

Hornets Run Over Valley View 26-0 In Conference Tilt

Early this year the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies published statistics indicating that 1951 would probably bring both the county's millionth war death and the millionth traffic death.

More statistics just released by the Association reveal that the millionth American service man has lost his life. According to its estimate he fell early in September, probably on Labor Day. According to another estimate the millionth traffic death can be expected some time in December, assuming that American drivers will continue their normal average of traffic slaughter.

By an ironic coincidence the millionth death in Korea was recorded at the very time when our Labor Day week end toll of 461 deaths set an all time record in traffic tragedy. At that time, with fighting slowed down by the Kaesong negotiations, our war fatalities averaged about 66 a week. In June when Korean war deaths reached their peak the losses averaged 375 a week, which is considerably less than the 3-day traffic toll for the Labor Day week end.

An even more shocking comparison is that of all war and traffic deaths since the Korean war started on June 25, 1950. According to the Defense Department, combat deaths through August 31 numbered 13,707. According to the Association, traffic deaths during the same period numbered over 44,000.

All of us are deeply concerned about the fighting in Korea. We are shocked by the agony and death of war but we are so tragically unimpressed by a more shocking slaughter that goes on every day back here at home. We kill more than three times as many people accidentally as our enemies kill on purpose. We fret and complain when loved ones die for their country but we hardly give it a second thought when other loved ones die for no good reason whatever.

Just imagine, by the time 1952 arrives our 50 year traffic death list will be about equal to our 176 year combat death list. It's a terrifying fact that ought to shock us into more sensible driving habits.

In this connection it is well to observe that driving sensibly usually means no more than complying with regular traffic laws. Records of the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies reveal that 9 out of 10 accidents result from breaking some law. The four most common violations are speeding, driving and drinking, driving on the wrong side of the road, and failing to give right of way or observe stop signs.

We know of course that traffic deaths will continue at a terrible pace. But we can take some comfort from the thought that you or I can increase our odds of survival by observing the dictates of law and common sense. Drive so as to avoid causing an accident and the chances are ever so much better that you will keep out of accidents altogether.

Ever hear of the word "improbability?" Webster defines it as the absence of tried virtue, integrity or uprightness, and Igleheart selects it as the word best fitted to the moral and spiritual relapses which have been shocking the nation in recent years. It includes dope peddling, black marketing, cheating on exams, perjury, influence peddling, bribing, job selling, crooked athletics, indecency, and practically anything else that violates the old standards of proper behavior.

Not satisfied with his own opinions Igleheart quizzed heads of food chains in all the states and found they too have been aware of a general breakdown in moral standards. From their own experience they report an increase of stealing, bad checks, embezzlement, burglaries and holdups. Furthermore they seem to think that the trend, if not checked can lead to chaos, dictatorship, disaster and general disintegration such

At the expense of the game but undersized Valley View Eagles, the Muenster Hornets, Friday night, worked up their second conference victory and their third season victory for 1951.

The score was 26-0 in a game which was featured by the gallant second half performance of the green clad youngsters. Though falling short of a touchdown for themselves they slowed the formerly rampaging Hornets down to a snail's pace breaking through repeatedly to smear the Muenster plays for little or no gain.

The Hornets started with a bang, throwing their visitors for 9 yards loss in the first three downs and then starting their touchdown drive from their own 44. Eight plays netted 4 first downs and reached the 1. Richey went over but the play was called back and the Hornets penalized for offside and the next play was smeared for a 5 yard loss. Hellman's plunge for 10 then set the stage for Richey's 1 yard drive to pay dirt. Hellman's kick was good for the extra point.

The next score followed minutes later. After Stelzer's kick off the Eagles put the ball in play on the 25 and tried two passes. Hamric intercepted the second on the Eagle 30 and scampered to the 10 before he was stopped. Again the Eagle defense held for three downs before Noggler plowed through for 8 yards and the T. D. Hellman's kick for extra point failed.

Fisher Gets Second Visit by Burglars

For the second time in less than two weeks burglars broke into the Fisher Grocery Wednesday night of last week.

Their haul, according to the estimate of John and Joe Fisher amounted to $10 or $12 in cash and an electric fly sprayer. They took the cash from a safe which was left open because the new combination had not been installed to replace the one broken two weeks earlier. On that occasion the burglars were driven from the building empty handed by gas which they released tampering with the safe. They broke double locks on each the front and back doors in entering and leaving the building.

