

Committeemen Work On Plan To Cut Cotton Crop

January 31 is Deadline For 1934-1935 Contracts: Enforced Reduction May Come

With the expectation that if sufficient contracts to reduce 1934-1935 cotton acreage are not secured by January 31 compulsory reduction through license of cotton growers will be adopted by the government, committeemen from various communities in Brown county this week were working desperately to complete the job in this county.

Progress has been slow so far, and it will be necessary to make rapid progress during the five remaining days of this month if the contracts from this county are secured.

Farmers generally are agreeable to the proposition that cotton acreage must be reduced this year and next. Some opposition to the method of payment by the government has developed, however, especially with regard to division of payment between landlords and tenants. Land owners generally have been objecting to the clause in the contract which gives the tenant half the rental price, and three-fourths of the parity pay-

As the time for signing the contract comes to a close, it becomes more apparent that the governmental plans to force reduction, provided the voluntary contracts are not sufficient to secure a substantial reduction in acreage for the coming season.

From Washington comes word that the administration is giving support to the Bankhead Bill to regulate cotton through the licensing of farmers, and allotting the number of bales that can be produced by each state, and within the state the number of bales that can be produced on each farm.

Terms of the Bankhead Bill are drastic, providing a $250 fine for violation of the provisions of the proposed law, but farmers are advancing the proposition that no other method can work satisfactorily, due to the large number of farmers who will remain outside the voluntary reduction plan, and who thus will be left free to plant as much cotton as they desire.

County Agent C. W. Lehmburg this week stressed the importance of every farmer in Brown county getting in touch with his local committeeman before the end of the month. If the committeeman has not visited the farmer, Mr. Lehmburg stated that by all means the farmer should get in touch with the committeeman and have the provisions of the contract explained. It is important that every farmer who produces cotton understand the terms of the agreement, whether he plans to sign any of the contracts or not.

West coast sportsmen are getting a new thrill out of the dangerous pastime of whale hunting, using specially equipped yachts. The craft shown here belongs to Campbell Church, Jr., of Seattle.

MCCULLOCH COUNTY FAVORS COMPULSORY COTTON REDUCTION

Farmers of McCulloch county, meeting in Brady, Saturday, voted in favor of the stringent Bankhead Bill, now before congress, to license the growing of cotton, in event the cotton acreage reduction program now under way does not secure sufficient support.

It would place a penalty of $250 on any farmer who produces more cotton than his license permits, and every farm in the cotton district would be allotted a certain amount of cotton to raise—no more.

The Brady Standard, reporting the McCulloch county farmers' action, says:

At a general farmers meeting held Saturday in the courthouse in Brady, about 95 per cent of 300 farmers present voted for compulsory action by the government in case the voluntary system now being used did not prove successful.

At the present time there is a bill pending before Congress, known as the Bankhead bill, which is looked upon with favor by a large number. In case this bill is passed it will license each farmer and allow him so much cotton to gin.

STAMINA AND EGG LAYING ARE IMPORTANT IN POULTRY STOCK

By AUSTIN E. BURGESS.
In Semi-Weekly Farm News.
High egg production can not be gotten from a hen unless it has first been bred into her, which is but another way of saying that no hen can be made to lay more than her inherited capacity permits.

High layers are the result of feed, care, breeding and selection. To be a high producer, a hen doesn't necessarily belong to any particular breed, nor even to a specialized egg breed.

The strain from which the hen comes is the important thing. Pedigree is not generally known in chickens, but, when known, it is an important indication of ability to lay. Ability to lay is inherited both from the hen and the rooster. The rooster chosen to head the flock should be the son of a good layer and the grandson of at least one. The hens should be good layers and the daughters of good layers.

Unfortunately, it seems to be true that extremely high egg records are associated with sterility. Many of the 300-egg hen whose eggs would not hatch even one chick. It is much safer to buy foundation stock from hens that lay 150 to 200 eggs in a year than from those that lay 300 or more. It is probably true that when eggs from a high-producing hen fall to hatch it is because she was subjected to too great a strain in the making of such records and has to that extent broken under the strain. It is never wise to force production from hens intended for breeding purposes. If you are aiming at production of breeders, it is better to have hens that lay an average of 150 eggs or less a year than 200 or more.

