A disturbing item in recent news reports is that talks are still going on between the USSR and several European countries relative to a USSR and several European countries relative to a proposed 56 inch pipeline for transporting Siberian gas to those countries. The un-derstanding is that the various nations would arrange the bank credits whereby Russia can build the 3,726 mile pipe and those countries would be assured of an ample supply of gas.

illnesses.

Also included is an agreement whereby Russia pays off its construction loans out of proceeds from sale of the gas. Even United States is intended to share in the benefits of the deal. It's part is the sale of some $40 million of pipeline laying equipment, and also to be financed as a part of the big credit deal. This detail is slightly confusing in that the sale of such equipment is tentatively approved but under condition that it's not to be used on the proposed big job.

The deal started cooking almost a year ago, and amazingly it's still getting serious attention. It's hard to imagine that nations like West Germany, France, Italy, Austria, Belguim and the Netherlands, after that much time to think it over, haven't broken off all talks. Reason No. 1 is that Russia ranks as the world's worst in defaulting on debts and promises. Next that Russia is politically and economically unscrupulous. Surely it's not a nation to be trusted if it has the advan-tage over other countries.

tage over other countries. It's been said that a bit of

It's been said that a bit of blackmail is involved in the negotiating. Since USSR now supplies about 15 per-cent of the natural gas to those countries, it is in a position to coerce for the big deal by threatening a shut down of the little deal. Whether or not that's true it's a fact that Russia will be able to really twist arms if those countries depend on it for almost a third of their gas. Judging by the way USSR normally operates, one can take it for granted that it will demand many concessions...including ac-that it will demand many concessions..including ac-tivity to harm our NATO relations in Western Europe. One doesn't have to let the mind wander long to realize that the Yamal pipeline deal has the poten-tial of a gigantic booby trap. An arrangement as one-sided as this calls for caution even when dealing with countries of good reputation, so how can it be even considered when a treacherous deadbeat coun-try like Russia is involved?

try like Russia is involved? Besides being concerned about effects on our NATO relations, US has to think about another bad Soviet Debt. In fact all the coun-tries would have that worry. Suppose Russia builds the pipeline as proposed, but fails to pay the debt out of its gas sales... a strong possibility considering its bad-debt record. Inciden-tally, the negotiation probably includes a US guarantee for payment of the debts, so we Americans would pay in case of default. Regardless of who can be the debts, so we Antericals would pay in case of default. Regardless of who can be caught holding the bag, this thing looks like a masterful scheme for Russia to enrich itself at the expense of others. Suppose the pipeline is built and USSR chooses not to pay. That makes it the sole possessor of a multi-billion dollar facility to use as it pleases. Maybe it will sell gas as agreed and take the profits. In that case let's remember it will have a monopoly and undoubtedly charge big prices. But it will have other options as well. Since the line will pass through lots of Russia and satellite country the Soviets could decide to use the gas themselves to promote their own resources. In that case themselves to promote their own resources. In that case the customers who were promised and who financed Continued on page 2

U.N. FIFTH COLUMN

The evidence is over-whelming that the United Nations has become a dangerous trap for the United States and the free world — that is, what's left of it. Some of us have known from the inception of the U.N. that it was planned by Soviet agents as an ingenious device through which the Reds could further their efforts to control the globe could be accomplished through the U.N. paid for by the capitalist nations, all in the name of peace. The historical record of the last 35 years bears witness to the shrewdness of Soviet political intentions. You have to give the Com-munists credit for one thing. They are totally dedicated to their overall goal of world domination, and they are shrewdly intelligent in pursuing that objective. The mystery is world, are so blind to what is going on. Many think our biddness is because of the degree to which we have. already been infiltrated. Aside from being a clever scheme in which the Soviets can manipulate greater in-fluence in Europe, and possibly acquire a lot of valuable property for free, the Yamal pipeline is another classic example of the Russians making progress on the help it receives from the West. The pipeline laying equipment, to be provided by the US, is more technological expertise to be provided by the US, is more technological expertise supplied by the West. farmers to voluntarily adopt is quite simple," Stenholm told members of the Washington press March 4. "Stop selling any non-perishable crop below the cost of production." Stenholm, along with 10 other farm state represen-tatives who support the plan as follows: 1. Farmers immediately curtail all sales of non-perishable commodities at current prices. 2. Farmers agree to par-ticipate in an orderly marketing system (20-10-20) designed to encourage market adjustments. Basically, they would place 20 percent of existing sup-plies into a farmer-held reserve, with the remainder of the crops to be marketed at fixed increments during the year or when market prices permitted. 3. Farmers agree to par-ticipate in production con-trol programs, including the R(AP) administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS 142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

In 1978, when Congress last debated the subject of natural gas price decontrol, artificially low federally imposed prices on interstate gas had caused critical supply

