

The answer to this country's economic prayers is in boosting production by just 5 per cent. So says Dr. George Benson, president of the National Education Program, who claims that this simple process could double the national output, also double everybody's standard of living, within fifteen years.

It seems like quite a claim. Imagine a 100 per cent increase on the return by giving only a five per cent increase on effort. But mathematically it works out. Sort of like figuring compound interest on investment. Obviously five per cent increase for 15 years amounts to 75 per cent, and there's the additional potential that is created by each year's production of more wealth.

Moreover, that five per cent goal seems to be well within the national capability. A big part of it could be reached simply by an understanding which would eliminate strikes. More of it could be reached by greater caution, thereby eliminating lost time due to accidents on the job or the road, or sickness caused by one's own folly. Still more of that productivity could be attained by alertness on the job to avoid mistakes and loss of time. As we think over the subject we feel convinced that the imagined bonanza is well within our reach if all of the country will wise up to the opportunity and then pull together.

Of course all that will take a lot of doing. First of all we need to launch an educational campaign that will wipe out much if not all of the socialistic and anarchistic notions that have infected our economy in recent times. We have to realize that our past greatness was built on our attitude of ambition, cooperation and hard work in an atmosphere of free enterprise.

Somewhat the people of America must be convinced again that we really have the right system and we really can move forward if we'll understand the basic principles of the system and work honestly at applying them.

Too few people nowadays realize that industry has three essential elements: capital, management and labor. Neither can get along without the others, and no two can get along without the third. Capital is the investment in plant, equipment, material, operating funds etc. Management includes the people who do the planning, secure materials, supervise the manufacturing process and sell the finished products. Labor includes those who work on the materials to make the finished products as directed by management.

Anyone who gives it some thought can understand that the three elements need one another and can get along harmoniously when each gets its fair share — and the net result for the country is a more prosperous, more comfortable and happier society.

So the first step toward the better life is education, to overcome the false ideas that have been planted in people's minds in recent years and to replace them with firm conviction and firm confidence.

For instance, school kids need to be told that ours is not a slave system in which the greedy capitalists are exploiting the workers. They need to understand that investors have a right to an earning on the money they risk to buy plants and equipment. Furthermore that the investors are not really pot bellied plutocrats but millions of average people who own stocks. Furthermore that capital does not get the lion's share of industry's income but a mere 6 to 10 percent which serves both as dividend and as re-investment.

From this fact we arrive at the very obvious fact that the big share from industrial earning already goes to labor and when demands are made for higher pay the raise can come from only one of two sources. Either productivity has to increase or the amount of the raise has to be added to the price of the finished product.

And then we come to the problem of inflation, which has been the country's big economic headache for the past three decades. As prices go up the consumers need more income, so they demand more pay and give another nudge to the inflation spiral. Obviously it's time to turn to that other source for increase of pay. Raises should be based

Work Begins on Phone Company's Modernizing Job

Muenster Telephone Company's expanding and modernizing project got under way Wednesday morning. The job, which is scheduled for completion in mid-October, will bring 1-line service to all of its patrons in Muenster, Myra and Forestburg and also bring the convenience of direct distance dialing in the three communities.

Actually the job's kick-off date was Tuesday. That's when the owners, contractor, engineer and REA representative held a meeting to discuss and plan their work. Owners of the firm are Alvin Fuhrman, W. J. Miller and Alphonse Hoenig. Fuhrman said the job consists principally in installing 176 miles of underground phone cable in the rural area and replacing or adding about five miles of overhead cable in the city. Four plow crews are in operation with M. E. Spencer Jr. as foreman for the K & B Construction Company of Tulsa.

The resident engineer representing the phone company is Kenneth Kildiene. Also on the job for the company is its regular line crew member, Charles Cook. While the work is under way, Fuhrman said, Muenster's population will increase by about twelve families.

The modernization also includes a separate contract for inside work at the system's exchanges. It will start later but is expected to be finished about the same time as the outside contract.

CD of a Court Has Installation Rite For New Officers

Diocese Confers Commission on Brother T. Moster

A commission to distribute the Blessed Eucharist was conferred on Brother Thomas Moster last Sunday in accordance with approval received from Bishop John Cassata of the Fort Worth Diocese.

