BROWN COUNTY OIL AREA SETS HIGH RECORD

Seven new producers were the record for the Cross Cut oil field last week and several are scheduled to come in this week. The new wells are said to range in production from 35 barrels to 500 barrels daily and are scattered over the three most active sections of the field. It is probable that the outstanding well during the past week is that of Gilman, Root, Hades and McMurray on the Moore tract in the vicinity, and fact adjacent to the L. G. Bradstreet recent discovery well on the Fombey land. The Bradstreet well seems to be in the center of what is proving to be a big pool previously untouched. The Gilman well, an offset, has an actual gauge record of 28 barrels per hour, after a short, and promises to develop into a 500 barrel per day well. To the north of this well on the Teston lease the same owners have another completion that is said to be good for a least 200 barrels. In the same group of wells L. G. Bradstreet is on the sand, with his No. 2 well on the same tract with the discovery and, according to initial showing, seems to indicate a much larger well than the No. 1 discovery though that well carried an initial gauge of 300 barrels and still is gauging 125 barrels after 25 days of production. In the same vicinity the Bay Oil Company has topped the pay at 1,154 feet.

New Locations Numerous
Around this group locations have been made for five new wells. Two miles south of this group the pool centering around the Woodridge lands, the States Oil company and McEster have completed the D. C. Woodridge No. 14 for 100 barrels per day on the same at 1,248 feet on No. 15 location. This company is also rigging up to spud in No. 16 on the same lease.

The Prairie Oil and Gas company is down about 1,000 feet on a test near the south line of their lease, out of the D. C. Woodridge land, and a short distance to the southeast, the Curry-Moore interests have a finishing job at 900 feet, on the D. C. Woodridge No. 8, and are drilling at 1,000 feet on Williams No. 2.

The Humble Company is on the way, preparing to drill on their Woodridge No. 6, a location in the vicinity of the Curry-Moore wells, and off-setting the location to the south. F. D. Williams and Beale are fishing at a depth of 850 feet on their Woodridge No. 3, and also skidding the rig on their No. 4 location, having abandoned a fishing job at 1,000 feet on the first hole begun on this location.

At the extreme south limit of this area of development the Williams Oil company has two companies on the Kel'ar tract No. 6, showing for a substantial pumper of about 25 barrels and No. 7, with an indicated production of 40 barrels. Tools have been moved to two new locations on this lease.

He's Brown County's Last Indian Fighter

JAMES ALFRED CHEATHAM

James Alfred Cheatham, 84, died at the family residence in the Clear Creek locality Wednesday morning, following an illness that lasted several weeks.

The funeral ceremonies took place at Clear Creek cemetery Wednesday evening, conducted by the pastor of the Christian church in the town of Clear Creek. Mr. Cheatham had been a member of the church for many years. Following the religious feature of the funeral the Masonic fraternity took charge.

James Alfred Cheatham was born in Kentucky, August 18, 1842. He came to Texas when he was a young man and settled in Brown county, where Indians and buffalo were in evidence, one of the decisive Indian fights of the pioneer days taking place in the locality where the Cheatham home now stands. Mr. Cheatham lived during a period that required men of heroic resolve and determination, and during these times the record shows that he did his full part on all occasions when men were wanted to do things worth while. In temperament he was as gentle as a child, and yet when danger was near, it is said of him by those who knew him, that he knew no such thing as fear. In his humble way James Alfred Cheatham did what he could, in the best way he knew how to help rescue the wild west from the savage forces of nature and dedicate it to civilization. Men like him are few and scattering. Soon they will all be gone, and in their passing will be lost forever figures and factors in pioneer history that can never be replaced.

Deceased leaves a widow and 12 children, 8 sons and 4 daughters: Joe Cheatham, of Amarillo; Hop Cheatham, of Brownwood; Jim Cheatham, Dan Cheatham, of Sherman; Roland Cheatham of Abilene; Will Cheatham, of Panhandle; Sam Cheatham, Ivan Cheatham, of Abilene; Emily Mrs. Hattie Ponsick; Mrs. Zola Cheatham, of Brooksmith; and Miss Flora Cheatham of Abilene. Also one brother, Dick Cheatham of Whon, and one sister, Mrs. K. Hunter, of Cisco.

Deceased served with credit in the army of the Confederacy and was a member of the original company of Texas Rangers.

BOX SUPPER AND ENTERTAINMENT

There will be a Box Supper and Entertainment at Brooksmith Saturday night, November 6, for the benefit of the Manual Training and Domestic Science Departments. A general invitation is extended the public.

VOTED TICKET STRAIGHT SAYS JIM FERGUSON

AUSTIN, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson and her husband announced today that they have voted straight democratic tickets in the general election to be held Tuesday by absentee voting. The votes were sent to their home at Temple. Former Governor James E. Ferguson said that the voting of the straight democratic ticket by himself and his wife is more than what many democrats who supported L. G. Moody for governor in the recent democratic primaries did two years ago when they voted for Geo. C. Butte, republican nominee for governor. He meant by that declaration that he and his wife were more loyal to the democratic party than many of those who bolted the ticket at the general election in 1924 and voted for the republican candidate against his wife, he said.

He denied as "another political falsehood" published reports that he would vote the republican ticket tomorrow.

Poultry Association Meeting Is Set for Next Friday Night

According to announcement made some time ago, there will be a meeting of the Brown County Poultry Association at the court house tomorrow night. The object of this meeting is to discuss further plans for the big poultry show which is to be staged in Brownwood on December 9-11. It is hoped by President Charles Day that every member of the organization will be present as many matters will be up for consideration. Indications are that the coming show is going to be the best ever held in Brownwood, and with this idea in view every member is asked to co-operate in an active way, and help make the show the success it so well deserves.

Farm Bureau Convention to Be Held Saturday

The annual Farm Bureau convention for Brown county will be held in the county court room Saturday afternoon at 1:30. At this meeting new officers and directors will be elected. It is the desire of the present officers of the Farm Bureau in the county that all group leaders, community chairmen and secretaries attend. All members of the Bureau are invited to come and bring some one with you. At this convention a program of work for the coming year will be adopted, and it is quite essential that a large delegation of members from each community be present. There are many important questions that are of interest to members of the Farm Bureau at this time, mostly pertaining to the present cotton conditions.

The meeting will be called to order Saturday afternoon, November 6th, at 1:30 in the county court room.

Telephone People to Have District Meeting Brownwood Nov. 17

The Brownwood district meeting of the Texas Independent Telephone Association will be held here November 17. The official program is being prepared and will include some very interesting and instructive features. Within the next few days the program will probably be ready to be announced.

Eads No. 2 Shows 150 Barrels Daily of High Grade Oil

The Shap Eads No. 2, west of the White wells, is now in with apparently 150 barrels production. The well is eleven feet in the sand. It is a better well than No. 1 on the same tract. Bowers, Evans and Vaughn are the owners of this producer, and expect to drill several other wells in that vicinity.

SNOW AT AMARILLO
AMARILLO, Texas, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Amarillo and this section of the Panhandle awoke today to find a thin covering of snow on the ground, and clinging to tree limbs. But it melted rapidly as the temperature gradually climbed upward from the 33 mark, to which it descended last night.

CISCO BANK FAILS OPEN DOORS TODAY

CISCO, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Commercial State Bank failed to open here today and it has been taken over by P. A. Phillips of the state banking department. Deposits are protected by the state guaranty fund. J. E. McCord, active vice president of the bank, said. The closing came as a result of a voluntary liquidation because of a slump in the value of collateral securities taken on a loan made during the oil boom, he added.

Cotton Continues Easy Despite Plans for Holding

While President Coolidge's cotton committee confers, with cabinet members, financiers and southern leaders and makes trips through the south in an effort to aid organization of financial corporations for the holding of the surplus of this year's cotton crop from the market, and while bankers, business men and cotton growers of the south are working to solve the problem which confronts them, the price of cotton continues to drag close to the season's low prices. Spot cotton Wednesday was not more than a quarter of a cent above the lowest prices of the season, which were made immediately following the Government report of October 25th, when middling cotton in Brownwood was quoted at around 11 cents basis. Eleven and a quarter would be about the correct average price on today's market.

This situation is probably accounted for by the continued heavy movement to market. As thousands upon thousands of bales of cotton were dumped on the declining market during the past few weeks, so it seems that every banker, business man, and farmer are still rushing cotton to market and selling it.

Still to the thinking man it would seem that the better part of wisdom now would suggest that the farmers of the south at least hold up on this flooding of the market with cotton, for a while at least. Of course the Government may hit us with a few thousand bales more increase in predicted crop in its report next Monday, November 8th, and force values even lower, but the fact remains that the south has already taken its big loss. That big loss is already upon us. Whatever further decline the market may experience will be only a fractional addition to the loss already sustained.

While on the other hand the farmer who holds his cotton at this time has the conditions and circumstances to work in his favor.

(1) Cotton is already cheap. It is far below the cost of production and no commodity can remain below the cost of production indefinitely. So in the natural course of events he knows that cotton must be higher later on—how much later of course depending in great measure on the southern farmers themselves; how much cotton they hold off the market and how much they reduce their production next year.

(2) The loss of the southern farmer is the loss of the whole south, so that every banker, business man, and professional man—every citizen of the south is anxious and eager to help put the price back up so that all may be benefited. Therefore the farmer may rest assured that untiring efforts will be made by everyone to help remedy the situation.

(3) Concrete, feasible plans have already been formulated and the ground-work laid for their execution, looking toward the taking of around four billion bales off the market for several months, and at the same time arranging to assure a substantial reduction in acreage next spring. Of this amount around a million and a quarter bales of Texas cotton, it is planned will be taken off the market until prices get better. Eugene Meyer, chairman of President Coolidge's cotton committee, has just completed a trip to leading southern cities, including Dallas, Texas, where he conferred with leading industrial and agricultural men. As a result of these conferences, he announced upon his return to Washington this week, that plans had been definitely made for several financial corporations to function throughout the south, these corporations to have a total capital of $16,000,000, and a total borrowing power of $160,000,000.

It is the plan to loan approximately three-fourths the market value on each bale of cotton, figuring on the basis of around $45 per bale. The loans and carrying details to be handled through the Intermediate Credit Banks of the Federal Reserve, it is understood. In addition to these features it is known that in many sections of the cotton belt, cotton is being abandoned and will never be picked, so while many are now saying that we have around 18,000,000 bales in this year's crop, it is entirely probable that a million bales will never be picked. A Brown county farmer told the writer of this cotton letter today that he had just turned his cattle into a thirty acre field of cotton, through which a cotton sack had never been drawn, as he could not afford to pick and gin it at present prices. Similar reports come from many sections.

So with all these factors taken into consideration it would seem that the farmers of the south might well consider not selling any more cotton at present, with the possibility of taking advantage of the loans later, or of being able to sell at higher prices because of generally bettered conditions. Another feature that many people are overlooking and which will prove of great importance in the long run is the fact that the extreme low price of cotton is causing spinners and manufacturers to make many different kinds of goods of cotton which were heretofore made of other materials. Many big industrial institutions are buying big quantities of cotton and there is little doubt but that this year will see a record breaking consumption of American cotton.

To give every citizen of the city and county an opportunity to understand the details of the pending water project, a mass meeting has been arranged for next Monday night at 7:30 o'clock in the evening at the city hall. A number of the experts attending the convention will remain for the mass meeting, including J. A. Kemp, widely known conservation leader. Judge J. E. Starkey, P. A. Welby, engineer, and others, will discuss the water project in every detail, and citizens will be privileged to ask any question about which further information is desired.

The General Water Committee is to meet tonight at 7:30 for a consideration of pending business. The need for a mass meeting for discussion of the water project has become apparent during the past few days, according to General Chairman C. M. Carpenter, as many citizens have been asking for information as to various phases of the water project. Most of the people, the chairman says, appear to be in favor of the plan for enlarging the city's water supply and making provisions for irrigation of the Pecan Valley, but many are without information as to some phases of the project and have been asking for it in the past few days.

The speakers who will be presented Monday night are thorough conversant with the whole situation, and will be able to explain the law governing such projects. All manner of questions as to the details of the water project, the project, the plan of financing and other questions that have presented themselves to the minds of thoughtful citizens since the order was issued for an election to be held November 20th, will be answered by every citizen of both the city and county will be urged by the Water Committee to attend the mass meeting, and to share in the general discussion of this question which the committee believes to be the most important one that has been presented to the people of Brownwood and neighboring territory in many years.

Workers are also busy laying steam lines from dozens of adjacent boilers and it is believed that by noon an attempt can be made to blanket the gusher with live steam. After having burned for six hours, three wooden derricks had been destroyed, three others razed and two steel well towers melted down.

