

Police Report 405 'Majors', 99 Clearances in 1978

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

The number of major crimes investigated by Hereford police changed very little from 1977 to 1978, but the clearance rate dropped, according to a report to be submitted to the Hereford City Commission Monday.

The annual police report, released to The Brand Friday, showed that 405 major crimes were investigated in 1978, compared to 407 in 1977. There were 99 clearances last year, signifying 24 percent cleared, compared to 30 percent in 1977.

Crimes considered major by the Hereford Police Department include murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny-theft and motor vehicle theft.

According to the report, one murder was reported and cleared in Hereford last year. There were no rapes, three robberies, 103 aggravated assaults, 115 burglaries, 171 larceny-thefts and 12 motor vehicle thefts.

Crimes cleared were as follows: Robberies, three, 100 percent; aggravated assaults, 36, 35 percent; burglaries, 28, 24 percent; larceny-thefts, 22, 13 percent; motor vehicle theft, nine, 80 percent.

Police Chief Don Brush said he was not disappointed that the percentage of crimes cleared had dropped from 1977.

"The statewide average for cities our size is about 24 percent, so our police department in Hereford is just as good as any in the state our size," Brush said. "I'm pretty well pleased with our clearance record."

In 1978, there was $114,098 worth of property stolen, of which $43,662 was recovered. That compares with $134,026 worth of property stolen in 1977, with $55,515 of that being recovered.

The police department's busiest month for investigating stolen property was November, with $26,427 taken during that month. Of that, $11,000 was recovered.

There were 530 adults arrested last year, compared to 529 in 1977. Juvenile arrests totaled 226 in 1978 and 248 in 1977.

Seventeen-year-old offenders comprised the largest category of adults arrested for all crimes, including misdemeanors, with 116. The next largest was the 22-year-old group with 53 arrests. Of the adults arrested for all crimes, five were age 60 or older.

There were eight juveniles age 10 or younger arrested in 1978, 16 ages 11-12, 75 ages 13-14, 63 age 15, 62 age 16 and two age 17 (certified as juveniles, not adults).

There were 46 female and 20 male runaways arrested by Hereford police last year.

Police issued 2,599 citations for moving traffic violations last year and 325 traffic tickets for a 2,924 total. That compares with 2,330 moving and 97 parking violations in 1977.

Of the total number of ticketed persons, 2,220 pleaded guilty and paid fines.

There were 568 traffic accidents in 1978, with 64 injuries and one fatality. That compares with 604 wrecks, 46 injuries and one fatality in 1977.

The worst month last year for traffic accidents was December, with 66.

There were 1,199 animals handled by the animal control officer last year, compared with 1,460 in 1977 and 634 in 1976.

1978 was a rough year in the line of duty for Hereford police officers. Five officers were assaulted last year, compared to three in 1977 and one in 1976. Knives were used in two of last year's attacks on policemen.

Nuclear Catastrophe Considered Unlikely

Williams Receives 10 Years

CANYON—A 251st District Court jury sentenced Richard Williams of Hereford to 10 years in prison, the maximum penalty for an aggravated assault conviction, after hearing testimony relating to his character Friday.

The trial was moved here from Hereford after two mistrials.

Williams was on trial for the Oct. 11, 1977 beating of Larry Glover of Milo Center. Glover died of a massive head injury the following day after being transferred from Deaf Smith General Hospital to Amarillo.

The Canyon jury Thursday decided that Williams could not be convicted of murder. District Judge Wesley Gulley of Hereford instructed jurors that aggravated assault was an option in the trial, along with self-defense in favor of Williams.

Williams testified Wednesday that Glover made the first move in the confrontation that occurred in front of Glover's residence east of Milo Center. Williams said he feared Glover was throwing a punch.

Glover was taken to the emergency room of Deaf Smith General Hospital following the incident. He was treated and released but returned on the morning of Oct. 12 after his condition worsened, according to testimony.

Celanese Flash Fire Injures 10

PAMPA (AP) - A flash fire in a high-voltage electrical panel at a Celanese Chemical plant Friday injured 10 people, two of whom were transferred by private jet to a Dallas hospital in critical condition.

Authorities said four of the 10 were burned badly. Doctors from Dallas Parkland hospital were to travel to the Texas Panhandle to treat two of the seriously burned.

The afternoon accident occurred in an isolated part of the plant that employs about 900.

Of the injured, two were Celanese employees and the others worked for Brown and Root Construction Co.

Medical evacuation helicopters ferried the more seriously hurt from the Pampa plant site to a hospital in Amarillo, about 50 miles to the south.

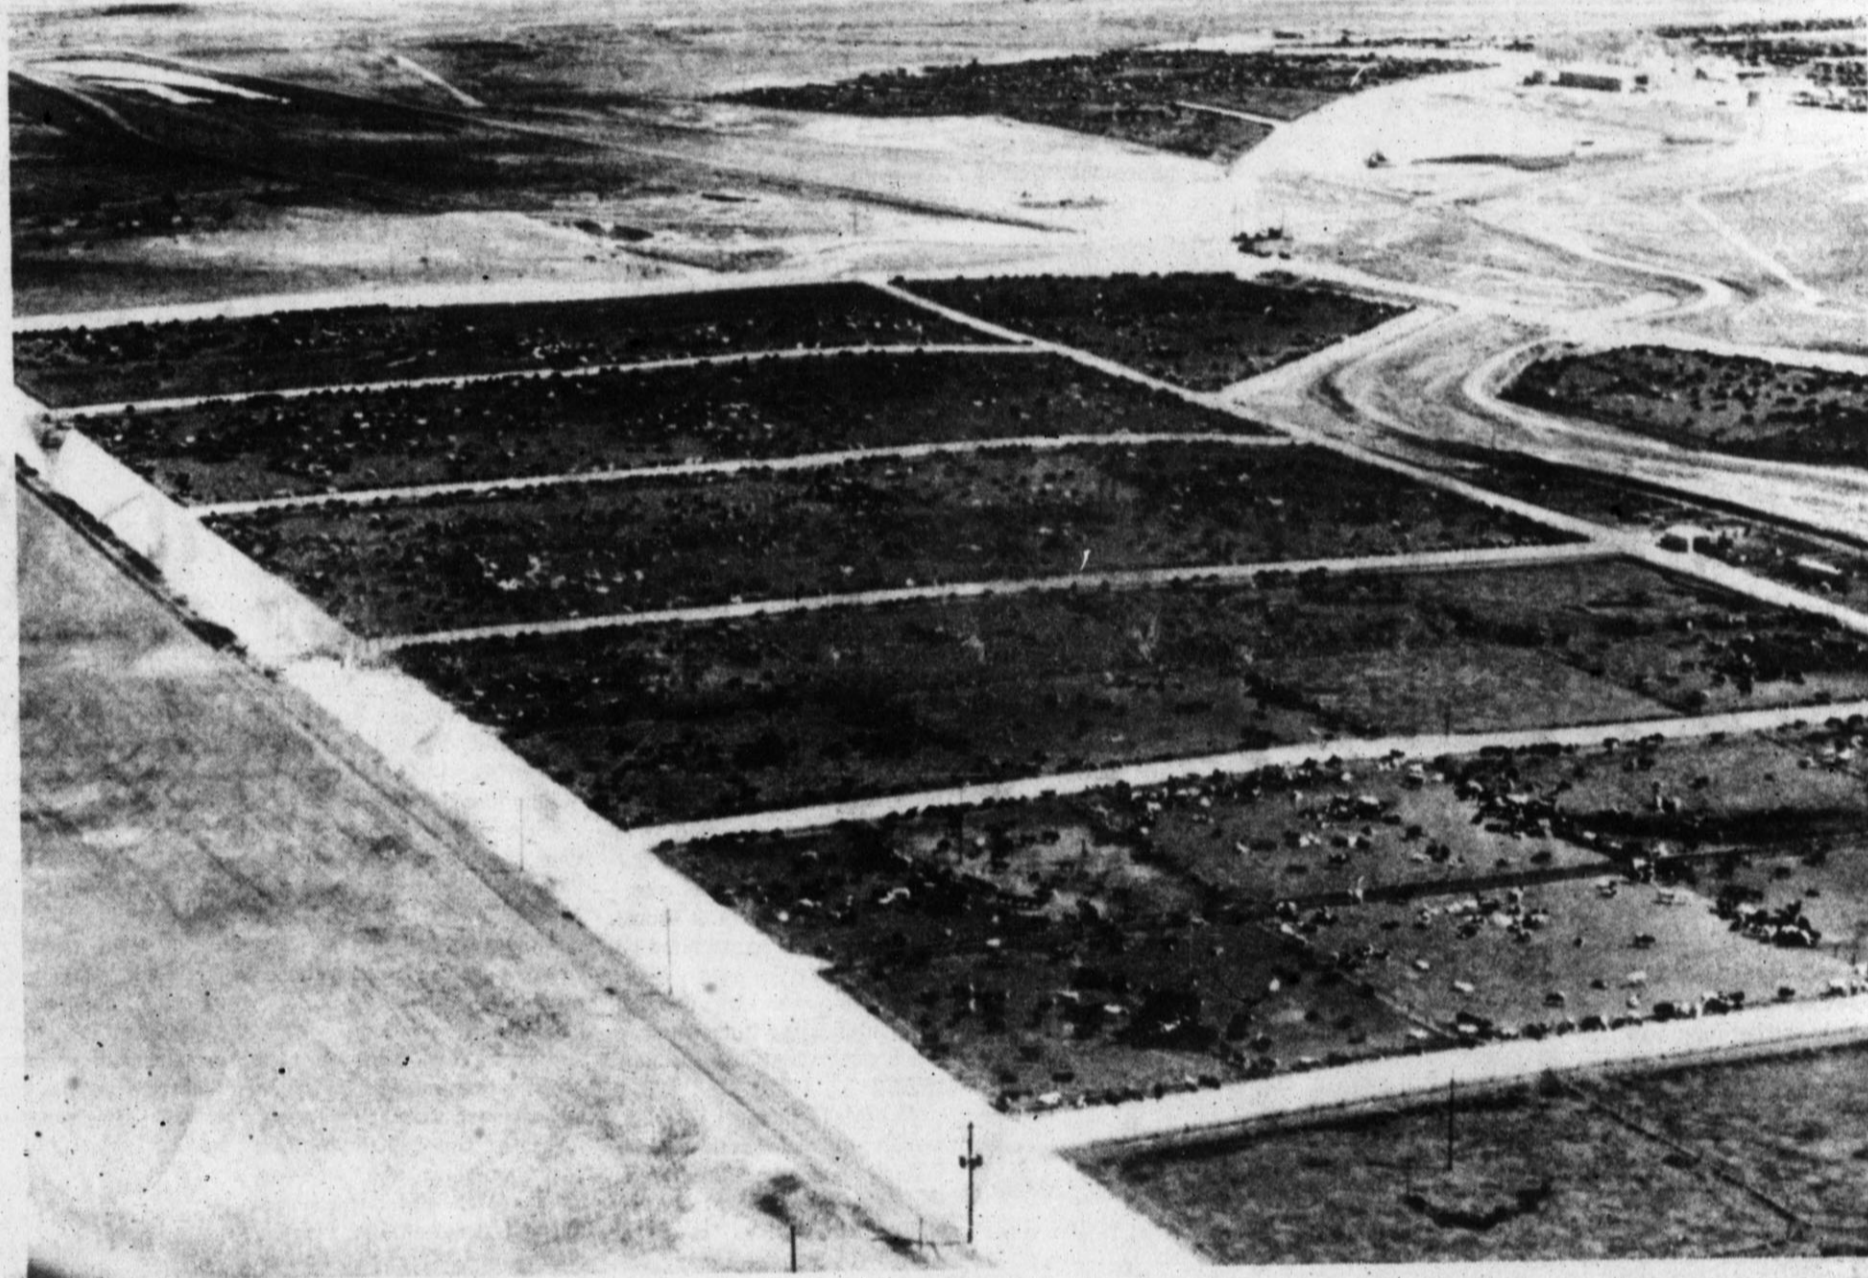

Celanese program manager Gene Steele said, "There was a high-voltage electrical fire...we believe that an electrical failure resulted in the fire."

Plant spokesman Al Miller said the cause of the fire was not determined immediately.

"It was either a workman's miscalculation or a water leak that caused the electrical failure," Miller said.

Department of Public Safety officer Jerry Oragat said the four most badly burned were "black from head to toe." He said several of the victims had to be pulled from the panel.

Miller said the workers were installing a large electrical panel in a new portion of the plant when the fire broke out. The

Big Business in County

Deaf Smith County remained No. 1 in the state in feed yard capacity and number of cattle fed in 1978, according to a report released last week by Southwestern Public Service Co. Local feed yards were far from full Friday, as evidenced by this aerial photo, but cattle feeding

Arabs Agree To Boycott Egypt

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) - Hardline and moderate Arabs agreed Saturday to a complete economic boycott of Egypt and an eventual break in diplomatic relations with President Anwar Sadat's government, conference sources said. The hardline argument that America could compensate Egypt for any losses apparently broke the deadlock.

The reported agreement, reached on the fifth day of often volatile negotiations, indicated the conservative bloc led by Saudi Arabia had acceded to nearly all the hardline demands for sanctions against Sadat for signing the peace treaty for Israel.

A member of the Kuwaiti delegation announced the accord to journalists, and other conference sources confirmed the report, which came as a surprise to many observers who thought the radical-moderate split seemed irreparable.

The sources said the 18 countries in the Arab League attending the conference and the Palestine Liberation Organization have agreed to: Stop all Arab aid to Egypt. A proposal to withdraw all Arab official and private investments from Egyptian banks was dropped, reportedly on grounds that the Sadat government likely would sequester them.

Immediately withdraw all ambassadors from Cairo. Jordan already has done so, as have the hardline regimes of Syria, Libya, Algeria, South Yemen and the PLO.

A complete cut in government-to-government relations with Egypt at the time of each country's choosing. A Saudi journalist said this was an insistence of the, conservative Persian Gulf states which wanted the option of choosing the time of a diplomatic cutoff, although the hardliners wanted an immediate total break.

Saudi Arabia's King Khaled has said his country will end relations with Egypt "the day the Israeli flag flies over Cairo," the Saudi reporter said.

Economists in Cairo believe Egypt could survive a reduction of aid from oil-producing states and that trade embargoes would have little impact, since less than 10 percent of Egypt's trade is with Arab countries.

But the economists felt Egypt would be seriously hurt if the oil-rich states withdrew bank deposits in Egyptian banks, estimated at well over $2 billion.

Overcharge Lawsuits Could Take 10 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) - A federal judge says it may take up to a decade to resolve government lawsuits accusing nine large oil companies of overcharging customers by more than $1 million.

"They're going to fight you on every nickel, every dime, every nuance," U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell told Energy Department lawyers Friday before ruling they can proceed with their case. "This can take 5 to 10 years."

Six of the nine oil firms had asked Gesell to dismiss the case on grounds that the government should initially try to resolve the dispute through Energy Department proceedings.

Gesell disagreed, saying, "I'm forced to conclude the court does have jurisdiction."

"You're going to have to prove every penny" of the overcharges, Gesell warned the government. He added, "These companies aren't all coming in

Higher Cattle Prices Pave Way For Rising Federal Farm Index

WASHINGTON (AP) - Soaring prices for beef cattle and calves helped boost the government's farm price index to a new record for the fourth consecutive month in March.

The Agriculture Department said Friday prices farmers get for raw products rose an average of 2 percent last month from February, putting the index 23 percent above a year ago.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said higher prices for cattle, calves and eggs contributed most to the gain to the price index.

However, lower prices for hogs and lettuce partially offset the gains.

Beef cattle prices, already at record levels, jumped 9.5 percent from February to March.

Vegetable prices dropped 13 percent, including a 35 percent plummet in lettuce prices to $13.60 per 100 pounds from $20.90 in February. That was the first decline in

Iranians Support New Government

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Turkoman tribesmen battled government troops in northeastern Iran Saturday as scattered early returns from a national referendum showed Iranians voting landslide support for an Islamic republic to replace exiled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's monarchy.

Sources said the revolutionary government sent Islamic militiamen to reinforce troops fighting the Turkoman rebels in the northeastern city of Gonbad-E-Qavous. Government forces blocked roads leading to the city and cut off telephone communications, the sources said.

There were no details of the fighting and no casualty figures were available. Earlier reports said at least 50 persons were killed in the first days of fighting.

The rebels took up arms last Monday to push their demands for autonomy for Gorgan Province, where about 500,000 of the minority tribesmen live. Government negotiators sent to work out a truce with the rebels have so far failed to halt the fighting.

In Tehran, the newspaper Ayandegan told published what it said were early official results from 11 small provincial towns, which showed 99.7 percent of voters there backing the Islamic state proposed by Moslem holy man Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, architect of the anti-shah rebellion.

Carter Says Indictment At Plant To Inspire

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., will force officials to rethink current safety standards.

Carter told visiting editors Friday the power plant incident "will probably lead inexorably toward even more stringent safety design mechanisms and standards."

Trial

Roland Saul asked the jury Friday to assess the maximum prison sentence for aggravated assault. The jury deliberated for two hours before deciding on that sentence and a $2,500 fine.

Guiley said Williams would remain free on $30,000 bail and that a date for formal pronouncement of the sentence would be set next week.

Fire

lines into the transformer carried more than 13,000 volts.

The panel controls the water cooling system for chemical boilers in the plant.

Celanes spokesman Herb Reed in Dallas said the plant employs about 900 workers, including contractors and

The mysterious malfunction at the plant, which has been in operation just three months, prompted Carter to say Friday that it will probably lead to stricter safety standards for nuclear facilities.

"Civil Defense officials said 188 persons spent the night at evacuation centers, including 83 small children and some mothers-to-be at an ice arena in Hershey, Pa. They couldn't see it, taste it or smell it - but they knew radiation meant harm.

"Something's wrong with the air," said 6-year-old Abby Baumbach. "My mommy told me it could kill me. It comes from the plant in the river."

Karen Cole, 25 and two months pregnant, said, "I'm scared to death."

Prices

In a related report, the department said preliminary figures for March showed retail beef prices rose 1.8 percent to a record of some $2.19 a pound, measured on an all-cut basis.

That was up from slightly over $2.15 a pound in February and was 31.2 percent higher than the retail beef average of

Meanwhile, Sens. Richard Schweiker and John Heinz, both Pennsylvania Republicans, and Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., chairman of the Senate subcommittee on nuclear regulation, said they feared a possible melt-down of the plant's nuclear core "which would discharge huge amounts of radioactivity."

Hart said "a potentially catastrophic situation" remained with the possibility of continued releases of radiation from the plant.

