Fenton resigns suddenly

The atmosphere was somber when Mayor Ted Henscheid called the special open meeting to order Monday night at City Hall. The council had just finished a closed executive session and no one was smiling. Henscheid immediately asked for a motion to accept the resignation of City Administrator Joe Fenton. Council member Fran Voth made the motion and the vote to accept was unanimous.

Fenton's resignation includes the following concessions:

-Resignation is effective immediately.

-The City will render a favorable reference letter and continue favorable references regarding Fenton.

-Fenton will receive 30 days' severance pay plus two weeks' accrued vacation pay.

-The City will reimburse Fenton $249.00 for personal equipment which was lost or damaged by city employees.

No one would comment on the reasons leading up to the action. Henscheid would only say that the reasons and discussion were locked up in executive session. "The resignation was tendered and accepted for reasons of public pressure," he said.

The council briefly discussed the idea about moving a city employee in Fenton's position but did not act because the employees hadn't been consulted. The council agreed to leave the administrator's position unfilled for the time being.

Fenton was hired on Sept. 24, 1984 and was being paid $28,000 annually when he resigned.

EDITORIAL QUESTION: It seems fair to ask, since Muenster is now left without an experienced city administrator when several important items are waiting for action, what pressure did we, the public, apply to cause it?

The Enterprise is looking for answers for the next story.

One other item was discussed shortly by the council when Southtown resident Jon LeBrasseur asked why no curbing action had started on his street in preparation for paving.

Fenton replied that no action was taken on his directions while he had been gone to Fireman's School at Texas A&M. The interlocal work agreement with Cooke County had not been made and everyone was too busy during Fenton's absence.

LeBrasseur said he understood but reminded the council that the 30-day time limit is past at which time the city was supposed to initiate curbing uncurbed sections of street.

Muenster questions ambulance changes

by Elaine Schad

A complex formula for reimbursing medical services for Medicare and Medicaid may be standing in the way of lowering fees for transporting patients from Muenster to Gainesville on a roundtrip basis.

Muenster Memorial Hospital Administrator Jack Endres and former administrator Herman Carroll told county commissioners this week that they felt roundtrip fees to transfer their patients to Gainesville and back were excessive and requested that they be lowered.

The cost for a roundtrip from Muenster to Gainesville and back is $395, said Cooke County Emergency Medical Service Director Bobby Harbin. Harbin said the CCEMS rates are tied to obtaining the most reimbursement from Medicare. The CCEMS transported patients roundtrip from Muenster twice within the last year.

Carroll said the hospital only gets a set amount from Medicare or Medicaid and must absorb costs above the reimbursements. "By the time we pay ambulance service, then test outside the hospital, it's just a losing proposition," he said.

Commissioners requested that Carroll and Endres obtain a legal opinion on whether some rates can be lowered, but made no promises that anything would be changed. The county already subsidizes the ambulance service by almost $300,000 and doesn't want to change losing any more revenue through lower fees or by losing Medicare reimbursements.

"It's not that we're not sympathetic, Herman," said Commissioner Danny Knight. "But in the late 1980s we had to raise our rates to increase the reimbursements, and I'd hate to tinker with that," he said.

Carroll and Endres told commissioners that the hospital tries to use other transport whenever possible, such as the local funeral home vehicle or private vehicle where the patient is well enough to travel in that fashion. The hospital would be unable to obtain its own transport vehicle, however, due to complex licensing procedures that would be cost prohibitive, Endres said.

Commissioners also asked if the hospital could recoup some of its losses by charging a hospital tax. Carroll said that would not be possible in this situation, since the hospital district tax can only be levied for capital expenses and intelligent care.

Race Across America passes through Muenster

by Mike Pagel

Back in the summer of 1990, 32-year-old Bob Forney of Denver, Colorado rode his bicycle from California to Georgia in eight days, 11 hours and 26 minutes. In the summer of 1991, Forney finished the same route five hours and 18 minutes slower than his clocked time in 1990.

Why would anyone want to endure the intense summer heat and race such a long distance in a short period of time?

A monetary prize of $18,660 and the right to be called the champion of Race Across America (RAAM) is enough incentive for some cyclists.

RAAM, which is celebrating its 10th anniversary this year, is America's version of the Tour de France. The bicycle race, which covers 2,901 miles, is known as one of the most challenging solo human endeavors known to the individual man.

Forney won this event in both 1990 and 1991. This year, he looks for the hat trick in the men's division of Race Across America.

Forney is one of approximately 50 cyclists, each with a crew of 6 to 15 people, who are partaking in this endeavor. RAAM is an ongoing race, meaning that there are no formal "timeouts." A RAAM cyclist will ride 22 hours per 24-hour period. Also, between 100 and 150 percent of body weight will be consumed during RAAM - or about 4 to 5 gallons a day per cyclist. The 100,000 calories expended in RAAM represents 1,000 bananas, 400 plates of spaghetti, 435 Power Bars, 304 Snickers candy bars or 2,000 homemade chocolate chip cookies.

On Wednesday afternoon, Dave Kees, 37, of Auburn, California, and his crew passed through Muenster on U.S. Highway 82. Just beyond the halfway point of Shamrock, Texas, Kees is in fourth place, closing in on third place.

Kees and his crew revealed a sense of confidence that this would be his year to win the race since he has improved his performance in each of his previous years. In 1991, Kees finished in fourth place.

The 1992 Race Across America began on July 23 at the Holiday Inn

County employees pay raises approved

by Elaine Schad

Cooke County's 147 employees will receive raises totaling about $150,000 for fiscal 1993.

County commissioners this week agreed to implement about half the proposals of a salary study conducted last year plus give an across-the-board 3 percent raise to all employees.

The county plans to pay for the raises with a proposed 3-percent tax increase and with reserve funds, said County Commissioner Kenneth Alexander. The county was able to gain some unanticipated revenue by housing out-of-county prisoners and from a settlement on an ambulance that was destroyed by fire, money which could go toward the raises, he said.

The raises will range from less than $50 per month to about $150 per month, based on the salary study recommendations, Alexander said. Those on the lower end of the salary increase will be county road hands which the study indicated that the county was funding adequately. "Some of the positions were renamed or reclassified in the study, placing them at a higher salary level, but we decided to retain those positions as they had been originally named," he said. Commissioners also agreed to remove a 10-year cap from $10 per month longevity pay for county employees.

Before commissioners voted to implement the salary increases, the proposed $6.6 million county budget for fiscal 1993 was $9,000 above the present budget. Commissioners could approve the new budget as early as mid-August, depending on whether the county receives the certified tax roll on which the tax rate can be calculated.

