

House Favors Ogallala Import Authority

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Arkansas water could travel through canals across Oklahoma to the Texas High Plains under authority of a new taxing body tentatively approved Monday by the House.

Representatives approved the Ogallala Water Import Authority on voice vote. A final vote is needed to send the 45-page measure to the Senate.

Land covering the Ogallala aquifer would be included in the authority's jurisdiction, except Crosby, Dickens and Garza counties. The underground reservoir stretches under more than 40 counties, from Midland north to the Panhandle border with Oklahoma.

Supporters say the water authority is needed because the vast agriculture lands of the High Plains will face a critical water shortage within the next 10 to 20 years.

Arkansas has more than enough water to meet needs in the Panhandle, proponents add. The bill does not specify where the water would come from.

If approved by High Plains voters, the district would have authority to tax property and sell bonds.

Opponents have claimed large-scale water importation would be a financial disaster because the district could not raise enough money through taxes to support it.

House members voted to limit the body's power to expropriate private land to areas within its district, instead of the entire state.

Rep. Pete Patterson, D-Brookston, said people in his Northeast Texas district should not be subject to broad powers of a West Texas water authority.

"This will make them come back to the Legislature before they dig a ditch in our district," said Rep. Bill Sullivan, D-Gainesville.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Bob Simpson, D-Amarillo, at first resisted attempts to limit the district's eminent domain to the High Plains area but later relented.

Patterson also won approval of an amendment that would require the water authority to pay local property taxes on all land leased or owned outside its jurisdiction. He and others from outside West Texas said local tax bases would suffer unless that stipulation was included.

Speaker Bill Clayton of Spring Lake, most of whose seven-county district would be within the authority's jurisdiction, cast the tie-breaker in a 64-63 vote on one unsuccessful amendment to exempt Ector County and Odessa.

Simpson persuaded colleagues to accept an amendment allowing state loans, but prohibiting grants, to the water district.

Hance: Crisis Is Real

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Freshman Congressman Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, told approximately 200 Hereford constituents Saturday that the gasoline shortage is "worse than you think" and said he favored all-out production in the United States to alleviate the crisis.

Hance, serving his first term as 19th District representative, spoke at the Community Center in his last West Texas stop for a "town hall" meeting. Hance now has conducted the meetings—a campaign promise he made last year—in each county of the 19th District.

"I assure you there is a shortage, and the oil shortage is the most inflationary thing that has happened to us," Hance said.

"We use 19 million barrels of crude oil a day. The No. 2 country in the world is Japan, and they do not use 2 million barrels. We're paying anywhere from $15.50 to $23.50 a barrel to OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting

Ag Committee Schedules Vote On Target Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) - A bill that would boost government target prices by 7 percent for this year's crops of wheat and feed grains is coming up for an important vote in the House Agriculture Committee.

The measure, introduced by Rep. Glenn English, D-Okl., is opposed by the administration. It was approved recently by the livestock and grains subcommittee and was scheduled for full committee action today.

Under the bill, the current 1979 target price for wheat of $3.40 a bushel would be raised to $3.63 a bushel. The corn target, $2.20 would rise to $2.35 a bushel, increases equal to President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines for other businesses.

Target prices are bookkeeping levels used to compute federal payments to farmers when market prices are below the targets.

Saudi Arabian: Use Less Gas Or Face Still Higher Prices

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press Writer

As gasoline dealers worried that supplies might not last to the end of the month and waiting lists for compact cars grew longer, a Saudi Arabian leader offered advice to gas-guzzling Americans: "reduce consumption or face still higher prices."

The advice came as California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. prepared to sign an order forcing more stations to stay open on weekends and members of Congress prepared to take up President Carter's challenge that they come up with a stand-by national gas rationing plan.

It was delivered as a government report on the rising popularity of small cars suggested Americans are turning to fuel-saving vehicles as a result of the rising price of scarce gasoline.

The advice came from Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, who said his country will oppose another price increase next month at a meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries but warned "Saudi Arabia alone cannot do much."

Moreover, he said Saudi Arabia, this nation's principal source of foreign oil, will not expand its current levels of production.

"Since supply cannot and should not go up, it is consumption which will make all the difference," said Yamani. "It is your duty as a consumer to reduce the consumption to the lowest possible level. If you do this, then not only the price of oil will not go up, but it might even go down a little."

Brown, who is to meet with Carter in Washington on Wednesday, said he would sign today an order requiring more stations in California to stay open weekends. The order would limit the amount sold to 10 gallons per customer, half the weekday rate.