The senators made their comments after a briefing by Nuclear Regulatory Commission officials.

Dennis Crutchfield of the NRC's Office of Nuclear Regulation said a melt-down was unlikely but "the potential is there."

Mini-Bottles Okay, Clements Says

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he doesn't know anything about the "little bitty beer bottle bill" passed this week but has nothing against allowing smaller beer containers.

The Legislature completed action on the bill, and Clements must decide whether to sign it or veto it.

"I'm not particular about my beer. I will drink it in large or small containers," he joked at his weekly news conference.

The bill inspired heated debate in the House Wednesday and Thursday, but Clements said, "I've never heard of the bill before right now."

Most of the debate centered on provisions that prohibit brewers and distributors from selling directly to consumers. Keg beer, for instance, now is sold directly from distributors' docks.

Clements said he always has believed that wholesalers should not sell directly to consumers but should deal only with retailers.

The bill allows sale of beer in cans or bottles of 7, 8 and 16 ounces in addition to the presently authorized 12, 24 and 32 ounces.

United Airlines Flights Cancel

CHICAGO (AP) — Thousands of passengers scheduled to fly on United Airlines Saturday were grounded or looking for other means of travel after machinists struck the nation's largest air carrier.

The airline canceled all flight operations until April 10 after the Machinists union, which represents 18,000 employees, including mechanics, flight dispatchers and ramp and service workers, went on strike at 12:01 a.m. EST today.

A cost-of-living escalator clause is the key unresolved issue, a union official said. No new negotiations were scheduled.

"We've got a strike on our hands every place," said Jim Kennedy, a spokesman for United, a division of Chicago-based UAL Inc. "It's a system shutdown, or a system walkout I should say."

United Serves 110 cities across the nation and carries an average of 130,000 passengers daily. Crews either walked off their shifts at 12:01 a.m. EST or replacement shifts failed to report at all United locations, Kennedy said.

Police Report

Police Saturday morning were investigating break-ins at Allred Oil Co. and Hereford Fruit Market. Details were not available by press time.

Enrique Garcia, 20, of 220 Ave. C, was arrested Friday night on charges of driving under the influence of drugs and possession of marijuana. His car was stopped at U.S. Highway 385 and Fourth St.

Police Friday night also arrested three persons on charges of public intoxication. One of those arrested was also charged with disorderly conduct.

A window was broken at The Yellow Daisy, 223 N. 25 Mile Ave., and entry was gained sometime Friday night or early Saturday morning. Police said a small amount of money was stolen from the cash register.

Chuck Cosper, 221 Centre, told police that someone smashed the side of his Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. patrol car.

Travis West, Route 3, S. Schley, reported that a tool box was stolen from his car while it was parked at Sampson and Sixth Friday night. Total value of the missing merchandise is $1,000 West said.

Clements To Fight Smut

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he will support legislation tightening state pornography laws and protecting children from portrayals in obscene materials.

He said the bills would follow the U.S. Supreme Court's "Miller" decision that makes community standards the test for determining whether something is obscene.

"The reprehensible use of children in pornography certainly is something we shouldn't allow in Texas," Clements told his weekly news conference.

On another legislative matter, Clements said he would sign a bill restoring the right of ex-convicts to vote once they have completed their sentences, including parole and probation.

The House passed the bill this week and sent it to the Senate. Rep. Clay Smothers, D-Dallas, the sponsor said he had reason to believe Clements would sign it.

"I will," he said emphatically.

Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe vetoed such a bill in 1977.

Clements disagreed strongly with the Texas State Teachers Association's recent endorsement of collective bargaining for school teachers.

He said it would not change his stand that legislators should repeat the teacher pay plan that guarantees them longevity raises through the first 16 years of their careers. He believes they should receive only cost-of-living raises from the Legislature, equal to those given state employees, and merit raises from the school boards.

"The teachers have made another mistake. I do not believe the people of Texas want their teachers organized in a union. I don't either. It would be inappropriate," he said.

Clements said his inquiry into the availability of diesel fuel had revealed 6 million gallons are unallocated for March, and "the only shortage I am aware of is on the High Plains."

The problem is, he said, the unallocated fuel is concentrated in the Gulf Coast, and transportation charges run 9 to 10 cents a gallon, with a minimum delivery of 6,000 gallons — the capacity of a standard tanker truck.

"I am afraid our people in West Texas who have problems are just going to have to live with the extra costs involved ... We are getting this information out to the users and letting them know it is available," he said.

He again defended his use of Department of Public Safety records checks on each person employed by his office or appointed by him to a state board or commission. He stressed the checks inquire only into arrest and conviction records.

"It's the only prudent thing to do," he said, adding that a governor who didn't make such inquiries before putting a person in a position of trust would be "derelict in his responsibility."

He mildly twitted Attorney General Mark White, who has said he makes no such checks on his employees.

"I venture to say a lot of the attorney general's supporters were surprised to hear that," Clements said.

Farenthold May Be 'Priced Out' in Future

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The woman's hair, once long and dark in the picture on the political posters, is now white and cropped short. But the young hotel desk clerk still recognized her.

It was Frances "Sissy" Farenthold and the clerk had cast his first vote for her in the 1972 Texas gubernatorial race.

"That happens a lot. It's nice. I appreciate it. I appreciate all those votes," said Mrs. Farenthold, who got 884,000 votes after taking Dolph Briscoe into a surprising primary runoff in 1972.

But Mrs. Farenthold, 52, president of New York's Wells College for the past three years and an observer of Texas politics "from afar," says the costly 1978 Texas race may have priced her out of the gubernatorial market.

"Sure," she said Thursday when asked that question. "I always felt maybe it could be done without all of that. I don't know if that's possible anymore. I'd always hoped you wouldn't be priced out."

"But you take a place like Texas, you're not in it unless you're there with a Lear jet. You're not considered a viable candidate in this state unless you have tremendous resources. That certainly says a lot about our own guidelines."

Republican Bill Clements, an oil millionaire, spent more than $6 million in upsetting Democrat John Hill in the 1978 race. Hill spent about $4 million. Mrs. Farenthold said she ran in the 1972 and 1974 Democratic primaries for "under 14 million" each time.

"It's very worrisome," she said of the expensive campaigns. "The one grave concern I have with the process is the costliness of it. Only the very rich people can even consider putting on a race. We just don't have the participation."

Mrs. Farenthold, then a vocal, reform-minded legislator and member of the legislature's liberal "Dirty 30" in the post-Sharpstown era, came out of the pack and surprisingly finished ahead of Gov. Preston Smith and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes in the 1972 Democratic primary.

Her low-budget, loosely-organized campaign, resting on a foundation of young voters, drew 612,000 votes, second only to Briscoe's 963,000 and forcing a runoff. She lost to Briscoe by 210,000 votes out of 1.9 million cast in the runoff and lost badly to him in 1974.

"I don't like to loiter with my political past. The 1972 race was a very vivid experience," she said, pausing for what appeared to be a nostalgic moment.

Mrs. Farenthold later drew national attention in the Democratic Party and has emerged as a national women's leader. She was in San Antonio on Thursday night to speak at a national conference on "Women and the Law" and appeared at another national conference here last week.

Mrs. Farenthold said she plans to return home to Texas "when I get through with the job at Wells" and indicated she hasn't ruled out a return to state politics.

"I'm not troubled by it as a Democrat," she added. "One thing the campaign clearly pointed out was that the Democrats are certainly not speaking to the blacks and browns in this state. After all, that's a good one-third of this state. The way people respond, not voting is a vote too."

The Democrats suffered in 1978 from a lack of interest from minority voters, a factor in the tight senatorial and gubernatorial races.

Downturns Dreaded

NEW YORK (AP) — In its effects, it is as real an economic factor as rising prices or falling productivity or an oil shortage.

It pervades our consciousness, affecting consumer buying and government policy.

But we really know so very little about it. It is ever present, which can be proved by the consequences. But it belongs to the future, too. We are constantly referring to it as something to come.

How do we deal with the phenomenon that bedevils us every day of the week known as the "upcoming downturn" in the economy. Is it just a fear, a forecast, a cliché? Whether it is any of these, it remains powerful.

For well over a year it has been upcoming, but it has not come. And now we suspect the reason for the delay is that it has forced changes in present economic patterns that keep pushing it off into the future.

People have been buying up a storm, using credit when they run out of cash. Why not, they ask, when prices will be higher tomorrow? And besides, they add, when the recession comes we can't think of buying.

The impact on government policy is even more pronounced, leading to restraint by the Federal Reserve and voluntary price-wage guidelines, increasingly sounding like lasoos, by the White House.

Business has also reacted to the upcoming downturn. The Federation of Independent Business found a growing number of members expecting sales to fall, earnings to be cut and general business conditions to erode.

The longer the upcoming downturn is delayed, proclaim the forecasters, the worse the downturn is likely to be. But some of them too have been

The Chamber ... and You

By F. MICHAEL CARR
Executive Vice President

There will be two voting dates in Hereford during the month of April. On April 7 and April 28 we would like to encourage you to cast your vote. The freedom we have to vote for the candidate of our choice is one we often take for granted. We must respect and use this right to vote.

Next Saturday, make plans to exercise your voting power. Every vote is so important. Encourage your employees to vote. In fact, be sure to give them time to go to the polls.

The basis of the freedom that we all have is strengthened by our use and concern. This concern starts with each of us. We must all set the example. Every election holds an important significance. This significance is the ability in determining our future.

On April 7 and again April 28, please be involved and concerned enough to go to the polls and vote. Voting just happens to be a nice freedom-let's keep it that way.

Sugarland Mall has just become a teenager by having celebrated their thirteenth birthday. The Sugarland Mall Merchants represent a portion of the many fine merchants we have in Hereford. We are certainly proud of all of them. Trading at home with your hometown stores makes it good for all of us.

Let's all take time to tell each other that as businessmen or customers, we do appreciate one another.

This week is devoted to honoring industrial concerns of Texas. All aspects of our economy are important - retail, agriculture, and manufacturing. Each are somewhat dependent on one another in achieving complete success. It is important as well as interesting to have the opportunity to tour the industry we have in this area. If you have the chance to visit any of the fine industrial concerns we have, you'll find it very rewarding.

The Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce salutes all industry during this being Texas Industrial Week.

The Hereford Satellite Workshop is preparing for its Track and Field Special Olympics to be held April 20. It would be nice for all of the people participating from Hereford to have a special maroon jersey. If you would like to help purchase one or more jerseys, we feel this would be a worthwhile project. You can contact the Hereford Satellite Workshop at Box 1834 or phone 364-5861, for more information.

The Chamber would like to mention a few dates to keep in mind for April. The Chamber of Commerce will be attending an agricultural seminar being conducted by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in Ft. Worth on April 5-6. It's very important for us to be represented whenever West Texas agriculture is discussed so we will be there to represent Hereford.

On April 19, the "Fun Breakfast" will be held again, so let's see if we can have a full house. Try to get all of your employees to attend as a group.

Hart Found Not Guilty

PRYOR, Okla. (AP) — Gene Leroy Hart was found innocent Friday of three counts of murder in the sex slayings of three Girl Scouts at a summer camp in 1977.

The six men and six women of the jury returned the verdict one hour after resuming deliberations this morning.

Hart burst into loud sobs as the court clerk, Eloise Gist, read the first of three innocent verdicts handed her by jury foreman George Kelly. He buried his face in his hands, and defense attorney Garvin Isaacs beat upon the defense table with a clenched fist to loud cheers from supporters in the courtroom.

Law officers cleared the courtroom of Hart's friends and relatives as they continued loud crying and shouts.

Parents of the three young victims were seen weeping at the other side of the courtroom. District Judge William Whistler polled the jury and each juror reported an innocent verdict.

Hart was ordered transferred immediately to the Oklahoma state prison at McAlester to continue serving sentencing totalling more than 300 years from previous convictions for rape, kidnapping and burglary.

Hart was charged with three counts of first-degree murder in the rape and bludgeoning of the three girls, Lori Lee Farmer, 8; Michele Guse, 9; and Doris Denis Miller, 10, at Camp Scott near Locust Grove, June 13, 1977.

Whistler said he was preparing a contempt of court hearing against Hart's defense attorney, Garvin Isaacs for statements the judge said "go way beyond the scope of legitimate advocacy."

The judge ordered Isaacs to appear in court at 1 p.m. for the hearing. Whistler had criticized the attorney for repeated outbursts during the 22-day trial.

Hart, a former Locust Grove high school football star, escaped from Mayes County Jail here in September 1973 and was still a fugitive when he was charged 10 days after the slayings.

He was captured April 6, 1978, at a shack in the rugged Cookson Hills of eastern Oklahoma 50 miles from Camp Scott.

Jury selections in the trial that began March 5 took 11 days, and 77 witnesses were called during nine days of testimony.

I WEREN'T READY

Last week I was in a dilemma. I was supposed to go to Las Vegas to speak. A fantastic number of incidents prevented my going. Since that time, I have searched in vain for the reasons. There must be some lesson to learn since some folks tell me everything has a lesson.

I have searched the spiritual and found no reason. I have polled my friends and found only jokes. I have read my mail and found no answers.

Then my wife hit me. She is good at unwinding my sails. I use to say I was going to keep her till she was 40 and trade her for two that were 25. One day she caught me in a crowd and responded with, "You aren't wired for 220." I hushed.

She said, "If you went to Vegas you would just end up doing something dumb like the Ford dealer from Leedy, Oklahoma."

She was referring to a true story. In the late 50's, cities were just discovering Las Vegas. It rapidly became the "in" thing to go to Vegas. When you are "in" you call it Vegas, not Las Vegas.

The Ford dealer from Leedy went to Vegas. Country had gone to town. He went to the Stardust Club, ordered the biggest steak in the house and in general, tried to act like the last of the big spenders.

When the steak arrived, he cut himself a big chunk and proceeded to put the whole thing in his mouth (old I was country). Just as he began to chew the stars in the ceiling began to descend. On each star was an almost nude showgirl. Well, old country looked up and gulped. The steak lodged in his throat. He had to go to the hospital to have it removed. Cost him $400 to do so.

The funniest part of the story is, he would not let them take him to the hospital until the show was over. He sat there gagging and dying but he was not going to miss seeing those girls.

The moral is, you aren't ready to go to Vegas until you are old enough, mature enough, or near dead enough not to almost kill yourself in order to gawk at a girl.

I did not get to go to Vegas because I am not there yet. I would probably sit through the show and gag. I ain't ready for Vegas. If his is what it takes to be ready, I hope I am never ready.

Warm fuzzies,
Doug Manning

A Ration Plan

A Texas motorist drives into a service station and asks, "Got any extra ration coupons?"

"Yes," the attendant replies. "Just got in a new shipment from our New Jersey contact today."

"How much?"

"A buck twenty-two," says the attendant as he reaches for the gasoline nozzle. "How many gallons you want?"

The motorist figures he has to have 10 gallons. Gasoline is selling at a dollar a gallon. That's $10 for the gasoline, plus $12.20 ($1.22 a gallon) for the coupons. Total is $22.20, which means a $20 bill plus a little bit of change.

He drives away broke, with his gas gauge registering just a little above the half mark.

That's the scenario presented by the Department of Energy as to how things will be a year from now if the government's gasoline rationing plan is put into effect.

This sounds just ducky for some people, particularly those in the North and East where people can get to and from work by public transportation if they have to do so. Out here in the wide open spaces, it means a terrific added expense to the worker and driver and at worst a complete paralysis of the economy.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen of Texas is outraged by the plan. So is Senator David Boren of Oklahoma. The rest of us should be outraged, too.

The government plans to ration gasoline according to national average gasoline consumption rates per registered vehicle. A Connecticut car owner, who usually takes a train to work, would receive the same number of coupons as a motorist in Oklahoma, Texas or Utah who drives a 75-mile round trip.

Coupons would be distributed by the government to motorists by the government every three months and there would be serious coupon shortages in the wide open spaces.

Areas of dense population or low vehicle mileage would have coupons to sell. Private enterprise would quickly establish a distribution system to distribute these coupons, legally, at a price.

The Department of Energy estimates that the coupons would go for around $1.25 each, maybe more. The DOE also estimates the gasoline allocation at 50 gallons per month and coupons would likely be issued in five gallon denominations.

Obviously, with car owners in some areas selling coupons and car owners in other areas buying them, a huge transfer of wealth would occur. It is estimated that the Southwest, where the gas and oil is produced, would be sending millions of dollars every year to the East which produces none.

The entire idea is enough to foment a move for secession.

Tampering with Voter Rights

In the past few national elections, two alarming facts have become apparent. First, incumbents seeking reelection almost always win (95 percent in 1978); and second, campaign spending is growing steadily (37 percent from 1976 to 1978).

The House of Representatives, seemingly unconcerned about the first problem, is considering a bill (HR 1) that would limit campaign spending while institutionalizing the incumbents' success rates.

Richard Leshar

Government Won't Take Blame for Poor Economy

WASHINGTON — It is interesting, as reports show inflation continuing to get worse, how those in government always find a way to blame the problem on someone else. In recent weeks, the Administration has been doing precisely that—looking somewhere, anywhere, else for the cause and solution to a problem which was essentially created in its own back yard.

More and more, inflation is being blamed on greedy businesses and selfish workers. For its part, the Administration simply says that government alone cannot stop inflation. Oh really?

Paul Harvey

A Moral Exists

Could it possibly be that Jim Jones did as a favor? Is it possible that this sadistic, mercenary misleader who led his followers to a Guyana jungle and then paraded them past pots of purple poison to die...

Could it be that he saved more people than he killed? Could he be?

No aspect of the Jim Jones macabre suicide ritual was more disturbing even to calloused consciences than the discovery that a hundred of those murdered were foster children.

California politicians, including Gov. Jerry Brown, had been beguiled into unqualified support of Jim Jones and his People's Temple.

California's Mental Health Department had licensed one of Jones' facilities for "retarded boys."

Jones collected from the federal government a thousand dollars per month per child—HEW allocations under what is called "Child Protective Services."

Now we learn that "child protection" included children being strung up by the legs in iron cages, held in solitary confinement in leg irons and handcuffs, tear gassed and placed, as punishment, in dormitories with older inmates who misused them sexually.

And yet this horrendous experience, ventilated, forced a re-examination of the entire philosophy and practice of foster care, and the Children's Defense Fund (CDF) now affirms "it is a national disgrace." Children who are removed from their families and placed in foster homes or institutions are frequently victimized by the system created to help them.

The CDF's 284-page indictment concludes that "state and federal welfare officials are largely to blame."

The researchers discovered too many instances wherein "foster children" were taken into a home—not out of compassion for the children—but only for the financial incentive.

