Those of us who have been wondering about the size of the package in which an atomic blast is delivered have our answer at last. Reports of last Monday's first atomic artillery test inform us that the projectile was about 11 inches in diameter, less than three feet long and weighed about 1,000 pounds. And its power was equal to that of approximately 15,000 tons of TNT. Imagine that! The comparatively small shell which was hurled 7 miles from the muzzle of a cannon had the destructive power of a good sized ship load of one of the most destructive non-atomic explosives known to mankind. It delivered three fourths as much impact as the bomb which practically wiped out the city of Hiroshima.

Ever since that first blast, which knocked the nation of Japan into submission, we have regarded the atomic bomb with awe, but also with a certain degree of vagueness. We did not realize how easily it can be delivered to its target... how effectively it can be carried through an enemy's defenses. But we know now that it can be hauled by the fastest fighter with only a faint chance of being intercepted. In the event of all out war that could mean several dozen supersonic planes each delivering a blow sufficient to knock out an entire city or military installation. An entire nation could be practically defeated in a few hours.

Does Russia have such power? The mere thought of it is terrifying. Considering the communist regard for human life we have little reason to hope the reds would hold it back when they decide to launch their decisive push for world domination. Will our country ever be forced to use it? Naturally we hope that it will not. Such utter annihilation is more than we would wish even for our enemies.

Nevertheless, as things stand now, we can derive some comfort from the fact that we apparently hold the upper hand in atomic weapons. Were it not for that the Kremlin might have started its threatened global conflict long ago.

Or is that global conflict actually under way now? How about present fighting in Korea and Indochina? How about conquests already completed in China and Eastern Europe? How about turmoil in Iran, Egypt and South Africa? How about subversive activity in most other countries of the world? Are we approaching the time when we can justifiably use the bomb to put an end to world enslavement?

Of one thing we are certain. If our country's survival were at stake, if we knew that the struggle would decide whether communism or civilization will prevail in the world, we would not hesitate for a moment to use the A-bomb. Russia knows that as well as we do.

Isn't it about time, however, that we regarded this limited red warfare for what it actually is? Everybody knows that the turmoil of varying degrees scattered all over the world is only the preliminary in the grand plan of world conquest. Why shouldn't it be stopped now as well as later?

In a few weeks President Eisenhower will meet with the leaders of Britain and France to strengthen the Western World's united front against the red menace. We sincerely hope that, in spite of the sorry English and French pussy footing policy of the past, the meeting will result in a firm ultimatum to the reds... that continued aggression on their part will result in the strongest retaliatory measures on our part.

It seems altogether reasonable, for instance, to warn them that their military installations in Korea, Manchuria and South Asia are subject to atomic attack if they do not agree to an honorable peace. Reds respect only force. Well, why not let them understand that we are ready to use force in the interest of humanity?

In the last analysis there is only one principle by which we should be guided. Make sure first

C. M. Walterscheid Dies of Cerebral Hemorrhage May 22

Conrad M. Walterscheid, 53, lifelong resident of Muenster, died of a cerebral hemorrhage at 2 a.m. Friday, May 22, in a Gainesville hospital. He had been in declining health for the past three years but had been seriously ill less than a week.

Rev. Louis Deuster officiated at the funeral services Saturday morning at 9 o'clock in Sacred Heart church as celebrant of the requiem high mass and at the burial in Sacred Heart cemetery. Nick Miller was in charge of funeral arrangements.

Bearers were six brothers-in-law: Joe and Oscar Walter, Andrew and Lawrence Wimmer, H. N. Fuhrmann and Meinrad Hesse.

Three rosary services were held at the Miller Funeral Home Friday, at 4, 8 and 9 p.m.

Conrad Walterscheid was born August 24, 1899, the oldest of the 12 children of Mr. and Mrs. William Walterscheid. He attended school here, helped his father on the farm and later in the cotton ginning business, farmed for himself, and operated a machine shop and filling station in partnership with his uncle, C. W. Walterscheid for 10 years, 1921 to 1931. After that he returned to farming and later with his sons, entered the concrete contracting business. His last job before retiring from active work due to ill health was at the new public school.