The ceremony was conducted by Father Placidus Eckart at the 9 a.m. Mass, which appropriately, came on the feast of Corpus Christi, which solemnizes the institution of the Eucharist.

Father Placidus quoted from the Bishop's letter stating that, while retaining principles and rituals through the centuries, the church adjusts to the needs of the times. Nowadays, with a shortage of priests in many areas, the church is permitting laymen to distribute communion, requiring that they be mature Christians of excellent character and exemplary life. Father Placidus said Brother Thomas is not only highly qualified but especially deserving because of his years of service in directing altar boys and caring for the altars and sacristy.

He said the commission will be especially helpful to the parish at Masses with a large number of communicants and at the school children's Masses. The commission applies for three years.

Henry Henscheids Back from Flying Trip to Germany

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Henscheid are back at home after a month's vacation in Germany where they visited relatives and went sight-seeing. They made the round trip aboard a 747 jet and brought back many happy memories, pictures and souvenirs. It was Mrs. Henscheid's first air travel and her first visit to her husband's homeland. He had returned for a visit in 1958.

After crossing the Atlantic they were met at Kohn-Bonn airport by a nephew and accompanied him to his home — the former home of Mr. Henscheid at Neunkirchen — and were houseguests there a large part of the time.

They also spent a week with his sister Mrs. Katherine Prange who, with a granddaughter, visited here a year ago. They spent three days with another nephew and family, and he and another nephew took them around to see other relatives and old friends.

During their visit, Mrs. Prange, Mr. Henscheid's only living sister, joined her daughter and husband in hosting a family reunion to celebrate Mrs. Prange's 75th birthday which had been postponed until the Henscheids could be there.

One day was spent on a Rhine tour with two nieces accompanying them. They also went to Attendorn Westphalia with a nephew and saw the birthplace and former home of Mrs. Henscheid's grandfather Joseph Flusche, a brother of the Flusches who organized the Muenster colony. He was one of the early settlers of this community, residing one mile northwest of Muenster. The old German homestead is still occupied and well kept.

The church at Neunkirchen is very pretty. It was built in the 1300s and rebuilt in the 1700s. The Henscheids found the weather cool and pleasant and many beautiful flowers were in full bloom. Everywhere they were welcomed and people were very friendly throughout the places they visited.

On waiting at the airport the day they left, 14 relatives joined them for fond farewells. At Dallas Love Field they were met by the Rufus Henscheids and Gerald Metzlers.

Big Response Urged For Blood Bank Day

Residents of the Muenster Hospital District and others served by the Muenster Memorial Hospital will make another deposit next Wednesday in their Red Cross blood bank.

The occasion is a visit to the community by a bloodmobile from the Red River Regional Red Cross Blood Center of Wichita Falls. Facilities for donating blood will be set up at the K. of C. Hall from 2 to 7 p.m. The hours this year start later and end later than at the previous visit as an accommodation to people who want to come after work.

Those who have a tight schedule will have another convenience in being able to donate at a time of their choice and avoid waiting in line. They can phone the hospital for an appointment at a specific time.

Recommended ages for blood donations are 18 through 65. Under age persons will need the consent of a parent or guardian. Over age persons are expected to have written approval from their personal physicians.

The bloodmobile staff will include five registered nurses and technicians from the blood center. They will be assisted by four local nurses who will check on physical qualifications and medical records of the volunteers and six or eight Hospital Auxiliary members for registrations and serving coffee and doughnuts.

Installing Starts At Western Auto

Installation of the Western Auto department at Hess Furniture started a week early. A representative of the company reported on the job bright and early Monday morning, instead of next Monday, so the department, scheduled to open on July 1, will open about a week earlier.

Al Hess, co-owner, said the set up will take about two weeks. The work includes erection of shelves, racks, wall boards, etc., and then putting the merchandise in place. But the opening will not wait for completion of the job. Hess said items will be available for sale as soon as they go on display.

He also stated that the formal opening date will be about a month later, as originally planned. Western Auto's policy is to allow additional time to prepare for the grand event. The combined furniture store and Western Auto will be owned and operated by Al Hess and his son Dennis, who is joining as a partner with the addition of the new line. They will change the store's name from Hess Furniture to Western Auto but did not indicate when the change will become effective.