County employees received no raise last year after commissioners said they needed more time to study the ramifications of a study completed in June 1991. The $20,000 study, conducted upon recommendation of a county salary grievance committee, concluded that at least half of Cooke County government employees are paid less than their counterparts elsewhere in North Texas.

Explanation of changes in store for MHS students

by Jerry Metzler, MHS Principal

Muenster High School is in the process of finalizing plans for the 1992-93 school year and several changes will be in store for the new year. Student registration for grades 7-12 will be Thursday, Aug. 13, from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m.; the first day of classes will be Aug. 17.

The public was invited to attend the MISD Discipline Management Review Meeting on June 18, but attendance was low. At this meeting, those present recommended few changes in the district's discipline procedures. The dress and grooming codes will not change substantially; shorts are allowed for K-6 students only just as in 1991-92. However, one change that will affect students and parents is that shorts, skirts and skorts must extend to a point halfway between the bend of the knee and midhigh. Hopefully, this change will allow students and parents more choices in purchasing school clothing and will be more reasonable for taller students.

Also, the MISD School Board approved a revised grading policy for grades 7-12. Muenster High School will no longer require that six weeks tests be given and counted a third of the six weeks average. Instead, a test and major grades will count for two thirds of the final six weeks average, while minor grades will be weighed one third. Minor grades include homework assignments, quizzes and short assignments. Major grades consist of unit tests, projects, research assignments and any other assignment designated in advance. To give each teacher as much latitude as possible, yet still make students and parents knowledgeable of grading procedures, teachers will give students an estimate of the number of major grades each six weeks and specify what assignments will be considered "major."

The semester test will still count one fourth of the final semester average - equally weighted with each of the three six weeks averages. These changes, which were approved by the faculty and recommended by the administration, are designed to increase the number of instructional days by reducing required tests at the end of each six weeks. Teachers will no longer be forced to stop in the middle of a unit to give a six weeks test - instead, tests will occur as needed based on class progress. Also, three-week progress reports

Finally, MHS will no longer offer remedial courses such as Pre-Algebra, Intro to Biology, Intro to Physical Science and Correlated Language Arts. MISD had decided last April to do away with such classes and instead require all students to take the more difficult regular courses Algebra I, Biology, Physical Science and English I. The should be more meaningful to students and parents because they should represent a better prediction of the final six-weeks average. Under the old system, a major project or test usually occurred the sixth week of the grading period and combined with the heavily-weighted six weeks test, could drastically alter a student's final average. Now, reports should more accurately predict students' final averages.

district will offer students special "Content Mastery" courses in English and Math/Science for local credit. These courses, which do not count toward state graduation requirements, will be taught by MHS English, Math and Science teachers and will be designed to help students with difficult material in the "regular" class. Students will be placed in these classes based on TAAS results, achievement test results, past academic performance, or teacher and parent referral. Although this change was originally approved locally by the MISD School Board, the Texas Education Agency has since mandated similar procedures statewide.

Anyone wanting more information about these changes is encouraged to talk with MHS Principal Jerry Metzler at 759-2281.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

How wasteful is our federal government? Citizens Against Government Waste estimate that Washington will waste $170 billion this year on programs that are poorly managed, have failed or outlived their usefulness.

This is an amount equal to 35 percent of all personal income taxes. Add this to the 62 percent of personal income taxes going to the debt built up over the years of waste. Put in another way, for a median-income family, waste consumes $2250 out of a $6470 income tax bill, and interest on the debt consumes $4010, leaving only $210 for true current government services. Our kids will have the pleasure of trying to pay off this massive debt.

How stupid is the federal government? In some areas of the country the federal government leases federal land to farmers for crop production. But because of overproduction the federal government is paying these same farmers much more money not to grow crops on this same land.

In Alaska the federal government is selling federal timber at a loss to logging companies who sell the logs to Japan at a loss. The federal government then subsidizes the logging companies to cover their losses.

Isn't it all wonderful. Perhaps we should start over. How about Tom Landry for President and Roger Staubach for Vice-President?

Letter to the Editor:

The Muenster Memorial Hospital Auxiliary, on behalf of the medical team leaving Aug. 14 for Cotija, Mexico, is requesting donations from Muenster residents to aid in their project.

The team, of which Herman Carroll and Judy Flusche are members, are in need of children's lightweight clothing and stuffed toys, as well as monetary donations.

Saturday, Aug. 8, has been scheduled as a collection day for persons who have items to donate to the needy children of Cotija. The north parking lot of the hospital has been designated as the area for collection of children's summer clothing and any stuffed toys that anyone has to donate. The times for collection are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Anyone unable to bring their items to the parking lot during those times can call Betty Kralicke at 759-2940, who will send Auxiliary members to pick up items, or if you would like items picked up before Aug. 8, or after (deadline is Aug. 12).

The Auxiliary urges everyone to help this very worthwhile project and donate whatever you have; money is needed, as some medical supplies will have to be purchased after arrival in Mexico. The medical team (comprised of doctors, nurses, anesthetists and other professionals) donate their time to travel to Cotija and perform surgeries on the needy people of the area, who have no nearby medical facilities.

Sincerely,
Brenda Riggsby

What is the position on school finance?

by Steve Cooper

Several months ago superintendents in all public school districts in the State received a letter written by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and the Speaker of the House. The letter advised administrators on the status of school finance in Texas. Superintendents were told to expect less money than promised for 1992-93 and in the next biennium no increase in school funding even though legislators approved in previous legislation substantial increases statewide to "insure equitable and improved education." The fact that the three most important politicians in our state are telling us that the state won't live up to its promises borders on intentionally failing to meet their commitments - the state is not living up to its part of the bargain. It's interesting to note, at this point, that while the state preaches improved, reformed, and changed education as an absolute must and that it (education) should be a number one priority - they speak political rhetoric and out of both sides of the mouth because the funding they're supposed to supply to the equation is never quite enough. Funny, how the most important thing to the future of Texas is really not that important when it comes to politicians actually putting the money on the table.

