

After 100 years of newspaper service to Hansford County, the Reporter-Statesman has launched two new Internet websites. Spearmanreporter.com and spearmantexas.biz are up and running.

Both of these websites are intended to be a support tool for the businesses and citizens of Hansford County.

Spearmanreporter.com will feature local, regional and national news, along with a local weather report, history, humor, comment and more. Spearmantexas.biz is a site dedicated to local businesses. It will feature a Hansford County Business Directory along with local business features.

As anyone who has ever attempted web based advertising will tell you, newspapers, television and radio are more effective forms of advertising. It is for this reason that government entities are required to place their public notices in newspapers and not on the World Wide Web. The web does, however, offer a unique form of information sharing and viewing. It is for this reason that we are now offering this service.

Spearmanreporter.com and spearmantexas.biz are not "for profit" ventures. These sites are designed to let folks know how wonderful a place is our little community. While we will gladly publish your information on these sites, please don't expect great advertising results. As one businessman recently told me about another website that "claims" almost a million hits, "I spent my hard earned money on that thing and never got one phone call." Of course, the Reporter Statesman will continue with its print edition. We will also gladly share your information on the Internet, free of charge. If you have information for us to publish, you may call us at 806-659-3434 OT email us at reporter@spearmanreporter.com.

Changes at Hansford County Library

Once again change is in the air at Hansford County Library. In a recent board meeting, Maria Carbajal and Margaret Ruttman were named as co-directors to share the head position for an indefinite period. Carbajal has been with the local library for three and a half years and served as director for the past year and a half. Ruttman has been a library assistant for eight years.

In another staff change, the board accepted the resignation of assistant Kay Bowles, who has been with the library for eighteen months. Kay is moving from the area with her husband, Doug, who has accepted a coaching position in Oklahoma. Resumes are now being accepted for Bowles' position. While change seems to be inevitable at the local library, some things still remain constant. The recycling program that began in February of 2006, continues to be a huge success. The public is reminded to continue to deposit used printer cartridges, cell phones, laptops and PDAs in the drop boxes located throughout the community, or to bring them by the library. Also, donations and memorials continue to be a wonderful way to honor a loved one, as funds collected are used to purchase books or other designated items for use by library patrons. Books are still available from the book sale that began in April. While at least half of the books are gone, a good selection of fiction and romance grab bags, as well as a large number of hardback books remain. And don't forget - the summer reading program for children age 5 through second grade will be held each Tuesday morning in June. The Hansford County Library is located at 122 Main St, Spearman, TX 79081. Regular hours are 9:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m., Monday-Friday. Summer hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday-Friday. You may call 806-659-2231 for more information.

EDITORIAL

The Hansford County Reporter-Statesman

AUSTIN - Out of those thousands of bills lawmakers have filed in the 80th Regular Session of the Texas Legislature, about 150 already are on their way to the governor, having passed both House and Senate.

Hundreds more will land on Gov. Rick Perry's desk before the Legislature adjourns on May 28. Perry will have a 10-day period following adjournment to sign, veto or ignore legislation on his desk. Bills he chooses not to sign or veto will take effect without his signature.

Here are just a few bills of general interest awaiting action by the governor.

• HB 5 by Rep. Leo Berman, R-Tyler, cuts the homestead property tax of the elderly and disabled.

• HB 1098 by Rep. Dennis Bonnen, R-Angleton, prohibits immunization against human papillomavirus as a condition for admission to pubic school

 HB 2061 by Rep. Jim Keffer, R-Eastland, provides that a county or district clerk is not liable for the disclosure of a living person's Social Security number contained in a document filed with the county or district clerk.

• SB 90 by Leticia Van de Putte, D-San Antonio, establishes a pilot program to provide ballot by electronic mail to military personnel serving overseas.

• SB 112 by Sen. John Carona, R-Dallas, allows a peace officer to confiscate an individual's firearms and ammunition during a state of disaster.

• SB 369 by Sen. Tommy Williams, R-The Woodlands, makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine to alter or obscure a motor vehicle's license plate.

HB 1892, which achieved Senate approval on April 27, slows down by two years the governor's plan to close the deal on the Trans Texas Corridor, a 50-year, statewide toll road-building project.

The bill, by Rep. Wayne Smith, R-Baytown, and sponsored in the Senate by Williams, passed 27-4. "No" votes were cast by senators who hoped to get started on plans to relieve traffic congestion, or wanted to keep all options active and on the table. After the vote, Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst, who presides over the Senate, said, "I believe privately financed road projects play an essential role in our transportation future." But, Dewhurst added, a two-year moratorium would give the people of Texas and lawmakers time to make sure such projects "actually work and benefit all Texans."

