With a political year just getting under way, the Federal Communications Commission is presenting an occasion for concern in its proposed regulation which would effectively nullify the Equal Time rule for candidates.

For example, a candidate, or any other purchaser of TV or radio time, would have no recourse if broadcasters sell all of their available time in the week before election to one candidate to the exclusion of his opponent. Whether the sale were for increased profit or for campaign favoritism would not matter.

It's obvious that this arrangement would be a bonanza to the broadcaster. Such high-prime time would present an opportunity for fat profit. It would also amount to enhanced political clout giving broadcasters increased influence in a campaign.

But it would be a harmful, perhaps even ruinous, arrangement to the candidate who is effectively denied his right to be heard. And it is no less unfair to the people who have a right to know both sides of an issue. Obviously, this one-sided policy can defeat a candidate. It is equivalent to dictatorial political control.

The FCC scheme isn't new. In 1981 it asked Congress to abolish the fairness doctrine, equal time and personal attack rules as spelled out in the FCC law, but Congress did not comply. This time it tries to nullify the law simply by re-writing the regulation.

Obviously it proposes to keep the law fair by providing an opportunity to consider an applicant's complaint in response to a petition. But that turns out to be no more than an empty gesture, due to the legal red tape in considering, along with a likelihood that the election would be over before the case could be decided. Furthermore the cost of all the legal red tape would tend to discourage an appeal for fairness.

It is unthinkable that any regulation as biased as this FCC proposal would even be considered by our Congress. The broadcasting stations do not own the First Amendment. Others have First Amendment rights too. Fairness Rules are designed to balance the constitutional rights of three parties: (1) the broadcasters, (2) individuals and candidates who wish to get their message in circulation, and (3) the general public which has a right to be informed about the issue.

This radical policy of deregulating the broadcasters applies not only to politics and commercial interests but to all phases of social and moral life. It would be equivalent to a license to do anything they please along with a blanket excuse from responsibility for anything that was said or done. The idea is to disregard programming rules and furthermore to relieve broadcasters of their obligation to maintain daily logs of what goes on the air.

A search of this proposed rule change for statements to encourage professional ethics in journalism, common decency in entertainment, responsibility to the viewing public or fairness in presenting controversial issues or political campaigns

CONGRESSMAN CHARLES STENHOLM

Stenholm, speaker for Chamber banquet

With Congressman Charles Stenholm of US District 17 heading the program as guest speaker, the Muenster Chamber of Commerce will have its annual banquet and dance Saturday night in Sacred Heart Community Center.

The event will open with a social hour at 6:30 and a steak dinner catered by Rohmer's will be served at 7:30. After that, beginning about 9, Carl Jones and his Golden Tones will treat the crowd to his highly popular dance music.

Persons who want to attend the dance only at $5 per person will be welcome. All attending the dance are reminded that alcoholic drinks will not be served at the bar after the social hour. Only mixes and set-ups will be available. Those who want mixed drinks are invited to bring their own bottles.

Jane Monday will direct the program as master of ceremonies; Johnny Pagel, Chamber president, will make recognitions, presentations and remarks; and Urban Endres will introduce the honorable congressman.

Also on the program are the Reverend Keith Thomas of First Baptist Church giving the invocation and the benediction; and Alan Miller, Jaycee president, leading the Pledge of Allegiance. Jane Monday will end the program with the concluding remarks. Herbert and Dolores Miller are serving as banquet co-chairmen.

Introductions will present 1984 officers of the organization as follows: Don Abney, president; Johnny Fisher, vice president; Monica Hess, secretary and Sharon Wolf treasurer.

Also the board of directors, as follows: Don Abney, Johnny Fisher, Wanda Flusche, Don Hess, Monica Hess, Mac McCoy, Johnny Pagel and Sharon Wolf.

The past year's officers are Larry Kinard, Johnny Pagel, Monica Hess, and Sharon Wolf. Retiring directors are Stan Endres, Lupe Evans and Deb Klement.

Though not on the program a couple of the Chamber's key positions to be announced are the 1984 Germanfest co-chairmen, Wayne Klement and Alvin Fuhrman.

Stenholm proposes reform of 50 year old Davis-Bacon wage bill

In the last minute rush before Christmas recess, Texas Rep. Charlie Stenholm joined forces with two other congressmen to introduce a major reform bill which could open bidding doors to small businesses seeking federal contracts. The current onerous Davis-Bacon wage requirements effectively block many small contractors from the bidding process.

The bill technically amends three laws: the Small Business Act, the Davis-Bacon Act, and the Copeland Anti-Kickback Act. If the bill clears both houses, any contractor qualifying as "small" under Small Business Administration standards would not be subject to the Davis-Bacon wage decrease or to the heavy reporting requirements of the Copeland Act when he or she bids on contracts of $1 million or less.

According to John Motley, deputy director of federal legislation at the National Federation of Independent Business, "This is a critical bill for small business. In essence, eliminate the Davis-Bacon proviso, and you make small firms competitive; cut the Copeland requirement and you reduce the mound of paperwork. These are the largest factors blocking small contractors from bidding."

The General Accounting Office, in its 1979 report to Congress, called for a full repeal of the Davis-Bacon

Act. The comptroller general explained why in the report: "(1) there have been significant changes in the economy since 1931 which we believe make continuation of the act unnecessary, (2) after nearly 50 years, the Department of Labor has yet to develop an effective program to issue and maintain accurate wage determinations, and it may be impractical to ever do so, and (3) the act is inflationary, and results in unnecessary construction and administrative costs of several hundred million dollars annually."

The GAO review of 30 federal or federally assisted projects pointed out that the majority of the wage rates issued by Labor were higher than the prevailing rates in 12 localities and lower in the other 18. In the 12 higher rated areas, wages costs paid on the projects averaged 37 percent more than the comparable wage costs in the locality's prevailing rate. These higher wage costs ranged from a low 5 percent over Labor's figures to 123 percent higher.

In the 18 localities that showed a lower figure than Labor's prevailing wage, the GAO report points out that local contractors were generally given the contracts. GOA's analysis? "Thus, the act's intent — to maintain the local prevailing wage structure — is carried out only when the administration of the act has no effect."

Bullock survey predicts early improvement in state's economy

State Comptroller Bob Bullock said Thursday a survey he has conducted shows Texas business people are expecting the state's economy to improve markedly during the first half of 1984.

"Texas business expects to produce more, sell more, spend more and hire more during the first six months of 1984," Bullock said.

The Comptroller based his predictions on a recent survey of 300 of the state's largest sales taxpayers. Bullock asked these businesses if they expect the first half of 1984 to be better, worse, or the same as 1983. More than 70 percent of those who received questionnaires responded. "A whopping 48 percent of them expect to hire more employees next year," Bullock said. "Eight out of ten expect Texas business conditions to improve."

Bullock said retail and manufacturing companies have the highest expectations for the next six months, while construction, oil and gas and utility companies are the most pessimistic.

Bullock's survey also shows:

1. Three quarters of those responding expect the Texas economy to perform at least as well as the nation as a whole.
2. Three quarters expect the financial condition of their own companies to improve over the next six months.
3. Sixty-five percent expect their profit picture to improve.

4. Many construction firms, participants in a Texas building boom for the past 18 months, are expecting to reduce the number of employees now on their payrolls.

5. Oil and gas firms are still suffering from their industry's slump, but those firms with available cash see 1984 as a year of investment opportunities for those who can take advantage of lower costs for drilling and capital equipment.

"The results of this survey confirmed what we expected when we issued our latest Revenue Estimate in October," Bullock said. "The survey shows retailers are coming back strong and expect to get stronger, while other parts of our state economy are looking at a slower climb."

Krueger brings race to county

U.S. Senate candidate Bob Krueger in a press conference today made preservation of the family farm a cornerstone of a four-part agricultural policy which he said could rectify "the tragic economic burdens placed on today's farmers and better utilize our nation's enormous production capacity."

Krueger was in Gainesville Wednesday for a breakfast meeting with friends relative to his campaign for the Democratic nomination in this year's U.S. Senate race.

"It is essential to preserve a way of life fundamental to the very strength of American society itself," Krueger said.

"The federal government must again become a partner with, and cease being an adversary of, the family farmer."

Krueger called for government policies that would provide full parity for the American farmer and "a loan program for all commodities that meets the cost of production."

