Graduates accept academy appointments...

Muenster High seniors graduate

"One-half of what we know will be obsolete in five years and most of what you need to know for your next job or phase of education you will learn after you get there."

That was part of a serious message delivered to the 1987 graduating class at Muenster High School last Thursday. Dr. Alan J. Scheibmeir of Grayson County College said this in his commencement address and encouraged the students to focus on developing and using their strengths.

Taking example from Holy Scripture, Dr. Scheibmeir reminded them of the rewards given to those who used their talent to invest their resources wisely. He challenged them, "don't dump limitations on your life."

In his introduction of Dr. Scheibmeir, Superintendent Charles Coffey said: "Our speaker this evening is Dr. Alan Scheibmeir. He is the Vice-President for Instructional Services at Grayson County College. He earned a Bachelors and Masters degree in Speech Communication from Fort Hays, Kansas State University and a Ph.D. in Education Administration from the University of Texas at Austin. He is active in the Sherman Chamber of Commerce, the Job Training Partnership Private Industry

Council, and he is Chairman of the St. Mary's Catholic Church Parish Council of Sherman. Alan, his wife Barbara, and their five boys moved from Western Kansas to Sherman in 1982 to enjoy the very friendly Texas hospitality and the many benefits of living in the North Texas area.

The traditional graduation ceremony opened with the invocation by Rev. Steve Pearson of the First Baptist Church. Valedictorian Andy Burnette and Salutatorian Drue Bynum gave their respective addresses.

Principal E.R. Griffin presented awards and scholarships. The presentations were highlighted by the presence of officers from the Army and Air Force who officially accepted two young men into their respective military academies.

Major Jim Crump welcomed Drue Bynum into the United States Military Academy and Lt. Col. Jones welcomed Andy Burnette into the United States Air Force Academy. Both will receive full scholarships and officer's training valued at $175,000.00.

Burnette and Bynum join Muenster graduate Ramon Luke with the honor of Congressional appointments to the national service academies. Luke went to the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

School Board President Dolphy

Joe Hellman presented diplomas to the graduating class composed of: Angela Lynn Barr, Rhonda Jean Bayer, Ronnie Joseph Bayer, Judy Ann Biffle, Mark Anderson Burnette, Robert Drue Bynum, Karla Rose Fleitman, Samuel Julius Fleitman, Shawn Michael Flusche, Gary Dewaine Grewing, Julie Anna Hacker, Damian Wayne Hellman, Mark Anthony Hennigan, Laura Jean Hess, Gregory Dean Hoenig, Brian Keith Klement, Daniel Lee Klement, Ryan David Klement, Joseph Brian Pagel, Kristi Dell Pagel, Bhavna Patel, Melanie Kay Richey, Matthew Jackson Rhodes, Kristy Margaret Stelzer, Rhonda Jo Trubenbach, Tracey Leigh Walterscheid, Melissa Michelle Waychoff, Terri Whitley, Steven Dale Whittington.

The top five graduates are Andy Burnette, Drue Bynum, Daniel Klement, Mark Hennigan and Sam Fleitman.

Fr. Victor Gillespie, O.S.B., of Sacred Heart Church, gave the benediction to close the ceremony. Juanita Bright played the piano for both processional and recessional.

He was a page at the Republican state convention; was chairman of Church Communion and contributed more than 120 hours of volunteer service for passenger assistance at DFW Airport as a United Way volunteer.

He has been accepted to the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs and plans a military career.

DRUE BYNUM
Drue Bynum, salutatorian of the senior class of 1987 at Muenster High School, has maintained a 95.418 grade average.

During his years at MHS, he was a member of the Student Council from 1984-87, was the president his senior year, vice-president as a junior and class representative in 1984-85. He was president of the freshman class and was president of the Spanish Club in 1986-87.

Drue earned the Eagle rank in the Boy Scouts of America and the God and Country award, and is Junior Assistant Scoutmaster.

While participating in UIL Persuasive Speaking, he was a regional qualifier 1984-87; a state qualifier 1986-87 and a state finalist in 1987. He lettered in football 1983-87 and was co-captain of the team, and also participated in basketball, golf and track.

He was winner of the VFW "Voice of Democracy" speech contest and presented his speech at the convention. He was a Fina All Academic All State Football team finalist and was named 1986 Muenster Hornet "Back of the Year" in football. He has been a member of the National Honor Society for three years.

He has been admitted to the United States Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. He will pursue an engineering degree and then join Special Forces. Later he plans to attend Law School and become a lawyer.

City Council discusses street projects

The City Council meeting Monday night was mostly a street commission meeting. Petitions for several paving projects were submitted and the varied conditions examined.

A requested project to pave South Ash Street and West Eddy Street in a fashion similar to last year's North Ash Street job met approval. A public hearing will be held at City Hall on June 29 at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the project, the price to property owners and the possible assessment if some property owners will not voluntarily pay their share. Normally, paving will enhance land values on a dollar for dollar basis but that rule may be in question for some of the length along Eddy. The public hearing is required by law to proceed with the project. Public notice of the hearing and other projects are published in this issue's legal section. The Ash/Eddy project is proposed to extend 0.8 miles from Highway 82 to

F.M. 373 around the southtown neighborhood. Cost of the oil and crushed rock will be paid by adjoining landowners and the labor will be provided by Cooke County Precinct 3 assisted by the City of Muenster. Materials cost is estimated to be $2.42 per running foot where there is no curb or $4.84 per foot for lengths along existing curbing because of the extra width needed.

The requested project in the Hillcrest Addition was also accepted but costs of the hot mix asphalt job are not complete, therefore the public hearing date has not been set. The project includes all or parts of Hillcrest, Endres, Cross and S. Mesquite Streets.

Ninth Street between Maple Street and Cherry Lane remains unpaved after several requests over many years. The city has now decided to finish the curbing along the south side of the street in order to pave next year. Estimated cost of $8.80 per foot will be assessed to the adjoining landowner. This project will be included in the June 29 hearing.

The same situation exists on Fifth Street between Hickory and Pecan. Estimated cost of curbing on this street will be $7.15. Council approved paving a section of Fourth Street adjoining Dr. Graham's new office with no controversy.

In other action the councilmen:

- Set street widths at not less than 40 feet from back of curb to back of curb by ordinance.
- Discussed appointment of the Zoning Board of Adjustment. This board handles variances and special exceptions to the zoning ordinance. The planning and zoning board may not do this job.
- Accepted a favorable audit report. Mayor Henscheid emphasized that the fact that everything is in good order does not mean that the city has lots of money. He said "it just means what little we have is well accounted for."

- Discussed water leak problems at the public library. Previous repair work is under warranty and should be honored.

- Voted to proceed with the park tennis court project funded by the Muenster Jaycees. The court location will cause the moving of the entry road and removal of some trees. The Jaycees have pledged to replace all trees removed with new trees in more favorable locations.

