Two recent thefts may be related

The theory is that two recent thefts in Muenster are related, but clues for solving either are still unavailable.

The latest was discovery on February 16 that a 16 ft. livestock trailer was stolen at Bernard Haverkamp's which might have occurred as early as the 11th. In the meantime it was missed, but another person was assumed to have it.

The theft was reported to Police Chief Helen Tompkins on the 16th, and a comparison of dates suggests the possibility that the vehicle was stolen the night when V.L. Sparkman's garden tractor was taken, and was used to haul the tractor away. However, no clues have developed in either case, Tompkins said. Other police activity of the week consisted only of five citations. Two were for exhibition of acceleration; one was for a triple violation; littering, no driver license and no proof of liability insurance; one was for non possession of license or proof of liability insurance; and one for no proof of liability insurance.

Don't confuse Measles & Rubella

Many people confuse measles and rubella—perhaps because a popular term for rubella is "German measles." This is misleading since rubella is not measles but a different virus, says the Texas Medical Association.

The confusion wouldn't matter if it were not for the fact that both diseases can produce serious complications. Because of these complications, medical authorities urge vaccination against both, ideally at age 15 months.

Before the vaccine became available, measles was an almost inevitable disease of childhood. It lasts about 10 days. At the onset the disease is characterized by a dry scratchy cough, running nose, inflamed eyes and an irregularly elevated temperature.

Complicating pneumonia or ear infections may require antibiotics. The most serious complication of measles is encephalitis, which can be deadly or cause severe brain damage.

Rubella is often so mild a childhood disorder that many adults may either have forgotten their childhood illness or had an illness which was not recognized as rubella. Many adults, therefore, have naturally acquired immunity against rubella.

The disease usually lasts about three days. A rash often accompanies rubella but may be so faint that it goes unnoticed. It usually causes painful swelling in the glands at the back of the neck and behind the ears, along with slight fever.

Rubella is such a mild disease in both children and adults that there would be no cause for alarm were it not for a tragic exception—the danger of severe physical and mental damage to a pregnant woman's unborn child if she acquires the disease in the early months of pregnancy.

Henry S. Fuhrmanns 60th anniversary celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Fuhrmann of Lindsay celebrated 60 years of marriage on Saturday, February 20, beginning with an anniversary Mass of Thanksgiving at 10:30 a.m. in St. Peter's Church.

Concelebrating the Mass were six priests, relatives or close friends. They were Father Cletus, Father Nicholas, Father Bruno, Father David, Father Denis, and Father Stephen. Father Placidus joined them later. Also in the sanctuary were Brother Louis, Brother Henry, Brother Michael and Brother Vincent.

Henry S. Fuhrmann and the former Catherine Schmitz were married in St. Peter's Church on February 21, 1922, with Father Bernard Zell OSB officiating and Henry N. Fuhrmann and Cecilia Bezner, now Mrs. Ed Corcoran, as attendants. Mrs. Corcoran was unable to join the anniversary celebration.

The Mass was made more memorable by a special liturgy planned by Sister Catherine Henry in which grandchildren participated.

Symbolic gifts presented at the altar with the Offertory gifts, included the original wedding picture; a family reunion picture; a lighted candle; the parents' rosaries; wheat, grapes and a loaf of bread; and a bouquet of roses.

Following the Mass a special blessing was given to the immediate family, as they formed a circle around their parents, at the entrance to the sanctuary. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Fuhrmann are Diamond, Sister Catherine Henry, Lucille (Mrs. Ray Hess) Brother Louis, LaVern (Mrs. Harold Norman), and one son, Louis, who lost his life in a farm tractor accident at age 12, on July 20, 1945.

Following the religious celebration, a dinner at noon was served in the Lindsay Parish Hall for family members, the clergy and a few close friends.

An Open House during the afternoon in the same place, honored the Fuhrmanns from 2 to 4 p.m. A buffet of assorted pick up foods was served. The party was attended by a number of relatives and friends.

Separation Anxiety

The little girl loved nursery school. She was well-adjusted and social. But suddenly her happy and independent manner dissolved and she became a clinging, terrified, hysterical child.

She cried and fought and refused to go outside to play. She wouldn't let her parents out of her sight for a minute. She would throw a tantrum when it was time for school and would scream uncontrollably when left. Her parents were frightened and shocked. They were at a loss to understand what had caused the sudden change in their child.

Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, calls this phenomenon "separation anxiety." It is a fairly common stage among children in preschool years and often marks the child's first separation from home and parents.

Separation anxiety is a very natural response for a child, but one that is not easy to cope with. The child is experiencing her own shortcomings for the first time. She recognizes her own dependence on her parents. She is testing herself, trying on her dependence/independence for size. And she is testing her parents, as well.