A few weeks after receiving the letter mentioned above, another was sent out, this time, by the Lieutenant Governor and he mentioned that original projections had been somewhat off and there would be more money than originally projected. - What is the status of educational finance? Who knows? One thing is very obvious, that being very little or no leadership in Austin. Those that congregate there, for the most part, are not willing to or capable of making the tough decisions that must be made to right the system and it can be done. It is very difficult to explain exactly what is happening - perceptions by the electorate are not entirely accurate particularly in light of this district's current projections for next year (I refer to last week's article) although we're looking at a reduced rate most districts in the state are looking at sizable increases and the good Lord only knows what kind of system will come out of Austin next year. One thing you can be sure of - and that is it will be driven by the property tax unless there is some revamping of our existing system of taxation. Without leadership this is not apt to happen, consequently we sit out in the trenches exposed to an old philosophy that says you never shoot any higher than you aim. If we aim at maintaining the status quo then that's what we'll get. I'm concerned that we're being lulled into the lukewarm pot and by the time we discover the heat is being turned up we will be in boiling water up to our necks. There is always a great deal of apprehension associated with change and when we begin to talk about restructuring our tax system we become almost paranoid. There is always the concern that we could end up worse off than we are now, so let's keep "this foul smelling beast" at least we know what we've got. I'm firmly convinced that the property taxpayer in this state needs to storm the gates in Austin and insist on an equitable system. If we don't the legislators will continue to shoulder that taxpayer with more and more of the burden and while we get upset, outraged, and incensed locally that cry never quite reaches our "heroes" in Austin and the status quo remains. We muffle our concern because once again what we could get could be worse than what we have. Please keep in mind the water - it is getting hotter and hotter while we contemplate a worse condition. After talking to many school superintendents, businessmen, landowners, etc., it's apparent that our entire economic system is buckling under the property tax load. People don't want to own property because they can't afford the taxes, businessmen are concerned about what that does to their daily efforts, we are at a time when good decisions must be made because they will directly affect our ability to maintain our standard of living and our ability to deliver a quality education to our kids.

Politicians are frustrated because they know there is not enough money in the property tax base to equitably fund education. Inevitably they continue to take the easy way out, underhanded in many ways, by passing legislation that raises the property tax that puts a disproportionate share of the burden on the property owner. That in itself is bad enough but the state knows, in many instances, that it will not live up to its part of the bargain. The hidden deception lies in statements like "the state will generate more money that also goes into the fund" actually the state doesn't generate the amount of money they say they will and the school districts end up having to make up for that amount too.

I believe it's time for the taxpayer to demand accountability from those that represent us in Austin. We certainly have some very capable people in Austin but those that aren't should be replaced. Solutions to our financial dilemma must be found.

As I've said many times more money is not going to solve our problems but enough money is needed in each school district to fully educate a child. Muenster ISD continues to meet that challenge.

The ghosts of billions, past and future

submitted by Steve Cooper, MISD Superintendent

On June 8, 1992, Governor Richards, Lt. Governor Bullock and Speaker Lewis wrote to school administrators to tell them there will be "no new state money" to cover "the additional $3 billion required to meet the increased funding levels established by Senate Bill 351 for the 1993-94 and 1994-95 school years" and "you can expect per pupil state aid to remain, at best, constant."

On June 19, the education community held a press conference and came out swinging. You're renegeing on your promise, giving up without a fight, hurting children, they said.

Oh no, said the big three, you've got it wrong. The problem lies not with us, but with the state's economy, the taxpayers, and school boards and administrators. We three would keep the promise if only the economy were stronger, if the taxpayers would support new state money for education, and if local school officials would stop wasting all the new state money they've already gotten and show us some results. Bullock told reporters state aid has nearly doubled in the past decade, and Lewis proclaimed to the press that taxpayers are demanding to know, "Where have all the billions gone?"

Then, on July 2, Bullock released an editorial headed "No New Money" is Undue Alarm." It said the state will give school districts "a minimum of $650 million ... perhaps as much as $1 billion" in "new state aid" next biennium. Therefore, the editorial continues, "there is no room for any person or group" to say the state "has gone back on its commitment to excellence and equity."

Had something changed? Had educators overreacted to the June 8 letter? Not really. But unfortunately, that's what a lot of folks seem to think. Truth is, Bullock was simply filling in some blanks in the earlier letter. He wasn't adding one thin dime to the pot. He was talking about money that was already there. Money that was assumed, but not mentioned, in the June 8 letter. Money that still leaves us $3 billion short of the promise of SB 351.

So how does all this fit together, and what does it mean for public education?

The reality about where all the past billions have gone is that when you adjust for student population growth, inflation, and new state mandates, real state aid is about the same or less than it was a decade ago. After adjusting for growth and inflation alone (the costs of new mandates are not as well known), we found an average annual increase of less than 1% a year from 1983-84 through 1992-93. (We'll be happy to share our math with anyone who asks.)

As for getting results, if the real increase is less than 1% per year, and if we assume there is some meaningful relationship between money and results, we really shouldn't expect to find any results traceable to state aid increases.

Perhaps we should be grateful the state has been keeping up with inflation. And we would be, if our public schools were funded at a competitive level. But they're not. Texas is in the bottom quarter of all states in per student funding.

We should also note that the increases for this year and next year are substantially better than for most of the other years included in our analysis. In fact, state aid increased more than 5% above and beyond growth and inflation this year, and will again next year. And next biennium, fully funded, would have given us four good years in a row.

The reality about all the future billions promised in SB 351 is that they are not going to be there unless the education community somehow manages to change the course our state leaders are now steering. Educators may also be able to help change taxpayer attitudes. As for blaming the economy, we would simply note that the official projects are about the same now as they were when SB 351 was passed.

The state's own numbers indicate that SB 351 will cost the state at least $3.78 billion more next biennium than was appropriated for this biennium. We can also calculate from the state's own numbers that it will take $1 billion just to keep per pupil state aid constant, at the 1992-93 level.

But how do those numbers jibe with what our state leaders said in the June 8 letter and July 2 editorial? First of all, the key to making the numbers and words fit together is that "no new state money" really means "no new state money from new state taxes." There is, in fact, new state money in the state's projections, but it's only from economic growth, and the amounts assume public education will continue to get its current 38% share of available state funds.

The $3 billion in the letter is the deficiency after taking into account the $650 million cited in the editorial as the minimum anticipated increase. Read "no new state money" to mean "...beyond the $650 million we expect from economic growth."

As to how "you can expect per pupil state aid to remain, at best, constant," at a cost of $1 billion with "no new state money," simply read "at best" to mean "if economic growth provides $1 billion for public education" - as Bullock said it might, at best, in his editorial.

Now let's take a final look at the $3.78 billion needed to keep the promise of SB 351. Student population growth, as we've said, will take $1 billion. Inflation, we calculate, will take another $980 million. That leaves $1.8 billion for real progress toward equity and excellence.

