

IMPROVED QUALITY OF TURKEYS POINTS TO BETTER PRICES

Thanksgiving Market To Open November 4; Co-op In 13th Year Here

With turkeys not quite so plentiful as in former days, but apparently in a little better condition, plans are going forward for the opening of the Thanksgiving dressing season early next month. Shipment of dressed turkeys from Brownwood constitutes one of the largest money crops for Brown county, and Brownwood for a number of years has been the leading turkey shipping point in Texas.

Southwestern Poultry Association, veteran cooperative, expects to begin dressing turkeys Thursday, November 4, it announced this week, and other plants are expected to begin operations about the same time. This season will mark the 13th consecutive season that the Southwestern has been in business in Brownwood. It is pointed out that this is the only cooperative poultry association in Texas that operates the year around. The association has operated the year around since it was opened here 13 years ago.

Time to Feed
Buyers this week pointed out that growers should start feeding their turkeys now if they expect to receive the greatest profit from the 1937 crop. There is a far greater demand, at a greater profit to the turkey raiser, for No. 1 turkeys than for No. 2. Most of the turkeys can be brought from No. 2 to No. 1 grade by proper feeding during the next few weeks immediately before marketing.

From two to three weeks before marketing time, turkeys should be put on some good grade of fatteners. This may be kept before them in dry form, but for quicker gain, moistened feed should be given in the afternoon, and, if desired, in the mornings before the birds leave for the range. In moistening this feed, milk may be used, but water serves the purpose well, because most commercial feed contains a reasonably high per cent of dried buttermilk.

At the start, no more feed should be put out than can be consumed by the turkeys in from ten to fifteen minutes, but this should be gradually increased to what the birds will eat in twenty to thirty minutes.

Close confinement in fattening turkeys has not proved very successful, hence the importance of fattening the turkeys on the farm before they are sold. Too sudden a change should not be made in the method of feeding. For that reason a feeding of grain at night along with commercial fatteners is usually more satisfactory and practical.

Committee For Armistice Day Program Named

Commander Fred R. Donohoo named the following members to serve on the committee: Dr. W. H. Paige, chairman; Glenn Hutton, vice-chairman; J. Horace Shelton, John A. Collins, Dave Knobler, C. V. Conlisk, Joe Blagg, Gus J. Rosenberg, O. L. Billingsley, Loren L. Williams, Dr. N. A. J. Achor, Rev. Karl H. Moore, Rev. Harold G. Scoggins, and Lively McChristy.

BROADENED FARM ASSISTANCE IS AIM OF EXTENSION SERVICE

County Agents and Farmers Are Requested to Submit Own Suggestions

Texas A. and M. College will soon issue a statement on its agricultural objectives in an effort to aid Texas farmers. The Extension Service will be charged with the responsibility of carrying the details of the plan to Texas farm and ranch families. H. H. Williamson, director of the Service, has announced.

County agricultural and home demonstration agents have been asked to submit county objectives. On the basis of this information and of suggestions offered at a conference of some 160 leaders of agricultural affairs, held at the College on October 12, the objectives of the institution will be framed.

The present objectives and activities of the institution in regard to agriculture are built along the lines of improvement in home food supplies, home improvement, including clothing, the production, preservation, and utilization of the feed supply for both home and commercial use, conservation and utilization of the farm cash resources, the conservation of soil, water, timber, and other natural resources, including wild life, the improvement in quality of farm and ranch products, control of diseases, insects, rodents, and animal parasites cooperation with county, state and federal agencies dealing with agriculture, development of rural leadership, and human betterment.

Representatives of various institutions, organizations and agencies who attended the conference heard President T. O. Walton point out that the ultimate objective of the institution was human betterment which he said included the broad field of public welfare, whether it relates to social content or to economic betterment. This objective must be attained, in his opinion through such avenues as measures designed to increase the farmer's spendable income.

Wilson Perfects Bond at Examining Trial Here Monday

W. W. Wilson, Jordan Springs, charged with assault with intent to murder in connection with an affray here September 27 in which Dr. H. L. Locker received knife wounds, perfected $1,000 bond following examining trial in Justice Court Monday afternoon.

The case will be submitted to the 35th district court grand jury when it is convened here Monday, November 1.

Wilson waived statement in the examining trial, but Dr. Locker made a lengthy statement in which he believes led to the affray.

Price of Pecans Sold Here Drops

Market prices on early average run pecans has dropped from 7 1/2 cents per pound to 6 1/2 cents. The market is above the average for such an early date with over 80,000 pounds being sold in Brownwood during the last two weeks.