AIDING ARMS—The outstretched arms, or rotors, of this Marine helicopter beat the air in speeded tempo as the craft, pulling away from the earth, swings perilously low over the anxious, ducking heads of American troops somewhere in North Korea. An Army photographer caught this picture as the 'copter, headed for a rear area hospital, removed a wounded G. I. from the battlefield.

CDA Court Ships 700 Pounds Clothes

The Muenster court Catholic Daughters of America last weekend shipped 700 pounds of clothing to the needy, Mrs. Joe Swirczynski co-chairman of mission work has reported.

Two hundred pounds was sent to Dallas and 500 pounds was shipped to the NCWC in New York to be forwarded to the Holy Father's store room.

The organization continues soliciting new and used clothing and bedding and is now preparing a shipment for Indian Missions in North Dakota.

Hornets Will Meet Tough Foe Friday

There's no doubt in the minds of Coach Hood and his Muenster High Hornets that they will have one of the toughest games of the season Friday night when they take on the Valley View Warriors, of Wichita county, on their own field.

A fair estimate of that team's ability is indicated by the fact that it has lost only two lettermen from the 1950 squad which won the District 13-B championship, including a 15-12 decision over the Hornets.

Nevertheless Hood isn't conceding a thing and he's telling his boys that they have a good chance to win if they'll play an alert and aggressive game all the way through.

He recalls that the Hornets last year were ahead until the last quarter when the Warriors rallied and exploited a few breaks to put over two touchdowns and turn their apparent loss into victory.

ROOMMOTHERS SPONSOR '52 BIRTHDAY CALENDAR

The roommothers plan to have the calendars ready for distribution by December 15.

Families with no children in the parochial school may give their list of names and dates to Mmes. C. J. Kaiser or Arthur Endres or to the Sisters.

Mrs. Herman Swirczynski spent a few days this week at home with her family. She said her husband is continuing to improve and is permitted to sit up for short periods each day. She has been at his bedside in Oklahoma City since he was injured on August 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hoedebeck moved from the farm to town during the past weekend. They are at home in the former Arnold Hess home on North Main.

Texarkana Eagles Crush Tigers 34-0

The Tigers of Sacred Heart High, in their first game of the season last Sunday at Texarkana, started on fairly even terms with the Sacred Heart High Eagles of Texarkana, but they eventually gave way under the incessant Eagle drive and lost by a score of 34-0.

The first quarter and most of the second were mostly deadlocked as both teams were held for short ineffective gains. It was about 5 minutes before the end of the half when the Eagles cracked the Tiger defense and drove all the way to their first T. D. The next came a minute or two later after the Tigers fumbled the kickoff and the Eagles recovered near the 20. Three power plays through the line covered the distance for the second score.

The Eagles had things mostly their way through the second half after the weakening Tiger defense was further weakened by injuries. Ronnie Herr went out early in the second half for the balance of the game and David Endres, Albert Knabe and Willard Hartman were out for part of the action. The Eagles cashed in on that advantage, plugging away for constant gains that netted three more touchdowns.

Scouts Plan Plane Trip to Love Field

Highlighting the program of coming events for the local boy scout troop is an air plane trip to Dallas where the boys will spend a day and night at Love Field. The educational tour will provide a general knowledge of airplanes, their repairs, and the workings of an airport.

The troop will divide into two groups for the trip. Patrols No. 2 and 3 will leave Gainesville by Central Air Lines on Oct. 12 at 9:30 a. m. and will arrive at Love Field at 10. They will return by plane on the 13th.

Patrol No. 1 and the senior group will have their trip on Oct. 19 and 20.

Scoutmaster Nick Miller, Assistant Andy Hofbauer, Ben Seyler and M. D. Kaderli will accompany the boys.

Plans for the event were worked out at the scout's regular meeting Monday night for which their parents were present.

During the meeting Rodney Walter and Paul Hesse passed a board of review and advanced into First Class Scouting.

After the meeting Scout dads were hosts for a watermelon feast. It was the pay-off for losing a softball game to their sons.

City Quits Trying To Save No. 2 Well; Will Drill Another

The city's No. 2 water well, which has been a headache to the city council since the day it was drilled, is due to be replaced with a new well before next summer. Members of the council in regular session Monday decided to quit spending money in a futile attempt to get the well in good condition.

Their intention is to drill another well nearby using as much casing as can be salvaged from the old well. The pump too will be moved to the new well.

