John Chamberlain, writing in Human Events, says that Chile may have the answer to the US Social Security problem. Before going into that, it may be interesting to note that the country, which was in a mess under Communist Salvadore Allende, has shown lots of progress since he was ousted in 1973. President Augusto Pinochet is making extensive government reforms and establishing a healthy economy through free enterprise. John Chamberlain.

As the author tells it. As the author tells it, "Chile was off on its great experiment, cutting back on government spending, doing away with price fixing, selling off state owned enterprises, and balancing its budget at relatively low rates of taxation."

However, the country was saddled with a social security law that simply ate up the capital that should be going into investment in a business expansion two would favor everyone. The program was financed by externely which payed!

program was financed by extremely high payroll taxes...as much as 35 percent last year.

Some seven months ago the Chileans started to institute a system that will eventually turn the whole business of providing old age insurance over to private enterprise. As seen by Pinochet, It would make large amounts of investment capital available to Chile without taking old age security away from anyone. And it would also have the blessed virtue of getting blessed virtue of getting social security off the federal books, making budget balancing an easy matter.

Here's how it works.

Workers who choose to accept the system must contribute 10% of their pay each month to a private insurance company of their own choice. It not satisfied with that company's performers they have accepted. own choice. It not satisfied with that company's performance, they may transfer patronage to another company. The Chilean government insists on prudent investment standards and there is a provision for government pensions in case a company goes broke.

So, instead of paying something denominated as a tax to provide for old age, the Chilean worker can now visualize his 10 percent as a saving, earning compound

Though the US apparently isn't yet aware of what's happening, we may also be starting on the solution to our social security problem.

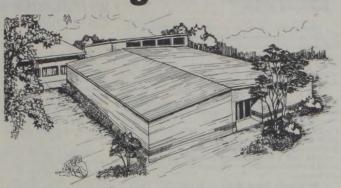

Already IRA offers some of the benefits of the Chilean system. It is a savings plan which will provide generously for old age and it will provide capital which can be used wisely for investments and jobs. In addition it can offer greater retirement benefits with more options than Social Security and at a lower cost.

Heavy equipment stirred up a cloud but it failed to remove the layer of crushed rock and pulverized rock dust remaining from the city's paving attempt.

Attempt to remove dust fails

The problem of dusty streets from deteriorating pavement gravel continues to haunt the City of Muenster. After little progress in removing the dust and crushed rock during more than four hours of effort Monday, councilmen chose to quit and look for a different method.

Equipment used for the Equipment used for the effort was heavy duty sweepers used on highway. One of the three units was stopped by mechanical failure, the other two were unable to sweep up the thick layer of dust and rock imbedded in the asphalt.

Equipment to be used next in the trial and error project is a light weight road grader which hopefully will move the dust and partially imbedded rock into windrows. If that succeeds the next step will be to pick up the windrows with a frontthe windrows with a front-end loader. And the final stage will be to follow with the city's small sweeper to pick up remaining material.

The city has had two major problems with its 1981 paving program. Cool weather came early after completion of the work and asphalt did not remain soft enough for surface gravel to be pressed in by the traffic. Also the crushed rock was too soft for the purpose and was ground into dust by the traffic.

The latest phase in the expansion program at Muenster Public School is due to get under way in the near future when construction begins on a new building including five junior high classrooms and a high school science room with laboratory and class space.

Two burglaries remain unsolved

Muenster police still have no clues to two burglaries reported to police on Jan. 9. Police Chief Helen Tompkins said this week that earlier suspicions in the case failed to materialize.

The two break-ins occurred between 5:30 and 10:30 p.m. in the home of Felix Yosten and Ken McDougle. The Yosten house was entered through an unlocked door, the McDougle house by forcing a rear window.

Need for the additional space has been anticipated for several years. Average growth of fifteen students a year has required annual alterations. Trustees agreed at the beginning of the current school year that expansion was urgent and they decided at their September meeting to get the project under way. They engaged the architect on October 14.

Construction time, estimated at 183 working days, is intended to have the new building ready for occupancy at the opening of the next school year. Existing junior high rooms will then be used to relieve crowding in the elementary department.

The new building will be located in an area north and west of the homemaking department, its north side facing the cafeteria and its west side facing Oak Street. More space is available north and south for possible future expansion. It will have 7100 square feet of floor space. Each room is intended to accommodate 25 students.

