Composer at 75 Is Happy, Busy

GRANGE RECOMMENDS SEPARATION OF FARM GROUPS FROM SERVICE

Dangers of Agricultural Split Are Pointed Out in Resolution At Annual Meet

Delegates to the National Grange convention in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania last week, went on record as favoring divorcement of the Agricultural Extension Service from any farm organization.

A resolution, adopted unanimously by the sixty-eight delegates, said Federal programs have given the opportunity for an unfair advantage by one farm organization over others because of its quasi-governmental status.

"We believe," the resolution said, "that the extension service as well as any other governmental assistance should not be distributed to members of one organization in any different manner from that given any other but should be available to all farmers and farm organizations alike."

Discussing the resolution on the convention floor, delegates said they objected to having the same individual acting as a representative of the Government on one hand and the Farm Bureau on the other.

One delegate said that "Unless this matter is corrected a situation similar to the A. F. of L.-C. I. O. fight is brewing in agriculture."

There was praise for the extension service and the work it is doing for farmers but the delegates insisted there should be fair organization treatment.

In many States Governmental payments to farmers for complying with various Federal farm programs have been made through the office of the county agent or the farm supervisor, who also serves

COUNCIL ANNOUNCES SPECIAL ELECTION FOR WATER PROPOSAL

Special Committee Working To Secure Endorsement Of Proposal

A committee of Brownwood citizens this week was working to secure endorsement at the polls December 7 of a proposal of the city to enter into a contract with Brown County Water Improvement District to furnish the city with water for domestic use. An election on the proposal was ordered by the city council at a meeting Monday night, and immediately thereafter a mass meeting of Brownwood residents selected Douglas Coalsen to direct a drive to secure approval of the issue, and named committees to take charge of the campaign.

Approval of the contract would give the water district needed additional revenues to enable it to qualify for a Federal grant of $450,000 to aid in completion of the irrigation features of the district. The contract, which calls for purchase of water by the city for $25,000 per year, would also enable the district to issue additional bonds to secure $550,000 with which to match the Federal funds. Estimated cost of the irrigation system is $1,000,000.

Committees Named

Ward captains named by Mr. Coalsen Monday night to assist him in presenting facts about the issue are: L. R. Burton, Ward 1; Dr. Mollie W. Armstrong, Ward 2; Gus J. Rosenberg, Ward 3 and James L. White, Ward 4. An executive committee to have general charge of the campaign was selected and includes: Jack Broad, chairman; D. D. McInroe, vice-chairman; Mrs. J. Dixon White, secretary; Rufus Stanley, Elmer Haynes, Frank P. Grantham, J. H. Forgey, C. V. Conlisk, Joe Weatherby, F. S. Abney, B. A. Fain, Walter Emison, L. V. Ford, Ross Prescott, Clair Bettis, Mrs. Tex Worsham, George B. Savage, Wendell Mayes, J. F. Renfro, and A. N. Thomason. Ward captains are given authority to appoint two principal assistants and as many sub-chairmen as needed. A headquarters office has been opened at 208 Central Avenue (old Central Drug Store location) where information regarding the election will be available at all times. There are two telephones in the office, numbers 1277 and 1287.

John T. Yantis, member of the board of directors of the water district, presided at Monday night's meeting. W. Lee Watson, member of the board, outlined the proposed contract which tentatively has been entered into between the district and the city. J. Edward Johnson spoke briefly in endorsement of the proposal, as did Rev. J. T. McClure. Speakers pointed out that there is no alternative but enter into the contract which will provide the city with an adequate source of water for domestic use, and at the same time resulting in reduced annual payments and an actual savings to the taxpayers. It was pointed out that the contract will result in securing a completed irrigation district and also reduced annual payments to bondholders, thus lightening the burden upon district taxpayers.

C. Y. Early, E. J. Weatherby, and H. G. Lucas, members of the water district board, spoke briefly in explanation of the proposal, and Fred S. Abney, former member, pointed out that without completion of the irrigation feature, for which the water at Lake Brownwood was impounded the district could be required to release the water. Chester Harrison, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, also stressed this possibility.

Contract Provisions

Under the tentative contract the city agrees: To pay out of income and revenues derived from its water works system to Brown County Water Improvement District No. 1 $25,000 per year for the first 600,000 gallons of water supplied and delivered by the water district; to pay 3 1/2 cents per thousand gallons for water used in excess of the minimum; to pay the minimum in 12 monthly installments of $2,083.34 each; that payments are secured by an exclusive first lien on and irrevocable pledge of the revenues of the water system of the city after paying reasonable expense of maintaining and operating the city's water system; and that so long as the contract is in effect the city will make a charge for its water sufficient to pay all

Girl Lied and Boy Killed Self

Two young lovers, Warren Sinclair Stanley, 17, and Loretta Harynek, 15, shown above in a recent snapshot, are separated by death now because the girl told Warren she was to become a mother. It was a "white lie to make him happy," she said. It didn't. Worried, the boy stole a car at Mexico, Mo., where he was a student in the Missouri Military Academy, drove to Chicago, where both homes were. There, chased by police, he wrecked the car and then shot himself to death. Notes on his body professed love for the girl.

TEST TO DETERMINE IF BROWNWOOD WILL GET AIR MAIL SERVICE

Plane Will Pick Up Mail Here December 10; Mayor Names Committee

Brownwood may have regular airmail service if test flights to be made between November 21 and December 4 from Houston to Brownwood and other Texas points provide sufficient data to establish feasibility of the plan.

A pickup of air mail will be made here December 10. A special committee to promote interest in the test was named this week by Mayor W. H. Thompson. Members of the committee are John Blake, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Tex Worsham, Business and Professional Women's Club; A. H. Bell, Lions Club; R. T. Hanna, Kiwanis Club; and John T. Yantis, Rotary Club. The test will be made under the sponsorship of Eastern Air Lines and the U. S. Postal Department.

A large volume of air mail is already handled through the local post office, according to Postmaster George Kidd, although actual transfer by plane does not begin here, but goes by bus or rail to Fort Worth.

Special envelopes and stickers will be provided for mail to be included in the test pickup, with a special cachet arranged for them. Goal of the local post office is to secure at least one air mail letter from each customer here.

Airport History

A partial history of Brownwood airport was reviewed this week by Chester Harrison, manager of the Brownwood Chamber of Commerce in urging cooperation of all citizens in the test.

Harrison recounted that proposals for development of an airport in Brownwood originated in 1933 through action of W. A. Butler, mayor at that time, the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce. The city undertook to acquire a landing field by long term lease, the port to be improved with CWA funds. When the WPA was established, the federal government required that the city own its own airport before any funds could be allotted for construction. Under the leadership of Mayor W. H. Thompson, the city bought 209 acres from Brown county, 4 1/2 miles north of Brownwood near highway 23. The city sponsored a WPA project for construction of runways. Looking to the time when the port would be available, the mayor, other city officials and Chamber of Commerce officials have urged upon authorities the need for air mail service to Brownwood.

The test flight that is proposed by the Postoffice Department is for the purpose of determining routes for further extension of air mail

FARM BILL STRIKES SNAG IN SENATE AS COSTS ARE STUDIED

"Confusing," Is Description Given Proposed Farm Bill In Senate Chamber

Republican Congressional leaders assailed the farm bill before the Senate this week as "confusing" and "confounding." Minority Leader Charles L. McNary, R., Ore., opened the criticism, making the unusual demand that the farm bill be read in full in the Senate.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Michigan, demanded of Chairman Ellison D. Smith, D., S. C., of the Agriculture Committee, what the bill would cost the Government. He received the reply that "the committee doesn't know."

"An effort to benefit agriculture ought not be limited," Smith said.

"It's a noble sentiment but a Senator can't act intelligently when he doesn't know what he is authorizing," Vandenberg said.

"It's a sort of a sliding scale," Smith said.

"Well, which way does it slide?" Vandenberg asked.

Almost simultaneously, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace proposed re-enactment of processing taxes on cotton and wheat to finance a six-point middle-course program of production control.

He declared that he believes the Supreme Court would uphold constitutionality of an "equitable and sound farm program." His proposals, he said, could help farmers "make an orderly retreat to an acreage in line with the needs of available markets."

Wallace spoke at a meeting of Southwestern wheat producers in Wichita, Kansas. His speech was broadcast nationally.

Wheat Program

His program for wheat:

1. Planning to gain that share of the world wheat market which will bring wheat farmers their maximum prosperity.
2. Setting of acreage goals in line with needs of the soil and of domestic and world markets.
3. Protection against drought through an ever-normal granary with reserve supplies stored on the farm or in elevators.
4. Crop insurance.
5. Retirement of submarginal land.
6. Price adjustment payments.