The front-running Democrat in the 1984 U.S. Senate race stressed that his proposals would "reallocate, rather than call for additional spending" of the federal dollars budgeted for agriculture programs.

Krueger said that such a loan program is based on a principle established by Franklin D. Roosevelt, when the Democratic Party "salvaged the family farm in the 1930s."

In addition to full parity and loan programs, Krueger called for a supply management system to prevent "needless and costly over-production," and the development of a domestic and international marketing and food distribution system that "fully utilizes our agricultural production capacity."

Krueger also made a plea for the protection and enhancement of the Rural Electrification Administration, a government effort he said "brought low-cost electricity" to rural America.

Krueger said that farmers face unique business problems, and that "government will have to have a larger role in setting sensible policy in agriculture than it will in any other business."

Good News

Deuteronomy 31:7-8

Then Moses summoned Joshua and in the presence of all Israel said to him, "Be brave and steadfast, for you must bring this people into the land which the Lord swore to their fathers he would give them; you must put them in possession of their heritage. It is the Lord who marches before you; he will be with you and will never fail you or forsake you. So do not fear or be dismayed."

Gifts for the Lord

ON JANUARY 6, the Christian Church celebrates Epiphany. This is the season when the Good News of the Saviour's birth was shared with the Gentile world. Christ was and is to be Saviour of all men for all time.

The Wise Men saw this special star in the East and they decided to follow it wherever it would lead them. For approximately one and a half years, they journeyed over rugged mountains, through the valleys and the desert until they came to Jerusalem. They asked King Herod where this new King was born. The King called his counselors together to determine the answer. The consensus was that He was to be born in Bethlehem of Judea as Micah had prophesied (Micah 5:2). King Herod sent the Wise Men to Bethlehem to find Jesus and then bring him word so that he could worship the Christ-Child also, so he said deviously.

The Wise Men continued to follow the star until it stopped over the place where Jesus was living. When they came into His presence, the Wise Men presented Him gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh.

These gifts had special significance for the Lord Jesus Christ. The gold was to remind all men that Jesus is the King of Kings; gold was a special gift for a King.

Frankincense was a spice that was added to oil for the anointing of a priest for service. This was an appropriate gift for Jesus because He is our High Priest before the throne of grace. The third gift was myrrh. This spice was used primarily for the anointing of a body in preparation for burial. The significance of this gift points to Jesus as the one who should redeem mankind from their sins by His death, burial and resurrection (1 Cor. 15:1-4).

These gifts have special meaning for the Christian. They clearly tell us that Jesus is the promised Messiah, the Lamb of God who "Takes away the sins of the world" (John 1:29). Entering into the New Year, may we keep in mind who Jesus is and His purpose for coming into our world. In this way, our faith in Him will be strengthened and we will be able to meet the challenges of each new day with hope and assurance that all things work together for our good because we love Christ (Romans 8:28).

Booklets containing the first 52 weeks of columns of "The Owner's Manual" are now available and may be obtained by making a tax deductible contribution of $3.00 to the Building Fund of the First Baptist Church. They may be picked up from the church office or from me, or if you would like to order by mail, please add 50 cents to help defray the cost of postage and write First Baptist Church, Box 581, Muenster, Tx. 76252.

Heart of Gold

IN FRONT of the corporate headquarters of one of the nation's largest banks stands one of those curious black stone masses that pass for sculpture these days. Local wags in San Francisco (where this particular piece of "art" is located) have named the cold, dark lump "Banker's Heart."

Sadly, this tells us a lot about how many people view the compassion level of America's corporate leaders. But how close is such a view to reality?

Not very. Spurred by the Reagan administration's emphasis on "private sector initiatives," hundreds of companies across the nation are taking a more active role in community affairs.

For example, Dow Chemical Company has organized a food-distribution program in its headquarters-community — Midland, Michigan. Many beneficiaries of Dow's food-distribution program are older people on fixed incomes. High heating bills during the winter months had put them in the position of having to scrimp on groceries.

Dow employees contributed $130,000, which was matched by the company, to buy a variety of staple foods at wholesale prices. With the help of the Red Cross and the Salvation Army, as well as area residents, the food was distributed to 2,400 needy families.

Other companies have also climbed on the "private sector initiative" bandwagon.

- General Motors provided funds to purchase, renovate, and equip a pre-employment training center, designed to bridge the gap between school and work;
- The Bank of America has initiated programs to determine housing needs, finance housing construction, and rehabilitate existing housing;

• Johnson and Johnson, the well-known manufacturer of health and personal-care products, has spearheaded an economic revitalization program to improve the quality of life in its headquarters city of New Brunswick, New Jersey;

• Honeywell, a major producer of computers and high tech items, has a four-year-old volunteer program for its retired employees. Over 500 volunteers help more than 130 social service agencies in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area as a result of this effort.

Business leaders recognize the value of community service activities. And they also recognize that mushrooming social spending by the federal government, which has increased more than 700 percent since 1962, has reached the point of causing more harm than good.

By being a tremendous drag on the economy, government overspending hurts everyone by causing inflation and high interest rates. Private-sector initiatives can help meet community needs without the adverse side effects of bloated budgets.

And, such efforts tend to be more efficient. More of the money goes to solving human need, less to middlemen and bureaucrats.

So, it looks like it's time for cynics to revise their opinion about the social responsibility of American business. Evidently, inside that cold, dark "Banker's heart" there's a lump of pure gold.

A vote for theft?

AMERICA HAS long been known as a Christian nation. It was founded by Christians and Christian principles formed the basis of its early charters of liberty and indeed were fundamental to the basic laws of the land.

In essence, the Christian ethic was largely responsible for the resulting greatness of America. We are on firm ground, therefore, when we refer to the ten commandments for guidance in regard to conduct, both personal and governmental.

Some thirty-odd years ago we ran across a story in a little journal called "Ideas on Liberty" which is a classic in clarifying the ethical position of government income redistribution programs.

Because of its innate simplicity and clarity, and absolutely unchallengeable logic, we would like to quote from this little story by Willford I. King by way of providing an insight into the ethics of income redistribution.

"Suppose that, in an isolated valley, there are three men, each working for himself on his own farm. One is very diligent, and when winter arrives, has accumulated a large store of foodstuffs, and has on hand ample feed for his horses, cows, and poultry.

"The others, having taken life easy during the summer, find that, long before spring, they are short of provisions. If, then, they combine forces, set upon their neighbor, and seize his possessions, both capitalists and collectivists will agree that the two lazy farmers have violated the eighth commandment — in other words, (they) have stolen the diligent farmer's goods.

But, suppose instead, that the two insist upon establishing a democratic government for the valley. They hold a 'town meeting,' and by a vote of two to one, adopt a statute requiring that all share equally in the summer produce. Is this a perfectly legitimate action, falling outside the scope of the Eighth Commandment?...

The Christian ethic contains within it the commandment that "Thou shalt not steal." It does not say, "Thou shalt not steal unless a majority votes to approve the theft. It says, "Thou shalt not steal." Period!

The right to ownership of private property is not only a fundamental right under the Constitution of the United States, it receives its authority directly from the Creator through the Eighth Commandment, as we have just seen.

Taking a person's property without trading for it, when it is not willingly exchanged, is stealing. The fact that representatives in a Legislature or a Congress might vote to take one's property to give it to someone else is ethically irrelevant. The act is still theft even though it may be sanctioned by law.

As the late philosopher and personal friend, Leonard Read, once said, no moral absolutism takes place when a majority votes to commit an immoral act. It may make the act legal but it doesn't make it right!

It should be obvious to anyone intelligent enough to vote, that income redistribution is not eliminating poverty, but is in fact increasing the number of poor. Could this be the result of resorting to immoral means — to stealing — in attempting to solve the problem? Think about it!

Spend for American defense

CONGRESSMAN RON PAUL of Houston has urged President Ronald Reagan "to redirect American military spending to the defense of America."

In a letter to the President, Congressman Paul called for "an end to the old policies that see us spend most of the defense budget defending other countries and put the United States first."