Sometimes the change can be related to a parent's illness that requires hospitalization or a period of bed rest at home. Sometimes a mother's absence for the birth of another child can trigger the anxiety. At other times, no one can put a finger on the cause.

In searching for possible reasons, parents often begin to feel guilty. They make excuses for the child. They wonder if they have been "bad" parents. In their guilt they allow the child's behavior to manipulate them and disrupt the family pattern.

The child, meanwhile, feels less and less secure as she gets away with more and more. She needs to feel that her parents love her enough to guide her properly, to set boundaries for her behavior, and to make decisions in her best interest. She recognizes and fears her own lack of experience. Through the tears, clinging and temper tantrums, she is saying again and again, "Reassure me. Tell me what I should do. Help me grow in confidence and independence."

Separation anxiety becomes worse as Mom and Dad allow themselves to be manipulated into staying home from a party because the child cries and clings to them, or by permitting the child to stay at home instead of going to school or outdoors to play. It is not easy to carry a kicking, screaming child to the car, take her to school and deliver her, still screaming. It is equally difficult to pry open your child's desperately clinging hands and turn away from her tear-stained face. But it can be done.

The reversal from parental compassion and permissiveness to firm action must be accompanied by careful explanation on the preceding day or weekend. The child should be gently but firmly told that she is too young to make a decision about going to school; that Mom and Dad decide when she goes to bed, what she eats, and where she plays - and that they have decided that she will go to school. Tell her that you know she will enjoy being with other children, that you are sorry she isn't happy about it, but the decision has been made. Then take her - and leave her.

Each succeeding day this process will become easier for both you and your child. You will have regained control over your family life, and your child will know what is expected of her. Although she may fight against the new situation for a short time, she will feel secure in the knowledge that her parents care enough to make grown-up decisions on her behalf. Her world will no longer be a scary place with no protective boundaries to keep her safe. Instead, it becomes an orderly world where by making small decisions first, she can grow up learning how to make more important ones.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month by month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, PO Box 620N, Lafayette, In. 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing. A year's subscription to the newsletter costs $11.95.

Valentine party held at Ross-Point

About 40 persons attended the Ross-Point Valentine party in the Community Center on February 13 at 7 p.m. Many came from the surrounding area, Rosston, Prairie Point, Forestburg, one from Dallas, one from Era, and Pastor Ellis of the Baptist Church in Forestburg and Mrs. Louise Shultz.

Many of those attending brought foods, cakes and cookies for the party. Following the meal, members held a brief business meeting with minutes, roll call, treasurer's report, approval of a committee to design or select an ad for the Hood Centennial History Book.

Table games of dominoes and cards followed. A special favor and service to all who wished it was offered by Mrs. Nell Roach who gave free blood pressure checks. Jim Penton, the club reporter reminded all of the Texas Sesqui-centennial and showed an old car license plate found on his land, bearing the date "Texas Centennial, 1936."

The Valentine party and meeting adjourned about 10:30 p.m.

Introducing "The Garden Editor"

Introduction to Camellias
by Ted Brice
The Garden Editor

Studying the history of the camellia, you will find the natural camellia belt along the coast of China and the offshore islands including Japan and Formosa.

In 1948, twenty plus varieties of camellia reticulata were introduced to the United States from the vicinity of Kunming in the province of Yunnan, China. The camellia belt extends from cold areas of Korea in the North to the Semi-tropical area of Indo-China in the South.

One story about the camellia introduction to the western world involves the Tea plant which is a close relation to the camellia. Around 1700 a British Trading Company commissioned one of its sea captains who was leaving for China to bring back specimens of China's Tea plant. The British were planning on growing Tea in Europe thus eliminating the expensive time-consuming and hazardous trips to the Orient for Tea.

China, however, was aware of what would happen if they let their tea plants get to Europe. They gave the sea captain ornamental camellias as tea plants. This is reported to be the introduction of Japonicas to England.

The botanical classification of which the camellia belongs is called Theaceae. The camellia is one of sixteen genera of this family. The camellia is the only genus of this family of major ornamental importance, measured by their popularity, the japonicas, the sasanquas and the reticulatas.

Japonicas, being the most popular, are therefore considered to be the most important by many growers.

There are several thousand named varieties of the Japonicas. The Japonica has a uniform growing habit and superior foliage and flower. You will find the simple five petal single to the most complete double camellia.

In Japonica species you will also find the widest range of colors pink, rose, red, chalk white and blushes. The Japonica has the longest blooming season due to the large number of varieties. You can have a continuous bloom up to six months from late fall to late spring with Japonicas. This is good for landscaping giving the yard and garden color when they are bare in the winter.

