VOLUME VI

MUENSTER, TEXAS, COOKE COUNTY, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1942

NUMBER 47

SATURDAY, OCT. 3—One thing I can't understand is how sand that shifts around so freely under foot should be so unyielding as a bed. Two nights of this now, and I'm ready to return to the comparative luxury of a folding cot—and water and lights and various other essentials of normal living that we usually take for granted.

In a way, this is not so bad. After shaking out a few aches in the morning, a person finds he has rested quite well. Make allowance for various other inconveniences, and he finds he can go through the day about as well as before. Little by little we're getting accustomed to what a few months hence will be our every day standard of living. In fact, we can feel mighty lucky if we fare this well through all the duration. Which, recent developments encourage us to believe, may not be so many years after all. The Stalingrad situation is especially cheering.

Getting down to the real purpose of our presence here, it promises to be a very interesting experience. Present report is that our outfit will do no more than place the steel mats for this airport runway. Graders, scrapers, shovels, etc., have been busy for several weeks getting the ground ready. Apparently our work can begin tomorrow—yes on Sunday. A day of rest means nothing in the service when a problem is under way.

We're told that the eyes of the army will be on us. Laying a new design or mat, we are to determine how many square feet of surface can be installed per man-hour of work. As far as we are concerned, we expect to like this better than usual duty. It gives us more opportunity to look back and see some achievement. Besides, this is to be our job in the scrap. Building landing fields and keeping them in repair.

SUNDAY, OCT. 4—Today was the day, all right. We got our first taste of laying the metal landing field. At first it was a lot of confusion. Too many to work on a small space. But gradually the pattern spreads out. At the same time the boys were getting the knack of it. The patch of metal started growing.

What a neat strip of land we have to work on! The effects of several weeks with heavy equipment are clearly evident. Slick as a table top and almost perfectly level for more than a mile. Looking from one end, a fellow is reminded of a giant bowling alley. The layman might wonder why a strip of ground as level as that could not be used as is, especially out here where it isn't likely to be marred by rain. I once had the same idea, until I learned what the gust of wind from a propeller can do. These mats, even though they are of rod and bar construction, keep down most of the dust and all the pebbles. Also, this eliminates the possibility of wearing a lot of holes in the surface, which are not so good for a large plane heavily loaded.

MONDAY, OCT. 5—The strip of field really moved forward today. Somehow the men managed to get lots of mats down, even though they go about their job leisurely. Much more leisurely I imagine, than they will under campaign conditions. If the army moguls want to know what can be done under pressure, they can almost double the figures we've given them.

Our gang has been broken into two shifts. One works 8 hours today. The other will be out there tonight, to determine what can be done in total darkness.

One thing we've all learned is that this is a tiresome job. In effect it can best be compared with a day of picking cotton. Not a severe strain at any time. Just that broken back feeling acquired from constant stooping.

TUESDAY, OCT. 6—Everybody was amazed with the tally of last night's efforts. This company can put down about half as many mats at night as it does in daylight. Which is quite an achievement in view of all the little details the job demands.

Once a mat is placed it is fastened to the next by means of clips slipped over short bars. The clip doesn't exactly slip, though. Has to be hammered over. Then, finally, the bar is bent to keep the clip in place. Imagine hammering at a small clip you cannot see. The whole thing has to be done by feel. By midnight the officers decided that the trick can be done.

Full Attendance At Pontifical Mass And Confirmation

Reception And Program Honor New Bishop In Parish Hall at 4:30

Sacred Heart church, where Very Rev. Augustine Dangelmayr was baptized, made his First Communion and received Confirmation, was filled Sunday at 11 o'clock with proud and happy people of this community as they welcomed back a native son, a newly consecrated bishop, and attended his first Pontifical Mass.

Assistants to His Excellency were Father Thomas, pastor, deacon of the mass; Rev. Father Richard, assistant pastor, sub-deacon; Rev. John P. Brady, Gainesville, and Rev. John Golczynski, chancellor of the diocese, Sacred Heart cathedral, Dallas, attendants to the bishop; Rev. Father Conrad, Lindsay, arch priest; Rev. W. J. Bender, Dallas, master of ceremonies, and Rev. Mr. Thomas Weinzapfel, Saint John's Seminary, San Antonio, assistant master of ceremonies.

