Amy Hoenig, Dana Hess are spelling bee champions

Amy Hoenig was the winner of the Spelling Bee held at Muenster Public School on Feb. 26 and 27. She is a sixth grader, last year's runner-up and the daughter of Janet Hoenig.

Lori Graham, daughter of Bud and Donna Graham, was runner-up. She is also a sixth grader at Muenster Public School.

The school event was directed

The school event was directed by Prue Selby, who was also the 5th and 6th grade sponsore. Barbara Robison sponsored the 7th and 8th grades.

Gwen Trubenbach, elementary principal, was the word preprincipal, was the word pro-nouncer for the spellers; Martha Koesler and Gerry Colwell were Koesler and Gerry Colwell were judges.

In the final round, Lori misspelled "mythology" and Amy correctly spelled "parfait" to win the local contest. UIL regulations prevented presentation of a plaque to the Public School winner.

This will be the fifth spell-off for MPS, winning three out of four county bees. Past county winners were Deanna Bierschenk, Denise Anderle and Joe Paul Walterscheid. Denise And. Walterscheid.

Dana Hess, daughter of Anthony and Stella Hess, is the 1987 Sacred Heart Champion Speller. The seventh grader earned her honor Feb. 25 during the school's annual spelling bee held in the Community Center.

annual spelling bee held in the Community Center.

Dana won on the word "penalty" against eighth grader Angela Endres, who is now this year's runner-up for the annual Cooke County Spelling Bee. In the event Dana cannot represent Sacred Heart, Angela will take her place.

Forty students from grades 5-8 participated in the Sacred Heart event. First, second and third place winners in each of those four grades included: Deanna Hess, Donnetta Hess and Jeannie Endres, grade 5; Allison Klement, Melissa Miller and April Truebenbach, grade 6; Dana Hess, Helmuth Koelzer, and Bernice Bartel, grade 7; and Angie Endres, Jenny Yosten and Kristen Klement, grade 8. Each received a blue, red or white ribbon respectively for their efforts.

In addition to Dana receiving a blue ribbon as her class champion, she also received a ribbon as the bee champion and an engraved plaque as the 1987 school champion. Angela Endres and Jenny Yosten also received ribbons for being second and third place school champions, respectively.

Eighth grader Kim Cler was also honored with an engraved plaque as last year's school champion. Kim went on to place fourth in the Cooke County Spelling Bee last year.

Buck gets passed to City Council...

Council denies permit

The thought of compromise was almost non-existent as facts and comments, pro and con, were presented to the City Council Monday night. Meeting progress was brisk through a long agenda until item 13 came up; the consideration of a special use permit for a communications tower to be erected in Muenster, block 52, by Muenster Telephone Corporation. In line with zoning regulations, Muenster Telephone Corporation.

In line with zoning regulations, the zoning board had previously studied the situation and recommended that the permit not be issued even though the tower currently stands erected.

With a court reporter present, Gainesville attorney Richard Stark, representing Muenster Telephone Corporation, explained their purpose and request. He urged an open mind and presented evidence saying it was "hard evidence saying it was "hard evidence and no hearsay." Stark said the presence of the tower presented no great risk and would not harm property values. He cited a 1977 Muenster ordinance which permits Muenster Telephone Corp. to erect a tower cited a 1977 Muenster ordinance which permits Muenster Telephone Corp. to erect a tower and said, "1t is the telephone company's duty to erect a tower and serve the city." your kindness and caring were overwhelming.

During my stay here, I was often asked about Ethiopia - were the reports given in the news true? I do not know exactly what information you received, but I can say that the situation there was very bad. I say this from experience because we suffered the same drought in Rwanda, although it was perhaps not as extensive nor as long in duration. The country of Rwanda has since been blessed with rain and this has brought some relief.

I am also often asked if we received any of the financial aid sent from the United States. The only groups from which we in Rwanda received help were Catholic Relief Services, the Sisters of St. Mary, and all of you who overwhelming.

contributed so generously. I especially want to thank Father Denis and the Sacred Heart Parishioners who sent us a large contribution from the Lenten Rice Bowl Collection.

Life in a third world country always deals with the basic realities of survival. Although the crisis of the drought seems to have passed in some areas, there is always the daily struggle with tuberculosis, malaria, malnutrition, illiteracy and countless other problems.

For those who have asked how they can help our missions in a financial way, there are several possibilities. Donations can be sent to any of the following accounts: 1) Sister Roberta Hesse, Muenster State Bank; 2) Sister Roberta Hesse, First State Bank of Gainesville; 3) Sisters of St. Mary Milk Fund, 3300 Hempill Street, Fort Worth, Texas 76110.