- Tabled discussion on Cable TV rate increases authorized by the Federal Communications Commission.

- Declined to purchase the street sweeper which has recently and temporarily been on city streets because of poor performance and the monetary crisis.

- Reviewed monthly bills.
- Adjourned open meeting to meet in closed session and discuss pending litigation.

Kiwanis sponsor "Free Family Swim Night"

The Muenster Kiwanis Club announced at its noon meeting last Wednesday that the club is sponsoring a "Free Family Swim Night" every Friday evening throughout the summer. Beginning on the evening of June 12 at 7 p.m., the pool will be open to the public free of charge courtesy of the club.

According to Butch Fisher, president of the club, "We are trying to promote activities which bring the family closer together." "All too often both parents can't get off work during the day to swim with the kids, and on weekends the pool is too crowded, or odd jobs around the house keep them too busy." "We hope that parents take advantage of this opportunity to picnic in the park and swim until 10 p.m."

At this time, the club has tentatively reserved every Friday

HEAVY RAIN upstream, plus local rainfall, caused an overflow of the Red River, covering thousands of Cooke County acres this week, marked the worst river flooding in many years. Taken from the waters' edge, the backed-up river, pictured here at the Flying J Ranch in northern Cooke County, covered all the lowland acres. Classified a major disaster, the damage includes loss of crops, fences, hay, livestock and soil plus damage to homes, roads, farm buildings, fields and pastures, irrigation systems and pecan trees. Locally, damage is usually just to a field or a crop. This is the third river flooding in seven years. Detention held the runoff water as they were built to do, preventing flooding in the rest of Cooke County.

Letters to the Editor

To the readers and Editor of The Enterprise,

This is a letter of thanks and praise for the outstanding cooperation that was given by a group of special young people on Memorial Day. As everyone knows, it was raining, but the rain didn't stop the VFW Squad and the Ladies Auxiliary from going on with the ceremonies as scheduled. It was our privilege and duty, but the little people went beyond the call by walking right along with us regardless of the falling rain.

As the ceremonies were in progress, I looked around and thought how pleased our God must be of all those who came to give tribute to the memory of those we honor on Memorial Day. The rain seemed to add a feeling of peacefulness and a remembrance of the commitment that had been made. A big cheer goes to those young people who marched with us and placed the carnations on the graves: Tony Hartman, Jennifer Campbell, Royce Knabe, Glen Dangelmayr, Jody Felderhoff, Jacob Luke, Billy Hellman, Greg Fisher, James Felderhoff, Jill Hess, Holly Mullins, Corey Hess, Paul Swirczynski and Leslie Grewing. A big cheer goes to the buglers Ronnie and Tina Weinzapfel. Thanks to J.W. Trisler from Gainesville, the speaker, and to Andy Stelzer of Post for the prayers. The VFW and Auxiliary sincerely appreciate everyone's cooperation in helping put together this service. It was indeed one of the most impressive.

Sincerely
Frances Bayer, Pres.
Ladies Auxiliary to VFW

Dear Editor:

Hello to my family, relatives and friends of Muenster and nearby towns. As I progress in years I think more about the first 20 years of my life lived in Muenster. Those memories "as a whole" are most pleasant.

As I now live in Columbia, South Carolina, let me tell you about some significant events that have happened here this year and will happen in the next few months. You may find them of interest.

The Chancellor, James Holderman, of the University of South Carolina has put an emphasis on bringing major world-wide religious leaders to Columbia this year. Pope John Paul II will visit in September. He will hold an ecumenical prayer service and meet with approximately 30 leaders from various Christian denominations in America. The Rev. Billy Graham began this emphasis by speaking at the University of South Carolina commencement ceremony in December. Other leaders such as Archbishop Runcie of The Church of England will be visiting during the year.

People such as Chancellor Holderman recognize that our world is complex and is in tremendous turmoil. They are hoping that these world known religious leaders can give a "ray of hope" as we confront the problems our world faces.

The week of June 8 on network television, you will have an opportunity to see one of these leaders speak. April 25-May 2 the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association had a crusade for the state of South Carolina in Columbia. 287,000 heard him speak at the University stadium over an 8 day period. I had the privilege on seven of the days of organizing the seating assignments for the supervisors (primarily pastors) of the counselors. Each day we assigned about 20 supervisors and 500 counselors to counsel those who came forward at the end of Rev. Graham's message to receive spiritual counsel. By God's grace, nearly 12,000 came forward to become Christians, rededicate themselves to Christ or to receive counsel for a problem they were struggling with. On a few nights, my wife and I also were able to help with some of the counseling.

Check your local listings, the week of June 8 for three evenings of highlights (1 hour each night). My understanding is that it will be carried on over 95 percent of the TV markets in America. One of those who gave a testimony of his conversion to Christianity in recent years was "Pistol" Pete Maravich, the all-time leading NCAA basketball scorer and recent inductee to the NBA Hall of Fame.

In this day of world-wide turmoil, we need to hear godly men speak of the "Prince of Peace," Jesus Christ (the Rev. Graham in public opinion polls year after year is voted one of the top ten most respected persons in the U.S.).

Thanks for letting me pass this news on to you.

Gramm named "Best Friend" by taxpayers

When it comes to spending taxpayers' dollars, U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, is rated as one of the most responsible members of the U.S. Senate.

Following an analysis of votes cast in the first half of the 99th Congress, Gramm has been awarded the "Taxpayers' Best Friend" award by the National Taxpayers Union.

The two senators ranked higher were U.S. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wisc., and U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

"In order to be completely fair and objective, the National Taxpayers Union has analyzed every vote that affects the amount of federal spending," said James Davidson, chairman of the organization.

"To recognize those members of Congress who have the courage to consistently vote for limiting the size of the federal budget, the National Taxpayers Union gives special 'Taxpayers Best Friend' awards."

Davidson applauded Gramm for an "outstanding" record of voting "to keep government spending down and to protect the taxpayers' pocketbook."

evening in the summer with the exception of June 19. If Family Night proves to be popular, the club will continue to sponsor evening swimming through Aug. 28. At this time, the club is looking into selecting certain dates on which to hold organized games such as water volleyball. If such games are scheduled, the dates will be publicized in advance, and held after 9 p.m.

Standard pool rules will still govern swimmers, with the exception that children under 10 years of age must be accompanied by at least one parent. The new pool/patio furniture recently purchased by the city and other civic groups will be on the pool deck for non-swimmers' use. There will be no charge at the entry gate for anyone, although the Kiwanis Club will accept donations if anyone is interested in helping offset the pool rental costs.