IRA an appealing retirement plan

Thanks to recently enacted legislation, anyone with an earned income can provide for his or her retirement by depositing a portion of that income in an Individual Retirement Account (IRA). This account became available at the beginning of this year and can be opened at most financial institutions, including Muenster State Bank.

Besides the security benefit of such a retirement plan, IRA offers other incentives, making it financially at-tractive as well as affordable for most individuals.

The plan allows anyone with an earned income to deposit up to $2,000 a year in the account, to deduct the deposits from taxable income on one's income tax report, and to begin drawing on the accumulated savings as early as age 59½, whether he or she retired or not.

It makes no difference if a person is already involved in retirement tirement plan, because the new gislation allows the combination of legislation anows IRA with other plans.

Deposits can be made in whatever way the depositor chooses: weekly,

way the depositor chooses: weekly, monthly or annually.

As soon as a deposit is made the IRA fund goes to work, long before the person's retiremet. The very first benefit is a tax saving because the IRA fund does not have to be included in an income tax report. Instead the tax is deferred until withdrawal when withdrawals are reported as income. Even then the tax rate will likely be in a lower bracket because taxable income at the older age is expected to be less than during the earlier years.

Additionally IRA is an investment.

Additionally IRA is an investment with a high interest compounding an-nually. The account's earnings com-bined with its savings can grow to a handsome amount at withdrawal

Because of this attractive investment feature, along with substantial penalty for early withdrawal, IRA another deposits are not expected to be drawn for a considerable length of

For this reason IRA also becomes a valuable community asset. These long-term deposits enable the financial institutions to make more money available to stimulate the economy and improve the community.

The IRA plan is flexible. If a man and wife are both working, each may invest up to $2,000 a year. Income from other sources such as investment or inheritance cannot be used for the account, however any portion of earned income up to the limit of $2,000 each may be deposited even if it amounts to as much as 100 per cent of the person's earnings. Likewise the IRA investor has options of taking small amounts or larger amounts at withdrawal time, enabling use for emergencies such as hospital bills or even a vacation. However the person must remember that income tax, which did not apply as denosit is due. must remember that income tax, which did not apply at deposit, is due

ECONOMIC GROWTH

As individuals we have little trouble choosing surgery to prolong life. Why is it that as individuals we can see alternatives so clearly, but as a body politic we have such trouble choosing the right alternative?

In the case of America's economic illness, it is absolutely essential that we choose the "surgery." Otherwise, our days are numbered as a free nation.

Obviously the job of our leaders is to find a way of phasing gradually from one system to the other. Make the changes in such a way that savings benefits and costs increase slowly while social security benefits and costs decrease until eventually the change is completed.

One feature of the present system would have to be retained. It would have to be mandatory. Otherwise irresponsible people would fail to invest savings and have nothing to provide for them later, and government would have them as welfare problems. Actually it should

And in transferring from one system to the other the withholdings could be assigned to the two funds in proper proportions. There are abundant reasons why the nation should change from its socialistic way of providing for advancing years to the free enterprise way. Furthermore, there's no doubt that a few capable and dedicated minds can find a way to do it.

The possibilities in this thing are fascinating. Imagine a better and less expensive way of providing for the future while also expanding opportunities for jobs and investments. First, dealing with causes not symptoms is a long-range effort and decades of error cannot be corrected overnight. Second, inflationary expectations are deeply embedded in our thinking; it will take time to reverse such habits and patterns. Third, public confidence must be restored in current government policies, and this will take time. We should all help the public to understand that lavish spending of the last 6 years was the result of spending an average of 50 billion dollars of borrowed money each year. Do we want to go on spending like that till we wreck the whole nation, or endure a bit of hardship getting back again to a sound economy?

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS 142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

Most people, when they think about their U.S. Senators and Representatives associate them with long legislative sessions in the chambers of Congress, national issues, and the maze of bureaucracy in Washington, D.C. This impression is accurate, although not complete, because there is much more to the job that you send your elected representatives to Washington to do.

One of the most gratifying aspects I find in being Senator from Texas is the opportunity to help people who have problems with the federal bureaucracy. These problems range from getting information about a new energy program to questions about Social Security benefits. My office cannot make changes in agency decisions, rules or procedures. However, I can act as a liaison to make sure all pertinent facts are being considered, that the agency is acting in a timely manner, or that paperwork is being properly processed.

For example, Larry Wiard of League City, Texas,

For example, Larry Wiard of League City, Texas, recently got in touch with me because he was having problems scheduling back surgery at a veterans' hospital. Mr. Wiard had been told in August he needed immediate surgery. He could barely walk and had severe back pain.