If we get only $650 million, we not only forego the promise of progress, we fall behind growth and inflation by $1.33 billion. And if we get only $1 billion, we cover growth, but not inflation. So we're still headed downhill. Is this really what the people are telling the governor they want for their kids?

Sen. Bentsen supports Super Collider program

by Lloyd Bentsen, United States Senator

Sometimes the sharpest scalpel, the most sophisticated medicine and the most dedicated, skilled surgeon aren't enough to cure cancer. But scientists at the Superconducting Super Collider Laboratory are developing a technique that could revolutionize cancer treatment.

By bombarding cancerous tissue deep inside the bodies of patients with high-speed protons generated by the world's largest atom smasher, doctors are able to target cancers not reachable by surgery, conventional radiation or chemotherapy treatments. The fast-moving protons can better pinpoint and penetrate cancerous tissue than slower, existing radiation treatment, and with fewer side effects.

The SSC and UT Southwestern Medical Center are constructing a cancer treatment facility adjacent to the planned 54-mile underground SSC laboratory based in Waxahachie. This center, which will be operational by 1996, should outshine existing treatment facilities because of the SSC's faster proton accelerator capabilities.

Developing procedures to attack cancer is only one of a host of ways that the SSC will allow us to use science to improve our lives. Since the Super Collider is still in the development phase, there is no way to anticipate the precise benefits that will come from it, but we do know the anticipated breakthroughs in our understanding of the nature of energy and matter hold enormous potential.

The House of Representatives voted to kill the SSC last month. The fate of the program now lies in the Senate.

In this time of runaway deficits, there's no question that deep and serious cuts need to be made in the federal budget. But as the most important basic research project in the world today, the SSC would be the wrong place to cut. It's not just another government program, it is a long-term investment that will pay dividends in technological leadership and job opportunities for decades to come.

Subcommittee on guidelines for state advisory committees to meet in Austin

The Subcommittee on Guidelines for State Advisory Committees, chaired by Rep. Charles Finnell, will be held in Austin July 28, the House Committee on Government Organization chairman, Rep. Layton Black announced recently.

Black says his notice to media throughout the state is an additional effort to inform as many citizens as possible of their opportunity to participate in the decision-making of state government.

"The process of making a new law or changing an old one often begins with these interim studies and hearings, and the only way people can become involved early is if they are informed of such schedules," Black emphasized.

Gainesville man dies in farm accident

by Elaine Schad

A farm accident took the life of a 33-year-old Gainesville man and injured a Cooke County Sheriff's Department deputy who came to his aid this week in a field off Farm-to-Market Road 2071 just south of Gainesville.

Kenneth Ritchie was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Bill Freeman. Sheriff's deputy Steven Hall, 40, was treated for a broken shoulder at Gainesville Memorial Hospital and is in good condition.

Ritchie had mowed the same piece of ground near Elm Creek in preparation for baling since he was 18, said Larry Denison, Cooke County Sheriff's Department investigator. "He was mowing next to the creek bed, but the recent floods and grass growing up, he couldn't tell where the creek dropped off," Denison said.

As he was mowing along the embankment of the Elm Fork of the Trinity River which borders the field on the west, the left wheels slid off the embankment. The tractor overturned, falling some 12 feet to the creekbed below and pinning Ritchie underneath, Denison said. Ritchie was dead at the scene.

Hall was first on the scene about 10 a.m. after the sheriff's department was notified, said Cooke County Sheriff John Aston. "He was going to check on the condition of the victim, when he stepped through some grass," Aston said. Hall apparently fell into the creekbed on the side of his head and landed on his shoulder, Aston said.

Danny Hoedebeck, Ritchie's employer, found the body and notified emergency agencies. Hoedebeck told authorities he had last seen Ritchie less than an hour before and was working in a field across the road around the time of the accident. He saw some equipment standing idle where Ritchie was supposed to be working, so he went to check on the man.

Denison said Ritchie's mother, who was not identified, was also transported to Gainesville Memorial Hospital. She apparently suffered a slight stroke when told about her son's death, Denison said.

In addition, Jones placed in the top five for the second straight year in the Texas State Championship Auctioneers Contest.

Tax Talk
by: Duane Knabe, CPA

Duane Knabe will discuss a different topic each week. Any questions should be directed to him at 759-4010.

This week's topic is social security benefits (and tier 1 RR retirement benefits). A portion of these benefits may be taxable. The amount of these benefits that must be included in income is the lesser of one-half the benefits received for the year or one-half of the taxpayer's combined income over a specified base amount. Combined income is modified adjusted gross income (MAGI) plus one-half of the benefits. MAGI includes tax-exempt interest and certain foreign country income.

The base amount is (a) $32,000 if filing status is married filing jointly, (b) zero if married filing separately and the taxpayer lived with his spouse during any part of the year, and (c) $25,000 for any other filing status.

Senator Carriker proposes repeal of water rights bill

Calling private property owners' water rights essential to the economy and security of Texas, Senator Steve Carriker recently announced that he is preparing a bill for the next session of the Legislature that will repeal the authority of the Texas Water Commission to limit the right of capture and called for a Legislative solution to the Edwards Aquifer dispute.

Carriker's bill would repeal section 28.011 of the Texas Water Code which gives the Water Commission broad authority over the pumping of all types of underground water anywhere in the state. "This provision of the code has never been applied by the Water Commission and the current commissioners assure me that they do not desire this kind of sweeping authority," Senator Carriker told a gathering of news media with Commissioners John Hall and Peggy Garner present.

"While I applaud the efforts of the Commission to address a critical problem of potential overuse in the Edwards Aquifer, we must reach a long-term legislative solution in the Edwards which sets no damaging precedents for the state's other aquifers," the Senator went on to say. He said that the repeal of section 28.011 was the first step in that process.

Senator Carriker went on to praise the Water Commission for taking the initiative to address the Edwards Aquifer problem and avoid federal intervention, and for their refusal to invoke section 28.011. "If the Commission had used 28.011, then every Texas property owners' water rights would be in question," he told the group.

Water Commissioners John Hall and Peggy Garner were in Wichita Falls July 21 where Senator Carriker had arranged visits with municipal and county officials from North Texas interested in various areas of Commission regulation such as solid waste, hazardous waste and surface and underground water.

SUBCHAPTER B. WATER WELLS

The 1985 amendment substituted "commission" for "department."

Commissioners order limits on businesses

Cooke County Commissioners this week approved the county's first order limiting the location of sexually-oriented businesses within the county.