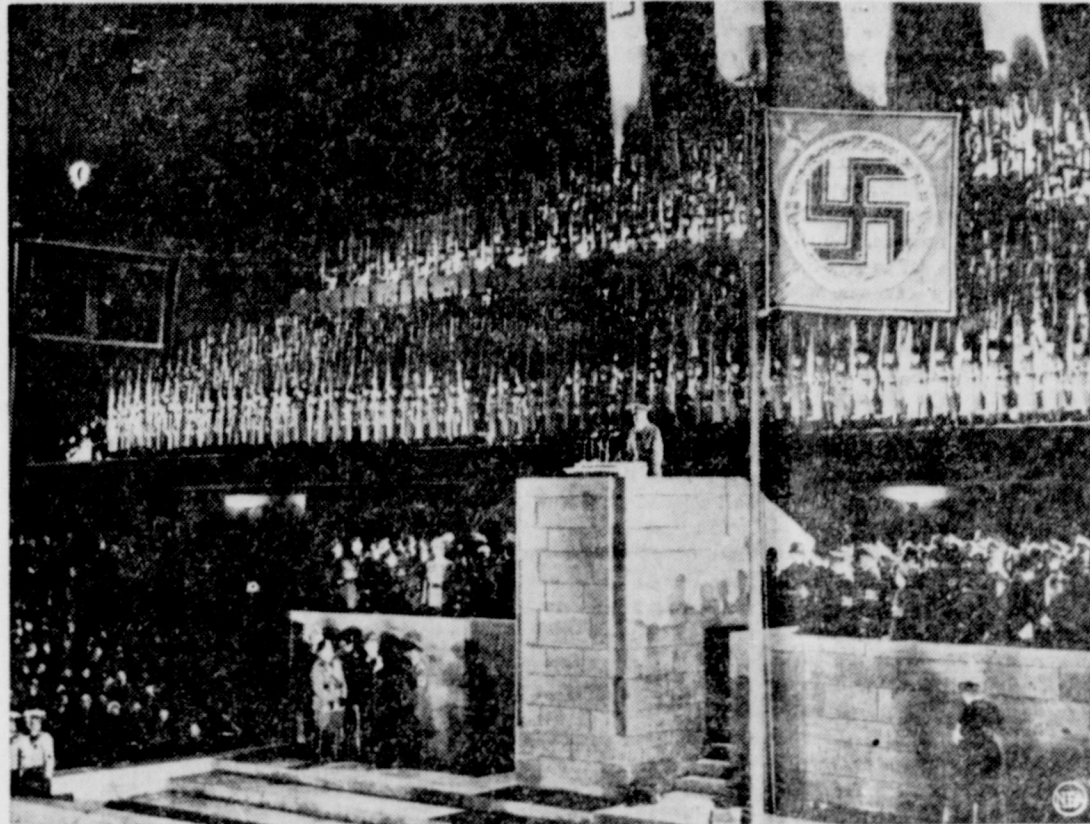

This year's opening price is somewhat lower than the opening at 8 cents last year. The reason for the large early gathering is attributed to the rain during the past week.

FEDERAL JURORS

Brownwood men who are serving as jurors at San Angelo in Federal court are J. L. Garnett, L. E. Dublin, T. R. Bain, Kenneth Harlow, Emmett Evans, B. A. Fain and N. A. Locks.

Mussolini Gets a Lesson in Nazi Showmanship

Even that master of political showmanship, Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy, is enthralled by the spectacle Nazi geniuses arranged for his greatest public appearance in Berlin. In Duce, accompanied by General Goering and Joseph Goebbels, stands on the lowest platform to the left of the high rostrum and cranes his neck to watch Chancellor Adolf Hitler address the 1,000,000 Germans assembled on May Field. Standing behind Hitler are tier on tier of soldiers, each guarding a banner in a formidable demonstration of loyalty and might. Later Mussolini took the rostrum.

$40,483 IS PAID TO AGED INDIGENT IN DISTRICT IN AUGUST

Figures For District Fourteen Are Average For The State, Says Director

A total of $40,483 was paid recipients of Old Age Assistance in District 14 during the month of August, according to figures compiled by Chas. B. Palmer, supervisor for the district. District 14 includes Brown, Coleman, Runnels, Concho, McCulloch, Menard, Llano, Gillespie, San Saba, Mason, Blanco and Kimble counties.

Payments were made to 2,749 people, from 5,520 applicants and the average grant was $14.73. The total administrative expense of District 14, including salaries of investigators, district office force, supervision and office supplies, was $1,823.95, or 4.4 cents out of each dollar allotted to recipients. Administrative cost in the district amounted to 32 cents per applicant, or 66 cents per recipient.

"I think that figures given for District 14 will be a fair average for the state," Mr. Palmer said. "However, the percentage of cost of administration expense is not as great in the densely populated areas as in counties where the recipients are widely separated."

"It is very gratifying to the supervisor and the entire staff to know that we have had 100 per cent cooperation from the county officials and the public spirited citizens of District 14 in our efforts to apply the law and the regulations governing Old Age Assistance."

A bill to appropriate $2,000,000 from the state general fund for old age assistance was introduced Wednesday by Senator Joe Hill of Henderson and signed by 10 other Senators.

The bill set out that prospects for additional taxes to relieve the critical old age assistance situation were uncertain. The House earlier in the week asked Governor Allred to allow them to give the Board of Control members the power to borrow money for pensions, if necessary.

Cotton Quotations Drop After Rains

As a result of recent heavy rains cotton prices have dropped from 8 to 7 cents per pound. Cotton seed is still selling at $10 per ton, according to ginmen, who estimate that 4,300 bales have been ginned in Brown county to date.

Total crop estimate for the county has dropped to 5,500 bales, 2,000 bales short of last year's crop. Most of the cotton remaining to be picked will be of very poor quality, ginners believe. Brownwood cotton gins have ginned 1,244 bales to date.

A cotton ginning report of the Census Bureau shows that 3,060 bales of cotton were ginned in Brown county from the crop of 1937 prior to October 1 as compared with 1,843 bales on the same date in 1936.

TWO-STATE FARM MEETING CALLED IN DALLAS OCTOBER 25

Farm Security Administration To Sponsor Conclave of Farmers and Businessmen

A two-state agricultural meeting called to discuss recommendations to make to the special session of Congress in regard to farm legislation will be held in Dallas, October 25, at 7 p. m. in the Jefferson Hotel. Farmers and businessmen interested in farming and allied industries are invited to attend the meeting and join in the discussion. R. K. French, county supervisor, Farm Security Administration, said today.

C. M. Evans, general chairman of this Texas-Oklahoma farm security dinner, said today that he had received assurance that practically all of the congressional delegates from both states would be present. Evans said the dinner will give opportunity for discussing recommendations to make a senate sub-committee which will hold a meeting in Dallas the following day. This sub-committee is headed by Senator Elmer Thomas.

The object of the meeting is to lay the foundation for general farm legislation which is to be considered during this special session of Congress, and any person interested is invited to attend the dinner. Those who are unable to attend are invited to send their suggestions to the Dallas Agricultural Club, or to C. M. Evans, regional director, Farm Security Administration, Dallas.

Mr. Evans said he is "especially anxious to have farmers from every county send their suggestions," and they will be passed on to the sub-committee for further study.

Ninety Teachers In Local Schools Plan Retirement

Ninety teachers in Brownwood public schools have indicated their interest in the state teachers' retirement program. Of the 93 teachers on the payrolls, only three have signed waivers indicating they will not participate.

The teachers' retirement law requires that they be teaching when 60 years old, and that they have a 20-year record of teaching behind them. If a teacher wishes to withdraw from the program, he may obtain a refund plus 3 1/2% interest on the funds placed by him. Upon reaching 60 years of age, teachers are to be retired on an annuity payment. These payments continue until death. Five per cent of the teachers' salaries must be paid into the fund each month.

REA To Construct New Lines in Five Nearby Counties

Progress being made by the Rural Electrification Administration in bringing electricity to rural homes of America is illustrated by the announcement this week that 100 additional miles of lines will be installed by the McCulloch County Electric Co.-op. Inc., within the next few months.

The lines, to be installed at an approximate cost of $100,000, will serve 300 customers in Brown, McCulloch, San Saba, Mason, Concho, and Coleman counties.

CONVICTION CONFIRMED

Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin last week affirmed the conviction of T. E. Stevens, Brown county man, of violating the liquor control act of May 16, 1936, and fined $350.