In the meantime, a Transportation Department survey said Monday that there are waiting lists and higher prices for small cars, which saw a 39 percent sales increase in the first quarter of 1979 compared to the same period last year.

HUD Rejects Sewage Grant

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

The federal Department of Housing and Urban Development has rejected a $93,000 grant for sewage lines in the San Jose labor camp. Deaf Smith County judge Glen Nelson told the commissioners' court Monday.

The rejection was a blow to camp residents, who received $320,000 in HUD money for the construction of a clean-water system and had hoped the sewage system would further alleviate unsanitary conditions at San Jose.

Hereford city commissioners recently approved the connection of the camp sewage system to the city's treatment facility. HUD had told Deaf Smith County and Panhandle Regional Planning Commission (PRPC) officials that the only way the grant would be approved was if an existing plant would treat effluent from the camp.

"This is quite a disappointment because we had negotiated so hard with the city to use the treatment plant," Nelson said.

Deaf Smith County Commissioners had filed for the grant on behalf of the San Jose water district by submitting a pre-application through PRPC. Representtatives of PRPC had expressed optimism concerning approval of the grant since city commissioners voted to allow the use of the treatment facility.

Nelson told commissioners Monday that the county should file another pre-application, this time seeking an "imminent-threat" grant which pertains to emergency health and safety situations.

"I don't know if we have any choice but to do it all over again," the judge said.

County Clerk B.F. Cain swore in J.F. Martin as commissioner of Precinct 1. Martin, who was chosen last week from a list of eight candidates, replaced Alfred Smith, who died of a heart attack last month.

Commissioners Monday accepted the resignation of county welfare administrator Jewel Smith, who wrote a letter to the court stating she was retiring, effective May 31. Mrs. Smith has served in that capacity for the last 26 years.

The commission agreed to allow the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation to examine bridges in Deaf Smith County for inventory, inspection and appraisal purposes.

Commissioners asked District Atty.

Senate Votes To Add To Clements, Powers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Senate has refused to give Gov. Bill Clements the extra budget control he wants, but it voted to give him more power within his office and over his own state appointees.

It also voted Monday to set up a special state fund to pay for the governor's inaugural now paid for by private donors.

Twice now, the Senate has refused to debate Sen. O.H. Harris' proposal that would authorize the governor to reduce appropriations and to veto special provisions known as "riders."

Currently, the governor must approve or veto money appropriated for a program. He cannot reduce funding to a level he likes.

On April 23 when Harris first tried to bring up the measure, the vote was 18-13. He needed 21 votes for two-thirds.

Monday, he again asked his colleagues to consider the proposed constitutional amendment, stating he had removed the proposed authority to reduce line-item appropriations.

All that remained, said Harris, R-Dallas, would be the governor's power to veto riders and general language directing the governor, or a committee appointed by the governor, to "exercise fiscal control" over funds appropriated by the Legislature.

The measure also would make it easier for the Legislature to override a gubernatorial veto.

The vote to suspend Senate rules and debate the proposal was 17-10, so Harris again was three votes shy of two-thirds.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, objected to a bill to implement Harris' proposed constitutional amendment because he said it "would give the governor complete and total control after we legislators are away from here - it's a dangerous precedent."

The Senate tentatively approved a bill that would allow the governor to transfer "any program of an agency or office under his control to any agency in the executive department that he considers qualified to administer the program..."

The purpose of the transfer, the bill states, is greater efficiency and effectiveness.

HISD Official Promenades When Off-Duty

By MARC HERRING
Brand Staff Writer

"After working all day and worrying about this and that it's a relief and pure enjoyment to get involved in something that takes my mind off of work and is good exercise to boot," are the words of Ed McCreary, director of federal programs for the Hereford Independent School District in reference to his hobby of square dancing.

McCreary, an employee of the HISD for six years, took up the dancing as a way to meet people in Tulia 13 years ago.

"My wife and I had just moved to Tulia and I was working for a firm out of Amarillo, so we didn't know many people, so when my wife saw that there were dance lessons being offered, we decided, much to my dismay to try it out," McCreary said.

"Now I probably enjoy it more than she does."

After moving to Hereford, the McCrearys had met several people from town through going to different dances, so the move was not as hard to make. Once here, the duo got involved with the Merry Mixers, the Hereford square dance group, as well as the Merry Go Rounds, another dance group, with the emphasis on round dancing.

