

PAUL BAYER combines windrow oats for Alfred Bayer and Sons. Many farmers row their oats for easy pick-up before the grain bends too close to the ground from the wind and rain. Last week's rain delayed the local harvest but didn't hurt the quality of wheat. The local mills are buying hard wheat for 3.48 a bushel and 3.38 for soft. The present market price for oats is $1.75 to $1.85. Janie Hartman Photo

Billed as a pre-Father's Day event, the traditional, early-summer homecoming picnic, benefit bazaar and bountiful dinner will be sponsored by Sacred Heart Parish.

Serving of dinner will begin at 11:30 a.m. The menu includes fried chicken, German sausage, potato salad, cole slaw, a variety of other salads and relishes, hot rolls, iced tea and choices of pie. Dinner tickets are priced at $5.00 for adults and $3.00 for children under 12 years of age. Dinner co-chairmen are Carrie Ann Walterscheid and Virgilla Herr. Dan Haverkamp and his crew will deep fry chicken for the dinner.

Parish families are urged to provide a pie and a cake.

"Snow Cones will also be available," said Tom Herr.

Mary Bayer, chairman of new and old favorite kids' games has announced that all of them will be held outdoors and under the pavilion. It is intended to allow children more space to enjoy games, and to make extra space for visiting among adults and for browsing in the Country Store and other booths.

The Super Auction will be held inside the Community Center and will begin at 6 p.m. Sponsors say the advantages are a good speaker system, air conditioning and ample display and seating space. Sylvan Walterscheid and Angelo Nasche are co-chairmen. They request that persons with items to donate, contact them for instruction and pickup.

There will also be a Super Raffle. Co-chairmen are members of the Sacred Heart School Board.

Top prize is a trip for two worth

$1,250, including seven nights and days at West End, Grand Bahamas, Jack Tar Village, round trip by air, with entertainment, meals and drinks furnished.

The next prize is a Magnavox color TV valued at $900, and other prizes range from beef halves to savings bonds.

Jeannine Flusche is chairman of a special Kids' Raffle. Jon LeBrasseur is chairman of the Rifle Raffle.

Co-chairman Tom Herr said, "The prizes are fabulous. The dinner menu is bountiful. I hope our fellow parishioners will buy and help sell tickets to out-of-town relatives and friends and invite them to attend our early summer homecoming and benefit bazaar."

Highway construction begins for Muenster

Those driving from Muenster on Hwy 82 last week were greeted with one-lane traffic that marks the progress of a project to widen the highway from Saint Jo to Gainesville.

Construction on Hwy 82 from Muenster's east city limits began last week, while highway repairs from the west side of the city have been underway for about five weeks.

Liliand Jett, engineer for the Texas Department of Highways & Public Transportation, said work on the eastbound lane of the highway from Muenster's east city limits to FM 1198 began May 31. Bobbie D. Haynes Construction Co. of Vernon was contracted for $384,760.52.

In the 2.9 mile-project, Jett said, the highway will be widened to a minimum of 42 feet from the center of the road. New road shoulders will be installed and paved, and the ditches will be moved further from the road.

"This is being done for safety reasons," Jett said Friday. "If you were to lose control of your vehicle after the highway is wider, you would have a lot better chance for recovery."

The project east of Muenster is expected to take 120 working days, he said.

From Muenster's west city limits to Saint Jo, the same repairs are being made to the highway. Duinick Brothers Inc. of Grapevine were contracted for $1,320,899.57 for the project. Work there began about five weeks ago and is expected to be completed in 220 working days.

"This should put U.S. 82 in great shape," Jett said. "But without the paved shoulders, it's totally inadequate.

"We would appreciate it, and of course the construction crews would appreciate it, if drivers would use good judgement as far as speed in those areas," he said. "Other than not being able to pass, the construction is not going to affect traffic that much."

The amount of traffic on Hwy 82 has historically increased about 3 percent each year in counts taken by state departments, Jett said.

CONSTRUCTION of widening the Hwy. 82 bridges continue west of Muenster in preparation for new paved road shoulders. The highway improvement should continue between Gainesville and Saint Jo for another eight months. Janie Hartman Photo

History Division gets update

Members of the History Division of the Muenster Centennial Commission heard a report during their June 3 meeting that their recent telephone survey indicated a need for help to prepare and submit a good family or business history.

Therefore, the History Division is planning a follow-up workshop at SNAP for family, business, military and club histories.