While there are no sexually-oriented businesses as defined in the 26-page order presently located in the county, the regulations provide a framework to work within if any should locate in Cooke County in the future, said Cooke County Attorney August Boto, who drafted the order.

"I really think we've done it the right way in that we did it before any come in," Boto said. "We have heard that Denton County is more strictly enforcing its ordinance, and that might create pressure for those businesses to migrate into other areas," he said. Cooke County shares its southern border with Denton County.

Cooke County's order is based on similar ordinances adopted in Denton and Harris counties, Boto said. Both ordinances have withstood court tests for constitutionality, a major factor in using them as models for Cooke County's regulations, Boto said.

The order restricts the operation of sexually-oriented businesses to within 1,000 feet of a church or place of religious worship, child care facility, park, residential area, school or other business of the same type. Commissioners are expected to appoint a five-member board composed of county residents who will hear any requests for exemptions to the location limitation.

In addition, a $500 annual fee will be charged to obtain a license to operate a sexually-oriented business. That business will also be subject to inspection by the county environmental officer or the sheriff's department.

Some video stores and other businesses in the county presently rent or sell some movies which portray some of the sexually explicit material as defined in the ordinance, Boto said. "The key in this case will be whether the material constitutes the principal business as stated in the order," Boto said. He said he doesn't know of any business in Cooke County that has that type of material as its principal business. If any business is brought to the county's attention, then it would be reviewed on a case by case basis, he said.

Ann Scivally of Gainesville, one of a group of people present at the commissioners' meeting who supported the county's efforts in drafting the order, said she felt the ordinance would go a long way in protecting the county and its children from being exposed to sexually explicit material. "We've watched other counties suffer, and we just didn't want it to happen here," she said.

ungrateful that the state's record on the distribution of state aid has improved very substantially over the past decade. We thank our friends in all three branches of government for these improvements in equity. But the playing field is still not level. Our friends in other associations and in wealthy districts have taken the position that it is the state's responsibility to complete the leveling process with state funds. We agree.

The state has done just about all the leveling it feasibly can do without distribution schemes. The only way to get to equity and excellence without substantially more state money is to impose some form of massive recapture and outrageous property tax rates. State officials have been frantically looking for other options for nearly a decade now, and nobody has come even close.

It's not because the legislature can't add 1+1, as suggested in a recent Ben Sargent cartoon. It's because nobody, not even the legislature, can make 1+1=4.

MMH Auxiliary votes on bylaw changes, plans dance

The July 23 meeting of the Muenster Memorial Hospital Auxiliary was called to order at 7:40 p.m. by President Peggy Grewing, after which she offered the prayer.

Glenda Russell gave the treasurer's report, informing the members that there were no bills to pay in July. She deposited dues collected from three members.

Secretary Brenda Rigsby read the minutes of the June meeting, with no changes or additions.

The Auxiliary voted unanimously to install Lisa Walterscheid as parliamentarian for the remainder of the 1992 term, filling the position which was vacated by Kathy Bauer. Kathy accepted the nomination of vice-president during the May meeting following Lora Hennigan's resignation following election to the MMH Board of Directors.

The first item on the business agenda was to vote on amendments made to the Auxiliary By-Laws. The officers met in November and made revisions to the By-Laws; they were then read during the June meeting. All changes were approved by members present.

The social held on July 1 for the new MMH Administrator Jack Endres was discussed. The Auxiliary brought cookies and punch for all hospital staff members, as a welcoming gesture for Mr. Endres and as a chance for employees to become acquainted with the new administrator. The Auxiliary spent $18.00 on refreshments.

Herman Carroll and Judy Flusche will travel to Cotija, Mexico on Aug. 14, to serve with a team of medical professionals performing surgeries on needy people in that area. They have requested a donation from the Auxiliary to aid in their effort to help these people. The medical team donates their time and supplies are also donated. Janie Monday made a motion to donate $100.00 to the medical team; Lisa Walterscheid seconded. The Auxiliary decided to have a collection day on Saturday, Aug. 8, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. to collect as many stuffed toys and children's clothing as possible for Herman and Judy to distribute to the children in Cotija, who don't have such luxuries. Anyone interested in donating items may bring them to the north parking lot at the hospital on that day, or call Betty Kralicke, 759-2940, for someone to come and pick up the articles. The Auxiliary will collect items until Wednesday, Aug. 12. Herman stressed the team also needs monetary donations, since there will be some medical supplies which will have to be purchased upon arrival in Mexico. It was also suggested to contact both local churches for assistance. A letter to the editor in The Muenster Enterprise was also suggested as a way of communicating to the public the need for donations. The medical team, in 1991, performed approximately 82 surgeries in one week, with everyone working 12-15 hours per day.

Next on the agenda was discussion of the Auxiliary's purchase of new equipment for this year. It had been decided earlier in the year to work toward purchasing a bath for the hospital. The newest price quote came to $10,000 installed. However, Administrator Jack Endres brought to the attention of the Auxiliary the fact that the nurse call system in the hospital was in serious need of replacement. The only quote on such a system so far was for $21,000, which did not include the doctors' wing of the hospital. Endres suggested that perhaps the Auxiliary could finance 50% of the cost, with the hospital picking up the remainder.

The Auxiliary is taking under consideration to change our goal from the bath to the nurse call system. Anyone wishing to further discuss the project should be sure and attend the August meeting.

Discussion of a social to honor Jack Endres and Herman Carroll has been put on hold. Janie Monday made the motion to delay decision until a further date; Jodie French seconded the motion, followed by a unanimous vote.

The last item on the agenda was the fall fundraiser, our Western Elegance Dance, to be held on Saturday, Oct. 17, in the Community Center. Kathy Bauer is chairman; committees were established, with chairmen: Decorations, Mary Hess; Bar/Refreshments/Band, Denise Pagel; Entertainment, Janie Monday; Phone, Jodie French; Contests, Peggy Grewing. Chairmen are still needed for the Food and Publicity Committees. For more information or to volunteer to chair or work on a committee, call Kathy Bauer, 759-4009 days or 759-2573 evenings. Denise Pagel informed the Auxiliary that bartenders are needed to man the bar for that night; anyone interested should call Denise. Ideas for the evening included fun, games, contests and an auction.

The meeting was adjourned at 9:30 p.m., following a motion made by Denise Pagel, seconded by Betty Kralicke. Glenda Russell won the door prize, donated by the Crafty Olde German.

Classes of 1956 enjoy great reunion on June 20

Reports of a great reunion, most enjoyable of many events for graduates of both schools, Muenster High School and Sacred Heart High, were expressed by many following the celebration held in the Knights of Columbus Hall on Saturday, June 20, 1992.