The program, he said, "would not take the wheat growers of the nation to some golden El Dorado," but without such a plan, "the only thing I can see ahead for the wheat industry in case we have a series of years of ordinary weather, is a disorderly retreat through a harsh application of 'natural economic law.'"

President Roosevelt expressed belief earlier in the week that if George Washington had lived in the twentieth century, he would have acted boldly to keep agriculture from going down to ruin.

Obviously continuing his campaign for a reversal of the Supreme Court's 1936 decision against Federal regulation and control of farm production, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"George Washington's own words show that he considered agricultural production even in his time to be much more than a local matter."

President's Speech

Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace read Mr. Roosevelt's remarks at the first President's state home, Mount Vernon. The occasion was the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Department of Agriculture and the land grant college system.

The President's speech said Washington had urged Congress to create a national board to promote the interests of agriculture. He said Washington's eighth annual message to the Congress declared: "It will not be doubted that with reference either to individual or national welfare is of primary importance. In proportion as nations advance in population and other circumstances maturity this truth becomes more apparent, and renders the cultivation of the soil more and more an object of public patronage. Institutions for promoting it grow up, supported by the public purse; and to what object can it be dedicated with greater propriety?"

Prexy Baptized but Not Enough

A Baptist minister should be immersed at least twice to be properly baptized, conservatives of the church told Mr. Henry Noble Sherwood, above, in threatening to dismiss him from presidency of Georgetown College, Ky. Although he baptized hundreds as pastor of three Baptist churches, Dr. Sherwood neglected to go through a second immersion himself, which the conservative element considers necessary to insure good faith in its ministers.

LUCAS TO ATTEND FARM MEETING IN DALLAS DECEMBER 6

Eligible Counties For FSA Loans Will Be Named; To Study Data

H. G. Lucas announced this week that the Farm Security Advisory Committee, of which he is a member, will hold a meeting December 6 in Dallas to prepare recommendations for counties in which loans will be made this year for purchase of land by tenant farmers.

Mr. Lucas was chosen a member of the committee by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to represent the Central West Texas area. He has a diversified farm and grows cotton, corn, feed stuff, and pecans. He is president of the Texas Agricultural Association, and is active in cooperative work in marketing pecans and poultry.

Mr. Lucas said that maps and other data are now being prepared by the regional office of Farm Security Administration, Dallas, showing the proportionate number of tenant farmers in each county of the state, the type of land available for purchase and its agricultural value. Material is also being gathered to show the type of farming being done in each county.

"It has been suggested that, as this is largely a demonstration program, loans should be made for each major type of farm enterprise," Mr. Lucas said. "This would include ranching enterprises in West Texas, citrus-growing in South Texas, and other specialized types in other sections, as well as the general type of farming which is usual in most sections."

The $917,000 allocated to Texas will provide an estimated 180 loans, which will be placed in some twenty or thirty counties, Mr. Lucas said, with not less than five and not more than ten loans to the county. After counties have been designated, applications from farmers desiring loans will be considered by a county committee of three farmers. This committee will also pass on value of land, with help of an appraiser from the regional office of Farm Security Administration.

Brownwood's Schools, Colleges Dismiss Until Monday Morning; Businesses Closed

Spirit of Thanksgiving will be reflected in the annual Union service sponsored by the Brownwood Ministerial Association, which will be held Wednesday night in First Methodist Church. Rev. L. Stanley Jeffery, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, will deliver the Thanksgiving message.

Members of the Gipsy Smith Choir will offer a group of numbers at the service, which will begin at 7:30.

Other Thanksgiving observances throughout the city will be traditionally quiet, with a football game between the Daniel Baker Hill Billies and the Texas Wesleyan Rams only outstanding public observance scheduled.

The season will provide a double holiday for students in Brownwood colleges and public schools, which dismiss Wednesday afternoon. Classes will not be resumed until Monday morning. Local stores and offices will be closed all day.

A number of teachers in both Brownwood city schools and those throughout the county will leave Thursday morning for Houston to attend the 59th annual convention of the State Teachers Association.

The Howard Payne Yellow Jackets will clash with the Pirates of Southwestern University Thanksgiving afternoon in Georgetown. With a tie for the Texas Conference title already clinched, the Jackets will be out for victory and the championship.

Only blemish on Howard Payne's 1937 record is a 19-13 defeat at the hands of Arkansas State Teachers College. If the Jackets win over Southwestern Thursday, it will mean a Conference title for the second successive year.

Encouraged by their showing in holding the powerful Stephenville Yellow Jackets to a 7-0 victory here last week, the Brownwood High School Lions have hopes of ending the 1937 season by upsetting the Breckenridge Buckaroos Thursday afternoon at Breckenridge.

Local Boy Scout Leaders Return From Conference

As soon as a leadership training school can be held in Brownwood for the parents and others interested in the Cubbing program of the Boy Scouts of America, a cub pack will be organized, declared G. N. Quirl, local Scout Executive, upon his return from a state training school in San Antonio held over the week-end.

Other Comanche Trail Scout leaders attending the San Antonio conference were Stewart Painter, San Saba; J. L. Casburn, Breckenridge; and O. E. Winebrenner, Brownwood.

The meeting was conducted by Charles Smith and W. C. Wessel, New York City, representatives of the National Boy Scout office, and James P. Fitch, Dallas, regional executive.

The Cubbing program is designed for younger boys who have not reached the required age to become a Boy Scout.

ROAD BIDS

Texas State Highway Department will be open soon for bids for grading and drainage structures on 12.7 miles of highway 23 in McCulloch county from Brady north.

The bids will be opened in Austin December 17. The McCulloch county project is included in the 1938 federal aid program.

Cattle numbers and the purchasing power of cattle follow cycles varying from 15 to 18 years in length according to W. E. Morgan, economist of the Extension Service division of Texas A. and College.

When the purchasing power of cattle is high, production is stimulated, and cattle numbers increase, Morgan points out. On the other hand, when purchasing power is low, production is curtailed.

In 1920, there were about 49 million head of cattle in the U. S., Morgan says. In that year a steer was worth, in terms of what the ranchman could buy with the proceeds of the sale, 75 per cent as much as it was in the years 1910 to 1914. In 1930, 10 years later, there were 38 million head of cattle in the country and a steer was worth 34 per cent more in buying power than it was in 1910-14.

Effective Beauty Requires Routine

BY ALICIA HART

If you are making a real effort to improve your appearance, honestly striving to be sleek and trim and beautifully turned out every hour of the day, try to map out some kind of system, that will allow time for exercise, cleansing and grooming routines.

For instance, if you know that your hair isn't attractive unless washed and waved once a week, try to figure out a way to get to the beauty shop every seventh day. A standing appointment may help. The average business girl usually goes to the beauty shop immediately ly after work or during lunch hour on one particular day each week. If she can shampoo and set her own hair, she keeps an adequate supply of curlers, pins, wave-set lotion and hairnets at home, and devotes one evening a week to self-glorification.

The perfectly groomed woman cares for her clothes meticulously. She brushes her dress and hat when she takes them off, puts the dress on a proper hanger, the hat on a hat stand, brushes them again before putting them on next morning.

She puts shoe trees on her shoes the moment she takes them off, doesn't tolerate crooked heels, keeps a steel brush handy for cleaning suede pumps, has leather ones shined frequently.

She knows how important it is to keep everything she wears, from underwear to topcoats, scrupulously clean and carefully pressed. She uses a deodorant or an anti-perspirant regularly.

Don't decide that daily exercises are more trouble than they are worth until you have done a specific routine for exactly ten minutes (no more, no less) every day for three weeks. Cultivate beauty and grooming habits. You'll find that not one routine requires as much time as you think.

They Have Quail at Every Meal!

Quail to most persons is a rare table delicacy, but to Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Springer of Atlanta, Ga., it is an interesting pet. "T-Bone," as they call the bird, above, eats out of Mrs. Springer's hand and is cited as a rare example of the domestication of the breed. "T-Bone" sleeps under a blanket, lays eggs in her owners' laps and accompanies the Springers on their trailer jaunts through the south to paint gasoline stations.

Extension Service To Sponsor Special Dairy Conferences

For the third time in as many years, Texas A. & M. College will sponsor a free short course for dairymen and cow testers December 6-9, with Prof. A. L. Darnell, of the college dairy husbandry department as director. Darnell has arranged a comprehensive program of discussion and demonstration in virtually all phases of herd management. Speakers who will assist regular college staff members in the instruction will include W. E. Wintermayer of Washington, D. C., dairy husband-man for the United States Department of Agriculture, and Dr. H. S. Willard, dairy department head at the University of Wyoming, Laramie, Wyo. Dr. Willard, now on leave from Wyoming, is assisting in teaching and carrying on advanced studies in dairy manufacturing at A. & M.