Again, thank you for everything.

Again, thank you for everything. Know that I count most of all on your prayers and that I, too, pray for you.

ing after the January 27 State of the Union address, competitiveness apparently is a convenient euphemism for trade protectionism. In other words, if the Asians are beating the pants off our textile industry, the problem, newly redefined, is U.S. competitiveness. Said Conconi, "In Washington it's not what any new catch phrase or word means that is important, it's how nicely it rolls across the tongue while obscuring the issue."

According to the competitiveness claque (the CCs), the issue is this: American businesses are unable to hold their own against foreign firms because they have lost their competitive edge. For this reason, say the CCs, U.S. exports are flat, imports are grabbing a growing share of the domestic market, and the trade deficit is skyrocketing.

Interest in U.S. competitiveness is not new. In December 1984, the President's Commission on Industrial Competitiveness, chaired by Hewlett-Packard President John A. Young, issued a two-volume report on Global Competition, focusing on productivity and entrepreneurship.

The National Association of Manufacturers, in association with Hewlett-Packard's Young, has formed the Council on Competitiveness.

And the Democratic Leadership Council, the midstream Democratic policy group that hopes to recapture the party from the left-wing fringe, has made this one of its priorities.

In other words, while the buzzword is new, many Americans have been keenly aware for some time that U.S. manufacturers are increasingly unable to duke it out with their foreign competitors.

So what's the problem? Here's where there is a parting of the ways.

According to many of the CCs, it's all the fault of our trading partners—Japan, West Germany, Canada (our largest trading partner, incidentally), the Republic of China (Taiwan), Korea. They not only pay their workers low wages, the argument goes, they also subsidize exports. Most of our major trading partners, however, pay their industrial workers wages that are very nearly equal (and in some cases higher) than those paid U.S. w

Robert Krieble, the recently retired chairman of Loctite Corp. written and lectured extensively on competitiveness, blaming much of the problem on what economists call the "corporate culture,"

The Kriebleists place more of the blame on U.S. corporate management and its overwhelming desire to play it safe rather than take chances.

Others trace the problem more directly to government; regulatory and tax policies, for example.

Prof. Dominick T. Armentano of the University of Hartford and Dr. Edward L. Hudgins of The Heritage Foundation are among the many serious scholars in this camp.

According to Armentano, in a monograph written for the Krieble Foundation, the new tax-reform act is a perfect example. While there is much appeal to lower and flatter rates, other provisions—such as the increase in the capital-gains tax rate and slower depreciation of capital assets—will make it more costly to invest in new buildings and equipment for industry. Since this capital stock is the lifeblood of innovation, U.S. competitive—

Weekly Capitol Report

by Richard F. Williamson, State Representative and Gregory D. Watson,

AUSTIN - This continues the weekly series of articles on the events and issues of the 70th

The House convened on Mon-day, Feb. 16. Speaker Gib Lewis of Fort Worth continued the refer-ral of bills and resolutions to com-mittees of the House and this in-The new buzzword in Washington is "competitiveness." Just every-body, from the White House to the presidential hopefuls on the chicken and mashed-potatoes circuit, is talking about it. There is even a newly formed Congressional Competitiveness Caucus.

U.S. News and World Report chose the theme for its February 2 cover story: "America's Competitive Drive: Are We Losing it?" And President Ronald Reagan raised the issue in his State of the Union address.

Is there really something wrong here, or has Washington simply discovered a new national ailment to feed one of its all-too-familiar multi-billion-dollar bitter pills? stallment will examine a few of the proposals offered by District 63 Representative Richard F.

Representative Richard F. Williamson.

On Monday, Feb. 16, the State Affairs committee of the House held a public hearing and received favorable testimony on House Joint Resolution No. 8 by Williamson. This resolution would add Texas to the evergrowing list of states that have ratified a 198-year-old Amendment to the United States Constitution. Submitted to the states for ratification by Congress in the year 1789, this amendment would prohibit members of Congress from receiving automatic pay raises - such as the one that took place this past Feb. 3 - which take effect immediately or even retroactively. Under the terms of the Amendment, a pay raise for members of Congress would be strictly "future tense" - oriented and not "present tense" - and especially never "past tense" - oriented. In the two-year period from 1789-1791, this Amendment was ratified by Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, South Carolina, South Carolina, South Carolina, Some 82 years later, Ohio ratified in 1873. And 105 years after that, Wyoming ratifications: In 1983, Maine; in 1984, Colorado; in 1985, South Dakota, New Hampshire, Arizona, Tennessee and Oklahoma; in 1986, New Mexico, Indiana and Utah. Thus far in 1987, ratifying legislation has passed one house of the legislature in Montana and North Dakota. Supporters of House Joint Poschutian No. 8 are contimistic On Monday, Feb. 16, the State passed one house of the legislature in Montana and North Dakota. Supporters of House Joint Resolution No. 8 are optimistic about its chances for passage during the 70th Legislature.