And at least some, we now learn, for sadistic misuse by one or both of the foster parents.

What a terrible time this must be for legitimate, loving foster parents, thousands of whom have provided an ideal home environment.

Indeed, some of these, knowing of abuses, sought legislation in 1978—the Foster Care Reform Act, HR 7200—but their political clout was no match for the Washington-based Child Welfare League which opposed the legislation. It died in the Senate.

Now, if that legislation or something like it emerges from the present congressional consideration, then the hundred little ones who obediently lined up for the purple pop will not have died for nothing.

Bootleg Philosopher

The Tube War

(Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm reflects on the TV networks this week.) Dear Editor: Although all three TV networks are making huge profits, nonetheless I understand there is bitter rivalry among them to see who can be Number One.

By Number One they don't mean the best; they mean the one with the biggest audience. If ABC attracts 35 million viewers at 8:30 tonight, CBS 31 million, and NBC 29 million, ABC goes and the other two sulk. If I had a business that paid me at the rate of $250,000 a minute I'd find it hard to sulk because somebody else was making $275,000 a minute. It took me 30 seconds to write that last sentence. At network rates that's at least $125,000. If I'd put my mind to it I could have taken a full minute, or $250,000 worth, but there's far too much inflationary gouging going on in the world today and I'll settle for a reasonable Mild, Short Recession?

The present consensus among economic forecasters is that we face a mild recession, beginning in the second half of this year, which will last for about six months. Just why the expected recession should be mild, why it should begin in the second half, why it should be as short as six months, or for that matter why it should occur at all, is not totally clear. In fact, the consensus view may be more an illustration of the herd instinct than a conclusion based on evidence so compelling that all must accept it.

I would like to suggest a somewhat different version of the outlook. We are likely to experience, before too long and probably this year, a change in the economic weather which will eventually be labeled a recession. But it will be a peculiar kind of recession — one which goes on for a fairly long period (perhaps as much as a year) while we are still unaware we are in a recession.

The standard procedure in business-cycle dating — the neat division of U.S. economic history into alternating periods of expansion and contraction (recession) — is not very helpful under present economic circumstances. In this inflationary era we must expect to see, from time to time, a third type of economic weather — stagflation — which doesn't fit well into either category.

The reason for anticipating the onset of stagflation this year is that, while there are obstacles to continued economic expansion, there is no evidence of the strains which typically bring on well-defined downturns — excessive accumulation of inventories or of fixed capital. During a stagflation the economy loses its forward drive but broad measures of economic activity do not show any sharp downturn. Markets soften in a spotty fashion but the steeply rising price trend keeps many customers buying in fear of still higher future prices.

Most significantly the self-corrective forces that moderate and eventually terminate a recession do not come into play during this equivocal type of semi-recession. A period of stagflation, while we are in it, doesn't look bad at all to a good many people. And so it doesn't lead to the same kind of retrenchment as a clearcut recession. The prospect for an extended period of stagflation isn't at all a cheering thought. We may find ultimately that we would have been better off if we were instead in the old-fashioned, familiar kind of recession — the kind you know you were in when you were in it.

Finally, the federal government inflates all the basic necessities of life even further through its excessive regulatory manipulation of markets and products by: propping up the price of milk and sugar; limiting planting acreage of corn and wheat; placing irrational restrictions on farmers' access to pesticides; virtually forbidding any exploration for energy or harvesting of lumber on some 300 million acres of wilderness; placing the nuclear energy industry in a hamstruck, and taxing domestic production of oil while actually subsidizing purchases from OPEC — to cite but a few examples.

50 YEARS AGO The extent and usefulness of the work being done in Deaf Smith County among the boys and girls in agricultural and live stock work by County Agent is reflected in the monthly report made. It was shown that the county agent is working with eighty-two youngsters in practically every school district of the county.

10 YEARS AGO The matter of signing orders for four 72-passenger buses by the Deaf Smith County School Board to be operated by the Herford Independent School District, which delayed here several days, was kicked back into the lap of the state at the County Board's special meeting. County Board Trustees and representatives who appeared from the Herford schools both reported this presented the best move under the circumstances.

Tasers in Jeopardy

NEW YORK (AP) - The Taser, the type of futuristic weapon called for by law enforcement authorities as early as the 1960s, may be headed for its last year of production.

The hand-held weapon, manufactured by Taser Systems Inc., of City of Industry, Calif., was designed as a sort of stungun to allow police or citizens to defend themselves without killing or permanently injuring an attacker.

It shoots two hooked prongs attached to wires 15-feet-long, is effective range - into a person's clothing. Then a 50,000-volt charge, enough to temporarily paralyze, jumps through the wire.

Federal crime commissions had called for development of such a non-killing weapon to combat muggings, assaults and rapes. Even now, gun control groups such as the National Council to Control Handguns have quietly backed such weapons, though not specifically the Taser.

But Taser sales have been hobbled by federal confusion over how it should be classified, by concern over criminal use of the weapon, and by a public not yet willing to trade its trusty handguns for a more space-aged weapon.

And now Jack Cover, inventor of the Taser and president of Taser Systems says that if he cannot get new financial backing, he may have to fold the venture.

About 7,000 Tasers have been sold at $199.50 each since the weapon was introduced in 1975. The cost per round is a costly $10.

Most sales have been to private citizens, law abiding or otherwise, and the few police forces that have tried the Taser are sharply divided on its safety and effectiveness as a law enforcement tool.

About 20 documented crimes have been committed with the Taser. Four years ago, a person armed with a Taser robbed a Miami service station. In a second widely publicized incident, a couple in Blue Bell, Pa., were tortured with Tasers in their home by four robbers.

The weapon's safety has also been questioned. Its manufacturers say - and an Army study and hearings by Consumer Product Safety Commission concurred - that a healthy person should not suffer permanent injury from the 50,000-volt charge the Taser delivers.

The reason is that although the voltage sounds deadly, the force and frequency - the wattage and amperage - of the jolt is within safe bounds.

But a number of police departments have rejected its use because the shock might still be enough to harm or kill someone with heart or respiratory problems.

Currently, there are Taser distributors in Georgia,

California, Illinois, Indiana, Massachusetts and Florida, according to Cover. He says distributorships will open soon in North and South Carolina.

Police departments in Akron, Ohio, and Nashville, Tenn., are among about a dozen that have tried the weapon. Police in Akron discontinued its use after a brief trial and Lt. James Yocum calls it "a horrible device that should be banned from the marketplace." But the Nashville police still use about a dozen Tasers and Assistant Police Chief Paul Uselton praises it as an effective police aid.

Other police departments that have used the Taser include those in Lauderdale Lakes, Fla.; Larchmont, N.Y.; Cleveland, Canal Fulton and Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio; Dickson, Tenn.; Glendale Heights, Ill.; and Topeka, Kan. Several state penitentiaries and highway patrols have also used the Taser.

But scant sales have left Taser Systems deep in the red, and Cover said in a telephone interview that "we either make it this year or give it up."

He said, however, that he is optimistic that unnamed "private individuals and businessmen" whom he is negotiating with will give the Taser a new financial lease on life.

The Taser is about twice as large as an ordinary handgun, and resembles a big flashlight. It is therefore hard to conceal. It operates on the same sort of batteries that power a pocket calculator.

Confusion over its federal status has further hobbled sales over the years.

When the Taser first came out, it was wholly unregulated. Anyone could buy it, and it was sold through mail order ads in gun magazines, door-to-door, and by unlicensed dealers.

By April 1976, the federal government ruled that the Taser was a "Title II" weapon, which takes in tommy guns, bombs, silencers, and other "gangster-type weapons" that are off-limits to the public. The ruling effectively halted Taser production for nearly two years.

It was reclassified in January 1977, after some designed modifications were made, to the same category as ordinary firearms.

CHENEY, Wash. (AP) - Dental hygiene students always are given a lot of practice before they're permitted to work on a patient. At Eastern Washington University, there's another preliminary step - they work on monkeys.

Before working on classmates, each student practices on four or five of the 1,000 macaque monkeys at the Regional Primate Research Center in nearby Medical Lake.

The program lets about 30 juniors a year see "some pretty severe cases of what can happen to humans if proper dental practices aren't followed," Diane McHenry, assistant professor of dental hygiene, said Thursday.

For the animals, the exam is part of a routine physical checkup every three months.

"Traditionally, dental hygiene students learn to use their instruments on plastic teeth, then extracted teeth and on fellow classmates before treating patients," Ms. McHenry said. "Now our students have the benefit of practicing their instrumentation on the monkeys before appointing patients."

The monkeys are sedated to make sure they don't clomp on a finger or swallow an instrument.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - A basic rule of journalism is that if a dog bites a man, that's not necessarily news; but if a man bites a dog, that is new. Well, what's the rule if a dog bites a truck?

Phyllis Bailey called animal control officers when she saw two dogs raising a ruckus outside Leo Slama's home. They're still looking for the dogs.

Then she finally got in touch with Slama and told him the dogs had been attacking his pickup truck.

Slama said he didn't think two dogs could do much harm to a truck, but Mrs. Bailey said "I told him from what we saw they were tearing off the grille."

It turns out the dogs broke the truck's metal and plastic grille into several pieces, damaged the radiator, and left teeth marks in the grille's metal frame.

"It looked like there had been a stampede around their house," Mrs. Bailey said. "There were dog tracks all around the house and up on the porch."

Slama said his insurance adjuster, who, "couldn't believe

Shah Leaves Africa

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi of Iran arrived in the Bahamas Friday after leaving Rabat, Morocco, where he had been in exile since late January.

A green, red and white Boeing 747 belonging to the Moroccan airline Royal Air Maroc, landed at Nassau's airport at 11:51 a.m. EST and the shah, his wife and two children then boarded a helicopter. Government sources who asked not to be identified, said the shah would be staying on Paradise Island, a resort island just off Nassau, for about three weeks, after which he would leave for another destination, possibly Brazil.

The shah had been in exile in Morocco since Jan. 22. He left Iran on Jan. 16, going first to Egypt, after a year-long revolution directed by Shiite Moslem leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

It was not known whether the shah had left Morocco for good. But U.S. officials in Washington said Thursday the shah would soon leave Morocco for another place of refuge. They said although he had not been barred from the United States, he had been strongly urged not to go to there for security and other reasons.

The Moroccan government of King Hassan II is known to have been uncomfortable with the presence of the shah and Empress Farah.

The shah went into exile, first in Egypt and then in Morocco, with Empress Farah and three of his four children.

ABC Controls Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Ten of the 23 programs on ABC's prime-time schedule for the week ending March 25 were repeats, and the No. 1 television network was still a runaway winner in the ratings competition, figures from A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

ABC's rating for the week was 21.6, followed by CBS at 19.2 and NBC at 14. It was ABC's 11th week in a row in first place.

The networks say the rating means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 21.6 percent of the homes in the country were television were tuned to ABC.

Five of ABC's reruns finished in Nielsen's Top 10, including No. 1 "Three's Company," runnerup "Mork and Mindy" and "Laverne and Shirley" in third place.

NBC, at the same time, suffered quite the opposite fate. The network's top-rated show, "Little House on the Prairie," was ranked 16th, and "Harris and Company" starring Bernie Casey, in its prime-time debut, was rated last among 66 programs broadcast during the week.

ABC also scored again with new series "13 Queens Boulevard," "Aggie" and "The Ropers" among the first dozen in the ratings. Meanwhile, four shows introduced by NBC after the first of the year — "Sweepstakes," "Cliffhangers," "Mrs. Columbo" and "Turnabout" — were among the 12 least-watched.

The rating for "Three's Company" was 31.3. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 31.3 percent saw at least part of the program.

CBS's best for the week was "60 Minutes," fourth in the ratings, and "Little House in the Prairie," No. 16, was tops for NBC.

Three of the five lowest-rated programs were on NBC. No. 62 Big Event—"Superstunt II," No. 65 Weekend" and No. 66 "Harris and Company." CBS's "Married: The First Year" was 63rd, and a rerun of "What's Happening" on ABC was 64th.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:
To all the readers of The Brand: Your letter can foil the canal give-away. What you can do is to write, right now. The full House will vote on the enabling legislation in some form probably in April. Write to your representative and tell him you still oppose giving away the Panama Canal. Tell him you pay him to represent your interests but the idea of paying billions to the Panamanians to take the canal makes you even angrier. Tell him you are opposed to the Panama Pay-Away. Ask him to be sure your views are made known to his committee and to the full House.

Send your letters to chairman Carroll Hubbard, subcommittee of the Panama Canal, 3576 House Annex, No. 2, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Sincerely,
Cora Johnson

Girls At Amarillo, Boys At San Angelo

HHS Track Teams Qualify For Finals

By MARC HERRING
Brand Sports Editor
The Hereford Whiteface track teams, competing in two day meets in Amarillo and San Angelo qualified three individuals for the girls in the Amarillo Relays, and the boys captured four individual spots plus two relay teams in the finals at San Angelo. Calling it the toughest meet in the area, Coach Roy Shipp had an entry in the 880, 440 and 220 after one day of the two day meet.

Velma Arroyos, the 'Faces' top threat in the half mile, qualified in her specialty with a time of 2:27.4, with the top prelim time being 2:23.4. Louise Mays was third in the 440 prelims, clocking a 61.2, 2.5 seconds behind top qualifier Theola Freeman of Palo Duro. Mays top time for the year is 60.8, second best in the area.

Darlene Sanders qualified in the furlong with a time of 26.0 with the Dons' Stephanie Freeman holding the top time of 25.4. Sanders holds the fourth fastest prelim time. Hereford's relay teams were beset by an amount of bad luck according to Coach Shipp as the spring relay team dropped the baton and could only manage a 56.6, which was out of the qualifying picture. The 880 relay team, running its fastest time of the year at 1:49.7, did not qualify. The mile relay, using two newcomers, Sanders and Connie Hufaker, cruised to the fastest time of the prelims, 4:05.7, but were disqualified for the finals for leaving their lane. Hurting the Whitefaces chance for the overall title was the absence of Beverly Nixon and Lindy Walterscheid. Nixon, the 'Faces' top hurdler and members of two relay teams, and Walterscheid sprinter and relay member were not feeling well enough to compete Coach Shipp said.

Despite the failure to qualify for the finals in many events, Shipp feels that the team is peaking just about right for the district meet coming up next week. "If we run as well next week as we did this week, plus the return of Nixon and Walterscheid, we should be one of the top contenders for the team title," Shipp said.

For the boys, running at the San Angelo Invitational, qualifying went better, with four individuals and two relay team in the finals set for Saturday. Individuals in the finals include Juan Flores and Glenn Yosten in the 800 meters, Yosten running a 2:01.6 and Flores clocking a 2:02.4. Also Joe Walker had the sixth best time on the 100 meters (10.8) to qualify for the finals. Paul Bell, Hereford's all-around sprinter took the fourth best time in the 400 meters, clocking a 50.3.

The two relay teams, the two mile and the mile, have members Flores, Scott Gentry, Felix Soliz and Yosten running the eight lap event, and Keith Adams, Yosten, Norman Brown, and Bell running the mile relay. The Whitefaces have never competed in the two mile event, with the teams from the South Plains holding a decided advantage according to meet officials. The top race of the day will be the quarter mile according to the meet director with all the qualifying times below 51 seconds. Complete results of the two meets will be in Tuesday's Brand.

Baseballers Lose

DUMAS - The Hereford Whiteface baseball team, committing eight costly errors, fell to the Dumas Demons in action Friday afternoon, 6-1. Kevin Bunch, 3-2 for the year took the loss going up seven hits, but the errors gave the Demons the chances needed to control the game.

The Whitefaces were able to manage only four hits off winning pitcher Kent Hazer, as they now have a 6-5 record for non-district play. The Hereford diamond squad faced Canyon in its last non-district class Saturday. Complete results of the game will be in Tuesday's Brand.

Kuhn Will Not Intercede In Umpire Dispute

CHICAGO (AP) - Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says he will not intercede in a contract dispute between major league umpires and the National and American leagues despite a decision by 50 umpires to reject the latest offer.

"The commissioner has said all along that he didn't see any occasion for him to get involved in it ... that the league offices were completely capable of handling it," spokesman Bob Wirz said Friday.

Neither AL President Lee MacPhail nor NL President Chub Feeney was available for comment.

Richie Phillips, the umpires' lawyer, said, "In no way can this be termed a strike. It's more of an action."

the only regular umpire working in that league. American League umpire Ted Hendry, a rookie last year, also signed before the current wage dispute.

But the other 50 umpires said they would stick together and would not sign their individual contracts.

"I don't think the umpires any longer have blind faith in the league presidents. We understand that local and minor league umpires will be used. This would provide an inferior product and cause total chaos in major league baseball," said Phillips.

He added that he will negotiate all 50 contracts.

"You can contemplate the umpires will be picketing - in formation picketing. The umpires no longer will stand to be abused," Phillips said. "The two leagues have been avoiding conferences, and MacPhail and Feeney have taken the view that their offers are fair because they say they are fair."

"I believe the umpires feel more pride in their decision to rehere only when staff openings become available.

Phillips said using minor league umpires would put a great strain on major league baseball.

Cage Star

Denies Reports

HARRISONBURG, Va. (AP) - Ralph Sampson, Harrisonburg High School's highly recruited 7-foot-3 1/2 basketball center, denied reports Friday night he has narrowed the list of colleges he might attend to six.

The Washington Star and two Washington-based television stations had reported Friday that Sampson had cut his list to Virginia, Virginia Tech, Maryland, Kentucky, James Madison and North Carolina.

"I never said that. Lots of quotes and rumors aren't true. This one isn't," said Sampson, who scored 23 points, grabbed 21 rebounds and blocked four shots Thursday night in leading the Metro All-Stars to an 86-85 victory over the U.S. All-Stars in the Capital Classic.

Sampson, who averaged 29.5 points and nearly 20 rebounds per game in leading Harrisonburg to a 26-0 record this past season, apparently has cut the list to a "rough six or eight," Harrisonburg Coach Roger Bergey said.

"He's talked about the schools that he's still considering, but that's all. Nothing is definite, and they may change," said Bergey, who has been advising Sampson during the course of the concentrated recruiting campaign for his services.

The ninth grade track team of La Plata Junior High won its division of the recent Hereford Junior High Girls Relays. The team also won relay trophies in the mile and the sprint relays.

Hooton Or Sutton To Start For LA

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Los Angeles Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda still has not decided on an opening-day pitcher, but he has decided something else. No one wearing Dodger Blue is going to get too comfortable this year.

Lasorda doesn't want to see his Dodgers win the pennant again this season, only to lose the World Series to the New York Yankees.