Lorena Taylor gave an update on progress of Vignettes in the "Did You Know That?" section and "World and National Event" section. Still needed is coverage of "Depression Years" and "Yesterday ads, with prices."

The group reiterated that special precautions are being taken to insure protection and security for pictures provided for the history book and the date book.

Gift subscriptions will be encouraged for Christmas. The history division will have a display table at the Pre-Father's Day community dinner. Logo stationery has been designed.

The next history division meeting will be held on Monday, June 13, at 4 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce office.

Pioneers travel for clean water, air

Ralph and Ginger Casey are taking a trip from Georgia to California with their two-year-old son, Link, and a dog named Odie.

Their method of transportation? A covered wagon.

Their reason for the trip? The fact that U.S. waters and air are rapidly being contaminated by individuals and industries.

The Casey family arrived in Muenster Tuesday morning pulled in a wagon by a 16-year-old horse named Les. Tar Baby, a slightly more friendly horse, walked beside the wagon watching for traffic, Gingers said.

"We're going across the U.S. for clean water and air," she said. "We decided we needed to fight for a lot of chemical plants to dump their wastes the proper way."

The family began its anti-pollution trip on Jan. 28 and have traveled about 2,000 miles from their home in Georgia since then, Ralph said. They hope to arrive at their West Coast destination sometime in the fall.

"A lot of people look at things like this and laugh and say, 'What good is that doing?'" he said. "My answer for them is that one pretty good idea at work is better than one million (ideas) rolling around in your head doing nothing."

And through attention the family has gained from the media and various environmental groups, their cause is benefitting, Ralph said.

"There are more little people out there than big people, and there's a lot we can do," he said. "This country belongs to all of us, and it's time we stood up and fought for it."

As the former owner of a scuba diving shop and livery stable, Ralph said he sold everything he owned to finance the trip. He will lose about $60,000 plus trip expenses before it is over, he estimated.

"But the money is not important to me anymore. What's important is saving things for the younger generations.

"My wife and I have nothing to gain - we're not politicians," he said, leaning against the efficiently-packed wagon. Slogan including "Buy U.S. Products" and "Support Our Farmers" were painted on its sides.

Ralph said he recommends a trip such as this to people who want to lose weight, "get in tune with themselves," or get to know their husbands or wives better.

"It also helps you to look at Jesus' philosophy," he said, "that of living every day as if it were your last."

The trip has restored the family's faith in people because almost everyone they have encountered on the way has been helpful and encouraging.

"You know, a trip like this really makes you appreciate your forefathers and history. When they came across there were no gas stations, grocery stores or doctors," he said.

Link, as an active toddler, "look to the trip like a duck to water," his father said.

When asked if he liked the wagon, Link nodded. But when asked what he thought of Texas, Link giggled and ran to play with his new friend, Sarah Hess.

The Casey family camped and rested at the Muenster City Park Tuesday night. Feed for their horses was donated by Tony's Seed and Feed. They continued their westward journey on Hwy. 82 Wednesday morning, promoting clean water and air from a covered wagon.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Second in a five-part series on committee divisions preparing for Muenster's centennial.

Plans for publication of Centennial Birthday Calendars and Date Books, as well as election of a Muenster king and queen, are underway by divisions of the Centennial Steering Committee.

Bertha Hamric, head of the activities committee, said her group is assembling a 13-month calendar for Muenster's centennial celebration in 1989. The calendar, she said, will feature photographs of the pioneering community in its first years.

Birthdays and special anniversaries of Muenster residents will be published on the calendar at a cost of $1 per date, Bertha said. To have their dates included in the calendars, residents should contact a member of the activity committee.

The calendars will be sold for $5 each.

The committee is also putting together a date book, a book that will include dates of centennial activities and show about 72 scenes of present day Muenster, Bertha said. The book can be used in any year.

"Both the calendar and the Date Book will certainly be treasured," she said. "They are things you'd want to hand down to your children through the years."

Date books will sell for $12.50. They and calendars both should be available in November and would make excellent Christmas gifts, Bertha said.

Members of the activities committee are Bertha Hamric, Herb and Dolores Miller, Ruth Felderhoff, Lupe Evans, Evelyn Sicking and Evelyn Felderhoff.

The activities committee is helping to plan events for 1989 and will publicize them later.

Election of a king and queen for Muenster, or König und Königin, is being directed by the Royal Centennial Committee. Chaired by Carol Henscheid, the committee established guidelines for the election and guided nominations for candidates.