The work will be done during the winter while the water demand is at its lowest. If at any time during the period the demand exceeds the No. 1 well's output the city will get additional water from the FMA well.

Production at the No. 2 well at this time averages about 25 gallons per minute, which falls far short of the city's need during the summer. It was originally intended as a 200 gallon well but never has produced more than half that amount. Besides it has been a constant source of trouble and has caused several water emergencies.

It is sponsored by the City-County Health Department under supervision of the Crippled Children's Division of the State Health Department and the Cooke County Medical Society.

Persons desiring more information about the clinic can see Mrs. Frost at the City-County Health Department.

Reserve Hornets Defeat Callisburg

Reserves of the Muenster Hornet squad won their first game of the season Tuesday night on the local field, outscoring Callisburg High 13-6 in an evenly matched tussle that might have been anybody's game until the closing minutes.

A hard drive in the final period decided the contest in favor of the local Peewees only a few minutes after the visitors had tied the count at 6 each. John David Meurer carried the ball over and another try at the line produced the extra point.

Late in the first quarter Henry Weinzapfel broke through the line into the open and scampered 40 yards for the first T. D. Callisburg recovered on a pass late in the third quarter.

The outstanding feature of the game was the perfect pass scoring of the Callisburg right end, a lanky lad wearing jersey No. 42. He nabbed every heave that came his way, and the only pass plays broken up were those in which the Hornets swarmed through and rushed the passer before he got rid of the ball. His receiving accounted for the greater part of Callisburg's total yardage. Almost all Muenster gains were made on ground plays.

Mrs. Al Horn and Mrs. Ray Wilde and children spent Tuesday in Dallas with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Schmitz.

IMMORALITY HAS A SOURCE

By Sen. Harry S. Byrd

No one will deny that we are in a national crisis, perhaps of magnitude and duration such as we have never before experienced. General Eisenhower estimated the present emergency may go on for 20 to 30 years. We are faced, therefore, with the necessity for unprecedented long range defense expenditures.

In one breath the President seemed to realize this, when, on January 15, he told Congress that "the government must practice rigid economy in its no-defense activities." Yet a week later he submitted his budget increasing domestic-civilian spending to its highest level. Surprising as it may seem in view of the international situation, Congress was asked to approve adoption of vast subsidy schemes for federalizing health, farming, food, housing, etc.

Shortcutting the Constitution

Our great freedom heritage is the Constitution of the United States. And we have every reason to consider the American system of free enterprise as the world's greatest deterrent to world conflict. Our productive system is a more dependable guardian of peace than the United Nations ever will be. It is the only force in the world that Russia recognizes and fears. It is a creature of democracy. Neither democracy nor our free enterprise system can survive in insolvency.

In recent years there have been give-away programs on top of give-away programs, by which the government has been taking money from people, giving them back less than it took, and in the process making them think they are getting something for nothing. Through these programs we have gradually centralized power in a gigantic sprawling bureaucracy which is just too big to audit. This centralization of power in Washington is still increasing. The President is constantly asking for more and more power to be taken from the states, from the localities and from the source of all power—the people.

Immorality's Breeding Grounds

Actually it is difficult to determine whether these continual attacks on our constitutional institutions and fiscal responsibility have bred immorality in high places or whether the immorality in high places has brought about the attacks upon our institutions. But in any event, the moral situation in Washington has grown so bad that James A. Farley, one of the most honorable of men, recently summed it up by saying: "We are told that if the act of a public official is not illegal, it is necessarily proper and always excusable."

It is unnecessary to go through all the revelations of the RFC investigations; the five-percenters investigation; the situation in which the army officer said he was "Just one who got caught," the patronage peddling in Mississippi; the revelations of the Crime Committee and the tie-ups between government activities and the underworld, etc.

A code of political ethics has been proposed. But if the time has come in America when we must pass a law and appoint a commission to establish a code of ethics to tell public servants they should be honest, to tell public servants they should be loyal to their government, to tell public servants they should not barter public trust for greedy personal profit—if the time has come when Congress has to set up a commission to rewrite the ten commandments with special applications to political opportunities, then the basic virtues of our form of government have been crucified. In the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, there is an old saying: "You can't measure a snake until it's dead."

"Fire My Son" Says Mother to Truman

The following letter was written by a Sioux City, Iowa, mother to President Truman, was reproduced recently in Fulton Lewis Jr.'s column.