The Court overruled the former holding on accomplice testimony, holding that agents of the Liquor Control Board are not accomplices when they buy intoxicants for the purpose of obtaining convictions.

Convictions on the uncorroborated testimony of enforcement officers are allowed by the ruling. Other testimony would be required to support a conviction if they were accomplices.

DAVIS IMPROVED

President R. Guy Davis of Daniel Baker College, who was seriously injured several weeks ago in an automobile accident east of Goldthwaite, was taken to his apartment at the college dormitory yesterday from Medical Arts Hospital, where he has been under treatment.

Attendants report his condition satisfactory, although his recovery still will require several months.

Mystery Golfer Freed on Bond

At liberty under $10,000 bond, Laverne Moore, alias John Montague, did little to dispel the air of mystery which cloaked him when he appeared in Los Angeles court, as pictured above, to answer New York state robbery accusations. He laughed at stories of his prodigious strength and golfing wizardry, declined to say how he got his money. Film friends made his bond. He will fight extradition.

QUESTIONS BEFORE FARMERS THRASHED AT TAYLOR MEETING

American Farmer Called "Forgotten Man" By Congressman Marvin Jones

Calling the farmer the "forgotten man" of the United States for the past 100 years, Chairman Marvin Jones of the House agriculture committee outlined the program of Congress opening November 15 at a meeting of farmers and farm leaders called by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce in Taylor last week.

"It is important that farmers and farm groups present a united front," he said. "We are fortunate in having in the White House the greatest friend that agriculture has ever had—Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Outlining basic provisions of the bill his committee will present, the Amarillo Congressman said the measure "should be broad and flexible in order to cover not only the various problems, but also in order that the program may be adjusted to meet changing conditions."

R. H. Nelson, technician with the county agent's staff in Brown county, attended the Taylor meeting, and was enthusiastic in his report of the conference.

"It is my belief that it was the largest gathering of farmers in this state in a long time," he stated. More than 50 counties were represented at the meeting.

Whatever measure is worked out, he said, should include the following basic provisions:

- 1. A continuation, improvement and simplification of the present program of soil conservation.
- 2. The securing for the farmer of a fair division of the national income, to which he is entitled "as a matter of right."
- 3. Provision for an "ever-normal granary" storage of warehouse program with adjustment or control provisions that will assure the consumer against scarcity and at the same time prevent the excessive surpluses and ruinous prices that inevitably follow. The commodity loan feature would be continued.
- 4. Search for new uses and new

CHIEF PROVISIONS OF WATER CONTRACT NAMED BY DISTRICT

Ten Significant Points To Document Are Explained In Summarizing

Acting on the belief that many interested Brown county citizens are not fully acquainted with provisions of the recently signed water purchase contract between the City of Brownwood and Brown County Water Improvement District No. 1 to simplify compliance with provisions of a $450,000 PWA irrigation grant to the district, officials have issued the following summary of the main provisions of the contract:

To insure to Brownwood an adequate and permanent supply of "water for domestic, commercial, industrial, municipal, fire protection and other purposes," Brown County Water Improvement District No. 1 has obligated itself by written contract to do the following things:

- 1. "To construct and equip at its own expense a diversion canal from Lake Brownwood to Round Mountain."
- 2. "To install or create" at its own expense "a storage reservoir and settling basin."
- 3. This reservoir will be approximately 10 acres in area and will store more than 40 acre feet of water, thus creating a reserve supply to guard against temporary suspension of service through the canals from Lake Brownwood.
- 4. To construct pipe lines and conduits to a separate reservoir.
- 5. To construct this second reservoir, to be connected directly with the city water mains.
- 6. This will be a covered reservoir at an elevation 85 feet higher than the present one on Round Mountain for the storage of purified water for delivery directly into the city water mains.
- 7. To build, at its own expense, "a filtration and aeration plant of sufficient capacity to supply not less than 600 million gallons of water per annum for the use of the City of Brownwood."
- 8. To construct, at its own expense, "pipe lines, conduits and other necessary appurtenances from the said lake and the improvements above mentioned to supply the City of Brownwood and its inhabitants with an adequate supply of suitable water."
- 9. At its own expense, "to install all necessary valves at or near a connection to be made with the mains and water system of the city and to install a meter house at or near said connection and furnish proper meter or meters of

AUTHOR PAYS TRIBUTE TO BROWNWOOD WOMAN

"Somewhere in the background of every successful ranchman in Texas, there was a quiet, forceful, courageous woman, carrying her share of the burden of his problems in a sympathetic manner," declares Kate Adele Hill in the introduction of her recently-published volume of "Home Builders of West Texas." One of the 12 chapters of the book is devoted to the life of Mrs. Betty Shelton of Brownwood. Mrs. Shelton is the mother of five Brownwood residents, Miss Annie Shelton, of the Howard Payne college faculty; Horace Shelton, vice president of Howard Payne; Joe Shelton, manager of Shelton Bros. Dairy, Dr. Ben M. Shelton, and Mrs. J. T. Floyd. Another son, Jack Shelton, is assistant director of the Extension Service of A. & M. College.

Since 1887, Mrs. Shelton has made her home in West Texas, coming to where the Rockwood community of Coleman county is now located in March of that year.

Miss Hill relates how after some years after the Sheltons moved to the community, a post office was sought by the citizens, and considerable dispute arose over the selection of a name. "Discord" was finally adopted, but Mr. Shelton, greatly disturbed, declared that no one would want to come to live in a place that gave that impression. So he got up a petition and had the name "Discord" changed to the present name of Rockwood.

The author summarizes her impression of Mrs. Shelton in the final paragraph of the chapter: "A tall, serene woman she is with deep brown eyes, a soft voice, wavy gray hair and a gracious manner. At 75 she is ageless in her thinking. As I listened to her talk, I realized that this wave of modern women was highly overrated in its volume, for there was a business woman with results to prove her ability, of my grandmother's generation."

How to Improve Cotton

BY G. C. LEACH

If you will examine a handful of cotton seed, you will find two classes or grades, the small, premature "inferior" seed, and the well matured "superior" seed.

After you have found these two distinct classes or grades, let us give them a thorough testing and find out positively the better seed. First, take your knife and cut the hull on some of the "Superior" seed and you will find it to be tough, thick, and strong, while on the small "inferior" seed, you will find a hull that is thin, tender and weak. Like the seed itself. Let us carry our test a little further and see which kind of seed is the most desirable in planting, to grow a crop. Plant some of each kind of seed in moist dirt and see which will come up first. You will find that the "inferior" seed will be up in a great many cases, several days before the good ones sprout. The "superior" seeds have a thicker, tougher hull, with more lint, therefore it will take longer for the moisture to penetrate and bring them up. Some may claim this is an advantage, but if there is not enough moisture in the ground to bring up good seed, there will not be enough to keep the "inferior" plant growing and consequently they will die.