Laying Capacity.
On the other hand, it is probably true that no egg record is too high for a hen that is vigorous and is not being forced by rich feed, electric lights, or other stimulants. Vigor is the great principle on which selection of individuals for the breeding flock should be made. No matter how perfect her plumage no hen should be put into the breeding pen that is a weakling. No matter how great the egg record of her dam, or her sire's dam, she has no place in the poultry yard if she is unthrifty. Roosters are especially likely to be selected on the basis of their pretty feathers, but it is just as important for the cock to be vigorous as for the hens to be that way. A vigorous rooster not only shows his vigor by his used, their blood tends to be spread through the flock, and, when aided by careless selection, induces costly epidemics of disease. Quite often one epidemic will wipe out all the profits for a year.

Vigor in cocks is indicated by a short, well-curved beak, a broad, deep head and a full face. The eyes should be prominent, clear and bright; the comb and wattles should be deep red in color, indicating a strong circulation of blood; the neck should be short and well arched, the legs should be medium in length and set squarely on the body, the knees straight and well apart, the body set well upon the legs, and the plumage should be bright, smooth and tight, thus indicating good condition.

Feeding.
Make sure that your breeding flock is free from intestinal worms. When individual birds eat well but lose flesh or remain poor, suspect worms. These parasites not only increase the feed bill, but also decrease egg production. Treat suspected birds with a worm expeller to rid them of the worms.

Nearly all commercial feeds contain milk, usually in the form of dried buttermilk, and it is this milk that partly explains the good results from commercial feeds. The breeding flock will produce more eggs and eggs with a higher percentage of fertility if they are fed the surplus skim milk on the farm. Milk is a source of several highly important vitamins.

Selecting the Flock Head.
If the ancestry of a group of cockerels is known, the first selection should be made on that basis. The next selection should be made on the basis of plumage and breed requirements. The third and final one should be made on the basis of vigor. It is of no importance how long a rooster's pedigree may be, nor how pretty his feathers, if he doesn't have vigor enough to fertilize a satisfactory percentage of eggs, he is of no use as a breeder. Not only should the eggs he fertilizes be fertile, but the chicks from them should be husky enough, in the main, to survive until frying size or later. A rooster with a low degree of vigor is a dangerous one to have with the flock, for low vigor is just as definitely transmitted as is high vigor.

Male birds from high-producing females that show a lack of vigor, as indicated by sunken eyes, long, narrow heads, crow heads, lack of color in the comb, rough plumage, deformities such as knock knees, are dangerous to use in breeding pens, no matter how high the record of their dams, as their offspring will almost surely be low in vitality. When cocks of low vitality are

Farmers of McCulloch county, meeting in Brady, Saturday, voted in favor of the stringent Bankhead Bill, now before congress, to license the growing of cotton, in event the cotton acreage reduction program now under way does not secure sufficient support. The Bankhead Bill, known to be viewed with favor by the administration, is one of the most drastic legislative measures ever introduced into congress.

It would place a penalty of $250 on any farmer who produces more cotton than his license permits, and every farm in the cotton district would be allotted a certain amount of cotton to raise—no more.

The Brady Standard, reporting the McCulloch county farmers' action, says:
 At a general farmers meeting held Saturday in the courthouse in Brady, about 95 per cent of 300 farmers present voted for compulsory action by the government in case the voluntary system now being used did not prove successful. Farmers expressed themselves as not wishing this compulsory action until every effort was made to put the present 1934-35 cotton reduction program over, which is entirely voluntary on the part of the farmer.

At the present time there is a bill pending before Congress, known as the Bankhead bill, which is looked upon with favor by a large number. In case this bill is passed it will license each farmer and allow him so much cotton to gin. This action will be taken through the gins. When a farmer has ginned his allotted number of bales he will be stopped from ginning. In any legislation for compulsory reduction the farmers who have signed voluntarily will be given preference. Congress is delaying action on this bill in order to see how the voluntary reduction program will work in the history of this section of the state.

 Last week the government asked each county to find out the sentiment of farmers on a compulsory move in case the voluntary system did not prove enough. The above meeting was called in order to find out just how farmers felt about this matter.
 Every effort will be made to make the present sign up campaign successful and hoping that no compulsory move will be necessary. Only nine days are left to put this program over. Every contract must be in the hands of the County Committee by January 31.

Members of the County Cotton Control Committee are Joe Snodgrass, Theo Lyckman and J. H. Smith.