"The reason the Steering Committee thought we needed a king and queen was to generate funds to help pay for the centennial and to promote Muenster and generate publicity for the centennial," Carol said Tuesday.

Another reason for the election during Muenster's centennial year is that a König und Königin were usually elected to reign over social events early in Muenster's history, Juanita Bright said.

Members of the Royal Centennial Committee are Carol Henscheid, Carolyn Bayer, Pat Dennis, Phyllis Coffey, Doris Muller, Peggy Grewing and Monica Hess.

In seeking nominations for candidates, committee members wanted input from residents, so they placed nomination boxes in local businesses from March 3 to March 25.

"We wanted to let anyone and everyone nominate their choices for king and queen," Carolyn Bayer said Tuesday. "We didn't want to eliminate anyone. Our only rule was that the nominees be 35 years old or older."

With about 260 Muenster residents nominated during the three-week period in March, the committee's next move was to inform all nominees by letter and sponsor a meeting of them on April 8. At the meeting, committee members told nominees the election guidelines and set the deadline for accepting the nomination at April 15.

"It was an honor just for those people to be nominated," Carolyn said.

Lloyd Reiter receives promotion

Lloyd Reiter, former resident of Muenster and son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Reiter, has been named to the position of vice-president and branch manager of Continental State Bank of Boyd in Rhome, Texas. He will assume his new banking career on June 16. He resigned from his position of loan officer at Gainesville National Bank on Tuesday, May 31.

LLOYD REITER

Reiter and his wife Mary and their 14-month-old son, Travis, will make their home in Decatur.

He is a graduate of Sacred Heart High School in Muenster and a 1982 graduate of the University of North Texas in Denton and had been employed at Gainesville National Bank since that time. Mrs. Lloyd Reiter is a graduate of Lindsay High School and earned a degree in Elementary Education from the University of North Texas this spring.

FmHA issues proposed new lending rules

Proposed rules, which could assist hundreds of farmers who are behind on their Farmers Home Administration loans, were issued recently, according to FmHA Texas State Director J. Lynn Futch.

The new regulations will carry out portions of the Agricultural Credit Act passed by Congress last December. "There will be a 30-day comment period and additional time for any appropriate changes before the regulations become effective," Futch said.

One of the changes would allow FmHA to reduce the delinquent debt of certain borrowers to help them stay in business. There are approximately 5,000 delinquent borrowers in Texas, many of whom should be assisted with this program once implemented.

In related actions, the agency also issued proposed regulations to:

*Make it easier for farmers or their families to lease or buy back homesteads that have been lost through foreclosure or conveyance;

*Set up a program to help members of minority and socially disadvantaged groups to purchase farmland and develop an outreach program to carry it out;

*Establish a new administrative appeals unit distinct from the rest of the agency to handle borrower grievances;

*Certify and participate in state mediation programs.

Deadline nearing for businesses

Where are the business histories???

Very few have been submitted to this date and June 30 is the deadline. It means many of the businesses need to "get with it" or be left out of the book. This would be a shame as everyone should be proud of the work they do in providing Muenster with a good hometown business. Proud enough to want to be included in the Centennial History Book that will be something families will share for years to come.

One more mailing will be made to the businesses (the last plea) - a form that can be filled in and returned to the Telephone Company. Also pictures, past or present, add interest for generations in the future. Grandchildren can someday say, "Look what my grandparents did."

So, please, write that business history and get it in before June 30.

A very special Thanks to all of the wonderful people who prayed with us, and for us, that truth and justice would prevail. We can't tell you what your support and kind words meant during such a critical time. We wish each of you could have been with us during the trial so you could know the real truth. It was a joyous occasion, and we hope you will join us one more time in giving Thanks and Praise to the Lord. We would like to share this Scripture with you that the Lord brought Barbara Fuhrmann to share with us.

Those whom the Lord has ransomed will return and enter Zion singing, crowned with everlasting joy; they will meet with joy and gladness, sorrow and mourning will flee. It is I who comfort you. Can you then fear mortal man, who is human only, to be looked upon as grass. And forget the Lord, your maker, who stretched out the heavens and laid the foundations of the earth; All the day you are in constant dread of the fury of the oppressor. But when he sets himself to destroy, what is there of the oppressor's fury? The oppressed shall soon be released; they shall not die and go down into the pit, nor shall they want for bread. For I am the Lord, your God, who stir up the sea so that its waves roar; the Lord of hosts by name. ISAIAH 51: 11-15

No weapon fashioned against you shall prevail; every tongue you shall prove false that launches an accusation against you. This is the lot of the servants of the Lord; their vindication from me, says the Lord. ISAIAH 54: 17

*God bless you all,
Francis, Cathie and Robert*

THREE of the five couples who accepted nomination as candidates were present for the meeting. Shown, l to r, are David and Juanita Bright, Ray and Mattie Swirczynski and Al and Toni Hess.