"Sometimes you win two pennants in a row and think, 'We got it made,' and you try to take it easy," Lasorda said. "Anytime a player thinks he has both feet on the ground and has it made, I have failed him."

Lasorda, generally happy with the way things have gone for the defending National League champions this spring, got a good look at one of his opening-day candidates, Burt Hooton, on Friday, and tonight he'll be watching another one - Don Sutton.

Hooton had a superb night against California in a 3-1

Dodgers victory, and the annual Freeway Series continues tonight with Sutton, a right-hander, facing Angels lefty Frank Tanana.

"Hooton did a great job Friday," Lasorda said of his pitching quandy. Either Hooton or Sutton will start next Thursday at home against San Diego and Cy Young winner Gaylord Perry.

Hooton allowed just two singles in eight innings to run his pre-season record to 3-0. He struck out five and walked two. Charlie Hough gave up the Angels' only run in the ninth on Joe Rudi's RBI single.

The Dodgers got consecutive homers from Joe Ferguson and Gary Thomason in the fifth inning, and added a run in the seventh on Hooton's RBI grounder.

"I'm very pleased with the club," Lasorda said. "It's aggressive and has a great attitude."

In other spring training games, Cincinnati edged Houston 2-1 in 13 innings. Boston clubbered St. Louis 9-1. Philadelphia nipped Detroit 2-1 in 10 innings, the Chicago White Sox walloped Pittsburgh 8-2, Seattle blanked Oakland 3-0, the Chicago Cubs beat San Francisco 4-3, Atlanta downed Baltimore 5-3, Minnesota humbled Montreal 11-5, Toronto whipped the New York Mets 7-5, Texas defeated the New York Yankees 3-1 and Cleveland edged Milwaukee 3-2 in 11 innings.

Boston right-hander Bob Stanley held the Cards to one unearned run in eight innings, yielding four hits and striking out six. George Scott homered for the Red Sox and scored three times, while Butch Hobson drove in three runs with a pair of singles.

Ron Oester delivered a bases-loaded, bloop single in the bottom of the 13th that scored Cesar Geronimo and pushed Cincinnati past the Astros. Tom Seaver went seven innings for the Reds, giving up six hits and one run, and Doug Capilla finished up.

Pete Mackanin's bases-loaded single in the bottom of the 10th scored rookie Lonnie Smith, who had tripled, and the Phillies got past Detroit. Nine Espinosa made his first start for Philadelphia since being acquired from the Mets, and he worked six innings, allowing five hits.

Kevin Bell and Alan Bannister each drove in two runs as the White Sox victimized Pittsburgh pitcher Gene Pentz for six runs in the seventh inning. Mike Proly pitched six-plus innings for Chicago, and held the Pirates to just one earned run, Dave Parker's homer.

Glenn Abbott tossed six shutout innings, and Bobby Valentine scored two runs to lift the Mariners past Oakland. Abbott combined with John Montague and Rafael Vasquez for a three-hitter that enabled Seattle to break a three-game losing streak.

Dave Kingman and Bill

Buckner each homered to back some strong pitching by Mike Krukow that propelled the Cubs past the Giants. Krukow went five innings, giving up just one run. He struck out six.

Barry Bonnell drove in the tie-breaking run with a single, then scored on a double steal as Atlanta got by the Orioles.

Willie Norwood, Bombo Rivera and Ron Jackson all homered for the Twins, and Paul Hartzell gave up six Montreal hits in eight innings for the win.

Nets Playoff Secure Spot

By The Associated Press
 "You don't realize it when the Titanic is going down and you just tend to sit there," said Bill Fitch.

In this case, it was Fitch's Cleveland Cavaliers who were sinking fast - in the face of a barrage by the Philadelphia 76ers.

The 76ers buried the Cavs under a 45-point blitz in the first quarter and Cleveland was never able to recover in the National Basketball Association game, losing a 129-93 decision Friday night.

"We needed to put fear into the hearts of teams coming in here," said Philadelphia center Darryl Dawkins, pointing for the soon-to-come NBA playoffs.

Added Dawkins: "I was not surprised we scored that many points because everybody was really loose before the game. We finished them off early - and I loved that."

The New Jersey Nets, meanwhile, clinched a berth in the playoffs by beating the Atlanta Hawks 117-106 and the Portland Trail Blazers strengthened their chances for a playoff spot with a 132-104 decision over the Washington Bullets.

Elsewhere, the Houston Rockets defeated the San Antonio Spurs 117-116; the Chicago Bulls downed the Boston Celtics 121-105; the Milwaukee Bucks edged the Indiana Pacers 101-99; the Denver Nuggets whipped the San Diego Clippers 130-121; the Golden State Warriors stopped the New York Knicks 114-98; the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the Detroit Pistons 124-113 and the Phoenix Suns edged the Seattle SuperSonics 113-111 in overtime.

Although sitting out the last nine minutes of the game, Julius Erving scored 27 points to pace the Philadelphia attack. Erving had 17 of his points in the first quarter, when the 76ers raced to a 45-14 lead. The 76ers later built their lead to 39 points.

"It was just a great effort," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham. "Everybody looked sharp and fresh. The ball was moving well; everybody contributed heavily."

Nets 117, Hawks 106
 John Williamson scored 32 points and Bernard King added 29 to lead New Jersey over Atlanta. The result marked New Jersey's first appearance in the NBA playoffs since joining the league in 1976. The last time the Nets participated in post-season action, they won the last American Basketball Association championship in 1976.

Leading 95-94, the Nets clinched the game by reeling off 8 points to take a 103-94 lead with just under six minutes to play.

"This is a tremendous accomplishment for our basketball team," said New Jersey Coach Kevin Loughery. "Not to get dramatic, but to not know if you are going to have a ballclub at all and then to make the playoff with five games to spare is quite an accomplishment."

Trail Blazers 132, Bullets 104
 Tom Owens collected 30 points to lead Portland past Washington. Owens sank 14 of his first 20 shots as the Blazers ran up a 99-66 advantage late in the third period en route to handing the Bullets their worst home-court defeat in their six seasons in Washington.

The victory was the seventh in the last eight games for the Trail Blazers, battling for a playoff berth in the Western Conference.

The Trail Blazers, fourth in the Pacific Division, improved their lead over San Diego to 2½ games.

Suns 113, SuperSonics 111
 Walter Davis hit a jump shot from the key with eight seconds left in overtime to lift Phoenix over Seattle. Davis scored 40 points to lead the Suns to their first victory in four tries against the Western Division-leading Sonics.

Bulls 121, Celtics 105
 Center Artis Gilmore pumped in 32 points as Chicago beat Boston and ended the Celtics' hopes of a playoff berth this season. It is the second straight year that the once mighty Celtics have failed to make the playoffs.

Bucks 101, Pacers 99
 Brian Winters' jump shot with 1:01 to play gave Milwaukee its close victory over Indiana, snapping the Pacers' six-game winning streak. The Pacers missed five shots in the final minute, including Billy Knight's jump shot at the buzzer.

Nuggets 130, Clippers 121
 David Thompson scored 31 points as Denver dampened San Diego's playoff hopes. The surging Nuggets earned their seventh straight victory despite the loss of George McGinnis to an injury and a 42-point performance by San Diego's Lloyd Free.

Warriors 114, Knicks 98
 Golden State's Robert Parish collected 32 rebounds, the highest total of his NBA career, and led the Warriors in scoring with 30 points as they beat the Knicks. Parish, the Warriors' seven-foot center in his third pro season, topped his previous rebounding high of 22 despite playing only 37 minutes against New York.

Lakers 124, Pistons 113
 Norm Nixon scored 28 points and Jamaal Wilkes added 23 as Los Angeles defeated Detroit. M.L. Carr scored 26 points for the Pistons, who rallied from a 22-point deficit to cut the Lakers' lead to 115-111 with 1:45 remaining. But Nixon scored 7 points in the final two minutes as the Lakers had 9 of the game's last 11 points.

Candidate for Hereford Independent School District
 Board of Trustees

"Representing the Whole Community"

To the voters of the Hereford Independent School District:

The children of the Hereford schools deserve the very best education in the best possible school atmosphere. I will devote my time and efforts to achieving this high quality education for our children. At the same time, I will strive to see that your tax dollars are used with a maximum efficiency in operating the school system of this community.

I believe strongly that students should receive the basics necessary in reading, writing, and arithmetic to prepare them to be self-sufficient citizens after graduation from our schools. Our system of public schools is a community responsibility, and I would like to see the citizenry more involved. The students of today are our potential community leaders of tomorrow.

The operation of the Hereford school system is the largest business in our community, based on the dollars involved. Hereford, as a community, should work together to also make it the best. Our teachers, for example, deserve to be paid salaries which will be commensurate with those of other school systems the same size as ours.

My qualifications for continuing to serve as a member of your school board are: one term of serving as a board member; my own two children attending schools here for their entire public school education; living as a farmer and rancher here for 20 years; serving as a member of the Chamber of Commerce agriculture committee; being a member of the Easter Lions Club; being an honorary member of the Hereford High School FFA chapter; being a member advisor for the Hereford High School cosmetology board; being active in my church and other affairs of this community.

Your vote and influence in the April 7 school board election will be sincerely appreciated.

Spurs Lose Game, Lead To Houston Rockets

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) - Somehow in the frenzied final quarter Friday night, the San Antonio Spurs lost a key National Basketball Association game to Houston and a chunk of their Central Division lead over the Rockets.

And San Antonio Coach Doug Moe will probably get to pay a fine for the privilege of telling his version of what happened in the wild 117-116 Houston victory.

"I thought the refs put them back in the game. They let every thing go. They just s----- us. When we got ahead, they called everything for them. It was incredible at the end. I couldn't believe it," raved an incensed Moe, who watched helplessly as Houston's Moses Malone calmly hit two free throws after time expired to give the Rockets the victory and pull them within a half game of the Spurs.

NBA coaches face an undetermined, but virtually automatic fine for criticizing the referees - a fact that didn't seem to bother the outspoken Moe in the slightest.

The Spurs had led by as many as 15 points in the third quarter and held an 11-point bulge entering the final period. But the Rockets battled back, trimming San Antonio's lead to 116-115 when Malone put in a layup with 20 seconds remaining.

As the Spurs brought the ball downcourt, San Antonio's Allan Bristow got hemmed in by two Houston players and called a timeout with 11 seconds remaining. Houston's Mike Newlin stole the inbounds pass, drove the length of the court, but missed the easy layup with four seconds left.

Houston's Robert Reid then missed the tip-in and Malone grabbed the rebounds. As time expired in the ensuing confusion, Malone was fouled by San Antonio's Mike Gale. He went to the line with a bonus situation, three shots to make two.

With a record San Antonio crowd of 15,764 wildly yelling and pelting the court with ice, Malone calmly sank the first free throw. The second was delayed: briefly because of the unruly crowd, but Malone hit it to clinch the game.

Referees Earl Strom, Ed Middleton and Blane Reichelt were then escorted off the court by police as many of the fans hurled ice and curses.

"I just blanked them (the fans) out of my mind," said Malone, who had 25 second-half points to finish with 36 for the game. "I had three to make two. I thought I could make two or at least one to put it in overtime."

"It was a helpless feeling. I was so mad at the officials at that point. Newlin made a good play," said a dejected Moe, whose Spurs have won only two of their last nine games and have lost five of their last six games.

Houston Coach Tom Nissalke, of course, did not share Moe's view of the officiating. He did think, however, that the referees missed one call - a technical on the crowd.

"I felt they should have called a technical on the crowd. That's the only call I would have faulted them on," he said after being advised of Moe's tirade.

Kansas City Royals To Try Fourth AL West Crown

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Can the stand-pat Kansas City Royals hold off the expected challenges from the free-spending California Angels and wheeling-and-dealing Texas Rangers and capture a fourth consecutive flag in the American League West?

California and Texas tied for second a year ago, five games behind the Royals. To try and make up the difference, the Angels turned to the fourth-place Minnesota Twins, trading for slugging outfielder Dan Ford and then making seven-time AL batting champ Rod Carew an instant millionaire.

The Rangers plunged into the swap market by grabbing third baseman Buddy Bell and hard-throwing reliever Jim Kern from Cleveland; another relief ace, Sparky Lyle, the AL's 1977 Cy Young winner, and power-hitting Oscar Gamble from San Diego.

"Basically," says KC Manager Whitey Herzog, "it's going to boil down to the same thing that have been successful for us in the past since the makeup of our club hasn't really changed. We're going to have to get steady and consistent pitching, good defense and again rely on our speed and solid hitting attack."

Dennis Leonard, Paul Splitteroff and Larry Gura, who combined for 56 victories last year, will again spearhead the starting staff. Rich Gale, 1978's rookie sensation, and comebacking Steve Busby figure to round out the rotation, with Al Hrabosky, Steve Mingori, Doug Bird and Ed Rodriguez in the bullpen and Darrell Porter behind the plate.

However, Gale and Busby have had tender shoulders, and so have shortstop Fred Patek and designated hitter Hal McRae, while third baseman George Brett is recuperating from a thumb injury.

Otis will be in the lineup somewhere, but it could be left field ... or first base. It depends on how much speed demon Willie Wilson hits. Herzog says he is "as good defensively as any player in the league." He also says that Wilson "has to play center to stay in the big leagues."

If Wilson doesn't hit, the Royals will flank Otis with Clint Hurdle in left and Al Cowens in right. Pete LaCock and John Wathan probably will platoon at first base, with Frank White at second.

"It's the same kind of thing each year," says Herzog. "If everyone will play up to their potential and we can avoid the big injuries, we have a great chance to win it again."

The Angels haven't had much luck with their high-priced acquisitions in the past. Left fielder Joe Rudi and second baseman Bobby Grich have been injured much of the time and outfielder-DH Don Baylor has supplied power but not much average. Finally, there was the tragic shooting death of Lyman Bostock late last season. This time, the Angels have landed baseball's hitter in first baseman Carew.

"The acquisition of Ford and Carew gives us extra-base potential and will certainly bolster our offense," says Manager Jim Fregosi. "With the exception of Baylor, who set career highs in home runs 34 and RBI 99 last year, we're not a home run-hitting club."

Fregosi adds that "pitching and a steady defense, plus added speed, will be our strong points. We're talking about four fellows near the top of the batting order - Carney Lansford, Carew, Ford and Baylor - who should total 100 stolen bases."

Joining Carew in the infield will be Grich at second and Lansford at third, where he was the top hitting rookie .294 in the league and Gold Glove winner Rick Miller will be in center field between Rudi and Ford. The Angels' only problem spot is shortstop, where Rance Mulliniks, who flunked back to the minors last year after an impressive 1977 debut, is being thoroughly tested. "All I want," says ex-shortstop Fregosi, "is someone to catch the ball and make the routine play."

Brian Downing and Terry Humphrey will handle a pitching staff that includes starters Frank Tanana, Nolan Ryan, Chris Knapp, Don Aase and Dave Frost. The top hands on owner Gene Autry's bullpen are Dave LaRoche, Dyar Miller, Ken Brett and free agent Jim Barr.

Texas' new manager, Pat Corrales, promises that "the Rangers of 1979 will be a better club than the 1978 Rangers. We'll have a better bullpen and better defense."

Like the Angels, Texas has just one open position. That would be first base, where slick-fielding Mike Jorgansen is battling sluggers Pat Putnam and Gary Gray. The rest of the infield lists second baseman Bump Wills (he missed most of the spring with a bone chip in his wrist), slick-fielding rookie shortstop Nelson Norman and third baseman Bell.

Another good-looking rookie, Bill Sample, will share left field with Johnny Grubb, moving Al Oliver to center. Richie Zisk returns in right, with Gamble the DH.

The Rangers blew 29 games from the seventh inning on last year, but "some of that nonsense should cease," with Lyle and Kern around, Corrales hopes. The main starters will be Fergie Jenkins, Jon Matlack, Steve Comar and Dock Ellis and they'll be throwing to Jim Sundberg, baseball's best defensive catcher.

Minnesota is a team in turmoil thanks to owner Calvin Griffith, who opens his mouth too much he antagonized Carew with some racial remarks and his wallet not enough. Nevertheless, Manager Gene Mäuch calls the pitching corps "the strongest I've managed in 20 years."

Dave Goltz, Jerry Koosman, Roger Erickson, Geoff Zahn and Paul Hartzell loom as starters, with rubber-armed Mike Marshall in relief.

Austin Competing For $100,000 Top Prize

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) - Many girls her age try to pick up a couple extra bucks babysitting, but 16-year-old tennis prodigy Tracy Austin has a chance to make $100,000 for a just few hours of work this weekend.

Austin, a tennis pro less than six months, is one of four players scheduled to begin competition today in a $200,000 tournament. First prize is $100,000.

A schoolgirl from Rolling Hills, Calif., Austin can collect no less than $20,000, since that's the fourth-place money. Second is worth $50,000 and third $30,000.

Austin was slated to face Chris Evert in today's opening match, with the winner playing on Sunday the survivor of the other match between Martina Navratilova and Dianne Fromholtz. Today's losers will play for third place.

Although that would seem fast tennis company for a 16-year-old, Austin has proven beyond a doubt that she belongs in the group.

Last week, she whipped Evert 6-3, 6-1 in an early round of the winter tour championship, and she collected $52,000 for her second-place finish behind Navratilova.

While Austin is trying to boost her earnings to $152,000 for a week, the 22-year-old Navratilova will be shooting for $200,000 within that span. She collected $100,000 for her victory in Madison Square Garden last week.

In a tournament here that preceded this weekend's rich matches, Kerry Reid won the $35,000 Women's Tennis Association-La Costa Classic Friday night with a 7-6, 3-6, 6-3 victory over Sue Barker. The triumph was worth $6,000 for Reid, while Barker collected $3,000 for her second-place finish.

CLEVELAND (AP) - The Cleveland Indians have traded 26-year-old outfielder Dan Briggs to the San Diego Padres for a player to be named later, says Indians General Manager Phil Seghi.

Briggs had been one of four players at the Indians' spring training in Tucson, Ariz., competing for the left field position.