Property tax protest bill passes

The House on April 27 passed a measure to give landowners more flexibility to postpone and reschedule their property appraisal protest nearings.

HB 538 by Rep. Bill Callegari, R-Katy, allows a land owner to postpone their property tax protest at least once without showing cause, and ets a land owner make additional postponements upon demonstration of reasonable cause.

The bill also increases the amount of time for the postponement of a protest hearing from 15 to 30 days.

Under current law, appraisal districts may choose to allow a land owner to postpone their appraisal protest hearing if the owner or their agent show good cause for the postponement. A hearing may be postponed by no less than five days, and no more than 15. The law does not allow additional postponements.

House OKs govt spending site

A proposal to create a "one stop shop" on the Internet where citizens would find a detailed accounting for all Texas state government expenditures earned tentative approval of the House.

HB 3430 by state Reps. Mark Strama, D-Austin; Bryan Hughes, R-Marshall; Corbin Van Arsdale, R-Houston; Juan Garcia, D-Corpus Christi; and Ken Paxton, R-McKinney, is modeled after federal legislation passed last year by U.S. Sens. Barack Obama, D-III., and Tom Coburn, R-Okla.

"Direct citizen access to information has already created a powerful additional check and balance on government and the media," Strama said.

The Web site would be accessed through TexasOnline and maintained by the state comptroller.

Dog bite legislation is OK'd

HB 1355 by Rep. Dan Gattis, R-Georgetown, would increase penalties to owners who fail to reasonably secure their dog, if the dog makes an unprovoked attack on a person, resulting in serious bodily injury or death.

The House passed the bill, and it has been assigned to the Senate Criminal Justice Committee for further consideration.

Words from Faith & Grace

by Cecil R. Biggers, Lutheran Lay Minister

In the fifth week of Easter, we witness the power of Jesus' resurrection as we study Acts 11:1-8, Psalm 148, Revelation 21:1-6 and John 13:31 35. Luke shows us Peter defending his actions in going to the house of Cornelius, a Roman centurion. The believers in Jerusalem, including the other Apostles, are upset because Peter "ate" with a gentile, a grievous breach of Jewish law. Peter relates to the others his vision from the Lord, and the vision of Cornelius that led to Peter's invitation to speak. Peter then tells that the household of Cornelius received the Holy Spirit just as Peter began to speak. The significance of this is that the gift of the Holy Spirit came from God not from Peter. The accusing disciples then remember their own experience with the Holy Spirit and are forced to conclude that God's purpose was to save even the gentiles! This is such a significant event that Luke tells this story twice. Note that Peter took with him six brethren to witness the events in Joppa, under the law at that time it took seven witnesses to prove a case in a court of law; Peter proves his case in the "court" of the faith community. In Psalm 148, one of the five concluding Psalms, The Psalmist sings for all creation to praise the Lord.

St. Augustine in his commentary on this Psalm notes that we are to praise God with all of our self-our voice, our tongue, our conscience. our life, our deeds. Indeed, all of God's creation "praises" Him by fulfilling the purpose for which they were created. Thus, dear Christian, we praise God by abiding in Christ in our everyday life.

In Revelation, John sees a vision of a new heaven and earth and a new Jerusalem. John proclaims that the sea will be no more. The sea for a Jew was a symbol of chaos, an enemy; there are no enemies in the new heav en and the new earth. God's people will have no tears, no death, no mourning, no crying. If we notice elsewhere the shape of this "new" Jerusalem, we notice a cube. Where have we seen a large cube in Jewish history? The Holy of Holies in the temple was a large cube; in it the presence, the glory of God resided and the High Priest could enter it once a year. In the New Jerusalem, the glory of God dwells with men; all believers have access and abide with God. This passage concludes with, "I am the Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end ... " If we remember Moses' talking with God at the burning bush we could read I AM, etc. the words translated "beginning and the end" can also be translated, perhaps more accurately, as "I AM the source of all things and the goal of all things". You see, dear Christian, the book of Revelation is a positive, encouraging book to the believer. Some may be put off by the scary language and strange beasts which are described, but if you study the book you will find that it sustains the believer who is undergoing persecution and turmoil. It tells us that we were created by God, that we are returning to God and that is all good.