Father Thomas delivered the sermon for the occasion. He extended congratulations to the new bishop in behalf of the parish and gave a brief resume of the bishop's life, pointing out the significance and influence the Sacred Heart has had on his career. He was baptized in Sacred Heart Church, attended Sacred Heart school, received his first communion and was confirmed in Sacred Heart church. When his studies were completed, he was ordained a priest in Sacred Heart cathedral, Dallas, labored there in Sacred Heart parish, and was consecrated bishop in Sacred Heart cathedral.

At the conclusion of the mass Bishop Dangelmayr spoke a few words, stating that he had not anticipated making an address, but he felt that he must offer his thanks to Father Thomas for his words of congratulations and to the parish for its gift to him, three ministers, which he explained, and held up for the congregation to see.

At noon the Bishop and visiting clergy were guests at the rectory for dinner.

Confirmation
In the afternoon at 3 o'clock the sacrament of confirmation was administered to a class of 157 candidates. In addition to the clergy present at the mass, Very Rev. Dean McCullough of Sherman, and Rev. Paul Charcut of Pilot Point were in attendance.

Reception
At 4:30 a reception and program in the parish hall honored Bishop Dangelmayr.

The program began with selections by the Youth Band, under the direction of Father Richard, after which an ensemble of school children sang a song of welcome accompanied on the piano by Sister Leonarda, and on the violin by Little Miss Betty Lue Buckley.

Little Joseph Felderhoff, tiny nephew of the bishop, gave a speech of welcome which was followed by an address of congratulations by Frank Hennigan, and the song, "Eyes of Texas" by the ensemble. Dangelmayr. Father Thomas, Father Paul Charcut and Mayor Ben Seyler then took the stage and Father Thomas, after a brief message in behalf of himself, his assistant and the congregation, introduced Mayor Seyler, who offered congratulations in behalf of the city. He directed a word of congratulations also to the parents of the bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dangelmayr, stating that the joy and pride they felt was shared by the entire community.

Father Charcut, state chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, was the next speaker. He pledged the support and assistance of the Knights of Texas, wherever possible, and offered the services of the Knights whenever needed, "particularly during these strenuous days of conflict, and in the chaos which will necessarily follow in the post-war era."

Bishop Dangelmayr then delivered a short address, stating that it was indeed a happy day for him and offered his thanks for the excellent program. He said his happiness was complete for the fact that his parents, brothers and sisters were able to attend his consecration, the mass and program and that he would like nothing better than to spend a week in his native city, but a schedule was completed for him—confirmation in Windthorst Tuesday, in Scotland Wednesday and back at the cathedral in Dallas on Sunday.

"The Star-Spangled Banner" by the band closed the program.

Sgt. Clarence Hoehn Awarded Silver Star

Sgt. Clarence (Bud) Hoehn, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hoehn, was one of 32 Texas officers and men of the United States Army Air Force, awarded the Silver Star for "gallantry in action" according to an Associated Press report from General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia.

The awards were made by Major General George C. Kennedy, commander of the Allied Air Forces in the Southwest Pacific.

MUENSTER'S SCHOOL DISTRICT WAS VOTED AN INDEPENDENT DISTRICT in a quiet election here Wednesday. A final tally of votes shows 82 for and 4 against incorporation. Likewise the seven trustees holding office heretofore were reelected as follows: Herbert Meurer, Albert Henschel, Frank Yosten, Joe J. Wimmer, S. W. Lawson, John Klement, Herman Pierce.

Little Bobby Loerwald, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Loerwald of Dallas, and nephew of Mesdames Al and Frank Waterscheid of this city, served as a page at the consecration ceremonies of Bishop Dangelmayr last Wednesday. He carried the robes of Archbishop Cioognani and was presented with an attractive medal, bearing the Pope's picture, from the prelate.