If there is enough moisture to bring up your cotton, the plants from the "inferior" seed will grow practically as fast as those from the "superior" seed for the first two or three weeks, or until they have used the plant food provided by Nature in the small seed, after which they will practically stop growing for they will not have enough root to supply them with the necessary nourishment from the soil. The plants from the large, well developed seed or the "superior" plants will continue to grow as they have been provided by nature with a good supply of food in the large seed which will support them until they can put out roots enough to keep them growing. They will not have to undergo the period of being stunted, therefore will catch up with the others in growth, in just a few weeks and will then pass them quickly.

Getting a Good Stand

When seed are planted, as they come from the gin, the "inferior" seed will not be strong enough to come up and some that do come up will die—then there will not be a good stand. The cotton will be too thick in some places and too thin in other places. Every year you will have more or less skips in the rows where there will not be enough cotton for a distance of one to several feet. This is caused by the weak plants not being able to come up, dying after they do come up or due to trash clogging the planter. It is estimated that 40 pounds of cotton per acre is lost due to skips. Many farmers plant several times as much seed as is necessary, to get a stand, and have to chop out this surplus which is unnecessary waste in two ways. You are planting seed which you should not have to plant, and they are worth money, and so you have to do extra chopping to cut out all these surplus plants, you are wasting labor which is unnecessary expense.

In chopping your cotton to a stand, one is very apt to chop the smaller and leave the larger ones to grow the crop. The inferior plants having come up first, due to a weak hull surrounding the tiny seed, will be larger and look better than the plants from the good seed or superior plants, at chopping time, and due to this you will naturally cut out the small or inferior plants and leave the inferior plants to grow your crop.

In a short time the inferior plants will begin to stop growing and many of them will die, therefore you will have a very irregular or poor stand with many plants much larger than the rest. Where there are skips of a few feet between cotton stalks the plants will grow taller, ranker, and fruit heavier than where the stand is regular. There are two reasons for this: First, they are from the good seed, and show their superiority in growth and production. Second, they do not have plants close enough to them to share their moisture and plant food and consequently get more than their share. As they have much more space from which to get their living, they live better, grow taller, ranker and produce a greater yield, but as they have gone on with no restraint from other plants, they will not have anything to force the maturing and opening of the crop.

Economies Continue

When you pick your cotton, you find these tall, rank stalks are the heaviest loaded of any in your field, and also have the least of their crop open. The inferior plants not having the strength to grow and bear like the superior, have produced their small crop of little knotty, hard to pick inferior bolls and have opened and are ready to pick. Have you ever noticed how much better the bolls are the second picking than the first? Of course you have, but perhaps you have not thought of the reason. The first cotton to open is from the inferior seed, therefore, it will be the most inferior part of the crop.

When saving your seed, you usually take them from the first bales so as to get the earliest maturing cotton. In doing this, you are assisting in "running out" your cotton as a large per cent of your seed are from the inferior plants each year. You can save a great deal of picking expense if you plant only graded or culled seed of a uniform size. By planting only graded seed of uniform size, you will have a good stand of uniform growing, maturing and opening plants will grow even in size, mature and open all at once, and thus enable you to pick all at one time. Picking is usually cheaper when cotton first opens than later in the season, and in having your crop picked while the picking price is low, there will be a big saving in the picking cost. That is, you can get your cotton all out before the price of picking goes up and the price of cotton goes down.

Only the best and purest seed of a uniform size will produce a uniform growing, maturing and ripening crop—this has been proven by the experiences of many of the leading agriculturists in the country. And the only way a uniform sized seed can be obtained is by grading and culling. And the only way to produce a better quality of cotton is to grade out the inferior seed each year before they are planted.

Cottonseed should be culled every year. No matter what kind of seed are planted, owing to droughts, insects, etc., they are going to produce a certain per cent of cull element, and if the seed are planted again with this cull element in them, they will produce a still greater per cent of the cull element the second year and by the third year, the farmer is ready to buy high priced seed to plant again when if the cull element is graded out each year, by the third year, the farmer has better seed to plant than he had the first year he planted them, for the simple reason that they have been planted in that section long enough to become acclimated, and will naturally do better planted there, than seed shipped in from some other section of the country, and if graded on the proper kind of culling machine, one that will actually separate and grade them so as to have only the purest and best seed for planting, the seed should increase in purity for several years and not "run out" as they are commonly supposed to do. It is a well known fact that by planting graded seed, the farmer can increase his yield 15%, and at the same time produce a better quality staple, all of which means more money to the cotton grower.

The Ginners can furnish this grading service for the farmers and at the same time increase his own profits, for the simple reason that every bale of cotton produced is going to be put through the gin. And if the farmer can increase his yield 15%, the ginner, by installing the proper equipment, can increase his profits 15%.

Daniel Baker Pep Squad Anticipates Active School Year

Extensive plans for an active year have been set by the Daniel Baker College pep squad, which recently completed organization for the year under the faculty supervision of Mrs. Rose Monday and Mrs. Fielding Early.

Officers of the organization are Dorothy Couch, president; Peggy Charnquist, vice-president; Margaret Cole, secretary, and Gene Kennedy, treasurer. Sissy Cole and Lew Bray, Jr., have been selected as mascots of the club.

The girls have new blue and white military uniforms, consisting of blue skirts, blue and white capes, and white blouses. Blue and white military hats and white boots complete the uniform.

The pep squad will make its first appearance at the Daniel Baker-St. Edwards game Thursday night, when Miss Patta Jean Moore, football sponsor, will be presented.

The club has an active membership of 46 girls. Throughout the year the group is planning to present many stunts for the entertainment of the fans and student body.

Membership consists of the following girls:

Mary Gladys Pope, Lena Gallely, Garlyn Ewart, Tommie Jo Wakefield, Frances Palmer, Edwina Thogmartin, Aline Richardson, Bonnie Hodges, Cora Fowlkes, Faenilla Hicks, Gene Kennedy, Stella McKnight, Dorothy Nell Baker, Elo Mae Michael, Peggy Charnquist, Margaret Cole, Martha Weller, Mildred Reed, Ruby Nell Bean, Margaret Trigg, Reba Adams, Stella Easley, Cordelia Moffett, Geneva Smith, Imogene Hill, Betty Jo Sanderson, Peggy Morris, Mary Singleton, Dorothy Palmer, Stella Rice, Jean Hall, Joe Nell Maxley, Grace Breley, Ann Copeland, Evelyn McDonald, Rayma Dillingsham, Marie Lew, Maebelle Fitzgerald, Jesse B. Farm Questions—

markets for farm products should be encouraged, so American farmers will grow all the market can absorb, both at home and abroad.