Infosed prices on intervitie gas had caused critical supply disruptions. Texans, whose gas came from the unregulated intrastate market, were paying several times more for their own supplies than out-of-state consumers. The "compromise" solution adopted was the Natural Gas Policy Act, which provided for partial lifting of controls over a six-year period ending in 1985. Some of us warned then that this legislation contained serious defects, and could lead to further problems in future years. These and could lead to further problems in future years. These prophesies have been fulfilled. Let us for a moment look at some of the major problems we face, so that we can then see a logical solution

The price levels set for the gradual decontrol of prices The price levels set for the gradual decontrol of prices for some categories of gas were premised on the assumption that crude oil would cost approximately $15 a barrel in 1984. Of course oil is now selling at more than $30 a barrel. This means that when the controls expire in 1985, and the price rises to an actual but equivalent market price, we will see a drastic, traumatic rise in the cost of natural gas to business and individual consumers.

econdly, we now are seeing distortions in supplies Secondly, we now are seeing distortions in supplies. The effect of partial deregulation already in place has been to give pipeline companies with large reserves of cheap, regulated gas an advantage in competing for expensive, uncontrolled "new" gas. They are able to bid at prices above the market value because they can average the cost of the new and old gas and sell at a competitive level. Companies without access to these artificially cheap supplies are not able to compete for these new reserves.

Since most intrastate pipelines do not control cheap, regulated gas, Texas and other producing states already are beginning to experience shortages. We cannot be expected to watch our resources being pumped to other states in vast quantities while we are unable to obtain sufficient amounts for our own needs,

Phased-in, complete decontrol of gas prices would solve these supply problems; allow the increased cost of gas to be absorbed by the economy and individual consumers gradually, and set us on a course of realistic, efficient use of our gas resources. Studies indicate that the longterm price to consumers will not be significantly greater with complete decontrol than with the currently scheduled partial decontrol. Further, with gradual decontrol, consumers will not face the burden of supply shortages ending in an abrupt price increase

The President shares these views, but has concluded that this Congress is unlikely to act favorably on the issue. For that reason, he has decided not to press for action this year. I am extremely disappointed in this decision, though I understand the reasons for it. However, I will continue to urge the Administration to work to develop and prepare a feasible decontrol plan for submission to Congress as soon as is practical.

Several thousand adults and children are expected to walk, run, or jog around the one kilometer (two-thirds mile) between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., to raise funds for Catholic Education and its organizations in the diocese. Sr. Mary Bonaventure, associate superintendent for schools in the Fort Worth Catholic diocese, says the fourth annual event will be both a fun and purposeful activity, with pledged monies going from the par-ticipant to the school, parish, or organization of the school or parish of his/her choice. The Marxibon is not a comed heipaint for organization of the school or parish of his/her choice. The Marathon is not a speed race. Entrants can circle the prescribed route as many times as they wish, the goal being to collect as many pledges as possible. Each organization gets to keep 75% of the money it collects through pledges. The remaining 25% benefits the Catholic Education Center in Fort Worth. All CCD, and Adult Education programs as well as Catholic schools in the diocese are directed and co-ordinated through the Education Cen-ter.

Concession stands will be set up to serve refreshments to participants and spec-tators. Also, there will be restrooms, security service and free parking adjacent to the school. In addition, each

The purpose of the many things that you can do in your daily life to cut down the risk of the leading killers in our country -heart attacks, strokes, and certain types of can-cer—without turning your life upside down. Most people would agree with the Webster dic-tionary definition of health — sound in body, mind, and soul. Hospitals traditionally have concentrated on the physical aspects of nealth care atter people awareness that adequate treatment of a patient re-quires more than the simple diagnosis of an illness wide range of needs which must be addressed. staff who perform in cooperation with the patient's physician. As positive an impact as medical science has had on the American public, the life expectancy of Americans has not appreciably increased in the last few decades. At the present time, heart disease and strokes account for about half of all American deaths. Can you imagine the outcry if an infectious disease suddenly started killing so many people? There would be lines of people for miles and miles waiting to receive the appropriate vaccine to prevent such an illness. The trouble with heart disease, for example, is that there is no vaccine. Doctors can't prevent it; only you can do that. In this column, we will be presenting information

DPS changes requirements for trooper candidates

"This temporary modification is intended to increase the reservoir of qualifited applicants yet en-sure a continuance of the high personal standards which have been the hallmark of the Depar-tment's success." "An evaluation of the results of the temporary modification of educational requirements will be conduc-ted to determine whether a continuation is justified." Colonel, Adams said the DPS hopes to recruit, 268 new troopers this year, in-cluding the 92 who presently are in training. Recruits live in the DPS law enforcement academy in Austin during the 18-week training course. The starting monthly salary for recruits is $1,223. Upon graduation, the officers are paid $1, 347 per month plus allowances for uniforms and equip-ment. These salaries will in-crease September 1, 1982. "The Department con-tinues to emphasize the recruitment of minorities consistent with our philosophy that a law enfor-cement organization must be representative of the com-munity it serves," Adams pointed out. Of the 92 recruits the law enforcement academy on May 14, 1982, 35 are members of minority groups. There are six women in the class.

