persons convicted in Texas courts hereafter can expect to pay more than stiff fines and jail terms. He explained that his office will collect a $10 or $15 fee from persons convicted. convicted of criminal charges, that "the cost of crime, just like everything else in today's economy, is else in today's economy, is going up."

A new law passed by the Texas legislature legalizes this mini-crackdown on crime. Bullock says that a $15 fee will be assessed against a person convicted of a felony and $10 against a person convicted of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of more than $200. Those are additional to other fines and costs ordered by the court.

fines and costs ordered by the court.

Its purpose will be to create a fund to compensate victims of crime, and the program is to be run by the state's Industrial Accident Board. It is expected to raise $37 million in the first year of operation and $20 million in the next five years.

The idea sounds like a dandy, a step toward correcting a long time injustice to victims. Many times our courts have made criminals pay their debt to society by fine or imprisonment, but they did nothing to help the victim of crime. Perhaps he was burglarized or swindled for a stiff loss, or he received injuries that caused hospital and medical expense or severe pain, plus the loss of income. Definitely such victims are entitled to compensation.

In fact, it seems that they sation.

In fact, it seems that they are entitled to more than the small amounts that the state comptroller is trying to provide. Assessments of $10 and $15 against the small number of people who are caught and convicted is a drop in the bucket compared to the needs of all victims.

To really get on the right to the needs of all victims.

To really get on the right track, the state, or whoever originated the idea, needs to get down to the basics of ethics and the ten commandments. As every child has learned, or should have learned, stealing or destruction of preparety or physical in. ned, stealing or destruction of property or physical injury are sins, and they require restitution before they can be rectified in the eyes of God. It means that the offender or criminal owes the victim for the amount of the loss.

By our standard of justice the victim is left empty handed, we taxpayers are stuck with the expense of supporting a convict while he is in a penitentiary, and the convict is the only one who gains. He receives a wage for the work he does in prison.

As It looks from here, our lawmakers should see what

As it looks from here, our lawmakers should see what they can do about this situation. The court ought to take note of the injury or loss a victim sustained in a crime as well as of the convicted person's ability to pay. If he can make restitution the court should make him pay as a matter of rightfully settling the case. And if he's sentenced to the pen the judge should order a deduction from every pay check to apply to the debt.

The comptroller's idea looks like a good deal especially for the victims who deserve compensation for the pain or loss they sustain, and the bar actided policy are as a content of the pain or loss they sustain, and serve compensation for the pain or loss they sustain, and it has added value as a possible deterrent to crime. Imagine, for instance a big time swindle. A crook would be more hesitant to try it if he had to make restitution as well as go to the pen.

A related improvement in court procedure has been proposed by Senator Lloyd Bentsen. He wants to replace the current system of "indeterminate" sentencing with a new approach known as "presumptive" sentencing. He points out that our system is not working...that cing. He points out that our system is not working...that mass murderers like Charles Manson and Richard Speck are eligible for parole, other dangerous offenders go unpunished, and disparities in sentences of those who are punished lead to great injustices. Criminals can feel that if convicted the odds are in their favor, that they take little risk in doing violence to the risk in doing violence to innocent people. A reason behind this problem is that judges have the discretion to set virtually any sentence and

WASHINGTON, D.C. -

After World War II the confidence of Americans seemed almost unlimited. We had defeated the Axis powers and then, through the Marshall Plan, rebuilt most of Western Europe. We could do all this and at the same time provide prosperity for our own citizens. People all over the world were beginning to predict that the next 100 years would be an "American Century."

Looking back on this era, it is hard to imagine today that confidence in our leaders and ourselves is at such a low ebb. Few people are talking about extending America's power and influence and no one is using the phrase "American Century." The present situation is, in a large part, due to our ing the phrase "American Cen-trury." The present situation is, in a large part, due to our Country's involvement in the Vietnam War. This conflict shattered the belief in our abili-ty to find pragmatic solutions to difficult problems. It has shaken the concept of ourselves as a Nation.

Now there is a pervasive sense among Americans that we ought to put Vietnam behind us and get on with the business of the world. This attitude neither does justice to

It has been over six years since the signing of the Paris accords and we still have not accords and we still have not received a full accounting of the over 2,500 MIA's. Very little has been done to convince the Vietnam government that we will not forget the issue. The President's MIA commission was told by the Defense Department that it is reasonable to assume the Hanoi regime can provide information on over 1,000 of the missing servicemen. But the Administration has applied little pressure to receive this data.

The communist governments of Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia have repeatedly sought economic assistance from the United States. They claim that we owe them "reparation" payments. Though they seek our aid, they have done little to provide information about MIA's. It is callous and cruel to use this callous and cruel to use this knowledge as a pawn in an international chess game.

Looking Ahead

Dr. George S. Benson NATIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAM

BACKGROUND TO SALT II
When there is general misunderstanding of the true nature of Communism and the threat it poses to national security, the public will oppose or be very reluctant to disarm. Therefore, proponents of disarmament and appeasement of the Soviets launched a calculated campaign to influence the thinking of the American people by attempting to destroy all anti-Communist programs. If the public should be induced to believe there was no Communist threat, they would be more amenable to accepting disarmament.