5. Provide for a graduated reduction in payments to large producers, so as to encourage individual farming.

6. Set up restrictions which will prevent land owners from receiving benefits of the program if they reduce the number of tenants without approval of the local committee, and at the same time, stipulate a proper division between land owner and tenant.

7. Provide for administration of the law by local people wherever possible, with greater responsibility in the hands of local committees in order to suit the diversion program to the needs of the respective localities.

Representative Jones has called the agriculture committee to meet in Washington on October 27 to shape the new farm bill for early presentation to the special session of Congress.

He said the committee will work on the idea of a "restitution" for the farmer—"the restoration to the farmer of that which is taken away from him in the operation of the high protective tariff system, the restoration of his rights under the constitution."

recognized design, approved by the City of Brownwood and to be used in measuring water delivered by it through said connection."

8. To "connect said meter or meters and repair and maintain same."

9. For the sum of $25,000 a year the Water Improvement District agrees to furnish to the City of Brownwood annually six hundred million gallons of pure water.

10. Should the city use more than six hundred million gallons of water per year, the Water Improvement District contracts to furnish any additional amount needed at 3/4 cents per thousand gallons.

The district gave notice of acceptance of the grant last week after engineers determined that the project could be constructed at present day material and labor costs within the original estimate of $1,000,000.

Engineers are now making a field survey to complete plans and specifications looking forward to advertising for bids for construction on the project.

The contract between the City of Brownwood and the Water District is subject to a vote of the citizens of the district. The election will be called after the district receives a report on proposed sale of bonds to raise the district's share of $550,000 for the project.

League Realizes $82 In Drive For Additional Funds

Additional funds totaling $82 proceeds from the Junior Service League's sale of tags in Brownwood Saturday and a dance at the Country Club Saturday night, will be used by the League to purchase milk for undernourished school children, according to Mrs. James R. Beadel, president of the organization.

About 225 children of early school age have been found to be badly undernourished and underweight by League workers who make daily inspections in the schools. Fruit juice and cod liver oil already are being furnished for the children by the League. With the added funds a daily glass of milk will be furnished to each undernourished child.

League officials are expressing appreciation to every person who purchased a tag and who had aided the League in any other way. Several individuals and firms have volunteered monthly contributions to the League.

Unemployed Census To Be Tabulated

Uncle Sam will count his unemployed next month. On November 16 and 17, 1,500,000 questionnaires will go out to Texans, one in the mail of every family, to determine who is unemployed. By Saturday night of that week the blanks are to be filled out and back in the post office.

Last estimate of the number of unemployed persons in the nation was 8,700,000. Conditions are not considered nearly so bad in Texas as in most other sections of the country, however, and the percentage of unemployed persons in the state is expected to be considerably lower than those of most other states.

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. By what name was the town of Palo Pinto first called? A. It was first known as Gollum, a name that signified that all the riches of India could be found there. Q. What three distinct kinds or classes of Indians lived in Texas before and at its discovery by white people? A. (1) Pueblos, or village Indians, who lived in somewhat permanent homes like those found at Ysleta, Goliad and some other places. (2) Agriculturists, who lived in less permanent homes or tents, who tilled the soil, hunted and fished, and moved from place to place as conditions seemed to justify. (3) Nomads, who were constant wanderers and who intimidated and pillaged other tribes and were trouble makers of the pre-civilization period.

Centralizing Authority

Representative McFarland of Wichita Falls has introduced in the House a bill which apparently has a fair chance of passage through that body, which would set up a State Tax Board. In theory, the board proposed by the Wichita Falls representative might work to the best interests of the State, but like so many theories of government, put into actual practice it will work an unnecessary hardship on the people it is intended to help.

Under the McFarland plan, a State Tax Board would be set up, with authority to supervise the assessing of taxes in the several counties in the state. Taxes would be assessed as at present, and equalized by the Commissioners Court. Then the rolls would be sent to the State Tax Board at Austin, which theoretically would review the assessments in each county, returning for re-assessment those it thought wrongly assessed. By this method, it is hoped to get a uniform system of assessment, which would be fair to all property owners of the State.

It is not to be denied that there are inequalities between counties in the assessment of property, just as there are inequalities within the county between individuals. As Mr. McFarland has pointed out, one county in Texas assesses upon the basis of 20 per cent of the actual value, while an adjoining county assesses on an 80 per cent basis. This is unfair to the State, and is a problem that concerns the State, since State taxes are levied upon the assessment fixed by the counties for state and county purposes. Thus the State receives a fair portion of the taxes in some counties, while property owners in other counties are not carrying their fair share of the burden.

So far, so good. But how would it work in actual practice? The inevitable result would be that eventually property owners would be forced to go to Austin before the State Tax Board, instead of to the county seat before the Commissioners Court, to get tax inequalities, real or fancied, adjusted equitably. How else would it work out? If a board at Austin has power to say certain assessments should be raised, only that same authority would have the right to lower assessments. And only through appearance at Austin, either in person, by letter or through attorney, could a wronged property owner secure justice. The Commissioners Court, which under the law would be reduced from an equalization board in fact to a clerical board working under direction of the State agency, would be without authority to change the findings of the State Tax Board.

The proposition has the additional odium of centralizing authority in Austin which should be reserved for officers closer to home. No central board at Austin, no matter how versed are the members in tax matters, can possibly arrive at equitable tax valuations in the 254 counties in Texas. It just can't be done. One of the modern trends in government, and one which should be discouraged, is that toward centralizing authority at the capitals which can best be exercised by officials on the ground. Not only does it take control out of the hands of the voters, but in this instance, it would place an unnecessary and a burdensome expense upon the owners of real property who already are harassed by decreased values and increased taxes.

It is likely that the counties themselves largely are responsible for the agitation for a central tax board in Austin. Had they been more diligent in equalization of taxes; had none tried to avoid their portion of the State tax burden by encouraging low valuations supported by a higher county rate, possibly the State tax board would not have been suggested. If this is true, then the remedy will lie back home, in the more careful selection of local officials, or the establishment of tax laws which will insure the State its just part of taxes raised within each county. This can be done without the establishment of another State board.