Dean E. J. Kyle of the school of agriculture, will welcome the short course students at the opening meeting Monday, December 6. Prof. C. N. Shephardson, dairy husbandry department head, will speak at a banquet Wednesday night on observations of dairying in Europe he made the last summer as a United States delegate to the World Dairy Congress in Berlin, Germany.

Brownwood Turkey-Growing Center of State, Says Bureau

Farm demonstrators and turkey growing associations are largely responsible for the high-grade birds now being produced in Texas, a special study on the turkey industry by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research points out.

Dressed turkey shows in best-producing points and training schools for those wishing to be licensed graders are other factors. Texas birds are becoming well known all over the United States. Last season 1,157 carloads of dressed turkeys were shipped out of Texas from Wichita Falls, Brady, Plainview, Sherman, Brownwood, Fort Worth, San Angelo, Eastland, San Antonio, Gonzales, and Cuero. These are rail shipments only, and do not include truck shipments.

The bureau finds that the best-producing areas are the Brownwood-Brady and Cuero districts because of favorable climatic conditions and abundant feed.

Marketing season is short, lasting from about Nov. 14 to Feb. 1. About 56 per cent of the birds are marketed in November, 37 per cent in December and the rest after Jan. 1.

Improvement in grade of Texas turkeys is shown by the fact that in 1934 only 42 per cent of the Texas birds graded first class, but by last season the figure had increased to 67 per cent.

Texas turkey eggs are being sold in Colorado, Iowa, Minnesota, Oklahoma, New York and other states. It is estimated that eggs this season will bring hatcheries $33,747.

Value of Texas turkeys in 1929, the bureau study reveals, was $8,645,685, one-third that of chickens. Of the 676,114 farms reporting turkeys in the United States in 1935, 114,604 were in Texas, and, although Texas produces more turkeys than any other State, it is probable that a still greater percentage of the Nation's supply of turkeys will

CITY WILL GREET CHRISTMAS SEASON IN HOLIDAY ATTIRE

Brownwood will officially usher in the Yule season on December 6, when decoration of the downtown business district, scheduled to start this week, will be completed. Committee in charge of the decoration arrangements predict that the city will reflect its gayest holiday air in many seasons when the work is completed.

Stores will remain open several hours later than usual on the date the work of decorating is finished, and merchants anticipate large crowds on that night.

Decorations, plans for which were worked out by special committees and G. F. McKay, representative of Brownwood Lions Club sponsors of the program, will include strings of multi-colored electric lights above street intersections.

Colored cellophane inserts will be placed in the whiteway lights in the business district. Lighted Arizona cypress trees will be placed at the following street intersections: Anderson and Center; Lee and Center; Baker and Center; West and South Broadways; Baker and Fisk and Anderson and Fisk.

METHODIST PASTOR

Rev. Harold G. Scoggins, pastor of First Methodist Church here for the past year, has been assigned as pastor at Dalhart, in the Northwest Texas Methodist Conference.

Rev. Scoggins transferred to the Northwest Conference at the annual Central Texas Conference held in Fort Worth recently.

Accident Hazards in Home and on Farm Cause Greatest Annual Death Toll

IF YOU live on a heavy traffic corner in a great city, it may be hard for you to believe that the bedroom in which you lie vainly trying to sleep while automobiles honk and crash on the corner, is less safe than the busy traffic lane.

If you live on a farm you consider your cool barn a safer place than the machine room of the city factory where lathes and belts whirl all day long.

But in both instances you are wrong. Public attention, concentrated on automobile deaths and injuries, is being directed by the American Red Cross to the fact that accidental deaths in the home claim a greater annual toll. Automobile fatalities last year for the nation numbered 37,000; while people killed by accidents in their homes totaled 38,500. Safety drives in industry and utilities have reduced accidents until the deaths last year were 2,300 while on the farm, where safety is only now being taught by the Red Cross, annual death toll was 5,500.

The bedroom is shown by safety experts to be the most dangerous room in the house, largely due to falls and walking in the dark. On the farm, machinery causes the greatest number of accidental deaths, with injury by animals ranking second.

The American Red Cross launched its third annual Home and Farm Accident Prevention campaign this fall. More than ten million check lists showing hazards were carried home by school children, including members of the Junior Red Cross. Parents were urged to check these lists against conditions which might exist and from which accidental death or serious injury might result if repairs were not made, or caution observed. This widely acclaimed safety program is one of the many services of the Red Cross supported through its annual roll call for members conducted by chapters and their branches in 12,000 communities.

Erosion Control Requires Maintenance

"Why is soil fertility maintained on some farms and depleted on other farms similarly located?"

All erosion control devices, either vegetative or mechanical require maintenance year after year, if they continue to be effective as soil and water conservation measures. Erosion control work is never finished, warns D. C. Lerner in charge of the Brownwood Soil Conservation Camp.

After a farm has a complete program of soil and water conservation established on every acre, the farmer is then ready to start taking care of his farm. Each annual crop rotation may be improved on with soil building crops and cover crops. Each set of rows laid off on the contour conserves more moisture and helps prevent erosion. Each strip of thickly planted and fibrous rooted feed or grain crop that is planted on the contour conserves more soil and water for the succeeding crops; and, each farming operation, either on pasture land or crop land helps to conserve soil and water if it is done correctly.

Terrace structures, or any other mechanical means of erosion control are generally very short lived unless they receive careful maintenance and attention. If terraces are not properly maintained, they may cause more damage to a field than if no terraces had been built.

Controlled grazing on pasture lands, cultivating bermuda sod, scattering sod in gullies and on poorly covered pasture lands, repairing and rebuilding contour ridges, building new tanks and repairing old tank dams and tank spillways, sodding improved grasses and clover during winter and spring seasons, manuring worn out land retired to pasture, and other jobs in pasture development need attention each year and season if a permanent job of soil and water conservation is accomplished.

Yet if maintenance work is done as needed, very little work is required in properly maintaining each erosion control measure. On a farm many maintenance jobs are done in regular farm operations. Terraces are easy to maintain by proper plowing operations. Strip crop preparations and laying off contour rows are a part of regular farm work. Most jobs of repairing sodded water ways or outlets are done in a comparatively short time, or during seasons when other farm work is not rushing.

Control of Crops Alone Has Failed To Solve Problems

Production control has failed to solve the cotton problem and has made the cotton states "pitifully" dependent upon Federal subsidies, according to Felix Belair, Jr., who says in the Saturday Evening Post, out this week, that the only alternative for the South is to "go on planting cotton, and be paid to do so by the Federal Government, until the scientists find something to take the place of growing cotton in the fields or the nation learns to consume more of the staple."

Analyzing the ills of King Cotton, Belair, the well-known New York Times correspondent asserts that four years' experimentation with cotton programs "has thrown doubt on the ability of government, as now constituted, to plan and execute sound agricultural policy."

Since 1933 the country's cotton acreage has dwindled to an average of 99,392,000 acres. In the ten years preceding 1933 cotton acreage maintained an average of 41,609,000 acres. The acreage decline, Belair says, has followed on the heels of the government's policy of renting cotton land from the growers and letting them raise other crops on it. Accordingly "production has declined from an average of about 15,000,000 bales in the four-year period preceding 1933 to 11,409,000 in the subsequent four-year period including 1933."

Secretary Wallace, in his Memphis speech October first, Belair points out, stressed the fact that acreage alone cannot stabilize the South's income at prosperity levels. The part that production control has played in the marked loss of export markets, however, is "debatable," according to Belair. "As he sees it, the expansion of foreign acreage abroad and the increase in foreign cotton output are added "ball and chains" to the South, but these problems, he believes, would have arisen regardless of the government's agricultural policy."

DIVORCE IS OFTEN MORE TROUBLE THAN WORTH, SAYS WRITER

BY RUTH MILLETT

When newspaper stories shout that some wife is in Reno getting a divorce, the "next husband" usually is named in the second paragraph. A matter of a simple trade-in. Or, perhaps, an involved but romantic version of that old-fashioned game in which everybody trades places, the way the Duchess of Windsor's ex-time husband, her girlhood friend, and her friend's ex-husband are doing.

So there may be romance connected with divorce . . . when it reaches the headlines. Romance, glamor and excitement.

But what of the other side of the picture? The every-day, usual side that doesn't make the headlines? What happens to the woman in ordinary circumstances who divorces her husband knowing that there is no man waiting impatiently to be her second? What kind of a life does she lead?