The reunion also included students who had been part of the classes any time since first grade and through 12th. Also attending were a number of former teachers.

Dinner at 6 p.m. was catered by Francis and Cathie Fuhrmann of The Farmer's Kitchen, who also decorated the hall beautifully with the red and white school colors.

Several months prior to the reunion, information sheets were mailed to all students and teachers, and when these were returned completed, they were copied to create keepsake booklets for everyone.

A table for reminiscing was set up, with pictures, annuals, letters, etc. Many students brought more pictures and shared old stories, with visiting and remembering.

Rodney Walter offered the prayer before dinner, asking God's blessing on the food, and on each one present, recalling parents and teachers, and paying tribute to deceased members: Carol Voth Koesler, Charles Moster, Eugene Grewing, Jimmy Kirk, Richard Hess and Patsy Fette Flores.

Tommy Herr gave a brief overview of each student and teacher to relate a "Remember When?" Many humorous incidents, and some sadly poignant, were recalled and related, especially Robert Meurer and Johnny Fette's canoe trip down the Red River in a boat they themselves built; Ronnie Fette's story of "The Gunfight" at the old ranch when he and Richard Hess were confronted, as teenagers, by five "business-men-types" in a Cadillac, armed with shotguns; Don Wilson's account of experiences in Vietnam in 1968; and Don Flusche's reading of "For Those of Us Born Before 1945 ... We Are Survivors." For these and several others, The Muenster Enterprise will seek the permission of former students to reprint their stories later.

Voted winners in a number of categories were: "Best Preserved" at SHHS were Charles Felderhoff and Caroline Hesse Neu; and at MHS were Jimmy Hellman and Norma Klement Scott. "Most Changed" at SHHS were Ervin (Red) Henscheid and Georgia Owen Henscheid; at MHS were Ronnie Fette and Wanda Richey Riley.

"Least Changed" at SHHS were Rodney Walter and Caroline Hesse Neu; at MHS were Jimmy Hellman and Norma Klement Scott.

"Grayest Hair" were Tommy Herr and Wanda Richey Riley.

Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles rocking Six Flags August 3 - 16
The "totally awesome" foursome, the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles - with their own style of reptile rock - are performing at Six Flags Over Texas for a 14-day run.

As part of their national tour, the group will be performing live August 3 through August 16 in the theme park's Music Mill Amphitheater. There will be no extra charge for the shows which will begin at 8:30 p.m. On August 14, the show will begin at 7 p.m.

True to their roots, the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles put plenty of martial arts mayhem into their live show, but Michaelangelo (lead guitarist), Raphael (saxophone), Donatello (keyboards) and Leonardo (bass) are quick to point out that the music's totally rocking. Appearing with them at Six Flags will be April, ace reporter and special friend of the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles and their arch enemy Shredder.

High intake of wheat bran--raising total fiber to 30 gm. a day--seems to lower levels of estrogen. Researchers at the American Health Foundation, Valhalla, New York, suggest that lowering the hormone may protect against breast cancer.

Even elderly patients with bowel cancer may benefit from surgery, doctors from Strasbourg, France, report. Except for oldersters who had life-threatening complications that required emergency surgery, the over-80 patients responded almost as well as younger ones.

Use enough sunscreen for protection, about an ounce per application, the Skin Cancer Foundation warns. And toss out old sunscreen. Most formulations won't hold up more than two years.

Little League Tourney hosts a great lineup!

The Muenster Jaycees sponsored a two-day Little League Baseball Tournament on July 24-25.

Valley View, Gainesville, Forestburg, Saint Jo and two Muenster teams competed in the tournament.

Valley View, after drawing a bye in the first round, needed only two victories to win the tournament. They defeated Muenster Red 13-6 and Forestburg 23-3 in the championship game. Second baseman T.J. Carr scored 7 runs on 6 hits in the tournament to lead Valley View's powerful offense. Keith Alexander and Robbie Newton each crossed the plate 6 times in the two games for Valley View.

During this past week, Valley View competed in the Texas Teen-Age Baseball (TTAB) League District Tournament in Lewisville. Thursday night, Valley View will be playing for the tournament championship and the right to play in the TTAB State Tournament next week in Palestine.

In other games of the Jaycees Tournament, it was the Muenster Blue over Saint Jo, 8-3.

Muenster Red handed Gainesville its only loss of the tournament, 5-4. Jesse Luke, who reached base via 2 errors in his first two plate appearances, scored 2 runs for Muenster Red.

In the third game of the tournament, Jaime Johnson recorded 10 strikeouts to lead Forestburg to a 10-8 win over Muenster Blue. Brent Sicking singled twice and scored 2 runs for Muenster Blue.

Against Valley View, Muenster Red was unable to recover after Valley View scored the 5-run limit in the first inning. They fell to the eventual champs 13-6. Muenster Red first baseman Aaron Klement bashed a homerun in the second inning and scored another run in the fourth.

The next game for Muenster Red was against Muenster Blue. Red crossed the plate 4 times in the first inning and never looked back in their 13-5 victory over the Blue. Jeremy Walterscheid and Aaron Sicking each hit homers for Muenster Blue.

In the very next game, Muenster Blue averaged their loss in the previous game by defeating Saint Jo for the second time in the tournament. Blue scored the 5-run limit in each of the first two innings. The final score was Muenster Blue 15, Saint Jo 2.

Muenster Red and Gainesville were then set for a rematch. Having lost to Muenster Red 5-4 earlier in the tournament, Gainesville sought revenge. Aaron Klement smashed his second home run of the tournament to begin the first inning but that was basically all the offense Muenster Red would be able to generate off Gainesville pitcher Dustin Smith. Gainesville defeated Muenster Red 11-2. Ryan Molsbee, Zach Haverkamp, Chris Kniss and Steve Barnes all scored 2 runs for Gainesville.

In the championship game, Valley View broke loose for 23 runs on their way to routing Forestburg 23-3. The first four hitters in the lineup - Keith Alexander, Casey McKown, T.J. Carr and Robbie Newton - scored 4 runs each in the Valley View victory.

Combining sports, safety messages proves to be a winning pair

On Aug. 14 and 15, an exciting event will occur in Dallas, Texas. An expected 50,000 children and their parents will assemble in the Dallas Convention Center to participate in the sights and sounds of the Sport-Safety Fun-Fest 1992, a sports extravaganza with a focus on learning safety messages such as staying in school, safe driving skills, and the dangers of drugs and alcohol.