The late hour at which the House gave consideration to the McFarland Bill indicates it will not pass the Senate during this session. But the issue is sure to bob up again. It would be much better to defeat it decisively at this stage of the game.

Increasing Travel

Texas is becoming increasingly important as an objective for tourists, and, evidently, Texans coming out of the depression are doing much more traveling in their own State. Last year was Centennial year, of course, and it was expected that many people from outside the State would visit Texas. Those who, prior to 1936, urged the Centennial observations of last year, predicted that these events would inaugurate a new period of travel to this state. Apparently their fondest hopes have been more than realized. The most accurate index to travel in Texas is the gasoline tax receipts. In August of last year, gasoline tax receipts reached a new high in Texas, greater even than had been anticipated by those who estimated the Centennial influx. It was thought that this record would stand for many years. And yet, in June of this year, with no Centennial to draw tourists, the August record was surpassed and a new high established.

Last week Comptroller George Sheppard announced that two new records had been established in gasoline tax collections; first in July of this year, and again in August, making August of this year the greatest month for automobile travel in the history of the State. Just what portion of that tax is paid by Texans, and what by tourists from other States cannot be determined, of course. But it is reasonable to assume that a sizeable portion of this tax money is secured by those who are visiting Texas. In addition, better highways have encouraged Texans themselves to do more traveling.

The tourist business is now estimated to be the second largest in Texas, surpassing even agriculture, and bowing only to petroleum. It is a most profitable business, and Texas should do everything possible to encourage it; to take care of it once it is here, and to see that all who come desire to return.

The MARCH OF TIME

A New BANNER Feature by the Editors of TIME, The Weekly Newsmagazine

Bad Neighbor Policy

WASHINGTON — During his homeward trip from the West, Franklin Roosevelt stopped off at Chicago to dedicate that city's new Centennial bridge, surprised his listeners by talking not about the bridge but about international affairs. Said he:

"The present reign of terror and international lawlessness began a few years ago. It began through unjustified interference in the internal affairs of other nations or the invasion of alien territory in violation of treaties, and has now reached a stage where the very foundations of civilization are seriously threatened."

"Without a declaration of war and without warning or justification of any kind, civilians, including women and children, are being ruthlessly murdered with bombs from the air. Ships are being attacked and sunk by submarines without cause or notice. Nations are fomenting and taking sides in civil warfare in nations that have never done them any harm. Nations claiming freedom for themselves deny it to others. Innocent peoples and nations are being cruelly sacrificed to a greed for power and supremacy which is devoid of all sense of justice and humane consideration."

"It seems to be unfortunately true that the epidemic of world lawlessness is spreading. When an epidemic of physical disease starts to spread, the community approves and joins in a quarantine of the patients in order to protect the health of the community against the spread of the disease. War is a contagion, whether it is declared or undeclared. It can engulf states and peoples remote from the original scene of hostilities. We are determined to keep out of war, yet we cannot insure ourselves against the disastrous effects of war and the dangers of involvement. We are adopting such measures as will minimize our risk of involvement, but we cannot have complete protection in a world of disorder in which confidence and security have broken down."

"There must be positive endeavors to preserve peace. America hates war. America hopes for peace. Therefore, America actively engages in the search for peace."

Franklin Roosevelt did not advertise these words, briefly in his "fireside chat" a few days later as a renunciation of a foreign policy that dated from 1920. Since the U. S. turned its back on the League of Nations, the U. S. has been sternly devoted to a policy of isolation and a theory that U. S. safety is best served by a 100% laissez faire attitude toward all international quarrels.

Vague as the word "quarantine" might be, it is clearly indicated that the President was prepared to use diplomatic if not economic pressure on international bullies. It left no doubt whatever that he intended to frame U. S. foreign policy to encourage peace not only by being a good neighbor, but by restraining bad neighbors.

As Anticipated

WASHINGTON—First important act of the U. S. Supreme Court's 1937-38 session last week was, as anticipated, to dispose of the petition by Lawyer Albert Levitt, that Associate Justice Hugo Lafayette Black be required to prove his eligibility to sit on the bench of the highest U. S. Court. Also as anticipated, the petition was denied. Said solemn Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes last week:

"The motion papers disclose no interest upon the part of the petitioner other than that of a citizen and a member of the bar of this Court. That is insufficient. It is an established principle that to entitle a private individual to invoke judicial power to determine the validity of executive or legislative action he must show that he has sustained, or is immediately in danger of sustaining a direct injury as the result of that action and it is not sufficient that he has merely a general interest common to all members of the public."

Reactions to Roosevelt

WASHINGTON — Only foreign state to approve U. S. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's Chicago speech so highly as to have it reprinted in pamphlet form and distributed to all fighting fronts to encourage the troops last week was the Valencia Government of Lefteris Teron. In Madrid, Mr. Roosevelt was hailed in whole pages of heartfelt Spanish eulogy for having brought Washington out on the side of Valencia. "Cried Madrid's 'Informaciones': 'There is not a paragraph in President Roosevelt's speech which cannot be fully subscribed to by us without mental reservations or distinctions.'"

"Soviet public opinion," said Moscow's "Izvestia" ("News"), official organ of the Soviet Government, "cannot fail to remark in President Roosevelt's speech the number of views directly coinciding with the ideas for which Soviet diplomacy alone hitherto has fought consistently."

As head of the Popular Front Cabinet in France, Premier Camille Chauvinet told the American Club of Paris in a fervent after-dinner speech: "We have found with emotion and pride in the President's Chicago speech an echo of all the principles to which we are passionately attached."

Members of the Chinese Government, which clearly stood to gain most by the implications of President Roosevelt's new foreign policy, blandly expressed themselves as "much gratified" last week but unrestrained were the joyous whoops of U. S. citizens resident in China. "If you boycott Japan," U. S. radio listeners were told by former Chinese Ambassador to the U. S., Dr. Alfred Sso-Ke Sze, broadcasting from Shanghai, "you will find you have contributed to the greatest single step of progress in history!"

Although President Roosevelt was offering the United Kingdom the chance of the century to extract the U. S. from isolation and team it up with Great Britain, this week Downing Street had its careful fingers crossed. In Japan, Germany and Italy prompt and angry reactions to the Chicago speech suggested that the President had gone a long way toward stinging these mutually Fascist powers into a hard triumvirate.