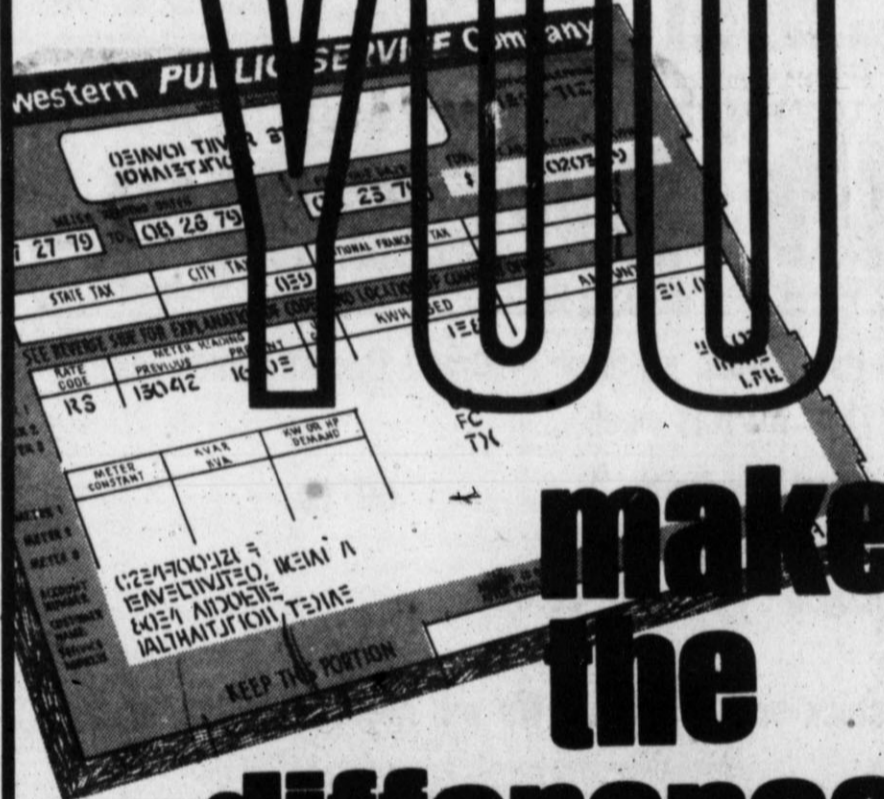

He signed with the Indians in March 1978 and went to the team's AAA affiliate in Portland for part of the summer, but joined the Indians for the last 15 games.

The deal Friday cut the Indians' roster to 29 players.

NEW YORK - The National Hockey League voted in favor of an expansion which would accept the New England Whalers, Quebec Nordiques, Winnipeg Jets and Edmonton Oilers for next season - effectively shutting down the 7-year-old World Hockey Association.

Condensation Causes Paint Difficulties

COLLEGE STATION - Homeowners can help solve paint problems caused by cold weather condensation, says Sue Young, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

If cold weather condensation is causing house paint to blister or peel, the following procedures are recommended:

PAINT

Paint the ceilings and the interior surfaces of the outside walls to increase the resistance to vapor penetration.

Aluminum paint serves this purpose well. It protects against vapor and can be painted over with decorative paints.

In remodeling and including new paneling, a polyethylene film placed over the surfaces to be covered will be more effective than the aluminum paint.

INCREASE INSULATION, VENTILATION

If the paint is peeling on the gable ends, increase the insulation and ventilation in the attic.

Kitchen Blazes Can Be Curbed

COLLEGE STATION - Kitchen range or oven fires both damage and frighten, warns Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

To prevent them, keep the area around the kitchen range clean and free of grease, she recommends.

Most importantly, don't heat grease until it smokes--that increases the chances of it splattering and catching fire, she cautions.

However, if a fire should occur, remember these instructions:

- * First, turn off the burner or oven.
- * Cover the pan with a lid carefully. Slide it on from the front, deflecting the flames away from you.
- * Don't carry the pan to the sink. Leave it on the range or in the oven until it cools.
- * Don't ever use water on a grease fire.
- * Baking soda can be effective in extinguishing a grease fire.

Wow! A man-like creature lived 3,600,000 years ago - archaeologists have found a most interesting evidence. If you don't subscribe to the National Geographic Magazine then go to the library and read the report in the April, 1979 issue.

I sometimes jest that people - you, I and our neighbors - should walk in wet sand mixed with cement. Archaeologists research the footprints of all life on earth. We genealogists research the footprints of our immediate ancestors. If your ancestors were like most of mine they did not leave many tracks - and if yours were like some of mine, then that was done for a reason - in my family we don't like close confinement.

History is rather replete with stories of escape from adverse circumstances. So often these exoduses have been fabled to the extent that it is difficult to know the reality. This is particularly true in family

Hereford Aggie Moms To Present Speaker

Hereford Aggie Moms decided Monday to enjoy a new club activity on April 11 when they will host a dinner and guest speaker.

Dr. Lowell M. Schake, Ph.D., who teaches both graduate and undergraduate courses in beef production at Texas A&M University will be featured at the dinner at the Hereford Country Club, and the Aggie Moms are inviting all Aggies and Aggie supporters to attend this social event scheduled at 8 p.m. in the Holbert Room.

Dr. Schake, who will also be appearing the following day in Amarillo at the Texas Beef Conference, has been associated with teaching at Texas A&M University since 1962, working his way up to his present position as professor and director of the Master of Agriculture feedlot management degree program. With this vast time and experience at the school, Dr.

Schake will be able to relate to the local Aggie parents, former students and others of many of the happenings and growth now taking place at TAM. Many of the local parents will be attending Parents Day activities at the college soon after Dr. Schake's appearance.

Chairmagne Klett, Aggie Moms president, urges those interested in attending the dinner to make reservations by calling 364-7264 or 364-4151. The charge will be $13 per couple.

Other business transacted at Monday's noon meeting centered around the local club's participation at the State Federation's annual meeting scheduled during Parnets Day weekend, April 20-22. Members discussed hand crafted and home cooked items they will sell at the big 'Aggie Moms Bazaar' that weekend.

Helen Eades, legislative chairman, reported on letters of support to Texas Aggie Mothers Clubs from Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, Bill Clayton, and Albert Brown, Rep. Austin, Chairman of Constitutional Amendments Committee, in relation to the Permanent University Fund which is being questioned concerning its present distribution. Presently, University of Texas and Texas A&M University receive the bulk of this fund for furtherance of research and the procuring of highly skilled professors for this research.

Efforts are being made to spread this fund among more than 30 state schools and universities; this action could bring about the end of a number of extensive studies now conducted at the two aforementioned universities.

Clayton wrote, "I dare say that every effort will be made to maintain the strength of this dedicated fund for the advancement of these fine institutions."

Brown also said, "I recognize the importance of the PUF and support its continuance."

Members in attendance at the meeting were: Margaret Ann Durham, Katie Wright, Patty Atchley, Norma Hendon, Barbara Hardin, Mary Lou Aven, Sue Hollingworth, Lea Alston, Leanna Walterscheid, Mary Lyles, Elizabeth Brown, Linda Hicks, Pat Clark, Betty Koelzer, Eades and Klett.

Plan Window Dressing

COLLEGE STATION -- Satisfying window treatments for the home take planning, a careful eye and basic rules-of-thumb, says Sue Young.

Mrs. Young is a housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

PLAN FIRST

On the practical side, first decide:

--how much the budget will allow, --which kinds of fabric will achieve the effect you want, --if you want lined or unlined curtains, --if you need insulation against cold or noise (if so, you need lining or heavy fabric--or both), --and, if curtains should keep out light at night or only screen the room from the street (to keep light out, curtains will need lining or heavy fabric).

USE CAREFUL EYE

On the visual side, use a careful eye to form early ideas on color, texture, pattern, floor or sill lengths and headings.

Consider the window's effect on the entire room.

FOLLOW BASIC RULES .

Basic rules-of-thumb for window treatments include fold fullness, length, patterns and color.

Follow these rules for the most satisfying effects: FOLD FULLNESS

Fold fullness affects the budget. Generally, it is better to choose a generous amount of a cheaper fabric--for fuller folds--than to skimp on a more expensive one and get skimpy folds.

Also, remember that lining adds a quality look, even to cheaper fabrics.

To give cheaper fabrics a quality look, line and interline them.

They will last for years, and the lining achieves the generous bulky look of expensive curtains.

LENGTH AFFECTS PATTERN

Length is personal preference, but once decided, let it be the guide to fabric weight and pattern choice.

For short curtains, avoid especially heavy fabrics or very large patterns--those are best in full-length curtains.

Exception: A large pattern on short curtains is acceptable if it is matched very carefully to the entire scheme. For example, if the wallpaper is a large "all-over" pattern, the curtains should match.

STUDY PATTERN REPEATS

Always take into account the fabric repeat--the length of each pattern before it starts all over again.

Since both curtains on a window should have the same pattern on each side, it may be necessary to order an extra pattern length per curtain.

ONE COLOR SAFER

Play it safe with one color, if there is a question of "plain or patterned."

Remember, using curtains merely for "room brighteners" can be costly.

Instead, use cushions, for example. They are much easier to take away than a brilliant costly curtain--when the room needs another "pick-me-up."

PATTERNS AND COLOR

If a pattern is the choice for curtains, use one or more of its colors in the rest of the room.

Local Involvement Key To Annual Cancer Crusade

Kathryn Acton keeps busy showing films on subjects as varied as cancer research, warning signals, and new breakthroughs in cancer cures. Here, she shows a film to a local club. Mrs. Acton, a RN, is an integral link between medical personnel and the local ACS unit.

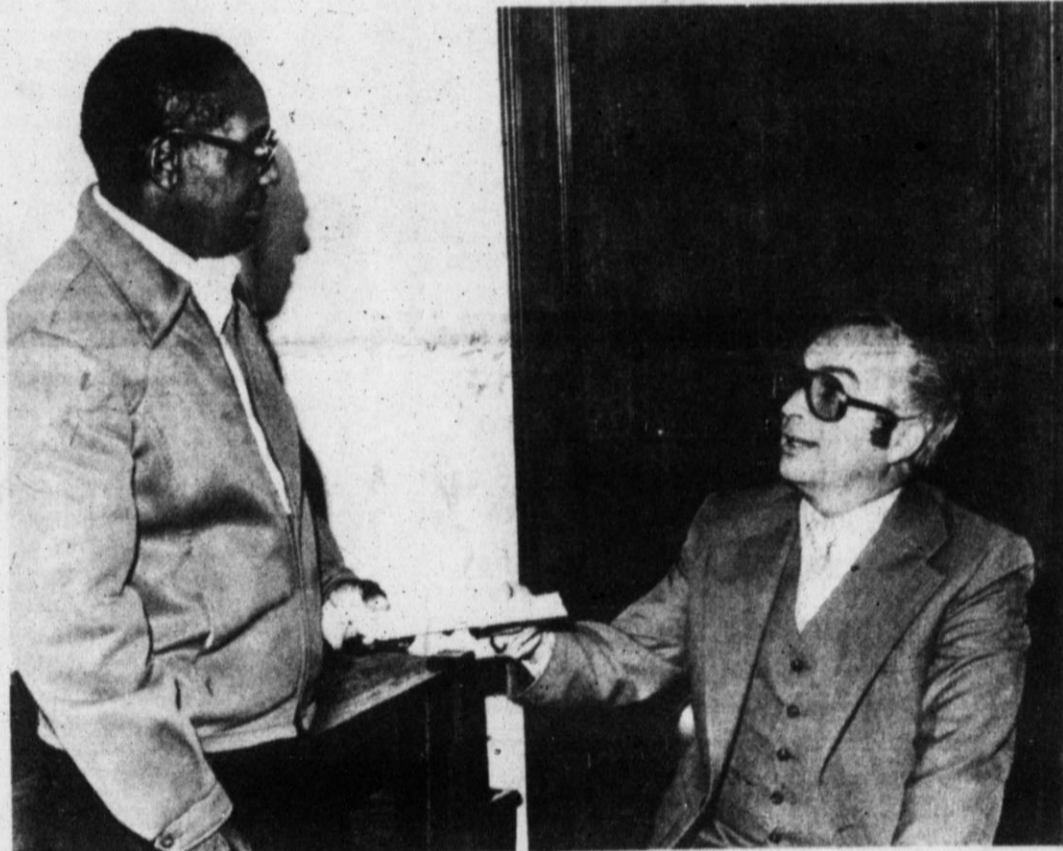

Irene McKinster [standing] serves as the local ACS unit's Memorials Chairman. Mrs. McKinster handles all gifts to the ACS in the memory of former cancer patients, such as the one she is receiving from Tom Hamlet here. A special certificate, listing all contributions in a particular person's name, is then mailed to the relatives of the former patient.

Bob Nigh [center] serves as president of the local ACS chapter as well as heading up its Public Information committee. Jim Tucker also serves on the PI committee. Here, they confer with Crusade General Chairman Naomi Schroeter as they map out publicity for the Annual Crusade.

The American Cancer Society's Deaf Smith County unit is made up of volunteers from varied backgrounds, who have banded together to do their part in helping support research aimed at stopping one of the nation's deadly killers. Some are relatives of former or current cancer patients. Others are just concerned citizens determined to help stem the tide of cancer-related deaths. Whatever their background, the local volunteer, like thousands of others across the country, are working hard to put themselves out of business.

The Reverend C.W. Allen [left] also does his part in urging contributions to the American Cancer Society's Annual Crusade. Here, he delivers a stack of inserts to Presbyterian Church pastor Reverend George Belford. The inserts were to be passed out today along with bulletins at local churches.

Peggy Oakes, Deaf Smith General Hospital LVN instructor, also serves as the local ACS unit's Service Chairman. She handles the distribution of available equipment to local cancer patients who have returned home after treatment. A hospital bed, such as the one Mrs. Oakes is making up in this photo, is a big comfort to a patient while recovering at home.

Red Cross Cites Joyce Blasingame

Joyce Blasingame has been recognized as Red Cross Volunteer of the month for March.

She is a retiring member of the Board of Directors, having served two terms, one as Walcott representative and one term as an at-large director. Receiving her First Aid Instructor training in 1975, Mrs. Blasingame has taught Multi-Media Standard First Aid classes regularly. In addition, Joyce is a member of the Disaster Committee and has received training as a case worker for family assistance. Mrs. Blasingame and her husband, Tommy, have been Deaf Smith County residents for 14 years, just recently moving to Hereford from the Walcott area. They attend Central Church of What's the difference between dough and batter?

Dough is any mixture thick enough to roll or knead, explains Gwendolyn Clayatt, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

A mixture that is thin enough to pour or drop from a spoon is known as batter, Mrs. Clayatt adds.

Couple at Home in Odessa Following Wedding Ceremony

Donna Lynn Riley and Jimmy Keith Turnbow of Odessa exchanged marriage vows Tuesday evening during a ceremony in Temple Baptist Church with the Rev. J.L. Bozeman, pastor, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Cocanougher of 211 Floss and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Turnbow, who reside west of the city.

Attending the couple as maid of honor and best man were her sister, Miss Janet Riley, and his brother, Mike Turnbow.

For her marriage, the bride wore a street-length dress of blue fabric, styled with three-quarter length sleeves and tiered skirt. She carried a nosegay of white and yellow daisies. Completing her ensemble was a dainty necklace from Korea.

Her honor attendant was gowned in a floor length blue dress with yellow daisy corsage.

The newlyweds are at home in Odessa. Both attended Hereford High School.

The tiny seahorse is the only fish that swims upright.

EAT LIGHTER FOR LENT

Eat lighter for lent if old Lenten favorites have lost their appeal.

Low-calorie cheese, along with raw fruits and vegetables, pack a lot of nutrition in lighter-than spring salad menus.

Plan menus around low-calorie dairy products and early spring fruits.

DAIRY DELICACIES

Low-calorie dairy products include cottage, ricotta and neufchatel cheeses and low-fat yogurt.

FRUIT FANCIES

Early spring fruits include strawberries and the ever-faithful banana.

Apples and D'Anjou pears are plentiful and high quality, fresh out of storage.

And don't forget the myriad of canned fruits—peaches, apricots, pineapples, and mixed fruits.

If packed in heavy syrup, just pour off the syrup and use for fruit punches for active children of normal weight.

NATURALLY NUTRITIOUS

Dairy products are our leading source of calcium needed for bones and teeth. They also offer high-quality protein, riboflavin and many other nutrients.

Fruits are valuable chiefly because of the vitamins and minerals they contain. Strawberries are a rich source of vitamin C needed for healthy gums and body tissue.

Apricots are rich in vitamin A needed for growth, normal vision and a healthy condition of the skin.

Fruit is also an abundant source of fiber needed for proper elimination.

Highlight Lenten menus with these sparkling low-calorie salads:

Or, fill canned peaches or pears with tart jelly or strong cheese, bake or broil; and serve hot or cold with the meat.

—As summer approaches, consider installing awnings on the windows along the sunny sides of the house.

Nutrition-Minded Mother Promotes Christianity

By DENISE SMITH
Brand Staff Writer

It isn't unusual to see the teenage youngsters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ford turn down a bag of potato chips and carbonated drink for a slice of good homemade wheat bread and a glass of fruit juice.

"One reason we cook like this is because we feel the Lord wants us to eat foods the way He grew them," stated Mrs. Ford.

The Ford family began their experimentation with natural foods after their marriage in 1956. "It was a gradual process changing over from regular foods to natural foods. You can't learn it all at once, it takes a lot of studying and practicing," commented Mrs. Ford.

Attributing their low medical bills and their children's steady attendance in school to a natural diet, the Fords find their family in a healthier state.

What does a natural food diet consist of?
Mrs. Ford makes it a practice to have homemade whole wheat bread on hand in the kitchen. The family also enjoys grain casseroles and sprouts, fruits, fruit juices and water. Now available for purchase are whole grain mixes for baking biscuits, pancakes, carrot cake and muffins.

Quite often, Mrs. Ford is able to take any recipe and substitute natural foods for processed ingredients.

"I always tell people to start with the recipes they already have and that the family enjoy and substitute. Substitutes such as whole wheat flour for white flour and cutting down the amount of sugar or cutting it out completely are some common uncomplicated substitutions. I often substitute honey for some of the sugar in a recipe and then cut the rest of it out," stated Mrs. Ford.

The natural food diet is not as extraordinary in this day in time as it was 10 years ago. Natural food products can be bought in any grocery store or health market. Switching one's tastes to this new trend though could prove to be difficult.

"If you try to change too radically, somebody in the family is going to rebel. It's usually easier for people to start with the homemade bread, then one could practice on revising their own recipes," stated Mrs. Ford.

"Information can be bought at any health market, and there have been classes and talks given on the matter of nutrition, but it's not really hard. It's just a matter of getting used to it," added Mrs. Ford.

The Ford's interest in natural foods go hand-in-hand with their Christian faith.

"I believe in eating the natural foods because you are taking care of the body which is the temple of the Holy Spirit, not because the food itself is to be worshipped," quoted Mrs. Ford.

The Ford's center their lifestyle around Christian teachings. "We want to do, eat, and be whatever the Lord wants us to do. We're trying to be a Christian witness in whatever we do. Whether it is in food, work, or whatever. In other words, we feel like the Lord is interested in every part of our life, not just church Sunday," Mrs. Ford said.