"We average at least three nights a week on the dance floor, what with square dancing, round dancing and any weekend event that we may go to," McCreary said. "Most of the dances last about 2-3 hours, so it's a pretty good workout, depending on the caller."

The caller is an important part of the dance setup, as he sets the tempo and provides the music. The caller, with his portable sound system has replaced the live band, which has been a rarity since right after World War II.

"I've danced to a live band but I'm one of the few in the Hereford group that has. It's a whole lot harder to have a good set of tips with a live band, because the caller loses some of his control in setting the tempo or order of music."

Tips are the division of each dance in a night of dancing, with a night usually consisting of around 10 tips of 6-7 minutes each. And at most dances, the tips are interspersed with sets of round dancing.

Round dancing is defined as a dance that has a group of dancers in a circle

GAO Says Species

Protection Mismanaged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's costly effort to save endangered species from extinction is so poorly managed by the Interior Department that it threatens some of the very critters needing protection, the General Accounting Office says.

In a draft of a report scheduled for release in June, the GAO said in some cases officials deliberately kept species off the endangered list to avoid another Tellico Dam-type controversy.

GAO investigators charged that officials decided against listing species of the cave harvestmen daddy longlegs as endangered because to do so might halt work on the New Melones Lake project, a $375 million facility in California.

The Environmental Defense Fund requested such a classification, saying completion of the project could result in the extinction of one species of the spider-like creature.

But the GAO report quoted the program manager as saying listing the cave harvestmen as endangered would "create another Tellico incident" where seemingly insignificant species would stop construction of a nearly completed dam.

House Freshmen

Capitalized on PACs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The freshman class in the House of Representatives came in on a wave of $3.3 million in special interest money, Common Cause said Monday.

A study of campaign finance reports from the 1978 House elections showed new members averaged almost $43,000 each in contributions from political action committees PACs maintained by interest groups, Common Cause said.

This was almost as much as the $45,000 average reported for the powerful committee chairmen.

"Our study shows that newcomers to the House are becoming heavily indebted to interest group PACs, even before they are sworn into office," said Fred Wertheimer, senior vice president of Common Cause.

The PACs are funds maintained by interest groups ranging from big business, to big labor to environmentalists and similar causes. They collect voluntary donations from members, employees or supporters and then give to political candidates. They may give up to $15,000 to any one candidate.

Clements Advocates

Owners To Not Strike

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says his chief energy advisor is working to convince Texas service station owners to stay out of a planned national strike.

"Mr. Edward Vetter is meeting with the group of retailers, the filling station operators, and is telling them in no uncertain terms that it would not be in their best interest to do this," Clements said Monday.

The governor talked to reporters following a proclamation-signing session. National gas station association officials have called for a strike this weekend, but Texas dealers so far say they will not participate.

Vetter also is in charge of developing a state gasoline contingency plan to move supplies of gasoline to areas hit by spot shortages in the future.

Jon Ford, Clements' press secretary, said Vetter is meeting with gas distributors on an "early warning system."

Ford said the warning system would enable state officials to learn early of planned supply cutbacks from distributors to retailers.

Compact Autos

Become Popular

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new mini-sized cars are rapidly staking out a major share of the automobile market as gasoline lines and high fuel prices spur motorists to think small, according to a Department of Transportation report.

Sales of domestically produced subcompacts increased by a whopping 72.5 percent from January through April over the same period of 1978, the figures released Monday showed.

"Chevette sales are nearly double their sales of a year ago when it is already the best selling subcompact in history," the report said. "Omni and Horizon sales have also approximately doubled over the last year."

Domestic subcompacts were third in overall sales with 17.6 percent of the market, compared to 10.2 for the first four months of 1978. Imported cars ranked second with 20.9 percent, compared to 18.6 percent from January to April of 1978.

Composite small car sales so far this year - including imports and domestic subcompacts - accounted for 38.5 percent of the market. That represents a 39 percent gain over the first four months of 1978.

Welding Shop Reports Losses

Pablo Murrillo, owner of O.K. Welding, 1st and Funston, told police he was driving by his shop around 8:30 p.m. Monday when he saw two persons by the side of the building.

They fled in a car parked in the back when Murrillo pulled up to the building, police said. He then notified police when he reportedly found a missing window and discovered that $1,000 worth of tools had been taken.

Police recovered the tools near the building and later arrested 22-year-old Elizabeth Madrigal, 1105 Grand, and Bobby Laurez, of Hereford. Police said they did not know the age or address of Laurez.

Two more persons were being sought today by police in connection with the burglary. Police are investigating the possible theft of $1,200 from Allsup's No. 111, E. Park Ave. Police said the missing money was noticed in bank deposits Monday.