IN THE BOOB TUBE WE TRUST

By Edwin Feulner

Since TV can't be abolished, how should it be used? When The New Yorker magazine asked Johnny Carson about the charge that his "Tonight" show didn't devote enough time to serious issues, he responded that TV isn't the appropriate forum for such issues, and that people truly interested in them should read about them.

Carson is right. Time constraints and a number of other limitations mean TV tends to trivialize complex issues when it doesn't wholly distort them. Even endless hours of TV can do little more than touch the surface of what a well-researched book or journal article can do. If Alexander Pope was right when he said, "A little learning is a dangerous thing," TV has left us in grave peril.

Sadly, Carson's point has gone unheeded. Most Americans, pollsters tell us, get the bulk of their information about the world from TV, and, since it became a major cultural force in the mid-1950s, some have urged that it also try to give us high culture. Fewer sit-coms and shoot-em-ups, they say, and more ballet, symphony music, and "docudramas," i.e., fictional treatments of historical occurrences and current affairs. Increasingly, they've gotten their wish.

Consider some of the most famous of TV's serious productions of recent years: "Holocaust," about Nazi atrocities against the Jews; "The Day After," about life in America after a nuclear attack; and "Amerika," about life in America under Soviet occupation. Most recently have come "Escape from Sobibor," about life in a Nazi concentration camp in Poland, and "Shoah," nine hours of interviews with survivors of such camps.

Note that three of the five are about the horrors of Nazism, one about the horrors of nuclear war, and one about the horrors of Soviet occupation. The three about Nazism are based on historical occurrences, the other two on fantasy—nightmares we hope will never come true. None realistically portrays Soviet communism, even though the Kremlin continues its butchery on a Hitlerian scale.

The one encouraging sign comes from the movie industry. It has taken 15 years too long, but at least we now have a movie, "The Hanoi Hilton," that tries to capture the heroism of American POWs in Vietnam and the viciousness of their captors.

At first glance this situation seems widely out of whack. Why not docudramas about Soviet activities in Afghanistan, where cultural and physical genocide is taking place?

Docudramas on the Nazis stir justifiable moral outrage, but the Nazis have been gone for 42 years. The producers say the purpose is to keep the memory alive, to prevent such a thing from ever happening again. Except, you see, it has happened again—and continues to happen again. But where are the docudramas to stir the moral outrage?

More, where's the sense of moral obligation to try to stop the barbarities? The one nod TV has made toward the harshness of life under the Soviets, "Amerika," portrayed them in a light far kinder than the historical record, and the show's writer, producer, and director admitted this.

Why? For one thing, intellectual and social reputations are at stake. Vocal anti-communism can still get you drummed out of certain fashionable social circles. Worse, if most of the intelligentsia and the kingpins of TV were to start addressing the ugly facts of what the Kremlin is doing in Afghanistan, for example, it could force them to consider revising the delusions of appeasement and accommodation they've spent most of their lives embracing. Though unheard of, such revision is rare and painful.

Second, fear of nuclear war can induce paralysis. Rile the Soviets with hostile portrayals, goes this view, and you could stir up a war fever, a dangerous thing to do in the nuclear age. Taken to the extreme, as is often done, this makes for a foreign policy of musclebound impotence.

Finally, character is revealed not in displays of moral outrage but in action. For moral postures, then, bashing the Nazis is the best of all worlds. They can weep and wail but don't have to act.

But bashing the Soviets would imply a moral obligation to do something, since the Kremlin is alive and kicking. And fulfilling such an obligation would require a quality of character that, along with historical perspective, doesn't exactly flourish in the TV industry: courage.

HARVESTING NEARS END AS FAVORABLE WEATHER PREVAILS

Considerably more than half the grain of the Muenster community is in shocks and, favorable weather prevailing, the job will be completed early next week. A few of the farmers have already pulled their binders to the sheds and several others are on their last fields.

The season thus far, from the farmers' viewpoint has been the most agreeable for several years. During the entire cutting season a cool pleasant breeze prevailed, reminding one of early spring weather rather than of the harvest season. In one respect, however, it presented a prominent drawback. The temperature that was so much enjoyed by harvest workers seemed fully as enjoyable to worms, and their progress in ravaging certain spots of grain drove many a farmer to cutting before the grain had reached its full maturity. This fact explains the presence of binders in some fields while the grain still held its greenish hue.

In spite of the fact that the small power-take-off type of combine harvester is becoming more and more popular in many localities, the old fashioned binder seems to be holding favor here. An overwhelming majority of the machines seen in action to date have been binders and from all information available to this paper new binders have out-sold new combines at least three-to-one.

Thus far the cutting season has been interrupted by only two light showers. Last Sunday night's rain along with that of the preceding night delayed work until Tuesday and a similar rain one week before caused a slight delay to the early birds who were at work in widely scattered fields. In either case the rain caused very little inconvenience and was highly beneficial to corn, cotton, and garden crops.

M. J. Endres, Jr., is justly proud of the gold medal he received at the graduating exercises in Corpus Christi College last week. It is an award for the highest average in the senior class of that school.

STUDENTS RETURN TO MUENSTER FOR SUMMER VACATION

Most of the Muenster students who attended academics and colleges during the past year are back home for the summer vacation. "Junior" Endres of Corpus Christi College was first to arrive last Wednesday. On the evening of the next day Elfreda Luke, Agnes Weinzapfel, and Catherine Seyler returned with their parents following commencement exercises at Victory College in Fort Worth.

Roy Endres returned during the early hours of Monday morning with his son, Roy, Jr., Urban Endres, Wilfred Reltor, Wilmer Luke, Raymond Fuhrmann, and Walter Klement, the six boys who spent the past year at Subiaco College in Arkansas. Roy left Saturday, attended graduation exercises Sunday and ed home immediately afterward. He solved the luggage problem on the trip by taking a trailer for the trunks and suit cases. Louise Felderhoff, a student at Ursuline Academy in Dallas, also returned this week.

The only persons who have not returned are Robert Weinzapfel of St. Mary's University in San Antonio and Emmet Pette of St. Edward's University in Austin. Both are expected here late this week.

An itinerant sign painter, who has been making his regular visits to Muenster for the past four years, was kept busy during the greater part of this week. Six or eight of the local business houses were decorated with signs on plaques and windows, and a few of the oil field operators had signs painted on their truck doors.

How Dry I Am

Muenster was as dry as Cooke County is supposed to be Monday morning after representatives of the State of Texas made one of their unexpected "pop-calls" the preceding day and invited four local business people to contribute their bit to the county treasury.

Another oasis not many miles from town became just another part of the surrounding desert and its dejected host was likewise invited to call on treasury authorities after two similar visits by uninvited guests.

While efforts are very apparently being made to remove all stimulants more stimulating than soda water, indignation continues to rise against a regulation that would deprive the mass of citizens of a legitimate product in a futile attempt to control the few who lack the prudence of using a good thing moderately.