Television is not essential in the life of Mr. and Mrs. Ford, but they enjoy watching the Christian Broadcasting network, sports, news, and any National Geographic specials.

"It's not that there's new evil, it's just that there's so much more of it and it's much more available. It's promoted on television and in some of the books in schools. It really makes it harder for people to talk about the Lord," she opined.

Mrs. Ford was born and raised in Dallas. She attended the University of Texas where she majored in economics with a minor in math.

After her marriage to Frank Ford in 1956 she resided in Ft. Lewis, Washington where her husband was stationed with the military. Before coming to Hereford in 1960, she resided in Ft. Sill, Okla. and Austin.

Upon arriving in Hereford, the Fords farmed on land outside of town. They presently have the land leased to their sons. Frank Ford is chairman of the nationally-known Arrowhead Mills.

Mrs. Ford is the mother of four. Her oldest son, Davis, is 21 and a junior at Texas A&M. Cindy Skypala, who married last year is living in Hereford. The Fords have two teenagers living at home, Dan, who is 17 and a junior at Hereford High School, and Susie, 15, who is a freshman at La Plata Junior High.

The Fords are members of Hereford Community Church. Mrs. Ford enjoys sewing, horseback riding, swimming, and reading historical novels. When she is able, she enjoys traveling. She recently traveled to the Mid-East with her brother and to England with her husband.

She has shared with The Brand her recipes for homemade whole wheat bread, and a casserole.

SHELLEY'S SURPRISE BREAD

(The surprise is it nearly always rises)

2 pkg. dry yeast dissolved in 1 cup warm water.
Add 1 1/2 cups more water or milk or mixture of both
Add 1/2 cup unrefined oil
Add 2 or 3 beaten eggs
Add 1 tablespoon salt
Add 1/4 to 1/2 cup honey or sorghum
Mix all the above well. Add 6 cups stone ground whole wheat flour (or a mix of whole wheat flour, triticale flour, and soyflour)

Mix well using hands if need be. Add enough or more flour to make a stiff but still damp dough. Let rise until doubled. Knead 5 minutes. Shape into 2 loaves. Place in oiled 5"x9" loaf pans. Let rise again until doubled. Bake 10 minutes at 400 degrees. Reduce heat to 350 degrees. Bake 20 minutes more.

BULGHUR SAUSAGE CASSEROLE

2 cups dry bulghur-soy grit or cracked wheat
1 large onion, chopped
1 1/2 cups beef stock (or 1 can consomme or bouillon)
1 1/2 cups milk with chopped fresh or canned mushrooms (or 1 can mushroom soup)

Enough water to make a total of 5 cups liquid
1/2 lb. high quality sausage, browned and fat drained off
Mix all ingredients together in a 9" x 13" cake pan. Cover tightly. Bake 30 to 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Hamburger may be substituted for sausage. Add seasoning to taste.

You may omit the meat and add chopped celery, carrots, and parsley.

Scribbles & Scratches

By Kerrie Steiert

Mother told me there would be days like this. She said nothing about years, though.

Each of us has a cross to bear and mine comes in the form of a middle-aged matron who has disarmed the entire country with her madly-funny wit. Erma Bombeck, I don't begrudge you your talent, fame or black bath towels, but why did you have to be born in this hemisphere? I think the Middle East could have used a Moslem-version of your whimsy. How do you feel about wearing veils and grooming camels?

Erma is a hard act to follow, particularly for a small-town local columnist struggling against the likes of Bombeck and Ann Landers. Its sometimes an unbearable temptation to sabotage Erma's column by cutting off the punch lines, but I am stayed by the knowledge that there is no wrath like a woman scorned. (If that scorned woman happens to be a, died-in-the-polyester Bombeck fan, there would be no place to hide in the English-speaking world.)

My fixation concerning Bombeck is nothing personal. She's a grand gal who had the creativity and courage to launch a career after raising a family, a time when most of us are content to settle down to a life of soap operas and bridge clubs.

Erma has become a phenomenal success because she touches the part of us that is common to all people. As a matter of fact, she has the rare ability to make us look at our common faults and appreciate them for what they are.

However, don't get me wrong, I come not to praise Bombeck. Her writings follow me around, giggling and dancing with every syllable, threatening to smother my Scribbles with their unadulterated funniness. Her column sits just inches from mine, swelling with its legendary charm and luring the reader's eyes to a Bombeckian world that is like the land of Oz to the weary homemaker.

And Erma is indeed the Wizard of her self-created Oz, where mops, brooms and sticky-fingered children can be pushed somewhere over the rainbow. Seeking relief from those realities which puts us "at wits end," we gladly gallop down the yellow-brick road toward Erma's Emerald City, inhabited by cartoons of ourselves.

How does one compete with such a jolly seductress. (I wonder if Erma has ever thought of herself in those terms?) If I decide to change my writing style so as to not conflict with Erma, I know I'll run head-on into Paul Harvey, and he seems to have that corner of the market pretty well covered.

And that's (pause) the rest (pause) of the story. (pause)

See, it's just not me.

So here we are, Erma, stuck together in a town that ain't big enough for the both of us. I guess we're going to have to be "roomies" at least until I get discovered or you get misplaced. The possibility that it could be the other way around does not escape me.

How about if you stay on the even-numbered pages and I'll take the odd. You can keep your spots on "Good Morning America," Johnny Carson and all those specials. Heaven knows, I'm trying to get along.

Wedding Announced

Wedding vows were exchanged March 13 by Kandy Lyn Newman and Wade Walker. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel D. Newman, 306 Star, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Walker, Route 4. The couple is at home in Hereford.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Did you know that for $12.50 you can buy a realistic-looking, inflatable, plastic torso of a person to place in a passenger seat when driving alone or in a chair when not at home?

I've seen several of these "silent partners" that are being sold for "protection for women living alone."

Save your money. For a few bucks more you can get a full-sized model that you can prop up at the breakfast table, watch TV with, or use to fill in at a dinner party. They're called husbands.

Granted, they're not as believable as the inflatable models, but they come in a variety of sizes, stay pressurized, and are self-cleaning.

I don't mean to imply that the inflatable-men manufacturers aren't on the right track. Frankly, there is still a need for a male presence. I have found that in making a major purchase like a car or furniture, salesmen will not pay any attention to you unless a man is along. (This in spite of the fact that my husband releases the hood every time he thinks he is releasing the emergency brake.)

Single people going out to dinner will be assured of getting a table away from the wall with a male figure along. And you don't have to listen to his whining about how dancing is a fad like the hula hoop and mood rings and will eventually go out of style.

They'd be wonderful to play bridge with or sit on the beach with (they wouldn't burn), and on a vacation they would fold to envelope size in your luggage right next to your plastic raincoat.

You could toss 'em into a playpen and give the children a feeling of warmth and security that they have a Daddy who plays with them, use them for pillows for lonely wives who can curl up with them on a winter evening by the fire (not too close to the fire), and send one to his mother on Mother's Day to show her you care.

(A friend of mine, being practical, decided to buy an inflatable plastic torso and put it on the passenger side of the car so it would look like a licensed driver while her teenager was learning how to drive.

At the end of an hour, the poor inflatable was reduced to a flat piece of rubber with a slow leak.

Maybe they're more realistic than we think.

Flying saucers have been sighted in the Library?? Yes, and they will be hovering there all the month of April to watch over the Science Fiction book collection and to help people locate these books.

April has been designated Science Fiction month at the Library, and approximately 160 new SF books are available for checkout. Much of this is due to Mr. and Mrs. Donnell Anderson of Hereford, who donated a large portion of their private collection to the library. Why not come down and checkout the books, while you check-up on the flying saucers!

April 1-7 is National Library week, and as is the tradition, it is also Amnesty week. During this week no fines will be collected on overdue books that are returned to the library. Also colorful bookmarks will be available to all patrons. This year's bookmark features the photo and autograph of ex-Texas Ranger baseball player--Mike Hargrove.

The list of new books for this week feature a few authors that are old favorites and some very promising reading. Among the titles can be found: THE MATARESE CIRLE by Robert Ludlum, GOOD AS GOLD by Joseph Heller, and HOW TO GET WHATEVER YOU WANT OUT OF LIFE, by Dr. Joyce Brothers.

THE MATARESE CIRLE by Robert Ludlum is a tale of international suspense. The story develops when America's best secret agent and his Soviet counterpart are slated for execution by their own governments. They are forced to team up in spite of having sworn to kill each other, to stop the most outrageous international power play ever conceived. This one is guaranteed to leave you gasping for breath.

Joseph Heller's GOOD AS GOLD is rising fast in popularity. It is the story of Bruce Gold, a Jewish 48-year old professor of literature, who suddenly finds himself facing the prospect of becoming a high Washington official. Big government takes its licks, and the family and heritage prevails.

A kidnapping without a ransom note and a dead babysitter with an identity that couldn't be hers sets the stage for the psychological suspense novel -- THE BABYSITTER by Andrew Coburn. John and Merle Wright, the baby's parents then begin a baffling search to find their child and to uncover the true identity of the babysitter that involves ghosts, confusion, and federal grants.

THE FAMINE PLOT by John Freivalds takes place in the year 1980, the year of the Moscow Olympics, the U.S. Presidential election, and the discovery of a plot to starve the U.S. The question is-- can it be stopped! Movie stars and television personalities are always big news. Three new books are: Lucy & Ricky & Fred & Ethel, the story of "I LOVE LUCY" by Bart Andrews; LOVE SCENE, THE STORY OF LAURENCE OLIVIER and VIVIEN LEIGH by Jesse L. Lasky; and JOHN WAYNE AND THE MOVIES by Allen Eyles.

Other new non-fiction includes HOW TO GET WHATEVER YOU WANT OUT OF LIFE, A guide to fulfilling impossible dreams by Dr. Joyce Brothers, and EVERYTHING YOU ALWAYS WANTED TO KNOW ABOUT TAXES BUT DIDN'T KNOW HOW TO ASK by Michael Savage.

LOCAL LIBRARY ACTIVITIES THIS WEEK

Monday: All new books available

Tuesday: After-school film feature at 4:00 feature -- "Johnny Lingo"

Thursday: Story hour at 10:00 Genealogy Society meeting at 7:00

Friday: Film showing at Westgate at 3:00 p.m.

Science Fiction Month

In recognition of April as Science Fiction Month, Mr. and Mrs. Donnell Anderson have donated approximately 160 books to Deaf Smith General Library. Ann Landers

Truckdrivers Life

DEAR ANN LANDERS: With all the 18-wheelers on the road, I wonder if I am the only trucker's wife who is going crazy. My home has turned into a layover situation. My husband comes in and plops in the recliner, sometimes doesn't move until it's time to take another runout. Other times he'll visit friends so he can talk about trucking. He gets furious if I ask him to do anything around the house. "I do my job!" he yells. "You do yours!"

Meanwhile, I'm working part-time and trying my darnedest to finish college. Plus I take full responsibility for our two children -- sitting up nights when they're sick, leaving work to keep doctor appointments, doing the housework, the laundry, etc., and handling all the finances.

He wonders why I'm not thrilled when he brags about making it to Texas and back in 33 hours! Or why I don't think it's hilarious that he was propositioned at a rest area by a hooker. Or why I can't watch a three-hour western on TV with him, not to mention doing his laundry, shopping, packing, and smiling sweetly when he leaves for another week of driving.

I know you'll get a million replies from truckers about how hard they work, how tiring and boring and lonely it is out there on the road. But if it's so bad, why rush to leave again? Why don't they get a job that lets them stay home?

I don't know how other wives handle it, but I'm about to become -- Unglued In Tenn.

DEAR TENN.: Granted, a trucker's life isn't easy -- but the problem isn't the job, it's the man. He probably wouldn't behave differently if he were a postman or a ribbon clerk.

You need joint counseling so you can both air your beefs. If he won't go -- go alone. Better one person in a marriage with some insight than nobody. I recommend your clergyman or the Family Service Association.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I admire you for your guts at printing outspoken letters. Do you have the guts to print this?

We just received notice that we cannot keep two cats in our apartment and if we don't get rid of one within 10 days, the lawyers will be on us.

Have you ever heard of a parent being told to get rid of a child? Our cats are like our children. We can't afford a family at this time so we give our love to the cats. They are a lot cleaner and less destructive than most kids I've seen. They don't dig up the lawn, break windows or run sticks along the sides of cars, but I've seen several kids do these things -- and worse.

Shouldn't we have the right to prove our animals are well-behaved? I'll bet half the parents around here can't prove their kids are!

Someone needs to investigate this sort of injustice and change the rules. -- Just Plain Mad

DEAR J.P.M.: What does your lease say? Look at it. If it states "no animals" or "one pet to a family," you are in violation.

Try to reason with the landlord in any event. Invite him in for coffee and let him see how clean and well-behaved your felines are. He may change his mind.

The meal, to be catered by Don's Restaurant, will cost $4 per plate and persons planning to attend are asked to confirm their reservations with the Chamber office, 364-3333. Reservations should be made before 5 p.m. Monday.

Following the brief business session, a program is to be presented by an Amarillo doctor. Also, several displays will be exhibited as reminders of the Chamber Women's upcoming activities.

According to Women's Division president Mary Herring, the organization's calendar is highlighted by the following events: Tennis Tournament April 21-22; Beautification Week, April 23-28; Miss Hereford Pageant, April 28; Little Miss Pagenat, May 5; Pet Show, May 6; Tour of Arrowhead Mills, month of May; and Independence Day celebration, July 4.

The Women's Division have ended their annual membership drive and the campaign theme has been "279 in '79." Persons interested in joining the organization are asked to contact any current member or the Chamber office.

The Chamber woman who recruited the most new members will be recognized at the general membership meeting Tuesday night. She and her first runner-up will receive cash prizes. Also, a drawing will be held for dinner theatre tickets.

Those eligible to participate in the drawing must have enrolled one new member during the membership drive.

'We've Obtained Best Price We Can'

F-L Yellow Corn Offer Stands at $5.50

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor
DIMMITT--"The 1979 food corn production contract with Frito-Lay Inc. has been negotiated to the greatest price level we can obtain."

That was the message related to a gathering of corn producers at the Castro County Exposition Center here Friday night by Weldon Davis of Hart, president of the High Plains Farm Bargaining Association after the group failed to obtain the additional 50 cent per hundred-weight price members of the association had agreed to seek for food-grade yellow corn.

But in delivering the message, Davis reminded those in attendance that through the efforts of the still-young bargaining association, area farmers have obtained a substantial increase in the contract price being offered by the Dallas-based firm, compared to an initial offer made just over 90 days ago, when negotiations first began.

"The directors of this association indicated when we began that we would make every effort to obtain the most favorable price possible, and that when we felt we had done all the good we could do, we would let the membership know. We're letting you know now," stated Davis.

The association head's statement indicated that the final food contract offers obtained from Frito-Lay would stand at $7 per cwt. for food-grade white corn, and $5.50 per cwt. for food-grade yellow corn.

When negotiations began on the food corn contract issue, F-L was offering $5 per cwt. contracts across the board, according to Davis.

Members of the association voted earlier this year to set their asking price for yellow corn at $6 per cwt. and $7 per cwt. for white corn.

In the final stages of negotiations with F-L, association board members obtained a price offer in line with their request for white corn, but failed to secure the final 50 cents per cwt. separating local farmers and F-L on yellow corn.

Area farmers indicated that the $6 and $7 contract prices were necessary to enable them to meet higher production costs for food-grade corn and still obtain a profit.

Despite the 50 cent shortfall in the final $5.50 per cwt. Frito offer, the young HPPFA may have set a historical precedent in area agriculture in its bargaining efforts with the Dallas firm.

"We've gained a great deal in this effort. Anytime a West Texas farmer can pick up the phone, dial direct, and be talking to the vice president of a major company such as Frito-Lay 20 seconds later, you've done some good," commented Davis.

"Don't discount the friendly working relationship we've developed with F-L executives, either. If we handle things right, we may now have the opportunity to work with them again next year, and perhaps negotiate a better price. I think F-L is one of the best food corn companies in the world, and we've started something good here," he continued.

Other farmers present called for cooperation to help insure the possibility of future negotiations.

"When you go as far as you can bargaining, then you should try to work with them (F-L) a little. That way, you're leaving the door open for some more bargaining," stated a spokesman.

Davis pointed out that every farmer must make his own decision on whether to plant food corn under current F-L

Pheasants Unlimited Head To Address Young Farmers

Joe Don Hancock, Plainview banker and president of Pheasants Unlimited, will be the featured speaker at a regular membership meeting of the Hereford Young Farmers Thursday at 8 p.m. at K-Bob's Steak House.

Hancock helped to organize the state's first chapter of the new conservation organization in Plainview just over a year ago.

The organization is seeking to expand the population of pheasants in the Texas

Panhandle through improvement of habitat, and has received the support of the Texas Parks & Wildlife Dept. in its efforts to enhance pheasant habitat through the planting of cover crops.

The Plainview-based organization is currently offering farmers in the Hale County area payments of $25 per acre plus free seed as an incentive to plant cover areas for pheasants.

Farmers and landowners retain the right to grant or deny hunting privileges on their property.

According to Hancock, the efforts of Pheasants Unlimited are designed to help the landowner as well as the wildlife resource.

Hancock will be offering pointers on how other communities may organize a similar effort during his visit here. Individuals interested in Hancock's presentation on the pheasant conservation program are invited to attend.

Dinner will be served on a catch-treat basis.

The Eyes Have It

Before the county's potato crop can go in the ground, tons of seed pieces must be cut at local produce sheds. The process of cutting potato seed pieces, each including the eye to produce a new plant, was once a slow and tedious process to be performed by hand, but mechanization has speeded up the process considerably. In the photo at left, employees at Griffin & Brand of Hereford cull over seed pieces after whole potatoes have gone through an automated potato cutter. At right, seed pieces move up a conveyor assembly, where they receive a second inspection, prior to being treated with fungicide. Seed pieces are then bagged and loaded out for the trip to local planting fields. Potato planting is already past the halfway mark in the area as local producers move ahead with the work of getting the vegetable crop in the ground as they look toward harvest in July. (Brand photos by Jim Steiert)

Potato, Beet Planting Proceeds

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

After a slight weather delay, planting of the 1979 potato and sugar beet crops is proceeding in the local area.

Spokesmen for local vegetable packing sheds report that upwards of 50 percent of the potato crop is already in the ground, while reports from the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant show that 20 percent of the beet crop has been planted.

A freeze in the Rio Grande Valley region of the state, where the majority of the onion sets utilized locally are produced, has caused problems for most onion raisers in the local area.