Police Monday investigated a triggered burglar alarm at Family Medical Clinic, W. Park Ave., a car blocking a driveway in the 700 block of E. 3rd and strange noises behind Dickie's Restaurant.

Police issued the following traffic citations Monday: four speeding, one no motorcycle license, one failure to stay in a single lane, one disobeyed signal when red, two no driver's license, two expired registration stickers, one failure to report accident, one run stop sign, one parking within 30 feet of intersection, one no license plates.

Formby Named as Tech's Man of Year

LUBBOCK — The staff of Texas Tech University's yearbook, "La Ventana," announced Friday that Regent Clint Formby of Hereford had been named its "Man of the Year" for 1979. His picture will be on the cover of the "Texas Business Magazine" section of the yearbook.

Formby was presented the original art work of the cover at a meeting of the Texas Tech Board of Regents in regular session Friday (May 11). Presentation of the framed art work was made by co-editors Beverly Jones of Dallas and Elizabeth Edwin of El Paso.

Formby is the 21st person to receive the coveted honor bestowed by "La Ventana" and the first regent and non-member of the university faculty or staff to receive the recognition. Campus student organizations nominate men or women for the distinction, and the honoree is selected by the yearbook staff of approximately 20 persons.

Selection is based on "outstanding contributions to Texas Tech and its students" and the honor is bestowed on a "person who has had unusually good relations with students." Formby was nominated by the Mass Communications Student Advisory Committee.

The 1979 yearbook will be distributed in August. Editor Jones said.

Serving his second six-year term as a regent, Formby is a past board chairman. He is a 1949 graduate of the university with a major in government and minor in speech-journalism.

He is partner and managing director of radio stations KPAN-AM and FM, Hereford; KLVT, Levelland; KTEM-AM and KPLE-FM, Temple; and KTBW, Tyler.

He is a member of the board of directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, National Associated Press and National Broadcast Education Association.

Formby is past chairman of the radio board of directors of the National Association of Broadcasters and past member of the Texas Association of Broadcasters and past member of the National Association of Broadcasters' radio advertising code board.

For four years he was on the board of the National Association of Broadcasters. He was named "Texas Communicator of the Year" by the Texas Baptist General Convention in 1977.

He is a member of the board of directors of Citizens National Bank, Crosbyton, and First State Bank, Petyersburg.

WALCOTT — Walcott Independent School District trustees Monday night set the evaluation level for assessment of taxes at 100 percent of market value after a discussion on changes to be prompted by implementation of the Tax Relief Amendment. The evaluation level was 48 percent of market level, which means that the Walcott board will lower the tax rate from 95 cents in the future to compensate for the higher evaluation level.

In other business, the board accepted the resignation of teacher Rene May and extended each doing the same step in time to the music.

"We've become involved in round dancing quite a bit, but its hard to find the two since the premise is different on the lead," McCreary said.

The steps, or movements of square dancing are quite numerous, with the good dancer using around 120 different movements in a night. The beginner will use about 60 movements and the average dancer will go with about 90 to 100 different steps.

McCreary said that the music ranges from blue-grass or "ho-down" music and modern country and western. The selection of music is decided by the caller.

Through dancing, the McCreary's have met people from all over the world, as the form of dancing is not limited to the United States.

Hance

Countries. "This has destroyed our balance of trade. We've got to have all-out production here in the United States."

Hance said President Carter was right about decontrol but wrong about windfall profits taxes on oil company profits.

"In this country, 80 percent of the oil found is found by wildcaters, and they can't pass it on to anybody, like Exxon can. We don't need a windfall profits tax. We need all-out production. And by having it, it keeps your money here in the United States," the congressman said.

Hance said he voted for the defuncted standby gasoline rationing plan because "it is going to be bad in August." He said a Middle East oil cutoff of 20-50 percent without a standby plan would result in "complete chaos."

Hance, on inflation, said Congress must balance the federal budget, bring regulatory agencies "under control" and alleviate the energy crisis. He said he opposed a constitutional convention to balance the budget.

"You can completely change the form of government overnight through a constitutional convention. You cannot control it. It would rather balance the budget through statutory language or a constitutional amendment. I think we can have a balanced budget in the next two years," he said.

Hance told the Hereford constituents he is against providing revenue-sharing funds to cities and counties, calling federal allocations "nothing more than an effort to get cities and counties hooked so they'll go along with the federal government on everything."