"Sixty-percent of the military budget is spent on foreign lands," said Congressman Paul, "and from these many billions of dollars must come the funds for our two urgent priorities:

"1. the modernization of U.S. air defenses, particularly such strategic bases as those in Texas, Cuba — so close to the Texas coast — has 16 squadrons of fighter interceptors. The U.S. has 15. We have almost no surface-to-air missiles in the U.S., and our early warning system on the Gulf Coast and all of America's borders has been seriously downgraded. Most of our fighter force are 20-year-old planes. The cost of fueling, repairing, and maintaining a squadron of older F-4's will almost pay for a squadron of modern fighters. Our modern fighters are in places like Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, England, Germany and Japan. These priorities must be switched.

"2. A modern space-based anti-missile system. Last year, our government allocated 1/2 of one percent to defensive space weaponry. Next year, it moves to one percent.

General Dan Graham, former head of the Defense Intelligence Agency, has pointed out that we could launch space interceptors to knock down enemy missiles with today's technology. If we wait 10 years, we may find such ships in orbit — with red stars on them.

"The job of the American government is to defend the liberty and property of the American people, not to make it easier for the Japanese and German companies to take American jobs by defending them for free. We can't meet the challenges of the 1990's with answers from the 1950's — more and more offensive weapons. The space system will cost an estimated 15 billion dollars to deploy. In defense terms, that's an absolute bargain. We've policed the world at the expense of our own security. We can do it no longer.

"We must discard the failed policies of the past in the military as well as the domestic area," said Congressman Paul. "It's time for a new creative approach to this most serious of government's responsibilities, and you have the leadership ability to make the change. The American people will back you enthusiastically.

"We can have more defense for less money. But we must start now."

Ron Paul for U.S. Senate Ron Paul urges new defense policy.

'thought I had that darn card'

The State Law requiring motorists to purchase minimum limits of liability has been in effect now for almost 3 years. But, the fact is that a large number of motorists who carried no insurance before the law, do not now carry the required coverage.

But worse than that, the complying public has often found itself caught up in the web of legal entanglements when they reach for their ID cards and find they are not there. It's the usual case where the law abiding citizen has rules imposed on him, when the law was for those who shirk their responsibility.

Many circumstances exist where an ID card may not be in a particular vehicle, when the driver is asked to present it. We all have driven someone's vehicle other than our own. Have you checked to see if the card is in the glove box or on the dash? Have you ever purchased a new vehicle (they don't come with a card) only to drive off the lot into the waiting "long arms of the law"? Or, have the wife (or husband) clean out the car for the first time since it was purchased (1971 model), and discard that filmy paper which turns out to be the "proof". Or, as a reaction when the police ask for the card, you reach for the glove box only to stop-in-action when you remember that you left the cards on the table at home, or attached to the renewal policy in the cardboard box in the closet. Makes no difference! Whatever the reason, the police will issue a citation and let you clear the matter up with the judge. Should we be subject to taking inventory of ID's and licenses every time we want to go down to the corner market?

Well, the Legislature thinks so. Until we can effect a change in Austin, we will have to live with this mess and learn how to avoid being caught without the cards, when in fact we have coverage.

First, be sure to renew your coverage well in advance of the expiration. While most agents send renewal notices 15 to 30 days in advance of the expiration, the typical response time of most insureds is only several days before the policy expires. While the agent can bind coverage on a word, preparing the cards takes time, including the delay of the mail system should you not be able to come to their office. Waiting until the last minute can send you to court.

Second, when the cards come in the mail or are picked up at the office, take them to their respective autos immediately.

Third, clearly mark the card so everyone knows it should be kept. Secure it in the glove box or tape it to the dash.

Fourth, when purchasing a new vehicle always carry with you your current policy and keep a copy of the sales or purchase slip in the new vehicle until you receive your new card.

Fifth, and most important, never pay for a violation for lack of insurance until you have consulted with your insurance agent. You will be pleading guilty and will have your drivers license and license plates suspended. So you can see, the most prudent thing to do is to take the law seriously and keep close tabs on that ID card. It will save you much more than just a trip to see the judge.

Lemons Photography joins MOD fund raiser

Lemons Photography of Nocona will participate in a "million dollar idea" to raise funds for the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation. The plan to raise one million dollars is through a children's photography contest in cooperation with professional photographers throughout the United States, according to Larry Lemons, certified professional photographer.

"Parents, grandparents or anyone else may sponsor any child, four months through six years of age, by calling 817-825-6326 to make an appointment for the child to be photographed. One entry per child. The sponsor pays the photographer $9.00 for the photography session, which includes several poses of the child, plus the 4x5 color entry photograph. Seven dollars of the fee will be contributed by Lemons Photography to the March of Dimes," Lemons emphasized. "The sponsor receives the entry photograph after the contest," Lemons added.

The "Parade of Stars" contest is national in scope. The first place winners from this area will compete with other area winners submitted by participating photographers. The grand prize winner receives "a dream trip for four, two children, two adults ... 21 day unlimited mileage tickets on Eastern Airlines." The winners are chosen based upon personality shown in the photograph.

"The idea for the contest was created by the International Professional Photographers Guild, with headquarters in St. Louis, Missouri," Lemons stated. Lemons Photography is a member of the guild.

Lemons commenting on the "Parade of Stars" contest, said, "Our staff is delighted with the opportunity to assist in developing a unique way to raise one million dollars for the March of Dimes."

Lemons also stated that the top three winners in the area, plus 25 honorable mentions, will receive Lemons Photography gift certificates for family photography valued in excess of $750.

Nocona is one of approximately 100 cities invited to participate in the first phase of developing the "million dollar idea," ac-ording to Evelyn Lageman, vice president of International Professional Photographers Guild. "Members of other professional photography guilds and associations are being invited to experience the program this year in order to assist and encourage other members to participate in future years," Lageman said.

"Participating photographers tell us members of the business community have already volunteered to display posters and distribute entry blanks for the Parade of Stars. Plans are also being made to display entry photographs in banks and other shopping areas," Lageman said.

Lemons further commented that information is being distributed to day care centers, children's stores, and various other businesses.

Posters and entry blanks can be obtained by calling 817-825-6326.

Lemons Photography has been closed for the holidays, but will be open again January 10 to begin arranging appointments or share additional information.

Gary Storm, spokesman for the March of Dimes headquarters in White Plains, New York, said,

"Many of our friends will be pleased to know that all aspects of the Parade of Stars are underwritten by the International Professional Photographers

Gifts for the Lord

ON JANUARY 6, the Christian Church celebrates Epiphany. This is the season when the Good News of the Saviour's birth was shared with the Gentile world. Christ was and is to be Saviour of all men for all time.

The Wise Men saw this special star in the East and they decided to follow it wherever it would lead them. For approximately one and a half years, they journeyed over rugged mountains, through the valleys and the desert until they came to Jerusalem. They asked King Herod where this new King was born. The King called his counselors together to determine the answer. The consensus was that He was to be born in Bethlehem of Judea as Micah had prophesied (Micah 5:2). King Herod sent the Wise Men to Bethlehem to find Jesus and then bring him word so that he could worship the Christ-Child also, so he said deviously.

The Wise Men continued to follow the star until it stopped over the place where Jesus was living. When they came into His presence, the Wise Men presented Him gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh.

These gifts had special significance for the Lord Jesus Christ. The gold was to remind all men that Jesus is the King of Kings; gold was a special gift for a King.

Frankincense was a spice that was added to oil for the anointing of a priest for service. This was an appropriate gift for Jesus because He is our High Priest before the throne of grace. The third gift was myrrh. This spice was used primarily for the anointing of a body in preparation for burial. This significance of this gift points to Jesus as the one who should redeem mankind from their sins by His death, burial and resurrection (1 Cor. 15:1-4).

These gifts have special meaning for the Christian; they clearly tell us that Jesus is the promised Messiah, the Lamb of God who "Taket away the sins of the world" (John 1:29). Entering into the New Year, may we keep in mind who Jesus is and His purpose for coming into our world. In this way, our faith in Him will be strengthened and we will be able to meet the challenges of each new day with hope and assurance that all things work together for our good because we love Christ (Romans 8:28).

Booklets containing the first 52 weeks of columns of "The Owner's Manual" are now available and may be obtained by making a tax deductible contribution of $3.00 to the Building Fund of the First Baptist Church. They may be picked up from the church office or from me, or if you would like to order by mail, please add 50 cents to help defray the cost of postage and write First Baptist Church, Box 581, Muenster, Tx. 76252.

