SPEAKING OF MYTHS

In his Yale University speech last summer, President Kennedy advised us not to swallow certain "myths."
 Among the "myths" referred to were the idea that the federal government is getting too big; that federal deficits create inflation; that the national debt is growing at a dangerously rapid rate.
 How much of this is myth and how much truth is open to argument.
 But we suggest there's another myth that needs to be debunked.

It is the myth that to say "the federal government" is another way of saying "the people." This myth would have it that when the federal government invades or defeats private enterprise, it is a triumph for the people — and that allowing private enterprise to develop job-making projects using the air, the sea, the land or the forests is a give-away of the people's property.
 The federal bureaucracy is vast enough, admittedly. But it is not yet "the people." The people are still, overwhelmingly, the millions of Americans who work, save and invest within the private economy — creating jobs and goods as free individuals and not as a government-directed mass.

UP AND UP AND MORE?

Although direct taxation continues to go up and up, it is not the complete picture of what the average citizen actually pays in income taxes. It would be truly shocking if it were possible to add up all the income tax on the labor in production and distribution of any product as it goes through our complex manufacturing and marketing process. The sales price of any commodity must include all costs, so the worker pays income tax on his earnings and again when he buys goods.

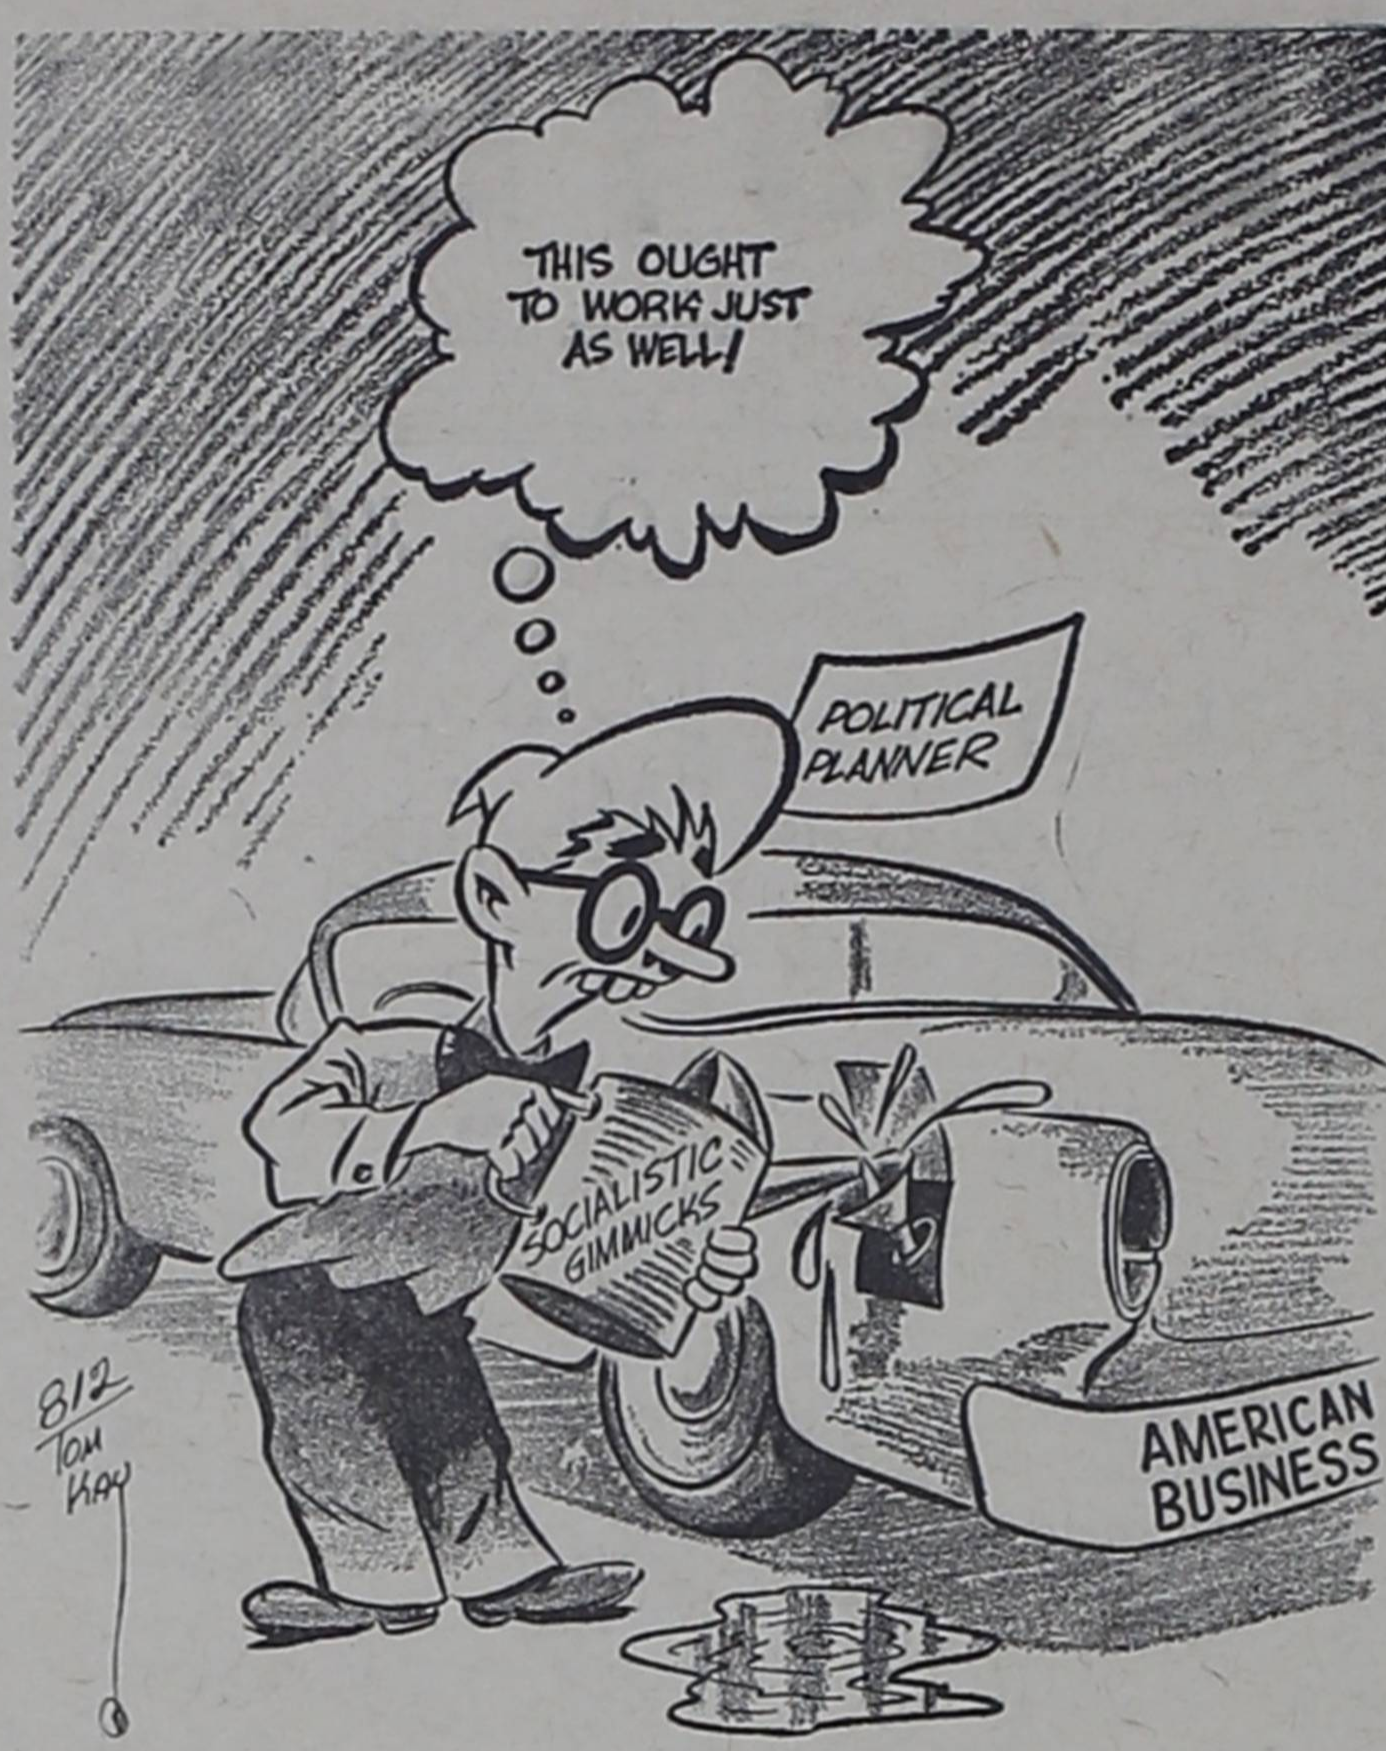

This system has placed a paralyzing burden on the taxpayers. No system of government or economy can survive the terrific rate and crushing weight of enforced taxation.

WHAT CAN WE SAY?

New York's Governor Rockefeller spoke for an increasing number of his fellow citizens when he told newsmen at a Washington press conference the other day that he was having difficulty in understanding why the Administration supports "freedom fighters" in South Vietnam and clamps down on the Cuban patriots.

He noted the "very sharp change of policy" respecting the Cuban exiles and that the American people have not been advised on Administration "objectives" or "plans." He said he hopes this was not "an endeavor to placate or to appease the Soviet," but found it "hard to see what other reason there could be."

In Miami, an all-night meeting of the Cuban Revolutionary Council refused to accept the resignation of its president, Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, tendered after his fruitless visit to Washington to protest the Government crackdown on raids by refugee action groups. The Council, which represents 14 exile groups, stated its "firm decision to continue to fight against the Soviet Castro regime without regard to circumstances" and called on the US to live up to OAS treaties and oust Castro and Communism from Cuba.

Earlier, in New York, Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, chairman of the Committee for the Monroe Doctrine, had charged President Kennedy with "underwriting continued Soviet control of Cuba with the armed might of the United States" through his order blocking all efforts of "exiled Cuban freedom fighters to liberate their nation from Communism."

"It is conceivable," said Rickenbacker, "that a president of the US might see fit to temporarily suspend the Monroe Doctrine for immediate strategic reasons. However, . . . to actively aid in the destruction of the Monroe Doctrine by utilizing his power to protect foreign troops in this hemisphere is inconceivable."

But Fidel Castro spent over an hour-and-a-half on the radio expressing his approval of US policy. In stopping the US-based refugee raids, he said, we had fulfilled one of "five points for peace" that he and Krush had agreed on. Among the four remaining to be fulfilled, he said, is abandonment of Guantanamo.

Coexistence with Castro is now US policy, say the Miami exiles. And what can we say?