House Bill No. 193, presented by Williamson, would perablish a House Bill No. 193, presented by Williamson, would establish a Texas Baccalaureate Education System Trust (BEST). This trust fund would allow a parent or other benevolent person to pay into the fund - which would be supervised by the State Treasurer to prepurchase FULL tuition at any State-supported college or university for the child when he or she reaches college age. The bill contains language allowing for the refunding of all monies deposited in the BEST if the child dies or chooses not to attend a State-supported institution. The plan espoused by House Bill No. 193 allows the State full use of the BEST monies for investment returns. Currently, there is no means by which a parent or other benevolent person may secure college tuition prepayment for the future education of a young child although certainly one may always save and invest in the usual ways. But that does not always provide a guarantee against inflation or excessive interim tuition increases as House Bill No. 193 would do. This bill has been referred to the Higher Education committee of the House For disposition.

House Bill No. 73, introduced by Williamson, would mandate that any party requesting a person's name, residential address, residential telephone number, date of birth, social security number, deight weight race gender cread son's name, residential address, residential telephone number, date of birth, social security number, height, weight, race, gender, creed and national origin from a State agency demonstrate a legitimate need for the information. The agency in question must be satisfied that the need is indeed legitimate. The use of such information for commercial purposes would not - under the terms of the bill - constitute a legitimate need. This bill was sent to the State Affairs committee for review and consideration.

House Bill No. 16, relating to the location of a county jail in counties having only one jail, passed the House on Thursday, Feb. 19, without a single vote cast against it. Representative Williamson, who introduced the bill, expressed his pleasure with its progress.

The purpose of the Ad Altare Dei program is to help Scouts develop a fully Christian way of life. The program is organized in steps based on the Seven Sacraments. These encounters with Christ are the Scouts' best means toward spiritual growth. Another purpose of the program is to equip the Scout to take his place in the world as a maturing Catholic and a maturing American.

The Marian Medal Program is The Marian Medal Program is the official religious recognition program of the Roman Catholic Church for girls enrolled in the Girl Scouts of the USA and Camp Fire. This is accomplished by ac-tion involvement through various tion involvement through various projects, discussions and liturgical celebrations during a year with Mary as a role model of openess and spirituality. The Church honors Mary, Mother of God, who is inseparably involved in the saving work of her Son. In her, the Church holds up and admires the most perfect fruit of redemption and joyfully contemplates as in the flawless image that which she herself desires and hopes wholly to be.

Former residents visit here

Joe Rollman and son, Bruce, of Sechelt, British Columbia, Canada were back in Muenster Thursday, Feb. 26, for the first time in 20 years. They were surprise guests of a cousin, Catherine Rollman.

Together they went sightseeing and visited friends, making several pop calls. The Canadians were impressed by the city's growth, the church, hospital, milk plant and schools. They were enroute home after vacationing in Florida.

Sherman Museum features exhibit... Quilts evoke past

They are lovingly handed down through the generations, pieces of time in a family's history. Quilts and coverlets evoke our personal past as few other objects can.

"By the Toil of Her Hands," an exhibit of more than 70 quilts, coverlets and needlework pieces, is now open at the Sherman Historical Museum. Ranging in date from 1800 to 1986, many were made in Grayson County and are still in the possession of the creator's family.

One of the best examples of this family orientation is a group of four quilts made by four generations of women in one Grayson-Fannin County family. The oldest quilt, a Crossed Tulips design, was stitched in Alabama in 1859 of handwoven and handdyed material and was recently given to the Sherman Museum. Another was chosen last year for presentation in the "Texas 150 Quilt" project.

Overshot, double weave and Overshot, double weave Overshot, double weave and Jacquard coverlets are included in the exhibit, among them an ex-cellent "Fancy design with Christian and Heathen border" from approximately 1880.

There are also examples of quilted, tatted, crocheted, painted and embroidered needlework, such as the 1827 sampler worked by Sarah Hubbard of Concord, Mass.