Five couples accepted the nomination and are the official centennial candidates for König und Königin: David and Juanita Bright, Gary and Marlene Fisher, Al and Toni Hess, Tony and Stella Hess and Ray and Mattie Swirczynski.

"We had hoped at one time to have 15 to 20 candidates, but we are tickled to death with five," Carol said. "We wish them the best of luck and are excited for them."

According to the committee's guidelines, the top priority for the candidates should be a true desire to earn the honor for the opportunity to serve with and for the city of Muenster. In promoting the town, they will be expected to attend events including the Centennial Opening, Germanfest, Muenster Christmas Parade and the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce Banquet.

Voting for king and queen will take place at a coronation ball set for December 3. Tickets will be sold for the event, which will include a five-course dinner and one vote in the election. The royal candidates will answer impromptu questions and speak to the dinner guests before the voting.

Following counting of the votes and a coronation ceremony, the royal couple will open the ball and begin the centennial festivities and their reign.

Card of Thanks

May we take this method of thanking our relatives, neighbors and friends, for their kind expressions of sympathy in bereavement. These expressions have been deeply appreciated. We also want to express our gratitude to the nursing staff and Drs. Kratich and Antonetti at the Muenster Memorial Hospital, also the Denton Regional and the Gainesville Memorial Hospital. And a special thanks to Reneta Knabe, Daddy's granddaughter, for always being there when we needed her. And to Carol Henscheid for staying with us at the house and receiving friends.

A special thanks to Fathers Denis, Victor and Nicholas for their regular visits, and for the beautiful service. Thanks to the Catholic Daughters for preparing the lovely meal, and thanks for all the cards, food, flowers, plants and Mass offerings.

Thanks to Ruth Felderhoff and Emily Klement for the beautiful music.

*Sincerely,
The Mike Schilling Family*

Vows exchanged in Richardson

Julie Johnson Bradley of Richardson and Dale Arthur Felderhoff of Muenster were married on May 14 in a traditional wedding ceremony and double ring rites, with Rev. Edd Eason officiating at 7 p.m. in Richardson East Church of Christ.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ruby Johnson of Richardson and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Felderhoff of Muenster.

The bride was escorted toward the altar by her son, Tyler Bradley.

For her wedding, she chose a bridal gown styled in the Old South tradition, of white organza, with fitted bodice, puffed sleeves adorned with ruffles, a dropped basque waist, and full organza skirt accented with three tiers of organza ruffles.

She wore a wide-brimmed white bridal hat with one tier of small organza scalloped ruffles and one tier of illusion which fell from the crown of the hat to her waist. She carried a bouquet of sterling roses and baby's breath, tied with a white satin bow.

The couple pledged their vows before an altar decorated with their Unity candle and two single white candles placed in wreaths of baby's breath; a pair of white candelabra; and a spring bouquet in an antique white wicker basket on the communion table. Two spring bouquets in antique white wicker stands also enhanced the area.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Glen Schoech of Mansfield, cousin of the groom and friend of the bride, was matron of honor. Sherie Felderhoff of Dallas, groom's sister, and Kathy Wise of Richardson, bride's friend, were bridesmaids.

They wore Laura Ashley-styled dresses of mauve and country blue with white lace collars. Each wore a laurel in her hair, of mauve roses and baby's breath, with cascading ribbons of blue and mauve, and each carried a basket of spring blossoms.

Jennifer Schoech, daughter of Glen and Barbara Schoech, was flower girl. Tyler Bradley, bride's son, was ring bearer.

Ronnie Felderhoff of Muenster, groom's brother, was best man and Glen Rohmer of Arlington, groom's cousin, and Glen Schoech of Mansfield, groom's cousin, were groomsmen.

Ken Pape of Dallas, groom's brother-in-law, and Gene Farmer, bride's cousin, and John Eastham, bride's cousin, were ushers.

Gene Farmer and Ken Pape were also candlelighters.

Roz Garland of Garland was vocalist for "The Wedding Song," "God, A Woman and A Man," and "Long and Lasting Love."