Hance, a member of the House

Agricultural Committee, said he introduced legislation to provide 80 percent of parity to farmers, "but we can't get it out of subcommittee."

He did leave farmers attending Saturday's meeting with an optimistic note, though. "I think things are going to turn around in agriculture, and I think you'll see some improvements."

Those improvements, he said, "will take time." He blamed the fact that there are 435 representatives as the reason for the defeat of high-parity legislation.

"In the Senate, you can pass a farm bill, simply because every Senator has some farmers in his district. In the House, it's like sitting on a school board with 434 other members trying to hire a football coach," Hance said.

"Next year being an election year, you might have a better chance."

The court approved the rewording of a subdivision west of Hereford. The subdivision already had been approved by the commission.

In additional business during the otherwise routine meeting Monday, commissioners:

—appointed Martin to the Panhandle Community Action board of directors replace Smith.

—gave initial notice that June 11 has been set as the annual public hearing on the county budget.

—examined the monthly Hereford Volunteer Fire Department report, which showed nine county and 11 city calls during April.

—renewed county right-of-way certificates of deposit.

—approved the bonding of Deaf Smith County Fresh Water Supply District No. 1

(San Jose) officials.

—voted to advertise for bids on the removal of the Black property's English house, which Commissioner Austin Rose called an "eyesore and firetrap."

—resolved to continue, the county's participation in the crime-fighting Potter-Randall County Metro Intelligence Unit.

—agreed to allow Pioneer Natural Gas Co. to relocate a gas line in Precinct No. 1.

a little differently," said the sponsor, Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin.

Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg, said he feared the governor "might want to abolish an agency just because it's not popular with him."

Brooks amended the bill to exclude the Texas Department of Labor and Standards, which oversees labor and safety programs, mobile homes, boxing and wrestling and auctioneers.

Traeger also exempted the Governor's Commission on Physical Fitness - one of 24 agencies under the governor's control - from provisions of the bill.

Agencies still on the list include the adjutant general, secretary of state, Texas Department of Community Affairs, Natural Resources Council, Office of Migrant Affairs, Governor's Committee on Aging, Texas Film Commission and Traeger's bill received voice approval, but the Senate vote to bring it up for final passage was 18-9, four short.

The Senate approved a proposed constitutional amendment that would allow the governor to remove from his own appointees from state office.

The proposal by Republican Sens. Walter Mengden of Houston and Betty Andujar of Fort Worth was sent to the House on a 23-1 vote.

To remove an appointee, the governor would need approval of two-thirds of the senators present, the same vote required now to confirm appointments.

If the governor wanted to remove an appointee and the Legislature was not in session, he could call a special session for no longer than two days to remove the appointee.

If the House approves the proposal, it 1980.

Senators agreed to accept House changes to a constitutional amendment that would allow churches and charitable organizations to run bingo games. The measure will be submitted to voters in November 1980.

The Senate approved and sent to the House bills that would:

—Require local school districts to return to the semester calendar system by 1980-81.

—Establish a state fund to pay for gubernatorial inaugurations.

—Give employees time off to attend state political conventions.

—Allow utilities to charge interim rates prior to a final state order.

—Provide fines of up to $200 for selling "sniffing" glue to anyone under 17 years

REC Gives Van To Girlstown USA

Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative, serving the four-county area of Oldham, Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer, recently presented a van to Girlstown.

Board of Directors President, Sloan Osborn, presented the title of the vehicle to Marshall Cooper, Administrator of Girlstown, at a brief ceremony in Friona. Girlstown, located approximately nine miles south of Whiteface, is the home of 66 girls at the present time and 88 percent funded by contributions. Cooper stated that the van would be used to pick up clothes, furniture and food donated to the girls.

"We believe in the good the organization is doing and we, along with other residents of the area, like to support Girlstown in their efforts," Osborn said.

Bains Signs supplied the artwork on the side of this, the third vehicle the REC has donated to Girlstown. The other two had been pickups. Girlstown had expressed their need for another vehicle, and the Board of Directors of Deaf Smith REC decided to make the donation of the van. "It will be somewhat more versatile than a pickup, and will still do whatever a pickup could."

Osborn stated. Also attending the presentation were REC Board Members, A.W. Anthony Jr., of Friona, and Eldred Brown from the Bootleg area.

New Officers Placed In Service by Club

Members of Calliopean Study Club assembled Thursday evening for their annual spring social and the installation of officers in the home of Wilma Nobles, 111 Sunset.

