. If rent control is continued we will probably lose what we have invested. Because of my age I cannot get employment and my wife is sick most of the time." From another lady I get this letter: "We have just spent $674.00 to repair our seven room cottage duplex, installing a new range for $189.00, a total of $863.00. We were allowed only an increase of $3.50 a month in rent. This is all we have to live on. Mr. — is eighty-three years old and I will be eighty in May. I have recently fallen and broken my hip. Our son will have to pay these bills after we are gone." I have dozens of such letters.

PENDING BILLS
 Among bills soon to come before the House are a bill extending the coverage of the Wage and Hour Act and raising the minimum wage to 75c; a rural telephone bill to provide rural telephones on a basis similar to REA; and the oleomargarine bill about which much has been written.

I would vote for some increase in the minimum wage although the pending bill is subject to several serious objections. I expect to support the rural telephone bill with provisions to eliminate duplicating competition. Rural telephone service is worse now than it was thirty years ago. An oleomargarine bill should be passed; the tax on oleomargarine is discriminatory and unreasonable. It is wrong to tax any food simply because it competes with some other food. The dairy industry, segments of which have generally opposed the oleomargarine bill, gets along pretty well in the Washington area. The Gossett family while here has averaged paying the Chevy Chase Dairy around $35.00 per month.

THE PARTY PLATFORM
 In this morning's mail I received a letter from Congressman Anthony Cavalcante of Pennsylvania in which he writes: "Although I am a first term member of the House I wish to call your attention to a matter that I believe should be of urgent concern to all Democrats. First, as Americans we owe a duty to the people to enact into law the Democratic Platform adopted at Philadelphia and which was endorsed by the people at the polls on November 2, 1948." No southern Democrat will take Mr. Cavalcante's appeal seriously. We feel that we have a right to make up our own minds as to what is best for the party and for the country. Texans had very little to do with the writing of the Democratic Platform at Philadelphia last fall. We gave Mr.

Truman his biggest majority in the national election, but we certainly did not endorse everything in the Democratic Platform. Like most southern Democrats, I support administration measures when I possibly can in good conscience. However, he serves his party best who serves his country most.

As a good Democrat, I do not feel myself bound to vote for something simply because some Democratic leader demands it. Mr. Cavalcante is overreaching himself just a little.

The American Way NO KING WANTED

By George Peck

For countless centuries billions of men have struggled for the right to govern themselves. When Thomas Jefferson, John Hancock, and a small group of serious-minded individuals wrote the American Declaration of Independence, they electrified the masses of people the world over.

Few outside of the thirteen colonies thought the colonists would win the glorious rights as pronounced in the Declaration of Independence. But, with the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, our Forefathers had won the right to set up a kind of government of their own choosing — with no King to head it.

Five years later the Constitution was written — the first document in history that put every citizen on equal terms with all other citizens, insofar as his political and legal rights were concerned. It recognized neither royalty nor aristocratic titles. It denied the property owner greater suffrage than the man who owned no property. Under it, for the first time in recorded history, every man could cast a ballot on equal terms and have power on a party with every other citizen, to choose not only his form of government but the men to run it — with no King to head that government.

No greater sacrifice ever was made than that of the pioneers of the thirteen colonies to secure this equality before the ballot box and before the law. Several hundred thousand Americans gave seven years of their lives under arms to win freedom for this country. Many thousands died and many other thousands suffered terrible privations during those seven long years.

For a century and a half we seemed to have a sincere appreciation of this heroic struggle. During that 150 years we built the greatest civilization this world has ever known, and America became the envy of every other nation. Now, many Americans would relegate that sacrifice to the scrap-heap. They have lost that burning desire to be a free people with equal suffrage. Have they come to the conclusion that we are no longer fit to govern ourselves and that we should turn that job over to a King and a retinue of bureaucrats?

Last January 20, we witnessed what was termed the inauguration of a president. To many of us the spectacle took on a terrifying aura of a coronation, and the broad, dictatorial powers since asked for by our Chief Executive indicate that he, himself, believes he exchanged his Missouri sombrero for a crown upon that gala occasion.

Congress must refuse to grant the Administration the authority to impose peace-time controls, to fix prices, to put Uncle Sam into the steel business or any other business, at its caprice or whim. Otherwise, the sacrifice made by our Forefathers to throw off the yoke of a King will have been in vain.