Jesus' betrayal is at night, a time for evil deeds. Yet, Jesus tells us that in all this the Son of Man is glorified and God is glorified in Him. This refers to His crucifixion and resurrection. Jesus then gives a new commandment, the commandment of Love. "Just as I have loved you, you also should love one another". Dear Christian God so loved us that He gave his only Son to die for us; can we do less for one another?

May the Holy Spirit open your mind to the power of Christ's resurrec-

HELP! Memorial Day is coming......

HELP! Memorial Day is coming and I would like to ask for help for our local cemeteries. Memorial Day was started to remember our service folks and the price they paid. It has changed somewhat as we also remember ALL of the friends and relatives who have passed on. We usually do this by buying some flowers to take to the cemetery and maybe picking up some old flowers and a stick or two and just generally spend a few minutes at those graves and pay our respects. I would like for you to think a little further this year and consider helping the cemeteries where you go. If you sent half of your flower money to support the cemetery it would help, actually, if you sent anything it would help.

The local cemeteries are without an income to maintain the water system, roads, fences, do the mowing, pruning, weed-eating, and all the things they do to have a nice place for you to put your flowers. In the past a few very generous people gave every year to help and at one time the county also helped some. These people are no longer with us and the next generation has not picked up the slack. A lot of small donations are needed to make up for the large ones that are no longer there.

Doyle Jackson at the Holt, Don Maize and Ron Willis at Hansford, and I am sure folks at Lieb and Gruver are in the same spot.... they use their trucks, pay for their own gas and are available in all kinds of weather to make it work. Sometimes the local jail can supply labor at Hansford but they have to be watched and so it is not completely free even though it is appreciated. What have YOU done to help.

There was a cleanup day at Hansford and 3 people showed up. Have you given any money? Everyone cannot, but some can. There is NO pay for the people working to keep it going. I have not even mentioned their wives and others who do the book work, keep the records, maintain the bank accounts, and sometimes even pay bills out of their own pocket.

THIS year let's make it a point to help in some way. Either labor or money or both.

Some people buried there have no family left here, they still need care. Some people have family but they don't care, their graves still need care. Some people buried there have family that care very much but they spend all their money on flowers, benches, photos, and rocks and do not support the basics of the cemetery. Still others have family buried there who do not go out there or see the graves because of the personal pain, even these folks could write a check.

I am asking everyone to look at their own situation and do what they think is their part. To do nothing is just not responsible and is wrong. There are too many addresses to list them here but it is easy to find out where to send money to help. Another thing is to think about graves in other places.

Are you helping to maintain them?

One last thing, a "Thank You" to the folks keeping things going won't cost you anything and I promise you it will help. If anything is wrong at your loved ones grave site, these are the people you will call and chew out. Please do something to help this year and make it an annual habit.

Someone will need to take care of your site some day. Thank You, Jerry Sheets

Analysis of Proposed Constitutional Amendment for May 12, Election

This is an analysis of Proposed Article VIII, Texas Constitution, tion. Constitutional Amendment for the May 12, 2007, Election. It was prepared by the Staff of the Texas Legislative Council and published by the Texas Legislative Council.

The mission of the Texas Legislative Council is to provide professional, nonpartisan service and support to the Texas Legislature and legislative agencies. In every area of responsibility, we strive for quality and efficiency.

The proposed Constitutional Amendment will uthorize the legislature to provide for a reduction of the limitation on the total amount of ad valorem taxes that may be imposed for public school purposes on the residence homesteads of the elderly or disabled to reflect any reduction in the rate of those taxes for the 2006 and 2007 tax years.

General Information

At the beginning of the 2007 regular session, the 80th Texas Legislature passed a joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment that will be offered for ratification on the May 12, 2007, election ballot.

The Texas Constitution provides that the legislature, by a two-thirds vote of all members of each house, may propose amendments revising the constitution and that proposed amendments must then be submitted for approval to the qualified voters of the state. A proposed amendment becomes a part of the constitution if a majority of the votes cast in an election on the Constitution, provides that taxation proposition are cast in its favor. An shall be equal and uniform and that amendment approved by voters is all real property and tangible pereffective on the date of the official sonal property, unless exempt as canvass of returns showing adop- required or permitted by the constition. The proposed amend- amount less than the amount com-provides that the total amount of ad valorem taxes imposed for general elementary and secondary public school purposes on the residence homestead of a person who is 65 or older or is disabled may not be increased. The constitutional amendment proposed by Senate Joint Resolution No. 13 amends Section 1-b of Article VIII by adding a new Subsection (d-1).