Well, it isn't one for any wife to envy. When these young divorcees "let down their hair," most of them admit their lives are rather a mess.

Marriage has made living alone a pretty dull business. It's going backward instead of forward. They find they have to make new friends, for there is no room for a lone woman, no matter how attractive, in a circle of husbands and wives—particularly in the circles in which she once moved as a wife. The divorced man's value as a social asset doubles, but a divorced woman frequently may be a total loss to hostesses. So she sees her old friends only at luncheons and big cocktail parties, where an extra woman is no burden.

And men become a problem. Husbands who were safe and almost stodgy while she was a married woman, now think she is fair game. She no longer has the refuge of virginity. She finds herself warding off unwelcome "passes" with one hand, and "propositions" with the other. But she isn't overwhelmed with offers of marriage from men of her own age.

If she has enough alimony to live on, she finds herself feverishly trying to pack her days to the brim. Anything to keep from admitting that she is lonely. If there isn't money provided for her, she has to start earning a living, and it's an unusual woman who can make enough the first few years she works to live the way she did on a husband's salary.

Children don't help the situation much except in giving her an interest in life. She finds they are a worse responsibility for one than for two parents; they are expensive; and they don't make marrying again an easy proposition. Divorced wives, until another husband comes along, are in somewhat the same bewildering position as an abdicated king. They are neither one thing or another. Not married women, and yet not carefree, inexperienced girls.

All members of Troop No. 43 are to meet at South Ward school Saturday morning, at nine o'clock, each boy to bring a lunch. From there they will start on an all day hike. Scoutmaster Hilton Gilliam will accompany the Scouts.

Members of Troop No. 3 are looking forward to the next Court of Honor for Brownwood, because they have several tests to be recognized at that time. Each Scout in the Troop has been working on his advancement program. Scoutmaster Claude Roscoe is hopeful that his Troop will be minus any Tenderfoot Scouts.

1620, a bleak year, saw the landing of a small party on the wild coast of America. Their terrific struggle for a foothold in this new soil is known to every schoolboy. Then, after their first harvest—knowing that success, no matter how small, was theirs—the Pilgrims paused and at a great feast gave thanks!

On this Thanksgiving we pause and give thanks for the privilege we have of serving you with such an important unit of your Thanksgiving feast as Thanksgiving comes a bit late this year. Had it been a few weeks earlier on the calendar the period of giving thanks would have been received with a bit more enthusiasm.

There Are Reasons

There has been a lowering in prices and a slacking in business which is not viewed with great favor in any quarters. Bitter experiences of the past have taught us to furrow our brows at the first signs of a tottering business structure, and the present "recession" has business and government leaders a bit worried and smaller operators a bit uncertain as to the future.

And yet this is a prosperous country. The slight decline in commodity values and the absence of the usual quickening pace of business in the fall need not necessarily be viewed with alarm. We have plenty to be thankful for, even if the dollars are not rolling in quite as fast as we have come to expect.

At no time in the history of this country has our condition, comparatively, shown up at such advantage when viewed in the light of conditions in other countries. Even in our most prosperous times, we did not have such great cause to be thankful that chance made us residents of America, rather than of some other nation. For now, of all times, our position is so much better, so much more secure, and gives promise of so much more in the future, than any other nation in the world. We should indeed be thankful.

Few are the people of the world who can say they live in a nation which is enjoying peace with no prospect of immediate disturbance of that desirable situation. Few are those in other countries who know that the great majority of their people are fairly prosperous, reasonably comfortable, and fairly well-fed on this Thanksgiving Day. Few are those who live in a democratic country like ours, free to do as they wish, praise or criticize as they please, with no fear of punishment for the expression of an opinion.

We should be thankful this Thanksgiving Day, for, in view of what other people in other countries have to face, we have more for which to be thankful than did even those Pilgrim families on the first Thanksgiving Day.

Voters of the City of Brownwood will have an opportunity Tuesday, December 7, to express at the polls their opinion of the contract entered into between the city and the water district for the purchase of city water from the irrigation district. The city council has approved the proposal, and the water district directors have entered into the tentative contract to supply the water. Briefly, the proposal calls for the city's purchase of water from the district at $25,000 per year, for a period of thirty years. The district agrees to bring the water to Round Mountain, there erect and maintain new purification plants and erect a mammoth storage tank on top of the mountain, some 75 feet higher than the present tank.

Brownwood's Opportunity

As a matter of fact, the people of the district and the people of the city are, in the main, the same. Eighty-five per cent of the district is made up of city property, and an even greater percentage of residents of the district live within the city limits. The contract, then, is essentially an agreement among ourselves as to the best method of supplying ourselves with domestic water. There are but two methods, through the present system, or through purchase from our own district.

In view of the need for improvement in the city water supply system, which officials estimate would cost a minimum of $100,000, and which must be made before the next summer season places the usual heavy drain on the system, the contract appears to be an extremely favorable one for the city. Consumption of the contract will furnish the city with an inexhaustible and adequate supply of water for all time to come. Every resident of Brownwood knows that the present system will not. Here is an opportunity, then, to provide ourselves with all the water we need for the present and the future, by the simple expedient of buying it from the district, which is to say, from ourselves. From the city's standpoint, there is nothing to lose from the contract, except a slight increase in the cost of the water during the first few years of the contract.

The proposal has far greater and more compelling advantages when studied from the viewpoint of the water district. If Brownwood voters approve the contract, the water district will be enabled to accept a GIFT of $450,000 from the Federal government with which to build the system and also complete the irrigation system, which was and is the primary purpose of creating the district and the lake. To be sure, this must be matched by $550,000 of water district funds, and to this extent our investment in the irrigation district would be greater. Yet even there an advantage presents itself. We have here the opportunity of completing the $2,500,000 irrigation district at an expense of only $2,093,000. This saving, of course, comes through the donation of the remainder of the money by the Federal government.

Would it be to the district's advantage to spend the additional money in order to secure the $450,000? It is a simple matter of arithmetic to determine that it will, for securing the money and making the improvements will actually result in a savings to the taxpayers of the district. How? Well, the interest and principal requirements on the present outstanding indebtedness of the district amounts to $114,662.40. Add to this the $7,500 cost of operating the district at present, and we have the present annual charge against the district taxpayers, $122,162.40. If the election carries, the Federal grant accepted, and additional bonds are issued, the total indebtedness of the district will be increased, but the annual cost will be reduced. How? Through a lower rate of interest, since the new bonds will bear 4 per cent interest, whereas the present issues bear 5 1/2 per cent. That 1 1/2 per cent savings tells a big story. The new interest and principal requirements per year would be $120,975.40, a saving to the taxpayers of $1,087.00. But add to this saving the $25,000 per year the city will pay for water, and we see that the net advantage has grown to $26,087.00 per year. Thus far we have not considered any revenue that will come from the irrigation feature of the new plan, which would be great, and which would not greatly increase the cost of operation of the district.

But, considered alone from the water purchase proposition, which is the one before us at this time, we cannot afford to pass it up. Regardless of the advantages to be gained through the construction of the irrigation system, from a cold business viewpoint, upon the basis of the water purchase proposal alone, it is good business and will save every taxpayer in the district money to enter into the agreement. That feature should be considered when you vote on the city proposal.

The MARCH OF TIME

A New BANNER Feature by the Editors of TIME, The Weekly Newsmagazine

Recessional . . .

WASHINGTON—As Congress convened in Washington last week for the special session called by the President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt set forth the immediate ills of the U. S. as he saw them, suggested what should be done about them:

(1) Alarmed by New Deal power competition, private utilities companies have postponed an estimated $3,200,000,000 worth of construction. To a press conference the President suggested that the Government would "co-operate" with private utilities.

(2) A U. S. Housing boom, which has been predicted constantly since 1931, and has as constantly failed to materialize, has long been proposed as the classic remedy for the country's economic ills. The President last week promised to ask Congress for legislation to help such a boom, revealed that Mr. Roosevelt and other recent White House visitors were actually a committee appointed to find ways and means to interest private capital in backing it.

(3) For the past two years, business has been groaning that taxes on undistributed profits and capital gains are in effect a capital levy and a severe obstacle to recovery. Indications last week were that the President was in favor of modifying both, if only as a token of what his friends wished to be regarded as his "change of attitude" toward business in general. In his message to Congress the President emphasized that any such tax revisions should be made for the particular benefit of "small businessmen."

Friendly Words . . .

WASHINGTON—The Academy of Political Science, a prosperous group of U. S. businessmen, professors and economists, last week gathered for its 57th annual meeting at Manhattan's Hotel Astor, heard a newsmaking speech on "The Federal Budget" by U. S. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr.