"Dear Mr. President: "Since you believe in firing those who do not see eye to eye with you in the way to settle the Korean situation, please fire my son, Marine Pfc. W. I. Jensen, 667061, F.P.O. San Francisco, Calif. He is one of your so-called marine 'policemen'. He doesn't see any sense of going to Korea, maybe to die if the source of supply for the Commies is left intact. Out here in these parts we don't kill rattlesnakes by stepping on their tails. Maybe you think my loss and grief will be less if he dies in your 'contained' war than if he dies fighting an all-out war on the Commies.

"Please recall Walter at once as he doesn't believe in your and Dean Acheson's method of fighting Commies. Incidentally, my son was a marine reservist in his second year of pre-law school when you called him up in October, with no delay for him to finish the semester, no tests to gain deferment. He just went in when he was called.

"If my only child dies, don't try to ease your conscience and send me any medals. Since you are an old artillery officer you know what you can do with them. And get Dean Acheson to help you.

"I send this with full knowledge that you are commander in chief but also a vindictive man. But go ahead and dish it out. My son is a marine and can take anything a former army artillery officer can dish out. I just read a magazine article about what a good hater you are. I am a good hater, too. I wouldn't vote for you again for an $8,000 pastel blue mink coat.

"Yours, until next election. "P. S., Margaret sings here Saturday night, April 21. I thought sacrifice, like charity, begins at home. Why isn't she in Korea singing for the G. I.'s?

"Don't write me any nasty letters as I get riled up about my only kid, too, as well as all the other poor guys in Korea."

National Budget Up 1500 Per Cent

The present-day Federal budget provides enough money to run the government for nearly a generation on the 1932 scale, according to Rep. Fred E. Busbey of Illinois.

President Hoover's last budget message proposed expenditures of $4,000,000,000, Mr. Busbey recalled. President Truman's 1952 budget calls for spending more than $68,000,000,000. Commenting on Mr. Truman's "challenge" to Congress to cut the budget if it could, Mr. Busbey said:

"The Administration's new commandment is: 'Thou shalt not touch my budget.'"

It does not matter what you have to offer the world—a new invention, a new book, your personal services, or just yourself as a friend—the demand for a better "product" always exceeds the supply, and if yours is better, the word will get around.—Harold S. Kahm.

In Defence Of The Atheist

by Alvin Illig.

EVERY ATHEIST builds his own sorry little god, and bears out the words of Voltaire: "There must be a God; if there were no God men would have to invent one."

The toy god the atheist invents, however, is a god of cheap proportions, a god of mediocrity and pessimism and hopelessness and noise and hatred. His god can only condemn and tear down; he is not big enough to build.

It is in this god, homemade to his own standards, a god who is no other than himself, that the atheist is forced to place all his hope and belief. What sad disappointments the atheist must suffer.

NEVER THINK that the atheist loves his atheism. He is sick to heart when he turns his thoughts inward. He dares not dwell on his way of life and the future into which he travels. For what he sees he hates with a hatred that one who has faith in God cannot know, a hatred tinged with despair.

To make the heart of the atheist still sicker there is the knowledge that he has been made for sublime and noble things, while his atheistic eyes allow him to look no higher than the coarse materialism about him. He knows that the powers deep in his being for goodness and purity and selflessness and love of Someone greater than self can find their expression, and he looks about to see if there are men who show forth these great powers. If he can find signs of a Divine Life in the lives of his fellowmen, he will find reason for hoping that he too may some day rise above his bleak atheism.

IT IS TRUE that there are moments when the atheist loves his puny power to defy almighty God and the notoriety that is his in holding a cocksure position that startles so many. But it is a notoriety gained at a great price.

For these moments are followed by seasons of deep depression when bitterness and futility smother him and he cannot escape from himself and the world his little god rules. So he runs to the barbiturates of comrades and arguments and violence to kill his very thoughts.

Pride will keep him in this unhappy state till some personal catastrophe hurls him into the face of facts and he sees that the world and life are senseless with his tiny god. False reasoning and still faultier education can hold him in his deception. Or youth may desire the wild license that is the atheist's.

BUT BY FAR the strongest link that binds the atheist to his sad position is the mediocre life of so many Christians. The atheist is constantly looking for inspiration and hope and signs of a Divine Life, and if you as a follower of Christ do not give him these things you may be preparing a soul for hell.

Thomas Merton, one-time dabbler in skepticism and atheism who found God in the person of Jesus Christ and eventually became a Trappist monk wrote: "Do not be too quick to condemn the man who no longer believes in God: for it is perhaps your own coldness and avarice and mediocrity and materialism and sensuality and selfishness that have killed his faith."