"We're going to have enough sets for our own business, but they are smaller than normal and are going to be about two weeks late. We're the exception; rather than the rule, in having enough onion sets, because most of the folks around here are going to be short on sets," stated Fisher.

Wes Fisher of Barrett-Fisher Produce of Hereford reported that his firm already has up to 90 percent of its contracted potato acreage planted, but setting of young onions is running behind schedule.

"If conditions continue favorable, we should have onions ready for harvest by the first week of July," he continued.

Albert Maxwell of the Hereford office of Dimmitt-based La Mantia-Cullum-Collier & Co. reported that potato planting for that firm is about 50 percent complete in the Dimmitt and Hart regions.

"We're having problems with availability of onion sets. We'll have a supply one day and be out two. Our overall onion acreage is going to be down by 50 percent, due to this set shortage," Maxwell reported.

Although availability of labor to help in getting the young onions put out has been a problem in the Hereford area in recent years, Maxwell reported that plenty of help is available this spring.

"The help is sufficient, and we are getting the onions put out okay when we have them. We had enough rain in the Dimmitt area to keep us out of the fields for a few days, but hopefully, we'll finish setting onions in about three weeks. We hope to be through with potato planting in another week," he said.

Another vegetable crop in the Dimmitt region is already in the ground in the form of the summer carrot crop.

According to Maxwell, carrots were recently planted, and are beginning to emerge in some fields now, growing toward what producers and packers hope will be a late July harvest.

"There's never really a good time to plant a carrot and get it up, they are just a different crop to get a good stand on. They can blow or wash away, or any number of other things, but I don't feel like we've lost any acreage yet. We've got about the same size carrot crop we always have. Overall, our vegetable program is pretty well on schedule right now," Maxwell commented.

While planting of the vegetable crop is moving ahead, beet planting and land preparation for beets is in various stages.

"We're about 20 percent planted over our general production area," reported Calvin Jones, agricultural manager of the local Holly plant.

"Some beets are planted and up, others are just going in the ground, and some farmers are still pre-irrigating land in preparation for planting," he stated.

Cool soil temperatures have slowed emergence of the earliest beets, but Jones indicated that full scale planting should begin when the soil temperature reaches 50 degrees.

"We'll have planting underway well into April. Normally, we wrap up the planting operation the last part of April.

We've had a lot of pre-plant irrigation of beet acreage this year, and some is still going on. Some growers are pre-watering and will hope to get their beets up without a germination irrigation. This pre-plant irrigation is really a good way to conserve water later. By filling the soil profile with moisture now, while evaporation rates are lower, the producers will have deep moisture available for their beet crop in July and August," he concluded.

Local Dealer to Unveil New 4 WD Tractor

Oglesby Equipment Co. of Hereford will demonstrate a revolutionary new concept in tractor design during a special field day here Thursday.

On display will be the new International Harvester 2 plus 2, row crop tractor.

According to Cecil Oglesby of the local firm, the new tractor, a streamlined version of more traditional four wheel drive power plants, is designated as the "jet age concept" in tractors.

Demonstrations will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. north of the local dealership, with a demonstrator model of the new tractor operating with various tillage equipment.

Local farmers will have the opportunity to operate the tractor for themselves.

The local tractor dealership will be serving hot dogs and drinks during the day-long demonstration.

BOURQUIN WEED PULLER

Finally, a simple, exciting and workable alternative to hand weeding. The Bourquin Weed Puller is one of the few innovations in cultivators in 30 years.

This inexpensive weed pulling machine will many times pay for itself in labor savings within the first season. The Bourquin Weed Puller is ecologically safe, has no reoccurring chemical costs, and may be front or rear mounted.

The Bourquin Weed Puller removes shattercane, careless weed, velvet leaf, beggar weed, coffee weed, and a variety of other weeds from grain sorghum, soybeans, cotton, sugar beets, and vegetables.

The Bourquin Weed Puller is working well in uprooting seedling johnsongrass; and applying herbicide at a root stunting rate should improve the weed puller's performance in established johnsongrass.

An important side benefit may be emerging in our soybean operation. By operating the Bourquin Weed Puller at a slightly lower level, a slight pruning of the soybean leaves occurs. We have a growing number of farmers who feel they will get a boost in yield from this pruning action, in addition to the weed removal.

This may be the missing link in your weed management program. For more information, contact Bourquin Design and Mfg., Inc. Route 3, Colby, Kansas 67701 (913-462-2998 or 462-2065). Send coupon to Royce Cretzinger Box 6, Wildorado, Texas 79098 or Call 806-426-3338

China Cancels Wheat Purchase

WASHINGTON (AP) — China has cancelled orders for 300,000 metric tons of U.S. wheat it ordered for delivery in the new marketing year that will begin on June 1.

The Agriculture Department said the cancellation was reported by private exporting companies. No official explanation was provided for the cancelled orders, but one source said China may have been able to get a better price from another supplier. With world wheat stocks up, international export trade is highly competitive, and it is not unusual for a foreign buyer to cancel contracts if better prices are available elsewhere. The department said U.S. wheat sales to China include about 2.9 million metric tons for the current marketing year and 1.2 million metric tons for the 1979-80 year, which will begin June 1.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat. In addition, China has bought more than 2.9 million metric tons of U.S. corn for 1978-79 delivery, plus substantial amounts of soybeans, soybean oil and cotton.

No Export Decline Expected by USDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Agriculture Department official says a recent cancellation of an order for U.S. wheat does not signal any decline in future exports of American farm products to China.

The department announced Wednesday that China had cancelled an order for 300,000 metric tons of wheat that was to have been delivered in the 1979-80 marketing year beginning June 1.

Thomas R. Hughes, administrator of the department's Foreign Agricultural Service, said he did not know why China cancelled the order but speculated that "it probably means they've just got some kind of supply and storage problem at the moment."

Hughes recently returned from a 10-day visit to China, along with representatives of U.S. agricultural producer and industry groups.

When Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland visited China last fall, he indicated it would be buying 5 million to 6 million metric tons of U.S. grain annually.

"The impression in the 10 days that we were there is that there is going to be no decrease in American agricultural exports to the PRC," said Hughes. "I don't think they'll be reduced at all.

Setting-To

Field workers place onion sets in the earth as a cultivating rig prepares seedbeds for the vegetable crop, just south of Hereford. A shortage of onion sets is posing problems for High Plains onion growers this year, and acreage in some areas may be down as much as 50 percent, due to the lack of young transplants. Although a frost in the Rio Grande Valley region of the state early this year inflicted its initial damage in that area, the effects of the incident are being felt now by local growers. (Brand photo by Jim Steiert)

On The Turnrow

By Jim Steiert
Brand Farm Editor

Consider the potato—an item of virtual sanctimonious regard by some members of the Irish clan, particularly my late grandmother. Aye me bucko, tis' the liquid elixir of the auld Emerald Isle that has caught the fancy of the world, but did ye ever hear o' anythin' so darlin' as the Irish potato?

Me Grandmother took it in her head 'twas tradition to be observed with the specious spud. Laard knows, gems such as these should not go in the ground until the day after Easter Sunday...Aye, what scandal there would be, could she see us planting them now, with nary a thought for the fact that March is not half gone when we begin, and that Easter is not reckoned with in the matter at all!

She'd not be findin' fault with our spuds though, once we got them grown and in her big kitchen.

Tis' no blarney that the Irish in a Texas potato will do when the homeland is across the sea...Just so the skin is well set, and the jewels are of a size to be worked with.

The smaller of the lot,—into the pot with 'em, for bollin' in their jackets.

The grander of them, we'll bake of the evenings, and there are all the darlin' spuds to mash with butter too.

Be a good lad, and we'll have fresh potato cake, just take those spuds off the stove there and put the pot in the sink.

Begorra, lad! Don't go doin' that. Tis a grave and maalt sin to be pourin' off that good potato water down the drain! Put it in the can there, where it can be used in the bread makin' of a mornin'. Aye, the spuds are grand to eat, but 'tis the water that's the secret!

Local Farmer Featured In World Book

Area farmers have gained the attention of the world — or at least the World Book. The 1979 World Book Year Book, a supplement to the World Book Encyclopaedia reviewing the year 1978, features a photo of regional farmers during a protest of imports of Mexican produce on the international bridge at Hidalgo, Tex.

Prominent in the photograph is Bruce Parr of Friona, a well-known area farmer.

The photograph was the only mention made by World Book of farmers protests during 1978, although the incident pictured is only one of numerous farmer activities conducted in 1978 in protest of agricultural economic conditions.

Aye, we've learned about the spud water, of cookin' the new potatoes in their jackets, and of mashin' the darlins turned out in a bowl with heaps of butter piled on top.

'Tis no sweeter thing than Irish potato cake, and no bread that rises so high nor tastes so fine as that with the Irish secret in its makin'.

And what self-respectin' Irish Texan will ever be thinkin' of pourin' away that good spud water, when he knows it to be a liquid gift of the homeland?

No, grandmother, we didna' wait for Easter Monday to plant these spuds, but I'm knowin' they'll still have a bit of o' the magic in 'em, even after our oversight.

And when they come put o' the ground a few months from now, we'll still be wonderin' if we've ever seen anythin' so darlin' Irish in all this land.

Restoration of Cotton Research Funding Sought from Committee

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The president of the National Cotton Council has requested the House Agriculture Appropriations subcommittee to restore funding for important cotton research projects for fiscal 1980. Hoke Leggett, Hobgood,

N.C., producer, expressed deep concern over the Administration's proposed $3.3 million cut in over-all agricultural research and especially over the fact that more than half of the cut of $1.6 million would be in cotton research alone.

He commended the Administration's effort to reduce the budget deficit but noted that research is one of the primary ways of improving productivity and holding down costs. The Administration apparently recognized this fact in other areas, he noted, because seven of 10 federal research agencies would receive increased funding in the proposed budget.

In view of the growth in world population and evidence that yields of many crops in this country have reached upper limits, Leggett commented, "It is difficult to understand why, at the same time, agriculture and cotton are receiving severe cuts."

The Council president said the cotton industry has already experienced "considerable sacrifice" in efforts to hold down the federal budget deficit. Scientific man-years assigned to federal cotton research have dropped 20% in the last decade, he stated. In addition, Leggett noted that the 1977 farm act actually called for substantial increases in research.

The Council president also expressed concern that cotton was singled out for the heaviest research cuts at a time when it has a tremendous potential for greatly alleviating the nation's trade balance problems through expanded exports.

"We need to increase our production efficiency in order to take advantage of our expanding opportunities in the export market," he said, "and we cannot do so over the long run unless research is adequate to keep production costs competitive."

Leggett listed a number of such projects which would be eliminated under the proposed cuts, including research essential to developing insect- and disease-resistant cotton varieties and to minimizing the use of pesticides while fully protecting the crop.

He also stressed the importance of continued federal work in post-harvest research, pointing out that cotton faces "unprecedented problems" in the processing area due to cotton dust and flammability regulations.

More than half a million dollars would be taken out of cotton work at USDA's New Orleans laboratory where most of cotton's post-harvest research is conducted.

"This could seriously hamper several absolutely vital areas of research, including cotton dust ... which urgently needs to be stepped up, not only to save the cotton industry and the jobs and income it contributes to the economy, but also to eliminate a potential health problem for some people."

Leggett pointed out that the cotton industry is composed of many producers and small processors who must compete with large and well-financed synthetic fiber corporations.

"While cotton producers themselves are financing some of the needed research and recently doubled their assessments," he said, "all cotton research taken together -- both public and private -- amounts to only a small fraction of synthetic fiber research expenditures."

For this reason, the Council president said cotton is a classic case for government research.

Hereford Sale Slated Tuesday

A total of 139 head of registered Hereford cattle will be offered for sale Tuesday at the C Bar Ranch of Hereford conducts its annual production sale.

Colby and Jim Conkwright will be offering a total of 75 bulls and 64 females, including 22 bred heifers for consideration by buyers as the auction gets underway at 12:30.

Site of the sale will be the Conkwright Ranch, 14 miles north of Hereford on Highway 385, and 1 1/2 miles east.

Sale activities will be conducted in a newly constructed barn at the ranch.

Members of the Ford Home Demonstration Club will be serving lunch at the sale site Tuesday.

Over 200 prospective buyers have attended the local ranch's production sales in recent years, and a large crowd is also expected to view the livestock on sale this year.

Bound For The Field

Workers at Griffin & Brand Produce of Hereford pause a moment during seed potato loading operations at the firm's local packing shed. The conveyor belt at the bottom of the photo brings out a bag of freshly cut seed potatoes every few seconds for workmen to load on waiting trucks. Large quantities of seed potatoes are required to get the vegetable crop planted here, and during the planting season, the loading process is steady work. [Brand photo by Jim Steiert]

Financial Outlook To be Topic of Forum

LUBBOCK -- The financial outlook for farmers of the Texas High Plains, together with some hints on how they can improve that picture, will be detailed at a public forum Thursday, April 5, in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

The forum is an opening day feature of the second annual South Plains Farm Show, April 5-7, in the Civic Center.

The three-day exhibition also will feature the largest display of new farm implements and equipment yet assembled on the South Plains, a fashion revue featuring apparel created locally from materials of natural fibers, a special day saluting the Future Farmers of America, a state championship micro-mini tractor pull, and two nights of invitational tractor and four-wheel-drive truck pull. All events are free except the invitational tractor pull, which will be held in the Lubbock Coliseum.

The theme for the forum will be: "Money for the Farmer--Where It Will Come From and Where It Will Go." It will begin at 10:15 a.m. in the Civic Center banquet hall.

Featured speakers for the forum will be Tom Benson, president of the Federal Land Bank, Houston, and Dr. Ronald D. Knutson, Extension specialist in economics and marketing policy at Texas A&M University, College Station.

Benson and Knutson will analyze the current financial picture for farmers, explain the increasing importance of maintaining an accurate cash flow statement, and discuss various marketing alternatives that farmers can use to their advantage.

The South Plains Farm Show is sponsored by the Southwest Hardware and Implement Association with the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and Texas Tech University.

Seeds Difference Between Starvation

The ability to plant seeds and grow crops is the difference between survival and starvation for 99 percent of the world's present population.

That sobering statistic emerges from a new publication prepared by the Texas Seed Trade Association. The brochure, entitled "First the Seed," details the importance of planting seed to modern life, the development of the seed industry, and the role of Texas in the seed trade.

The brochure notes that scientists have determined that only cultivation of plants can make it possible for the earth to feed its four billion people. If mankind had to return to hunting and to gathering wild plants for food, it is calculated that the resources of the entire earth would sustain only 30 million persons.

In other words, the number of people now living in Texas and a few neighboring states would consume all the food that could be found on earth. That number is only about one percent of the current total population of the world.

Nine out of every ten bites of food presently available to mankind begin with the planting of seed, the seed industry brochure reports. Modern man relies upon cultivated plants not only for grains, fruits, and vegetables he consumes, but also for much of the feed that nourishes livestock.

"The seed is as much the source of our meat, poultry, milk, and eggs as it is of our bread," the publication comments.

Other necessities and conveniences of modern life also originate from planting seed, the brochure notes. Among the gifts from seed are plant and animal fibers for clothing and other fabrics and a multitude of organic substances that shape modern civilization.

Civilization itself is an outgrowth of man's mastery of growing crops from seed, according to the seed industry publication. The cultivation of plants created a reliable source of food and encouraged permanent settlement -- conditions which gave man the time and the need to develop written language, arts, government, and other features of civilization.

Today, with more of the world's manpower engaged in agriculture than in all other occupations combined, a substantial portion of mankind is also indebted to planting seed for employment. In every country, rich or poor, seed is the primal force in agriculture, because regardless of technology, little can be grown without seed. Man has found substitutes for rainfall, sunlight, and even soil, but seed remains a unique, indispensable element for farming, the brochure observes.

contract terms, but advised that farmers might plant a portion of their former contract acreage as a show of good faith.

The bargaining meetings with F-L represented one of the first major efforts by area agriculture interests to improve the producer's position in the marketplace by group negotiations.

Those in attendance at Friday night's meeting credited a stick-together attitude on the part of High Plains farmers with bringing about the contract price offer improvements for this year's crop, although numerous farmers broke ranks with the bargaining group when the F-L offer reached the $5.50 level on yellow corn, and began signing contracts.

"If people could have held out a little longer, we would have been stronger," commented Davis.

The association set the stage for its next major bargaining effort in the meeting with the formation of a silage and hay contract negotiating committee made up of farmers from a wide area of the High Plains corn silage and hay growing region.

Robert Wagner of Hereford explained to the farmers in attendance that additional expenses are making production of corn silage unprofitable at price levels under $18 per ton.

There are some $17.50 and $18 per ton silage contracts available right now in Randall County, yet in our own area, we can't obtain a price offer of over $16.50 per ton," stated Wagner.

Larry Walterscheid of Hereford informed farmers that a major obstacle in the path of improved silage contracts is cheap grain.

"Feedlots can buy milo for $82 per ton right now, and they won't buy $17 and $18 per ton silage when they can buy grain that cheap," he stated.

After a period of discussion, association members voted to elect a negotiating committee to work on ensilage and hay contracts, and recommended that the committee seek contracts at prices not under $18 per ton.

Committee members appointed include Wagner, Walterscheid, Bill Paetzold, Roger Williams, Harold Bob Bennett, Dick Fellers, George Sides, Preston Upshaw, Bill Rich, Jerald Wright, Harold Joe Wells, Dwayne Louder, Charles Heck and L.D. Taylor.

Members also approved a checkoff of $1 per acre on silage to benefit the association, provided it is successful in negotiating workable silage contracts.

In closing, Davis indicated that the bargaining group is gathering support.

"We've had a lot of interest on the North Plains, and we've had some surprising success already. We're going to have to expand the board, and get one big association working for improved commodity prices, but if this thing will snowball, we have the tool to secure those prices," he concluded.

Distributing Trees

Conrad Martin receives young red cedar trees from Ed Blackwell of the Deaf Smith County Soil Conservation Service. A shipment of trees arrived here during the past week, and local residents began picking up the trees for windbreak plantings. Interest in tree planting picked up locally this year, as upwards of 3,000 trees were ordered through the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District. [Brand photo by Jim Stelert]

Helping Kids Inc.