The proposed Subsection (d-1) authorizes the legislature by general law to provide for the reduction of the amount of a tax limitation for an elderly or disabled person provided by Subsection (d) applicable to a residence homestead for the 2007 tax year to reflect any reduction from the 2006 tax year in the tax rate for general elementary and secondary public school purposes applicable to the homestead. In addition, a general law enacted under the proposed Subsection (d-1) may also take into account any reduction in the tax rate for those purposes from the 2005 tax year to the 2006 tax year if the homestead was subject to the tax limitation in the 2006 tax year. Finally, the proposed Subsection (d-1) would authorize a general law enacted to provide for a reduction in the tax limitation to apply the reduced tax limitation to the residence homestead in subsequent tax years until the limitation expires.

Background

Section 1, Article VIII, Texas the Texas Constitution is void. Since adoption in 1876 and Accordingly, unless authorized by ture nor a school district may limit

Major legislation enacted by the 79th Legislature, 3rd Called Session, 2006, provides new state aid to school districts for tax rate reduction, in addition to the state aid already provided to school districts each year, and requires a corresponding reduction in the rollback tax rate of each school district. House Bill No. 1 provides a mechanism for reducing each school district's ad valorem tax rate from the tax rate for the 2005 tax year by 11.33 percent in 2006 and 33.33 percent in 2007 and includes provisions permitting additional reductions in later years.

House Bill No. 1 also proposed to amend Section 11.26, Tax Code, which is the enabling legislation for Subsection (d), Section 1-b, Article VIII, Texas Constitution, to provide for the reduction of the limitation on tax increases on the residence homestead of an elderly or disabled person in proportion to the reduction in the school district ad valorem tax rate.

Because such a reduction is not currently authorized by Subsection (d) of Section 1-b, the proposed amendment to Section 11.26 was contingent on a constitutional amendment proposed by House Joint Resolution No. 26, 79th Legislature, 3rd Called Session, 2006. However, the amendment to Section 11.26 did not take effect because the legislature did not adopt the joint resolution proposing the constitutional amendment. As a result, although school district tax rates were reduced under H.B. No. 1 in 2006 and are scheduled to be reduced further in 2007, many eldticularly those who qualified for the limitation on school district ad valorem taxes many years ago when their homes were appraised at values much lower than current values, did not see a reduction in their 2006 school district taxes and reduction in 2007 either.

abled homeowners in the district trict taxes on their homes. will receive a reduction in their 2007 school district taxes regardless of any changes in the value of their homes that have occurred since they first qualified for the limitation on school district taxes.

House Bill No. 5, which is currently pending in the 80th Legislature, Regular Session, 2007, would if enacted implement the reduction authorized by S.J.R. No. 13 in the limitation on school district taxes on the residence homesteads of the elderly and disabled. House Bill No. 5 is contingent on the approval by the voters of the constitutional amendment proposed by S.J.R. No. 13 and, if that amendment is approved, the bill will take effect beginning with the current (2007) tax year. House Bill No. 5 amends Section 11.26, Tax Code, to implement the reduction in the limitation on school district taxes authorized by S.J.R. No. 13. House Bill No. 5 also makes conforming amendments to the Education and Government Codes that are necessary to protect school districts against any resulting loss in ad valorem tax revenue.

Arguments For:

1. Under H.B. No. 1 enacted by the 79th Legislature, 3rd Called Session, 2006, most homeowners received a reduction in the school district ad valorem taxes imposed on their homes in the 2006 tax year and are likely to receive a further reduction in those taxes in the 2007 and subsequent tax years. However, many elderly and disabled homeowners, particularly those who have occupied their homes for many years, did not erly and disabled homeowners, par- receive a reduction in the 2006 school district taxes on their homes. Senate Joint Resolution No. 13 and its enabling legislation promote fairness in taxation by ensuring that all homeowners benefit from the reduction in school district ad valorem taxes provided by probably would not receive a H.B. No. 1. In fact, unless the amendment is approved, elderly Senate Joint Resolution No. 13 and disabled homeowners would already limited under current law proposes to amend Section 1-b, probably find that their total tax were protected from those tax burden has increased because the increases. Elderly and disabled school district tax relief legislation homeowners who would not enacted by the 79th Legislature, 3rd Called Session, 2006, funded the reduction in school district ad their homes are already receiving valorem taxes in H.B. No. 1 by such a substantial tax benefit by increasing certain state taxes, and a virtue of the tax limitation provided portion of those increased state by current law that they would not taxes will be directly or indirectly passed on to elderly and disabled homeowners. The amendment is necessary to ensure that all homeowners receive the same proportionate reduction in the school dis- tax relief for homeowners who are Under S.J.R. No. 13 and the enabling legislation, elderly and disabled homeowners would continue to receive a reduction in their' taxes in future years even if tax rates subsequently increase. Protecting elderly and disabled homeowners from future school district tax increases is essential because many such persons live on fixed incomes and face medical and other expenses that exceed those of other homeowners. Subjecting elderly and disabled homeowners to school district tax increases, even if only to the level at which those taxes were originally limited, could make it difficult for them to continue to afford to live in their homes.