BY BIG MAJORITY

Reports indicate that every democratic candidate for Congress in Texas was re-elected Tuesday, with the exception of A. D. Rogers, in the San Antonio district, who was defeated by Harry M. Wurzbach, republican candidate and present incumbent. The majority for Wurzbach seems to be of decisive nature. There was never a chance for any republican candidate to date to win in any of the other districts. In the Galveston district, which was gerrymandered several years ago so as to insure the election of the democratic representative, a Democrat was chosen. The time used to be when the Galveston district elected a republican occasionally, in order to beat that condition, the district was gerrymandered, and as a matter of fact it looks ridiculous, in these modern days of supposed fairness and squareness, "take a map of Texas and look at the Galveston district. It includes Galveston, Liberty, Houston, Montgomery, Polk, San Jacinto, Walker, Anderson and Chambers counties. This district makes a shoe string starting at Galveston and ending at Palestine, on the International-Great Northern Railroad, 250 miles from Galveston. It is made up of counties whose interests are in no wise connected with the interests of Galveston, and whose entire social and industrial fabric is different. But the entire affair was done to make certain political requirements fit in and thus it stands.

Over in the old Second District John C. Box was re-elected. It will take a good man to get the seat occupied by this sage of Jacksonville. One or two have tried it and got hardly enough names to count. This is another shoe string district—beginning at Orange, on the Gulf of Mexico and ending at Marshall, within 40 miles of Shreveport, La. Politics is responsible for this grotesque situation. Sam Rayburn was re-elected in the fourth district. He has been in Congress 12 years, and before going to Washington was Speaker of the House of Representatives. Texas legislatures.

Marvin Jones is re-elected and is the youngest man in the Texas delegation. All other members re-elected include: Buchanan of Brenham, Tom Connally of Marlin, Tom Blanton of Abilene, Fritz Latham of Fort Worth, Grinn Williams of Decatur, Joe Mansfield of Columbia, Dan Garrett of Houston, Morgan Sanders of Canton, Luther Johnson of Corsicana—in fact the entire Texas delegation was re-elected, and it must be said that the Texas delegation measures up in ability with the delegations from any of the other states in the Union.

NEW MEXICO RACE
ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Nov. 4.—(AP)—With actual figures by precincts still lacking, but reports on majorities in Tuesday's election practically complete from all counties in the state, R. C. Dillon, republican early today appeared to have been elected governor with a majority of 4,000 over his democratic opponent, Governor A. T. Rannett.

man of the powerful steering and military affairs committees, was a "great and far reaching victory" for the Anti-Saloon League. "The republican party in New York," he added, "can no longer bore from within in order to try to filch liquor votes from Tammany hall."

A similar situation arose with like conflicting statements in Illinois where George E. Safford, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, said the defeat of George E. Brennan, democratic senatorial nominee and "dripping wet," had "blocked wet strategy and put a crimp in their national plans for several years to come."

Illinois Result
The result of the Illinois referendum on the same issue as that represented in New York, showed, in the opinion of Mr. Safford, a "surprising and encouraging drift in public sentiment from the wet to the dry side." The wet and dry question, he added, may be the supreme issue at the next party conventions, and he voiced his determination to continue "the fight against the Volstead law."

In California, the voters apparently approved repeal of the state prohibition enforcement law, while in Wisconsin they voted in favor of beer containing at least 2.75 percent alcohol. Nevada voters favored the calling of a constitutional convention to modify the eighteenth amendment and also decided in the affirmative on the question, "Is prohibition a failure?"

Montana, home of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, democrat, one of the noted drys in the Senate, appears to have voted to repeal the state dry laws but Missouri voters followed the counsel of Senator James A. Reed, democrat and liberal, and defeated a referendum question which sought the repeal of all state liquor laws.

Colorado voters likewise defeated a proposal to repeal present state enforcement laws.

TREATMENT FOR SMUT IN SMALL GRAINS
Unless it is known positively that the seed grain is free of smut, it will pay to treat it before planting. The following is an effective method: Use one pint of Formaldehyde to one gallon of water. Spray this on the grain as it is poured on to a wagon sheet or into a tight wagon ber. A small hand sprayer such as is used for spraying cows in fly time is all right to use for this. Keep the spray going on the pile of grain as it is being poured on but do not continue to spray long enough to make the grain wet. Cover the grain by gringing up the corners of the sheet or spread something over it in the wagon bed. Leave it covered over night or at least five hours. It requires about 1-3 pint of Formaldehyde or two quarts of the spray to treat 100 bushels of grain. O. F. GARDNER.

STATE SEEKING ACCOUNTING OF OIL PRODUCTION

AUSTIN, Nov. 2.—(AP)—By agreement of all parties an order impending $850,000, thereby suspending hearing on the plaintiff's application for a receiver was entered Tuesday by Judge George Calloun of 53rd District Court here in the suit for accounting brought by Attorney General Dan Moody against the Reagan County Purchasing Company, Inc., et al.

The state alleges that Texas University has not received all the royalties due it from oil taken from its land in Reagan county.

The Big Lake Oil Company will deposit $50,000 and the group number 1 oil corporation $240,000 in bonds to be approved by the court, and these sums will be held in escrow pending disposition of the suit.

The companies which must deposit the money within 30 days are the only two that have actually produced oil from university lands.

The others, which have purchased the oil are Reagan County Purchasing Company, Inc., Marland Oil, Texas Oil and Land Company of Texas, Group Number 2 Oil Corporation, Humble Oil and Refining Company, Humble Pipe Line Company.

The state contends there is approximately $2,750,000 due the University as its proper one-eighth royalty on all oil produced prior to filing of the suit.

Under the agreed order, each producer simultaneously with the monthly payment of royalties, during pendency of suit, shall deposit a sum equal to the value of the eighth of three per cent of the volume of oil, which three per cent computed at the price at which the oil is sold by the producer to the Humble Oil and Refining Company and the Reagan County Purchasing Company, Inc. Also each producer shall deposit one eighth of 20 cents per barrel of oil sold and delivered by pipe line.

DEMOCRATS OF OKLAHOMA ARE BACK IN POWER

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The republican party in Oklahoma today apparently had lost one of its two seats in the lower House of Congress, on the face of incomplete returns. S. J. Montgomery, republican incumbent, was trailing E. B. Howard, former democratic congressman, by nearly two thousand votes when 287 of the 511 precincts in the first district had been tabulated.

Congressman M. C. Garber, republican, was re-elected in the 8th district.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Oklahoma democracy today was basking contentedly in the sunlight of political supremacy after an almost complete eclipse from the eyes of the democrats; re-election of 1926 and 1927.

The removal of a republican senator virtually every republican office holder who has been a spot on the democratic sun was removed in yesterday's general election.

Johnston Winner The dark threat of republican occupancy for the first time of the governor's chair seemed definitely to have been dispelled when Henry S. Johnston, democrat, had piled up a lead of more than 31,000 votes in three-fifths of the state's precincts.

Republican presiding officers of three of the state's leading departments were displaced by democrats in the general turnover. Each of the three bodies elects its own leader. The supreme court seat occupied by Chief Justice George M. Nicholson, was won by R. A. Heffner, mayor of Ardmore.

NEW SCHEDULE OF CRUDE OIL PRICES POSTED

DALLAS, Nov. 2.—(AP)—New prices for crude oil in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, which were a decrease of 87 cents a barrel for oil of 52 and above specific gravity, but an increase of 10 cents a barrel for that below 28 gravity were announced today by the Magnolia Petroleum Company. That of the low 28 gravity was the only grade on which there was an increase, the decrease applying to all above 28 specific gravity. From 28 to 28.5 the new price is 15 cents a barrel less than the old price. Starting with that grade at $1.50, the price increases 5 cents a barrel for each grade up to $2.70 for 52 gravity and above.

HOUSTON MAN DROWNS WHILE DUCK HUNTING

HOUSTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Eugene P. Marris, 33, proprietor of a tire shop here, was drowned Sunday morning when he attempted to recover hunting decoys near Red Fish Beach in Trinity bay, reports reaching Houston police late last night.

An all day search by six members of the hunting party that left on a three day trip Saturday was assisted by coast guards from Galveston yesterday, but early today the body had not been located in the bay.

The party was headed for the vicinity of Anahuac Sunday morning when the brisk squall caused the light skiff in which the decoys were being hauled to break loose. Twice the motor boat was forced to retrace its course and pick up the skiff. The third time the small boat broke loose it was scuttled and the decoys began to float away. All were retrieved except two.

Marris leaped into the water and brought in one of the decoys and then started out for the last one. In the meantime the motorboat was maneuvered around to the windward of the swimmer and the engine was dead. Marris called for help but the six men in the boat were unable to give assistance to the swimmer and he disappeared beneath the surface.

A brief talk was made by the yell leaders and then came taps.

A. & M. Cadets Pay Tribute to Victim of Fight

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 2.—(AP)—More than 2,000 Texas A. & M. cadets stood in the rain in front of the Y. M. C. A. building on the college campus last night in a brief but dramatic tribute to the memory of Charles M. Sessums, Dallas cadet, who died Sunday as result of injuries received in the Baylor-A. & M. student affray at Waco last Saturday.

Instead of the customary yell practice, the students turned the gathering into an expression of sorrow over the loss of their fellow cadet. The A. & M. band played "Nearer My God to Thee" while the cadets stood. They lowered their heads for a moment in silent prayer in the rain.

A brief talk was made by the yell leaders and then came taps.

GALVESTON PAPERS MERGED BY PURCHASE OF "DAILY TRIBUNE"

The merger of the two daily newspapers in Galveston, The News and The Tribune, through the purchase of The Tribune by The News, was announced this week. The deal is of interest to Brownwood people because of the fact that Silas B. Ragsdale, son of Dr. P. C. Ragsdale, a Brownwood newspaper journalist, is managing editor of The News and secretary and treasurer of The News Publishing Company, owners of the two papers.

The News Publishing Company, Inc., of Galveston, will publish The Galveston News, a morning paper, and The Galveston Tribune, an afternoon paper, The Tribune having recently been purchased by The News from Harry I. Cohen, publisher, and his associates, of The Tribune.

The officers of The News Publishing Company are the same as those of the Galveston News, Inc., and are: W. L. Moody, Jr., president, Louis C. Elbert, vice president and general manager, and Silas B. Ragsdale, secretary and treasurer.

The Tribune will continue to be published as an afternoon newspaper, and will preserve its separate identity. The News will continue to be published as a morning newspaper, and will preserve its separate identity. Both publications will be under the same general management. The necessary personnel and equipment of The Tribune will be moved into that of the News, in The News building, for the joint publication of both newspapers. This will be effected within the next several weeks.

VOTE SHOWS AMENDMENTS ALL ADOPTED

DALLAS, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Returns to the Texas Election Bureau at 11:30 a. m. from 113 out of 120 counties, including five counties, show: Governor: Moody 76,337; Haines 8,614. Prison amendment: For 27,838; against 12,364. Soldier amendment: For 26,649; against 13,604. District amendment: For 26,214; against 12,576. Tax amendment: For 28,452; against 12,157. Congress, 14th district: Rogers 7,986; Wurzbach, 8,413.

DALLAS, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Latest returns to the Texas Election Bureau served only to pile up the vote by which the entire state democratic ticket was elected yesterday. Dan Moody who defeated Governor Miriam A. Ferguson for the democratic nomination for governor was leading his republican opponent, Colonel H. H. Haines by about 9 to 1, which was a larger lead than Governor Ferguson maintained over her republican opponent two years ago.

In the 14th congressional district from which Harry M. Wurzbach, republican, incumbent, has a lead over his democratic opponent, A. D. Rogers, the figures of the election bureau showed this morning. Rogers had been in the lead until late last night. In the other seventeen districts the democratic incumbents were re-elected.

The four amendments to the state constitution on face of present figures appeared to have been approved by considerable majorities.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Harry M. Wurzbach, Texas' only republican congressman, increased his lead over A. D. Rogers, his democratic opponent to 3,500 and seemed virtually certain of re-election today with about two-thirds of the vote tabulated. Rogers refused to admit defeat. No official tabulation of estimates were available here, but figures gathered at the campaign headquarters of the candidates indicated that Wurzbach had a total at noon of approximately 14,500 and Rogers about 10,000.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF AUTO SALESMAN IS INVESTIGATED

FORT WORTH, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Officers today were trying to learn what or who caused the death of T. K. "Red" King, automobile salesman, who died shortly before daybreak with outward evidences of only minor injuries.

King was deserted last night at a gasoline filling station by a man yet unidentified, who drove up in King's own touring car, Frank Zelaski, station attendant, told police. The man ran to another automobile containing two other men and all hastily toward town, Zelaski said.

King, partly conscious, was cut on the lip and forehead and died without telling what happened to him.