Let your Congressman and U. S. Senator know that you are bitterly opposed to reverting back to the status of "subject" — that you wish to remain a "free citizen" — and remind them that Kings have been very much out of style in America since 1776.

By the Declaration of Independence and the victorious struggle of those heroes of the thirteen colonies the principle of "The Divine Right of the Individual" was established here in America, made than that of the pioneers and "The Divine Right of Kings" was definitely disestablished. Notice was served to the world that in the United States no King is wanted.

GI Agriculture Class On Hybrid Corn Project

Sixteen members of the Muester veterans agriculture class are planting hybrid seed corn this year, the first year that members of the class selected hybrid corn, according to Hugh Barnhardt, instructor.

Barnhardt secured the seed for the class through cooperation of a nationally known hybrid seed corn distributor.

Limestone is found in practically all parts of Texas except the Coastal Plain.

Measles and Smallpox Cases Are Increasing, Health Officer Warns

AUSTIN, TEXAS.— Measles and chickenpox have been widespread throughout the State during the past few weeks, and in the week ending March 5th measles reached a total number of cases, 3909, that was the second highest in history. Chickenpox was almost twice the seven year median, and Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer has stated that there is an unusual number of adults suffering from this so called "childhood" disease.

"Both these diseases are extremely contagious", Dr. Cox said, "and the strictest isolation and sanitation precautions are necessary to halt their spread. Dishes, toys, towels or anything that has been around the patient can carry the germs to other members of the household, and all such articles should be thoroughly disinfected before being handled by others susceptible to these diseases."

The State Health Officer recommended that a physician be called immediately when a child shows any beginning symptoms of chickenpox or measles, and that his advice be followed implicitly until complete recovery. Dangerous complications often accompany or follow measles, and a child may have his entire future health endangered unless he receives competent care during his illness.

"It is not advisable to treat these childhood diseases too lightly", Dr. Cox said. "They are sometimes responsible for nothing more than a few days discomfort, but we cannot count on that. They should be taken seriously, and receive a competent doctor's supervision and attention."

The boys' softball team of the public school is showing steady improvement, according to Coach Cowan and will be ready for a challenger soon.

Notes On Soil Conservation

Bermuda grass sprigging of waterways is still in full swing in the Muenster area. Sprigs are still available near Gainesville and the digging of the roots will continue as long as there is enough demand for them. The average cost of the Bermuda grass roots is a dollar per acre for pasture sodding.

At Wiesman is sodding a waterway through his cultivated field. He seeded the waterway to Bermuda grass last spring and a partial stand of grass was obtained. He wants to get a good grass cover as soon as possible and is sodding enough to get a full stand.

Matt Mueller is sodding pasture strips and waterways on his farm southeast of Muenster.

Many fields of sweet clover are up to a good stand and prospects are good for the clover this spring. Madrid, a biennial, yellow blossom clover is becoming more popular. A total of 244 acres has been seeded by J. W. Hess, Felix Becker, J. F. Swirczynski, Alois Trubenbach, Bernard Wolf, C. C. White, Jake G. Biffle, Alois J. Schmitt, Joe Mages, Joe Tischler, Ike Fulton and Henry Wiesman. A total of 564 acres of Hubam and biennial white blossom clover has been planted by Bruno Fietman, Martin Bayer, Alfons Luke, Joe Hoenig, F. J. Hacker, Leo Rohmer, J. H. Bayer, Paul Hutchinson, Bill Jones, Tony Walterscheid and Felix Becker.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Thompson had as weekend guests Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Masten of Whitesboro.

"Hot Shot," a cow belonging to farmer Ray Kaufman, upper right, of Halstead, Kan., just couldn't stand the indignity of her first experience with a mechanical milker and bolted into the hayloft. Kaufman and two assistants added insult to injury by hobbling the incensed animal and lowering her back to the ground via block and tackle.

Soil Group Seeks State's OK On Conservation Capital Fund

AUSTIN.—The urgent need for soil conservation work is a concern not only of the farmer, but also of city and town dwellers. Significance of the soil to urban people was explained in Austin this week by R. M. Boswell of Kenedy, representing the Association of Texas Soil District Supervisors.

The association is supporting legislation to appropriate $10,000,000 as a permanent capital fund to round out Texas' soil conservation program.

"Money that is exchanged in purchasing, processing, transporting, and merchandising agricultural products finds its way into the pockets of every Texas citizen," Boswell declared. He continued:

"Economists have estimated that every dollar's worth of raw products from the farm and ranch turns into seven dollars worth of value in goods and services before it reaches the consumer.