William Pitman on ETSU Honor Roll

William D. Pitman is one of 904 students named to the spring Dean's List at East Texas State University. The list, ETSU's special honor roll includes undergraduates doing at least 15 hours of academic work and maintaining a grade point average of at least 3.25 out of a possible 4.

The local program is sponsored jointly by the VFW Post and the K of C Council with J. W. Fisher as community chairman. Their quota, normally set at 100 pints, has been upped to 120 in order to compensate for abnormally high usage during the past year. Patients in the local hospital used 117 units and additional units were transferred to local residents in other hospitals, particularly Larry Yosten and Mrs. Joe Hoenig.

Another incentive for the higher quota was pointed out in a letter from the regional center to Chairman Fisher. It stated that the Wichita Falls facility has been running short lately and has had to have blood shipped from St. Louis and Detroit. The center is most eager to keep its area adequately supplied and avoid future dependence on other areas, as well as to replenish the blood it has borrowed. That can be accomplished, the letter said, if each area will work a little harder to reach its quota.

Locally that special effort got under way this week in a letter campaign to many who drew on the local bank last year as well as to a number of relatives and friends of those who received. Also about three dozen placards are set up here and at Saint Jo asking people to come and give.

The letters invite people to return the blood used by themselves or a relative or friend and to specify in whose name it is given. It also mentions the probability that some of the donors will actually be giving for their own future need.

The sponsors are trying for 150 volunteers of which, according to normal procedure, 80 per cent will be accepted as donors. That will meet the quota of 120 pints, however not as much as is wanted. Sponsors would like to go over the top by a stout figure.

Membership in the Red Cross blood bank is big asset to the people of this community. It provides an efficient and economical system for blood transfusions to patients of the Muenster hospital and to residents of the hospital district who happen to be in other hospitals.

There is no charge for the blood they use, because it is given by local people for local people. The only cost is for service which covers collecting, packaging, storing, transporting, typing, infusing, etc. That means that the actual cost per unit to the patient is $25 to $30 below normal. At the same time the hospital saves about $150 per month in stocking fees.

The blood bank system includes a number of areas with bloodmobile visits scheduled so that fresh blood is always available. Each community in its turn furnishes the blood for all the others.

The age limit allowed for use as fresh blood is 21 days. After that it is processed into plasma and other blood products.

Area Farmers Are Eligible for USDA Drought Relief

In his regular weekly report to Texans last week, Senator John Tower included a list of counties in which farmers and ranchers are eligible for federal drought relief.

Farmers and ranchers of Cooke and Denton Counties and 145 other Texas counties are eligible for hay transportation assistance and Commodity Credit Corporation owned feed grains at reduced prices. The Agriculture Department has ruled that the new hay bank program can be effective now in that farmers growing forage on irrigated set aside lands may put up hay from 25 per cent of their set aside acreage or 25 acres, whichever is greater, and may use or sell that hay immediately without penalty. The hay must be grown, put up, used and sold within the drought-designated counties.

Cooke, Montague and Denton counties are among the 155 counties designated by USDA in which farmers and ranchers are eligible for grazing and haying privileges on non-irrigated set-aside lands without penalty.

Profits Facts vs. Fiction

One of the most misunderstood facts in our economic life is the size of company profits compared with employee compensation and other costs.

There is a delusion that wage hikes can be taken out of profits, without increasing the cost of product or service.

The facts, as calculated by the Department of Commerce from reports from all U. S. corporations, show that the profit margin in all U. S. non-financial corporations on their U. S. operations has not averaged higher than 3.6 percent of sales at any time during the past five years.

So, when you hear union leaders say that the American worker should get "a larger share of the pie," remember that usually the only way it can be done is to increase prices to you. The best way to increase real wages, of course, is to develop methods of raising the productivity of the work force to stabilize profits while wages and profits go up.

Carol Grewing and Michael Frost Are Married at Mass

Sacred Heart Church was the scene Saturday of the wedding of Miss Carol Grewing, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Grewing, and Michael Frost who exchanged vows in a double ring ceremony at 5 p.m. Nuptial Mass with Father Leonard Wangler officiating. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Frost of Gainesville.