Members of the Hereford High School FFA chapter are currently participating in a Building Our American Community project to assist Deaf Smith County Kids Inc. through the planting of windbreaks at the Kids Inc. baseball complex. Here, members work on tying up trees against the wind and trenching for irrigation after planting of 100 poplar trees. The FFA chapter will later plant evergreens in the gaps between the poplars, making for a practical and attractive windbreak when the young plants attain some size. [Brand photo by Jim Stelert]

State Deer Harvest Continues Decline

AUSTIN — A steady decline in the harvest of white-tailed deer during the past six years continued during the 1978-79 hunting season in Texas, according to harvest survey statistics compiled by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Compared to the previous year, the 1978-79 season was down slightly both in number of hunters and total kill. The past season's estimated figures were 272,076 deer killed by 517,692 hunters, compared to the 1977-78 totals of 287,232 deer taken by 524,895 hunters.

This represents an approximate five percent decrease in the harvest when the two years are compared, but what concerns department wildlife officials is the decline in the harvest since 1972-73 when an estimated 362,179 deer were harvested statewide.

Glenn Boydston, technical programs coordinator for the Wildlife Division, said the annual harvest shows some variations from year to year, but the six-year period viewed as a whole shows a steady decline.

"On a statewide basis," Boydston said, "we can see during the past six years that hunter numbers declined five percent, the antlered deer kill dropped 20 percent, antlerless kill dropped 30 percent and the total kill is down about 25 percent."

Not surprisingly, much of the decline in harvest has occurred in the two major white-tailed deer hunting areas of the state—the South Texas Plains and the Edwards Plateau.

Boydston said South Texas, which usually accounts for about 20 percent of the statewide harvest, has seen a 25 percent reduction in harvest of antlered deer in the past six years. The total kill has declined by 20 percent, and kills per hunter dropped by 15 to 20 percent during that period.

The situation in the Edwards Plateau, an area which usually accounts for about half the statewide harvest, is even less encouraging. Boydston estimated that during the same six-year period the Plateau antlered deer kill declined between 25 and 30 percent; the antlerless kill dropped 35 percent, and the total kill by 30 to 35 percent. Hunter numbers declined about 10 percent and hunter success dropped, also by an estimated 10 percent.

These figures were matched closely by the Post Oak Savannah region of East Texas, another important deer hunting area, during that six-year period.

The only major ecological region of Texas which showed a harvest increase in 1978-79 over 1977-78 was the East Texas Pineywoods, with an approximate 10 percent rise.

Boydston said there probably are a number of reasons for the six-year decline in harvest, and the department is continuing to study the situation.

"Texas' white-tailed deer population still is the highest of any state in the nation," Boydston noted, "and our hunter success rate percentage still is relatively high at about 45 percent, but nevertheless there are signs that deer hunting in Texas is facing some difficulties."

Australia's Great Barrier Reef is not a continuous single reef, but a collection of barrier reefs, coral cays and rock islands all interlaced with lagoons and fringing reefs that stretches some 1,250 miles off the coast of Queensland.

Clobbering Clay

Local trap shooting enthusiasts have begun turning out in increasing numbers at the Hereford Gun Club as spring weather brings on another season of breaking clays. Here, A.T. Griffin of Hereford is intent on his target during an informal round. Interested shooters are invited to participate in Gun Club activities on the second and fourth Sundays of each month. Shoots begin at 1 p.m. (Brand photo by Jim Steiert)

Improvement of shooting facilities at its local range is one of the goals currently being eyed by the Hereford Gun Club, according to Jim Clarke, president of the organization.

Clarke pointed out that the club is hoping to acquire a Remington automatic trap to update target throwing facilities, and expand shooter accommodation capacity.

Cost of the new equipment is expected to exceed $3,300 and the club is currently considering fund raising projects to help defray the expense.

"With the addition of a third trap house at our range, we would have the capacity to handle registered trap shoots, and our participation would increase substantially," Clarke indicated.

Currently, the club handles informal and competitive shoots with two trap houses, but a registered trap shoot has never been conducted here.

"We're looking for greater local use of the trap range, and some competitive aspects would help. Currently, we are considering some service club challenge shoots," he continued.

According to Clarke, one of the major obstacles to expanded local participation at the trap range is self-consciousness on the part of prospective shooters.

"I think people are concerned that everyone is going to laugh at them if they miss, but that's not so. Trap shooters are a helpful bunch, and are too busy trying to break targets to laugh at folks for missing them," he stated.

In an informal shoot held at the local range last weekend, 12 gunners participated in practice rounds, with a number of 24 x 25 rounds being fired.

The HGC's next shoot will be a practice session April 8 at 1 p.m.

A merchandise and trophy shoot is tentatively scheduled for Sunday, April 28.

Trap shooting will be conducted today at the Dimmitt Volunteer Fire Department's range at the Dimmitt Airport.

Shooting of practice rounds will begin shortly after noon.

TOWA TEXAS OUTDOOR WRITERS ASSOCIATION

Alaska is a long way from these parts, but a major legislative battle concerning the posting of millions of acres of wilderness in the 49th state could have a great impact on the future of sport hunting in this nation.

Presidential action last year closed 41 million acres, including some of the best hunting grounds in North America, to sport hunting, when Jimmy Carter invoked the Antiquities Act of 1906 after Congress balked over passing an Alaskan Land Act.

The whole Alaska issue, where national parks and wildlife areas are concerned, is as big as the Yukon itself, and as complex as the delicate tundra comprising much of that great state's wilderness. D-2 legislation, which this issue comes under the heading of, is designed to sort out the various Alaskan public lands into categories including wildlife refuges, wilderness, and national parks.

Any Alaskan lands designated as national parks are automatically closed to hunting.

In December, when the President invoked the Antiquities Act, 56 million acres of Alaskan public lands were established as national monuments under the National Park Service and U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service.

Alaskans themselves protest that this action closed the best hunting lands in Alaska, including 60 percent of the Dall sheep range, 20 percent of the moose hunting area, 40 percent of the bear hunting area and 30 percent of the caribou hunting area.

Under the wilderness provisions of D-2 legislation, there is no way to hunt even those lands allegedly open to hunting, due to restrictions on access.

Ownership and management of most game is normally left to the states, but under D-2 provisions, this would not be the case in Alaska.

Opposition to D-2 is growing more widespread among U.S. sportsmen. It is already notable among Alaska's residents.

Anti-hunting groups are aligning themselves with the closing of the Alaskan lands to sport hunting.

Recently, pro-hunting forces have begun to mobilize on the Alaskan lands issue after a period of shocked silence.

The House Interior Committee recently rejected an Alaska Lands bill offered by Rep. Morris Udall which would have limited forms of access into areas still left open to hunting.

A substitute measure by Rep. Jerry Huckaby of Louisiana was passed by the committee 22-21. This measure would reopen those portions of Alaska closed to sport hunting by the invoking of the Antiquities Act.

The bill is now up for consideration by the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, and due to its similarity to a bill approved last year by a Senate-House conference committee, it stands a good chance of passage this year.

The measure avoids an unworkable approach to wildlife and sport hunting, while extending protection to a major portion of Alaska.

Yes, Alaska is a long way from the Texas Panhandle, and few of us may ever have the chance to actually hunt there.

But it's nice to think of a rich hunting ground where we could still go for an opportunity to seek some of North America's most magnificent big game if we wanted to.

Regulated hunting is no threat to these animals, massive on a scale equal to their tundra home.

Some plant seeds — including peas, onions, spinach and lettuce — can be planted almost as soon as the soil is workable.

Fossils of creatures believed to be prehistoric ancestors of elephants, rhinoceroses, bears and various reptiles were found recently in a diamond-prospecting pit in South Africa's Namib desert.

Sport hunting is a universally recognized necessity of good game management.

Hunters have been led to believe that D-2 legislation is saving their sport for them in the 49th state. Perhaps it is the complexity of the matter, but they are wrong.

Whatever it is, sport hunters, no matter where they live in this country, cannot sit idle as hunting lands are closed forever. The precedent is bad... and closure of hunting lands won't stop with Alaska.

Those who care about the sport of hunting should be contacting their congressmen concerning the Alaska lands issue, and indicating their support for the Huckaby proposal... Alaska is the last frontier, and America's sport hunters have a right to a portion of it for themselves.

Anti-hunting pressure is growing more extreme on American sportsmen, and while the anti's have done most of the attacking up to now, a new national organization is being formed to assist sportsmen in the fight to preserve the right to hunt.

The Wildlife Legislative Fund of America has become operational, and will offer assistance to the sportsmen of each state to develop their own capability to "combat the anti movement in the legislatures, in the courts, in the media, and in the voting booths, to protect the heritage of American sportsmen to hunt, fish and trap... and to protect scientific wildlife management practices."

For more information on the WLFA, write the organization at 50 West Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio 43215.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Inflamed epididymis

DEAR DR. LAMB - What causes a man's scrotum to hang about two inches lower than normal and, at the same time, the right testicle is slightly swollen?

After a few days of bedrest this condition disappears and everything is back to normal. My doctor calls this epididymitis. What is it and why does it happen? I am 58 years old and in excellent health.
DEAR READER - The epididymis is the cordlike area that attaches to the side of the body of the testicle. The vas deferens, the tube that carries sperm cells up to the penis, is coiled in this area. There are also a large number of veins and arteries inside the epididymis. The ending, "itis" means inflammation. When the epididymis is inflamed, it is called epididymitis.
The epididymis and scrotal area is well below the level of the heart when you are sitting up or standing up. Blood runs downhill. That means that if there is a disorder such as an inflammation, the swelling will occur when you are sitting up.

To give you a better understanding of what causes swellings and what to do about them I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-6, Swelling: Causes and Management. Theft of Boats Problem

AUSTIN - Boats and related equipment are just as vulnerable to theft as automobiles, judging from statistics compiled by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

About 25 boat thefts are reported across the state each month, and probably many other incidents go unreported. From Sept. 1, 1977, to Aug. 31, 1978, more than 1,000 boat thefts were reported, and about 150 more have occurred since that time.

"Boat theft is a continuing and growing problem and help is needed from boaters and the general public to put a stop to it," said Larry Williford, water safety law enforcement supervisor for the department. "If you lose anything or see anything suspicious, please report it."

stolen. A thief can take almost anything, including trailers, motors, canvas, navigation equipment, boat furniture, TV, tape decks and radio sets, tools, binoculars, heavy weather clothes, life jackets, scuba gear, water skis and fishing tackle.

The modern-day thief uses bolt cutters and can completely empty a boat in a matter of minutes.

Batten down not just the hatches, but every means of entry to your boat. Dead-bolt locks should replace or supplement existing spring locks.

Inside hinges are best. If you must retain the outside type, make sure the pins are non-removable. Or replace hinge plate screws with lug-pins.

Attach strong hasps and padlocks on cockpit lockers, and use one-way bolts with lock nuts.

The thief can separate an entire outboard from a transom simply by loosening clamping screws. There are special clamping screw locks to forestall such losses.

A variety of alarm systems are adaptable to boat use, and may discourage a potential thief.

Marine engines are as susceptible to hotwiring or jump-starting as car motors. Remove the rotor from the distributor or install a hidden cutoff switch between the engine and ignition power. Do not leave keys aboard, even in a hiding place.

A thief might try to jump-start the outboard and take the whole boat. If the boat won't be in use for a long period of time, drain the motor, remove your fuel tanks and remove the spark plugs or propeller.

It is easy to steal a boat when it is out of the water, especially when it is on a trailer. Thieves can drive up, hitch it to their car and be away in minutes.

A boat on a trailer is easily stolen, so keep your boat and trailer in a garage, or behind your house out of sight. Chain the boat and trailer to something solid and remove or lock the motor.

If you dock your boat at a marina, remove all loose gear. Use hardened steel chain or cable for mooring or dock lines, instead of rope.

Eagle Depredation Will be Addressed

AUSTIN - West Texas ranchers with golden eagle depredation problems have been asked to contact the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for help.

The FWS notified the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department they are developing a plan to manage the eagles in Texas and New Mexico, "balancing concerns for livestock losses with laws protecting eagles."

The plan will involve research on the population status of golden eagles in the West and identification of livestock losses. Once the problem birds are identified, FWS personnel will attempt to live-trap the eagles and relocate them away from sheep and goat areas, the federal agency said.

A team of federal biologists has been selected to work in the field with ranchers and eagle researchers.

Ranchers with depredation problems may contact the following: Vernon Cunningham, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 10304 Candelaria NE, Albuquerque, NM 87112, (505) 766-3474; or Milton Caroline, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, P.O. Box 9037, Guilbeau Station, San Antonio, TX 78204, (512) 229-5535.

BRIDGE

PARKER, Ariz. (AP) - A 41-year-old bridge over the Colorado River here will be rededicated to a woman who was a prime mover in having it built, says the Arizona Department of Transportation.

The woman, Clara Osborne Botzum, now 84, is a miner and former state representative. In the early 1930s, when she was executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, she fought to get the bridge, writing letters, giving talks and forming the statewide Parker Bridge Association.

The bridge ended reliance on a river ferry and helped bring growth and prosperity to a large area in both Arizona and California.

TEXAS PARKS AND WILDLIFE DEPT.

WIND & COLD WATER CLAIM PANHANDLE FOUR

FRITCH - Personnel of the National Park Service and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department are continuing their search of the water and shores of Lake Meredith for three persons still missing from a late-February boating mishap.

On Monday, Feb. 26, two Dumas couples launched their boat on Meredith for a day of fishing according to reports.

When the four Panhandle residents failed to return home, the search began as Texas Game Warden Stanley Brooks, Dumas, Ewel McCrary, Amarillo and District Supervisor Calvin Tow, Amarillo, found their capsized boat the next day.

One of the women was found dead on shore along with two personal flotation devices (life vests) and boat cushions. The victim was not wearing a life vest.

The winds were estimated to be blowing between 30-40 m.p.h. on the day of the mishap and the water temperature was 40 degrees at five feet.

Although the P&WD has qualified divers stationed in the Texas Panhandle, their equipment is not designed to withstand the extreme cold temperatures found in Lake Meredith in February.

The National Park Service, which operates Lake Meredith, brought in divers and proper equipment from Oklahoma.

New Mexico and other points in Texas to search for the three remaining missing boaters.

There is still no trace of the three suspected drowning victims at Lake Meredith.

The P&WD would like to remind all boaters, anglers or anyone using the waters of Texas to use good common sense when contemplating a trip when the winds are blowing or the water temperature is still cold.

It is better to cancel an outdoor trip than take a chance on capsizing or falling overboard into water where you have only several minutes to either get to shore or back into or on the boat before your body becomes so cold, it will not function.

Tell someone at the lake where you are going and when they can expect you and your party back.

Wear PFD's at all times, even when the boat is not moving or anchored when winds and cold water are present.

As the Texas lakes warm, more boaters and fishermen will head for the water for an early chance at a walleye or crappie and the P&WD hopes all boaters will take their common sense along, too.

WALLEYE STARTING TO RUN
FRITCH - P&WD fishery personnel are beginning their annual walleye egg procurement in Texas and some real whoppers are being recorded at Lake Meredith in the Texas Panhandle.

Although the water is still very cold, big walleye in the 8-to-10 pound class are being netted by the department crews.

The walleye are being caught by the really dedicated fishermen willing to face the strong winds and cold water on Lake Meredith on jigs, spinners, and live bait.

The walleye spawning run should increase by leaps and bounds within the next two or three weeks as the fish move onto the spawning grounds near the rocky points and along the Sanford dam.

The biologists are also quite excited about two 30-pound flathead catfish picked up in the walleye nets last week. When catfish begin to move, spring fishing weather cannot be far away.

PAY RAISES

DETROIT (AP) - In Manfred McNeil's company, whenever any employee wants a pay raise, his fellow workers vote on whether he deserves it.

McNeil, president of a company which makes pipe fittings, said that before he instituted the ballot-box raises five years ago, his company had never shown a profit. Since the change, every year has been profitable.

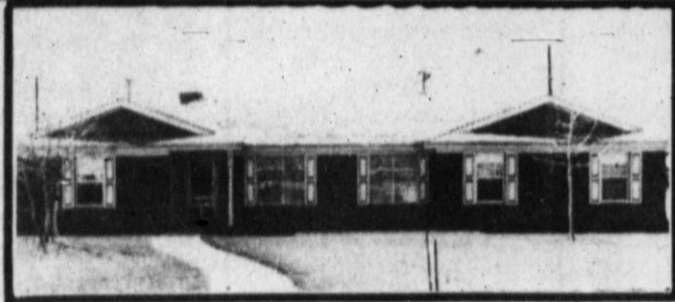

"Ballot-box raises weren't the whole reason, but they were part of it," he said.

"Better than 90 percent of the raises are voted in," McNeil continued. "Management reserves the right to veto any raise, but in those five years, we've never had to exercise that right."

McNeil has 95 employees in two plants.

DEAR POLLY—A potholder makes an attractive, colorful case for oversize eyeglasses. Simply buy one of an appropriate size, fold over and sew. It even has its own loop for hanging, and can easily be laundered.—MRS. T. J.

DEAR POLLY—When using a percolator, a thimble placed over the end of the percolator tube while filling the basket with coffee prevents grounds from getting in the water.—MRS. E. M. V.

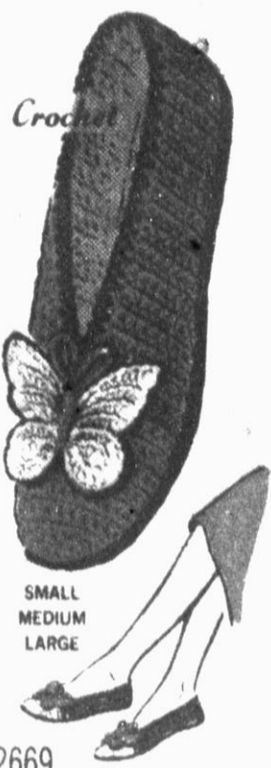

DEAR POLLY—After washing ashtrays, give them a coat of any good spray wax and let dry thoroughly before using. Ashes will then wipe out easily, and you won't have to wash the trays so often.—EDITH.

DEAR POLLY—While on vacation, a ballpoint leaked all over my hands. Not having things available I would have had at home, I used toothpaste to remove the ink. It worked well.—MURIEL.

DEAR POLLY—I've found a good use for fabric softener sheets after they have been used in the dryer. I use one to remove the lint from the dryer screen. The sheet holds the lint so it does not fly all over.—R. A. B.

DEAR POLLY—A quick, easy way to dry the kids after their baths and to make it fun, too, is to use a beach towel rather than a standard bath towel. You can dry them all over, and they like to wrap up in such towels on cold nights.—MARILYN.

DEAR POLLY—Plumbers tell us not to pour grease down the drains, so I crumple newspapers and stuff them into coffee or lard cans or even milk cartons, and pour the grease, cooled (especially if using milk cartons), over the paper. Once solidified in the containers, there's no longer a grease-in-the-garbage-can problem.—THERESA.