But before Mr. Morgenthau got a chance to say anything at all, he heard two speeches ably marshaling the grievances of business against the New Deal. As alert as a cat, he listened, he thoughtfully pursed his lips, while Virginia's Senator Harry F. Byrd, and Partner S. Parker Gilbert of J. P. Morgan & Co., proceeded to needle the New Deal's fiscal policy.

As Secretary Morgenthau uprose for his rebuttal, the applause was more polite than enthusiastic. It was to come far more spontaneously as, adjusting his pince-nez, the Secretary carefully read the most satisfying public words business has heard from Washington since the inception of its "breathing spell" two years ago:

Budget: "We deliberately used an unbalanced Federal budget during the past four years to meet a great emergency. That policy has succeeded. The emergency that we faced in 1933 no longer exists. I am fully aware that many of our problems remain unsolved. . . I am further aware that some persons contend that another great spending program is desirable to ward off the risk of another great business depression. . . But. . . I have reached the firm conviction that the domestic problems which face us today are essentially different from those which faced us four years ago. Many measures are required for their solution. One of these measures. . . is a determined movement toward a balanced budget."

Deficit: "Our total receipts for this year are estimated in the President's budget summation of October 19 at about $6,650,000,000, and our total net expenditures at about $7,345,000,000, leaving an estimated net deficit of $695,000,000."

To attain an ordinary balancing of the budget next year—that is, a balance after full provision for accruing liabilities for old-age benefit payments, but exclusive of debt retirement—it would be necessary to accomplish a net improvement of about $700,000,000 . . .

"Let me give you an idea of the possibilities for savings. . . Prior to the Depression, the Federal grants to the States for public highway construction generally ran under $100,000,000 annually. This year, the total Federal outlays . . . are estimated at $253,000,000 . . . I believe it is now time to return to the average annual level. . . Second, there is the field of public works. . . on which we are spending $573,000,000 this year. . . I believe that we can and should move definitely toward a lower level. . . The total of this year's expenditures (for agriculture) . . . exceeded $900,000,000. Despite the magnitude of this sum, you are all aware that possible further measures involving large additional expenditures are now being discussed. . . Balancing the budget is as much in the interest of farmers as in the interest of other parts of our population; and it requires the cooperation of the farmer. . ."

Taxes: "Although we are not contemplating any increase in the total tax burden, the character of our tax structure is being given earnest consideration. . . We have sought to determine whether there are inequalities and injustices in the distribution of the tax burden and whether there are some taxes whose cost of collection and whose burdensome effect outweigh the revenue gain. . . We do not wish to impose levies which tend to dry up the sources of tax revenue. . ."

While Business wondered what to make of these friendly words, next day Chairman Pat Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee, well aware that taxes are not on the calendar of this week's special session, sought to find out by writing to Secretary Morgenthau: "There must be some modification of the undistributed profits tax." Exulted Columnist Hugh Johnson: "Boy! that's batting this 'business' business from one end of Pennsylvania Ave. to the other—the most hopeful sign on the whole horizon."

Texas Preview . . .

SAN ANTONIO, Texas.—The largest motorized army maneuvers ever held in the Western Hemisphere reached their climax in Texas last week as the "P. I. D." (Proposed Infantry Division) of the U. S. Army, under consideration by the War Department for two years, was tested for the first time under combat conditions.

Consequence of the Texas maneuvers, which started two months ago, is likely to be a wholesale reorganization of the U. S. Army. During the war, an infantry division consisted of about 22,000 men, divided into two infantry brigades of two infantry regiments each, one field artillery brigade usually of three regiments—all moving mainly on foot. Two years ago U. S. Chief of Staff Malin Craig decided that engineering and mechanical progress had made the infantry division obsolete, asked his staff for a report on a new unit to embody all changes in power, transport and armament mechanization since the war. Result of his demand, the P. I. D. consists of 13,500 officers and men, contains three unbrigaded infantry regiments, one artillery regiment of four battalions.

Most important characteristic of the P. I. D. is its ability to march entirely on wheels. Slogging along on foot, an old style division covered 18 miles a day; but the P. I. D. last week covered 325. When reports of its maneuvers have been studied at Washington, the War Department may abolish the old division entirely, streamline the whole army in similar units if and when it can get the money to cover the prodigious cost.

Not to be confused with ordinary corps area maneuvers, held annually, the Texas war games started when the first completely motorized division in U. S. Army history encamped at Fort Sam Houston under the command of 60-year-old Major General James K. Parsons. First six weeks were devoted to a series of imaginary battles against a "Red" Army. The P. I. D. split up into small details, functioned successfully in attack, retreat, flank and encirclement maneuvers. On November 8, after a breakfast of 12,000 apples, 24,000 eggs, and 550 lbs. of coffee, the P. I. D.'s 10,000 men set out from San Antonio in three columns to bivouac grounds 150 farther north. Two successive night marches, made in complete darkness except for the lights of cars leading column, enabled it to catch the slow-moving Red army at Mineral Wells. P. I. D. roundly defeated it in a sham engagement of which one result was the capture of real horses and mules for which the P. I. D. has no earthly use. Next day, its task accomplished, the "streamlined division" turned back to San Antonio.

In one huge serpentine column 65 miles long and moving at a speed of 20-35 m. p. m., the P. I. D.'s 1,180 supply trucks, passenger cars, motorcycles, reconnaissance cars anti-aircraft trucks and baggage trailers roared over the 325 miles in record time of 12 hours and 55 minutes.

Death of MacDonald . . .

LOSSIMOUTH, Scotland.—Three days out from Liverpool last week on the small British liner, "Reina del Pacifico", slowly plowing its way towards Bermuda and a South American cruise, most of the passengers were just finishing a hearty dinner. Too ill to eat his, however, was the "Reina's" most distinguished passenger, James Ramsay MacDonald. At 8:45 he quietly died of heart failure at the age of 71.

Few men living have been more beloved by their friends or maligned by their acquaintances than Ramsay MacDonald. A sentimental Lowland Scot who loved to write sad verses for his friends, he was a founder of the British Labor Party, the first person to bring it to a position of importance in British affairs, three times Prime Minister of Great Britain and an intimate personal friend of King George V. Yet "traitor" was a word hurled at him over and over throughout the last 20 years. Because he spoke out loudly against British entry in the World War in 1914 he was ostracized as a traitor to the nation for years. Because he felt it necessary to abandon the principles of the old Labor Party in forming his coalition cabinet or "National Government" in 1931, Ramsay MacDonald was called a traitor by most of British organized labor.

Falling eyesight and mental depression broke his health. The Crown, anxious to honor him, offered him an earldom last May but Scot MacDonald turned it down lest it crimp the political chances his son, Malcolm, who is Secretary of State for the Dominions. Because doctors worried greatly over Scot MacDonald's increasing melancholia, he was sent on the "Reina del Pacifico" cruise with his youngest daughter, Sheila, for companion. With his body still at sea the British government proffered him the honor of a Westminster Abbey burial. This the MacDonald family politely refused. For years Ramsay MacDonald had hoped to be buried in his beloved Lochsloven, beside his still more beloved wife, Margaret Ethel, who died in 1911. "In Lossiemouth are both my heart and my hearth," said he. "A Lossie loon (boy) was I born, and a Lossie loon shall I die."

Greek Tragedy . . .

MOREHEAD CITY, North Carolina.—Outward-bound to Rotterdam with a treacherous cargo of scrap-iron last week, the 5,815-ton Greek freighter, "Zenny Chandris" had barely cleared the port of Morehead City, when in the lash of a whining nor'easter she sprang a leak. After a three-day battle against heavy seas that left her in bad shape off Cape Hatteras, her frightened crew of 28 begged Captain George Coufopoulos to flash an S. O. S. to one of the several vessels which passed by. But he ordered them back to the falling pumps, confident the old freighter, bought from the U. S. Maritime Commission, would ride out the storm.

As their plight grew worse, Third Engineer Boris Balaska slipped into the radio room at 4:15 a. m. stood over the operator with drawn knife, commanded him to break the captain's orders and send a call for help. It was too late. Dislodged as the gale tossed the ship, the "Zenny Chandris" cargo shifted. She listed crazily, water rose in the hold, the pumps ceased as the freighter, foundered. All hands scrambled excitedly off into the dark, cold water.

Thirty-two terrible hours later Commander Henry Coyle's Coast Guard cutter "Mendota" picked up the last of the 21 survivors who clung to bobbing bits of debris. Captain Coufopoulos bore a painful gash on the bridge of his nose, the bite of a sailor who shared the captain's improvised raft and went mad from drinking salt water. The others, six of whom were saved by the C. D. Mallory tanker, "Swiftsure," told a gruesome tale: the sea had suddenly become alive with sharks. Helpless comrades could only look on as the man-eaters tore the bodies of two seamen to bits, pulled a third through his lifebelt.