He was a member of the parish St. Joseph's Society, the Knights

Father Louis congratulated the students on the completion of their elementary course, and appealed to adults to work in harmony and cooperation toward meeting the community's fast growing need for additional school facilities.

The high school choir sang a four-voice Ave Maria composed by Andrew Brady. The choir also sang the Benediction hymns.

Service Unbroken as Pump Shaft Breaks

After more than a two day stop because of a broken pump shaft, the Muenster Water Department was back in normal operation Wednesday morning.

The shaft of the No. 2 well, in North Muenster, broke about 200 feet below the ground Sunday night and workmen spent Monday and Tuesday making the repairs. Power was turned on about 9 Wednesday.

In the meantime the city got along normally on its reserve supply and the output of the No. 1 well. During the day levels in the reservoir and water tower fell considerably but night pumping brought the water almost back to the previous level. The one well did not quite keep up with the demand. Fortunately the city did not have a fire which would have required a heavy drain on the reserve.

By coincidence the breakdown came a day after several city officials went to the International Petroleum Exposition at Tulsa to see a different type of pumping unit. It is a motor with pump at the bottom of the well, eliminating the shaft and bearings which cause most of the trouble in the local water system.

Tigers Win State Co-Champ Title in Academic League

The Tigers of Sacred Heart High ended their 1953 baseball season in story-book fashion last Friday by tripping the district champs, Boys Ranch, for the title of State Co-Champ of the Southwest Academic League.

The game itself was another story-book affair. Willie Walterscheid, pitching for the Tigers, allowed the Ranchers only one hit during the entire game, but went haywire for a while in the fourth and walked four batters in a row to account for the Ranchers' only run. Meanwhile the Tigers got several hits and came in with four well earned runs.

Victory in that game gave the Sacred Heart boys their second trophy of the season. They have received the trophy for runner-up of the district and are due to receive the state co-champ trophy later in the summer.

The district title was awarded on the season's record, in which the Ranchers nosed out the Tigers by a half game.

Both teams were invited to Austin for a play-off tournament to determine the state championship. When the tourney was rained out coaches decided that the leading contenders, Sacred Heart and Boys' Ranch in North Texas and St. Anthony's and St. Edwards in South Texas play for co-champ titles in their respective areas. The Tigers and Ranchers played that game in Fort Worth last Friday.

The Tigers season record in the Academic League is 6 wins and 3 losses. They beat Boys' Ranch 3 games, Greenhill 2 and Laneri 1. They lost 2 to Laneri and 1 to Boys' Ranch.

Mrs. J. M. Weinzapfel Breaks Hip in Fall

Since then she has been at St. Joseph's Hospital, Houston. After about a week she will go to the home of Mr. Weinzapfel's sister, Mrs. Margaret Rasch, for some time before returning home.

The Weinzapfels, accompanied by their daughter, Mary, Mrs. Tony Gremminger and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Hellman, were spending the weekend in Houston prior to a banker's convention on Monday. They visited with the families of David Otto, Gene Lehnertz and Mrs. Rasch.

Tuesday morning the group was in San Antonio to attend the ordination of Joe Weinzapfel Jr., as sub-deacon. Joe Jr. accompanied them to Muenster Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. Beech Urges Integrity, Initiative At MHS Graduation

Rev. Johnstone Beech, national chaplain of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and former rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Gainesville, appealed for integrity and initiative in his commencement address at the graduation of 23 Muenster High School seniors last Thursday night in the school auditorium.

He warned the group that modern civilization is slipping and its greatest need today is a revival of character bringing human affairs back to closer harmony with the precepts of Almighty God.

Father Beech also advised the graduates not to take stock in currently popular ideas of security. The most insecure thing our nation can do, he warned, is to relax under the delusion that we have attained security. In such an atmosphere progress stops and civilization becomes stagnant. The best way to assure

Rev. Louis Advises SH Graduates on Key to Happiness

Father Louis Deuster, addressing graduates of Sacred Heart High School in commencement ceremonies Sunday night, urged them to apply the principles they have learned in living a happy useful life for the honor and glory of God and the salvation of their immortal souls.