The event is being produced by the Texas Highway Patrol Association and will feature exhibit booths occupied by prominent sports card dealers and well-known public service organizations.

Kids of all ages will enjoy the variety of attractions being presented, including the rare Honus Wagner T-206 card being provided by the Wal-Mart Traveling Baseball Museum. In addition, there will be a "locker room" where former major league players and current Texas Rangers players will give motivational speeches as well as sign free autographs.

The goal of the event is to bring sports heroes, law enforcement officials, and local celebrities together to stress the importance of responsible behavior with a backdrop of fun and excitement. FunFest hours will be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. both days, with tickets available at all Rainbow Ticketmaster Outlets. 1-800-888-THPA

Hunter education courses continue on August 3-5

It's only a few short weeks before opening day of dove season, but hunters still have time to attend a mandatory hunter education course.

Jim Gehrig is conducting a course at Cooke County Electric Co-Op for Aug. 3, 4 and 5. Time for the classes each night will be 6 to 9:30 p.m. Call 759-4112 for more information or to sign up. Classes are limited to 30 people. Please note that the dates for classes are Monday, Aug. 3, Tuesday, Aug. 4, and Wednesday, Aug. 5.

Hunters born on or after Sept. 2, 1971, and 17 years old and older, must successfully complete a hunter education course; ages 12-16, must successfully complete the course or be accompanied - within normal voice distance - by a licensed hunter 17 years old or older; and under 12 years old, must be accompanied by a licensed hunter 17 years old or older. The program is reciprocal with all other states and Canadian provinces. The minimum 10-hour course, which must be scheduled over a minimum of two days focuses primarily on hunting safety, responsibility, ethics, game laws and a number of other topics. The course costs $5. Certification is not required to purchase a license, but the person must carry certification while hunting.

Sign up now for boater safety courses

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's boater education section is getting 15-20 phone calls a day, some who are responding to department public service announcements on television and others who have recently been issued citations for boating safety violations.

However, most of the callers are new boat owners who need to learn safety laws, including requirements for personal flotation devices, fire extinguishers, and other important regulations.

Many boaters are still unaware that, in addition to the benefit of increased safety for themselves and their passengers, boater education classes also may qualify them for a 10-percent insurance discount, depending on their insurance company.

The course takes 6-12 hours, depending on the instructor, with a minimum of 6 hours to meet state certification. All classes are held on evenings or weekends.

Boaters should call class instructors directly to make reservations for any of the statewide summer classes. For additional information, call the TPWD boater education hotline at 1-800-253-4536 or (512) 389-4372.

CCC team to play in state tournament in Waco

by Mike Pagel

For the fourth consecutive year, the CCC softball team has qualified for the state softball tournament, which begins Friday in Waco.

This year, CCC, which ordinarily competes in the Class D tournament, will be playing in a more competitive Class C tournament.

"Class D is our normal league," CCC team member Neil Hesse said. "The Class C league is for everyday ballplayers. You can always move up in classes but you can never move down."

Bob Hermes, another member of the CCC softball team, said there's a sizable disparity between the Class C and Class D teams in the field.

"The biggest difference between Class C and Class D is defense," Hermes said. "The Class C teams play pretty good defense."

The CCC team qualified for the state tournament by performing well in the various state qualifying tournaments that are held throughout the season.

Hesse said that many teams become eligible for the state tournament by playing a lot of games during the regular season.

"If you play in enough tournaments, you can qualify (for the state tournament)," Hesse said. "Some tournaments you'll be hitting well and others you won't."

The Class C state tournament, which could involve as many as 150 teams, features games during all hours of the day.

"It's not unusual for us to play a game at midnight, go back to the hotel for a couple of hours of sleep, then play another game at five in the morning," Hesse said.

The double elimination tournament begins Friday and runs through Sunday.

County Agent's Report

by Craig Rosenbaum

White grubs in crops and lawns
Every year in late July, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service releases an update on controlling white grubs, the most damaging pest on St. Augustine, zoysiagrass, fescue and bermudagrass. The homeowner or turf maintenance individual needs to check for small grubs beginning in late July and treat if damaging numbers are found.

The white grub is the larval form of an insect commonly known as the May or June beetle. Almost 100 species live in Texas and one of them feeds ravenously on grass roots. Severely damaged grass can be lifted easily by hand or rolled off the ground.

The larvae of this beetle also attack certain agricultural crops, including corn, sorghum and sugarcane. Crop and lawn damage occur during the late summer and fall and are most effectively controlled from mid-July to late August.

The May or June beetle requires one year to complete its life cycle in most sections of Texas (a 2-year cycle is suspected in a portion of the grub populations in North Texas). Once a year adult beetles emerge from the soil to mate. Mated females tunnel into the earth and lay eggs, which give rise to small larvae (first instar or stage). These, in turn, result in larger second and third instar larvae that feed ravenously on grass roots. The pupal or resting stage is the last immature phase of the insect's development cycle and occurs just before the adults emerge to initiate the cycle anew.

Adult beetles are about 1/2 to 5/8 inch long and light brown with a slight reddish tinge just behind the head. The flight period of the beetle lasts about 1 1/2 weeks and frequently seems to be triggered by rainfall. Other related species of June beetles are active fliers off and on throughout the warm months. During flight periods, large numbers of male adults congregate around street lights. Females are much less attracted to lights. Therefore, eggs are not necessarily deposited in soil near lights, and infestations of grubs are not always associated with lighted areas. Studies suggest that female beetles may aggregate at the time of egg laying, a condition which commonly results in localized or "clumped" lawn infestations. The egg laying period averages 30 days.

A female beetle is capable of laying 30 to 40 eggs which hatch in 3 to 4 weeks. Eggs are deposited in the soil at depths of 2 to 5 inches. Egg laying females tend to avoid moist soils.

The insect passes through three larval states (instars). Stages one and two require about 3 weeks; the third stage is in the soil the rest of the year, and during the late summer and fall causes most of the lawn damage by its root feeding. Feeding of larger numbers of grubs causes lawns to turn yellow and severely damaged grass can be lifted easily by hand from the ground or "rolled up" in the late fall or early winter because of its shortage of roots. White grubs having a 2-year life cycle will feed actively on roots during the second year.

Adult Flight Period and Geographic Area - June beetle flights occur at different times of the year, depending on the geographic location in the state. This is important, as it sets the stage for determining the CRITICAL TREATMENT PERIOD.