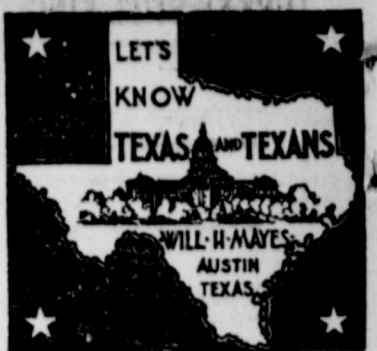

Churning up the water with their feet as the sharks slashed at them, the other terror-stricken sailors drove off their tormentors. Finally Lieut. A. C. Keller spotted the survivors from his naval plane, dropped smoke bombs and plunged down in dangerous power dives which frightened off the sharks long enough for the "Mendota" to reach the scene, pull the exhausted mariners from the water 40 miles from the grave of the luckless "Zenny Chandris."

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. How long was it after Coronado's Texas exploration before other Spaniards began a search from Mexico to the north for gold and silver.

A. Forty years later, in 1581, Hernan Gallegos listened to stories of immense wealth, to the north of Mexico as related by a captured Indian, these being substantially the same as were told to Cabeza de Vaca, and he organized a party to search for the golden wealth.

Q. Who led the Gallegos party to Texas and from what place did it start?

A. Gallegos had with him in the party that started from the Spanish outpost of Santa Barbara, Francisco Sanchez Chamuscado, who was appointed leader, and three friars, Frays Agustin Rodriguez, Juan de Santa Maria and Francisco Lopez, besides nine soldiers and nineteen Indian servants.

Q. What did Gallegos learn about Cabeza de Vaca's wanderings across Texas?

A. In answer to inquiries as to whether other Christians had been in the country, Gallegos was told by Jumanos Indians that many years before four Christians had passed that way. The descriptions of these showed that the party must have been Cabeza de Vaca and his companions.

Q. What other parts of Texas did the Gallegos party explore after leaving the Big Bend section?

A. After going into New Mexico to Taos, they turned east, crossed the upper Pecos, and followed somewhat closely the route of Coronado into the upper Texas plains, the route, according to Gallegos, taking them to Indian pueblos, the location and description of which corresponded with that of the Quivira of Coronado's search.

Q. What caused the Gallegos expedition to return to Mexico after meeting the Quechero Indians?

A. Ill will and open hostilities of the Quecheros which they encountered, who so greatly outnumbered the Spaniards, determined them to go back. Frays Rodriguez and Lopez refused to return, preferring to remain and preach to the Indians.

Q. What expedition to Texas soon followed that of Gallegos and his companions?

A. In the fall of 1582, Antonio de Espejo, enticed by visions of wealth but with the search for Frays Rodriguez and Lopez as a pretext, crossed the Rio Grande into Texas as the Big Bend, with a party of 14. Proceeding north, they learned of the murder of the two friars, and hearing of golden riches to the west, they turned west from the Rio Grande into New Mexico. Finding neither gold nor silver, they then turned east and after much fruitless wandering, finally followed the Pecos south and crossed into Mexico some distance above the mouth of the Pecos.

Q. Who led early expeditions from New Mexico in search of Quivira?

A. In 1634, Capt. Alonso de Vaca led a small party of soldiers and Indians from Santa Fe some 300 leagues east, but turned back to avoid hostile Indians. In 1650 Capt. Hernan Martin and Diego de Castillo, under orders from the governor of New Mexico, with a group of soldiers and Indians, explored the Texas Concho Rivers, where they found pearls, but no gold.

TURKEY STILL KING OF HARVEST TABLES

Of course, you can plan a delicious Thanksgiving menu without turkey; but when it is chosen, the meal is certain to come up to expectations of what this glorious feast should be. Choose the bird with care and roast it according to the following directions. If you want to be original, vary the stuffing. There are many types from which to choose—several are given below:

Roast Turkey

Dress, singe and wash the turkey; wipe it carefully inside and out and stuff with your favorite dressing. Spread the bird generously with butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place the turkey on its back in the roasting pan. Roast in a moderate oven until tender—allowing from 18 to 25 minutes to the pound according to the age of the fowl. Baste with 1/2 cup butter melted in 1/2 cup boiling water. Continue basting every 15 minutes with fat in the pan. After the bird has rested for one hour on its back place on its breast to finish roasting, turning from side to side to brown evenly.

Celery, Olive and Brazil Nut Stuffing

1 1/2 cups chopped celery, 1/2 cup chopped olives, drained, 5 cups soft bread crumbs, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 1/4 teaspoon paprika, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 6 tablespoons melted shortening, 3/4 cup chopped Brazil nuts, 1 cup hot water or stock.

Mix all ingredients and blend thoroughly. Dry inside of turkey and stuff. This amount is sufficient for a ten-pound turkey.

Peanut Stuffing

2 cups shelled, toasted peanuts, 2 cups hot milk, 6 dozen crackers, toasted and finely crushed, (3 1/2 cups), 4 tablespoons melted shortening, 2 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon pepper.

Blend ingredients and pack lightly into the turkey.

Sage and Onion Stuffing

2/3 cup fat, 1/2 cup chopped onions, 3 quarts soft bread crumbs, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon sage, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon salt.

Cook onion in hot fat until almost tender. Add soft bread crumbs mixed with seasonings and cook until bread is thoroughly heated and well mixed with onions.

Savory Dressing

8 to 10 cups stale bread, broth to moisten, 1/2 teaspoon thyme, 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 1/2 cup minced onion, 1 cup celery, cut fine, turkey liver rubbed to a paste, 1/2 cup melted butter, 2 eggs.

Moisten bread slightly. Add other ingredients. Add beaten eggs and butter last. Stuff turkey.

Oyster and Ham Stuffing

8 to 10 cups stale bread, 1/2 cup melted butter, 1 tablespoon shredded parsley, 2 dozen small oysters, 1 cup finely chopped baked ham, milk to moisten, salt and pepper.

Blend ingredients and stuff turkey.

Walnut Poultry Dressing

Giblets from turkey, 1 onion, 1 bay leaf, 1 cup boiling water, 1 large stale loaf of bread, 1 tablespoon salt, 2 tablespoons poultry seasoning, 2 cups walnut kernels, chopped fine, 4 tablespoons melted fat.

Cook giblets, onion and bay leaf in the boiling water until tender. Then chop giblets fine. Remove crusts from bread and crumb the bread very fine. Mix giblets and crumbs with salt, poultry seasonings or sage.

BUDGET BUILDER

WISE way to keep the budget from floundering is to build up a repertoire of month-end dishes—simple, savory fare that's guaranteed to keep you out of the red and still meet your highest standards. Start your collection right now with this recipe for Ham and Cheese Pudding:

Grind—
1/2 lb. American cheese
1/2 lb. boiled ham
6 small soda crackers, using finest cutter of meat chopper.

Beat—
3 eggs. Add to ground mixture and blend well.

Add—
1 teaspoonful Red Pepper Sauce
1 teaspoonful Worcestershire Sauce
Dash of salt
1 1/2 cupfuls milk
1/2 teaspoonful baking powder, and mix thoroughly.

Pour into a buttered casserole or baking pan and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 35 minutes or so, depending upon depth of batter in pan. Comes out a soufflé of sorts when it's done this way.

PUT-UP JOB

You don't have to cool your heels waiting for the next seasonal cycle to put up preserved pickled fruits anymore. With this grand recipe cup silvered candied cherries, 1/3 cup candied orange peel, 1/3 cup sliced citron, 1/3 cup silvered almonds, 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon soda.

Cover apricots with cold water and boil 1 minute. Drain and slice coarsely. Then beat the shortening, sugar, egg yolks together until light. Stir in raisins and fruits. Sift flour, salt and soda. Add alternately with stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into well-greased casserole. Cover it. Bake in a very low oven 2 hours or longer.

all you need is a can of fruit and the inclination, then you may have spiced peaches or pears to garnish your meat platters any time of the year:

Drain—
1 large can pears, peaches, apricots or pineapple of juice, reserving 1 cupful fruit juice.

Combine this juice with—
1 cupful sugar
1/2 cupful Distilled White Vinegar
10-12 whole cloves.

Boil together slowly until thick and syrupy. Add drained fruit and simmer slowly 1/2 hour. Chill and serve. You can tone up the flavor with a stick of cinnamon tucked into the liquid before boiling if you've a mind to. Grand garnish on a platter full of meats.