Al Walterscheid Shows Trend Toward Arts in Building Small Grotto

The statement that appearances are sometimes deceptive is well substantiated by the fact that Al Walterscheid only recently completed a very attractive miniature grotto. Anyone who has seen Al in action at his machine shop, sometimes swinging a 16-lb. sledge as if it were a claw hammer, would hardly expect him to spend his spare time at anything so delicate as art work. The grotto is about 18 inches tall and 12 inches wide and the proportions throughout are very similar to those used in the full sized structures. The framework is of wood covered with several coats of white enamel and finished with several colors and heads of varying sizes and colors, all of them being individually glued to the surface. Inside is an eight-inch statue of the Madonna.

Al spent about one week of his spare time at the work, collected beads from a number of his friends, and used about $5 worth of material.

Where's the ark?

The Muenster area endured wind, lightning, high water and flooding, much as deluges that plagued other parts of the state about the same time. Since publication of last week's official weather record, furnished by Steve Moster, up to and including Tuesday, May 26, at 7 p.m., the skies seemed to open up to dump their downpours.

The following recording of highs, lows and rainfall begins on Wednesday, May 27:

	High	Low	Precip.
May 27	85	68	2.60
May 28	83	68	1.64
May 29	70	60	2.38
May 30	86	68	none
May 31	78	60	.05
			6.67

Rainfall earlier in May totaled 11.04 and rainfall to date totaled 12.21. Added to this past week, local rainfall in 1987 totals 23.25 inches.

St. Peter's Church site of ceremony

Mr. and Mrs. Ray G. Wagner are at home in Gainesville since returning from their wedding trip. They were married on Saturday, May 30, in St. Peter's Church of Lindsay in a 5 p.m. Nuptial Mass and double ring ceremony officiated by Father Cletus Post, pastor.

The bride is the former Doris Lee Voth, daughter of Henry and Della Rose Voth of Rt. 2, Gainesville, and the groom is the son of Monroe and Carolyn Wagner of Rt. 1, Gainesville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was wearing a formal white wedding gown of satin and chiffonet with a sheer yoke with a stand-up Venise lace and pearl medallion neckline, fitted bodice and basque waistline trimmed with Venise and Chantilly lace, pearls and sequins. Satin Elizabethan sleeves were puffed to the elbow and close fitted chiffonet to the wrists, with lace appliques. The floor-length skirt and cathedral train were edged with a wide, full lace ruffle.

She wore a floral-spray blusher and two-tiered fingertip veil. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade of white roses, baby's breath, white lace and greenery, with her mother's rosary entwined. For tradition, she carried her First Communion handkerchief made by her great-grandmother. She also wore her maternal grandmother's wedding band and had a birthdate penny in her shoe.

Presiding at the guest book were Mary Ann Friddell, bride's sister, and Cynthia Fleeman, a friend.

Dinner was catered by the Hermes sisters of Lindsay. Music for dancing was presented by Marty Bartlett's Disco of Lindsay.

The bride's cake and the groom's cake were made by the bride's mother, and the cakes were cut by the bride's aunts, Louise Knauf and Gloria Becker, both of Muenster; and served by Vanessa Felderhoff, Brenda Spaeth, Jeanie and Lisa Mosman, bride's cousins, and Gina Hess, a friend.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. George Luke and children of Corpus Christi and others from Sanger, Lindale, Dallas, Midland, Weatherford, Kilgore and Mineral Wells. Unable to attend were grandparents of the couple, Mrs. Marie (Hubert) Felderhoff of Gainesville, Mrs. Catherine (Henry, Sr.) Voth of Saint Jo and Mrs. Lucindy Graves of Grayford.

The bride is a 1985 graduate of Lindsay High School and is attending Cooke County College and is employed by Howeth Abstract Co. The groom is employed as a paint contractor.

The wedding rehearsal was held on Sunday, May 24, and followed by dinner hosted by the groom's parents.

A bridal shower on April 26 in the home of Deana Nortman was co-hosted by Mary Ann Friddell and Sharon Luke, who also presented corsages to the bride-elect and to the mothers of the couple.

Balloon affair

South Boston, Virginia and Muenster, Texas are several hundred miles apart, but recently the two communities came a little closer together.

When Muenster City Administrator, Joe Fenton, found a balloon drifting near the ground on the Welch farm north of Muenster, he helped bring this about. He responded to a note attached to the birthday balloon by calling 11-year-old Amanda Epps of South Boston, Va., who had released the balloon.

He found out that Amanda had given her father three balloons for his birthday. At her father's suggestion, she then tied notes to two of the balloons and released all three near her hometown in Southern Virginia. Two of the balloons went into the woods, but one began to sail high in the air.

Three days later, Joe Fenton surprised the girl by calling to say that he found her balloon. He then sent her a package including her balloon, his business card, and a map of Texas showing the location of Muenster.

Amanda replied with a letter and a package of her own which included a copy of her hometown newspaper, the Gazette-Virginian, reporting the incident. She also sent Fenton her father's business card and maps of Virginia and South Boston.

Student Council election held

The old slate was cleared May 14 as the 1987-88 Student Council was elected at Muenster High School.

Replacing Drue Bynum at the helm next year will be Meredith McDaniel. Andy Burnette's place as vice-president will be filled by Jamie Walterscheid. Darla Bindel, incumbent to the position, will be secretary. Kim Hess replaces another outgoing senior, Tracey Walterscheid, as treasurer of the organization. As Meredith moved to president, Jennifer Reeves came in as reporter. And Jeff Walterscheid succeeds Melody Klement as parliamentarian.

Each class is represented on the Student Council. The incoming seniors chose Michele Huddleston to represent them for a second year. Speaking out for the new juniors will be Staci Sicking and Eric Dankesreiter. Lisa Robison returns. Sophomore representative joined by Michael Abney. The incoming freshmen will be represented by Sheila Huddleston and Brad McDaniel.

Each of these, plus their opposition, entered candidacy by having a petition signed by 15 registered voters. They each were required to hang at least three campaign posters. Then, on the day preceding the voting, each candidate gave a speech during an assembly of the student body. Each candidate must maintain at least a "B" average.

The Student Council provides students with an opportunity to participate in administrative improvements of the school. It gives an opportunity for cooperation and better understanding between the students and faculty. Student Council develops leadership and trains students in citizenship and strives to promote the general welfare of the school.

When they're not working for us, these — and many more electric company employees — put in overtime as volunteers. They do it because they want to help. And because they care. And that's something we think deserves a little recognition. So, to everyone who gives a helping hand, we'd like to offer our words of thanks.

Ella Haverkamp visits in Jonesboro, Arkansas

Ella Haverkamp joined her nephew and his wife, Alfred and Connie Haverkamp of Dallas, on a weekend trip to Jonesboro, Ark. to spend May 29-31 with their sister-in-law and aunt, Sister Anselma Haverkamp, and to visit all the nuns at Holy Angels Convent.