Heart of Gold

IN FRONT of the corporate headquarters of one of the nation's largest banks stands one of those curious black stone masses that pass for sculpture these days. Local wags in San Francisco (where this particular piece of "art" is located) have named the cold, dark lump "Banker's Heart."

Sadly, this tells us a lot about how many people view the compassion level of America's corporate leaders. But how close is such a view to reality?

Not very. Spurred by the Reagan administration's emphasis on "private sector initiatives," hundreds of companies across the nation are taking a more active role in community affairs.

For example, Dow Chemical Company has organized a food-distribution program in its headquarters-community — Midland, Michigan. Many beneficiaries of Dow's food-distribution program are older people on fixed incomes. High heating bills during the winter months had put them in the position of having to scrimp on groceries.

Dow employees contributed $130,000, which was matched by the company, to buy a variety of staple foods at wholesale prices. With the help of the Red Cross and the Salvation Army, as well as area residents, the food was distributed to 2,400 needy families.

Other companies have also climbed on the "private sector initiative" bandwagon.

- General Motors provided funds to purchase, renovate, and equip a pre-employment training center, designed to bridge the gap between school and work;
- The Bank of America has initiated programs to determine housing needs, finance housing construction, and rehabilitate existing housing;

• Johnson and Johnson, the well-known manufacturer of health and personal-care products, has spearheaded an economic revitalization program to improve the quality of life in its headquarters city of New Brunswick, New Jersey;

• Honeywell, a major producer of computers and high tech items, has a four-year-old volunteer program for its retired employees. Over 500 volunteers help more than 130 social service agencies in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area as a result of this effort.

Business leaders recognize the value of community service activities. And they also recognize that mushrooming social spending by the federal government, which has increased more than 700 percent since 1962, has reached the point of causing more harm than good.

By being a tremendous drag on the economy, government overspending hurts everyone by causing inflation and high interest rates. Private-sector initiatives can help meet community needs without the adverse side effects of bloated budgets.

And, such efforts tend to be more efficient. More of the money goes to solving human need, less to middlemen and bureaucrats.

So, it looks like it's time for cynics to revise their opinion about the social responsibility of American business. Evidently, inside that cold, dark "Banker's heart" there's a lump of pure gold.

A vote for theft?

AMERICA HAS long been known as a Christian nation. It was founded by Christians and Christian principles formed the basis of its early charters of liberty and indeed were fundamental to the basic laws of the land.

In essence, the Christian ethic was largely responsible for the resulting greatness of America. We are on firm ground, therefore, when we refer to the ten commandments for guidance in regard to conduct, both personal and governmental.

Some thirty-odd years ago we ran across a story in a little journal called "Ideas on Liberty" which is a classic in clarifying the ethical position of government income redistribution programs.

Because of its innate simplicity and clarity, and absolutely unchallengeable logic, we would like to quote from this little story by Willford I. King by way of providing an insight into the ethics of income redistribution.

"Suppose that, in an isolated valley, there are three men, each working for himself on his own farm. One is very diligent, and when winter arrives, has accumulated a large store of foodstuffs, and has on hand ample feed for his horses, cows, and poultry.

"The others, having taken life easy during the summer, find that, long before spring, they are short of provisions. If, then, they combine forces, set upon their neighbor, and seize his possessions, both capitalists and collectivists will agree that the two lazy farmers have violated the eighth commandment — in other words, (they) have stolen the diligent farmer's goods.

But, suppose instead, that the two insist upon establishing a democratic government for the valley. They hold a 'town meeting,' and by a vote of two to one, adopt a statute requiring that all share equally in the summer produce. Is this a perfectly legitimate action, falling outside the scope of the Eighth Commandment?...

The Christian ethic contains within it the commandment that "Thou shalt not steal." It does not say, "Thou shalt not steal unless a majority votes to approve the theft. It says, "Thou shalt not steal." Period!

The right to ownership of private property is not only a fundamental right under the Constitution of the United States, it receives its authority directly from the Creator through the Eighth Commandment, as we have just seen.

Taking a person's property without trading for it, when it is not willingly exchanged, is stealing. The fact that representatives in a Legislature or a Congress might vote to take one's property to give it to someone else is ethically irrelevant. The act is still theft even though it may be sanctioned by law.

As the late philosopher and personal friend, Leonard Read, once said, no moral absolutism takes place when a majority votes to commit an immoral act. It may make the act legal but it doesn't make it right!

It should be obvious to anyone intelligent enough to vote, that income redistribution is not eliminating poverty, but is in fact increasing the number of poor. Could this be the result of resorting to immoral means — to stealing — in attempting to solve the problem? Think about it!

Spend for American defense

CONGRESSMAN RON PAUL of Houston has urged President Ronald Reagan "to redirect American military spending to the defense of America."

In a letter to the President, Congressman Paul called for "an end to the old policies that see us spend most of the defense budget defending other countries and put the United States first."

"Sixty-percent of the military budget is spent on foreign lands," said Congressman Paul, "and from these many billions of dollars must come the funds for our two urgent priorities:

"1. the modernization of U.S. air defenses, particularly such strategic bases as those in Texas. Cuba — so close to the Texas coast — has 16 squadrons of fighter interceptors. The U.S. has 15. We have almost no surface-to-air missiles in the U.S., and our early warning system on the Gulf Coast and all of America's borders has been seriously downgraded. Most of our fighter force are 20-year-old planes. The cost of fueling, repairing, and maintaining a squadron of older F-4's will almost pay for a squadron of modern fighters. Our modern fighters are in places like Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, England, Germany and Japan. These priorities must be switched.

"2. A modern space-based anti-missile system. Last year, our government allocated 1/2 of one percent to defensive space weaponry. Next year, it moves to one percent.

General Dan Graham, former head of the Defense Intelligence Agency, has pointed out that we could launch space interceptors to knock down enemy missiles with today's technology. If we wait 10 years, we may find such ships in orbit — with red stars on them.

"The job of the American government is to defend the liberty and property of the American people, not to make it easier for the Japanese and German companies to take American jobs by defending them for free. We can't meet the challenges of the 1990's with answers from the 1950's — more and more offensive weapons. The space system will cost an estimated 15 billion dollars to deploy. In defense terms, that's an absolute bargain. We've policed the world at the expense of our own security. We can do it no longer.

"We must discard the failed policies of the past in the military as well as the domestic area," said Congressman Paul. "It's time for a new creative approach to this most serious of government's responsibilities, and you have the leadership ability to make the change. The American people will back you enthusiastically.

"We can have more defense for less money. But we must start now."

Ron Paul for U.S. Senate Ron Paul urges new defense policy.

'thought I had that darn card'

The State Law requiring motorists to purchase minimum limits of liability has been in effect now for almost 3 years. But, the fact is that a large number of motorists who carried no insurance before the law, do not now carry the required coverage.

But worse than that, the complying public has often found itself caught up in the web of legal entanglements when they reach for their ID cards and find they are not there. It's the usual case where the law abiding citizen has rules imposed on him, when the law was for those who shirk their responsibility.

Many circumstances exist where an ID card may not be in a particular vehicle, when the driver is asked to present it. We all have driven someone's vehicle other than our own. Have you checked to see if the card is in the glove box or on the dash? Have you ever purchased a new vehicle (they don't come with a card) only to drive off the lot into the waiting "long arms of the law"? Or, have the wife (or husband) clean out the car for the first time since it was purchased (1971 model), and discard that flimsy paper which turns out to be the "proof". Or, as a reaction when the police ask for the card, you reach for the glove box only to stop-in-action when you remember that you left the cards on the table at home, or attached to the renewal policy in the cardboard box in the closet. Makes no difference! Whatever the reason, the police will issue a citation and let you clear the matter up with the judge. Should we be subject to taking inventory of ID's and licenses every time we want to go down to the corner market?

Well, the Legislature thinks so. Until we can effect a change in Austin, we will have to live with this mess and learn how to avoid being caught without the cards, when in fact we have coverage.

First, be sure to renew your coverage well in advance of the expiration. While most agents send renewal notices 15 to 30 days in advance of the expiration, the typical response time of most insureds is only several days before the policy expires. While the agent can bind coverage on a word, preparing the cards takes time, including the delay of the mail system should you not be able to come to their office. Waiting until the last minute can send you to court.

Second, when the cards come in the mail or are picked up at the office, take them to their respective autos immediately.