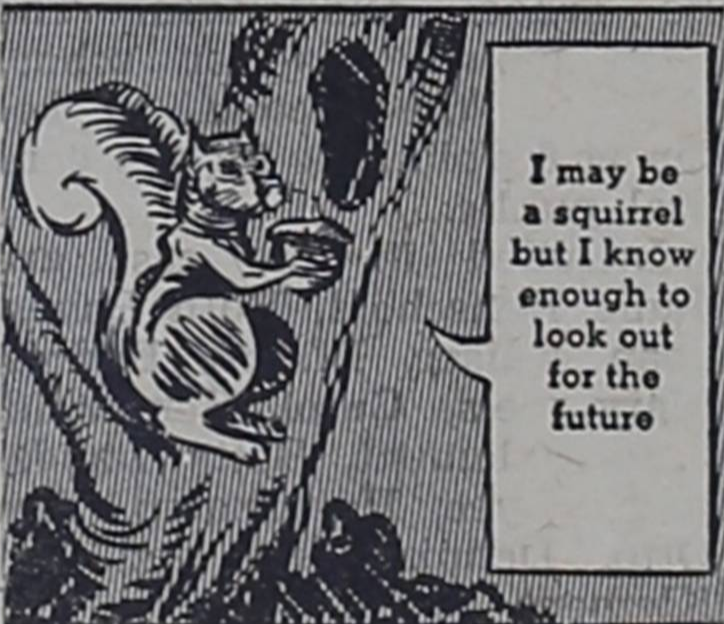

FOUNDATION OF PROSPERITY

On what foundation has America become the Number One World Power, and her citizenry enjoying prosperity and standards of living never before realized by any people since the dawn of creation?
 The sound, time-tested, free enterprise system is the answer. The financial solvency, the reward for initiative and ambition, the basic trait needed in ever living human being — thrift and hard work is the proven answer. This is what Conservatives advocate.

Doris Sicking and Cecil Hermes Wed At Nuptial Mass

Miss Doris Sicking, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sicking, Muenster, and Cecil Hermes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Hermes of Lindsay, exchanged wedding vows at 5 p.m. nuptial mass Saturday, April 20, in Sacred Heart Church. The groom's uncle, Father Leo Koesler of Subiaco, Ark., was celebrant and performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white Chantilly lace and tulle over satin designed with long petal point sleeves, fitted bodice and very bouffant skirt. Tiers of pleated tulle and ruffled lace accented the back of the skirt which was topped with a divided overskirt of lace. Her tiered veil was waist length held to a queen's crown and she carried pink roses atop a white prayer book, a gift from the groom.

Miss Lynette Sicking was her sister's maid of honor and Miss Rosemary Hermes, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. They wore identical ballerina length dresses of pink and blue, respectively, of sheer nylon jersey over organza with matching halo hats covered with circular veils. Their flowers were nosegays of blue and pink carnations, respectively.

Little Miss Linda Sicking, the bride's niece, was flower girl wearing a white outfit duplicating that of the other attendants except that it was floor length.

Groom's attendants were his twin brother, Cyril Hermes, best man, and the bride's brother, Alvin Sicking, groomsman. A young brother, Randy Hermes, was ring bearer. Mark Hermes, another brother of the groom, and Jerry Sicking, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

Mothers of the couple had pink carnation corsages, and the grandmothers, Mrs. Will Sicking and Mrs. Alfons Koesler Sr., had white carnation corsages.

Anthony Luke, organist, and the men's choir sang the mass and Mrs. Alfons Koesler Jr. was vocal soloist when the bride placed a bouquet of white gladioli on the Blessed Virgin's altar after the service.

Wedding reception and dinner were held in Muenster High School dining room with about 275 relatives and friends present. Misses Paulette Walterscheid and Judy Yosten registered guests. The wedding dance was in the VFW Hall.

When the newlyweds left on their honeymoon to Arkansas and Louisiana she was wearing a yellow outfit. They will be in Sherman, 713 Summit Ave., after April 25, to occupy their new home.

A half-hour's homework should be the nightly limit in any one subject for a high school student, says Robert J. Shockley, Towson, Md. elementary school principal who's writing a book on homework. School superintendents are worried about homework overload, Shockley says, and some don't believe in it all. But most parents, he notes, wouldn't agree to a "no homework" policy.

Postman Delivers Birdhouse Order

Six-year-old Mike Stockman of Oklahoma City, grandson of the R. M. Zippers of Muenster, thinks postmen are the most. People just don't come better than the mail man, in his estimation. And here's why, as told in the Daily Oklahoman, along with a big picture of Mike and his birdhouse.

It all started a couple of weeks ago when Mike and his brother Ronnie, 7, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stockman, were watching the Lassie show on TV and Lassie's young master received instructions for birdhouse building through the mail.