Why The Catholic Church Says "INVESTIGATE!"

Probably not more than a handful of people hate the Catholic Church as it really is.

But many have heard anti-Catholic calumnies from sources they have been taught to respect, and have come to fear and suspect the Church as it has been falsely represented to them.

It is hardly reasonable to believe that 25 millions of Americans would remain in the Catholic Church if the rumors circulated against the Church are true. Nor would thousands of others become Catholics every year if they believed such things—without inquiring into the facts.

That is why the Catholic Church says again and again to people everywhere: "Investigate! Investigate!"

The Church makes this appeal not merely to settle an argument, nor primarily to win the good-will of the non-Catholic people, although this is a hoped-for result.

Its more important aim is to invite people to inquire into Christ's truth as taught and preserved by the Catholic Church down through the centuries. For no man, seeking the salvation of his own soul, can conscientiously discount the Catholic claim to be Christ's Church on the basis of mere rumor and slander when the truth is so readily at hand.

The Catholic Church therefore invites you to inquire into its teaching and practice... to find out for yourself if what you believe about the Church is true or false

Learn for yourself, for instance, if it is true that Catholics give divine worship to Mary, the Mother of Christ... or if this is not just another calumny. If you have been led to believe that Catholics worship idols and statues... buy and sell the divine worship of the Mass

...are opposed to the religious freedom granted all religions by our Bill of Rights, then you have been deceived and misled.

If you have harbored these or any other false beliefs about the Catholic Church and its teachings

...and if, above all, such misunderstanding has kept you from examining the Catholic claim to be the Church established by Christ Himself... you owe it to yourself in good conscience to seek the truth.

We shall be glad to send you free on request, a booklet dealing with the points mentioned here and many others... including the attitude of the Church toward Birth Control... secret societies... the salvation of non-Catholics... why Catholic priests are called "Father"... the Inquisition and the alleged goings-on behind convent walls

Two of the company's employes, above, unload .303 caliber shells into a final processing hopper.

Biennial White Sweet Clover. The clover got an early start and grew fast.

Mr. Fleitman baled 1800 bales of clover hay from this 40 acre field this summer. The average weight of the bales was 65 pounds which means he got 1 1/2 tons per acre. The hay sold at $25 per ton giving him a return of $37.50 per acre from his first year clover. Income from this crop is just beginning. It can easily furnish another hay crop and a seed crop next year. In addition to these immediate benefits the clover roots will open up the soil and add organic matter and nitrogen so that the following crop on this field will be greatly benefitted and so produce better.

Here's a soil improving cover crop, used in conjunction with other conservation practices, that has made the landowner $37.50 per acre in its first year and made it in a year when wheat failed and most of the oat crop was baled for hay. Don't you agree that conservation farming pays?

Soil Conservation
Notes

Conservation pays. It pays in protection of precious topsoil to insure welfare of present and future generations. It pays in increased underground water storage and less runoff to cause flood damage. It pays in stopping siltation of streams and reservoirs and what is probably of more immediate concern to the individual, it puts extra cash in the pocket of those who practice it.

There is widespread agreement that this has been a rough year on farmers in the Muenster area. The dry weather of the past winter eliminated the need for a wheat harvest and the prolonged heat wave of the summer cut most crops to a dangerous low level. These adverse conditions make farms where conservation practices have been applied stand out like the proverbial sore thumb. Their fields invariably stay green longer because their soils have greater water intake and storage capacity, and on improved soils plant roots, un-obstructed by plow pans, can penetrate to greater depths in their search for food and water.

There is a 40 acre field on the Bruno Fleitman farm near Muenster that is just one of the many that show conservation farming isn't just something we have to put up with, but is something that pays its own way in increased income.

The field is on sloping land, but is terraced so that the water moves off slowly, leaving all topsoil behind and having maximum time to soak into the soil. For several years all crop residues have been left on or near the soil surface to protect it against beatings by falling rain and so increase its water intake. As a further step for soil improving and protection the field was seeded to soil improving

Not Just a Joke!

In 1940 they said, We were broke, so we lived on hamburger for a week.

In 1951 they say, We lived on hamburger for a week, so we're broke.

Not much of a joke nowadays, is it? . . . considering what it costs to buy hamburger.

But hamburger is only one of the many items that have gone up. So has lead, wire, telephones, poles and every thing else we use in the telephone business.