2. The added tax relief for the elderly and disabled proposed by S.J.R.

No. 13 will not harm school districts because the Texas Constitution in Subsection (c), Section 1-b, Article VIII, requires the legislature to provide for formulas to protect school districts against all or part of the revenue loss incurred by the implementation of the limitation on school district ad valorem taxes on the residence homesteads of the elderly and disabled, and H.B. No. 5, if enacted, will protect school districts against any loss in ad valorem tax revenue resulting from the reduction in the limitation on those taxes. Compared to the amount of state funds being directed to provide school district ad valorem tax relief to other taxpayers, the amount of state funds to be used to implement tax relief for elderly and disabled homeowners under the proposed amendment is modest. Arguments Against:

1. House Bill No. 1 was intended in part to provide school district tax relief to homeowners whose taxes have increased in recent years as a result of increasing valuations and tax rates. Elderly and disabled homeowners whose taxes were receive a reduction under H.B. No. 1 in the school district taxes on receive any benefit from a reduction over a two-year period in school district maintenance and operations tax rates of 33 percent. It is difficult to justify additional already receiving substantial tax savings and who are not necessarily needy.

If such a reduction were justified, it should be based on the reduction authorized by H.B. No. 1 in the school district maintenance and operations ad valorem tax rate. However, because the reduction in the school district tax limitation under S.J.R. No. 13 is based on the reduction in the total school district tax rate, not just the maintenance and operations tax rate, elderly and disabled homeowners would also benefit from any reduction in the tax rate for bonds and other debt, which might decline for reasons totally unrelated to H.B. No. 1.

Furthermore, the primary justification that has been offered for reducing the limitation on school district ad valorem taxes on the homes of the elderly and disabled is that they should enjoy the same tax relief as other homeowners. However, if school district tax rates subsequently increase, the taxes on the homes of the elderly and disabled will remain frozen at the level to which they have been reduced under the proposed amendment while the taxes on other homeowners increase. The taxes on the homes of the elderly and disabled will not even increase back to the level at which they were formerly frozen. Elderly and disabled homeowners, who already enjoy a limitation on the school district taxes on their homes regardless of their incomes, should not receive a permanent additional reduction in those taxes regardless of the reason for the reduction in the tax rate and regardless of whether the taxes on the homes of other taxpayers continue to be reduced.

2. The Legislative Budget Board estimates that the cost to the state's general revenue fund for the next five state fiscal years of implementing H.B. No. 5, the enabling legislation for SJ.R. No. 13, is almost $750 million. Elderly and disabled homeowners already receive a substantial tax benefit by virtue of the limitation on school district ad valorem taxes on their homes provided by current law. Although the state government is currently enjoying a surplus, that may not continue and Texas has many other pressing needs for its limited tax resources. Spending such a large amount to provide additional tax relief to all elderly and disabled homeowners, including those who are not needy, is not the most appropriate use of state funds.