Farmers Unwilling to Hold Cotton Boxes Are Closed

WICHITA FALLS, Nov. 2.—(AP)—No polling places were open in the rural voting boxes in this section because no one could be found to conduct the voting. Farmers who had been appointed election officials refused to receive the boxes because they were too busy in the fields. The voting here is the lightest in many years.

Dallas Bankers Pledge Million for Farm Relief

DALLAS, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Dallas will furnish $1,000,000 of the capital stock of $5,000,000 corporation which Texas bankers are organizing to hold 1,250,000 bales of cotton from the 1926 crop for better prices, it was pledged at a meeting of the city's representative bankers and business men today.

Begin Testimony in Suit for Big West Texas Tract

DALLAS, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Hearing of testimony in a suit which possession of 16,000 acres in Irion county is involved began here today before Federal Judge E. R. Neek.

R. L. Gibson and others of Oklahoma, beneficiaries under the will of the late J. D. Sugg of San Angelo, are bringing suit against N. D. Blackstone and W. L. Slaughter, cattle men, and E. S. Briant, independent executor of the will, all of San Angelo.

NO COLORED VOTERS IN WARD ONE FIRST TIME IN MANY YEARS

A very light vote was cast in Brown county Tuesday in the general election, and the normal Democratic majority, amounting to about 12 or 15 to 1, was returned. It has not been learned whether the election was actually held in all of the county's thirty-two boxes some of which may not have been opened for the balloting.

A report from Ward One, city, is typical of the voting in other precincts. In this ward about 35 votes were cast. Moody receiving 71 and Haines 9. Blanton received 73 votes and Tanner 6. Judge Pierson received 73 votes and Judge G. N. Harrison 8. All the amendments were approved in this ward by substantial majorities.

For the first time in fifteen years, not a single negro voter appeared at the polls, although practically all of Brownwood's colored citizens live in Ward One, and all are privileged to vote if they care to do so.

NORRIS TRIAL TRANSFERRED AUSTIN COURT

FORT WORTH, Texas, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Rev. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth and fundamentalist leader, will go to trial at Austin probably in January for killing D. E. Chipp, wealthy lumberman, here last July.

Granting a defense motion for a change of venue on the plea of the minister that he could not obtain a fair trial in Fort Worth, District Judge Hosey yesterday transferred the case to the state capital city, where the Travis county district court will set the date of trial. Attorneys said it was unlikely that the case would be called there before January at the earliest.

Judge Hosey acted after more than a score of witnesses had testified that they believed sentiment here was such that a fair and impartial verdict could not be obtained. The court refused to hear testimony offered by the state in answer to allegations by the defense that a "combination" of city officials, whom Dr. Norris has attacked, and Catholics had been formed to prosecute the minister.

Judge Hosey said he was acting only on evidence of prejudice developed by the defense.

A temporary injunction was recently granted upon application of Gibson when it was alleged that armed guards kept them off the property.

STATEMENT REGARD TO RURAL SCHOOL WORK BY SUPERINTENDENT COBB

County Superintendent Cobb, says the schools of Brown county are in about the same condition financially that they were in last year, that is to say, they will run about seven months on an average. According to the superintendent, it seems that there will be no funds available with which to pay vouchers of teachers until after Christmas.

There are 55 schools in Brown county. The following school districts levy a special school tax, May, Brooksmith, Zephyr Winchell and Blanket.

The following schools started last Monday: Baird, Turkey Peak, McDaniels, Red River, Center Point, Mount View, Jones Chapel, and one or two others, the names of which are not recalled.

Forty-four schools in Brown county made application for state aid, to the amount of $45,424.

In these columns a few days ago it was shown that if the present law governing the two cent oil tax, which is paid to the state on general pipe line production, was changed so as to give the county in which the oil originated just one-half the amount of the tax, letting the state take the other half, Brown county would get at least $120,000 per year, and if this amount was divided equally between the local road fund and the local school fund, no state aid would have to be asked, nor would it be necessary to issue road bonds or special school bonds as long as oil production held its own. This is a big thing and certainly deserves the serious consideration of every citizen.

FORMER LION GOVERNOR LOUIS C. PERRY DIES HOME, TERRELL, TEXAS

Brownwood Lions, as well as members of the Lions organization throughout Texas were pained today to learn of the death, at his home in Terrell, last night, of Col. Louis C. Perry, former district governor of the Lions organization of Texas.

Louis C. Perry, founder and first president of the Texas Military College, died at his home here Tuesday afternoon, following an illness of three years. He is survived by his wife and daughter.

Colonel Perry was born at Ridgeway, Virginia, August 14th, 1877, the son of M. F. and Louisa H. Perry. He received his A. B. degree from Rutherford College in 1904, his A. M. degree in 1907, B. E. and B. S. degrees from Vanderbilt University in 1904 and a Ph. D. degree from the University of Chicago. He was married to Miss Elva Kenney of Nebraska in 1915.

As an educator Colonel Perry had many connections. He was president of Hayesville College, North Carolina, 1897-1899; president Columbia College, Oregon, 1904-1905; professor history and social sciences at Hendrix College, Conway, Arkansas, 1905-1906; president Scarritt Morrisville College, Morrisville, Missouri, 1909-1915; and founder of Texas Military College at Terrell, 1915. He was made Commandant Colonel in 1918.

Colonel Perry was founder of the local Lions' Club and served the State organization as district governor. While in this position he visited every local club in the state and was in many ways active in club life. He was a director of the Lions' International. He organized the Terrell Country Golf Club and erected its modern clubhouse, providing Terrell with its first pleasure of such a character. He was for many years a director in the Terrell Chamber of Commerce and was one of the outstanding characters in the civic and business life of the city. The Texas Military College, operated under his continuous management, has grown from one building to a modern college plant with fifteen buildings, modernly equipped and with a yearly increase in student enrollment from all the Southern States, Mexico and several Eastern States.

Colonel Perry was an active member of the Methodist Church. Funeral services will be held from the family residence of the college campus Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, with burial at Oakland Cemetery.

RADIUM IS RECEIVED BY LOCAL HOSPITAL FOR WORK IN CANCER

The Central Texas Hospital has received a shipment of radium which cost about $4,000.00. Radium is used in connection with the X-ray for the treatment of cancer, both internally and externally. The $4,000 worth of radium received by that institution resembles four phonograph needles, being about the size of a needle and shaped similarly. Each of these needles costs one thousand dollars. The rays from radium are given off constantly, day and night, and it will continue to give off its rays for a period of two thousand years. The great scientist Madame Curie discovered radium.

Brownwood is the only city of its size in Texas that is fully equipped for the treatment of cancer with radium and the X-ray. It is one of the largest cities of its size in the United States so fortunate as to have this equipment.

In America radium comes from the mountain tops of western Colorado and eastern Utah, from flat surfaced rocks eight thousand feet above sea level and more than fifty miles from a railroad. So sparse is it embodied in an ore called carnotite that from one to five hundred tons of the ore must be mined to get one gram or one twenty-eighth of an ounce of radium.

Reducing and refining the ore in the factory are arduous tasks, for each ton of ore requires two tons of coal, one ton of chemicals and fifty tons of water. No wonder radium sells for $2,000,000.00 an ounce, 50,000 times the price of a similar amount of gold.

TEXAS FILES DECREE TO CARRY OUT COURT RULING ON BOUNDARY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Counsel for the state of Texas today filed in the supreme court a proposed form of decree for carrying into effect the court's recent decision ordering the 100th meridian be located on ground as the dividing line between Texas and Oklahoma, running north from the Red river. Texas counsel said that the state of Oklahoma had not been heard from in the matter, but that the United States had joined in supporting the form of decrees suggested by Texas when counsel for Texas said the state was ready to suggest to the court the names of commissioners survey the line. The court replied that the names should be submitted directly and without naming in open court, stating it would take the names under consideration.

Counsel for the state of Texas said information had been obtained that surveys made by the federal government had located the 100th meridian 374 feet east of the Kicker monument on Red river. Texas originally had proposed that should be accepted as making the beginning of the line. Should the new survey substantiate this territory which Texas would recover from Oklahoma, it would be much wiser than it expected.

MISS MARY BAILEY Miss Mary Bailey, who has lived with the family of Dr. J. A. Abney for the past thirty years, passed quietly away this morning at five o'clock. She had been an invalid for the past five years, but during all this time she was very cheerful and seldom complained to others about her troubles.

Miss Bailey was 69 years of age at the time of her death and would have reached her three score and ten years on January 22nd. She came to Brownwood with Dr. Abney and his family from Lampasas when they moved to this city. She had no living relatives as far as is known. She was born in Georgia and came to this state in early girlhood with a sister, who died here seventeen years ago. Miss Bailey will be buried by the side of this sister.

FOUR BOYS AND GIRLS CAUGHT NEAR SHERMAN ACCUSED OF ROBBERY

SHERMAN, Texas, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Two boys and two girls, all under 18 years, were arrested in a cabin in the foothills in the northwest part of the county near Red river Wednesday night and held in connection with several robberies committed Monday night, among which was the burglary of the Marks Bros. department store here and the theft of over $2,000 worth of men's and women's clothing.

One of the girls, Kathryn Blumh, was a Denison high school girl, and had been with the party about a week, camping in the northwest part of the county, according to statements made by the girls. J. B. French, a Denison boy, had come Colorado with Josephine McBroon about a month ago in a car bearing a Colorado license plate. They picked up the second boy, Sam Forrest, at his home town, Cushing, Okla., two weeks ago. Josephine McBroon has been married, but her husband is dead, she said. They are being held here on burglary and theft charges.

IN THE FOURTEENTH DISTRICT

HARRY WURZBACH was re-elected as Texas' only Republican Congressman, and his success over A. D. Rogers, Democratic candidate, in the Fourteenth District is not at all surprising. Pitted against a man of mediocre ability, and fortified by the victory he won in the summer skirmish with the stand-patter of his party in Texas, Mr. Wurzbach had an assurance of success that was not enjoyed by Republican candidates even in some of the normally Republican states.

Contemporary Thought

PROVES THE CASE

Atlanta Constitution: The Constitution for years has urged the farmers of Georgia, and of the South, to so balance their production program that something would be going to the market practically all the time, that food and feed in sufficiency for home consumption be annually grown, that pure-bred hogs and chickens find a place in every program, and that cotton be grown entirely as surplus money crop.

Fortunately, Georgia farmers have slowly but surely moved forward toward balanced programs. It is serving the state well in the present cotton situation. This state was never in better economic condition than it is today. If cotton should fall to a pound Georgia, and a great majority of the Georgia farmers, would still be independent.

As an illustration of what can be done, with proper effort and the heartening strength of determination, a small fifty-acre farm, operated with only two plows, in Warren county, may be cited. The facts have been submitted to the Constitution by T. E. Massengale of Norwood. The farm belongs to A. R. Shivers, and the owner—who operates it himself without tenants—has prepared for the Constitution a statement of what he has grown and sold this year. It follows in his own language:

"Sold from farm during 1926, corn raised in 1925, 200; hogs, 180; potato slips, 850; strawberries, 225; sweet potatoes from one and one-half acres, $765. Picked thirty bales of cotton from twenty-five acres, and harvested an excellent corn crop. Mrs. Shivers has a yard of fine turkeys and chickens."

To sum it up, Mr. Shivers has collected in cash $1,750 this year, "lived at home" with the best of food in abundance, fed his stock from his own fields, has his corn cribs full for another year, and has thirty bales of cotton under his shellers that represent a full 100 per cent surplus. He can hold it indefinitely if he desires. He is independent without it.

Could there be a more unchallengeable example, of thrift, and of the saving grace of proper diversification?

HYPNOTIZED TO WRITE

New York Evening Post: Charles Klein, author of "The Music Master," in which David Warfield reached the height of his theatrical career, wrote the play under the influence of hypnotism. Klein was being treated by Dr. John D. Quackebus, specialist in mental nervous diseases, who died recently. Shortly before his death, Quackebus declared he was not a hypnotist in the popular sense.

"I do not make any passes or do anything like that to my patients. I give them a drug that puts their bodies to sleep but leaves their minds free," he explained. "With this drug, and through suggestion I make the judgment infallible. I make it impossible for a man to deceive himself. That, in a nutshell, is the secret of my influence in bringing men and women back to mental health."

It was treatment such as this that Klein was receiving when he was inspired to write his famous play.

DAILY WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—John Hays Hammond would be President Coolidge's pick for one of the commissioners of the District of Columbia if he had his way, according to talk around the White House executive offices.

In a physical sense the old mining engineer does live here rather more than half the time, in perhaps the most beautiful home in Washington.

He has another place at Gloucester, Mass., but officially he's a New Yorker. That's his home out as a candidate for a District of Columbia Commissioner.