Solemn Rite Oct. 7 In Dallas Elevates Bishop Dangelmayr

Pope's Representative And Parents Attend Impressive Ceremony

Very Rev. Augustine Dangelmayr, a native son of this community, who determined at the age of 13 to enter the clergy, became Texas' ninth bishop of the Catholic Church in Dallas on Wednesday of last week, October 7.

Crowds thronged Sacred Heart Cathedral for the impressive ceremony which elevated the 43-year-old Texan to the episcopacy, and to hear Archbishop Robert E. Lucey of San Antonio, preacher of the sermon, plead for the laity to return to total Christianity.

Proudest figures there were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dangelmayr, pioneer ranchers, since 1896, of this community, where their distinguished son was born, to watch the consecration.

They recalled that their boy had said when a mere lad that he wanted to become a priest, "to engage in the hardest but finest work in the world."

And it was to these parents that the new bishop paid tribute as major contributing forces to his success, when he spoke at a luncheon later in the day to pledge lasting obedience and loyalty to the Church.

The new bishop was consecrated as Titular Bishop of Olba and auxiliary to Bishop Joseph P. Lynch of Dallas. He expressed his gratitude to Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, personal representative of the Pope in the United States, who came from Washington for the consecration, and to Bishop Lynch, his mentor and counsellor.

Archbishop Lucey, in his sermon, said, that Bishop Dangelmayr begins his career as a member of the hierarchy at the close of the era which gave materialism and widespread injustice, and at the dawn of a new day in which he can play a large part.

Magr. W. J. Noid read the papal order creating the new bishop and Archbishop Cicognani acted as consecrator.

The scene was colorful with the cloth of the church and the full dress of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, in uniforms with swords. Spectators followed the ceremony with printed orders.

The elaborate luncheon which followed at the Adolphus Hotel took two hours to serve and was followed by another two hours of toasting and speechmaking.

Sprinkled among the colorful garbs of the churchmen were the khaki uniforms of Army Chaplains who attended the ceremonies.

In addition to Bishop Dangelmayr's family and the two local pastors some twenty-five other Muenster persons attended the rites.

100 Percent Cooperation Noted In Patriotic Rally For Vitrally Needed Junk

Undoubtedly setting a new record for the gathering of scrap in this community, an army of school children, 400 strong, turned out Monday, October 12, to aid in rounding up material for the nation's steel mills and gathered an estimated 29,000 pounds of materials in the day's drive and the two days following.

The children combed not only their own premises, but also those of every home and business house in the city limits, and made numerous trips to nearby farms and oil fields.

The piles of junk at both schools grew rapidly, and classes, students and rooms vied with each other in a heated contest to bring in the scrap. Some parents assisted by donating the use of family cars and Mayor Ben Seyler cooperated by having three trucks on the roads at the students' disposal.

In addition the children brought scrap to the schools in small wagons, on bicycles, in baskets and buckets and wheelbarrows. One group of boys, impatient for the return of a truck, borrowed a friendly farmer's team of horses and wagon to speed up the job.

A glow of pride was felt not only by the children but also by observers at the patriotic attitude taken by the workers.

Candid camera fans secured a number of human interest shots during the drive. Outstanding is the one of the four young tykes struggling for all their worth under the load of a water heater and huge wagon wheel stacked high on a small wagon. Only a few yards from the scrap pile the front wheels of the wagon gave way spilling youngsters and junk into a heap.

Among the contributions some are worthy of special mention. The largest single article at the Parochial school is a completely assembled Hudson Super-Six sedan, donated by John Beards. Included also on this heap is a collection of automobile license plates, saved from year to year, since their issuance by W. L. Stock and secured for the drive by his young grandson. There is also the brass rail from the parish hall bar over which many a keg of beer was served in the "good old days."

One tiny girl deposited, without a sigh of regret, her tricycle and a little boy contributed his "slightly worn" toy cars. Another keepsake, a relic of World War I, that will again see action in a bomb marked for Hitler or Hirohito, is the tip of a shell belonging to the late Luke Tempel and contributed by his wife. He brought it back from overseas following the armistice in 1918.

The public school heap also has a number of odd and unusual items, outstanding among them the 12-pound bomb donated by Henry Trachta. The Trachta's son, Christopher, brought it home as a souvenir some years ago. It had been used for demonstration purposes at Camp (powder removed).