In 1958, President Eisenhower and the National Security Council had issued a directive which "directed the military not only to educate the troops in the nature, strategy and lactics of Communism, but also to help educate the public concerning the nature of the cold war in which we are engaged." It was on the basis of this directive that military officers were speaking to Freedom Forums. civic clubs. Reuthers recommended: (1) muzzling the military and eliminating anti-Communist programs from the government; (2) listing conservative groups as subversive to intimidate potential members; (3) having the Internal Revenue Service revoke the tax-exempt

Sorvice revoke the tax-exempt status of anti-Communist groups; (4) using the Federal Communications Commission to harass television and radio stations which provide time for conservative commentators; and (5) putting an end to the "exaggeration of the domestive Communist menace."

The net effect of the Fulbright and Reuther memorandums, as a result of the acceptance of their major recommendations by the Kennedy administration, was to practically eliminate the anti-Communist programs in America. To be sure, a few kept going but their influence was considerably diminished. Within a short time the public was deemed ready for disarmament.

The broad disarmament plan engaged." It was on the basis of this directive that military officers were speaking to Freedom Forums, civic clubs and church groups all across the country. As a result, millions of Americans were becoming concerned about the Communist threat.

In 1961, Senator Fulbright sent an infamous memorandum to the White House attacking the 1958 directive, smearing anti-Communist leaders, and urging "muzzling of the military." The Communists loved it and reprinted portions of it in their paper, The Worker. Although it isn't possible here to discuss the Fulbright Memorandum in further detail, there is no question but that the Senator and this document must bear a great deal of the responsibility for laying the groundwork for unilateral disarmament in the face of the Soviet threat.

Coupled with Fulbright's subversive act was another by Walter and Victor Reuther, who sent a memorandum to the Attorney General, Robert Kennedy. Because the Reuthers and their unions had a great deal to do with the election of John F. Kennedy, they had considerable political clout and they were seeking the payoff. In their memorandum the within a short time the public was deemed ready for disarmament.

The broad disarmament plan was outlined in Department of State Publication '277. Phase One would halt nuclear weapons tests and reduce strategic delivery systems and conventional arms and armed forces. Phase Two called for reduction of stocks of nuclear weapons and further cuts would be made in the armed forces. It should be obvious to anyone who follows the news that our leaders have taken us into Phase Two. It will be developed later that this disarmament has been unilateral, solely on the part of the United States, while the only adversaries we have in the world, the Soviet Union and Communist China, the nation-leaders of international Communism, have continued to arm unabated.

Microwave directions: In 1 quart casserole place green pepper. Cut onion into 1/4 inch slices, separate into rings and place on top of green pepper. Slice mushrooms and place on top. Sprinkle on seasonings. Add water and melted butter. Cover and microcook at high 6 minutes, stirring after 3 minutes. Cut tomatoes into 3/4 inch wedges and arrange over casserole. Cover. Microcook at high 2-3 minutes more, until tomatoes are just heated. Makes 4 servings.

Stir fry directions: This recipe can be made in a wok by starting the onions first, adding the peppers, then the mushrooms. Tomatoes should be added at the very last of the cooking and should be only lightly cooked. The basil and salt should be added at the end of cooking. The water is omitted.

VFW and Auxiliary To Sponsor Annual Democracy Contest

Plans have been announced by the Muenster VFW and its Ladies Auxiliary to again co-sponsor the annual Voice co-sponsor the annual Voice of Democracy contest.

Theme of this year's scriptwriting contest open to all students of the 10th, 11th and 12th grades, is "My Role in America's Future."
The Muenster VFW will award prizes for first, second and third place winners. The winning entrant will then tape his or her speech and it will be entered in the District I contest. District winners will be forwarded to State and then National competition.

and then National competition.

Mary Ann Walterscheid, local chairman, will contact both schools and distribute the necessary information.

Purpose of the contest is to foster patriotism in that by thinking, writing and speaking up for their country, students gain a better appreciation of their obligation to maintain our nation's freedom heritage.

All students eligible to en-ter are urged to participate and express their views on our democratic way of life.

Weinzapfel Guests

Weinzapfel Guests
Guests of Mr. and Mrs.
J.M. Weinzapfel Monday of last week were a niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs.
Frank Leichner of Wichita Falls. They brought along many pictures of the tornado which struck Wichita Falls last April. They told many stories associated with the devastating storm: how only a house plant was left standing on a pedestal, while their home and all furniture was completely destroyed around it; how they were wondering through the ruins three days later when they heard a dog whining, under the shambles. Uncovering an area, they found it was their own dog. The Leichners also told many stories relating kindnesses of people to people, helping each other.

Duane Knabe enrolled Tuesday at UTA as a fresh-man, majoring in engineering and accounting.