Hammond has in what he calls the "den," in his Washington chateau, probably the most remarkable collection of photographs in the world.

"Den" suggests a small place but this is a very large room and, from top to bottom, all four walls are covered with framed pictures of the notable men of the world. His own has known personally in the course of his long and adventurous career in nearly every country on earth.

These were no ordinary folk. They were the kind who made history—kings, queens and presidents, empire builders, commanders of fleets and armies, lords and ladies, famous authors and artists, cabinet members, explorers, celebrities of every sort and description.

To the last one, these photographs are autographed to John Hays Hammond. A multimillionaire and one of the world's foremost mining authorities, Hammond met all these great ones of the earth on terms of equality.

With some of them he has had business relationships. Others he has known intimately socially. He was American envoy at King George's coronation, for instance, and there—he points to it—is the photograph George gave him, with his royal signature on it.

Here's the visage of some Russian potentate whose acquaintance he made while prospecting for gold in Siberia.

There are the portraits of three men with whom he was sentenced to be hanged for rebellion against the government of the now defunct Russian Republic. They finally got off, but Hammond recalls that was a disagreeable experience.

Hammond isn't at all chummy about his acquaintanceships. He's a quiet little man of 71, who spends a large part of his spare time visiting with the children at a municipal playground near his Washington mansion. He's extraordinarily fond of children.

TEXAS AND TEXANS

By WILL H. MAYES

"TURN TEXAS LOOSE"

THE Southern Pacific Railroad is seeking permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to extend its line 28 miles to Brownsville, and it is stated that this will be contingent on the Missouri Pacific on the ground that the territory is already served by the latter road. In other words, the Missouri Pacific claims that it got there first and therefore the country it traverses belongs to it insofar as railroad transportation is concerned. The interest of the people is of but little concern, the railroads must be protected against each other, according to the policies of our government. In numerous other sections, especially in the rapidly developing Panhandle of Texas, railroads built by the Government held back and the development of the country is being retarded because of this idea that the railroads must not be allowed to set into competition with each other in a way that they may lose money.

What Texas needs is to have the Government get into the railroad and railroads built, even if the roads should lose money occasionally through competition. Texas is losing more through lack of development than the roads will ever lose through business rivalry.

"Cotton Rushed to Market" Reports are that cotton growers and their mercantile and banking creditors are panicky and are forcing cotton on the market to such an extent that the price is being kept down in spite of the fact that the market is still in the price is again up. There has been delay in getting the holding and crop reduction movements under way, and in the meantime there has been manifested a disposition to sell at whatever the crop will bring. It is understood that many farmers either will not or can not enter into agreements that will insure systematic marketing and reasonable acreage plantings. Unless enough do this there is little hope that cotton prices will advance as they should. It is to be expected that a farmer who can sell his cotton at a profit to aid in restoring cotton to profitable prices.

What Irrigation Does A. R. Strong has a 40 acre farm near Pearland, which he irrigates from two shallow wells. The year he marketed 900 crates of lettuce from three acres, 1,750 crates of cauliflower from 7 acres, and 531 crates of onions an acre from 16 acres of early Bermuda onions. Besides this he has supplied millions of cabbages, tomatoes, eggplants, bell pepper and egg plants to growers and plant dealers in other places, and has an acre and a half in citrus fruits. He works the year round, though, and does not spend his time idling around town. Where there is a well and a well there is a way.

What a Girl Did on One Acre Miss Lorraine Kelly lives at Douglas, Nacogdoches county. At the Farmers' Short Course at A. & M. College, she was declared the leader among the girls' club workers in Texas. She is 18 years old and is pretty enough to be a society leader. On one acre of land she grew this year vegetables and fruit from which she put up 200 No. 2 and No. 3 cans of vegetables, five dozen quarts of jam, six quarts of fruit, two dozen half gallon cans of fruit, four dozen pints of preserves, six dozen pints of jellies, and fourteen dozen jints of jam—the equivalent of 3,500 cans of vegetables and fruits. She has also made sixteen dozen of jam, six quarts of underwear, and has found time to make curtains, pillow slips, scarfs, and paint the furniture and polish the floors. Miss Kelly furnishes an example of what can be done on a small tract of land if one has a combination of good judgment and energy.

Flour Mills in North Texas A 500 barrel flour mill has just been completed at Plainview, in that section of Texas that is producing the most wheat in the world. The mill has an elevator of wheat, 225,000 bushels capacity. Texas has a number of flour mills, but not enough to handle the immense wheat crop as it is now growing, and there is no better place for flour mills than in the middle of the wheat fields.

Turkeys Plentiful and Fat Turkey raising is becoming a large business in Texas. The crop this year is unusually large. It is stated that the turkeys are already fat. They will be in fine shape for the market, and will bring much money to those who raise them. Killing and picking them and preparing them for market has become a big industry at many points. The Cameron Commercial Club is offering $1.00 in prizes to those who market the largest droves in that town. Brady is to have a Turkey Trot, which is a day when thousands of turkeys are driven to market and people from all around gather to see the sight. Curo originated the Turkey Trot idea in Texas, and the event's made that city famous throughout the country. Turkey and chicken growing has become such an important industry that it is now a felony to steal a turkey or chicken in Texas.

Some Cotton Crops Nueces and Hidalgo counties have each tinned about 50,000 bales of cotton this year, in a section where a few years ago the boll weevil would get the cotton grower. Texas lands all the way from Brownsville to Texline are just too prolific to be planted so largely to cotton unless we wish to make it so cheap that all the paupers of the Eastern hemisphere can afford to clothe themselves in cotton.

Utopian Enterprise The Cisco Chamber of Commerce proposes to drill an oil well on land belonging to the city, from which it hopes to realize enough money to pay all the city taxes in future. It is a great scheme and not altogether visionary, since there are producing wells adjoining the land. If the Cisco Chamber of Commerce succeeds in its undertaking, other Texas towns may soon be following the Cisco example.

Supply and Demand The Waco Times-Herald says that bootleg liquor in that city has advanced from $4.00 to $10.00 a gallon, and that by January bootleggers in Waco will be so scarce that the liquor will bring $15.00 a gallon. In other words, bootleg liquor is scarce and hard to get, and therefore brings a fancy price.

One never knows when he is safe from the reckless automobile driver. A man was sitting quietly on his own front porch at Fort Arthur, when an automobile climbed upon the porch and killed him.

THE PARSON'S COLUMN

A Thing of Shreds and Patches

It would seem to the Parson that the project for water supply and flood control should commend itself to everybody. Aside from the question of the growth of the city of Brownwood and the county in numbers, the assured crops and greater productivity of the soil, as well as the protection from flood for ourselves and others, are recommendations enough. The Parson is not at all anxious for the growth of great cities. We have enough of them and they are the most serious problem of the time. But he is concerned in all that would tend to make life in the country more prosperous and more happy. The soil, when all is said and done, is the source of all real wealth whatsoever. The tillers of the soil are the support of us all. Whatever the return for his labor, to a greater return for his labor, to assure him of that return, to give him the material comforts and pleasures of life are good. The question of how the project can be carried out is for those better acquainted with the cost and means of paying the cost than the Parson is. But he will vote "for" in the coming election.

Meantime, the Parson has noted that of late our water has again become semi-transparent, if it is even so near the bottom of the Parson's bath tub is again invisible when it is full and is covered with a base slime when it is empty. That is not necessary so is proved by simple observation. Let us have clear water by all means, even if we cannot have the great lake many of us are hoping for.

Harry Schwenger of The Brady Standard in a late issue noted his seventeenth anniversary of his paper. The Parson intended to remark on this before now, but in some way this note was mislaid. He hastens to repair his negligence. He well remembers the advent of Harry. Then a very youthful looking individual, the Parson wondered in his own mind whether making of The Standard was a feasible enterprise. It has thrived and the Parson congratulates the editor. Conditions in Brady were not altogether promising. But the evil days are past and now it is lively and growing town. Editor Schwenger is a man of good-will and respect, and his paper has been no small factor in the growth and well being of his city.

The Parson again congratulates him, wishes him seventeen more prosperous years, and says he will be approaching the venerable years of the Parson himself, and he will not be so unkind as to wish him more than that.

So long as a man maintains his body health, as the instrument wherewith he to do his work in the world so long as he cultivates and exercises his intellect, in order that he may more fully serve God and his generations; so long as he seeks the substance and the show of power that he may more profitably fulfill the purpose for which he was sent into the world; so long these are not hindrances, but helps, not enemies but God-given friends. But as soon as the pursuit of pleasure becomes the serious business of a man's life, as soon as the desire for knowledge becomes a form of mere intellectual pride or a mental disipation; so soon as personal adornment becomes the mere indulgence of vanity; so soon as the use of wealth becomes the expression of individual ambition and the servant of luxury—so soon are these "the world" against which we are to fight to the death.

Wordliness is an attitude of the soul and will find expression in all that we do; yea, even before the altar of the Highest. Faith overcomes it by holding fast to the truth that to walk after the flesh, to let anything that belongs to time engross our thought and effort, is unworthy; while to walk after the Spirit, to seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God, is to fulfill our high destiny as the sons of God.

By Phyllis K. Warner

So much is being said these days about the foolishness of women that it seems the most of us are going to have to do something marvelous if we are ever able to sell our best selves again to public opinion.

The dear old dead ladies of a hundred years ago are constantly held up before us as the model wives and mothers and daughters of all ages. One of the leading newspaper men in Texas said to me the other day that he honestly believed if women did not change their ways that the Lord would bring the world to an end within another ten years. And he said it in a tone that sounded as though he were actually suffering over the fallen condition of Texas women. I really felt sorry for him and wondered where he got his ideas. For honestly, so far as I can see the women out our way are working just as hard as ever, they are just as good housekeepers and cooks as ever. They are the most faithful wives and mothers it has ever been my privilege to know. They are saving and sacrificing every day to pay for their homes and to give their children a better education and a better start in life than they had. For the life of me I don't see a thing in the world the matter of the Panhandle mothers except they know more about the world they are living than their grand-mothers knew and they are trying a lot harder to mold the thought and the standards of living in their home communities than their grandmothers ever dreamed of doing.

Being afraid there might be another flood, for it had been raining about a week, I decided to make a closer study of women in general and see if there were any truth in the newspaper man's convictions that if the world did come to an end in the next ten years, it would be blamed for it. And believing the daily paper is the truest mirror of the social and moral conditions of any city, town, community, or whole nation for that matter, I picked up the morning paper to study its front page to see what it had to say about women. And this is what I found:

The first new item on the page about a woman had this headline, "Death for Girl on Her Wedding Day." Then followed this pathetic story: "Miss Nella Mae Young died last night. The day was to have been her wedding day, which had been delayed for years owing to the determination of the young woman to put two of her younger brothers through school." Two inches were given to this tragic story of a sister's love and devotion to her little brothers.

Another woman on the front page that morning was Mrs. Pearl Hussey Flanagan of Wichita, Kansas, singer and music teacher, who had returned from Paris to raise an endowment for a 15th Century chateau which had been given her by a citizen of Paris to use as a school for American girls who want to study music abroad. Two inches were allotted to this item plus the lady's photo.

The third item announced the fact that Mrs. Peterson Thompson, famous opera and concert singer of Amarillo, was one of the Texas women whose name appeared in this year's Who's Who. A half inch of space was given this notice.

A fourth item gave an inch space to Glenna Collett, who had scored a victory as a national golf champion. The fifth name on the front page that day was that of Mrs. M. D. Hornsby of Austin, who had sent her dying message to her son, leader of the St. Louis Cardinals, to stay with his team and lead them on to victory, which meant she would rather sacrifice her last word with her son, and her last look into his face than have him lose the goal of his ambitions. Does that look like a mother who is dead? There were two and one half inches of space given to that story of mother's devotion.

And then came Aimee. She was the only one with a whole sheet headline. And to her was devoted almost an entire column. The other five women received in all a total of eight inches of space while Aimee, not including the headlines, had ten inches devoted to her faithless performance. But anyway, it was mighty proud of that front page with its five wonderful women on it. And these are a few of the lessons I gleaned from studying the women on the front page of just one State newspaper one morning:

First, that the women of Texas and America are just as great and good as they ever were. That we still have just as brave and loyal sisters and just as devoted mothers as ever lived in any generation. That we have just as public spirited, just as highly cultured and just as strong, clean, athletic among our women in 1926 as in any year of our Lord.

And don't you think it was fine that there were five fine, noble women on that page to the one doubtful one? And I have been watching the front page of all the dailies that come to my home every day since and so far I find that Aimee is the only woman in the whole nation for the past month that has made big enough fool of herself to get on the front page almost every day.

And who puts her there? Do the women? Do we want such characters flung in our face every day as typical specimens of the 20th Century woman? She is so rare is the reason the newspapers have to make so much out of her.