Third, clearly mark the card so everyone knows it should be kept. Secure it in the glove box or tape it to the dash.

Fourth, when purchasing a new vehicle always carry with you your current policy and keep a copy of the sales or purchase slip in the new vehicle until you receive your new card.

Fifth, and most important, never pay for a violation for lack of insurance until you have consulted with your insurance agent. You will be pleading guilty and will have your drivers license and license plates suspended.

So you can see, the most prudent thing to do is to take the law seriously and keep close tabs on that ID card. It will save you much more than just a trip to see the judge.

Lemons Photography joins MOD fund raiser

Bernie Fette returns to Bryan

Regretfully, the Enterprise announces that a member of its staff has moved to a greener pasture. Bernie Fette has returned to the Bryan-College Station Eagle, a daily paper, where he served his internship while a journalism student at Texas A&M University. He is assigned as copy desk editor. Though disappointed by its loss, the Enterprise congratulates Bernie on his promotion and enhanced opportunity.

Lemons Photography of Nocona will participate in a "million dollar idea" to raise funds for the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation. The plan to raise one million dollars is through a children's photography contest in cooperation with professional photographers throughout the United States, according to Larry Lemons, certified professional photographer.

"Parents, grandparents or anyone else may sponsor any child, four months through six years of age, by calling 817-825-6326 to make an appointment for the child to be photographed. One entry per child. The sponsor pays the photographer $9.00 for the photography session, which includes several poses of the child, plus the 4x5 color entry photograph. Seven dollars of the fee will be contributed by Lemons Photography to the March of Dimes," Lemons emphasized.

"The sponsor receives the entry photograph after the contest," Lemons added.

The "Parade of Stars" contest is national in scope. The first place winners from this area will compete with other area winners submitted by participating photographers. The grand prize winner receives "a dream trip for four, two children, two adults ... 21 day unlimited mileage tickets on Eastern Airlines." The winners are chosen based upon personality shown in the photograph.

"The idea for the contest was created by the International Professional Photographers Guild, with headquarters in St. Louis, Missouri," Lemons stated. Lemons Photography is a member of the guild.

Lemons commenting on the "Parade of Stars" contest, said, "Our staff is delighted with the opportunity to assist in developing a unique way to raise one million dollars for the March of Dimes."

Lemons also stated that the top three winners in the area, plus 25 honorable mentions, will receive Lemons Photography gift certificates for family photography valued in excess of $750.

Nocona is one of approximately 100 cities invited to participate in the first phase of developing the "million dollar idea," ac-

ording to Evelyn Lageman, vice president of International Professional Photographers Guild. "Members of other professional photography guilds and associations are being invited to experience the program this year in order to assist and encourage other members to participate in future years," Lageman said.

"Participating photographers tell us members of the business community have already volunteered to display posters and distribute entry blanks for the Parade of Stars. Plans are also being made to display entry photographs in banks and other shopping areas," Lageman said.

Lemons further commented that information is being distributed to day care centers, children's stores, and various other businesses.

Posters and entry blanks can be obtained by calling 817-825-6326.

Lemons Photography has been closed for the holidays, but will be open again January 10 to begin arranging appointments or share additional information.

Gary Storm, spokesman for the March of Dimes headquarters in White Plains, New York, said,

"Many of our friends will be pleased to know that all aspects of the Parade of Stars are underwritten by the International Professional Photographers

George Berrys observe golden wedding

Mr. and Mrs. George Berry were honored by their children and grandchildren on Sunday, Dec. 18, 1983 with a luncheon reception at 1 p.m. in the River Valley Country Club, in observance of their golden wedding anniversary.

Relatives and close friends attended. They were greeted upon arrival by the honorees and their son Joe, and their daughter Janice and son-in-law Jim Condwright.

Guests were registered by Robin and Leslie Conkwright, granddaughters. They presided at a table holding a recent picture of the couple, a framed anniversary invitation, and a bud vase holding gold rosebuds and greenery. The guest book, with a picture of the couple on the outside cover, was a gift from Odessa and Jack Berry.

The U shaped dinner table was beautifully decorated, centered with a low arrangement of gold, yellow and amber fall flowers with green fern and foliage. On either side were double crystal candelabra holding four tall gold, lighted tapers. Ivy runners centered the full length of the table and were highlighted by placement of amber and brass hurricane lights.

Jim Conkwright gave the invocation and welcomed the party guests, noting that they braved icy roads and severe weather to honor the anniversary couple.

Near the end of the meal, he read a clipping taken from the Gainesville Daily Register in 1933, giving the account of the marriage and he emphasized the similarity of the 50th anniversary and the wedding. He read: "The marriage of Miss Josephine Elkins and George Berry was solemnized on Sunday, December 24, 1933 in the home of the bride's parents on Lindsay Street in Gainesville. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Tom Elkins of Gainesville and the late Hollis Berry and Zuma Berry of Rosston. "Miss Corinne Self played and sang "A Perfect Love" and the wedding party entered as Mendelsohn's Wedding March was played. "Joan Flint and Carolyn

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE BERRY

Jo Blankenship, nieces of the bride carried white satin ribbons to mark an aisle for the entrance of the wedding party. Miss Myrtle Elkins of Houston and Dan Flint, Sr. of Valley View were attendants for the couple. Rev. Thomas Hardy performed the ceremony.

"A three course dinner was served immediately following the ceremony after which the bride and groom left for a visit in Oklahoma City.

"The bride is a graduate of Gainesville High School and Cooke County Junior College. She studied at West Texas Teacher's College in Canyon and North Texas Teacher's College in Denton and is presently a teacher in the Callisburg School.

"The groom is a graduate of Denton High School and attended Texas Technological College in Lubbock. He is now engaged in ranching in Rosston."

The wedding cake in 1933 was heart-shaped, flanked by pink candles in silver candleholders. The anniversary cake in 1983 was two-tiered and also heart shaped, decorated with gold roses and green ivy, and antique gold ribbon bows. The top tier held a bride and groom figurine under a gold filigree numeral. The figurine was first used on the anniversary cake for Josephine's parents' golden anniversary celebration in 1939 and has been used on most family wedding and anniversary cakes since then.

The Berrys' anniversary cake was placed on a table covered with a white cloth and encircled with a white lace-ruffled-flounce. Gold ribbon and gold bows accented the lace heading.

Brenda Haverkamp, a granddaugther cut the cake and Robin Conkwright, granddaugther served the cake with the traditional boiled custard dessert. Pictures were made before and during the reception by Woody Forrester, a nephew of Waco. Nancy (Flint) Moore, accompanied by Anetta Earle, sang two old favorite songs and two Christmas carols, a special treat.

There were short talks by Carolyn Blankenship Lee of Silsbee and Kathryn Blankenship Mann of Henderson, nieces of Mrs. Berry who were her students in primary grades. Kathryn expressed love and admiration for her teacher and aunt, and, in the spirit of great fun, Carolyn offered to "bury the hatchet after 50 years," because her grade-school art papers were graded lower than Kathryn's. Another niece, Joan Flint Forrester of Waco recalled treasured visits with her aunt.

Ferol Flint, a sister of Mrs. Berry kept her audience in outbursts of laughter as she offered her humorous and candid remarks. Alternately roasting and praising, both in a warm, fun, family-like spirit, others joined in the merry-making. Sarah Blankenship, another sister added comments in a motherly way. Other sisters of Mrs. Berry were Altha Porter of Gainesville and Jimmie Cook of Dallas.

Byron Berry of Dallas, oldest grandson, eagerly recalled his experiences with his grandparents from early age, and told of enjoyable times with them and other relatives in Rosston. He also read a letter prepared for his grandparents to express his admiration and his wish to pattern his life after his grandfather and of his effort to fulfill that task.

Jim Conkwright spoke in behalf of the honorees, Joe, Janice and himself and the grandchildren referring to the day spent with relatives at a special event. The group joined hands and sang "Blest Be The Tie That Binds," led by Nancy Moore, a great niece. As the song came to a close another niece, Judy Stephenson of Gainesville offered her expressions of appreciation and good wishes.

Mr. and Mrs. George Berry have lived in Rosston all their married life. They are active in church, civic and community affairs. They ranched, farmed and owned and operated the Rosston Store for 30 years before retiring from the store January 1, 1973.

There were nine guests present at the anniversary celebration who also attended the wedding in 1933.