RECEPTION

A reception followed the wedding, in Richardson Civic Center.

Randi Kerby of Allen registered 200 guests in the bride's book. The bride's table held a silk flower arrangement of white tulips, mauve irises and dogwood, and blue eucalyptus, in a white wicker basket.

Delicately tinted frosting roses decorated the romantic basket - weave, three-tiered wedding cake, which was skirted with ivory lace.

Reception assistants were Karen Combs, Sonja Miller, Shannon Eastham, and Karen Kegans.

Guest tables were decorated with mauve and blue candles set in wreaths of potpourri and baby's breath. Dozens of mauve-colored balloons floated above the dance floor. Guests were asked to each take a balloon to release when the bride and groom departed for their wedding trip to St. Kitt's, West India.

Since their return they are at home in Muenster.

The rehearsal dinner was held in Nedley's Restaurant and Club in Richardson. Two miscellaneous showers honored the bride-elect. On April 17, Barbara Schoech hosted a party for relatives of the couple. On April 25, Trula Keith, Tresia Eason, and Sylvia Roach were hostesses for a party attended by friends of the bride.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of East Texas State University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Elementary Education and Student Personnel and Guidance Counseling. She is a member of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority and was an Early Childhood Teacher formerly employed by CARE Child Development of Richardson.

The groom is a 1970 graduate of Subiaco Academy and is General Manager of Muenster Milling Company's Liquid Feeds Division.

Gwen Trubenbach honored

Gwen Trubenbach, principal of Muenster Elementary School, has been chosen to attend the Academy for Effective School Leadership. The Academy will be held in Austin on July 11 through 13. It is designed to prepare 200 Texas principals to be on-site campus reviewers in the school accreditation process. This training program is part of the Texas School Improvement Initiative.

The Improvement Initiative is the Texas Education Agency's statewide program to promote higher education performance standards. Participating principals have been recognized for exemplary performance through the school accreditation process.

TEA has adopted the Academy's research as criteria for evaluating individual campuses. The attending principals will be assigned as accreditation team members. They will participate in accreditation visits within their education regions for the 1988-89 school year.

JANIS CASTLE HAS AN EXCELLENT MIND. BUT IT'S HER HEART WE WANT TO TALK ABOUT.

As a Customer Representative for TU Electric, Janis seems to thrive on a heavy workload. Yet she still finds time to go beyond the call of duty for many of her customers. Such as the time a local orphanage was damaged by fire, and Janis coordinated donations of everything from clothing, blankets and furniture to sports equipment and toys. She says she just likes people. But we have a feeling it's because she's all heart. And Janis, like so many of our employees, is helping make A TUELECTRIC Commitment To Service have a very special meaning indeed.

"Yard of the Month" goes to Walterscheids

Kim and Lisa Walterscheid and son, Dustin, have been awarded Yard of the Month honors for June, by the Muenster Garden Club. The sign is placed in the front yard of their home on Park Lane, but it is the beautiful back yard that won the praises. A thriving front lawn, white petunias and white chrysanthemums and a purple-leaved plum tree are across and near the north front. Red trumpet Floribunda roses grow along the east side of the house, with "Ballerina" Indian Hawthorne shrubs at one corner.

In the back yard, a wide bed of perennials divides the lawn from the back fence. Included are daisies, day lilies, spectacular red "Lady Bradshaw" Geums, and red geraniums.

Iris borders along the side fences have finished blooming, as have peonies. Various chrysanthemums are suprisingly early. There are several Bradford Pears for spring bloom and Red Oaks for future shade. A sandbox for Dustin has its special place.

Lydia studied for semester in Europe

Lydia Walterscheid, a junior at the University of Dallas, took a typical number of classes this spring and lived in a typical dorm with two roommates.

But what made her semester atypical was the fact that the campus was located near Rome, Italy.

The daughter of Sonny and Annette Walterscheid, Lydia is a 1986 graduate of Sacred Heart High School. She participated in a UD program this semester in which 73 students of the university studied in Europe.

"I was nervous at first. It seemed so final - so far away," she said. "I was homesick for about one week, but then we got so busy."

Lydia and the other students and UD professors left for the overseas campus on January 23. While there, she studied Italian, philosophy, English, western civilization and theology in an environment she described as close and intense.

"There was little time to study. We couldn't miss a class," she said. "There was no time to study on weekends especially, because we were always traveling."

And travel they did. Countries the group toured included Italy, Greece, Switzerland, Austria, Germany, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Luxembourg, France, Belgium and the Netherlands. The students bought a three-month railroad pass and went almost everywhere by train.