Remember those purple blooming weeds, that wintergrass, dandelions and other weeds you had in your lawn early this spring. Well they all sprouted last fall between September and October. There is a product out called Balan, looks like and is applied like a fertilizer that when applied in early September will PREVENT those weeds from even sprouting. Best of all it is perfectly safe to use around trees and shrubs and it works. But it must be applied in early September. Come by the Muenster Garden Center and pick up your BALAN

Gasohol Producers Gearing Up To Utilize Texas Farm Products

Energy Advisory Council (TEAC) Subcommittee on Agriculturally-Derived Fuels where members studied various biomass energy resources available, including gasohol.

At the meeting, leading gasohol authority Holly Hodge contended that liquid fuel produced from farm products could supply at least five per cent of this country's gasoline needs by 1985.

"But we've got to get in high gear," Hodge cautioned members of the TAEC Subcommittee.

"The goal of producing 5 billion gallons of alcohol a year from farm products by 1985 is not unrealistic," said Hodge, president of the National Gasohol Council of Lincoln, Nebraska.

"Renewable agricultural resources are the only short-tremendous," Hodge stated.

One area often overlooked is the wide range of useful byproducts which result from the distillation of alcohol from organic substances, commented W. W. "Bill" Walton, president of W. W. Oil Company of Breckennidge.
Walton stated that one very valuable by-product of the distillation process at the present time is carbon dioxide. One bushel of grain will produce, in addition to 18 pounds of ethyl alcohol, 18 pounds of high-protein livestock feed and 18 pounds of carbon dioxide.

Walton stressed that carbon dioxide is in great demand for injection into old oil wells and those with high viscosity oil to help recover hard-to-get petroleum. At an estimated net value of $7 per ton, this by-product could bring in an additional $550,000 per year to a distilling plant with 75,000-gallons-per-day capacity.

How many of you have noticed that vast difference in the Automobile commericals on TV, radio, magazines and newspapers? Before the gasoline shortage all these commercials quoted how fast these cars would go. How many seconds it took to reach a certain speed, correach a certain speed, corre How many seconds it took to reach a certain speed, cornering ability, the comfort and smooth ride you would get. Now the big "come on" is the gas mileage—for the same cars. NOW if you just must own one of those big impressive cars—you might pick up a real jewel at the Salvation Army or Good Will Industry. People are donating them to these organizations for tax writeoffs. Better still, alot of the big impressive car owners in the metroplex are leaving these "gas hogs" sit out in the streets with keys intact just hoping someone will steel them. With the price of the streets with keys infact just hoping someone will steal them. With the price of gasoline and the upkeep—who can afford to steal one? As for me—I'm thinking a horse and buggey would be the thing.

Denton Teams Win 3 Schlitz Trophies

Denton teams claimed three of the four trophies awarded last weekend at the slo-pitch softball tournament sponsored here by the Schlitz team. And the hosts were the No. 3 team.

The champ, with a perfect record in the double elimination tournament, was Zoom Zoom, which was the winner in 4 of the 5 tournaments to date. Danny Endres and Randy Wolf are two of the team members. The other Denton teams were Quick Gas & Texas Tobacco and Drink. and Drink ready mentally. Assistant coach Virgil Henscheid says they are hustling and hitting hard and bubbling with confidence. All of which is encouraging for Saturday's season opener with Trinity Valley at Fort Worth, except that SH has no idea what it will run into. The only pregame info received here to date is that Trinity Christian was turned back 21-0 by Abilene Christian Academy last week.

Physically the Tigers are not quite up to par. John Schlitz Malt Liquor, the other Muenster team, includes Carl Endres, Tim Endres, Chuck Bartush, Don Frazier, Joe Walterscheid, Dale Hellman, Mike Davidson, Curtis Pagel and Andy Knabe.

An outstanding feature of the tournament was the superb clean-up job by the host team after every game. At the end, usually after midnight all players picked up trash and papers and left the park in ship shape.

Fourteen teams participated in the tourney which was made up of 26 games.

To See The Rangers

Muenster Jaycees will sponsor a trip to the Ranger Ball Game on September 15, by chartered bus, for Jaycees and their wives. Those who plan to attend must notify Tom Trachta, 759-4889 by September 8. Seats that re-main available after Septem-ber 8 will be offered to the public.

be on schedule as the Hornets look forward to their opener Friday night at Chico, starting at 8 p.m.

Regarding his prospects, the Hornet chief is confident in spite of the Dragons' clear advantage in size. A possible factor is one that applies to most teams as they change over to a new coaching staff with changes of method. It takes longer for the team to get organized.

YOU CAN BANK ON IT!

To really understand the fluctuations in interest rates it is necessary to view money more as a com-modity than as a medium of exchange. When there is a high demand for wheat, prices go up accordingly. So it is with money. When a large number

When a large number of borrowers are seeking funds from banks the money supply tightens. There is less available. Banks pay a higher rate for their money and have to charge a higher rate of interest.

economic scale these in-creased rates cause the demand for money to drop. Supply slowly catches up with demand and the rates begin to go downward.

This supply and demand cycle is the basic factor determining overall interest rate fluctuation. Other factors affecting interest include inflation, credit worthiness of the individual or business and the term of the particular Remember, whatever interest rate, never borrow unless you have a good reason.