The three spent Saturday overnight to Monday in guest rooms at the convent, ate meals there with the Sisters and made tours of the grounds. Conversation flowed.

Especially eager to hear the latest Muenster news were former Muenster natives, now members of the order and former Sacred Heart School teachers. These included, in addition to Sister Anselma, Sisters Theresina Grob, Agnes Voth, Edwina Hacker, Imelda Pels, Aloysia Kleiss and Amora Felderhoff and Mother Mary John Seyler. They all sent greetings back to Muenster.

Convent residents were expecting a buzz of activity in coming weeks as some 40 Sisters return to the motherhouse after year-end closing of the schools in which they taught.

Homemaking students design friendship quilt

The Housing and Home Furnishings Class, taught by Joni Sturm, of Muenster Public School recently completed a friendship quilt as a classroom project.

Each student designed an appliqued square, which was then used to piece the quilt. Each square was machine appliqued and quilted by the student. The quilt then was pieced together by Mrs. Sturm, and the backing was hand-sewn by all the students.

After its completion, a drawing was held among the housing students. Shannon Reiter was the lucky winner of the quilt. Following is a list of the squares used in the quilt, and the name of the designer:

Star, Randy Fleitman; duck, Melanie Richey; hearts and doves, Melinda Smith; rabbits and hearts, Shannon Reiter; Missouri Star, Tracey Walterscheid; butterfly, Karla Fleitman; jams, Judy

House Dust Is Nothing To Sneeze At

You don't have to be a "white glove" housekeeper to be bothered by house dust. If you or a member of your family suffers from a respiratory problem or an allergy, house dust is more than just a nuisance.

House dust can be a major irritant to troubled breathing. Even if a person only suffers from seasonal allergies, it's wise to keep the home as dust-free as possible.

Experts estimate that one out of three people who has seasonal allergies becomes chronically allergic in a few years' time. This is especially true for children.

There's no way that even the most conscientious cleaning can eliminate all house dust. A look at the contents of your vacuum bag after a normal workout will reveal the culprit.

Besides the dust carried into the home from outside, the air inside is filled with the fine dust formed by the natural aging of your furniture, carpets, drapes and clothing.

To combat this air-borne enemy, you need to attack it where it hides and where it travels.

Take a look around your home at all of the dust traps. Bookcases, knicknack shelves, wide windowsills, picture frames, upholstered furniture... all provide excellent hiding places for house dust.

A few simple tricks can help reduce the unseen accumulation of dust. Consider enclosing your books in cupboards or on shelves with doors.

benefits in the home. Virtually all dust, pollen and spores will be removed as they pass through your furnace. Not only is that important for family members with breathing problems, but housecleaning is easier without so much annoying dust.

Ask your local heating and air conditioning dealer about installing a high efficiency, non-electronic air cleaner, or call toll free: 1-800-356-9652.

If you cut down on the number of hiding places for dust in the home, as well as clean it out of the air itself, you and your family will breathe a whole lot easier.

Tumble your drapes in your clothes dryer on "fluff" every couple of weeks. Use washable throw rugs instead of carpeting in the bathrooms and the kitchen.

Avoid shag, twisted pile and looped pile rugs and carpets because they tend to hide dust and resist easy cleaning.

One of the best ways to eliminate house dust is to catch it at its source: in the air itself. A high efficiency, non-electronic air cleaner installed on your furnace will constantly clean all the air that circulates through the system.

A non-electronic air cleaner provides several important

What to do... When the freezer fails

As the season for violent weather approaches, it's time to think about the consequences of power outages. You can use candles when the lights go out, and batteries for the radio; but what can you do about the food in your freezer?

According to Marilyn Haggard, a nutrition specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University, "the first thing you do is find out how long it will be out. If it's anything less than a day or two, don't worry."

Freezers are well insulated and each item of frozen food acts as a block of ice that keeps surrounding food cool. A well-stocked freezer should stay frozen two days. A half-stocked freezer should last a day.

As long as the freezer is not running, Haggard recommends keeping it closed as much as possible. "Each time you open the door, warm air rushes in, reducing the freezer's effectiveness."

If the power will be off for a few days, the nutritionist suggests you try to divide up the food among your friends' freezers or possibly rent space in a commercial freezer or cold storage plant.

In case of emergency she recommends putting dry ice in your freezer, with caution. "Dry ice should never be touched with your hands because it freezes everything it touches and you could sustain burns."

If you use dry ice, put a layer of cardboard over the freezer items and put the dry ice on top of that. This should keep your food cold for a few days.

When the power returns, Haggard stresses that the food be checked carefully. "You may safely refreeze meat or poultry that still contains crystals. If the meat and poultry are only cool feeling, you should cook them immediately. Throw out any food that has even a slightly unusual color or odor."

As the storm season approaches, arm yourself with knowledge and common sense. You and your food may last longer.

Phone 759-4311 to report news items to the Muenster Enterprise or send to P.O. Box 190, Muenster, Texas 76252.

National Safe Boating Week set for June 7-13

Water safety officials of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department hope National Safe Boating Week activities in Texas June 7-13 will create more interest in safe boating courses and reduce boating accidents that took 79 lives in 1986.

Boating safety courses are offered by the U.S. Coast Guard and U.S. Power Squadron units in Texas, and those agencies also administer the TPWD's "Boating Basics" course. To locate a boating course in your area, call toll-free 1-800-336-BOAT, which is the number of the National Safe Boating Council.

The TPWD also is accepting applications from persons who wish to be certified to teach the department's six-hour boating basics course, according to Steve Hall, water safety coordinator. Interested persons may call (512) 389-4999 or toll-free 1-800-792-1112.

Hall said 501 persons died in water-related accidents in 1986. Boat-related accidents that produced 79 fatalities also caused 168 injuries.

"Most boating accidents in Texas can be blamed on the boat operator, since a majority occurred during good weather and visibility conditions," Hall said.

According to records compiled by game wardens investigating accidents, the typical scenario was a collision of two boats caused by excessive speed and improper lookout. Operators were usually experienced and were between the ages of 26 and 50. The typical incident involved a boat powered by an outboard motor in excess of 75 horsepower, and most fatalities involved drowning after the boat's occupants were thrown into the water.

Alcohol consumption and a lack of personal flotation devices (life jackets) were factors in a large percentage of the fatal accidents, Hall said.

Hall said a major emphasis this year will be acquainting hunters and fishermen with boating safety. "Many hunters and fishermen are unfamiliar with boat operation rules because they are secondary to their main pursuits of hunting and fishing," said Hall. "Hunters often get on the water during rough weather conditions, and they are faced with cool water temperatures and the threat of hypothermia, while fishermen often forego the use of life vests because of comfort or indifference."