"Many of the people there could speak English or use sign language so that we could communicate. But many of them have a resentment toward tourists," Lydia said. "I think traveling abroad is a very humbling experience."

THE VATICAN
Rome, Italy

"BRIDGE OF SIGHS"
on canal in Venice, Italy

Among the students' activities were skiing in the Alps, touring the Louvre and the Sistine Chapel and seeing the leaning tower of Pisa, the Mona Lisa, Michelangelo's David, St. Peter's and St. Paul's basilicas and Paris, "The City of Lights," from the Eiffel Tower.

But Lydia's favorite site was the Vatican, where she toured several times and went for Mass on Easter Sunday. And on Holy Thursday night, she attended saying of the Stations of the Cross at the Coliseum in Rome and came within about eight feet of Pope John Paul II.

In telling how the students became "Europeanized" during their semester, Lydia said that one time they were asked in a bank if they spoke English. They had become so used to being asked if they spoke Italian or French that they responded "a little," she laughed.

Münster, West Germany was a typical little German town where people dressed in little hats and suspenders and the architecture was similar to Fischer's Meat Market, she told.

Many Europeans the students encountered were well informed of American geography and politics, she said.

"When we told them that we were from Texas, they wanted to know where in Texas. They all knew where Dallas was," she said. "They would say 'J.R.' and 'Cowboys football' and ask us if we rode horses."

"The English speakers asked us about the Dukakis and Jackson race. It was pretty embarrassing that we didn't know much about it because we didn't have time to read papers or watch international news," she said.

At the end of the semester, Lydia said the students were under extra pressure because they felt unprepared for final exams. But Lydia said she was pleased with her grades. The group returned to the United States on May 12.

"It's a wonderful feeling to be back. Even now I see things I haven't seen in months - things like movies and hearing 'old' Top 40 songs," she said.

LYDIA AT THE PARTHENON
Athens, Greece

Among mementos of her trip that she brought back to friends and family members were Italian leather sandals, native fisherman sweaters, Venetian glass, Belgian lace and crystal rosaries blessed by the Pope.

"I wish everyone could go on a trip like that one," she said. "It's not just scenery and museums - it teaches you so much. You learn how to fend for yourself and handle people who can't speak a language you can."

Friends visit Bernauers

Sister Barbara Bernauer, her mother Mrs. Katie Bernauer and her brother Frank Bernauer were hosts recently to two friends from Graymoor Abbey, Garrison, N.Y., where Father Emmanuel Sullivan S.A. and Father Elias S.A. arrived.

They were attending an Ecumenical Convention in Arlington. Other faiths represented at the convention included Jewish, Moslem and Christian.

Father Emmanuel Sullivan is a former student of Sister Barbara's in grade school, when as Steve Sullivan he attended her classes in primary and elementary grades in Brushton, N.Y., in northern New York, near the Canadian border.

Father Emmanuel gifted Sister Barbara with a book he himself authored, "Prayer For Unity." He is devoted to teaching and fostering Church unity and understanding.

After this visit here, Father Emmanuel and Father Elias returned to Arlington for the remaining sessions in the convention.

"College for Kids '88" is set for June 13-23 at college

"College for Kids '88," a program designed to provide fourth through ninth graders with a learning experience different from what they're normally exposed to in the school classroom, is set for June 13-23 at Cooke County College.

It is a carefully planned program of intellectual and creative exploration that will not only be challenging and instructive but fun as well. The courses will be taught by experienced instructors, most of them members of the Cooke County College faculty. Students successfully completing the courses will be awarded certificates from the college.

Any scholastically talented student in grades four through nine is eligible to enroll with the signature of parent or guardian AND the written endorsement of his school principal. The principal will base his endorsement on potential for student's benefit, special talents or scholastic aptitude in courses offered and desire to participate. Although the program is designed for scholastically talented students, grades or test results will not necessarily block a student from participation.

In the two categories of classes, Category A is for students starting fourth and fifth grades as of Fall 1988. These students must take three consecutive classes - one from each of the three time slots outlined below.

Courses meeting from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.:

1. The Overland Trail to Oregon in 1848 - An opportunity to take part in the experience typically encountered by overland emigrants going West. History comes alive through computer simulation.

2. Exploring the World of Creative Writing - A journey into creative writing territory. A chance to experience what it's like to be an author, poet and/or playwright.