He told them that the graduation service is appropriately called a commencement because it marks the beginning of their adult lives, which, he cautioned, can be led away from God rather than toward Him unless it is guided by proper influences. He recommended good companionship and good reading matter as the best guides to success, because they help to keep the mind on the right track.

Father Louis also presented the graduates' diplomas.

The graduation service opened with a procession by graduates and pages into church as the school choir sang "Praise Ye the Father" and ended with a recessional after rosary and benediction, which followed the presentation of diplomas.

At the 8 o'clock mass Sunday the graduates received communion in a group and heard a baccalaureate address by Father Cletus Post.

Members of the class are Anselma Felderhoff, Dolores Haverkamp, Clara Mae Sicking, Gladys Hoffman, Donald Bayer, Daniel Haverkamp, Fred Hennigan Jr., Jerry Hoenig, Joseph Felderhoff, Larry Hofbauer, Clyde Muller and David Endres.

Their pages, in the order named were: Helen Jennings, Clarice Schumacher, Gloria Gieb, LaVerna Otto, Joe David Bayer, Johnnie Walterscheid, Pat Hennigan Jr., Danny Hoenig, Joey Danglmayr, Dale Hofbauer, Walter Lutkenhaus and Leon Endres.

Memorial Day Stirs Nation To Gratitude

"Time heals all." Passing years mend broken hearts. Even the deepest injuries to the soul lose their sting under the benign influence of Time. But not all the sting is taken away. We never wholly forget.

Thank God for the gift of memory. Without it life would be poor. Deathless, beautiful memories of departed loved ones who brought us joy fill our mind on Memorial Day, 1953.

This day we stand, at least in spirit, beside the graves of our loved ones. Regret tinges our heart, for death recalls the poverty of our love, our lack of kindness, our ingratitude to them while they lived. Now death—and we realize the lack of reverence we showed to one who was perhaps the dearest thing God ever gave us.

If there were no way to break the barriers of death, then what hope would be ours to correct the past neglect? We are left forever to shed tears in vain before eyes that cannot see. There is no stirring in a heart whose ear is deaf, and kind words must die on the very air they cleave.

But God's love tempers our injustice and opens a way to convert undone acts of kindness into help for eternal life. For we know with certainty our loved ones live. Their life was not taken away; it was only changed. They live now eternally, and our unspoken words of love are transformed into prayers that by God's mercy they may soon be admitted into the happiness of heaven. Even after their death, our prayers and sacrifices bring them joy.

If they could speak, would they ask anything but our prayers? "Have mercy on me, at least you, my friends, for the hand of the Lord has touched me." (Job 19:21)

Memorial Day is no empty symbol. When a rifle salute is fired over the grave of a soldier, the bullets climb into the skies. They symbolize our prayers which pierce and penetrate the heavens. The bowed head represents the knee bent in supplication of Divine clemency for the departed. The moment of silence is above all know "it is a holy and whole-some thought to pray for the dead."

May they rest in peace!

The American Way

IN THE PUBLIC WELFARE?
By George Peck

Recently, among the letters that reach my desk was one from a railroad worker giving his opinion that America's railroads should be taken away from private investors and put into the hands of the Federal Government to operate. He seemed to feel that railroads were very much "in the public welfare," and such being the case, Government should own and operate them.

Something in my correspondent's letter indicated that he was born shortly after the end of World War I. Therefore, he can be excused for not knowing what a terrible mess the Federal Government made when it attempted to run the railroads during World War I. In an endeavor to show this young railroader the fallacy of having the Government run railroads, or for that matter, any other business, I answered his letter as follows:

Thanks for your letter suggesting that Federal Government should take over and operate our American railroads. I value your opinion, even if I am forced to violently disagree with it. In support of that disagreement, please permit me to cite some facts and quote some figures which have previously appeared in my column:

According to figures made public since the war closed, 97 per cent of all organized troop movements in the United States during World War II were made by train, and more than 90 per cent of all war freight was hauled by rail. In that period, the total freight load on the railroads doubled, the passenger load multiplied four times.