FOR PIE PATRONS
Folks who like their food with a flair will take to this Apple Butter Nutmeg Pie. It's smooth eating and no trick at all to make this way:

Combine—
1/2 cupful sugar
3/4 tablespoonfuls flour
1/2 cupful Pure Apple Butter
1/2 cupfuls butter, melted
2 eggs
2 1/2 cupfuls top milk
1/2 teaspoonful nutmeg.

Beat thoroughly after each addition. Pour into an unbaked 9-inch pie shell and bake in a hot oven (450° F.) 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 325° F. and bake 40 minutes more or until the pie is set and a silver knife comes out clean when inserted in the center.

Fruit Cake
1 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 1/2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon each of nutmeg, allspice and cloves, 1/2 cup orange juice, 1 pkg. pitted dates, 1/2 pound almonds (whole), 5 eggs, 1/2 pound candied cherries (whole), 1/2 pound pecans (whole), 1 pound white raisins, 1/4 pound puffed raisins, 1/2 pound candied pineapple, 1/4 pound citron, 1/4 pound orange and lemon peel, mixed, 1 small glass cherry or grape jelly.

Dredge fruit with the 1/2 cup flour. Cream butter and sugar, add eggs and beat thoroughly. Add dry ingredients alternately with orange juice and jelly. Combine with fruits. Turn into a well greased tube pan or 3 loaf pans. Line bottom of pan with paper. Do not smooth batter. Garnish and bake 3 to 4 hours at moderate heat.

Looking For Turkey Substitute? Why Not Try Meat Loaf?

Perhaps you plan to vary from the traditional this Thanksgiving and replace the resplendent turkey with some other type of meat. Why not try a different meat loaf this year?

In fashionable circles, the meat loaf is likely not to appear as a loaf at all, says Inez S. Wilson, home economist. Instead, the meat loaf mixture may be baked in a ring, it may be baked on a wooden plank, with the other foods to be served arranged around it, or it cakes. And it is the wise housewife who takes advantage of the many varieties of meat loaves to include this tasty and economical meat dish on her menus at every opportunity.

Standard Meat Loaf Recipe
1 1-2 pounds ground beef
1-2 pound ground pork
1 small onion, grated
1 cup fine dry bread or crackers crumbs
2 teaspoons salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup milk

Have beef from neck, shank or chuck and pork from the shoulder ground together. Season with grated onion, salt and pepper. Add bread crumbs and mix well. Moisten with slightly beaten egg and milk.

Ways to Vary Meat Loaf
Pack meat loaf mixture firmly into a ring mold and bake. When done unmold into a large chop plate, fill center with creamed vegetables and decorate with parsley. Or if this meat loaf is to be served cold as a buffet supper, fill the center with a crisp vegetable salad.

Line loaf pan with bacon slices before packing in mixture. When unmolded, if these slices are not as

REA Temporarily Halts Project In McCulloch County

Continuing its drive for low electric rates, both wholesale and retail, the Rural Electrification Administration Monday announced temporary halting of its $320,000 loan project in McCulloch County pending reconsideration by the Brady City Council of its action doubling the rate charged for supplying current from its city plant.

REA officials said the rate agreed on a year ago was 1c a kilowatt hour but that recently the City Council rescinded that ordinance and withdrew the contract and now is asking 2c.

"Unless a solution can be found in short order," said REA, "it may become necessary either to increase the minimum bill to about $5 per month or to postpone the construction of the lines."

The project called for 100 miles of line to serve 300 prospective customers in the county.

REA has announced allotment of $100,000 loan to another West Texas co-operative to build 412 miles of line serving 850 customers in Coleman, Brown and Callahan Counties. The Coleman municipal plant was given as the probable source of power.

Test in Ellenberger Lime Will Be Made

An Ellenberger lime test will be drilled on the Will H. Mayes 200-acre tract 3 1/2 miles west of Brownwood, according to Lloyd H. Brown who has leased the land.

The location is on a direct line with the new 1,200 barrel well near Cisco, which is producing from the Ellinger lime, and the R. M. Rigsdale et al 500-barrel well near Byrds, which is producing from the Ransler lime.

A well was drilled to 1,981 feet on the tract in 1929 and had a fair showing of oil but later was plugged. Although the new test is planned for about 3,000 feet depth, the hole will be started large enough so that the well can be drilled to 4,000 feet.

Outcome of Games This Week Decides Conference Title

As six members of the Texas Conference football teams meet on three different fronts for final conference games on Turkey Day, there are two solutions as to the winner for the coveted Texas Conference crown.

If the Howard Payne College Yellow Jackets uphold their undefeated conference record by whipping the Southwestern University Pirates, at Georgetown Thursday, the crown will go undisputed to Coach McAdoo Keaton's juggernaut.

However, if Dame-Fortune turns her head on the Reptonmen in this final game of the season, and Austin College continues a record marked only by the Jackets, and defeats Trinity University at Sherman, the conference honors will be divided between the Jackets and Kangaroos. Last week Austin College topped its fifth victim of the season, St. Edwards, 12-6.

Daniel Baker vs. T. W. C. Fighting for fourth place in Brownwood on Thursday will be the Daniel Baker Hill Billies and Texas Wesleyan Rams—early season possessors of cellar positions who have climbed steadily during the past few weeks of play. Last week the Hill Billies made it two straight by defeating the Southwestern Pirates by a score of 7-6. The T. W. C. Rams on the other hand remained idle, sharpening their forks for the final Turkey Day game.

Two games scheduled for this week—Abilene Christian College vs. Sul Ross at Abilene and McMurry vs. Texas A. & I. at Kingsville—have been called off, Saturday afternoon in Abilene, the McMurry Indians rallied in the last ten minutes of the ball game to defeat the Abilene Christian College 13-7, and save themselves an upset at the hands of the cellar-position Wildcats. A non-conference game Friday matches St. Edward's with the strong Texas School of Mines at El Paso.

Schedule This Week Thanksgiving Day—Daniel Baker College vs. Texas Wesleyan College in Brownwood. Howard Payne College vs. Southwestern University at Georgetown.

Mr. and Mrs. John Tippen have moved to Brownwood to live with their daughter, Mrs. Letha Snipes.

Mr. and Mrs. Billie McNurten, who have bought the John Tippen place, moved to their new home Thursday. For several years Mr. and Mrs. McNurten have farmed the P. R. Reid farm. Mr. McNurten has won the reputation of being one of the best farmers in this part of the country. We are glad to see them take their place as land owners in our community.

Grandma Egger has been quite sick this week. Had to have the doctor with her Wednesday. It is reported that she is not any better. Her daughters, Mrs. Wood Roberts and Mrs. R. M. Haynes, are helping wait on her.

Mr. Guthrie came back from San Antonio Friday night. He reports that they think that Miss Sybil is improving some, but her condition is still very critical, and it will be a long time before they can hope for her to be able to leave the hospital. He and Mrs. Guthrie are staying with her most of the time.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Hanna and Erva June and Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Dwyer had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. John Briley Sunday after church. Mr. and Mrs. Hanna who have just leased out their place have located in Lubbock for this year. They expect to move the first of December.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Reeves had dinner at the Wilmett home Sunday after church.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilmett of San Saba county spent the weekend at home. They took on a job of hog killing while here this time.

Dr. and Mrs. May have moved in the house with Homer Reeves and his mother for winter quarters.

Miss Bernice Wilmett spent Monday night with Mrs. Alvin Hanna.

Mrs. Frank Crowder of Oakland attended church here Sunday, and spent the rest of the day with her mother, Mrs. Lula Kelly.

Roscoe Jones has been drilling in oats for Mrs. Nellie Malone this past week.

Neuma Crowder, Carl White, and Truman Crowder had a most interesting experience last week. As Alvin Hanna was going to San Angelo on a prospecting tour, Neuma and Carl went along with him to visit Truman and other relatives there. The three boys went out to the air port. While there a large plane landed. They began to inspect it and to question the pilot. They found it was enroute to South America, but would stop over in San Antonio. The pilot told them if they wanted to ride with him to San Antonio, to climb in, it would not cost them anything, so they climbed in. When they got to San Antonio, they sent a telegram back to tell Alvin, who had been trying to find them to take them home. The newspaper reporters who met the big plane in San Antonio said it was the first time they had ever heard of hitch hiking on an airplane.

Yes, and we also saw Neuma's picture in the Dallas Semi-Weekly Farm News, last week in a group of 4-H boys who had won high grading on the cotton they had raised. Two publicity stunts in one week. That's going some. Congratulations, Neuma.