"By the Toil of Her Hands" will be on display through May at the Sherman Historical Museum, located at 301 S. Walnut in Sherman (Exit Lamar St. off Highway 75, turn right on Walnut, and go 1 block). The Museum is open free of charge Tuesday through Sunday; call 214/893-7623 for hours.

Monday, March 2, the District 33A basketball coaches met and elected the '87 All-District Team. The District champion Muenster Hornettes and Hornets were well-represented with a total of 10 athletes receiving honors.

Junior Staci Walterscheid was voted the Most Valuable Player in the district. She helped lead the Hornettes to an undefeated the district. She helped lead the Hornettes to an undefeated district record (10-0) and a five game margin over second place Saint Jo. Freshman Dana Wimmer nabbed first team honors averaging 12 points and 8 rebounds pergame.

"Staci and Dana have been a pleasure to work with," said Hornet Coach Ted Heers, "and they both have loftier goals for next season. We'd like to get a little further down the road next season."

Junior Meredith McDaniel garnered second team honors for the Hornettes and junior Melody Klement and freshman Shonna Reiter received honorable mention Reiter received honorable mention recognition.

"Those three improved throughout the season and helped us win our district games by an average margin of 21 points."

Junior Brian Hess was a unanimous choice as a member of the All-District first team, but Heers felt Hess was slighted in the MVP voting.

Heers felt Hess was slighted in the MVP voting.

"When you are the leading scorer (20.2) in conference play, average 11 rebounds a game, shoot 56 percent from the field, do not foul out of a game, outscore the MVP in head-up competition 48 to 26, and lead your team to a 10-0 record, justice should be served. I wasn't happy with the Senior and four-year letterman Ryan Klement joined Hess as an All-District Team selection. Kle-ment averaged 12 points and 5 assists a game while also leading the Hornets in steals. "Ryan will be a success wherever he goes at whatever he does," said Heers. "We'll miss having him around."

having him around."

Three more Hornets also received honors in the voting. Junior Kevin Anderle made the All-District 2nd team, while junior. Stuart Hess and sophomore J. Shane Wimmer earned hornorable mention recognition. Anderle shot 48% from the field, averaged 11 points a game and usually drew the toughest defensive assignments. Hess served as the Hornets' defensive strength in the middle, and after blocking 8 shots against Era, he was nicknamed "the enforcer" by the Gainesville Register. Wimmer provided steady play on the wing for the Hornets and should be an important cog for the defending important cog for the defending champions.

Hornet Coach Ted Heers was also honored as the boys' Coach of the Year. The first-year coach saw his team finish with the first 20-win season in school history and also garner the school's first district championship. He also coached the district champion girls' team.

SH ready for opener

The Sacred Heart Tigers and Tigerettes will open their 1987 track campaigns this weekend. The Tigerettes will open Friday afternoon at the S&S Invitational and the Tigers will begin their season at the Red River Relays in Saint Jo on Saturday. The Tigerettes will also run Saturday at Saint Jo. The S&S meet will begin at 4:15 and the Red River Relays will begin at 8 a.m.

Jo. The S & S meet will begin at 4:15 and the Red River Relays will begin at 8a.m.

Due to a job change, last year's head coach Dale Schilling will be unable to head the program so Ron Hess has volunteered to take command. Ron Hess is very familiar with the Sacred Heart program as he returns to the head position after a six-year leave. "We're very fortunate to have Coach Hess return to the program," said Athletic Director Jon LeBrasseur. "Dale did a great job with the program last season and Rumpy was Dale's high school mentor so I am sure things will continue to look up." In Coach Hess' previous stint at Sacred Heart, the Tigerettes were two-time State Champions and the Tigers were always one of the top teams in the area, Coach Hess also had numerous All-Staters including previous Coach Schilling. "Dale will continue to be involved with the program," said Coach Hess. "Dale offered his assistance when available and we will make good use of it."

Also returning to the staff for her sixth season will be Mary Beth Bartush. Coach Bartush will again handle all the shot and discus performers. "Coach Bartush is so good with the throwers, it will make my job easy," said Coach Hess. "I can concentrate with the tunners and jumpers and not have to worry about the throwers as I know she will have them ready." Coach Bartush has had two All-State shot putters at Sacred Heart.

TIGERS

The Sacred Heart Tigers will be short in numbers but long in desire. "We don't have as many boys as we would like to have out, but the ones we do have are working very hard and will represent us

well," said an optimistic Coach Hess, "I am very pleased with their work to date and I feel they will be competitive."
Running for the Tigers this

Tips on starting bermudagrass

Seminar on estate taxes

Farmers and ranchers have been concerned for years about high taxes that erode their estates. To help take the bite out of their high estate taxes, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is planning several educational

Four two-day seminars are planned for Fort Worth, March 11-12; San Angelo, March 26-27;

El Paso, April 1-2; and San Antonio, April 15-16, 1987, which will help farmers and ranchers learn how to reduce taxable estates and learn new methods for passing their operations to the next generation without tax and ad-ministrative burdens.