This feat was accomplished in an orderly manner. It is a crying shame that you were not around to witness the disorderly job done by the railroads during World War I. Why did the railroads perform so much better during the second war? The answer is simple. The greater achievements in the second world holocaust can be attributed to one thing and one thing only—the Federal Government exercised the good judgment of letting the railroads run their own show during World War II, while during World War I the Government ran them.

The railroads more than justified this vote of confidence reposed in them—they not only handled the war load, but also they saved the Government a heap of money while doing it. For instance, in three year 1918-20 (World War I), the Government collected from the railroad companies $146 million in Federal income taxes—but during the same years there was a deficit of more than $1,641 million resulting from government misoperation to be paid out of the Federal Treasury.

Now, contrast this with World War II when the Government kept hands off. During the three years and eight months between Pearl Harbor and the end of the war with Japan, the railroad companies paid in Federal taxes more than $4,270 million in addition to payroll taxes of $770 million—and there was no deficit on account of Federal misoperation to be met by us poor taxpayers. There you have a net difference of $5,800 million in the position of the Federal Treasury in the two wars. And, even in these days of astronomical government spending, that ain't hay, son!

And now before you jump to the conclusion that perhaps this stellar World War II job was accomplished by jacking up freight rates and passenger fares, let us examine the record on that score. During the first World War and the period immediately thereafter, it was necessary to increase freight rates by an average of approximately 60 per cent. At the close of the second World War, freight rates were no higher than when the war began, despite major increases in wages, taxes and the prices of supplies; while the level of passenger fares was even lower than before the first World War.

Americans should be grateful to the railroads, their managements and their employees for their outstanding contribution toward victory in World War II. The railroads most thoroughly proved the superiority of private ownership and control. Confronted with these facts, do you still think it would be "in the public welfare" to turn our railroads over to the Federal Government? Further, do you even think it would be to your own personal welfare?

In the sentence "To be or not to be" there are 2,759,022 possible chances for error by transpositions.

Do you remember?

"The Disabled American Veterans ask that you remember them and their needs as one observance of Memorial Day."

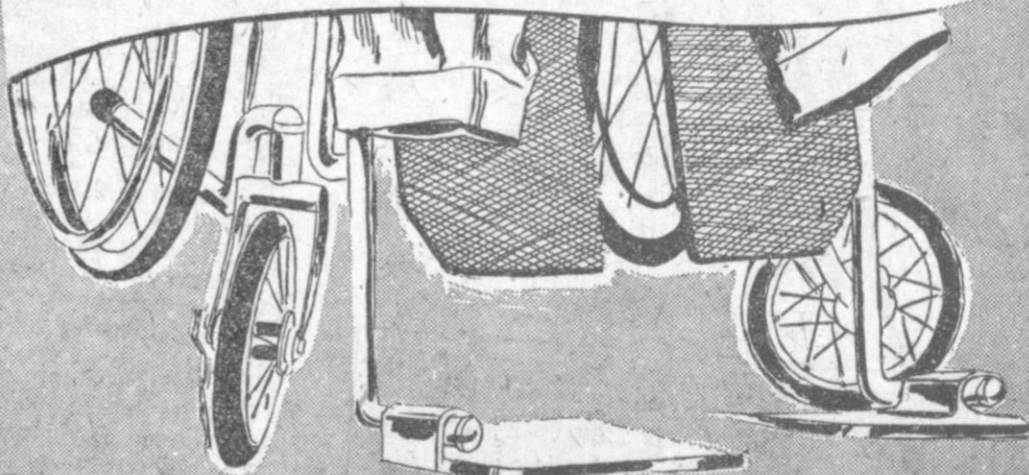

When danger threatens from without . . . and war has been declared . . . we hear a great deal said about . . . our being unprepared . . . but from the town, the countryside . . . the mountain and the plain . . . young men have come, have marched and died . . . and saved us once again.

Men we have never seen or known . . . have fought for you and me . . . wherever freedom's flag has flown . . . upon the land or sea . . . and some will bear the wounds of war . . . until their lives are done . . . and yet are unremembered for . . . the victories they won.