"The original dollar is what the farmer or ranchman gets. People in cities and towns harvest the other six dollars."

Urban dwellers are now realizing that their economic welfare is interlocked with that of agriculture, Boswell said. He noted that many bankers, labor organizations and other individual groups are working for the advancement of soil conservation.

Urging passage of the $10,000,000 soil conservation bill, Boswell declared:

"If the legislature will provide this amount to the districts now, the soil saved and the resulting increase in agricultural products will be worth $100,000,000 in the next ten years."

In a statement to a legislative committee, Boswell said:

"The appropriation of $10,000,000 that you are asked to recommend to the legislature is to be used by the districts as capital.

"We assure you that if this amount of money is provided we will not be back before the next legislature asking for another appropriation.

"It is our plan and intention to use this fund for the purchase of material and equipment for use by the districts, to be sold and leased to cooperators at a price sufficient to replace such material and equipment by the time it is depleted."

The amount requested represents the minimum requirement to carry forward a complete and efficient soil conservation program, Boswell said.

He pointed out that $10,000,000 when allocated to the districts, would boil down to an average of only about $10,000 for each county precinct.

A HAPPY TRADITION

In the early days it was a common sight to see neighbors ban together to help each other. Barns were built, crops harvested, land cleared and numerous other tasks were accomplished in a few hours instead of weeks or months. It was done in an atmosphere of spontaneous fun. The neighbors simply dropped in for a raising bee, a husking bee, or whatever the occasion required, with their wagons loaded with food.

These work parties were a necessity in pioneer America. But it is cheering to note that this tradition is still with us in this machine age. A recent news item tells of a service station operator in a small Minnesota community who had an unusual run of bad luck. His competitors decided to help him out. They closed their stations one Sunday and took over the job of manning his cash register and pumps to handle the sudden rush of business. It was necessary for the local constable to direct traffic. Many people refused change, and the supplier, which was one of the leading oil companies, furnished gas at cost. When the day was over the station operator was considerably better off financially and he had gained a new appreciation of his friends and neighbors.

If instances like this could occur more often half the seemingly insoluble problems of the country would disappear.

Joe Bengfort Uses New Method In Establishing Waterways To Bermuda

Joe Bengfort, cooperator of the Upper Elm-Red soil conservation district in the North Lindsay conservation group, is using an idea new to the district in getting his waterway established to Bermuda grass prior to terrace construction. He has already sprig sodded the waterways in lister furrows and has covered the sprigs by re-listing. At corn planting time these lister beds will be leveled down and corn seeded just above the sprigs.

Bengfort plans to apply 100 lbs. of 16-20-0 fertilizer under the corn at planting time. This will give added growth to the Bermuda and an increased yield in corn. The corn will be cultivated as usual with the exception of hoeing and the last plowing. By establishing waterways in this manner he will get a crop off the land in addition to cultivating the Bermuda which will greatly stimulate its growth. After the first year the waterways will be fenced for pasture in the usual manner.

This procedure will work using either corn or cotton as the crop to be cultivated along with the Bermuda, according to Jack McFerran, work unit conservationist, who says that about one-half to three-fourth of a normal corn or cotton crop can be expected when waterways are established in this manner.

Other cooperators of the district who established waterways by sprig sodding are Joe and Gregory Hundt, Al Walter and Robert Beyer, in the North Lindsay group.

With favorable weather and the continued interest of farmers in protecting cropland by establishing waterways, more work will be done this spring in this line than has been done in all previous years since the district was established in 1942.

Confetti---

the necessary loan, even in spite of the old low rate.

But then came unexpected blows. An expensive line moving job to provide highway right of way. Then two devastating ice storms. Is it surprising that the company is in a strain?

Well, let's remember that the real cause of the terrible failure is the failure to charge adequate rates in the past. The company was too good for its own good. That fault has been corrected, however. A new rate scale has been adopted. Rather late, perhaps, like closing the barn door after the horse is out. But in this case it's possible to get the horse back in, if we'll do it.

Another angle worth considering is the future possibility of a good telephone system. Once it is restored to A-1 condition it can add quite a number of new patrons. And as the community continues its present growth it can add still more. When all the facts are taken into account it becomes apparent that the system is worth keeping and worth bracing up.