"Of major importance is how every farm estate will be affected after the recent estate tax law changes," points out Dr. Wayne Hayenga, a lawyer and Extension Economist. "The best tax planning of the past may be the worst under the new law."

"Estate planning is a step toward reduced taxes," points out Hayenga. "This process should start when you plan to inherit substantial property, when you have an active and growing to take tax-saving actions, when you have minor children, and you have minor children, a when your children marry divorce."

For more detailed information about the seminars, contact your local County Extension Agent or Wayne A. Hayenga, Agricultural Economics Department, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843, phone (409) 845-2226.

When can I plant bermudagrass? According to Robbie Davis, Soil Conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service, any time between Dec. 15 and May 15.

Davis said "Thoroughly work the soil to break up any compaction and destroy all weedy vegetation. Allow the soil to firm up from rainfall, cultipacker or roller prior to planting."

Select a bermudagrass variety which is adapted to the area. Fertilizer should be applied at rates indicated from a soils test, she stated. Fertilizer for establishment can be applied prior to planting and worked into the soil during seedbed preparation.

New plantings should not be grazed until the grass is well established. The conservationist said a planned fertility program based on soil tests or local experience is needed to maintain a vigorous stand. A grazing management plan that does not utilize forces below a minimum. utilize forage below a minimum stubble height will help keep a pasture in production, Davis strongly stated.

Good news for farmers who have had problems with Hessian Fly infestations in the past several years. Now, researchers are working on two parasitic wasps that are primary biological agents of the Hessian Fly in Texas. Drs. Mike Schuster and Mike Lidell, Research Scientists at the Dallas Texas A&M Center, are doing studies on the effective biological control using these wasps. In studies on the effective biological control using these wasps. In selected fields in some North Texas counties during 1986 these two wasps showed an 80 percent parasitism rate on the Hessian Fly. These fields were located in Dallas and Grayson counties.

These wasps have moved with the Hessian Fly into Texas from northern states. In 1986 the planting of resistant varieties and the development of these wasps have showed a great decrease in the crop damage in North Texas.

The wasp lays its eggs in the developing larvae of the fly and this kills the Hessian Fly before it develops into a pupae in the wheat stem. We are fortunate in Texas to have four to five generations of Hessian Fly that the wasps can feed and develop with. This keeps a steady amount of parasitic wasps in and about wheat fields. The biological control for these in-The biological control for these insects is very important due to the development of new bio-types of Hessian Flies that have the ability to circumvent resistance in certain wheat varieties. Due to the development of these new biotypes, producers need to keep current of resistance in wheat varieties. It is thought that a wheat variety will last about three to four years before a new bio-type of fly can overcome resistance.

Work is being done now to develop egg parasites that will attack fall generations of Hessian Fly. The two parasitic wasps that we currently have will only attack the spring generation. Our hats are off to the fine work that is being done by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in monitoring and development of these egg parasites and fly parasites.

Educational programs set

Workshop March 10

More and more we are seeing farmers and ranchers developing management programs with computers on their farms and ranch operations. To assist producers in decision-making on computer purchases and needs, a Farm Computer Workshop will be held from 9 a.m. till 2 p.m. Tuesday, March 10. The workshop will be held in the Second Floor Independence Room at the Gainesville National Bank. Dr. Ken Stokes, Area Economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will present the program.

Items to be covered will include a demonstration of available and the service of the ser

Association and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service

Agricultural Extension Service throughout the state.

The program will be targeted at cow-calf and stocker operators which run, or have the potential to run, 100 head or more annually. However, all interested producers are encouraged to attend. These producers should be in the best position to benefit from retained ownership when market conditions warrant.

Key areas of the program will be

Key areas of the program will be retained ownership, Beef Promotion and Research Program (Beef Check-off), cattle industry outlook, current industry issues and TCFA activities. The meeting is designed so that feeders and potential feeders can voice their interest and concerns.

The meeting will begin at 6 p.m.

The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. with a meal sponsored by TCFA.

The program will run from 7 to 9 p.m. It will be necessary to send in a reply card to participate in the meeting. Reply cards and additional information can be obtained from Craig Rosenbaum, County Fytersian Agent. Transl ty Extension Agent.