Presented by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza over peau de soie with lavish accents of Alencon lace on the Empire bodice extending into the sheer bishop sleeves, ornamenting the stand-up collar, A-line skirt and detachable chapel train. A petal headpiece of the lace held her bouffant veil and she carried a pink-throated white orchid and stephanotis.

Honor attendants were Mr. and Mrs. David Berres with Miss Marla Grewing, a cousin, bridesmaid and Gary Cannon of Gainesville groomsmen.

Miss Laura Grewing, sister of the bride, was flower girl and Tim Barnes of Gainesville was ring bearer.

Bride's attendants were identically gowned in floor-length sheer floral nylon dresses over pink taffeta with long sleeves, and Empire waists accented with hot pink velvet ribbon. The ribbon also accented their white straw hats. They carried nosegays of assorted spring flowers. The flower girl's dress and bouquet duplicated those of the attendants and she wore a pink velvet bow in her hair. After Mass she handed the bride a long-stemmed pink rose for presentation at the Blessed Virgin's altar.

Lighted votive crystals in candelabra entwined with smilax held vantage spots in the sanctuary and pastel flowers adorned the main altar.

Charles Barnes of Gainesville and Herman Grewing, bride's uncle, were ushers. Candelighters and Mass servers were Frank Moster, Jimmy Grewing and Robert Grewing, cousins, and Benny Bindel and Bernie Fette.

Wedding music was by Miss Mary Lou Kralicke, organist and Mrs. Dave Walterscheid and Dr. Martin Kralicke, vocalists. Selection included "Somewhere My Love," theme from Romeo and Juliet, "Ave Maria," and "How Great Thou Art."

Wedding reception with buffet dinner was held in the Parish Hall for some 200 guests. They were registered by Miss Barbie Grewing, bride's sister, and Miss Patti

Sicking. Mrs. Charles Bayer cut the wedding cake.

Mrs. Grewing attended her daughter's wedding in a lime green knit dress with matching pastel accessories and a green cymbidium corsage.

Guests included the bride's grandparents, Mrs. Leo Moster and Mr. and Mrs. John Grewing.

After a short honeymoon the couple will reside in Muenster in their new mobile home on Sixth Street.

He is a graduate of Gainesville High School and is employed at Gainesville Carpets. She is a graduate of Sacred Heart High School and a beauty college in Denton and is employed at Judy's Beauty Salon in Lindsay.

A pre-nuptial gift shower was given in the home of Mrs. David Johnson, Gainesville, with Mrs. George Frost of Gainesville and Mrs. R. I. Frost of Nocona, as co-hostesses. They presented the honoree a pink daisy corsage and served punch and cookies after the gift display. Mrs. Richard Grewing was among guests.

Paul, James and Clyde Walterscheid, Muenster

One of the most popular small-town weekly newspaper editors of West Texas was M. S. (Doc) Sellers. He was the owner of the Brady Sentinel for several years and then for a long time published the Rising Star Record.

On those somewhat rare occasions when a heavy downpour visited his area, he would write a headline, "Rising Star

Area Receives Million-Dollar Rain."

The practice caused a contemporary to quip, "Doc Sellers reported two 'million-dollar rains' this season and we looked up the statistics and found the entire value of the crops in the Rising Star area was $890,000. What we want to know is, Doc, what did you do with that other $1,110,000?"

on increased production only. If that were done prices could hold their level and inflation could come to a stop.

Not only that, but increased production would gradually increase the supply of finished products and there would be more for all to use. And that would mean a higher standard of living. After all, our standard of living isn't determined by money but rather by what the money will buy.

There can be no doubt that an increase of production offers bright possibilities for the future. But before we can accomplish the increase we desperately need to get the help of our schools, the press, TV and radio and the government to restore some old ideas about our economic system, also an understanding of how it can be improved by better cooperation.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Jackson of Fort Worth drove over Saturday evening, celebrating their 30th wedding anniversary, and took her parents, the J. M. Weinzapfels, out to dinner. Afterward back at the Weinzapfel home they were joined by the Henry Weinzapfels for anniversary cake and ice cream.