You can't buy today's hamburger for 1940 prices. And you can't run a business at 1951 costs unless you get a fair price for your product or service.

Pink on Pork May Mean Trichinosis

As the weather turns cooler our thoughts turn to pork roast dinners, or perhaps to waffles and sausage suppers. Pork is a palatable food, rich in protein, fat and vitamins. Properly prepared, it is a wise choice of food. Properly cooked pork is gray throughout. Under-cooked pork is pink in color and should not be eaten because it is a common source of the disease trichinosis, says Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health officer.

"You are perfectly safe from this disease as long as you eat of hogs that did not have trichinosis when butchered. But, the danger is real as long as you buy pork and pork products without finding out where they came from. It is equally real as long as you are not careful about what your own hogs eat. Most hog trichinosis comes from hogs eating uncooked garbage.

"This disease is caused by a tiny parasitic, round worm called trichina. It has a particular fondness for the animals muscular tissue, and while still in the larval stage, becomes embedded there. It is usually in this stage when the animal is killed. People eating the meat without taking proper precautions swallow these larvae. From the mouth they go to the stomach. Then the larvae bore into the walls of the intestines. Here they grow rapidly and migrate into the blood stream, causing fever, intense pain in the muscles, swelling and a high white bloodcell count.

"There is no absolute cure for trichinosis. The most important preventive measure is to eat only pork that is well cooked."

What to Do When a Rattler Bites You

Texas Game and Fish Commission releases a yarn about a gentleman who was bitten on the hand by a rattler. He gripped his wrist tightly, with special pressure on the arteries to slow the blood and walked slowly to his house to keep from speeding the blood stream.

His wife fixed a tourniquet, drove her husband to a hospital and after one tough night he recovered rapidly and was okay in a few days. Something to remember!

McCORMICK Spreaders Place Manure Accurately

Does your soil have "dry pockets"—spots where crop-producing manure has not been placed?

You can correct this with the accurate, even spreading of a McCormick Manure Spreader. This is especially true with the No. 200-F Tractor Spreader, since it carries all the fluid manure onto the fields with no waste of the valuable liquid portion.

Yes, all five models in the McCormick Spreader line give you full value from your manure, because of their fine shredding and even flow of material to the beater. Sizes from 40 to 75 bu. capacity. Ask for details on the model that fits your farm.

No. 200-F Tractor Spreader, built for rugged use, also has larger capacity and is easier to load.

lateral from Davis and dashed down the right sideline apparently loose for a score, but Damian Hellman overtook him and spilled him on the Muenster 32 for a 35 yard gain. Four more plays netted another first down on the 22 but the next four attempts lost 9 and the Eagles lost on downs on the 31. After three incomplete passes and a 5 yard penalty the Hornets kicked then held the Eagles in midfield and blocked an attempted kick to take over on the Eagle 39. From there Hamric, Noggler, Hellman took turns at steady gains, Hamric crossing the goal line on the sixth play. Hellman's kick failed and the score at half time was 19-0.

The third quarter was a stalemate with neither team making a first down. As the final period opened the Hornets opened another drive from their 45 to the Eagle 20. Stopped cold at that point for three downs the Hornets cashed in on their fourth attempt on a touchdown pass from Hamric to Hellman. Hellman's kick added the extra point.

As the closing minutes ticked away the Eagles made their strongest drive of the game starting by recovering a Hornet fumble on the Hornet 38. Sparked by the gains of Turner and Calhoun they advanced to the Hornet 6 when the game ended.

as happened to ancient Rome. Most interesting of all was their opinion of the causes of the improbity. There were several, including poor leadership, the philosophy of something for nothing, bad example of unscrupulous politicians, delinquent parents, and weakening of religious training in homes and schools.

While it is apparent that all those factors can be listed as causes, it is equally apparent that the last mentioned can be listed as the cause of all the other causes. We'd have ever so much less of the other evils if more people's behavior were determined by standards of right and wrong as pointed out in religious teaching.

We need to get back to actual application of the fundamental fact that we have a duty to Almighty God to do some things because they are right and avoid doing other things because they are wrong. In other words we've got to bring conscience back into every day living and discard the idea that anything is all right as long as we can get away with it.

The only way such a change in attitude can be brought about is through religion. People have to believe in God and feel personally responsible to Him before they are willing to abide by His standards.

So the first and most important step in tackling our problem of national improbity is to restore religion to its proper place in our national life. Only a deep sense of personal duty, which derives from religion, can pull the country out of this mess. Laws will never do it.