Lawns suspected of harboring grubs should be examined during the CRITICAL TREATMENT PERIOD, which is from late July until early August in our area. Check the lawns by taking several small plug samples or cores. The plugs should be at least 3 to 4 inches in diameter and 4 inches in depth. Examine a total area of at least 1 to 2 square feet. Take the plugs from all parts of the lawn, being careful to include areas of suspected grub damage. One square foot sample for each 1,000 square feet of lawn is the general rule. Tear the plugs apart and thoroughly examine them for grubs. TREATMENT USUALLY IS JUSTIFIED WHEN MORE THAN FOUR GRUBS PER SQUARE FOOT ARE FOUND.

Unnecessary insecticide applications often create more problems than they solve. These applications destroy organisms which help decompose thatch. The resulting accumulation of thatch may lead to other problems. It provides a haven for disease organisms and pest insects and leads to shallow root growth. Recent research shows several insecticides are both physically and chemically bonded to the organic matter in thatch. Insecticide applications also kill beneficial organisms which normally help control other pest insects, such as chinch bugs. Insecticide drift can cause damage to certain ornamentals.

Insecticides recommended for grub control are much less effective against eggs and large grubs than against small grubs. The residual effectiveness of these insecticides is greatly reduced 1 to 3 weeks following application. Thus, insecticides applied too early may not be effective in the soil after the eggs hatch. Insecticides applied after the critical treatment period often prove ineffective because grubs have become large and very difficult to kill.

Local garden centers have granular soil insecticides for grub control. Always read and follow label instructions before applying any pesticide.

FREDRICK'S OSTRICHES will be just one of the featured stories in The Muenster Enterprise's upcoming Special Agriculture Issue. Watch for it!

My Views from the Farm

by Ed Cler

While visiting our friends, Bill and Maxine Scully in Tucson, Ar. a couple of weeks ago, the question came up as to whatever became of the Medders who made such a big splash in Muenster back in the '60s. Well, there wasn't a great deal to say, other than they came, they made a bigger splash than anyone around here had ever seen before, and like most things that are not real, they just faded away.

Today in the mail, thanks to Maxine, I received a copy of Life Magazine, dated April 7, 1967, with the whole story entitled, "How Mr. and Mrs. Medders amazed Texas." The story is accompanied by quite a number of pictures of well known Texas big-wigs including some of our politicians of the time. Also there is a picture of a party in progress, in the Medders' barn or "coliseum," as they liked to call it. Recognizable are several prominent local folk, including Mr. Herbert Meurer and Bruno and Bertha Fleitman. Aileen and I attended a couple of the parties that were held in the "coliseum" and we enjoyed them to the point that we wished the Medders would have really had what it appeared they had.

All this, as one looks back on it, shows how people are so often fooled by appearance. It didn't take long before some of the merchants, some local and others from far and near, began to take notice of the money being spent by Mr. and Mrs. Medders, and some began to cater to their needs and wishes, and soon, credit was extended from many sides.

Mr. and Mrs. Medders, one must admit, showed a great deal of generosity, giving freely to a number of good causes, and some not so good, but then I guess it was easy.

Most people over 30 know the whole story, and how it all came to an end after a few years.

Quite a number of merchants, both local and otherwise, remember the sham well, some ruefully, some with a grin, most took it with a grain of salt, but some will tell you they have a better education than they had before the arrival of the Medders.

Severe tick problems in cattle require control

Ticks on cattle, particularly the last couple of years, have been so thick in calves' ears that they have caused ear "cupping," says Don Mock, Extension livestock entomologist at Kansas State University.

Samples taken from calves indicated the problem was probably caused by lone star ticks.

The Gulf Coast tick causes, "gotch ear," a permanently thickened, brokenlooking, droopy ear.

The spinose ear tick, also can cause ear problems. It attaches deep in the ear canal on cattle, horses, deer and sometimes dogs or people.

For any of the ear tick species, the treatment for ticks is the same.

Many of the "puffer dusting" squeeze bottles of insecticidal dust and pressurized ready-to-spray cans labeled for wound treatment contain Co-Ral or lindane. Most are also labeled for ear tick treatment. Before using, check out the label.

Any of the following treatments will clean out existing infestations and provide several weeks of protection against reinfestation:

Taktic—Mix 1/2 cup of Taktic (12.5 percent amitraz in 6 gallons of water.)

Within 6 hours of mixing, spray into and around ears with low pressure spray (don't use Taktic on horses).

Permethrin II—Mix 2 ounces of Permethrin II (10 percent permethrin) per 2 gallons of water. Apply in the same fashion as Taktic. Permethrin—Mix an ounce of Permethrin 25 percent WP (permethrin) per 2 gallons of water. Apply in the same fashion. If you suspect lone star ticks on your cattle, check the neck, brisket, belly, flanks, legs, shoulders and withers for ticks. Both lone star and American dog ticks have been abundant in wooded or brushy pastures. Both can infest the whole body of animals. To control body infestations, use whole body sprays of Taktic or Permethrin mixed in proportions stated above. You may also want to consider sprays using Co-Ral, malathion and several permethrin labels other than Permethrin. There are also pour-ons of 1 percent permethrin (DeLice, Expar and Hard Hitter). In all cases, apply according to label.

Beef symposium scheduled for Aug. 8 in Okla.

Cow-calf and stocker producers from Oklahoma and North Texas are invited to attend the Southern Plains Beef Symposium Saturday, Aug. 8, in Ardmore, Oklahoma. The program will include a trade show, programs on topics of interest to beef producers, a district meeting of the Oklahoma Cattlemen's Association, a steak dinner, and an evening of entertainment by nationally-known cowboy poet and humorist Baxter Black.

The one-day event will be held in Ardmore's Hardy Murphy Coliseum. The Oklahoma State University Cooperative Extension Service and the Ardmore-based Samuel Roberts Noble Foundation are jointly sponsoring the event.

An assortment of speakers, displays, programs and entertainment will focus on the symposium theme: Increased profitability through progressive management ... how you can attain it.

The symposium will begin at 9 a.m. with the trade show and registration. Discussions include Pro-Active Weed and Brush Control; The Role of Beef in the Human Diet; The 10-Year Future of Agriculture and Agribusiness; and "What's the Beef/Here's the Beef!"

An afternoon producer panel will discuss beef-related issues and answer questions from attendees. The steak dinner is scheduled for 6 p.m. followed by entertainment from Black.

The cost of the symposium, including the steak dinner, is $15 per person.

To register or obtain additional information, contact Leland McDaniel, Extension Agent, at (405) 223-6570, or the Noble Foundation's Agriculture Division, (405) 223-5810. Registration information must be received no later than Aug. 3.