And that is one reason the women of our day look so bad to a lot of our newspaper people. They have to look at the same woman so often and they get the idea she is a different person every day, it seems.

But there are just two ways for us women to help overcome this just criticism of our race. One is for more of us to do worth-while things. And the other is to be more diligent in sending the big things our women do to the press. The average newspaper is just as anxious to print the good things women are doing as the bad things. But the good things are so common they are hard to locate. It seems to take a death or a tragedy in the home to bring them to light. What we women need most is more encouragement in the good we are doing and less publicity of our bad qualities.

A. E. McDaniel, who has been in the hospital for the past week with a crushed foot, was able to be removed to his home in the city on Saturday evening.

ONE WAY TRAFFIC ONLY

IT WOULD BE a mighty good plan for the City Council to decree that Brady avenue be a one-way street from the Austin Avenue subway to Roman street, in order that the menace of accidents in the subway might be decreased. Most people—all those who are genuinely careful while driving motor cars—already use it for one-way traffic only, but there are a few stragglers and a few dare-devils who insist upon driving into the subway from Brady, and the piles of glass and splinters of wood that are to be seen in the subway from time to time are mute testimonials to their foolishness.

It was unfortunate that the Austin Avenue subway had to be constructed as it was, but due to the inability of the city and of the Santa Fe railway company to secure property needed for opening a new street into Austin Avenue from the west, no other plan of construction appeared to be possible several years ago when the subway was built. Now the traffic through the subway is so very heavy that strict regulations to prevent accidents is necessary, and the inbound traffic from Brady Avenue ought to be prohibited entirely. Such a prohibition would cause some inconvenience, perhaps, to a few citizens living on Brady Avenue in the immediate vicinity of the subway, but very few of these citizens now use the subway except in out-bound driving.

A special ordinance, backed up by adequate signs and proper enforcement efforts, declaring the Brady Avenue part of the subway a one-way street, would make the subway much safer for all the traffic that must use the subway each day.

"Farmers' teeth will be studied at A. & M. College," says a headline. Maybe that's what's wrong with the cotton market.

The New Oldsmobile

De Luxe Sedan

Longer Life

Added Power

Greater Economy

Added Driving Ease

Finer Appointments

No Increase in Prices

Added Beauty and Security

Dual Air Cleaning In this new Oldsmobile, a master air cleaner eliminates the injurious particles from two-thirds of the air before it enters the carburetor directly—while the second cleaner, in connection with crankcase ventilation, cleans the balance of the air.

Crankcase Ventilation In all internal combustion engines water is formed by condensation. Cold engines do not burn all of the fuel on starting. This water and liquid fuel pass into the crankcase and form crankcase dilution. Excessive dilution is eliminated by crankcase ventilation. It draws off water vapor and unburned fuel that may have passed into the crankcase. Crankcase ventilation improves performance and gives longer life to the engine and oil.

Oil Filter An oil filter has been added to this Oldsmobile, prolonging still more the life of the engine and the useful life of the oil. Should the filter become clogged with sediments, the lubricating system functions in the common manner. All principal parts are pressure lubricated.

Harmonic Balancer The Harmonic Balancer, developed by General Motors engineers, counteracts vibration and gives Oldsmobile a smoothness, at both low and high speeds, you will quickly recognize when you take the wheel.

Twin-Beam Light Control Head lamps have double-filament bulbs, one filament for "bright action" and one for "dim action." On "dim action" the light is bright but thrown at a down angle that protects the oncoming driver and gives ample vision to the Oldsmobile driver.

Larger L-Head Engines, Two-Way Cooling, Three-Way Pressure Lubrication, Full Automatic Spark Control, Thermostatic Charging Control, Tapered Dome-Shaped Combustion Chambers, High Velocity Hot-Section Manifold, Special Design Light Cast-Iron Pistons, Honed Cylinders, Silent Chain Drive, Halcon Tires, Exclusive Chromium Plating, Duo Finish; new beauty of line and appointments of Fisher Bodies; many other features of demonstrated worth, at no increase in standard prices, with G. M. A. C. Time Payment Plan, if desired.

COTTON DROP IS RETARDANT TO BUSINESS

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 30.—(P)—In the past month the salient development in the business situation of the eleventh federal reserve district was the drastic decline in the cotton market, the monthly report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas issued today says. "Concerned with his decline there was a slowing up in trade activity and in the seasonal liquidation of indebtedness" the report read. "The slackening of trade and collections, however, may be ascribed in part to the fact that the marketing of the district's cotton has been retarded by wet weather, bad roads and a shortage in the supply of cotton pickers. Despite these deterrent factors there is a strong undertone of confidence and stability in the business situation in this section, due largely to the aggressive manner in which business and agricultural leaders have attacked the problem of stabilizing the cotton situation. "Among the competing factors which tend to offset the severe decline in the market price of cotton is the prospect that low prices will greatly stimulate consumption and that the farmers of the eleventh district will be in a position to produce the 1927 crop at a minimum cost on account of the extraordinary yield of feed produced this year. "The distribution of merchandise in both wholesale and retail channels continued large in September. Department store sales reflected an increase of 25 per cent, as compared to August and were seven per cent above the same month last year. Wholesale trade was in a slightly larger volume than in the previous month and was substantially in excess of a year ago."

800-BARREL WELL IN EASTLAND FIELD IS ATTRACTING NOTICE

EASTLAND, Nov. 1.—An 800-barrel well, biggest completion in recent months in the Eastland field, is drawing attention to an area that has been inactive for the last three years. The well is the Ramsomer No. 1 and incidentally marks the come-back of Col. Robert D. Gordon, one of the best known operators of the Central West Texas district. Gordon, a lieutenant colonel overseas in the World War and a veteran of the Spanish-American War, and Pershing's expedition into Mexico, discovered the Lake Eastland field five years ago and drilled 20 producers in succession but lost everything in a series of swift reverses. The well is only three feet in the sand. It has been producing for three weeks from the black lime but was deepened to the Ranger pay, 3,723 feet and responded with the increased flow. A drilling campaign is predicted for the area which is nine miles northwest of Eastland. The well is in the middle of a 320-acre lease. Root & Rhodes of Eastland have a 480 barrel well at 1,200 feet in the Cross Cut field—the Teston No. 12. Their Moore No. 5 is in for 177 barrels. The company now has nearly 40 producers in the Cross Cut field. The States Oil and McLeester Oil corporations of Eastland have completed their No. 14 Woolridge for 125 barrels at 1,300 feet in the Cross Cut area.

D. 1926, in suit, numbered on the docket of said Court No. 4923, wherein Sylvia J. Parker, a feme sole, is plaintiff, and J. L. Miller and Lester Miller, are defendants; said petition alleging that: On the 1st day of September, 1926, plaintiff was lawfully seized and possessed of and was the actual possessor of the tract and parcel of land hereinafter described; holding and owning the same in fee simple, and ever since said date, has been the owner of and entitled to the possession thereof, to wit: a certain tract and parcel of land situated in Brown county, Texas, and known as the southeast one-fourth of Section No. 32, Certificate No. 5-84, H. T. & R. Ry. Co. lands, and located about 18 miles north 40 west from Brownwood, and said tract and parcel described by metes and bounds as follows, to-wit: Beginning at a stone mound for the southeast corner of said Section No. 32, which is the southeast corner of this tract, and from which corner a P. Plaintiff further alleges that on the 1st day of September, A. D. 1926, she had title to the above described tract and parcel of land involved in this suit, not only by regular and consecutive chain of deeds and transfers from the sovereignty of the soil to herself, but also by virtue of the statute of limitation of five years, in this: That she and those whose estate she has, and under whom she claims, claiming same under deeds, duly registered, had had and held peaceable and adverse possession of said tract and parcel of land, cultivating, using and enjoying the same, and paying all taxes due thereon as they accrued for a period of more than five years next before the commencement of this suit, and also by virtue of the statute of limitation of five years in this: That she and those whose estate she has, and under whom she claims, claiming same under deeds, duly registered, had had and held peaceable and adverse possession of said tract and parcel of land, cultivating, using and enjoying the same, and paying all taxes due thereon as they accrued for a period of more than five years next before the commencement of this suit; and that defendants are asserting some kind of a title to said tract and parcel of land, or some kind of liens upon or against same, the nature and character of which, plaintiff is unable to state; that defendants have no valid claim to said tract and parcel of land, and have no right, title or interest therein, by lien or otherwise, or right to the possession thereof, but are naked trespassers; Wherefore, plaintiff prays that defendants be cited to answer this petition, that upon a hearing of this cause plaintiff have judgment against all of said defendants decreeing plaintiff to be the owner of said tract and parcel of land, and awarding to said plaintiff the title to, and possession thereof, and a writ of possession of same, and cancelling all claims, liens and pretended liens, asserted by defendants, or either of them; and that all clouds cast upon plaintiff's title to said tract and parcel of land by reason of defendants' said claims, liens or pretended liens, be moved; that plaintiff be established, confirmed and quieted in her title to the same, that she have judgment for her costs, and she also asks for

HARD BATTLE IS CERTAIN IN FRIDAY GAME

The Texas Tech Matadors, who will reach this city sometime today or their game tomorrow with the long Daniel Baker Hill Billies, have a good record in all the games played this year. The Matadors have amassed a total score of 44 points as compared with 22 points made by the opposition. 25 of the points being made by T. C. U. according to the total scores made by each team. The Matadors and the Billies seem to have the stronger offense, and the defense also seems to be stronger, as they twelve points have been scored against the Billies in the six games played. The Matadors, like the Billies, have a husky team and go about as fast as the Billies. The teams are composed of second year men, but the Billies have two fourth year men and one or two old year men.

IN THE FOURTEENTH DISTRICT

HARRY WURZBACH was re-elected and re-destined to be re-elected as Texas' only Republican Congressman...

Conditions in the Fourteenth District have been unusual from many viewpoints. Under normal conditions a Republican has about as much chance of winning a Congressional race in any Texas district as a Democrat has of getting hold of a postoffice under Calvin Coolidge...

This reminds us of some of the history of the Fourteenth District. A day or two ago it was erroneously stated in this newspaper that the Hon. Jas. L. Slayden was defeated by Carlos Bee a few years ago...

Woodrow Wilson and Jas. L. Slayden have both passed on, and it seems as if Democratic representation from the Fourteenth District may also have passed on; for Mr. Wurzbach, although a Republican, is a very good Congressman...

ONE WAY TRAFFIC ONLY

IT WOULD BE a mighty good plan for the City Council to decree that Brady avenue be a one-way street from the Austin Avenue subway to Roman street...

It was unfortunate that the Austin Avenue subway had to be constructed as it was, but due to the inability of the city and of the Santa Fe railway company to secure property needed for opening a new street into Austin Avenue from the west...

A special ordinance, backed up by adequate signs and proper enforcement efforts, declaring the Brady Avenue part of the subway a one-way street, would make the subway much safer for all the traffic that must use the subway each day.

"Farmers' teeth will be studied at A. & M. College," says a headline. Maybe that's what's wrong with the cotton market.

Contemporary Thought

PROVES THE CASE

Atlanta Constitution: The Constitution for years has urged the farmers of Georgia, and of the South, to so balance their production program that something would be going to the market practically all the time, that food and feed in sufficiency for home consumption be annually grown...

Fortunately, Georgia farmers have slowly but surely moved forward toward balanced programs. It is serving the state well in the present cotton situation. This state was never in better economic condition than it is today. If cotton should fail to live a pound Georgia, and a great majority of the Georgia farmers, would still be independent.

As an illustration of what can be done, with proper effort and the heartening strength of determination, a small fifty-acre farm, operated with only two plows, in Warren county, may be cited. The facts have been submitted to the Constitution by T. E. Massengale of Norwood. The farm belongs to A. R. Shivers, and the owner—who operates it himself without tenants—has prepared for the Constitution a statement of what he has grown and sold this year. It follows in his own language:

"Sold from farm during 1926, corn raised in 1925, 200; hogs, 1380; potato slips, 450; strawberries, 25; sweet potatoes from one and one-half acres, $705. Picked thirty bales of cotton from twenty-five acres, and harvested an excellent corn crop. Mrs. Shivers has a yard of fine turkeys and chickens."

To sum it up, Mr. Shivers has collected in cash $1,150 this year, "lived at home" with the best of food in abundance, fed his stock from his own fields, has his corn cribs full for another year, and has thirty bales of cotton under his shellers that represent a full 199 per cent surplus. He can hold it indefinitely if he desires. He is independent without it.

Could there be a more unchallengeable example of thrift, and of the saving grace of proper diversification?