Natural Family planning classes to be held

Natural Family Planning will be the subject of a series of four monthly classes taught by the Couple to Couple League (CCL). A certified teaching couple, Gary and Mary Endres, will be teaching the classes, to be held in the Sacred Heart Library beginning on Sunday, January 8 at 7 p.m.

The method taught by CCL is a system of fertility awareness in which several symptoms of female fertility are used in a cross-checking way for the greatest reliability and confidence. Following this system correctly, can achieve an effectiveness at the 99 percent level in actual practice. CCL notes that this system is definitely not the same as calendar rhythm, and also states that its method assumes that every woman has irregular cycles.

Forestburg News

by Myrt Denham

A very Happy, safe, peaceful and healthy New Year to one and all. We do hope that all of you had a wonderful Christmas. There just isn't anyway that all family get-togethers and parties can be written about in this column so will just not cover any of them. I like Christmas as well as anyone but I, for one, am glad it's all over for another year.

Recent visitors with Ted and Laura Belle Jackson were Kelly Colwell of the Burg, Bill Jackson of Deatur Mr. and Mrs. Darrell McCandless and children of Floydada and Mr. and Mrs. S.T. Warford of Slidell.

During our recent intense cold, snowy and icy weather there were many folks who practiced the good neighbor policy by calling those who live alone, getting in supplies for them and delivering their mail, etc. Wade and Gary Perryman, Carvin Moseley and Dale Hudspeth were a great help to their neighbors and friends. They fed cattle, broke ice on frozen tanks so cattle could get water to drink, they checked on folks in their area and did whatever needed doing. All their help, work and concern was deeply appreciated by all.

Nearly everyone we talked with had frozen water pipes, wells not working due to the cold and all sorts of tales were forthcoming about the weather.

Have you ever notice how women (a lot of them) dress during cold weather? They will get all bundled up in coats, headscarfs and gloves against the cold weather and then wear a few straps on their feet for shoes, all to be stylish, but no protection against cold. Perhaps I'm just getting old but I firmly believe we need to keep our feet covered and warm, forget about being in style during cold weather.

I always know that New Year's Day has arrived as Perryman gets out his shoes and boots, gives them all a good cleaning, polishing and shines them and that is usually all they get till the new New Year's Day. This year was no exception — out came the shoes and boots and to work he went. When he was finished he said "Well, that is done for another year."

Millie Reynolds and Wanda Perryman made it over to Bowie Sat. Dec. 31. After completion of their shopping they visited with Mrs. Joe Denham.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack C. Dill attended the wedding of Mrs. Patricia Dill to Billy Gene Barton Sat. night Dec. 31 in Whaley United Methodist Church, gainesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Herring of Fort Worth are moving into the home of the late Rae and Atrice Sledge. Mrs. Herring is the former Bonnie Landers, daughter of Bob Landers.

It was annual family get-together time Sunday Jan. 1 in the home of Mrs. Gretell fanning. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Ben (Steve) White of Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Walling, Lynn and Debbie of Wichita Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Craig Walling and two sons of Archer City, Ann White of Electra and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Miller and daughters of Hurst. This was also a birthday celebration for Mrs. Steve White and Gretell Fanning. Mrs. White's birthday is Jan. 22 and Gretell has hers on Sat. Jan. 7. Also joining in the fun were Ross and Lucille Littell of Stoney. Mmes. Littell, Fanning and Hal Walling are sisters and Steve White is their brother.

Mrs. Edna Merle Hill, Mrs. Laura Hill and Amy all of Bowie spent New Year's Day with Mrs. Vera Mae McGee.

J.T. Poteet of Alvord is seriously ill in Harris Hospital in Fort Worth. He is the father of Mrs. Olita Lanier.

With all this new change over, change up or whatever with telephones one wonders just where they stand in the whole affair. This brings to mind a pet peeve of mine and I bet many of you feel the same way. How many times have you made a mad dash for a ringing phone — just as you get there and start to say hello and you hear a click? Or you answer on about the third ring and the caller will say, "Where were you? I was about to hang up." Who can always answer on the third ring as perhaps the phone is in one part of the

A&M expert says price scanners will benefit consumer

Despite consumer complaints, price tags must be removed from grocery items if supermarkets hope to realize the full benefits of new scanner systems used at checkout stands, says a marketing expert.

Most of the 5,000 grocery stores in the United States that use scanners aren't getting their money's worth from the equipment and won't realize the full economic benefits until they eliminate costly and labor-intensive item price-marking, says Dr. Valarie Zeithaml of Texas A&M's College of Business Administration.

"They haven't removed the price tags because of consumer resistance," she said, "but with time, and by using proper strategies that recognize customer needs, stores should be able to successfully overcome the resistance."

house and you in the other. One should always let the phone ring at least 10 or 12 times and when the person whom you are calling answers, you should identify yourself and he should do the same. That is just plain and simple telephone courtesy.

Sorry that there isn't more news for you to enjoy this week but this is all I could come up with. Perhaps now that the holidays are over all will get back to normal. Let us hope so. Will try to have more news for you to enjoy next week. Once again please send me your news item or call them in to me. Thank You.

John A. Floyd, a former resident of the New Harp Community, was buried Tuesday Dec. 27 in Hurst. Those attending from here were Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Steadham, Mr. and Mrs. Olin Merritt and Mascheel Hudspeth.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Ensey drove to Perrin Sat. Dec. 31 and met with a group of their Blue Grass music friends. One couple, Mr. and Mrs. Erv Hauf, of Fort Worth returned home with the Enseys on Jan. 1 and visited until Jan. 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wood of Wichita Falls spent Sat. night Dec. 31 with Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Lunch.

Cleo Lanier sends in "A Wish for 1984."

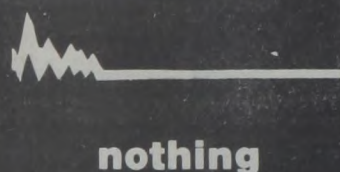

We've seen the end of 1983, the beginning of 1984. We always hope and wish for the New Year, health, love, happiness, peace and more — But for me I don't expect any great changes in life. Just hope I will be here, for whatever comes.

I know there will be some good, some bad, always the threat of war, and much more strife — But I would wish peace for the troubled, food for the hungry, warmth for the cold, love for the unloved, care for the very young and for the very old.

A spirit of caring in every heart — for all the people in the world, though they are miles apart — and dear Lord, if you have time to spare, please remember me, and make me worthy to be kept in Your care.

WITH AVERAGE BILLING, YOUR ELECTRIC BILL WILL BE ABOUT THE SAME EACH MONTH.

Everyone knows electric bills go up and down throughout the year. Some months they're low. Some months they're higher, depending on how much electricity you use.

But for most of us there aren't any highs and lows in our monthly income. It's pretty much the same from month to month. So, balancing the monthly budget can be a problem.

Well, Texas Power and Light Company has an answer. It's the Average Billing Plan. And each month after you join, you'll pay an average of your monthly electric bills over the past twelve months. No more ups and downs.

Of course, you're still paying for all the electricity you use. But with average billing, your electric bills will be about the same each month. So budgeting will be that much easier.

If you want to know more about our Average Billing Plan, call your local TP&L office today.

The scars of an abused child can stay with us all his life.

In any way you can think of, the effects of child abuse are devastating.

Each year, over one million American children suffer from child abuse.

Over 2,000 of those abused children die.

And, for many of those who live, the effects of an abusive childhood may influence their entire lives. And ours.

Many teenage drug addicts and teenage prostitutes report being abused children. So do juvenile delinquents and adult criminals.

Because we pay to respond to those problems, we are all the victims of child abuse.

Yet child abuse can and must be prevented.

The National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse is a private, charitable organization that knows how to prevent child abuse.

But we need your help to do it. We need money. We need more volunteers. Send us your check today, or write for our booklet.

And, remember, if we don't all start somewhere, we won't get anywhere.

Help us get to the heart of the problem.

The Lindsay City Council met in regular session, Monday, Jan. 2 at 7:00 p.m. The meeting was called to order and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The first order of business dealt with the allocation of funds received through the federal revenue sharing program. The council decided to allocate 30% of the funds to the police department.

In the past all of the funds had gone to road repair.

On January 16, the mayor, Norb Mages, will be going to a meeting in which Judge Jim Robertson will be discussing the county's participation in the Texas 1986 Sesquicentennial celebration. After this the council will be able to discuss more fully plans for our city's part in this celebration.