Hall said statistics indicate that virtually all drownings could be prevented by wearing a personal flotation device (life vest).

Experts give recommendations on fishing the weeds

Fish relate to weeds. In fact, the edge of a weed bed, grass, lily pad patch or hydrilla serves the same purpose for big fish as a restaurant does to us.

While the entire edge may hold fish, often the longest arm of weeds extending toward deeper water holds more fish. Where weeds turn, going in or out, produces another hotspot.

Continuing productivity

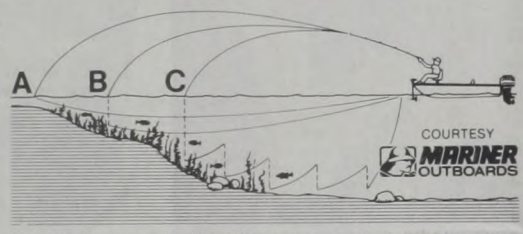

However, the fishing experts at Mariner Outboards remind fishermen that the visible weeds constitute one edge. As the water drops down, so do the weeds, and each edge can be productive.

A depth finder or flasher will reveal the deeper weeds and, by determining these areas, a fisherman increases his overall fish catching zone.

On clear days, when fish drop down, the place to search for them is on a deep weed edge. Early season or on rainy days, the shallow weed edge can be the best.

The accompanying diagram shows

METHODS FOR FISHING HEAVY COVER

three typical techniques for fishing the various weed edges. Figure A would be a shallow running crankbait, spinnerbait or top water lure. This would be fished over and through the thick weeds up to and over the edge.

Figure B reflects a cast up to the secondary weed edge where the weeds are scattered or deeper. Use medium running crankbaits or spinnerbaits in this area. The final example, Figure C, shows the deepest edge. Fish here with bottom lures like worms, jigs or crankbaits.

Weeds can be extremely effective, especially when all weed areas are fished.

Flippin' for bass

More and more ink in angling magazines is being given to a form of bass fishing known as "flippin'." This technique uses a flippin' pole, casting reel and at least 20-pound test line. It originated as a productive fishing form with Dave Glibe, who is able to accurately flip a lure into a coffee cup from 25 feet!

Flippin' is used, generally speaking, when fishing heavy cover like weeds, submerged trees, and boat docks. You can tell by the line size that this isn't light-weight bassin'; you use it when you have the urge to tangle with a trophy-sized bass.

Basically, flippin' can best be described as casting sidearm and fly fishing. You strip out about 10 feet of line between the reel and the first rod guide. With the 7 1/2-foot flippin' pole, make a forward underhand swing and let the jig pull the slack through your left hand. One of the tricks of flippin' is to make sure that your pole is parallel to the water at the completion of the cast.

Now, the point of flippin' is to make sure the lure lands accurately and as silently as it can, so you don't spook the fish. After you've placed the jig in the water, you're going to put the butt of the rod under your left arm and start to retrieve slowly - and get ready for a strike!

Two essential factors of successful flippin' are knowing the position of the bass and having control of the boat.

"The most important thing that I've found in flippin' is the position of the boat," claims Randy Dearman, Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member. "You have to know where he's going to be - and there's several things that can determine that. If you're flippin' a downed tree that's lying on the bank and the water's rising, the bass will be in the limbs closer to the bank. If the water's falling, he will be out in the deeper limbs, out towards the end of the tree in the deeper water."

How can you tell if the water is rising or falling? One sure method is to look at the bank, according to Dearman. You can see where the water line has fallen in the past few days. If the water line is into the grass and there are no other recent marks above the water surface, then the water is surely rising.

The other important factor with flippin' is control of the boat. If you're going to make accurate flips, the position of the boat is crucial.

"This is probably the major part of flippin'," stresses David Wharton of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff. "You have to be able to control the boat and keep the right distance from the target."

"One of the problems a lot of people have flippin' is winding up with more line in their hand than they need," Wharton points out. "The way to eliminate that problem is by moving the boat closer to the target or further away with the trolling motor rather than constantly trying to adjust the length of the line you're using."

If you've never seen a flippin' stick, think of a crankin' stick or muskie casting rod. It has a long handle and a finger grip under the reel seat. They come in both 7 1/2- and 8-foot lengths, are capable of utilizing 12- to 30-pound test line, and 3/8- to 2-ounce lures. The rod also features eight guides. Some of the more popular models include Pro Bass' "Flippin' Special" and Fenwick's tantalizing trio of "Tiggerstick," "Boron-X" and "HMG Iron Hawk."

Flippin' offers the advantages of precision 10- to 25-foot casts, quiet non-splash entry of the jig into the water, penetration of heavy cover, and maximum control of a trophy-sized bass. Bassin' pros also stress that flippin' is not an ideal technique to use when the water is really clear and calm.

Interested In Sailing

If you want to learn to sail and don't know where to get lessons, call 1/800-447-4700. The Sailing Industry Association (SIA) is sponsoring this free service to help Americans find out how easy it really is to handle a sailboat.

There are over 450 schools listed, including some in the Caribbean and Hawaii. The schools have been categorized by type of sailing taught - boardsailing, basic sailing, and advanced sailing - and those that are certified by the American Sailing Association are also identified.

Callers merely give the location of where they want to take lessons and ask for a school teaching boardsailing, basic or advanced sailing, and are given a school closest to where they want to learn this exciting sport. If not satisfied with the referral, you can call again and ask for another school until you find one in the right location for you. SIA is comprised of manufacturers, charter companies, sailing schools, and other firms in the sailing industry.

Boating And Fishing Go Hand-In-Hand

Fishing is a fun activity the whole family can enjoy. It's easy to learn and only costs a little for basic tackle. And there are so many places to go. One of this country's best resources is its great fishing spots. Anyone can easily fish from a riverbank or lakeshore, but most people prefer to fish from boats. Angling from a boat and cruising the water in search of fish is an exhilarating experience. There's nothing like being out on the water, breathing fresh air, and feeling the wind and spray on your face. Of course, there are other pleasures to fishing, such as sampling the catch.

Beginning and experienced anglers alike can always rent a boat to go fishing. There are many charter boat operations in coastal and inland lake areas and many camping grounds and resorts offer craft for rent. But there's something to be said for owning a boat. There are many small light-weight boats, easily towed and trailerable, or even hauled in the back of a station wagon or on a car top. Small outboards are designed for such craft. They provide the easiest-to-start power, are easy to carry, store conveniently and mount quickly on boats. They also represent a great value and are fuel-efficient. You can take a family trip, make a quick weekend getaway or just cruise down the river for an afternoon without having to plan ahead.