HYPNOTIZED TO WEIL

New York Evening Post: Charles Klein, author of "The Music Master," in which David Warfield reached the height of his theatrical career, wrote the play under the influence of hypnosis. Klein was being treated by Dr. John D. Quackenbush, specialist in mental nervous diseases, who died recently, shortly before his death, Quackenbush declared he was not a hypnotist in the popular sense.

"I do not make any passes or do anything like that to my patients. I give them a drug that puts their bodies to sleep but leaves their minds free," he explained. "With this drug and through suggestion I make the judgment infallible. I make it impossible for a man to deceive himself. That, in a nutshell, is the secret of my influence in bringing men and women back to mental health."

It was treatment such as this that Klein was receiving when he was inspired to write his famous play.

DAILY WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—John Hays Hammond will be President Coolidge's pick for one of the commissioners of the District of Columbia if he had his voting residence here, according to talk around the White House executive offices.

In a physical sense the old mining engineer does live here rather more than half the time, in perhaps the most beautiful home in Washington.

He has another place at Gloucester, Mass., but officially he's a New Yorker. That lets him out as a candidate for a District of Columbia Commission.

Hammond has in what he calls the "den," in his Washington chatel, probably the most remarkable collection of photographs in the world. "Den" suggests a small place but this is a very large room and, from top to bottom, all four walls are covered with framed pictures of the notabilities its owner has known personally in the course of his long and adventurous career in nearly every country on earth.

These were not ordinary folk. They were the kind who made history—kings, queens and presidents, empire builders, commanders of fleets and armies, lords and ladies, famous authors and artists, cabinet members, explorers, celebrities of every sort and description.

To the last one, these photographs are autographed to John Hays Hammond.

A mighty millionaire and one of the world's foremost mining authorities, Hammond met all these great ones of the earth on terms of equality.

With some of them he has had business relationships. Others he has known intimately socially. He was American envoy at King George's coronation, for instance, and there—he points to it—is the photograph George gave him, with his royal signature on it.

Here's the visage of some Russian potentate whose acquaintance he made while prospecting for gold in Siberia.

There are the portraits of three men with whom he was sentenced to be hanged for rebellion against the government of the now-defunct "Prussia."

Hammond isn't at all chummy about his acquaintanceships.

He's a quiet little man of 71, who spends a large part of his spare time visiting with the children at a municipal playground near his Washington mansion. He's extraordinarily fond of children.

TEXAS AND TEXANS

BY WILL H. MAYES

"TURN TEXAS LOOSE"

THE Southern Railway Railroad is seeking permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to extend its line 28 miles to Brownsville, and it is stated that this will be contested strongly by the Missouri Pacific on the ground that the territory is already served by the latter road. In other words, the Missouri Pacific claims that it got there first and therefore the country it traverses belongs to it insofar as railroad transportation is concerned.

It would seem to the Parson that the project for water supply and flood control should commend itself to everybody. Aside from all question of the growth of the city of Brownwood and the county in numbers, the assurance of a greater productivity of the soil, as well as the protection from flood for ourselves and others are recommendation enough.

It is not at all anxious for the growth of the city. We have enough of them and they are the most serious problem of the time. But he is concerned in all that would tend to make life in the country more prosperous and more happy. The soil, when all is said and done, is the source of all real wealth whatever the tillers of the soil are the support of us all.

Meantime, the Parson has noted that of late our water has again become only semi-transparent, if it is even so much. The bottom of the Parson's bath tub is again invisible when it is full and is covered with a base slime when it is empty. That is not necessary so is proved by experience, that it is so proved by simple observation. Let us have clear water by all means, even if we cannot have the great lake many of us are hoping for.

Harry Schwenker of The Brady Standard in a late issue noted his seventeenth anniversary of his paper. The Parson intended to remark on this before now, but in some way this note was mislaid. He hastens to repair his negligence. He well remembers the advent of Harry, then a very youthful looking individual. The Parson wondered in the world as to whether making of The Standard was a feasible enterprise. It has thrived and the Parson congratulates the editor. Conditions in Brady were not altogether promising. But the evil days are past and Brady is a lively and growing town.

So long as a man maintains his body in health, as the instrument whereby he is to do his work in the world, so long as he cultivates and exercises his intellect, in order that he may more fully serve God and his generations; so long as he seeks the substance and the show of power that he may more perfectly fulfill the purpose for which he was sent into the world; so long as there are no hindrances, but helps, no enemies but God-given friends. Wordiness is an attitude of the soul and will find expression in all that we do; yea, even before the altar of the Highest. Faith overcomes it by holding fast to the truth that to walk after the flesh, to let anything that belongs to time engross our thought and effort, is unworthy; to seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of the Father, is to fulfill our high destiny as the sons of God.

By Phoebe K. Warner

So much is being said these days about the foolishness of women that it seems the most of us are going to have to do something marvelous if we are ever able to sell our best selves again to public opinion.

The dear old dead ladies of a hundred years ago are constantly held up before us as the model wives and mothers and daughters of all ages. One of the leading newspaper men in Texas said to me the other day that he honestly believed if women did not change their ways that the Lord would bring the world to an end within another ten years.

And he said it in a tone that sounded as though he were actually suffering over the fallen condition of Texas women. I really felt sorry for him and wondered where he got his ideas. For honestly, so far as I can see the women out our way are working just as hard as ever, they are just as good housekeepers and cooks as ever. They are the most faithful wives and mothers it has ever been my privilege to know. They are saving and sacrificing every day to pay for their homes and to give their children a better education and a better start in life than they had.

For the life of me I don't see a thing in the world the exalter of the Panhandle mothers except they know more about the world they are living than their grandmothers knew and they are trying a lot harder to hold the thought and the standards of living in their home communities than their grandmothers ever dreamed of doing.

But fearing there might be another flood, for it had been raining for about a week, I decided to make a closer study of women in general and see if there were any truth in the newspaper man's convictions that if the world did come to an end in the next ten years we women would be blamed for it. And believing the daily paper is the trust mirror of the social and moral conditions of any city, town, community, or the whole nation for that matter, I picked up the morning paper to study its front page to see what it had to say about women. And this is what I found:

The first news item on the page about a woman had this headline, "Death for Girl on Her Wedding Day." Then followed this pathetic story: "Miss Nella Mae Young died last night. The day was to have been her wedding day, which had been delayed for years owing to the determination of the young woman to put two of her younger brothers through school." Two inches were given to this tragic story of a sister's love and devotion to her little brother.

Another woman on the front page that morning was Mrs. Pearl Hussey Plonagan of Wichita, Kansas, singer and music teacher, who had returned from Paris to raise an endowment for a 13th Century chateau which had been given her by a citizen of Paris to use as a school for American girls who want to study music abroad. Two inches were allotted to this item plus the lady's photo.

The third item announced the fact that May Peterson Thompson, famous opera and concert singer of Amarillo, was one of the Texas women whose name appeared in this year's Who's Who. A half inch of space was given this notice.

A fourth item gave us a little space to Glenna Collett, who had scored a victory as a national golf champion. The fifth name on the front page that day was that of Mrs. M. D. Hornsby of Austin, who had sent her dining message to her son, leader of the St. Louis Cardinals, to stay with his team and lead them to victory, which meant she would rather sacrifice her last word with her son, and her last look into his face than have him lose the goal of his ambitions. Does that look like a woman whose love is dead? There were two and one half inches of space given to that story of mother's devotion.

And then came Aimee. She was the only one with a whole sheet headline. And to her was devoted almost an entire column. The other five women received in all a total of eight inches of space while Aimee, not including the headlines, had ten inches devoted to her faithless performances. But any way, I was mighty proud of that front page with its five wonderful women. And these are a few of the lessons I gleaned from studying the women on the front page of just one State newspaper one morning:

First, that the women of Texas and America are just as great and good as they ever were. That we still have just as brave and loyal sisters and just as devoted mothers as ever lived in any generation. That we have just as public spirited, just as highly cultured and just as strong, clean, athletic among our women in 1926 as in any year of our Lord.

And don't you think it was fine that there were five fine, noble women on that page to the one doubtful one? And I have been watching the front page of all the dailies that come to my home every day since and so far I find that Aimee is the only woman in the whole nation for the past month that has made big things of the world like a man. It seems to me that she is a person every day. It seems to me that there are just two ways for us women to help overcome this unjust criticism of our race. One is for more of us to DO worthwhile things. And the other is to be more diligent in sending the big things our women do to the press. The average newspaper is just as anxious to print the good things women are doing as the bad things. But the good things are so common they are hard to locate. It seems to me that if a tragedy in the home or bring them to light. What we women need most is more encouragement in the good we are doing and less publicity of our bad qualities.

De Luxe Sedan

Longer Life

Greater Economy

Added Driving Ease

Finer Appointments

No Increase in Prices

Added Beauty and Security

Dual Air Cleaning In this new Oldsmobile, a master air cleaner eliminates the injurious particles from two-thirds of the air before it enters the carburetor directly—while the second cleaner, in connection with crankcase ventilation, cleans the balance of the air.

Crankcase Ventilation In all internal combustion engines water is formed by condensation. Cold engines do not burn all of the fuel on starting. This water and liquid fuel pass into the crankcase and forms crankcase dilution. Excessive dilution is eliminated by crankcase ventilation. It draws off water vapor and unburned fuel that may have passed into the crankcase. Crankcase ventilation improves performance and gives longer life to the engine and oil.

Oil Filter An oil filter has been added to this Oldsmobile, prolonging still more the life of the engine and the useful life of the oil. Should the filter become clogged with sediments, the lubricating system functions in the common manner. All principal parts are pressure lubricated.

Harmonic Balancer The Harmonic Balancer, developed by General Motors engineers, counteracts vibration and gives Oldsmobile a smoothness, at both low and high speeds, you will quickly recognize when you take the wheel.

Twin-Beam Light Control Head lamps have double-filament bulbs, one filament for "bright action" and one for "dim action." On "dim action" the light is bright but thrown at a down angle that protects the oncoming driver and gives ample vision to the Oldsmobile driver.

Larger L-Head Engines, Two-Way Cooling, Three-Way Pressure Lubrication, Full Automatic Spark Control, Thermostatic Charging Control, Tapered Dome-Shaped Combustion Chambers, High Velocity Hot-Section Manifold, Special Design Light Cast-Iron Pistons, Honed Cylinders, Silent Chain Drive, Balloon Tires, Exclusive Chromium Plating, Duco Finish, new beauty of line and appointments of Fisher Bodies; many other features of demonstrated worth, at no increase in standard prices, with G. M. A. C. Time Payment Plan, if desired.

COTTON DROP IS RETARDANT TO BUSINESS

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 30.—(P)—In the past month the salient development in the business situation of the eleven federal reserve districts was the drastic decline in the cotton market, the monthly report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas issued today says. "Concurrent with his decline there was a slowing up in trade activity and in the seasonal liquidation of indebtedness" the report reads. "The slackening of trade and collections, however, may be ascribed in part to the fact that the marketing of the district's cotton has been retarded by wet weather, bad roads and a shortage in the supply of cotton pickers. Despite these deterrent factors there is a strong undertone of confidence and stability in the business situation in this section, due largely to the aggressive manner in which business and agricultural leaders have attacked the problem of stabilizing the cotton situation. "Among the compensating factors which tend to offset the severe decline in the market price of cotton is the prospect that low prices will greatly stimulate consumption and that the farmers of the eleven district will be in a position to produce the 1927 crop at a minimum cost on account of the extraordinary yield of feed produced this year. "The distribution of merchandise in both wholesale and retail channels continued large in September. Department store sales reflected an increase of 25 per cent, as compared to August and were seven per cent above the same month last year. Wholesale trade was a slightly larger volume than in the previous month and was substantially in excess of a year ago."

800-BARREL WELL IN EASTLAND FIELD IS ATTRACTING NOTICE

EASTLAND, Nov. 1.—An 800-barrel well, biggest completion in recent months in the Eastland field, is drawing attention to an area that has been inactive for the last three years. The well is the Ramsour No. 1 and incidentally marks the come-back of Col. Robert D. Gordon, one of the best known operators of the Central West Texas district. Gordon, a lieutenant colonel overseas in the World War and a veteran of the Spanish-American War and Pershing's expedition into Mexico, discovered the Lake Eastland field five years ago and drilled 20 producers in succession but lost everything in a series of swift reverses. The well is only three feet in the sand. It has been producing for three weeks from the black line but was deepened to the Ranger pay, 3,723 feet and responded with the increased flow. A drilling campaign is predicted for the area which is nine miles northwest of Eastland. The well is in the middle of a 320-acre lease. Root & Rhodes of Eastland have a 480 barrel well at 1,200 feet in the Cross Cut field—the Teston No. 12. Their Moore No. 5 is in for 177 barrels. The company now has nearly 40 producers in the Cross Cut field. The States Oil and McLeester Oil corporations of Eastland have completed their No. 1 Woolridge for 135 barrels at 1,200 feet in the Cross Cut area.