A fund raising project for the police department was discussed and dismissed.

After discussing seal coating some city streets, the council decided to sealcoat Willow street from Main st. to Fourth st. If this area proves to work well other streets will be considered for sealcoating.

Chief Jerry Johnson attended the meeting to report on police matters.

All council members were present at the meeting.

Driver license changes in effect

Beginning January 1, 1984, those persons who renew their driver license, qualify for their first license, or apply for a duplicate permit will receive licenses bearing new codes signifying class of license.

Colonel Jim Adams, director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said the department is starting the conversion to a new classified driver licensing system in accordance with a law passed this year by the Texas Legislature.

"Licenses issued prior to 1984 will be valid until the expiration dates which appear on them," Adams said.

"The new licenses will carry classifications designating the type and weight of vehicles which the holder may operate."

The new license classifications are "A", "B", "C" and "M".

The Class "C" license permits operation of single, two-axle vehicles with a gross weight of 24,000 pounds or less excluding motorcycles and mopeds. This designation also allows the towing of a vehicle not exceeding 10,000 pounds gross vehicle weight (GVW) or a farm trailer not exceeding 20,000 pounds GVW. In addition, the Class "C" designation permits the operation of a bus with a maximum seating capacity of 23 passengers not including the driver. Standard operator licenses issued under the old law will be converted automatically to Class "C" permits upon renewal or issuance of a duplicate license.

The Class "B" license allows the holder to drive all Class "C" vehicles plus single vehicles with a GVW exceeding 24,000 pounds and buses with a capacity of 24 or more passengers. Motorcycles and mopeds are excluded.

Class "A" permits allow operation of any vehicle or combination of vehicles including those listed for classes "B" and "C". Mopeds and motorcycles are excluded. Commercial and full chauffeur licenses issued under the old statute will be converted automatically to Class "A" permits upon renewal or issuance of a duplicate license.

The Class "M" designation allows the holder to operate motorcycles, motor-driver cycles and mopeds.

The road test must be taken with a vehicle which meets the specific requirements of the license class for which the person is applying.

"All classes of licenses including renewals will be valid for four years," Adams said. "The fee for obtaining or renewing all license classes will be $10. An examination fee of five dollars will be charged for those drivers seeking a higher license classification or a motorcycle endorsement for their current license."

ment for their current license."

Drivers who have no moving violation convictions over a four-year period and who also have no physical limitations are eligible to renew their licenses by mail. To qualify for mail-in renewal, a driver must first receive a DPS form in the mail. This application should be mailed back to the department within one week after it is received. When the license is renewed, the driver will be sent a validation card which must be carried with the old license. A vision test and new photograph will not be required for mail-in renewals. Drivers who receive mail-in renewal forms may also visit a driver license office and renew their licenses according to the standard procedure which will require them to be photographed and have their vision tested.

The fee for a provisional license is computed at $2.50 per year until the driver's eighteenth birthday with a minimum fee of four dollars. The cost of a duplicate license is three dollars.

'Scholar loans' program to assist future teachers

While government officials in Texas and across the country talk about problems in the educational system, Texas A&M University has taken action in one critical area.

Starting this fall the College of Education will offer scholar loans to high-quality undergraduates who commit to teach math or science at the secondary level after they graduate.

The program is vital because almost 50 percent of teachers who teach math in Texas are not certified to teach that subject and the situation with science teachers is not much better, said Associate Dean Bryan Cole, who worked with the college's Development Council in developing the program.

Six of the scholar loans at $2,000 each will be awarded this fall. To be eligible students must meet a number of qualifications including a combined SAT score of at least 1000 and a high school average of at least a B- for incoming freshmen. Transfer students must have a B average on all college work to be eligible.

For each year that a scholar loan recipient teaches math or science after graduation, he will be forgiven a percentage of the loan based on the number of years he received assistance and the number of years he teaches.

New hay/forage Pick-A-Team program doubles your cash rebate for buying any two new machines before April 30, 1985...plus, finance waiver until first use month in 1984 or cash in lieu of waiver
 It makes good sense to double your cash rebate by buying two new John Deere hay or forage tools as listed here. You can buy two now and get double the rebate on both. Or buy one now and get a certificate to buy the second tool before April 30, 1985...get your double rebate at that time.
 Finance your initial buy with John Deere and finance charges will be waived to the first use month in 1984. Or you can take a cash rebate in lieu of waiver. For example, buy both a self-propelled hay windrower and a round baler in December 1983, and get a cash rebate in lieu of waiver for $925 if the first use month is June in your area. Still another option is to lease these tools with lease-payment discounts comparable to the waiver of finance charge.
 You can, of course, buy any of these hay or forage tools individually. Waiver of finance charge or a cash rebate in lieu of waiver will still apply.

MHS splits 31-A at Slidell opener

MHS teams broke into the District 31-A season by splitting a pair of games at Slidell. The Hornets were devastated 73-37 and the Hornets won 36-26. A consoling fact however was an overtime win 24 to 22 by Muenster's junior high girls. Slidell's boys, veterans of last year's district champ team and ranging in size from 6-2 to 6-6 lost no time in showing that they are out for a repeat performance. They poured in the points all the way at a 2 to 1 rate. Hornet scorers were Ronnie Fisher 9, Kevin Wolf 8, Jay Mollenkopf 8, Cory

Klement 8, Kevin Owen 2, Darren Walterscheid 2. MHS girls barely led in three hot quarters by scores of 7-4, 10-8 and 16-12, then gained in the fourth for a comfortable 36-26 win. A helpful factor was a good record of 12 out of 18 at the foul line in the fourth period. Over all they hit 14 of 21 whereas Slidell made 6 of 13. Dana Dankesreiter led MHS scoring with 9, Rita Walterscheid made 7. Sharon Russell 7, Deann Walterscheid 6, Kim Eldred 6 and Paula Russell 1.

Junior High girls led three periods by scores of 6-4, 14-9, and 20-17. Then Slidell rallied for a 22 to 22 tie at the end. Terry Walterscheid saved the day for Muenster with a 2 pointer in the extra period. The scorers were Melanie Richey 10, Tracy Walterscheid 8, Amy Davidson 6.

Next on the MHS schedule are Forestburg here Friday and Lindsay there next Tuesday.

Tigerettes win, Tigers lose

Sacred Heart's girls won and the boys lost in their games with Boyd here Tuesday night. The Tigers were in hot pursuit throughout by scores of 13-6, 21-15, 32-29 and finally losing 29-33. In spite of the loss Coach Jon was happy with obvious progress since the last game. Duane Haverkamp was leading scorer with 15, Ken Hesse made 8, John Mangum 8 and Chris Dangelmayr.

Improvement was also the word for the Tigerettes who ran over their visitors 69-25. Scorers were Marilynn Hartman 21, Susan Walterscheid 18, Anne Felderhoff 12, Sandra Walterscheid 8, Lisa Haverkamp 6, Lydia Walterscheid 2, Sondra Hesse 2. The teams will start this TCIL season Friday hosting Amarillo Alamo on the SH court, and Notre Dame at Wichita Falls Tuesday.

At this time the Tigerettes are the district favorites with a record of 12-1 whereas Gorman has 3-9, Notre Dame 0-14, Alamo 4-6 and St. John's 1-11. But the boys' outlook is less encouraging. Compared with their 6-7, Gorman has 14-3, Notre Dame 10-5, St. John's 8-7 and Alamo 7-6.

Rosston News

By Ruth Smith

Jim Penton, Rosston's Yankee mayor from up north, urges fellow Rosston residents and all of North Texas to prepare for winter in much the same way as do residents of Wyoming, Wisconsin, etc. To avoid the expense of repairing frozen, broken plumbing he submits that allowing faucets to drip throughout the severe weather, is much more economical. Also, he says pump houses must be insulated just as homes are, and a method of heating must be provided. Also that water pipes must be buried at least two feet in soil, and 3-4 feet if in gravel or sand.

A Taste Of The Heartland

The Heartland of America is mostly open land in the Midwestern and Plains States. This open land has plenty of water and rich soil that is ideal for farming and for producing foods which we are dependent on.

Today we use the freshest ingredients available in each region of the country and use American methods of preparing these foods to bring us back to the basics of American cooking. One of the basics for cooking in the Midwest is one of generous simplicity. Simplicity and good taste in food is the feeling of our time.