Annapolis Changes

WASHINGTON — Biggest house on the Annapolis grounds, the white glazed-brick quarters of the U. S. Naval Academy's Superintendent have been occupied since 1934 by one-time Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. fleet, Rear Admiral David Poole Sellers, who next February reaches the navy's statutory retirement age of 64. Superintendent Sellers' successor appointed last week by Navy Secretary Claude A. Swanson, will be Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, Jr., now Commander of the U. S. fleet's training detachment.

Washington bigwigs who visit Annapolis under the new superintendent's regime will be welcomed by an old friend. For Wilson Brown distinguished himself from 1926 to 1929 as naval aide to Calvin Coolidge and commanding officer of the Presidential yacht "Mayflower," again from 1934 to 1935 as naval aide to Franklin Roosevelt. His career began in 1902 when he graduated from Annapolis as the youngest member of his class. He went back to teach at the Academy in 1907, commanded the U. S. S. Parker during the World War, later headed the U. S. Submarine base at New London, Conn.

GOP Plans

CHICAGO—With the Republican Party represented in U. S. Government by 17 out of 96 Senators, 87 out of 435 Representatives, and 8 out of 48 State Governors, former President Herbert Hoover recommended in the "Atlantic Monthly" magazine a plan for getting his party out of the doldrums: a mid-term Republican National Convention to be held during the next year.

Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton last week announced that the Republican National Committee would meet in Chicago next month to consider seriously what good such a convention would do decide whether to hold one.

"Heil Windsor!"

BERLIN—Hitched to the crack Nord Express out of Paris for Berlin, a privately chartered sleeping car was hailed in the dead of night at Cologne last week with shouts of "Heil, Windsor!" Sliding into Berlin early next morning, the Duke and Duchess were met on the platform by Nazi Labor Front Leader Dr. Robert Ley who presented a bouquet of red roses, promptly drove Germany's guests to the Kaiserhof Hotel.

The Royal Highnesses the Duke of Windsor, duly confirmed by George VI in that rank, was slated to be received by Der Fuehrer and Chancellor Adolf Hitler at his Bavarian snuggery on Oct. 22, to sail with the Duchess from Cherbourg on the "Bremen" on November 6 for Manhattan.

While the Duchess rested at the Kaiserhof, Dr. Ley started the Duke out on what is to be an intensive fortnight's tour of German factories, housing and worker recreation.

creation projects. Taking England's one-time King repeatedly and viciously by the coat lapel, Dr. Ley proved himself a buttonhole orator: "This was a rubbish heap—this factory! The Nazi roared in Windsor's ear. 'It was worse than a rubbish heap because it was founded by communists. And then The Leader Adolf Hitler came along and all that was changed! Look at the happy workmen! LOOK AT THEM!'"

While the Duke lit a cigaret to gain elbow room, Buttonhole Orator Ley singled out a worker, crying: "You ARE happy here, are you not, my worker comrade?" On the wall a few feet away a huge placard: "HUSH! Remember it is your duty to be silent!" The worker looked at Dr. Ley, then at the placard, then at Dr. Ley again, and answered: "Ja, ja, yes, yes."

Only U. S. Cabinet member to speak out on the Windsors was Madam Secretary Perkins who promised every assistance to Dr. Duke and Duchess in enabling them to see as much as they like of U. S. labor. PWA officials in Washington readied a list of 31 U. S. cities in which the visitors might inspect to work. The State Department fussed over details of how to receive the sister-in-law and older brother of the King of England and Emperor of India who once occupied this royal and imperial status himself, today presents a protocol problem unprecedented. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt according to Washington prognosticians last week, will receive the Duke and Duchess, may ask them to stay at the White House.

Admiral's Teeth

TOKYO, Japan—Trotting into the Japanese Navy office in Tokyo last week, a little woman laid several pieces of money on the counter as a contribution to Japan's war fund. Said she: "These are Admiral Yonai's teeth." Shocked underlings investigated, found she was the wife of a dentist, had obtained the money by selling gold from the teeth of Navy Minister Matsumasa Yonai after work done in her husband's office.

Anti-Dualists

ST. LOUIS, Missouri—William R. Cay and George H. Siegel of Nutley, N. J., last week watched with amazement the rapid growth of their newly-founded Anti Movie Double Feature League of America, dedicated to mass-boycotting of double bills and now boasting 65 chapters throughout the U. S. Meanwhile Fanchon & Marco, potent firm which controls 31 St. Louis theatres, completed a 10-day poll of 57,599 St. Louis cinemagoers, found that 7 out of 10 citizens in the nation's seventh largest city still like "duals." Other St. Louis preferences: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Shirley Temple. Only 1,669 St. Louis fans admitted that they liked gangster films.

girls for the 12th annual World's Championship Rodeo. Soon most of the top-flight cowboys of the North American rodeo circuit were circulating around Broadway movie theatres and bars, wearing at the Garden's special behest the widest hats and brightest shirts they could buy. As contestants in what is one of the most unprofitable as well as one of the riskiest of sports, rodeo cowboys average about $3,000 a year in prize money spend most of it on traveling expenses, clothes, entry fees and hospital bills. Few, therefore, can afford to pass up the Madison Square Garden rodeo, which offers the season's biggest total prize money ($58,000) augmented this year by the entry fees in all events.

Chief features of the rodeo were the smell of tanbark, a display of cay bandanas, a pounding of hoofs by a whooping of cowhands, and a continuous schedule of feats of skill and vigor. Among them: an exhibition of trick-roping by 44-year-old Chester Byers who learned some of his stunts from Will Rogers and has been No. 1 U. S. trick-roper so long (20 years) that no competitors were entered against him last week; cowboys trying to throw light Mexican steers, to ride huge, humped 3,500-lb. Brahama steers, to rope and hold wild cows long enough to make them yield a pop bottle full of milk, to mount and ride wild horses in a race across the arena; cowgirls riding broncos (with the stirrups tied down as a concession to their sex); Cowboy Billy Keen vaulting over an automobile with two horses; trick Horseshoe Pitcher Ted Allen knocking a paper bag from the head of an assistant in the course of making a finger, lighting a match with another ringer; mounted basketball, a game with all the punishing features of water polo, football and a riot in a pick-et-line; Trick-Reper Gene McLaughlin, 7, of Del Rio, Tex., performing with his brother, Donald, 8.