T. & B. Ry. Co. lands, and located about 18 miles north 40 west from Brownwood, and said 171 acres described by metes and bounds as follows, to-wit: Beginning at a stone mound for the southeast corner of said Section No. 32, which is the southeast corner of this tract, and from which corner a P. Plaintiff further alleges that on the 1st day of September, A. D. 1926, she had title to the above described tract and parcel of land involved in this suit, not only by regular and consecutive chain of deeds and transfers from the sovereignty of the soil to herself, but also by virtue of the statute of limitation of five years, in this: That she and those whose estate she has, and under whom she claims, claiming same under deeds, duly registered, had had and held peaceable and adverse possession of said tract and parcel of land, cultivating, using and enjoying the same, and paying all taxes due thereon as they accrued for a period of more than five years next before the commencement of this suit, and also by virtue of the statute of limitation of ten years, in this: That she and those whose estate she has, and under whom she claims, claiming to have good and perfect title to said tract and parcel of land, had had and held peaceable and adverse possession of same for a period of more than ten years next before the commencement of this suit. CONVICTION OF MRS. COLLIER IS AFFIRMED

AUSTIN, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Holding that the trial court had not erred in submitting the issue of whether Mrs. Frank Collier was a principal in the killing of her son-in-law, Elsie (Duster) Robertson, by her husband, the court of criminal appeals today affirmed Mrs. Collier's 10 year murder sentence from Haskell county.

The killing took place in Wichita Falls of which Frank Collier was the mayor at the time. "While the facts are not as strong as they might be, yet we believe they are of sufficient probative force to warrant the verdict," said the opinion.

The opinion pointed out that the record shows that immediately before Collier fired, Mrs. Collier said "something" to Collier. Robertson was with his mother the night he was killed and the record shows Mrs. Collier said to her husband, "Roll the car back, Frank, so she can see him herself; let's roll the car back so she can see he is dead."

The court also held the trial court had not erred in refusing to charge on manslaughter.

"The evidence introduced for the appellant was exceedingly meager, and whatever may have been the passion existed in the appellant's mind, the record fails to show any adequate cause for such passion."

"It would hardly do to announce a doctrine in Texas that because a young girl refuses to become separated from her husband at her mother's request that such refusal constitute adequate cause."

The Proceedings.

PEOPLE ARE ASKED TO HELP MAKE ARMISTICE DAY PROGRAM GREAT

Commander J. Claude Smith of the Isham A. Smith Post of the American Legion, expressed the hope today that the program arranged by the Legion at Brownwood for a great Armistice Day would be carried out in keeping with the importance of the occasion. In this connection he said:

"During the period in which the United States was involved in the World War, there was no country more patriotic, no more self-sacrificing in giving its sons for service, than America. Our people rallied to every move—they gave of their sons, they gave of their time, they bought Liberty Bonds, and investments, they held patriotic meetings, they lauded every move for the boys who were in uniform. Then Armistice Day came, the day when active combat between the allied armies and the Germans was to cease. This day brought to the American people their greatest joy, and their greatest relief. This was the day on which was signed the treaty, that assured our fathers and our mothers that no more blood would be drawn from the veins of their sons by the fearful German sword. But that day one might see had anything for the soldier, from the people, mercy for the asking.

"Today what is the case? Has it been forgotten that these same boys were at the front fighting on the day before November 11th, 1918, are now among the same fathers and mothers who were so proud of them on that date? Can it be that they have in no short a time forgot those boys and the deeds they wrought during the tragic days of the World War? Surely we are not oblivious to these heroic achievements of the boys, who were the American heroes. The same boys, many of them suffered and are still suffering both physically and financially from the effects of the war. We want you to help them, with your little donations towards their relief."

"Are you going to disappoint them? Would you have disappointed them on November 11th, 1918? Think on this matter, men and let's advise if we can't get behind these Brown County boys and show them that we as citizens still appreciate their efforts of the past, you may rest assured that the American Legion boys appreciate to the fullest extent any favor that is shown them by the citizenship of Brownwood and Brown county. Don't wait to be solicited. Make a gift and feel good."

J. CLAUDE SMITH, Post Commander American Legion.

ARMISTICE DAY TO BE REPETITION OF REAL EVENT AT WAR CLOSE

Great times are anticipated in Brownwood on Armistice Day. The Isham A. Smith post American Legion has a program, which is believed to be about the best ever staged in Brownwood. There will be a big parade starting at 10:30 at Howard Payne College campus. This parade will be headed by the mayor and will move down Center Ave. to courthouse square, thence over to East Broadway, where it merges into Park, on Park to East. Baker thence east on East Baker to the Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall.

The Daniel Baker band and other bands will take part in the parade and it is requested that every student of all the schools in Brownwood, and the colleges as well, take part in the parade, also every civic and fraternal society, or club, or organization, in order to make the parade as lengthy as possible. The day is to be given over to the holiday spirit and every person who has a flag or can get one should place it in the parade, either at place of business or at residence. Cowbells, tin pans, horns, in fact anything that will make a noise will be acceptable for the parade in order to make the day a duplicate as near as possible, the real original armistice day. The writer was telegraph editor of the Lake Charles American Press, when the real armistice day came—the first flash coming as soon as the wire was opened at 7 o'clock and then gradually bedlam broke loose. One aged woman called over the telephone to know if it was true and when informed that it was, she fainted dead away, and it took several hours to revive her. The news came, bulletin after bulletin followed in quick succession, and if anybody ever saw a newspaper of the day burst into life, that was the day and time. Of course an extra was the thing and to this the energies of every man in the office was feverishly directed.

A Near Tragedy When America entered the world war, the manager of the American Press ordered word "P-E-A-C-E" in letters six inches long set up and put aside, to use he said when peace was declared. So on that fateful morning, when the flash came over the wire he rushed down stairs, laid it out on the coming extra, and then started out to get the pressman, who as a rule did not come on until ten o'clock. When the pressman was found he was drunk, something that had not occurred before. He was dead to the world, and so efforts were started to revive him, cold water, sponging and other methods being used. He finally got able to operate the press in a perfunctory way, three hours late, and when the Lake Charles paper, which should have been on the streets in thirty minutes came from the press, the Beaumont Enterprise, had rushed an automobile load of extras to Lake Charles and they were sold simultaneously with the local paper. It was a great disappointment, but it couldn't be helped. The day was a busy one—from the coming out of the first edition to the last at 6 o'clock six editions were issued, the telegraph editor remaining in his chair the whole time without a drop to drink or bite to eat. But it was a great day.

In the afternoon there will be a football game between Daniel Baker and St. Edwards team of Austin.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Harry Houdini's mysterious feats of escape, which thrilled spectators throughout the world in his life, today were locked in the mystery of death.

The magician, hailed by his fellow workers as the greatest of them all, died here last night, taking with him the secrets of how he escaped from manacles, chains, coffins, straight jackets and other contrivances, performances which no other man ever had duplicated under his challenge.

Although Houdini wrote copiously on magic, the fruit of his quarter of a century experience as a conjuror, his managers announced that his own methods never were revealed.

"His stunts were his own and not adapted from something some one else had done," said B. M. Ernst, vice president of the Society of American Magicians, offering an explanation of his unrevealed mysteries.

Although Houdini performed the usual run of magical tricks, and gained considerable notice for his untricking attacks on spirit mediums, the public probably was most attracted to his adeptness in releasing himself from almost any kind of confinement that could be devised.

A Favorite Trick.

One of his favorite tricks he permitted himself to be bound hand and foot in a box wrapped under water. He escaped from thousands of straight jackets, picked innumerable locks and freed himself while hanging from a derrier in manacles and straight jacket.

Probably one of his most spectacular feats, also one of his latest, was when he was confined in a coffin under water for ninety minutes. This performance resulted from his long standing challenge that he could duplicate or expose any seeming magic trick. Hagen Bey, an Egyptian man of magic, had been creating discussion by remaining in a sealed coffin under water for 19 minutes and he accepted Houdini's defy to duplicate the trick.

Short breaths and conservation of oxygen did it, was Houdini's explanation after he had bested the Egyptian at his own game by remaining under water more than four times as long.

Began When Child.

Although Houdini's appearance before the public began at the age of eight as a trapeze performer with a circus troupe, he first turned attention to the business of lock picking when he was six, without keys when he was eight to a locksmith in Appleton, Wis., his birthplace, after his mother objected to a continuation of his circus career.

The trick of opening handcuffs was discovered when a handcuffed prisoner was brought into Appleton by a sheriff who had lost his keys. Houdini said the trick was known only to him, his wife, and his mother.

One of the magician's standing offers, which he never had to pay, was $10,000 to any medium who could produce phenomena which he could not reproduce solely by his strength and mental agility.

Houdini was born in Appleton, Wis., April 6, 1874, the son of

BUTLER LOSES SENATE SEAT TO DEMOCRAT

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The squall that rocked the republican brig yesterday washed away most of the party's majority in the senate, receding its margin in the House, and still waging a scare today to some of the crew of stalwarts.

Senator Butler of Massachusetts, the republican national chairman, succumbed to a surging billow of votes for former Senator Wadsworth of New York, was buried under the same landslide that returned Al Smith to the governor's chair at Albany by a quarter of a million plurality.

Senators Harrell of Oklahoma, and Cameron of Arizona likewise passed out of the running, and the accumulating returns told of a continuing desperate struggle for survival by the republican senatorial nominees in Indiana, Maryland, Missouri, Oregon and Colorado. If the democrats win four of those seats they will have a Senate majority in the next Congress.

Democrats Gain Nine. The count in the House as it stood today with a half-hundred districts still missing showed a net Democratic gain of nine seats, not dangerous in itself, but likely to give western republican insurgents the balance of power should it be increased.

The off year setback that so often falls to the lot of the party in power came to visit the republicans in yesterday's elections, and the tide of the reversal did not take on the proportions of the mid-administration drubbings encountered by President Taft and Wilson. It cost the republicans some seats in both Senate and House, narrowing a margin of control already worn thin by the operations of the insurgents.

Outstanding democratic victories were recorded in New York, which by a quarter of a million majority re-elected Governor Smith, with what effect it may have on the governor's presidential candidacy in 1928, and in Massachusetts, which decisively defeated Senator

Butler, President Coolidge's personal friend and chairman of the republican national committee.

Wadsworth Loses

The New York slide also snowed under Senator Wadsworth, another republican power in the Senate, while Oklahoma, returning to the democratic fireside from which she strayed in the Harding republican year of 1921, refused to return Senator Harrell to Washington. Available returns show republican senatorial candidates either trailing or hard pressed in Arizona, Missouri, Kentucky, Maryland, Oregon, Colorado and Indiana. Until the result in that doubtful group is more clearly defined, it will be impossible to say with certainty that the republicans will retain even the paper majority they now have in the Senate.

In Indiana it is apparent that the Ku Klux Klan issue which came into renewed prominence this year before the Senate campaign investigating committee cut sharply into the normal majority, and that Senator "Jim" Watson and his running mate, Senator Robinson, were not destined for the easy victory they had expected. In Pennsylvania and Illinois, where republican campaigning funds were an issue, William S. Vare and Frank L. Smith, the republican nominees, were swept along to victory. Various democratic senators have declared neither will ever be seated.

Few House Upsets

A large bloc of seats in the House of Representatives still hung in the doubtful column today, though the republicans were working along toward perpetuation of their present control with only a few upsets. With a dozen or so doubtful districts already tucked away by the majority party, the democrats on the overnight returns had hung up a net gain of only six. A turnover of thirty-six would be needed to boost the democratic house strength to a majority.

Thirty-three states elected governors, and although the returns from many are far from complete, few changes of state administration are indicated. While Governor Smith was winning his fourth term, three of his democratic colleagues were likewise amassing pluralities that promised to give them new tenures as head of their respective state governments.

Ritchie of Maryland and Donahue of Ohio, each running for a third term, established comfortable leads as the returns came in, and Hunt of Arizona, already five times governor, was ahead by a narrower margin for a sixth term as state executive.

Mrs. Ross Uncertain

The country's only remaining woman governor Nellie Taylor Ross of Wyoming, did not find the going so easy, her republican opponent running almost even with her on incomplete returns. South Dakota, indulging in much ballot scratching, apparently had elected W. J. Bulow as its first democratic governor in a quarter of a century. Former Governor Davis made out poorly in his attempt to come back as democratic nominee in Kansas, but in Nebraska former Governor Charles W. Bryan, the running mate of John W. Davis in 1924, was keeping close to the republican opponent, Governor McMullen. Despite its defeat of Senator Butler, Massachusetts re-elected Governor Fuller, republican.