The doctors at the hospital had told Mr. Wiard that he had to have a procedure called CAT scan before the surgery. He made several appointments with the VA clinic, but on each one he was told the funds were not available to provide the scan. On November 3, he called my office to ask for assistance. My office, in turn, inquired at the Houston Veterans Administration Hospital on Mr. Wiard's behalf. At that point, the hospital scheduled yet another appointment for him. On November 9, the doctor told Mr. Wiard that the surgery could be performed without the CAT scan. He had never been told before that he had this option and elected to have the surgery he had this option and elected to have the surgery immediately, even though the risk would be greater without the CAT procedure. The surgery was performed November 12, and by Thanksgiving, Mr. Wiard's stitches were out, he was recuperating at home and the outlook for the future was good.

Of course, not, all, problems can be colved that the future was good.

Of course, not all problems can be solved that quickly. But, I welcome the opportunity to attempt to help any Texan who is having a problem with federal red tape.

If you are having difficulties with the federal government or would like to express your opinion on any issue, please do not hesitate to get in touch with me at any of five offices. There are four in Texas and one in Washington, D.C. You can write to me in Washington in care of the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C., 20510. The addresses and phone numbers for my Texas offices are listed in the telephone book. I look forward to hearing from you.

of interest to VETERANS

A new federal law signed in November authorizes the Veterans Administration to provide hospital care to Vietnam veterans whose allments may be linked to Agent Orange exposure, even if scientific evidence of the connection does not yet exist.

The new law gives similar priority to veterans exposed to atomic radiation during the post-World War II occupation of Hiroshima and Nagasaki or subsequent nuclear weapons tests. This protects veterans whose illnesses are of mysterious origin or about which there is reasonable doubt — vets exposed to toxic agents whose problems are definitely not related to exposure will continue to be handled according to VA rules for nonservice-connected disabilities.

Claims for disability compensation are not affected by this relaxation of health care eligibility. Public Law 97-72 also extends the "Vet Center" outreach and readjustment counseling program for Vietnam era veterans until September 30, 1984.

At the end of fiscal year 1981, VA estimated there were slightly over 9 million veterans of the Vietnam era, which the government dates as beginning on Aug. 5, 1964, and ending on May 7, 1975. About 2 percent of them were women. Nearly one-third of all Vietnam era veterans served in Vietnam:

WEINBERGER'S CHALLENGE

By Edwin Feulner

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, with whom I do not always agree, is right about one thing: "There is nothing hypothetical about the Soviet military machine." The facts are persuasive.

The Soviet Armed Forces now number more than 4.8 million men, including a standing army of nearly 1.9 million strategic rocket forces, an ever-expanding and sophisticated navy, a huge air force and a separate air defense

The Soviet Ground Forces of the army have grown to more than 180 divisions — motorized rifle divisions, tank divisions and airborne divisions — stationed in Eastern Europe, in the USSR, in Mongolia, and in combat in Afghanistan, where they have an estimated 85,000 men.

In addition to these 85,000 combat troops, the Soviet Union also has an estimated 20,000 military personnel stationed in 28 other countries around the globe, including Algeria, Libya, Angola, Ethiopia, Iraq, Syria and South Yemen. Not surprisingly, several of these countries are leading exporters of international terrorism.

The Soviets have more than 50,000 tanks and 20,000 artillery pieces in the field. More than 5,200 helicopters are in the ready. More than 3,500 Soviet and Warsaw Pact tactical bombers and fighter aircraft are located in Eastern Europe alone (including more than 1,000 new fighters that have been produced in the last eight years).

The Soviets have eight classes of submarines and eight classes of major surface warships, including nuclear-powered cruisers and new aircraft carriers, presently under

Their intercontinental strategic arsenal includes an estimated 7,000 nuclear warheads, with some 1,400 ICBM launchers, 250 SS-20 Intermediate Range launchers, 156 long-range bombers, and another 150 or so nuclear-capable 'Backfire' bombers

The Soviet Air Defense Forces, moreover, man 10,000 surface-to-air missile launchers at 1,000 fixed missile sights across the Soviet Union.

All this is made possible by a network of some 135 major state-run military production plants now in operation in the Soviet Union (with an estimated 35,000 individual factories), a military budget that has consumed 12-14 percent of the Soviet Gross National Product for the past two decades, and an army of 900,000 full-time scientists and engineers working for the state — an undetermined number of whom are engaged in military R&D.