Going it. The way the newletter does this is a unique subscription system based on the child's age. If a child is one month old, for example, the parents get the newsletter that tells all about the growth and development of one-month-olds. The next month they receive the issue that tells about two-month olds.

olds. "The age-graded factor is what makes Growing Child so useful," says Dennis Dunn, Growing Child publisher. "Parents often don't have time to wade through a big book just to find one paragraph about their question or problem. When they read Growing Child every month, it talks about a typical child the exact age of their own," he said. Nancy Kleckner, managing editor of Growing Child, is quick to point out that "typical" covers a wide range in children.

Wanty Ackner, in any hypical' covers a wide range in children.
"Some children do some things early, and other things later," she says. "When Growing child says 'typical', it means that 50 per cent of all children that age have begun to do some thing. Each parent must observe the individual child and let the child go at his or her own pace," she said.
The reason Growing Child points out "typical" behavior is that many problems can be remedied more effectively if they are detected early.
Mr. Dunn, for instance, knows the importance of early childhood development from personal experience. As a cleared to compensate.
But when Mr. Dunn's young son developed similar problems in school. Like many people, he learned to compensate.
The child development professionals at the center gave the board special remedial training program to fill the gaps in his oversity student.
Mr. Dunn was impressed by research findings that many common learning disabilities could be prevented with the pother parents and other children avoit child evelopment.

The suggested to the professionals who had helped his son that they write a series of articles outlining the development patterns common to all children. That was the beginning of Growing Child. The writers are all specialists in children. Their theories are based on real-life observation and experience. One of them is a practicing optometrist who specializes in visual and perceptual learning disabilities. Another is an in-ternationally know expert on children's motor development. Two others are husband and wife team who are develop-mental psychologists specializing in special children—the gifted, and those with learning disabilities, mental retar-dation, emotional disturbance, and speech and hearing problems.

problems. Another of the writers is a disabilities therapist who develops special education programs in the schools for children with learning problems. One is a practicing ped-iatrician who is concerned primarily with the com-munication of health information to parents. The staff also includes a speech pathologist and a counseling and guidance professional. Altogether, it took the writers and editors eight years to complete 72 monthly installments, and they are constantly updating the newsletters to reflect new resear-ch findings.

are constantly updating the newsletters to reflect new resear-ch findings. A second newsletter, called Growing Parent, accompanies each issue of Growing Child. "Growing Parent is written to help parents know themselves, understand others, and just cope with the day-to-day realities of being a parent," Ms. Kleckner said. The third and most colorful part of Growing Child is a catalog that offers over 600 educational toys, books, and records. PHOTOS FROM THE PAST

Different eras of merchandising in Muenster are recalled in these Photos from The Past. In the first picture, a group of Muenster Pioneers are grouped in front of a Christmas tree in the old Hoenig Store. Identifiable are, at left, Alois Hoenig, his wife, Elizabeth and their infant, Joe Hoenig. At far right is Franz Hoenig and his wife, Bertha, holding their infant, Angela. At center is Ida Hoenig who later became Mrs. Martin schoech. This pic-ture, made in 1904, belongs to Mrs. Theo Vogel, a daughter of the late Alois Hoenigs.

This view, fondly remembered by lots of old timers, was snapped in the M.J. Endres Grocery and Dry Goods Store. The Aladdin ceiling light indicates that it predates the coming of electricity to Muenster. Persons pictured are M.J. Endres and his small son, M.J. Endres, Jr. The variety of itemsfor sale is demonstrated by a selection of bolts of fabric on shelves at the left. Mary Becker was a clerk there at that time. Gingham sold for 15 cents a yard; 17½ cents for better quality; and the best was 25 cents a yard. Those are bandana handkerchiefs hanging from a rack. There's a display of glassware against the back wall. Sacks of flour are stacked to the right of the back door. And groceries are shelved on the long wall. On the table, at left front are school supplies. Remember those "Big Chief" tablets that sold for a nickel? How many of you remember that delicious, hard, summer sausage available occasionally? This picture be onged to Mrs. Henry Fette.