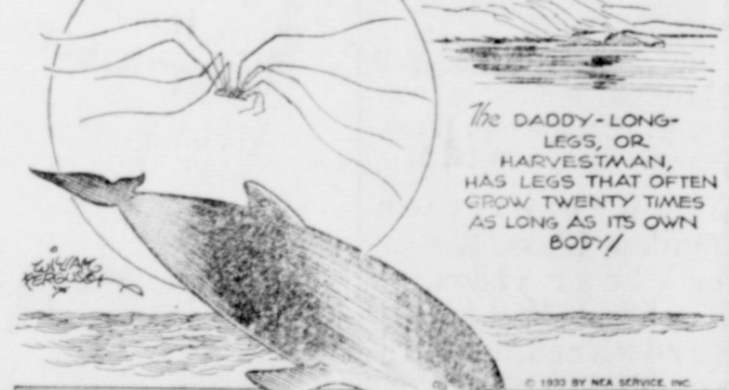

On the fourth night of the show, Steer Rider Walter Gravens, one of the best on the circuit, was thrown and trampled on; died next day of a punctured lung.

Sip of a Daughter

MACON, Georgia—If a Daughter of the American Revolution should end a Fourth of July oration with a burst of praise for George III her audience would be justifiably startled. In Macon, Mrs. Walter D. Lamar last week startled a convention of the Georgia division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy with an indiscretion no less spend most of it on traveling expenses, clothes, entry fees and hospital bills. Few, therefore, can afford to pass up the Madison Square Garden rodeo, which offers the season's biggest total prize money ($58,000) augmented this year by the entry fees in all events.

ON TEXAS FARMS

FOOD PRESERVATION BY 4-H CLUB GIRLS

West Texas farm women and 4-H club girls are spending much of their time in the preparation and preservation of food for their families this fall, according to reports from county home demonstration agents in that area.

"I plan for the foods I can to supplement my garden products," states Mrs. Benno Eckert, food supply demonstrator of the Stonewall home demonstration club in Gillespie county, "therefore I grow fresh vegetables in my garden the year around." Mrs. Eckert, has 347½ quarts of vegetables valued at $69.50 which include 19 different varieties of vegetables, fruits, meats and preserves.

To provide adequate and suitable space for storage of her canned products, Mary Lehmann of the Dale 4-H club in Runnels county is building a ventilated pantry which is 4 feet long, 2 feet wide and extends to the ceiling. The ventilation is provided by cutting a nine-inch square in the floor near the inside wall and another in the ceiling, each of which is covered with a screen as well as cover for winter. She is labeling her shelves and containers and organizing the pantry with each class of vegetable in its place. Mary has canned 612 quarts of vegetables and fruits and has dried 268 pounds of peas.

A demonstration on the principles of cooking mild and strong flavored vegetables was given to the five girls' 4-H clubs in Kerr county in September. Cabbage was prepared with a cheese sauce to represent the strong class and sweet potatoes represented the mild class. Many of the girls were convinced that they could eat cabbage and like it when it was properly prepared.

TERRACED ACRES PAY

County agricultural agents in West Texas send in reports of farmers and ranchmen in that section who have found that terracing pays big dividends and makes their land more valuable.

A. G. Morris had 75 of the 100 acres of cultivated land on his ranch terraced in September. "Contrary to the general belief of ranchmen in this section that farming a part of the ranch will not pay, this 100 acres we farm makes us

McDonald Details Agriculture Stand

Plans are underway to introduce in Congress a domestic allotment farm program which Texas Agriculture Commissioner J. T. McDonald helped to originate.

McDonald would allocate the amount of cotton, wheat, corn, wool or other farm products consumed annually in the United States. Each producer would be given a quota to produce for domestic consumption and received a fixed price for it, by government subsidy, if necessary.

Surplus crops would be sold on the world market.

"The farmer doesn't want the government to restrict the amount he can grow," said McDonald. "All he wants is the chance to sell on a protected domestic market and to put his surplus on the world market. That is the same advantage that manufacturing now has through our tariff laws."

Fight colds! Protect yourself and your family against becoming overheated or chilled. If you do "catch cold" consult your family doctor before it has an opportunity to undermine your health.

ONLY "a cold"
but serious disease may follow

YOUR doctor will tell you that "common colds" are dangerous. Fifty per cent of all disabling diseases start with this all too frequent winter illness. Many "colds" result from sudden changes of temperature such as occur to occupants of the home as they go from a warm room into an unheated part of the house. Unless every room is comfortably warm sudden changes of temperature are unavoidable.

Winter months, more than any other season of the year, require careful protective measures against "the common cold." If YOUR family is constantly "catching cold" HEAT YOUR ENTIRE HOUSE THIS WINTER FOR YOUR HEALTH'S SAKE — it's a simple precaution to avoid the dangers of sudden changes of temperature.

SPREAD TO TEXAS OF NEW LIVESTOCK DISEASE REPORTED

An epidemic of sleeping sickness among horses and mules, first noticed extensively in California in 1930, has been spreading the past few years across the entire continent, becoming noticeable in Texas early this fall.

Only treatment known is a serum, supplies of which are limited because of increased demands. County Agent C. W. Lehmburg, who has received reports of the local cases, advises that a farmer consult a veterinarian as soon as his animals show symptoms of the disease.

The disease is a virus infection transmitted by such insects as mosquitoes, ticks and flies. Infection centers in the horse's brain and spreads gradually through the blood stream and is usually fatal. Symptoms are fairly uniform. The horse is very nervous the first day and registers a temperature around 103 to 106 degrees.

As the disease progresses, the gums turn yellow, the whites of the eyes enlarge, a yellow secretion flows from the mouth. There are three distinct stages of the disease, according to the department of agriculture, which has done considerable research work in that field.

It is believed by veterinarians that nearly 75 per cent of horses and mules are immune from sleeping sickness and of those sick, 50 to 80 per cent will be saved if a good veterinarian is called at once and measures to overcome dehydration applied.

The disease always dies out with the advent of cold weather.

Cemetery Association Pleasant Valley Cemetery association will meet at the cemetery south of May Sunday, November 14, according to announcement this week.

TAA CONVENTION TO BE HELD AT FORT WORTH DEC. 9-11

Texas Agricultural Association will hold its annual convention in Fort Worth December 9, 10 and 11, according to H. G. Lucas, president of the Association.

At the close of the state convention, the TAA will arrange for a special train to Chicago, and a large number of Texas farmers will attend the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau in that city December 13, 14 and 15.

Almost every agricultural community in the state has a county organization of the TAA and each is expected to send delegates to the state meeting. In addition to the elected delegates, many other interested farmers and farm women will attend the convention.

An American officer stands at the liner's rail in the foreground; in the river is a Japanese gunboat, racing between the U. S. ship and the shore to shell a Chinese position. Machine gun bullets from Chinese trenches in the background, fired at the Japanese warship, were striking the American liner when the photograph was taken.