The list of Soviet advances in almost every militaryrelated field imaginable goes on and on. Their space program, the netherworld of biological warfare, genetic engineering, behavior modification, metals development, electronics, explosive technology — the Soviets are on the march in all these areas

Unfortunately — despite the obvious — Reagan Administration budget cutters still have their eyes on the atone-time ''hands-off'' defense budget, which was trimmed back in September, along with other federal spending.

As military analyst William Green points out, the September 24 budget cut proposal includes a $13 billion reduction in defense outlays over the next three years. This means the Reagan Administration budget for fiscal 1982 is only $1.8 billion more than President Carter proposed. In 1983, the difference amounts to only $9.6 billion. How we're going to build up our national defense, as the president has promised, with such negligible budget increases not only worries, but mystifies me.

All Systems go!
A baby is born with all systems go. But it takes a while to get all those systems working together, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter.

A crib mobile is a good systems-coordination-training-ground for a three or four month old baby. To make a crib mobile, start by fastening a dowel rod or yardstick across the top of the crib at the baby's chest level. Tie a crosspiece at the middle with a stout piece of twine. The crosspiece should be a length of rubber hose or a cardboard tube like the ones on clothes hangers-but no sharp rods or sticks, in case the mobile breaks, and no long dangling strings or anything else the baby could possibly hurt himself with. From each end, dangle another length of string. Tie an object small enough for Baby to grasp on each one. For instance, on one side might be a small of string. Tie an object small enough for Baby to grasp on each one. For instance, on one side might be a small square or round block, and on the other side a short rubber bone to balance it.

Other objects to use are a teething ring, squeaky toys (especially those which have human-like heads and facesbabies love these), a bootie, rattle or small plastic bottle. The objects can be changed once a week or more often if Baby loses interest. By using fewer objects at a time and changing them fairly often, you will avoid overstimulating the baby. This is important, because loading a baby up with too many things can kill curiosity just as too scanty an environment can.

The objects on the mobile should be at the distance of the baby's outstretched palm, and the swing of the crosspiece should be enough so that when the baby finally grasps the object, he can get just into his mouth.

A baby will be more interested if the objects have bright colors and contrasts of light and dark. For instance, if a block is a solid color, paint a bull's-eye on the bottom with black non-toxic marker; infants at this age find such a design more interesting than simple lines and corners. If the bootie is white, get a long black shoelace to lace it and hang it with.

With the mobile in place, the baby will soon be batting closing only after they touch the object. When he finally closing only after they touch the object. When he finally has a grip on the elusive object, he will reflexively bring it to his mouth to explore it with his tongue and lips. He cannot let go voluntarily, but he will relax his grip when something else catches his attention-at which time the object will pop neatly up into the air to entice him again later.

This, then, is the first major educational objective; to get several systems-seeing, reaching, feeling, tasting-to work together on a single object. At this point an object begins to be something real and permanent to Baby, apart from his own self. This perception is necessary before he can begin his next intellectual task; finding out what objects are for and what he can do to them.

Sacred Heart wins 2 at Amarillo

Tigerettes have fine prospects in the current TCIL district basketball race but the Tigers have a job cut out for them.

That's the situation since

Tuesday when the SH boys lost their second game out of three to date. They divided a pair with Amarillo Alamo and lost the first of a two game series with Notre

and also about the district tournament here on January 28 and 29.

Tigerettes at Notre Dame were ahead all the way, but busy. They led 11-9 the first period and made their best gain in the second for a 23-15 half time lead. In the second half they gained by one point for a 43-34 win. Susan Walterscheid poured in 20 points, Anne Felderhoff 13, Carol Walterscheid 7 (plus 16 rebounds), Laurie Endres 2, Connie Stoffels 1. A misfortune for the girls was an ankle re-injury for Laurie Endres. She is not expected back this season.

The Tigers' problem was simply too much Notre Dame power. The Knights zoomed to a 17-2 first quarter lead and held the margin for a 29-14 lead, at intermission then gained again for leads of 47-25 and 65-37. SH scorers were Brian Herr 14, Greg Walterscheid 12, TJ Walterscheid 5, Gene Fuhrman 4, Darrell Herr 2.

Last week was dismal for the MHS baskerball teams, with one sided losses at Krum and Slidell.

The Hornettes, whose district record stands at 2-4 and the season record at 8-8, made a fair start against a strong team trailing 8-6 and 26-15 the first two periods, then fell apart as Krum zoomed to a 56-28 win.