Occasional fishermen need only make a small investment. Usually a basic rod and reel and some hooks, line and bobbers will do. Many community colleges offer fishing courses for beginners, and sporting goods dealers can outfit you with the kind of gear you'll need. The American Fishing Tackle Manufacturer's Association, AFTMA Center, 2625 Clearbrook Dr., Arlington Heights, IL 60005, is a good source for free fishing information. So next time the family needs a vacation, hitch up the boat and go fishing.

New UT Press book 'The Texas Bluebonnet' celebrates state flower's beauty and lore

AUSTIN, Texas—A fitting tribute to the flower that has become the Lone Star State's trademark recently has been published by the University of Texas Press.

That tribute is the new book "The Texas Bluebonnet," by noted naturalist and artist Jean Andrews of Austin.

The author, who calls herself a "fifth-generation Texan with real bluebonnet blood in her veins," has also written other books on natural history published by UT Press.

According to Dr. Andrews, bluebonnet time in Texas is a time for celebrating nature in all its splendor.

"Is it any wonder that no artist has been able to capture the essence of the celebration? It is beyond the capacity of humans to portray on canvas or with film what we have seen or felt in those few weeks in the heart of Texas when heaven and earth become one with mortals," she explains in her book.

She said she wrote "The Texas Bluebonnet" as part of her own celebration of the state flower.

Dr. Andrews' book explores the lore and legend of the bluebonnet—its history, role in Texas culture, and importance to art, poetry, and song.

The guide also covers the bluebonnet's use in landscape design and environment.

Dr. Andrews offers step-by-step instructions on how to grow the bluebonnet, often regarded as a challenging plant, and also covers other scientific aspects of the flower.

The book also explores the bluebonnet's impact on Texas entertainment and tourism.

"The Texas Bluebonnet" includes many full-color illustrations, photographs, and drawings, including some of Dr. Andrews' own botanical illustrations as well as art by famous bluebonnet artists Julian Onderdonk and Porfirio Salinas.

Interested in finding the best color displays for your own photographs? The new book includes tips on scouting locations as well as taking top-quality pictures.

Available for $9.95 in hardcover, "The Texas Bluebonnet" can be bought in bookstores or ordered from the University of Texas Press, Box 7819, Austin, Texas 78713. Mail-order customers should add $1 for shipping.

That Morning Habitual Ritual

That "pick-me-up" you drink in the morning might be helping to break you down. A new study by Washington State University reveals that coffee, tea, and even some soda pops, can double the amount of calcium you lose daily.

Caffeine is the culprit. And if you don't replace that calcium which is lost from your body, you may be at added risk for osteoporosis.

Dr. Louis Avioli, professor of medicine at Washington University in St. Louis and the founder of the American Society for Bone and Mineral Research, says, "We now know that calcium loss is one of the major reasons that so many women become calcium deficient. This only adds additional insult to the problem of developing osteoporosis."

Osteoporosis is a crippling bone disease that leaves bones brittle and easily broken.

"And because now we've learned that caffeine can increase the daily amount of calcium lost," Dr. Avioli says, "it's a good idea to cut down on coffee." Dr. Avioli is not suggesting that you stop drinking coffee entirely. However, he says, "you would be wise to add some milk to your coffee and eat a piece of cheese with your breakfast. But even that probably won't be enough to make up for the calcium loss."

The reason for the concern is simple. You need calcium no matter how old you are. If you are like most Americans, U.S. dietary surveys consistently remind us that you aren't getting enough through your daily meals. That, along with the fact that you continue to lose calcium every day, complicates the problem.

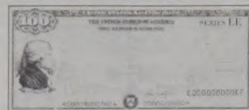

Women are particularly susceptible to developing osteoporosis, because they are not eating foods which contain enough calcium and lose more calcium in the urine after the menopause.

Because it is so difficult to get enough calcium from the daily diet, many doctors now recommend the addition of calcium supplements, even for younger women, to help ensure an adequate calcium intake and good bone health into old age. Among the growing variety of supplements available, Os-Cal® is the most popular brand. Its calcium carbonate formulation is readily absorbed by the body; two tablets of Os-Cal 500 per day provide the 1,000-mg recommended dietary allowance for calcium.

So, go ahead. Have that morning cup of coffee, but use moderation during the day so that your get-up-and-go doesn't take-up-and-leave you without the calcium you need, especially if you are a woman over 30 years old. Ask your doctor about osteoporosis, discuss your calcium intake in foods, and then determine whether you should be including calcium supplements in your daily diet.

Campsite Courtesy For Girls And Boys

If your family is planning lots of outdoor fun this summer, remember that you shouldn't leave your manners at home. Outdoor courtesy is based on the same principles as indoor courtesy — using common sense and being considerate of others.

Girls and boys who belong to Camp Fire, the national youth agency, use these guidelines for good manners.

- Always leave the campsite in as good or better condition than was found.
- If the campground or campsite is governed by a set of rules, the group should familiarize themselves with those rules — and obey them!
- Respect the rights of other campers by keeping noise down and by not running through their campsites.
- Don't borrow picnic tables from other sites.

- Care for campground facilities and camping equipment better than if they were your own.
- Remember that tent walls are very thin and that sound carries.
- Pick up any trash you find even if it's not your own.
- Shine flashlights on the ground, not in other peoples faces.
- Don't cut or gather firewood unless it is authorized at your campgrounds. Since you don't want to damage your environment, you will have brought other fuel.
- Leave gates as you find them.
- Walk around planted fields, not through them.
- Remember that any little creatures you might find have a home, too; don't transport animals away from where they were found.

- The killing of almost any creature in the outdoors is rarely justified. You are the intruder in their home. If your tent just happens to be pitched next to a hole, don't kill the critter — move your tent!
- Don't throw rocks into swimming areas or a lake or stream. You will make a big splash, but also incur the wrath of all those fishing and possibly endanger swimmers.

For good manners all summer long, clip out the list and take it with you on your outdoor adventures.

The outdoor courtesy guidelines are from the Outdoor Book, a comprehensive manual on camping and outdoor activities. For more information about the book, write Communications Dept., Camp Fire, Inc., 4601 Madison, Kansas City, MO 64112.

County Agent's Report

by Craig Rosenbaum

What's for dessert? Ice cream!

(AUSTIN)--When in Rome, an American tourist might cool off with a cone of zucchini gelato. Italians have been experimenting with frozen desserts ever since the days of the Roman Empire when they imported snow from the mountains and ate it with fruit juice and honey.

Back home, the traveler probably would settle for something less unusual. Though tastes in ice cream (America's version of gelato) have broadened in recent years, ice cream manufacturers have yet to raid the vegetable patch for new ideas. Vanilla is still the favorite flavor in this country, followed by chocolate, nut flavors and strawberry.

Whatever the flavor, summer is the time when ice cream consumption soars. Americans will scoop up 30 percent more of the creamy, rich dessert during the next three months than at any time of year. Texans are no exception. The state ranks third in ice cream production nationwide, and much of it is consumed right here.