Heartland cooking is also hearty, flavorful country cooking using corn, wheat, pork, beef, poultry, dairy products, fruits and vegetables produced in abundance. Broiled Pork Chops With Fresh Vegetable Sauce uses country style pork chops and an array of fresh vegetables, Tomatoes, carrots, onions and green pepper are sautéed in LAND O LAKES® Margarine until the vegetables are tender. Broiled pork chops served with the assortment of tender, fresh vegetables is hearty country fare that will be welcomed for its good taste.

Broiled Pork Chops With Fresh Vegetable Sauce

- 1/4 c. LAND O LAKES® Margarine
- 2 c. (2 med.) peeled, chopped ripe tomato
- 1/2 c. grated carrot
- 1/4 c. chopped onion
- 1/4 c. chopped green pepper
- 6 (3/4" thick) pork chops

In 10" skillet melt margarine over med. heat. Add remaining ingredients except pork chops. Cook, stirring occasionally, until vegetables are tender and sauce is thickened (15 to 20 min.). Season to taste. Meanwhile, broil pork chops 3 to 4" from heat, turning once, for 15 to 20 min. or until desired doneness. Serve warm sauce over chops. YIELD: 6 servings.

Mobile/Manufactured Homes Are Super Energy-Efficient!

By Susan Fiske
Consumer Affairs Advisor
Manufactured Housing Institute

Today's generation of mobile/manufactured homes is constructed to America's only national, federally enforced building code which mandates one of the most energy efficient types of housing currently available, according to a study by the Manufactured Housing Institute (MHI).

That building code, the National Manufactured Housing Construction and Safety Standards, found that mobile/manufactured homes register better, or at least identical, energy efficiency ratings than comparable site-built houses.

MHI President Jerry C. Connors notes buyers who check out today's mobile/manufactured homes will find that a 1,500 square foot model will often use less energy for heating and cooling than site-built houses of comparable size. He says that compact design and efficient use of space combined with rigid government mandated insulation requirements (suggested, but not required in site-built house construction) are responsible for the difference.

"In fact," says Connors, "the HUD Manufactured Housing Code is the only existing set of home construction standards that prescribes a minimum level of insulation protection!"

County Agent's Report

This warm weather is certainly a welcome change. With the thaw we saw the results of the cold weather on our small grain. In general the wheat looks pretty good. The blanket of snow formed an insulation against those cold dry burning winds and the cold temperatures. However, the oats can be another story.

They are not as cold tolerant and when the temperature gets down about 0 degrees, then it usually means trouble for them. The 0 degree range is when we get death to oat plants. Their health varies around the country. Some fields appear gone while other oat fields experienced only a burning. With the soil warming and a subsequent uptake of nutrients, producers can tell a great deal more on those marginal fields.

Away from the bad news for awhile. Many homeowners have evergreen type plants in the home landscape. These plants are often overlooked in the winter. The winter can possess some long dry spells, so we must keep these plants watered. When most other plants are dormant in the winter, evergreens need water. The dry cold wind can cause stress and death to these plants.

And one last item on evergreens. Check them for bagworm pouches. The insect eggs overwinter in the pouch and start their cycle again in the spring. When they emerge in the spring they feed on foliage of evergreens and other ornamentals. Hand removal and burning of the bags is a good way to reduce the damage caused by bagworms next year.

Short course for horse producers booked January 17 at Waco

Horse producers throughout the Texas Blacklands will have an opportunity to get an update on their industry at a special short course at the Waco Convention Center Jan. 17. The Horse Producers Short Course will be in conjunction with the annual Blackland Income Growth (B.I.G.) meeting which begins that morning at 8:15.

"Whether producers are interested in breeding, cutting, racing, halter or arena performance horses, this short course promises to help them as they plan for the future," points out Dr. Doug Householder, horse specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The short course will begin with registration and a trade show at 1:30 p.m.

Leading off discussions will be Dr. Gary Potter, head of the horse program in Texas A&M University's Department of Animal Science, who will discuss "Should I or Shouldn't I Get in or Stay in the Horse Business?"

Dr. Nat Kieffer, Texas A&M professor of animal science, will then give an update on genetic concepts necessary for breeding foals with the greatest market potential.

"Maximizing Reproductive Efficiency in the Broodmare" will be discussed by Dr. Jack Kreider, Texas A&M associate professor of animal science.

Three additional topics will be discussed following a barbecue supper.

These include "Factors Influencing Growth Rate in Young Horses," "Optimizing Herd Health on the Horse Breeding Farm" and "A Professional Approach to Marketing Horses."

Help Your Heart

Nutrition Labeling

Next time you are shopping for groceries, read the nutrition labels. Compare nutrients and calories in one food to those in another product. You may be surprised. The foods you have been purchasing may not contain the nutrients you thought they did. On the other hand, you may find you are a "nutrition wise" shopper.

U.S. government regulations require that all enriched or fortified food, and food for which a nutrition claim is made, include nutrition information on the label. Fresh meats, fruits and vegetables usually are not labeled. Information on the label is divided into two categories: Nutritional Information per Serving (serving size, servings per container, calories per serving, and protein, carbohydrate and fat in grams per serving) and Percentage of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances (U.S. RDA). Most people will get an adequate amount of protein, vitamins and minerals if the food they eat meets the U.S. RDA standards. Special U.S. RDA's are used for food for infants and young children.

The number of calories per serving must be listed on the label. Calories depend on the amount of fat, protein and carbohydrate in the food. Fat, which has the most calories, supplies nine calories per gram. Protein and carbohydrate each supply four calories per gram. By multiplying the grams per serving by the calories per gram, you get the total calories per serving.

Reading food labels is especially helpful if you are on a fat-controlled diet. For example, by comparing the contents of skim milk and whole milk, you'll discover that whole milk contains 10 grams of fat per serving, or 90 calories (10x9=90). That is 81 more calories from fat per one-cup serving than skim milk.

The amount of cholesterol per food serving is important information for persons interested in a fat-controlled diet. Cholesterol content does not have to be listed on food labels, but it may be if the food producer wishes. If you want additional information on fats and cholesterol, call your local American Heart Association.

A Vehicle For All Reasons

A "workhorse" with front and rear racks, electric starter, five-speed dual range transmission, an ATC can tackle tough jobs at the push of a button.

What would you call different with it. It even a vehicle that's used by gets into places a four-wheeler can't go. hunters and fishermen, oil companies and country clubs, ranchers, law enforcement agencies and ski resorts?

If you said "a vehicle for all reasons" you'd be right. That's what happened when Honda introduced the ATC, a three-wheel, all-season recreational and work vehicle. Everyone who buys one proceeds to do something

Topdress wheat now.

Your last chance for optimum yield

If you didn't get all of your nitrogen down before planting, a topdress application now will go directly into increased yield and quality. Wheat particularly needs nitrogen in the spring after its winter dormancy, and it is especially important if you have pastured your wheat.

So, topdress your wheat now, before the spring busy season hits. Get off to a fast start to a top yield.

We have the fertilizers you need, so come see us about it today. We can also arrange for custom application if you wish. Come see us soon. We're ready when you are.

JOHN DEERE BOTTOM-LINE SPECIALS

New combine buys are best now: get cash rebates from $2,800 to $5,200 including header...plus finance charge waiver to first use month in 1984, or a rebate in lieu of waiver

Look at this: not only do you get a cash rebate for a new separator but you also get an added bonus for any new headers bought with the separator or separately (see the chart). That's right—a rebate for the separator, a rebate for the header, and even a rebate if you buy just the header alone.

Use your current combine toward downpayment for a new Titan, finance with John Deere, and pay no finance charge until the first use month in 1984. Or you can take a cash rebate in lieu of waiver.* For example, a 6620 Corn and Soybean Combine bought in December 1983 would have a cash rebate in lieu of waiver of $3,250 if the first use month is October in your area. Or on a 7720 Grain Combine bought in January 1984, a cash rebate in lieu of waiver of $2,175 if the first use month is July in your area. Ask your dealer for the amount in lieu of waiver on the combine of your choice. Or another option is to lease a new combine, with lease-payment discount comparable to the waiver of finance charge.

Now's the time to choose, while the best values are available. This program will end on January 31, 1984.