Though monuments of bronze or stone . . . recount his stirring deeds . . . the glowing words, and words alone . . . will not supply his needs . . . but all too often we forget . . . the sacrifice he made . . . and that, to him, we owe a debt . . . that often goes unpaid.

Whether in verse or deathless prose . . . our slogan ought to be . . . "I'll do a little bit for those . . . who did so much for me."

American Kids Are Undernourished

We are taking better care of our blooded stock than of our offspring! American teen-agers, the flower of the world's most prosperous nation, are not getting enough to eat. And it isn't a matter of how much Dad makes, either. Family income has little or nothing to do with this shameful situation.

The cold hard facts are revealed by a ten-year study of 2,536 teen-age youngsters, conducted by Dr. Pauline Beery Mack, internationally noted nutrition expert, in cooperation with Pennsylvania State College and the Pennsylvania Health Department, and assisted by a grant-in-aid from the Good Luck Division of Lever Brothers for analysis and summary.

Far more than half of these youngsters, chiefly from average, or well-to-do families, and representing all races, religious backgrounds, were found to be seriously undernourished. Misguided and unguided eating habits during the most crucial body-building years are playing hob with health, energy and nervous systems, and threatening the future happiness and usefulness of our teen-agers.

American infants, the study shows, are probably best-fed people in the world. But from the age of 2 years the diet pattern skids to a perilous low during the 13 to 15 year level.

What's needed? More general knife-and-fork work at home, and less hap-hazard, appetite-killing between-meals snacking. More milk—only one out of four gets enough. More vegetables—72 percent of the boys and 55 percent of the girls eat less than half enough. More high-quality protein foods which build and repair body tissues—only about half of both boys and girls got an adequate amount. More fat-rich foods—especially liver, margarine and butter—which help to promote proper growth, to develop resistance to fatigue and improve the condition of the skin by sharply reducing unattractive blemishes.

The world looks to this rising generation of ours for strength and leadership in a dark hour. And if they haven't what-it-takes, it will not be they who fail us—but their parents. What—and where—is YOUR teen-ager eating?

Senator Byrd of Virginia has estimated that the Federal government could fire 10 per cent of its civilian employees without the slightest loss of efficiency.

The bride's mother wore a blue glazed chambray suit and the groom's mother wore a blue nylon dress. Both had white accessories and corsages of red roses.

Duplicate Jobs Up U. S. Defense Costs

The custom of having civilian and military executives doing duplicate jobs in the Pentagon is now being blamed for much of the Defense Department's manpower troubles.

Newsman covering the Pentagon say it's common to find a $750-a-month colonel and a $600-a-month civilian sitting at a tandem desk doing a job that probably could be done by either of them. The colonel generally is in charge, the newsmen report, but it's the civilian who has the know-how.

Defense workers say that abolishing this duplicate-job system would cut at least 10 per cent from the 20,000 civilians and 10,000 military personnel now on duty in the Pentagon.

Millions Wasted on Army Overcoat Deal

The Army spent $45,000,000 for overcoats too heavy and too loaded with gadgets for wear in combat, according to testimony before a House sub-committee.

The coats were made with sewed-in leggings, which the soldiers in Korea found too heavy to walk in. A total of 751,527 of the 1,262,000 coats were shortened and stripped of the leggings at a cost of $972,244. Testimony was that "nobody knows where most of them are now."

Soil Conservation Notes

Grass management is needed to offset the effects of the drought, according to technicians of the local soil conservation service. The perennial grasses have been damaged by extended dry weather of the past two years and the present condition of grasses is similar to that of the Korean war prisoners recently released. Like them, the grasses have been starved and misused until they are in a weakened condition and will require more than ordinary care to return to their normal vigorous growing condition.

All grasses manufacture most of their food in their leaves. In fact, 95 per cent of all plant food is produced in the leaf. If the leaves are removed the plant must draw on reserve food supplies stored in the roots. If the root supply is used up and not renewed by leaf growth then the plant dies from starvation. Any plant can be killed by continually removing the leaves.