Staff Photo Members of Student Council at Muenster High school were elected on March 1. They will serve during the '82-'83 school year. Installation will be held during this spring semester. Shown in the above photo are, front row, I to r Gregory Luke vice president; Brent McElreath president; Dora Sicking secretary. In back row are Mary Winn treasurer; Shelly Zimmerer parliamentarian and Jana Hamilton reporter. Also named on the same day were class representatives for the '82-'83 term. They will be se niors Chris Rohmer and Sherri Boydstun; juniors Craig Felderhoff and Debbie Bindel; sophomores Jay Mollenkopf and Jo Ell Hellman; freshmen Johnny Eldred and Sharen Wolf. The method, known as rip rap, con-sists of a layer of rocks 12 to 18 inches in diameter with a portion of the structure imbedded in a trench. The machine here is digging the trench for imbedding the por-tion of the installation. Two other such installations were also built in Montague county. Another way of stopping erosion is by planting reed grass, a coarse vegetation which holds the shoreline soil in spite of wave action. Stall Phe

Film tells Air Force Story

The U.S. Air Force Orien-tation Group will present a fast paced multi-image story of aviation entitled "Pioneers of Flight" at Muenster High School, next Wednesday, March 15. The program will be shown in a 40-seat mobile theater.

40-seat mobile theater. The 25 minute presen-tation highlights the progress of American aviation from the beginning of powered flight through today's space age and provides a preview of aerospace plans for tomorrow. The story is told by using exploits of key aviation pioneers, with their voices adding a special dimension to the program. Viewers will see and hear Jimmy Doolittle describe his record setting experiences and the 1942 Tokyo air raid. Jackie Cochran, the first woman pilot to fly faster than the speed of sound, tells of her commitment to flight and the place women avaiton. Astronaut Charles Duke describes his senhave made for themselves in avaition, Astronaut Charles Duke describes his sen-sations when he walked on the moon. The show con-cludes with a brief reference to Air Force people and job opportunities in the Air Force.

Artwork, photographs and an original musical sound track provide visitors and aviation experience. Fif-teen programmed slide projectors, five screens and a stereo sound system are used for the presentation. Muenster ISD, in cooperation with the Air Force, will sponsor the show.

Springtime brings poison hazards

Children are loving active creatures, unfortunately they can also eat and drink peculiar things. "We see children eating plants, medicines, cleaning agents, soap, bugs and all sorts of other things", said Michael Ellis, Director of the Texas State Poison Center received some 21,000 poisoning calls. "About 75% of these inquiries are about children under 5 years old," Ellis noted. "Many of the ac-cidental ingestions by children are of little con-sequence, but some can be Children are loving active children are of little con-sequence, but some can be life-threatening. tle as one sip." Springtime can be a par-ticularly bad time of the year. "Blooming plants, fer-tilizers, plant foods, insec-ticides, and gasoline ingestions become almost epidemic this time of the year," said Ellis, "along with the numerous household cleaning products out for spring cleaning". The fact that the product might be foul-tasting

The fact that the product might be foul-tasting doesn't really apply on a one swallow basis - when you are a 2 year old. Our rule of thumb at the Poison center is "if it is small enough to get in the mouth and doesn't bite first, it will be eaten"; Ellis said. As the weather warms up and children are in and out of the house more, they seem to be able to find more.

seem to be able to find more. In the event of a poisoning emergency, the first thing to do is to call the Texas State Poison Center at 1-713-765-1420. The Poison Center staff will help you determine if medical atten-tion is required, or if the problem can be handled at home. "About 85% of our inquires can be handled at home," Ellis noted, "thus rushing the person to the hospital, is usually un-necessary. If the poisoning is serious enough to need medical attention, the Poison Center will direct you to the emergency room ad then call ahead so that duckly." March 21-27 is National Poison Prevention Week -your home for poison maards. The fact that no small children live in the home, does not mean that a poisoning cannot occur.

"Nearly everyone has a small niece or nephew, grandchild, or a friend with small children - all of whom may visit occasionally." Ellis said, "and that makes them prime candidates for a poisoning accident." Every home should have a bottle of syrup of Ipecac, par-ticularly if small children live there. This nauseating liquid is used to cause vomiting in the poisoned child, if vomiting is in-dicated. "Sometimes, we don't want the child to vomit," Ellis said, "so the parent needs to talk with the Poison Center first, before using the Ipecac, But it is the Nearly everyone has Poison Center first, before using the Ipecac. But it is the only safe way to induce vomiting. Other household remedies like, mustard and water, salt water, etc. are both ineffective, and can be quite hazardous them-selves."

Like Spring!

Like Spring! After a chilly weekend, the community is receiving another touch of Spring. Low and high temperatures of the week were recorded as follows by Steve Moster. Mar. 4, 36 and 56; Mar. 5, 30 and 38; Mar. 6, 28 and 50; Mar. 7, 28 and 59; Mar. 8, 40 and 72; Mar. 9 42 and 70; Mar. 10, 49 and 70. Meanwhile, the only moisture was a measure of .04 on the 6th. It was the fir-st of the month and in-creases the year's total to 4.65 in.