Always delicious by itself, ice cream can be combined with other ingredients for easy-to-make desserts. The secret to success is softening the ice cream before using it and freezing the final product in a good cold freezer. To soften ice cream, break it up in a mixing bowl and stir with a wooden spoon. Do not let the ice cream reach the melting point.

One of the simplest frozen desserts is an ice cream angel food cake. Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) home economist Carol Ware gives these instructions to make one:

Slice off the top third of a store-bought or homemade angel food cake. Cut a one-inch tunnel in the top of the bottom portion and fill it with your favorite ice cream. Replace the top, cover the cake in plastic wrap and freeze it for several hours or overnight.

Another easy recipe is for homemade ice cream sandwiches, ice cream layered between two cookies. Sandwiches can be individually wrapped and held in the freezer for between-meal snacks.

Elegant ice cream pies take a little more time, but they are worth it. Two tested in the TDA kitchen are Peanut Butter Ice Cream Pie served with a rich chocolate sauce, and Ice Cream Cone Pie, ice cream over an easy "crust" of sugar cones, pecans and melted butter.

Every year the U.S. dairy industry gets a special tip of the hat during June Dairy Month, which recognizes the industry's contribution to the American diet. This June you can tip your own hat--and have fun doing it--with one of these frozen pies.

ICE CREAM CONE PIE

- 12 sugar cones
- 1 C. coarsely chopped toasted pecans
- 1/2 C. chocolate chips
- 5 T. butter
- 1 qt. any flavor softened ice cream

With rolling pin, crush cones into small pieces in plastic bag or between sheets of waxed paper. Do not chop in food processor. Place crushed cones and pecans in medium bowl; set aside. Melt chocolate chips and butter in small heavy saucepan over low heat. Pour over cone mixture, stirring to coat evenly. Press a third of mixture evenly over bottom of 9-inch pie plate. Spread half of ice cream on top. Repeat layers of crumbs and ice cream, ending with crumbs. Press down on crumbs with spoon. Cover and freeze until firm. Pie may be frozen up to a month. Makes 6 servings.

PEANUT BUTTER ICE CREAM PIE

- 2 C. (about 30 cookies) chocolate wafer cookie crumbs
- 1/2 C. melted butter
- 3 pt. softened vanilla ice cream
- 1 1/2 C. creamy peanut butter
- 1/2 C. honey
- 3/4 C. coarsely chopped roasted peanuts
- Hot Fudge Sauce (recipe follows)

Mix cookie crumbs and butter in food processor fitted with metal blade or mix together in medium bowl. Press evenly over bottom and two-thirds up sides of 9x3-inch springform pan; set aside. With electric mixer on low, mix ice cream, peanut butter, honey and peanuts in large bowl until combined. Pour into prepared crust. Cover and freeze until firm. Remove pie from freezer 10 minutes before serving. Run sharp knife around edges and remove sides of springform. Place on serving platter and serve with Hot Fudge Sauce. Pie may be frozen up to a month before serving. Leftovers may be refrozen. Makes 12-14 servings.

Hot Fudge Sauce

- 1 C. chocolate chips
- 1 (14 oz.) can sweetened condensed milk
- 2/3 C. water
- 1 tsp. vanilla

Melt chocolate chips with milk, water and vanilla in heavy medium saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly until mixture comes to full boil. Whisk over moderate heat until thickened, about 3-5 minutes. Serve warm. Sauce may be refrigerated up to a month. Makes 2 1/4 cups.

Seafood: a spring food feature

Excellent supplies of farm-raised catfish, Gulf Coast seafood and canned fish are coming in just in time to match Texans' yearning for seafood as the weather begins to warm.

According to reports from Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service marine and fisheries specialists, consumers will find the following fresh seafood available:

Texan grown crawfish are in good supply. Retail prices range from about $1.50 to $2.70 per pound, depending upon location in the state.

Farm-raised catfish supplies are excellent and should hit their peak in April. Regular prices range from about $2.20 to $2.50 per pound for dressed whole catfish and $3.50 to $4.00 per pound for catfish fillets. However, some stores have been running specials due to the heavy supplies, with prices as low as $1.79 per pound for dressed whole catfish and $2.25 per pound for fillets.

Of the Gulf Coast seafood, blue crab is in good supply. Blue crab is selling at 50 cents each live, $6 per pound for claw meat and $9 per pound for prime lump meat. For casseroles, salads and other dishes where the crab is mixed with other ingredients the least expensive form will be the best buy.

Other Gulf Coast fish available in the stores include snapper, grouper, fresh tuna and shark. Shark fillets, in particular, can be an economical dish and have a firm texture well-suited for grilling outdoors.

Extension nutritionist Marilyn Haggard says that when buying fresh fish fillets, look for firm flesh without signs of browning or drying around the edges, and a fresh and mild odor. Whole fish should have bright, clear, full eyes and shiny skin.

Fresh fish should, of course, be kept refrigerated, and can be frozen in moisture-vapor proof material for months, she adds.

"All crab meat is cooked before it is packaged and can be used without further preparation," Haggard says, "but crab meat must be kept refrigerated. It keeps well up to a week in the refrigerator, but does not freeze well. If freezing is necessary, use it within three weeks."

At a somewhat lower cost, the specialist says you can also find a growing number of surimi-based products, such as imitation crab and shrimp.

Made from a ground mixture of whitefish, surimi is sold in sticks, or in flaked or formed products that more closely resemble the seafood products they imitate. Check the label so you know when you are getting a regular product or a surimi-based imitation, suggests Haggard.

"Canned tuna supplies are especially good and many stores are featuring specials," she notes. "Tuna, along with salmon, are both good sources of Omega-3 fatty acids, the substances associated with a lower risk of heart disease."

Haggard explains that all seafood is high in nutrition. A four-ounce serving of fish yields roughly one-third of an adult's daily requirement for protein, while contributing only about 110 to 130 calories.

It is also a good source of niacin, riboflavin and vitamins B6 and B12, says the nutritionist. Canned sardines and salmon, eaten with bones, provide calcium - as do oysters and shrimp. Flouride, important for strong teeth and bones, is found in quantity in seafood. And marine foods can be a rich source of iodine and the important trace element, selenium.

GULF COAST CRAB SALAD

- 1 head lettuce
- 1 lb. lump crabmeat
- 1 lg. diced avocado
- 6 slices cooked and crumbled bacon
- 4 chopped hard-cooked eggs
- 2-3 sliced green onions
- 2 sliced celery stalks
- 2 chopped tomatoes
- Lemon wedges

In a large bowl, cut or tear lettuce in bite-size pieces. Toss with crabmeat, avocado, bacon, eggs, onion, celery and tomatoes. Garnish with lemon wedges and serve with favorite dressing. Makes 4-6 servings.