Subsection (d), Section 1-b, Article VIII, Texas Constitution, is an exception to the general principles that ad valorem taxes must be equal and uniform and must be imposed in proportion to value. Subsection (d) provides that the total amount of ad valorem taxes imposed for general elementary The remaining section of this and secondary public school purposes on the residence homestead of a person who is 65 or older or is disabled may not be increased. The taxes for school purposes imposed on the homestead of an elderly or disabled person are The constitutional amendment equal to the lesser of the amount computed by applying the current tax rate to the current value of the property or the amount as limited by Subsection (d) of Section 1-b, Article VIII. Article VIII, Texas Constitution, by adding Subsection (d-1). The proposed Subsection (d-1) authorizes the legislature by general law to provide for the reduction of the amount of the school district tax limitation for the elderly and disabled provided by Subsection (d) of Section 1-b and applicable to a residence homestead for the 2007 tax year to reflect any reduction from the 2006 tax year in the applicable school district ad valorem tax rate. In reducing the school district tax limitation for 2007 on a homestead, the general law may also take into account any reduction in the applicable school district tax rate from the 2005 tax year to the 2006 tax year if the homestead was also subject to the school district tax limitation in the 2006 tax year. The general law may also provide that, except to the extent the taxes are increased because of improvements, a limitation as reduced continues to apply to the residence homestead in subsequent tax years until the limitation expires because the property is no longer the homestead of a person eligible for the limitation. Under the constitutional amendment proposed by S.J.R. No. 13, if a school district adopted a tax rate in 2006 or adopts a tax rate in 2007 that is lower than the district's tax rate in 2005, elderly and dis-

2007 Texas Corn Acreage to Increase, Declines in Cotton Forecasted

by Blair Fannin, 979-845-2259, b-fannin@tamu.edu

Fueled by ethanol demand and strong export sales, U.S. corn acreage is predicted to be the largest since 1944 with Texas plantings to increase by as much as a quarter of a million acres in 2007, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported Friday.

Cotton, the state's number one cash crop, is predicted to drop in acreage by 11 percent or more than 600,000 acres, according to the report. Cotton producers across the state are expected to plant just over 5.73 million acres compared to 6.43 million acres in 2006.

"The first thing to say about it is this is sort of a benchmark on acreage and nobody should take it as a final deal," said Dr. John Robinson, Texas Cooperative Extension cotton marketing economist.

Weather so far has not been a determining factor for agriculture production in Texas, but lack of rain could alter the number of crop acres planted and yields. State agriculture producers are hoping there isn't a repeat of 2006 when crops across the state were ravaged by drought.

"Things have already changed in the last 30 days (regarding weather)," Robinson said. "It's gotten drier in the mid-south. There's a whole lot of variables between now and the next (USDA acreage report) on June 30 when they go out and survey actual acreage."

Prospective corn plantings statewide are predicted to be 2 million acres compared to 1.76 million acres in 2006, according to estimates.

"If we get a good crop year, it could provide some good returns to producers," said Dr. Mark Waller, Extension economics program leader. "In terms of dryland production, we hope it gets the moisture it needs. The moisture situation has improved since last fall, but we don't have a lot of sub-soil reserves. It sounds like things are getting (planted) in the lower part of the state, but we still need good moisture.

Though Texas corn acreage is on the increase, Waller advises producers not to rest on their laurels if they're anticipating high returns on a large crop.

"While it looks like we'll be planting more corn this year and we've got some good potential in prices, producers need to be thinking about what to do in terms of production and price insurance," he said. "If you've planted a lot more corn, don't just sit back and think (prices) will keep going up. Watch the market. When you get some decent pricing opportunities, take advantage of them."

Texas produced more than $561 million worth of corn for grain in 2006, according to agriculture department data. That figure could increase dramatically in 2007 with the potential for larger yields and record-high corn prices.

"I expect to see a corn crop we haven't seen in a while," said Dr. Travis Miller, Extension program leader for soil and crop sciences. "There's rains in the Plains (region) today and the (Central Texas) Blacklands. If people have got it planted, that's perfect timing."

U.S. corn growers intend to plant 90.5 million acres of corn in 2007 up 15 percent from 2006 and 11 percent higher than 2005, the agriculture department reports. By comparison, it would mark the highest number of acres since 1944 when 95.5 million acres were planted. Expected acreage is up in nearly all states as high corn prices are encouraging farmers to plant more acres in corn. Nationally, Illinois farmers are predicted to plant a record-high 12.9 million acres of corn this spring, up 1.6 million acres from a year ago, while North Dakota (increased 910,000 acres) and Minnesota (increased 600,000 acres) as growers are expected to plant a record number of corn acres. The drop in Texas cotton acres is in response to the change in corn acreage and the trickle effect on other planted commodities including sorghum and soybeans, economists said.

Texas Wheat Crop Strengthened by Rainfall

by Blair Fannin, 979-845-2259, b-fannin@tamu.edu

The 2006 drought led to the smallest number of wheat acres harvested in Texas since 1925, but this year's crop is showing promise thanks to timely rains, a small grains expert said.