Courses meeting from 1:40 to 2:40 p.m.:

1. Sign Language - Learn basic skills in how to communicate silently through "signing."

2. Art - A unique approach to monochromatic color study, utilizing the creation of a Space Station game and development of characteristics of alien beings.

Courses meeting from 2:50 to 3:50 p.m.:

1. Math Blast - An arcade-style game on the computer that offers an exciting, enjoyable way for students to build mathematic skills.

2. Gymnastics - A great way to get fit! Learn basic tumbling, trampoline and balance beam.

Category B classes are for students starting grades six through nine as of Fall 1988. These students also must take three consecutive courses, one from each time slot.

Courses meeting from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.:

1. Chemistry - An introduction to basic concepts of chemistry with special emphasis on laboratory techniques. A series of eight experiments will be performed, demonstrating the scientific method.

2. Computer-Aided Drafting - An introduction to the new technology of design, utilizing computers to generate blueprints and design drawings.

Courses meeting from 1:40 to 2:40 p.m.:

1. Where in the USA is Carmen Sandiego - Wanted: adventurous spirit and uncanny knack for interpreting clues. Course combines computer, graphic adventure, trivia, mysteries and arcade animation.

2. Basic Computer Programming - Learn fundamental programming skills using the Apple microcomputer.

Courses meeting from 2:50 to 3:50 p.m.:

1. Art - A unique approach to monochromatic color study, utilizing the creation of a Space Station game and development of characteristics of alien beings.

2. Golf - Learn the fundamentals of this great game, including the basic swing and shotmaking. Students need to bring only two clubs, an iron and a wood.

Understanding stored grain aeration

COLLEGE STATION -- Aeration is essential for maintaining the quality of clean, dry stored grain and must be properly understood.

Aeration is the practice of forcing small amounts of atmospheric air with desirable temperature and moisture conditions through stored grain to cool and equalize temperatures, said Richard Withers with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

The air delivery system to handle this task should be well-engineered and properly installed and managed, said Withers, agricultural engineer. This requires an understanding of the aeration process.

When atmospheric air moves through stored grain, both heat and moisture are exchanged until air and grain have comparable temperatures and moisture contents, the engineer said. Once this equilibrium condition exists, the moisture content of stored grain is known as the equilibrium moisture content (EMC). The relative humidity of the atmospheric air in equilibrium with the grain is called the equilibrium relative humidity (ERH).

For any given set of temperature and relative humidity conditions of the atmospheric air, there is a corresponding EMC for the stored grain, Withers said. From a practical standpoint, this known relationship can be used to determine if stored grain will gain or lose moisture when it contacts atmospheric air.

When the air's relative humidity is below that of the ERH, moisture will be evaporated from the grain during the aeration process, and the grain temperature will decrease due to the evaporative cooling effect, Withers said. The amount of cooling resulting from evaporation may be as much as 50 percent or more of the total heat removed.

In some cases the air's relative humidity is higher than the ERH but decreases as heat is transferred from hotter, stored grain to cooler, aeration air. Where initial grain temperatures approach 100 degrees F., evaporative cooling can reduce the temperature 10-15 degrees in about half the time required for the same reduction in grain with a temperature of 50 degrees F.

Grain placed in storage during warm months loses heat slowly as the weather gets cooler. Under these conditions, air in the grain near the surface and next to the bin walls cools first, while that in the center of the bin remains warm, the engineer said. This temperature differential creates slowly moving air currents, with the cool, dense air near the walls moving downward and forcing upward the warm, lighter air in the center.

When warm air reaches cold grain near the surface, condensation may occur. If this continues, accumulated moisture may promote insect activity, mold growth and spoilage in upper layers of the stored grain, Withers said. This problem can be controlled by using aeration to equalize temperature throughout the grain mass.

County Agent's Report

by Craig Rosenbaum

Grain sorghum is tillering this year and it is not limited to varieties. Tillering can be seen in nearly every field. There is some herbicide damage on the root system of grain sorghum or else the ground was so dry that the brace roots would not penetrate down into the dry soil. Such roots will have a knob or burned-off appearance on the end of the roots. Chinch bugs feeding on these plants is another stress and will not allow plants to recover as fast as they should.

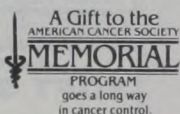

Although we have received rain over most of the area, continue to be aware of the potential of chinch bugs in sorghum. The added moisture in the soil should allow these crops to grow through the infestation of chinch bugs that are present in most fields. However, this pest will remain throughout the summer, so watch for increased numbers of chinch bugs in sorghum. Heavy rain will not be as damaging to young populations of chinch bugs with stalks as tall as they are now. These stalks will protect the young. When the plants were small, the rain could beat the young chinch bugs into the soil and kill them.