Carl Day and his brother and P. R. Reid and Dale Reid went down about Liano last week on the enchanted chase. We haven't heard a result of the trophies, yet.

A light snow with some sleet fell here Monday, but left us Tuesday morning.

PEEP SHOW —For Ladies Only—

BY MIGNON

I thought the Ku Klux had me
I did, well bless my soul,
But that white cape and peaked
hood

Was our highway patrol.

Yes, yes, my good girls, if a hooded highway man overtakes you hold on to everything and slow down. It is just the new rain cap and hoods of the highway patrol. It might be well to tell him how ducky he looks in it, too, instead of saying you are an out-state resident and "don't know no better."

Education week and book week
come along so closely together that it keeps us all on the hop brushing up and trying to find out if we are really book minded or not, if we know education when we see it, or the so-called culture. Education for living is the only kind of education that counts. What matters the degrees and keys if they do not represent a knowledge how to live with people, how to live with oneself. The time has come when education is almost demanded to find positions.

Education has come to be a MUST. But how much some folks do depend on their degrees instead of the knowledge that should be inside their heads. If your boy or girl lacks the poise and polish which comes from within, the folks who make up their acquaintances then all the outside glitter and polish has been a waste of money and time. Learning to live instead of the learning to earn would be a very fine thing to remember in acquiring an education.

The tragedy of the Paul Wrights in California leaves another little baby girl who will carry pockmarks of selfishness in her heart for life as the fault of her parents. Both accused of cheating, the fact remains that the wiseful-eyed little girl is the one who has been cheated.

My best boy friend in Tulsa
Has lost his sense of humor,
A painful operation
For black leg or for tumor
Would be much easier to bear
For this old gal and rhyme
For he don't ever say no more,
"Whyant you c'mup sometime?"

I was hating all kinds of weather and jobs, particularly the seven-in-one that I hold down which made me miss the annual writers luncheon last week in Oklahoma City, but today I read Juanita Thrower's Diary in the Hartshorne Sun and felt all satisfied and that I had been there, she gave such a glowing account of the meeting
besides I didn't miss my new boy friend, Walter Harrison (He being the nice editor who put my poem right on the front page of his big daily) When I heard he didn't get to be there with his address I felt a little better because I don't see how I could have stood it if I had had to miss that. However, from Juanita's account it was a grand

Enumerators Make Check of Census

In an effort to determine locally the percentage of errors made in filling out unemployment census cards distributed throughout the nation, census officials are making a test enumeration this week on a city mail route.

Brownwood was selected by lot as one of the cities in the United States where the test enumerations are being made. Through the tests in selected cities, census officials are hopeful of determining the percentage of errors in all the cards.

Approximately 1,500 of the unemployment census cards distributed in Brownwood were filled out and returned to the postoffice.
and glorious occasion lasting away into the night when Peggy Brashear had all the gang out to her house in one of those wonderful evenings like we all love and have so few of. Helen McMahan sitting down to the piano and tickling the ivories as accompaniment to delightful patter concerning the past, present and future and most all of the guests present, and Peggy's sweet voice and her husband, Claud, going about making everyone feel happy and at ease in their home.
Then Florence Hillard, who is the essence of everything sweet and lovely was the one who handed out the prizes which were as follows:

In the long short group, Mrs.
Maybelle Flint of Lamont, was the winner of first prize, Mrs. John G.
Daugherty, Oklahoma City, who is second vice-president, placed second and Mrs. Alice Sutton Mc-George, Enid, took third place. In the short shorts, Mrs. Daniel Dolly, Choctaw, was the first place winner, Mrs. Theresa D. Black, of Enid, second place winner, and Mrs. O. A. Nation, Oklahoma City, third place.

I'm rushed as usual, out of breath
I'm scared and plum afraid

Grangers—

as the representative of the Farm Bureau.

L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, said he thought a majority, possibly 75 per cent of the delegates were members of the Farm Bureau, so Wednesday action could not be construed as an attack on that organization, but instead, an expression of disapproval of a Government-farm organization alliance.

Another resolution adopted favored an amendment to the farm loan act placing supervision of the Federal Farm Credit Administration under a bipartisan board with terms so staggered as to assure a continuity of policies and avoid possible use of the organization for partisan purposes.

The resolution pointed out that the Federal farm loan act provided for a bi-partisan Federal Farm Loan Board of seven members, six of whom were to be appointed for definite terms on a staggered basis, but that this board was abolished and its functions transferred to the Farm Credit Administration. This latter organization is composed of a governor and four commissioners, all appointed to serve at the will of the President.

The Grange also took a firm stand on enactment of the Black-Connerly wages and hours bill and asked fair consideration for agricultural in negotiation or reciprocal trade agreements.

Labor Detriment
In adopting a resolution disapproving the wages and hours bill, the stand was taken that it would be detrimental to labor and industry as well as agriculture.

The Grangers saw little, if any good in the bill and set forth their reasons:

It would be virtually impossible for farmers to obtain hired help at wages specified in the bill — that would be beyond his reach.

Labor would suffer because employers would be encouraged to install more labor-saving machinery to keep production costs down.

Industry which could not meet requirements of the Labor Standards Board would be forced to shut down and many would be thrown out of work.

Possibility of achieving price parity between agriculture and industry would be destroyed because it would increase prices of commodities on the same price level.

It would be unwise to give an appointive board power over industry and useless to fix a maximum of 40c an hour with a maximum of forty hours a week while permitting imports from countries where wages are as low as 3c to 5c an hour.

Declaring reciprocal trade agreements in a measure have traded the American market for agricultural products to foreign countries for a market for industry, the Grange demanded American markets be reserved for the American farm.

"The protective tariff gives industry the American labor market for their product," the adopted resolution said. "The immigration law gives the American labor market to the American workman."

"The resolution also asks that the law governing reciprocal agreements be so amended as to require United States Senate approval, setting forth that this is in accord with the Constitution and decisions of the Supreme Court.

Submission of a new child labor amendment giving Congress right to prohibit employment of children under 16 in industries manufacturing products going into interstate commerce was approved in another resolution.

Official statistics show corn is South Carolina's biggest crop, the normal yearly yield being about 50,000,000 bushels.

Test—

service in the United States. Whether or not Brownwood will be included in the towns to which air mail service is extended depends largely upon the interest that is shown in the service at the time of the test flight, Mr. Harrison declared.

"The amount of air mail out of Brownwood now is heavy, but this mail must go by bus or rail to Ft. Worth, thus delaying time of delivery by several hours. Every citizen of Brownwood should be interested in the test flight and cooperate in the efforts of Postmaster Kidd, Mayor Thompson and the Chamber of Commerce toward presenting evidence that will warrant extension of air mail service to Brownwood," Mr. Harrison said.

John E. Hearn, state game warden in Webb county, Texas, has killed 69 Mexican lions since appointed to the service in 1936.

Red Ships Divide Cargo of Refugees

For the comfort of 1400 refugees taken aboard the Cooperatia in Spain, about half of them were transferred to the sister ship, Felix Dzerjinsky, during a halt at Kent, England, on the journey to Leningrad. One of the transferred children is just starting down the gangplank to join others on the deck of the Dzerjinsky.

operating, maintenance, replacement and interest charges and to pay the district for water supplied under the contract.

Under the contract Brown County Water Improvement District No. 1 agrees: To construct and equip a diversion canal from Lake Brownwood to Round Mountain; to install a storage reservoir and settling basin; to construct pipe lines and conduits to a separate reservoir which it also agrees to construct; to build a filtration and aeration plant; to build connection between the plant and the city lines; and to install valves and meters at the connection.

The contract is for a period of thirty years. The water district will never have the right to demand payment for water furnished to the city from moneys raised or to be raised from taxation.

Bids Are Asked
Another provision of the contract is that the water district will not be "under duty to construct the improvement until it has received a grant from the United States government of approximately $450,000 in cash, has made a definite sale of approximately $600,000 of its bonds, and has refunded and or refinanced its present outstanding indebtedness aggregating $1,493,000 on terms and conditions approved by the board of directors of said district."

The water district is now advertising for bids for construction of the first unit of the irrigation and water distribution system. The bids will be opened at 10 a. m., December 22 in the water board office. The first unit includes construction of part of the canal system of the project. The construction contract will be let by the district if the water purchase contract with the city is approved in the election and if other plans are successfully completed.

So! You Thought It Never Would Leave the Ground!

To look at it, you'd never think the contraption invented by Professor Heinrich Focke ever could leave the ground; yet it's not an optical illusion that confronts you above. It's actually in the air, at the Bremen airport. Devoid of conventional airplane wings, it is lifted by whirling autogyro vanes poised at the sides.