"(Rainfall) in the High Plains and other parts of the state over the past couple of weeks have increased yield expectations," said Dr. Gaylon Morgan, Texas Cooperative Extension small grains specialist. "Statewide, most of the wheat is considered to have good to excellent yield potential due to (available) soil moisture and relatively low disease pressure."

About 6 million winter wheat acres have been planted as part of the 2007 crop, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture-National Agricultural Statistics Service.

Texas producers have renewed optimism after the 2006 drought devastated wheat and other crops throughout the state, resulting in $2.5 billion in losses, according to Extension economists.

The value of the 2006 Texas wheat crop was $153 million compared to $330 million in 2005 and $362 million in 2004, according to USDA data. Last year's drought not only led to millions in losses in revenue for farmers, but sales proceeds from harvested wheat in 2006 led to just $42,000 in Texas Wheat Board allocations for research initiatives. About $211,000 was allotted in 2005 by comparison.

The only disappointments so far are the Southern Rolling Plains and the Concho Valley with late-planted wheat, Morgan said. Yield potential is expected to be low and much of the wheat "grazed-out or baled for hay, despite recent rains," he said.

Meanwhile, rain and warm weather is helping the crop to progress rapidly, Morgan said. In South Texas, the wheat crop is heading and flowering. In the Blacklands region, wheat is beyond the boot stage (the seedhead enclosed within the sheath of the flag leaf) to early flowering.

"In these areas, the crop ranges from late-jointing to early heading," he said. "Most of the wheat on the High Plains is at the jointing stage."

Meanwhile, weed management is another issue that needs attention from growers, Morgan said. Mustards and broadleaf weeds become a problem for some producers as the growing season progresses, he said.

"Late-season broadleaf weed options exist. However, no herbicides should be applied after boot stage," Morgan said.

Examples of herbicides that may be applied up to the boot stage include MCPA, 2,4-D, Ally, Buctril and Finesse.

"If your wheat crop is beyond the boot stage and heavy weed infestations will negatively affect harvest and grain quality, several harvest aids do exist," Morgan said. "However, the harvest aids can't be applied until after the wheat crop is in the hard-dough stage or beyond. If wheat for seed will be kept from a field receiving a harvest aid application, a seed germination test is strongly encouraged because harvest aids can negatively affect seed germination."

Wheat producers are also keeping a watchful eye on crop disease. South Texas wheat is heading with relatively low leaf rust pressure, Morgan said. In the Blacklands, leaf rust pressure is relatively low, "but powdery mildew is still present on susceptible hard wheat varieties."

"Leaf rust is being observed at concerning levels on very susceptible varieties, such as Cutter, Jagelene and 2145," he said. "However, varieties with moderate resistance, such as Coronado, only have low levels of leaf rust at this time."

Call 659-3434 for details.

Fannin County has maintained its resistance to leaf rust, he said, while trated into this one-third. stripe rust levels remain at very low levels throughout South Texas and the Blacklands regions. "These low foliar disease levels may be the result of a very dry February and early March and fungal inoculum did not build up," Morgan said. "Nonetheless, as warm moist conditions have returned to much of the state, foliar diseases can increase quickly and warrant observation. Paid CDL Training! # Ethanol, Corn to Weigh Heavily on Future of Livestock Industry

by Blair Fannin, 979-845-2259, b-fannin@tamu.edu

Future ethanol production and demand for distiller's grains will leave cattle prices lower and lead to higher consumer meat prices, a Texas Cooperative Extension economist said.

Dr. David Anderson, Extension livestock marketing economist, gave an overview of the interaction between renewable energy production and the livestock industry at the recent 2007 Texas Ag Forum in Austin.

Livestock producers should keep these possibilities in mind as ethanol production grows across the country, Anderson said:

- Higher feed costs.

- Feeder cattle and calf prices adjusted to the price of corn.

- Reduced production in terms of cattle weights and profitability.

- A livestock industry that is less competitive in the world market.

The boom in the number of ethanol plants is primarily centered in the Corn Belt, Anderson said, leading to large supplies of distiller's grains, the byproduct which is used primarily as livestock feed.

"Supply of distiller's grains is expected to increase to well over 30 million tons per year," he said. "At that rate of growth, supplies will exceed demand, leading to lower distiller grains relative to corn."

For each 56-pound bushel of corn used to make ethanol, about 17 pounds of distiller's grains is produced, Anderson said.

"While the starch is taken out of the corn to make ethanol, the remaining nutrients are concentrated in the distiller's grains," he said. "It has more protein and energy than corn, per pound. The energy comes from the fat that was in the corn."