Whenever you plan to apply a pesticide to control chinch bugs on sorghum, be sure to rig your applicator to the point that the pesticide can be placed at the base of the plant. If not, do not apply a pesticide. Parathion, even having fungicidal action, will not go down to the ground line and kill pests. It must be placed at the base of the plant to obtain control. It will take 10 to 20 gallons of water per acre to obtain control even with drop nozzles. When placing pesticide at the base of the plant, large quantities of water are required. Do not apply pesticides by aerial application as they are ineffective to control chinch bugs.

Several grain sorghum fields are showing infestations of corn leaf aphids in the whorl. These are causing very little economic damage to crops. However, they are transmitting a virus called MDMV. There is no control so allow beneficial insects to continue to clean these aphids from the whorl of sorghum. The affected plants will have a light mottled appearance on the leaf and there will be a loss of chlorophyll in the plants. Heavily infested plants will have light yellow colored leaves.

It is too early to predict the midge populations in sorghum this year. And with our early plantings, we should miss the problems caused producers last year.

What a pesticide label doesn't tell you

MIKE MOELLER, DEPUTY COMMISSIONER TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Just because a pesticide is registered with the federal Environmental Protection Agency doesn't necessarily mean it's safe. Many pesticides sold today haven't been fully tested, especially for long-term health risks.

The purpose of EPA registration is to protect human health and the environment by defining proper conditions for use of any given pesticide. That means specifying what pest it can be used to control as well as when, where and how the pesticide can be applied. Once pesticides have gotten full federal registration, state regulatory agencies, like the Texas Department of Agriculture, cannot change or improve the label.

EPA has a tough job. There are hundreds of active and inert pesticide ingredients on the market, which may pose a wide range of health and environmental risks. These ingredients are blended and rebled into tens of thousands of chemical products.

"But It's Registered." Many consumers get a false sense of security about pesticide use when they read or are told that EPA has registered a certain pesticide. They figure that since EPA is responsible for protecting health and the environment, any pesticide registered by the agency must be safe to use. Even EPA will tell you this is just not true. In fact, EPA does not allow chemical manufacturers to use words like safe or harmless on pesticide labels.

Registration and Testing are Two Different Things. Under a very complicated national pesticide law called FIFRA--the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act--there's more to EPA approval than meets the eye.

Before EPA came on the scene in the 1970s, pesticides didn't have to pass stringent health and safety standards before they went on the market. While some safety testing was required, effectiveness was the big test. If a product killed the pests named on the label, it usually got approved.

That system changed in 1972, when Congress changed FIFRA and added tougher health requirements that must be met before a pesticide can be registered. These include tests to determine pesticides' short- and long-term effects on human health and the environment. EPA then began the long process of retesting and reregistering the more than 600 active ingredients in products registered before 1972.

Many active ingredients still have data gaps. Also, for many years EPA required no health data on inert ingredients. This information is needed to determine a pesticide's risks.

Legally, the manufacturer bears the burden of proving that a pesticide is safe if used as directed. The chemical company tests its own products, and EPA reviews these results for accuracy. The review process is expensive and arduous, so much so that EPA estimates it will take another 15 to 20 years to reevaluate the backlog of pre-1972 pesticides.

Meanwhile, tested or not, most of these pesticides are still registered by EPA and are still on the market. Fraud made matters worse in the 1970s when one laboratory hired by major chemical manufacturers was convicted of faking pesticide-safety tests. As a result, consumer and worker protection suffered a serious setback.

No Guarantees. Products registered after the newer FIFRA standards took effect generally have been tested more carefully and have better data packages. However, it is important to remember that EPA registration doesn't necessarily guarantee adequate safety testing, especially for exposure of children and people with respiratory or other health problems.

FIFRA requires different health and environmental studies according to each pesticide's proposed use. They may include tests for any or all of the following: toxicity to people, birds, fish, etc.; effects on reproduction, birth defects, genetic damage, cancer and persistence in the environment.

Despite these improvements, the bottom line is "let the buyer beware." Given limited government funding and a complicated pesticide law and registration process, you as a consumer are well advised to proceed with caution, follow all label directions and be fully aware that you are also assuming the risks and responsibilities of pesticide use.