Archbishop Cioognani, consecrator, with hands upraised, is shown at a solemn moment during the consecration of Bishop Dangelmayr (kneeling) in Sacred Heart Cathedral, Dallas.

of Sacred Heart High

Edited this Week by Evelyn Wiesman, Johnny Ann Seyler, Gladys Wilde

Greetings to our reader friends. We are back with you for another term, a little later than usual, but nevertheless back, and you may expect to see our column each week in the future.

Our regular school work was interrupted by a two week cotton picking vacation. Or should we call it a vacation? All of us were happy however to be allowed to help serve our country in this way. We felt proud when our President spoke to the nation Monday night for certainly our school was included in the praises of our Leader. Uncle Sam can always count on the boys and girls of Sacred Heart School to do their bit for the great cause of freedom and justice, and he can also bank on our parents and benefactors.

Monday the entire school was organized in one huge scrap collection campaign according to the plan proposed by the War Production Board. We are now a part of the National Salvage Organization. The results of the first day

MUESTER PUBLIC SCHOOL.

The faculty and the student body of the Muenster Public School have assembled again for nine months of facts, fun, foolishness, but most of all—of books.

Even though we are in our fourth week of school this is our first opportunity to welcome you again to our column. We hope the Muenster Enterprise finds room every week as it did last year for these weekly articles informing you to the happenings and events of our school. We enjoy writing them, but what is far more important is your enjoyment in reading them.

The school wishes to thank all the people who cooperated with us in our scrap drive. We are glad to announce that approximately 12,463 pounds have already been collected. As the drive continues until Friday, the school is still working hard for more scrap. Each pupil aimed to bring his weight in scrap and up to Wednesday the high school had 3,378 pounds, the intermediate grades, 6,581 pounds; and the elementary grades, 2,504 which surpasses our goal by over 6,000 pounds. We are very proud of our scrap for we know it will help complete the job our Government has started.

Although metal toys may no longer be produced, the toys that are being manufactured out of wood, cardboard and other less critical materials will be brightly colored. Restrictions on use of certain pigments and oils in paint for toys have been lifted by WPB.

"TREES" IS SUBJECT AT GARDEN MEETING

With "Trees" as the subject of the afternoon's program, members of the Civic League and Garden Club heard interesting talks on the topic by Mrs. Herbert Meurer and Mrs. Rosa Driever at their meeting Friday afternoon. "Fruit Trees In Our Gardens for Beauty and Utility," and illustrated her talk with pictures and diagrams showing how attractively and profitably these trees may be grown in the average garden. Mrs. Driever's subject was "Our Trees and How They Serve Us." She mentioned the numerous products that are supplied from trees, and the indispensable services they perform to the land along with a list of species of trees which are adaptable to growth in various climates, and the principal trees of the United States.

During the business session preceding the program hour committee reports were heard and routine business discussed. Mrs. Jim Cook chairman of the defense committee asked members to save all their magazines when they have read them as these are badly wanted and much appreciated by the soldiers at Camp Howze. She mentioned that the camp also is in need of coat hangers and told members to collect those they are not using and have them ready for the Junior Red Cross to pick up in a canvass they will make this weekend. She also urged cooperation in the scrap drive.

Further details for the Flower Show, to be held November 11, were announced by Mrs. Ben Hellman, general chairman, and she mentioned that the fancy work department will feature in addition to linens, quilts, bedspreads, rugs and needlepoint. Complete rules and regulations are to be announced in The Enterprise at a later date, she concluded.

Members voted to give a ten dollar donation from the general fund of the organization toward the furnishing of a day room at Camp Howze, and Mrs. Joe Luke, president, read a list of donations received so far toward this project. Twenty members attended the session.