So Mike and Ronnie started drawing pictures of birdhouses and birds. And the drawing and a second grader's note to the mailman got in the mailbox.

The next day there was a birdhouse in the Stockman mailbox. Mrs. Stockman, puzzled about it, caught up with the postman the next time around.

"I just couldn't disappoint the little fellow", the unidentified postman replied. And the Stockmans — they think postmen are real marvel-makers.

The big trouble with success today is the government divides it with you.

Household Hints

When you line drawers or put paper on shelves, place four or five layers on each drawer or shelf. When the top layer is soiled, remove it and the next sheet will be clean and ready for use. A midget stapler is a handy tool in the kitchen. It can be used to reseal bags of potato chips, cookies, or cereal.

Replace that plain light-switch plate with one that is luminous. This will make it easier to find in the dark when people often suffer injury while fumbling for the switch.

A sheet of aluminum foil placed between the ironing-board pad and cover reflects heat and helps cut down ironing time.

Wipe off a parchment lamp shade with a cloth dampened in olive oil. It will clean the shade and restore the freshness.

If you get chewing gum stuck on your clothing, place the garment in a plastic bag and put it in the freezer for a few hours. When you take it out, the gum will rub off the fabric easily.

Good Results Can Be Obtained with Spray-on Starch

Successful results with convenient new spray-on starch depend on the right "twist of the wrist" according to Bernice Thurman, Home Demonstration Agent. If the aerosol can is handled incorrectly, the homemaker will waste starch and she probably will be disappointed in the finish. For best results with spray-on starch, always follow this five point procedure:

1. Shake the can before and during use. This assures the best utilization of the starch solution.
2. Be sure the arrow of the nozzle points to the red dot on the can.
3. Tilt the can only slightly while spraying. No aerosol starch should ever be tilted more than 45 degrees from its straight up position. If the can is tilted too far, the pure propellant will escape. Pressure is then reduced and the starch is left in the can with no way of getting out.
4. Hold nozzle six to twelve inches from fabric and press button firmly for a fine spray. A fine spray assures even starching.
5. After each use, remove spray button and wash under warm running water. Replace button so arrow points to red dot.

Leaflet Available On Good Grooming

Good grooming counts. The effect of a lovely garment often is spoiled by a lack of good grooming. On the other hand, a garment which in itself is not particularly distinctive may become attractive when worn by a well-groomed person.

Anyone can be well groomed. Developing habits of good grooming early in childhood helps establish habits which will boost morale and appearance throughout a lifetime. But, it's never too late to start.

An extension leaflet entitled, "Good Grooming — Here's How!" is written especially for young girls. Cleverly illustrated, it gives practical, easy-to-understand information on grooming from "head-to-toe."

Spring is a good time to start practicing better grooming habits, so get a copy of this special leaflet. Copies are available from the county home demonstration agent's office on the ground floor of the courthouse, telephone HO5-4931.

Reception Marks Golden Wedding Of Pete Mosmans

Fifty direct descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Mosman of Gainesville, other relatives and friends, joined them Sunday in the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary. Only three members of the family were missing.

The anniversary mass was held in St. Peter's Church at Lindsay where Miss Lizzie Krebs and Pete Mosman were married April 22, 1913. Father John Walbe read the mass and directed the renewal of vows. Miss Rosemary Hermes was organist and Mrs. Morris Hanson of Dallas, a daughter of the goldenweds, was vocalist. Sharon and Karen Mosman, twin granddaughters, of Ardmore were flower girls.

Honor attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Krebs of Lindsay. Wedding attendants 50 years ago were Leo Mosser now deceased and Mrs. Katie Mosser who was present for the celebration.

The honor couple's 11 children and their families attended the day's festivities.

Reception and dinner were held in Lindsay Parish Hall and the guests — over a hundred of them — stayed on for supper and a dance at night. The four-tier anniversary cake was decorated with gold flowers and bells.