The foliage of the Japonica looks as if it has been waxed, making its appearance far superior to the other varieties. The Japonica bloom is noted for its diversity, formality and lasting qualities. The bloom size varies from miniature or boutonniere (under two inches in diameter) to semi-double ranging up to seven inches across.

The Japonica can attain a height up to thirty feet with a compatible spread under favorable conditions. An old estate in California has Japonicas that are eighty-five years old, thirty-one feet tall and have a thirty-eight foot spread with a trunk diameter of twelve and one half inches.

Sasanquas have several hundred varieties and colors available. The Sasanqua has small blooms that make up for their size with a mass effect that cannot be surpassed by any other flower of the plant kingdom in the eyes of camellia growers. Their bloom is very similar to an azalea bloom and has been referred to as the "azalea" of the camellia world. They begin blooming early in the fall about the same time Chrysanthemums and last till frost.

SIMPLE HINTS CAN STRETCH DOLLARS

The motto "Use it up. Wear it out. Make it do or do without," popular during the Depression, is still true today.

Those trying to live today on a fixed income need to find ways to stretch shrinking dollars, says Dorothy G. Blackwell, extension home management specialist at Oklahoma State University.

She says, "Learning to stretch your fixed income can help you live with dignity." She lists ways to help you cut back and make do:

- After distinguishing between your needs and wants, buy what you need first.
- Try to use up what you already have before buying more.
- Pay obligations before buying other items. Then be realistic about how to spend the remaining money.
- Study your living habits so you can plan how to avoid or reduce waste.
- When possible, substitute one resource for another. If you are a talented seamstress, you might barter your skills with a neighbor who needs sewing done for transportation or a skill she has that you need.
- Recycle items for further use to stretch resources.
- Do more things yourself. With simple ingredients such as baking soda and vinegar, you can make household cleaning supplies.

Keeping Warm:

Cold Weather Clothing For Girls And Boys

Nobody wants to go outside when it's way below 0°, but in more reasonable weather, winter can be a beautiful time for outdoor fun — IF you're dressed for it. Whether your family is camping out or just shoveling snow, these tips can help girls and boys, and adults, stay warmer.

According to Camp Fire, the national youth agency, cold weather clothing should be loose fitting and layered. But don't bundle up so much that you can't move freely. Remember that wools and flannels are good insulators, and nylon is a good wind breaker. Synthetic materials are not as good because they tend to hold moisture in, making you feel damp and chilly.

If you wear several pairs of socks with your boots, make sure you can still wiggle your toes. Otherwise your circulation may be cut off and your feet will feel cold. By the way, a lot of heat escapes through your head, so if your feet are cold, put on a hat!

To keep hands cozy, wear gloves under water repellent mittens. Don't use plastic bags to cover any part of the body. Body moisture will build up inside the bags, causing a chill.

These winter clothing tips are from Camp Fire's Outdoor Book, a comprehensive guide to camping and the outdoors. For more information about the book, write Communications Dept., Camp Fire, Inc., 4601 Madison Ave., Kansas City, MO 64112.

Smokeless doesn't mean harmless

"Snuff dippers" and "tobacco chewers" - the smokeless tobacco fad has become increasingly popular among children and young adults, says Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, a health education specialist of the A&M Extension Service. But just because it's "smokeless" doesn't mean it's harmless, the specialist warns.

Tobacco and its by-products used in snuff and chewing tobacco - are extremely irritating to the mouth's sensitive tissues, she says.

A dipper's or chewer's mouth may show signs of "leukoplakia," wrinkled, thickened and white leathery areas inside the mouth.

About six percent of persons with leukoplakia develop oral cancer, Shirer remarks.

Not only does tobacco cause tissue irritation, but chewers and dippers tend to have greater tooth wear than non-users, the specialist notes. The gums tend to recede in areas where tobacco is held, as between the lower lip and gum, she explains.

Consequently, bare roots caused from receding gums become more susceptible to decay and are more sensitive to heat, cold, air, certain food and chemicals, Shirer says. Also, tobacco that has been sweetened may increase tooth decay, she adds.

Tobacco juices also contain hundreds of chemicals which may delay wound healing, especially when a tooth has been pulled or oral surgery has taken place, the specialist reports.

Tobacco products decrease the user's ability to taste and smell bitter, salty and sweet foods. Dippers and chewers use more salt on their food. Additional sugar also may be required. Excessive salt contributes to abnormal blood pressure and kidney disease.