Prohibition figured as an issue in several of the senatorial and gubernatorial contests, and in eight states some feature of the dry laws was voted on directly as state-wide referendums, but the wets and drys still were figuring over the incomplete returns today before announcing their deductions. Governor Smith of New York and Governor Ritchie of Maryland ran on wet platforms, while Governor Donahue of Ohio was endorsed as a dry. Frank L. Smith, successful republican senatorial candidate in Illinois was endorsed by the Anti-Saloon League, which described his democratic opponent, George E. Brennan, as a "super wet." The same appellation was applied by the league to William S. Vare of Pennsylvania. In Ohio Senator Willis, republican and ardent dry, won handily over former Senator Pomerehne.

New York Goes Wet

Voting by referendum for modification of the Volstead act, New York state returned a wet majority of about 3 to 1. The voters of Illinois, passing judgment on a similar proposal, apparently endorsed it likewise by a substantial majority.

Wisconsin returns established an early overwhelming lead in favor of a petition for 2.75 per cent beer, while first incomplete figures showed wide majorities in Nevada in favor of a modification appeal to Congress. At the same time reports from California and Montana showed majorities for repeal of the state enforcement acts, while Missouri and Colorado, voting on the same question, were ording majorities in the negative.

The defeat of Senator Butler in Massachusetts was claimed as a victory by the wets, his successful democratic opponent, former Senator Walsh, having cast his lot long ago with the modificationists. Democratic spokesmen, however, were quick to describe the result as a rebuke to President Coolidge, who singled out Senator Butler as the only senatorial candidate to receive his personal endorsement.

Mr. Butler's defeat removes him immediately from his place in the Senate, where Senator Walsh now takes rank as the junior colleague of Senator Gillett, by whom he was defeated by a margin of 18,000 two years ago. Butler held office by appointment, and has been commissioned to serve as Lodge until the late Henry Cabot Lodge until a senator could be chosen at the polls. The unexpired term thus handed along by the voters to Walsh expires in 1929.

The Big Surprise

The overthrow of Senator Wadsworth by Judge Robert F. Wagner in New York, was perhaps the greatest surprise of all to the republican chieftains. They had been in some measure prepared for the re-election of Governor Smith, despite a fighting campaign by Representative Ogden L. Mills, the republican nominee, but they hoped at least to keep the governor's plurality within such bounds that the hazards attendant on a democratic landslide would be avoided. But Smith's tremendous vote in New York city was accompanied by such a shower of straight democratic ballots that Wadsworth found it impossible to overcome the Wagner majority. In greater New York with what remained of his own upstate vote after it had been split by Francis W. Cristman, the republican candidate, running as a dry.

The republican victories accorded William S. Vare in Pennsylvania and Frank L. Smith in Illinois were accompanied by a material falling off of the normal party majorities.

JOINT STATEMENT IS ISSUED RELATIVE TO FATAL GRID BATTLE

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 4.—(AP)—A joint statement relative to the events at Waco, October 26, which brought on an affray between Baylor and A. & M. students and which resulted in the death of Charles Sessums, A. & M. cadet, Dallas, was issued today.

The statement was signed by President T. O. Walton of A. & M. College and President S. P. Brooks of Baylor University.

The statement does not disclose the identity of the one who struck the blow. It calls attention to the fact that the events at football games and mentions that the spirit is much like a powder machine ready for instant explosion.

"The events of last Saturday," said the statement, "may be considered to have begun between the halves of the game with stunts organized under the direction of the yell leaders, as demonstrations of spirit, and infrequently the students have partaken of the nature of taunting the rival student body.

"The events of last Saturday may then be considered to have begun with a baricade, staged by Baylor student, of the Calisthenics drill frequently performed by the A. & M. cadets at previous football games. To the Baylor students it was mockery of other youngsters like themselves. To the A. & M. cadets it has the appearance of making sport of the uniform they wear as a feature of their military training, and had a significance their rivals did not suspect.

"Following this, an automobile, painted in Baylor colors on which were sent a number of Baylor young women students, bearing placards exhibiting the scores in Baylor football victories with various schools in the past and dressed in costumes, was driven across the field in front of the women in their costumes had been a feature of the home-coming program on the Baylor campus that morning.

"It would seem that the appearance of the car had different meanings to the two student bodies. The women, by whose leader it was that he had requested of the Baylor yell leader that a certain automobile used in a stunt at a former game be not brought on the field for fear trouble would result, and that he was told, and in turn told the cadets, that it would not be used. The cadets assert that they construed the use of any automobile as an evasion of a promise. We are confident that no such breach of faith was intended.

"When the automobile was moving in front of the portion of the grand stand where the A. & M. students were seated two students in uniform leaped the fence and ran to the car. One leaped upon the car and its occupants, the impact of this body causing one young lady to fall from the car to the ground.

"The Baylor men, regarding this as an indignity offered the young women, rushed to protect them. Other A. & M. students likewise rushed to the field and a general melee ensued, in which events occurred so rapidly that it is impossible to describe accurately what happened during the next few minutes.

"It is the testimony of A. & M. students that they did not recognize the occupants of the car as young women, but thought them to be boys dressed as young women.

"As soon as the clash started officials of both institutions, and others, rushed on the field and made strenuous efforts to stop the conflict, and succeeded in doing so in a very short time, considering the confusion."

HARD BATTLE IS CERTAIN IN FRIDAY GAME

The Texas Tech Matadors, who will reach this city sometime today for their game tomorrow with the strong Daniel Baker Hill Billies, have a good record in all the games played this year. The Matadors have amassed a total score of 44 points as compared with 22 points made by the opposition, 25 of the 32 points being made by T. U. According to the total scores made by each team, the Matadors and the Billies the Billies seem to have the stronger offense, and the defense also seems to be stronger, as only twelve points have been scored against the Billies in the six games played. The Matadors, like the Billies, have a husky team and are about as fast as the Billies. Both teams are composed of second year men, but the Billies have two fourth year men and one or two third year men.

The Billies have made a total of 193 points to their opponents' 12, in six games played. The Billies have averaged more than 2 touchdowns in each game played, while their opponents averaged one safety in each game, at least they have averaged two points in each game. Twice this season have the Billies been scored on, in the first and last game. In no game this season have the Billies failed to score, a record that has not been equaled by any T. I. A. team. If the Billies live up to their past records they are sure to do some scoring in tomorrow's game.

The following facts may give some insight as to why the opposition has been able to do more scoring than has been done this season against Daniel Baker. Mule Moore, who plays center for the Daniel Baker team, weighs 185 pounds, and is rangy and powerful. He is playing his second year on the Billies. On the left side of Moore is Head, a powerful and heady football player. He weighs about 180 pounds. On Moore's right, Mac Miller or Cobb, usually holds down right guard. Both of these men weigh more than 180 pounds and are experienced men. At left tackle is found Captain McInnis, a veteran of three seasons with the Daniel Baker team. McInnis weighs 185 pounds and is one of the deadliest tackles in the T. I. A. A. or any other conference in Texas. At right tackle another giant is found, he being Jack Roddie, a 190 pounder from Brady. Roddie is a tower of strength. Alvis Taylor plays at right tackle much of the time, and he is one of the best men on the squad at that position. He weighs 193 pounds and is playing his third year with the Billies. He is likely to start against the Matadors, as Roddie has an injured wrist. On the wings of the forward wall two of the best men on the T. I. A. A. are found, in Trammell and Montgomery. Trammell plays left-end and weighs 195 pounds. He is fast and a hard hitter, ask Mr. Estes of Simmons, Montgomery is not so large as Trammell but he tips the scales at 186 pounds. It is almost impossible to cut these two men out of a play around their ends. There are numerous good substitutes for the forward wall, that are too good to be kept on the sideline, but the rules of the game

MATADORS PEPPED UP FOR FRIDAY'S GAME WITH CHESTY BILLIES

LUBBOCK, Texas, Nov. 4.—Coming out of the T. C. U. game with a defeat, yet with no injuries, the Texas Tech Matadors have been hard at work here this week getting ready for the Daniel Baker Hill Billies whom they will encounter at Brownwood Friday.

Coaches Freeland and Higginbotham are working the boys early and late in an effort to get them in the best of shape for the game which is looked upon as as hard a contest as was played last week. Early this season the Hill Billies kicked over the dope bucket when they trounced the Austin College Kangaroos 22 to 0 and again last week they upset the dope and walloped the Simmons Cowboys 27 to 7. Now West Texas fans look upon the Hill Billies as a real team and are expecting them to give good account of themselves when the Matadors arrive.

The Matadors are due to play bang-up good ball themselves, however. Al Jennings, end, who has been out of the game for the past three games lent inspiration to the team when he came trotting back on the Matador gridiron for practice last Monday. "Duppie" White played a good game at Fort Worth and will be in good shape to handle the other end. Calloway who has been playing the end left vacant by the injury of Jennings is being shifted back to center where he and the veteran Corley will scrap it out for honors.

The Matadors had pointed their season for T. C. U., their debut into Southwestern Conference competition, and showed the best offensive punch of the season against the Horned Frogs when Hill, Woodridge, Walker and others carried the ball down the field for consistent gains and when 16 points were scored against the powerful defense of the Fort Worth club. The offense will have to step to meet the Hill Billies attack Friday but the coaches expect a better offense than they have yet encountered.

Mr. and Mrs. John Intrikin spent the week end here with Mrs. Intrikin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Stewart.

The Community Halloween party given Saturday night by the Senior League was well attended and all seemed to enjoy the occasion very much. There was something over one hundred attended and about half of that number was masked and wore costumes in keeping with the occasion. They were met at the door and tagged by Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Moore. Then each tried to see or find out who the other was. Then every one was told to go to the post office in one corner of the church and get their mail. This proved to be interesting as there was "mail" for every one. When all were seated the "ghost orchestra" furnished some fun. In the basement was a "fresh show" which attracted lots of attention. An old witch passed through the crowd and gave out candy caramels which she carried in a sack. Homemade candy, pop corn, pop corn balls and pie were sold from different booths. After quite a while of fun at the church the crowd dispersed by Rev. Page and Rev. Vada went for a hike over town. All soon tired out came back and then went home.

Dr. and Mrs. Brown returned Sunday from Waco where they were called to attend the funeral of Dr. Brown's brother Rev. R. F. Brown. Mrs. Brown is well known in this part of the State as the great Sunday school man. His sudden death was a shock to his loved ones and scores of devoted friends all over Southern Methodism. He was holding a funeral service and leading in the closing prayer when some one saw he was falling. They caught him and took him home but he only lived a few hours. To Dr. Brown and his wife the people of this community extend their sympathy.

M. T. Coche formerly of this place but now of the Floresville, was here the first of the week visiting old friends and looking after business matters.

Grain and Provisions

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Wheat prices took a quick downward swing today after a slight initial upturn. Favorable crop returns from Argentina together with advices that there is little prospect for immediate settlement of the British coal strike had a bearish effect. Starting unchanged to 3-8c higher, wheat underwent a material setback all around.

Corn and oats went lower with wheat, corn opening 1-8c to 3-8c up, and then showing a drop. Provisions were firmer.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 4.—(AP)—First trades in cotton showed losses of 2 to 7 points despite the easy opening and favorable Liverpool cables. Favorable weather in the belt and fears of a large crop estimate caused prices to ease off further to 12.90 for December, 12.37 for January and 12.55 for March or 7 to 9 points under yesterday's close. The market encountered good trade buying on the decline and prices later advanced several points.

The market rallied in the second hour on good trade buying and on prospect for prompt settlement of the British coal strike. Near noon prices eased off practically to the early lows on reports that there had been another setback to the settlement of the coal strike.

The market continued within the range of a few points near the lows during the afternoon with moderate trading. Every dip was met by a little trade buying but this buying subsided with every rally of a few points. January made a new low at 12.35, but the other months did not break through the earlier lows.

NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Cotton opened easy at a decline of 3 to 20 points, active months selling about 10 to 12 points net lower under further liquidation and continued southern hedging.

Local selling was promoted by relatively easy late cables from Liverpool while there was continued talk of a probable large crop figure from the government at the beginning of next week and heavy returns up to November 1st. Trade interests were good buyers on the initial decline to 12.31 for January, however, while there was considerable covering and prices showed rallies of 4 or 5 points from the lowest at the end of the first hour.

Two private crop reports one placing the indicated yield at 17,300,000 bales and the other at 17,372,000 bales had little effect on the market, which was quiet, but steadier late in the morning. January rallied to 12.42 after the early offerings had been absorbed and was selling around 12.40 at midday when the general list was about 2 to 6 points net higher.

Trading remained very quiet through the afternoon with fluctuations corresponding narrow and rather irregular. At 2 o'clock January was selling around 12.38, the general list showing net declines of 4 to 8 points.