School Milk Program Launched In County

Pointing out the benefits of the School Milk Program to farmers and school children alike, Charles L. Howell, Fort Worth, Texas, Area Supervisor for the Agricultural Marketing Administration, said today that all schools in Cooke County, with the exception of Gainesville, are eligible for the program. (Cities of over 10,000 population are not eligible.) All children in participating schools are eligible for all the milk they want each day, the officials explained. Milk used is purchased locally with the Agricultural Administration paying the farmer's price and schools or other sponsoring agencies such as PTA, etc., assuming responsibility for processing, bottling and delivery. Children who are able to pay may be charged up to a penny a half pint to help pay handling costs.

"As a part of the nation wide nutrition campaign, the program is helping to build a strong America," Howell said.

"At the same time necessary new outlets are created for the vital increase in milk production under the Food for Freedom Program."

Schools interested in securing the School Milk Program should write to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Marketing Administration, 401 Federal Building, Fort Worth, Texas.

Ferd Luttmere, seaman second class, advised relatives here this week that he is being transferred and that he will send his new address as soon as possible upon arrival at his new station. He had been in San Diego, Calif.

4-H Club Girls Have Annual Officers Election

The annual election of officers was the principal business at the meeting of the local girls' 4-H Club Wednesday morning when it met in the school auditorium with Miss Netta Schultz, county agent, and Mrs. Tony Gremminger, sponsor, in attendance.

The results of the election are: Mary Evelyn Seyler, president; Marian Gremminger, vice-president; Allene Swirczynski, secretary; Rosalie Miller, reporter.

The day's program was an interesting one dealing with business facts every 4-H Club girl should know. Martha Hennigan discussed "Postage" and exhibited different kinds of stamps and Doris Lee Hellman discussed the advantages of a checking account and illustrated the proper way to write checks.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 7 - Last night we had a dust storm dense enough to make a West-Texan homesick. What a mess! While it lasted it was stifling. When it ended the whole camp was under a layer of fine dust. Before going to bed each man shook a cloud of dust out of his bedclothes. In one respect this differed from the Texas dust storms of a few years ago. This was real wind stirring up the dust of our own area, not a dust cloud slowly moving in from some other place. It threatened to mow down our tents. So, in the middle of it all we were out driving extra stakes to help hold down our homes.

THURSDAY, OCT. 8 - About noon yesterday we hit a lull in our job. Mat laying crews have almost caught up with the graders and rollers. We can take it easy for a while. So the company provided all available trucks for a trip to Needles, five of them with a total load of about 90 men.

An evening in that town is a wonderful diversion from the life of a desert rat. Not a large place, but a real oasis in more ways than one. With a plentiful supply of water from the Colorado, it stays bright and green, even though it hasn't had rain for more than a year. Besides, the place is attractive, friendly, and able to absorb the few service men around this area. As far as we were concerned, the popular places are the USO, the bars and bowling alley. Roll calls in those places would have found 90 per cent of the men.

Maybe it's about time for Con to give a little credit to the USO for the swell job it is doing in this war. It's the one place where the boys are always welcome. The people in charge of the units are entitled to our deepest gratitude for all the work they do in our behalf. A dandy lift for army morale.

FRIDAY, OCT. 9 - Indications this morning are that the job will be completed early this afternoon. That is, the runway. And if other rumors are correct we'll be moving back to Camp Young in the very near future. Apparently our company is not scheduled to take part in the construction of shops, hangers, revetments and all that - if those other things are to be built. It's possible this will be a landing field only. As at Camp Young, we've heard plenty about snakes around here but, so far as I know, yesterday was our first occasion to find one. It was a rattler in our tent area. Seemed to be a different species from our Texas diamond-back. Someone identified it as a sidewinder. A runt of the rattler family, but mighty vicious. All I got to see was the corpus delecti, with 9 rattles, so I didn't get to notice its disposition. One characteristic of the sidewinder is its peculiar method of crawling. Its path doesn't follow the course it seems to take. Something like an airplane sidestepping.

We have a few more living specimens around here, but not many. So far the men have captured a tarantula, a queer looking lizard, and an owl. The owl was quite something. Beautiful buff colored feathers and a funny face. Good sized too. After playing with him a while we turned him loose, just as darkness was settling. He seemed to enjoy his regained freedom. There are a few small birds here too. About the size of sparrows. Also lots of gopher holes, but the gophers themselves have been keeping out of sight.