Last year most land owners were forced to over-graze because of the drought and scarce feed supply. As a result, pasture and rangeland were clipped too short. The grass was not allowed to build up food supplies in its root system.

The first growth of grass this spring must come from those food reserves. The growth of grasses this spring has been slow and weak. The grass is trying desperately to make a comeback for survival. A lot of it won't make it without help.

Grass must be allowed to rest to make growth and get food for itself. It must be allowed to produce leaves and keep them long enough to manufacture food for itself before it can produce food for livestock.

Many cooperators of the Upper Elm-Red soil conservation district realize the critical condition of the grasses and are keeping the cows off of some of the pasture through rotations and supplemental grazing. Madrid and Biennial white sweet clover are offering good pasture now so that many pastures can be allowed to make some growth.

Joe Magee, Andy Schoech, Oscar Walter, George Bayer, Charles Randall, Paul Fisher and many others near Münster are using clovers in the fields to provide a high protein grazing now and protect the pasture grasses.

In sandy land areas, vetch is providing a supplemental pasture so that grasses can receive proper care. Near Marysville Johnny West, Rufus McElreath, Rafe McElreath and Claude Cannon are using vetch for grazing and hay. Near Forestburg Ben Perryman, Andy Lee Knox, H. C. Knox, Ollie Coleman, Mack Traylor, Clifford Hudspeith and John Willis, and others, are finding that vetch is hard to beat for winter and spring grazing and at the same time are resting pastures at a critical period.

New earthen tanks for livestock water have recently been built on the Bruno Fleitman farm near Münster, the Ben Fleitman farm five miles south of Münster and the Milton Thomason farm near Hood.

STILL FLIGHT—Mounted in the 19-foot pressure tunnel at Langley Aeronautical Laboratory, Langley Field, Va., a scale-model plane is about to be tested for stability and control. The tunnel will be filled with a rushing torrent of air speeding at 200 miles per hour. Pressure will increase two and one-third times.

BULCHER CLUB WOMEN TEST PRESSURE COOKERS

Pressure cookers were tested at the regular meeting of the Bulcher Home Demonstration club Thursday. Members met at the home of Mrs. R. H. Sharp for the evening meeting. Nine cookers were tested by Meses. Johnnie West and Dexter Dennis who were in charge of the program.

Mrs. Charles Crabtree, vice president, presided during the business session. Members answered roll call with: The Rug I Would Like to Make.

The ladies discussed a theme for their fair booth exhibit and decided on: Preparing Baked Food for the Freezer.

After business there was a recreation hour with refreshments for the 12 members present. Mrs. Bailey Dennis will be hostess for the next meeting in the community building.

Fifty Years Forward on the American Road

It's just one of 41 "Worth More" features that make Ford worth more when you buy it... worth more when you sell it.

Imagine! A car so low in first cost keeps its value better than any other car on the American Road. Used-car figures on last year's cars prove that. And with its 41 "Worth More" features, this newer, finer '53 Ford holds still greater promise of long-lived value. You'll find built-to-last Crestmark Bodies. You'll find a new kind of ride that practically "repaves" the roughest roads. And these are but samples of the reasons why Ford is worth more when you buy... worth more when you sell.

Mrs. F. Herr Elected Convention Delegate

At their regular meeting Sunday night members of the Saint Anne's Society elected Mrs. Frank Herr as delegate to the state convention to be held in San Antonio July 18-22.

Members were asked to make something for a souvenir to be sold at the convention. Funds derived from the sale of these items will be used to defray shipping expenses of mission articles. Items suggested include doilies, pot holders, aprons, fancy handkerchiefs and similar articles.

The ladies also decided to make first aid kits for the missions and are asking for donations of adhesive tape, sterile cotton, gauze, etc., along with small plastic bags, such as vegetable bags to package the items. All who can contribute are asked to leave their donations with Mrs. Frank Herr.

The society met this week Wednesday in the lunch room to tear sheets into hospital bandages and also solicit clean discarded sheets for further work in this project.

Durnig the business session at which Mrs. Frank Herr, president, presided, the society voted to make a $100 contribution to the new church from its treasury, and $139 donation from the quilting circle treasury.