Morris Hanson related highlights of the honoree's lives and a niece Sister Alberta of Muenster and her mother, Mrs. Albert Krebs, sang several songs.

Mr. and Mrs. Mosman are both natives of Iowa but were not acquainted until after they moved to Lindsay. The Mosman family settled there before the turn of the century; the Krebs family arrived in 1904. Pete Mosman and Lizzie Krebs were children when their parents settled at Lindsay.

After their marriage they farmed for 18 years, then moved to Gainesville to farm and retired from active work about five years ago. Since then they live in town.

Their children are Mrs. Frank Mages Jr., Mrs. Arnold Friske, Leo Mosman and Mrs. Thurman Springfield of Gainesville, Mrs. Don Anderson, Mrs. Morris Hanson, Raymond, Herbert and Frank Mosman of Dallas, Clarence Mosman of Shawnee, Okla. and Bobby Mosman of Ardmore.

There are 34 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Other guests included Delano Mages of Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mages III and children of Dallas, the Melvin Herts and family of Wichita Falls, Frankie Mosman of Dallas, the Lloyd Trubenbachs and daughters of Muenster, Stephen, Brad and Theresa Mosman of Shawnee, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Krebs of Colgate, Okla., and Bill Krebs of Nida, Okla.

his address with warm praise for the people of Muenster, saying that this community, more than any he knows of, has the endeavor, ambition, enthusiasm and capacity for doing things themselves and doing them well. Mentioned as examples of notable community achievement were the electric coop, the cheese factory and the hospital.

Mr. Purcell's talk presented a summary of rural electric progress in this country describing it as an attainment of democracy in action, in which rural people, following the nation's best traditions, made wonderful improvements in their standard of living by availing themselves of opportunities offered by the Rural Electrification Administration. Answering critics of the federal agency, he stated "I see nothing wrong or un-American in helping people to help themselves."

He described REA as a banking service which first offered its funds to help the existing power companies bring electric service to the farms. When power companies turned down the offer as impractical and unprofitable, farmers organized co-ops and did the job themselves.

As a result, he said, rural America, which was 10.9 per cent electrified before REA, is 98 per cent electrified today. In rural Texas the figures are 2.3 in '35 and 96.2 now. Other statistics on the state show more co-ops, more members and more miles of line than any other state.

Indicating the increasing use of electricity on the farm he said that the average consumption at the start of the program was 40 KWH, 350 in 1960 and is expected to be 700 by 1970.

He justified the much criticized 2 per cent interest rate by stating that rural co-ops cannot afford a higher rate because their investment is higher for each dollar of return. There is more mileage of line per consumer and also more hours of light load.

He also labeled as a misconception the claim that REA and private utilities are bitter enemies. Some companies use REA financing, he said, and many sell power to the coops. They work together to electrify the nation.

Manager Mike Sloan presented the principal figures of the 1962 statement and congratulated the membership on the co-op's extensive growth in its first 25 years. But this is no time to rest on laurels, he added. Electric co-ops have enemies, and must keep alert or lose some of the gains they have worked for so hard.

Winners of the attendance prizes are Tony Walterscheid, Tony Klement, Joe Knauf, Arthur Hess, Henry Hess, Emmet Sicking, Joe Loerwald, W. F. Lance, Troy Glass, Francis Atha, B. D. Franklin, Joe Fuhrmann, Martin Bayer, James Bayer, Joe Fisher, Edgar Mages, Herman Dangelmayr, Roy Hurley, Ed Cler, Ted Rauschuber, W. F. Davidson, Hugh Combs, F. E. Gregory, Thomas Vaughn, and Mmes. Anna Ruth Eberhart, J. F. Zimmerer, Joe Bengfort, Albert Stoffels and Al Trubenbach.

den plan and each member is expected to report the payment received by him as personal income. In that way co-op profits are taxed indirectly if not directly — except in cases where the farmer's total income including patronage dividend, is not high enough to be taxable.

That again is a provision which resulted from the fed-