Steel Soars—Over Golden Gate

A 45-ton steel element swings slowly toward its place and another link is added to the longest suspended over water bridge in the world, as graphically shown in this picture. The steel unit is part of the gigantic span across the Golden Gate at San Francisco, 6400 feet in overall length and towering 220 feet above the bay at its center. The bridge will cost about $35,000,000 and completion is set for 1937.

All Nation Will Honor The President

"Happy Birthday, Mr. President"

THESE CHILD PATIENTS AT WARM SPRINGS CAN HARDLY WAIT FOR JAN. 30

Virtually every community in the nation is giving a gala Birthday Ball next Tuesday evening to honor the President and to create an endowment fund for the national work of Warm Springs Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, but nowhere in the land will there be a happier Presidential Birthday Party than at Warm Springs. There Mr. Roosevelt is more than the President of the United States; he is the philanthropist and friend whose efforts have done so much to provide proper treatment for victims of childhood's most dreaded disease, and who entered the White House. So, knowing Mr. Roosevelt and his interest in their welfare these child patients

BROWNWOOD JOINS 6,000 OTHER CITIES HOLDING BIRTHDAY BALLS TUESDAY NIGHT

BROWNWOOD will join hands with the Nation Tuesday night, January 30 in honoring the Birthday of President Roosevelt, and in honoring the President will honor itself through a substantial contribution to the Warm Springs Foundation for Infantile Paralysis sufferers. The local observance will be one of some 6,000 Birthday Balls to be held throughout the Nation next Tuesday night.

What is the exact purpose of this gigantic series of parties, which will probably be the greatest outpouring of American citizenship at one time for a single purpose? The local committee has received the following statement of the use to which the money will be put, by Keith Morgan, chairman of the finance committee of the Foundation, and treasurer of the National Committee for the Birthday Ball:

"As trustee of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the National Committee for the Birthday Ball for the President has asked me to define briefly what would be done with an endowment fund for Warm Springs. The Foundation established in 1926 by President Roosevelt has so far treated patients from every state in the union and the possessions. Seventy-five per cent of all patients at Warm Springs receive help from the patients aid fund either wholly or partly. So far sixty-five important hospitals throughout the country have established physiotherapy treatments based on the experience and plans which they obtained with the aid of the foundation.

"Today many leading orthopedic surgeons, many of them are on the Foundation's advisory staff, perform infantile operations without cost, then sending the patients to Warm Springs for convalescence. Warm Springs, through its department of education, is now carrying on a nationwide effort to arouse the country to the seriousness of infantile paralysis. The National patients' committee operating out of Warm Springs is doing similar work.

"The Foundation works closely with the Rockefeller Foundation and every year furnished voluntary blood for experimentation with serum. As soon as the national birthday ball of January 30 is over and if the financial success is everything we hope it will be, the Foundation under the leadership of the President plans to centralize and coordinate all other factors in the national crusade against infantile paralysis.

NEW YORK.—"Isn't America Wonderful?" This from a girl at national Presidential Birthday Ball headquarters in the Waldorf-Astoria as she filed reports from all parts of the land. Here are a few things she saw:

Washington, D. C., has sold ten honor tables at $1,000 each.

Fort Worth, Texas sold her first Birthday Ball tickets easily at $1,000 each.

Dallas, Texas, says she'll be darned if any other Texas city has a better Birthday Ball for the President.

New York reports that boxes for the Waldorf-Astoria society ball are selling fast, with Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother, taking the first.

New York also reports that George M. Cohan is writing a special song for the occasion.

Erie, Pa., will have all flags out and Dr. Guy C. Boughton, general chairman, is broadcasting a request to all other cities to follow.

New Haven, Conn., is the center of a regional movement to have a Christy poster in every window, started by C. E. Benjamin. Five hundred posters in 500 Connecticut stores.

Centerville, Pa., reports that its only dance hall has become a beer garden, hence no ball.

Tonawanda, N. Y., got forty organizations of all kinds to cooperate. Every uniform in town called out.

Helen, Mont., reports "ball will go over big here as city is dance crazy."

Grafton, West Va., reports: Main ball Moose Lodge with prominent orchestra, at same time ball with local orchestra at Elks' Club with lower price, an old time square dance at St. Augustine Hall for colored people at Stenzen-Hall, a benefit bridge tournament at Grafton Hotel, with bingo tables in grill room. Grafton is going full speed ahead."