Portions of phosphorus, potassium and sulfur are increased as well, he said, noting if the corn used to make ethanol had aflatoxin, "it too is concentrated three times in the resulting distiller's grains."

Thus, distiller's grains "presents a number of management issues related to handling and storing," Anderson said.

"It's a highly variable product," he said. "At that rate of growth, supplies will exceed demand, leading to lower distiller grains prices relative to corn."

Overall, Anderson predicts livestock producers will see higher-priced feed and "lower returns and reduced profitability."

"It results in a less competitive livestock industry in world markets and regionally in the U.S. It will also result in higher food prices for consumers," Anderson said.

Editor's Note: The following are some facts about corn as it relates to ethanol production and livestock feeding. This information can be used in a breakout box:

- Products of wet corn milling: One bushel of corn can equal up to 31.5 pounds of starch, which can be further processed into 33 pounds of sweetener or 2.5 gallons of ethanol; 13.5 pounds of gluten feed, 2.5 pounds of gluten meal, 1.6 pounds of corn meal.

- Corn gluten can be wet or dry with moderate crude protein between 16 percent and 23 percent; it looks like oatmeal.

- Products of dry corn milling: One bushel of corn yields 2.75 gallons of ethanol; 17-18 pounds of distillers grains and solubles; distiller's grains are one-third the weight of the corn and but the starch is concen-

Some Texas farmers are shifting cotton acreage to corn acreage in the Central Texas Blacklands, Wharton and Lower Rio Grande Valley regions to take advantage of the prices, Robinson said.

"But mainly, it's a question of shifting to grain sorghum or wheat," said Robinson, noting the demand for corn is altering the number of planted acres for other commodities, thus changing the supply-demand equation. Electronic cotton market contracts were trading above 60 cents early Friday.

"The market is still going to grind on and in the short term, there could be a price rally," Robinson said. "If someone were forward-pricing, they may be able to lock something in. To my way of thinking, we need a rally of up to three to four cents for it to be a meaningful opportunity."

U.S. cotton plantings for 2007 are expected to total 12.1 million acres, 20 percent below 2006 levels and the lowest since 1989, the agriculture department reports. Growers intend to decrease planted area in all states with the largest acreage declines in Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Carolina, Mississippi and Texas.

The area addressed by the application is located at approximately 3.5 miles south of Gruver, off Farm-to-Market Road 2018, east of highway, Gruver, Hansford County, Texas. This application was received by the TCEQ on November 3, 2006. The purpose of a federal operating permit is to improve overall compliance with the rules governing air pollution control by clearly listing all applicable requirements, as defined in Title 30 Texas Administrative Code § 122.10 (30 TAC § 122.10). The draft permit, if approved, will codify the conditions under which the area must operate. The permit will not authorize new construction. Lake Level--April 30, 2007--21.08 feet (-0.16)

Lake report. We were wondering how much the lake level would have risen with the Sunray rains. You can imagine my disappointment when Jim told me that the run-off again did not reach the Lake. This time it did at least reach into the Park boundaries.

Jim found where the rise had reached a tumbleweed dam near the Ace Powers house. It made its way through the dam and on about a mile north before it soaked its way into the ground.

morning that the rushing waters the trails near the entrance of Horse had left quite a stack of tumble- Creek. weeds on his cement crossing. He was wondering about burning them.

Activity at the Lake picked up I was eager to call Jim for his with the good weather this weekend. There were 2 RVs back of the dam and one on the office side. A group of Cub Scouts came from Amarillo to camp in tents on Friday night.

Fishermen were out, but Jim didn't hear of any good catches.

A new activity at the Park in recent years is mountain biking. Ben Butler, who with his wife the former Jill Lusby, live on a farm a few miles east of the Lake, has done quite a bit of work laying out biking trails in the Park. This week Joel Lee Lackey told me this he and 5 other men had fun riding

Sunday's Amarillo Globe-News carried the obituary of Lenora Rivers Brown Stavlo, age 96, of Dumas. She grew up on the banks of the Palo Duro Creek 26 miles west of Morse. Born in 1910, she became motherless at three years of age. She had a sister ten months younger, and a brother born in 1913 just 2 months before their mother died of appendicitis. When she was five, their father moved his motherless family to a two section ranch in Sherman County. She began cooking at age 5 and by the time she was 12 could drive a four horse team. When she was eighty years old, she wrote a book "Remembering My Life in the Texas Panhandle." I found this to be a charming little book.