Tobacco juices as well as smoke contain a harmful substance - nicotine - which may be habit-forming, Shirer warns. Nicotine is readily absorbed through the lining of the mouth and has a direct effect on the nervous system.

This habit-forming stimulant first causes its users to become stimulated and excited, but later they may feel depressed and let down.

To keep this "lifted" sensation, a person with the nicotine habit needs a "booster" every 20 to 30 minutes, the specialist explains.

Nicotine can also affect the heart and other parts of the circulatory system, she says. As nicotine enters the bloodstream, the arteries constrict and become smaller, the blood platelets clot and the heartbeat rate increases. Consequently, blood pressure may rise and this increases the risk of strokes and heart attacks, the specialist warns.

Growing Child

Human babies follow a certain developmental pattern. Head control, for instance, leads to sitting balance, and sitting alone prepares the child for creeping. Learning to creep then prepares the child for walking.

Left to his own efforts, a child will progress to walking when his body is ready to walk, says Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter. A number of factors contribute to this walking readiness.

First of all, a baby's back muscles must be strong enough to keep him upright and balanced over his legs and feet. He must have developed certain balancing and protective responses which will protect him from serious injury during the many falls he will experience as he learns to walk.

Through creeping, a baby learns to use his arms and legs rhythmically and alternately while holding his head up to see where he is going. The many small bones of Baby's feet are not hard like adult bones but are cartilage, which is firm but flexible—like hard rubber. The muscles which support the bones and which eventually hold the arches in place must be strong enough to hold the bones in good alignment when the baby stands on his feet.

Left to himself, a baby will creep and pull to a standing position. During this period he just stands with his feet fairly wide apart and turned out for better balance. Later, he will begin to sidestep while holding onto a support.

A baby needs lots of practice in all of the activities—creeping, balancing, standing—which strengthen his muscles, improve his balance, and lead to strong standing and walking positions.

In a walker, a baby gets no stable standing practice. Any random leg movements push the walker from place to place. Rhythmic patterns of leg movement are not established, and coordinated arm and leg movements fail to develop as they should.

A child who can move in a walker before he has proper balance—and judgment—endangers himself. Once in motion, he may not be able to stop, back up, or control the direction of the walker. Pediatricians report that injuries from a tumble downstairs in a walker are common.

Simply stated, then, a baby will walk when he is ready. A fat, placid baby usually walks later than an active, wiry baby. Some children walk at 9 or 10 months. Others do not walk until 12-14 months.

But one thing you can be sure of—given plenty of opportunity to creep, pull to a standing position and cruise along supporting furniture, a baby will walk when his body and nervous system are developmentally ready. Babies enjoy walkers, but walkers take important time away from those developmental activities that produce real walking readiness.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing. A year's subscription to the newsletter costs $11.95.

TIPS ON SAVING WATER OFFERED

Using less water to flush the toilet and to take a shower will help save water—a scarce resource.

Research studies have shown that the toilet uses the most water in the home. An average family of four flushes about 45 percent of the water used in the home daily down the toilet, says Sue Herndon.

An extension housing and equipment specialist at Oklahoma State University, she explains that the conventional toilet flush uses five to eight gallons of water per flush—depending on the type of flush design.

Miss Herndon advises that major plumbing fixture manufacturers are now making low water flush toilets that use two and one-half to three gallons per flush.

She says, "If building, remodeling a home or replacing a fixture, you will probably install water saving devices."

She says you can reduce water use in flushing the toilet without change in pressure by putting a dam or wall in the tank to prevent some water from leaving the tank. This may reduce each flush three to four gallons.

Or you might place a quart or half gallon plastic bottle filled with water and weighted down by a rock in the tank away from moving parts to reduce water use in flushing the toilet.

To cut down on water use in the shower, Miss Herndon suggests that you install a flow restricted shower head. Doing so will also reduce the energy cost to heat the water.

Speed up tax refund, use label, be accurate

Taxpayers can help speed up the processing of tax returns by using the pre-addressed, peel-off labels and by double checking their arithmetic before mailing the returns. As simple as the items appear, they are the cause for thousands of errors every year, the IRS says. The label comes with the tax package in the mail and lists the taxpayer's name, address, social security number and other bits of information which help the IRS in processing the return quickly.

If any of the information on the label is incorrect, the correction can be made directly on the label. Taxpayers should also use the coded envelope included in the tax package. It's pre-addressed and helps the IRS sort returns.

Errors such as checking the wrong filing status, failing to sign the return, math mistakes, and the omission of necessary documents are common mistakes which can delay taxpayers' refunds. The IRS must correct the errors or obtain the documents before processing the return.

Most errors can be avoided if the return is double checked for accuracy and the label is used.