Chicago reports that all Chicago's schools will close at noon on January 30th. Birthday parties in the orthodox manner, cake, ice cream, and everything, will be held throughout the younger classes in the afternoon while in the evening each high school will be the scene of a unit of the nation-wide ball.

A southern town reports: "There isn't any hall big enough to hold the party in our county, so the boys are all going to pitch the hay off the floor of the Perkins barn, and we will hoe it down there."

A southwestern town reports: "In our neck of the woods we don't care much for dances, balls, receptions and so on, but all our folks are crazy about singing. We have had the piano in the church tuned and we are going to have a big song fest."

Another southern town: "So many folks want to go to the Birthday Ball for the President in where to put them—but it might our town that we do not know make some of you folks up north mighty envious—we are going to have a big community dance outdoors right on the village square. We are going to put a ten-gallon keg on the City Hall steps, and every man that dances is going to have to throw a silver coin into the keg each time."

New York.—The fact that so many prominent folk have deserted the old home town for balmy retreats these chilly months does not imply that they do not intend to do their share in making the nation-wide Birthday Ball for the President, a memorable success. Beaming on Chicago, Ganna Walska, Polish singer, is shown as she arrived for her first concert there in several years. She ate luncheon with Harold F. McCormick, below, her divorced husband, but denied reconciliation rumors.

Following the coronation ceremonies, ladies-in-waiting were presented after which duchesses, representing 27 Brownwood organizations and a number of near by towns, were presented to the court. Miss Camp and Mr. Stanley led the grand march, in which all members of the court participated.

During the evening, a huge birthday cake, donated by Brownwood bakeries, was auctioned to the highest bidder. It was bid in by Douglas Carroll, who invited all present to share it with him.

POLL TAX PAYMENTS AROUND 4,000, AUTO PAYMENTS LAGGING

There will be approximately 4,000 qualified voters in Brown county for the coming year, figures at Tax Collector Lee Meek's office indicated Thursday, as the date for payment had ended. Workers in the office were unable to make accurate check of the figures Thursday morning, but the volume of business done Wednesday indicates a payment of approximately 4,000. A number of payments by mail also were received on the final day, and complete figures cannot be compiled until these are opened and entered.

Last year, payments in the county totaled 2,354, while two years ago, the last election year, payments totaled 4,464. It is expected that the number will run under this figure this year.

Automobile registrations were off from 290 to 309 over last year. A year ago January 31, payments totaled 3,400. The figure was approximately 3,200 this year, with records still inaccurate due to the volume of business handled during the past few days. The last minute rush was decidedly smaller than anticipated, however, due to expectation that the legislature would extend time for payment.

City tax payments were unusually heavy during the past week, with more taxpayers than ever before taking advantage of the split payment plan which the city has in effect. Under this plan half the city taxes can be paid prior to January 31, and the other half before July 1st.

Proceeds Will Be Sent To President Roosevelt Before End Of This Week

More than $500 was realized for the Warm Springs Foundation for Sufferers of Infantile Paralysis Tuesday night when Brownwood joined 6,000 other cities in the United States in holding a Birthday Ball in honor of the 52nd birthday of President Roosevelt. The money will be forwarded to the President as Brownwood's contribution toward this worthy charity.

The ball was one of the most colorful entertainments ever held in Brownwood, and much credit is due Dr. Mollie W. Armstrong, general chairman, and her assistants for the splendid manner in which the entertainment was presented. From the opening numbers of the hour's entertainment features until the last dance, everything moved with clocklike precision, and spectators and participants all were pleased with the manner in which it was handled.

The high point of the evening was the coronation of the queen, Miss Frances Camp, who received her crown from Rufus Stanley, who was designated as Brownwood's Most Distinguished Citizen.

Preceding the coronation, a number of period dances were given, after which J. Edward Johnson, herald, announced the arrival of the court. Colors were presented by the National Guard, the orchestra played The Star Spangled Banner. Mr. Stanley was presented and Miss Camp, as queen, came forward to receive her crown.

Regular meeting of the American Legion will be had Friday, February 2nd. All members are urged to attend as the officers are anxious to repeat the attendance of the first meeting in January.

Matters of utmost importance will come up at this meeting and it is advisable for all members to be on hand. Members especially will be better informed in regard to the big indoor circus to be held on the 19th.

Question of delegates to the district convention will come up at this meeting. Membership continues satisfactory and now ahead of the past two in membership.