After the meal, president Jane Gulley called the business meeting to order and conducted the installation of new officers. Nancy Stewart was installed in absentia as president for the 1979-80 club year. Other new officers are Marye Fraser, vice president; Virginia Holmes, recording secretary; Amy Gilliland, corresponding secretary; Lee Alston, treasurer; and Mrs. Gulley, parliamentarian.

In other business, Vera

Threewit was welcomed as the club's newest member. Edna Binkley of Winston Salem, N.C., was introduced as a guest. She is the mother of a club member, Leona Carruth.

Assisting Mrs. Nobles with hostess duties Thursday night were Lee Cave, Audine Dettman, Nancy Hays, Lee Alston, Kathlee Palmer, Faye Holt and Zella Mae Crump.

Others present were Irene Conaway, Peggy Furr, Sue James, Claudia McBraver, Elizabeth McDowell, Kay McWhorter and Meredith Wilcox.

The club adjourned for the summer months and will not convene again until Sept. 13.

Music Club Finishes 1978-79 Club Year

The Dawn Music Club completed their club year with a noon luncheon last week at Dawn Community Center.

Mrs. Ray Stewart presided over the business meeting and roll call was answered with a favorite opera character. The by-laws were changed to conform to new rulings in the Texas Federation of Music Club by-laws.

Mrs. R.F. Curtisinger was appointed by the president to be the director of a "Fun Band" the club hopes to develop next year. The members voted to have a special variety program in 1979-80 for their annual fund raising event.

The program centered around German opera, with Mrs. J.V. McCabe giving a report on opera in Germany from the study book "The World of Opera" by Brockway and Weinstein, saying in part "Strivings after a National Opera in Germany were frustrated by the stranglehold of the Italian Opera, some of whose best composers were Germans, one of which was Van Flotow. For a while, melodrama flourished in Germany. A number of great composers wrote operas—Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven—but since Beethoven's time the voice has never regained its sovereignty outside of Italy."

Musical numbers on the program included "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin by Wagner, a piano selection by Mrs. Ronnie Johnson, "Lullaby" Brahms sung by Mrs. Bill Caraway with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Ray Stewart, "Ave Maria" by Schubert, sung by Mrs. Reece Stewart with accompaniment by Mrs. Carl Wimberley, the piano duets "Melody of Love" Engelmann and "Serenade" Ramberg performed by Mrs. Wimberley and Mrs. Ray Stewart.

Others present were Mrs. Walter Lemons, J.B. Caraway, Melissa and Aaron Caraway.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

The next Civil War in this country will be between roller skaters, bicyclists and joggers.

The problem is there isn't enough room for the three of them on the same bike paths. As the summer approaches, they're forming less than a perfect union.

Roller skaters say that bikers ride side by side and fill up all the paths. The joggers say the roller skaters line up in packs of six or seven and run them off the road, and the bikers say the joggers think they own the road.

Before it reaches violent proportions, I think we should all sit down and work something out before the leasers become militant.

The solution seems relatively simple. The bicyclists could use the bike paths on the odd days and the odd joggers on the even days with the exception of full days on Wednesdays when the skaters could hold forth.

The mornings, however, would have to be set aside for the skateboarders and the late evenings for the trail bikers except on windy days.

On windy days the paths would play host to the kite fliers. This schedule will apply in all areas with the exception of the bike paths routed around water. In this case, weekends would be reserved for the boat and canoe people who would have to use the facilities as a portage to put their boats in and out of the water.

This would also apply to snorkelers, water skiers and fishermen who are casting from the banks.

Thursday mornings of alternating weeks would, of course, be set aside for hula hoopers and baton twirlers, as anyone could see the logic of not having them on the same day.

In the event the bike path is adjacent to a golf course, right-of-way would have to go to the golf carts en route to the greens.

This is the basic summer schedule and would of course change during the winter months with cross-country skiers, ice skaters (on the bike paths near the pond) and snowmobiles (those near golf courses).

There, now, I think we've taken care of everyone who snafus the out-of-doors for leisure with the exception of the walking, with biting dogs. When can they use the bike paths? Do you want to tell 'em?

4-H Firsthand

4-H-A People Development Program

How can anyone influence the development of people to make them responsible, self-respecting members of our democratic society?

The 4-H program can provide valuable learning experiences through family, church and community involvement.

Most of the things we want young people to become are a part of the 4-H program. The whole idea of 4-H is development of young people. Since 4-H is family oriented and co-educational, it is truly people.

4-H starts in one of our first "groups"—the family group which influences us so much. The 4-H program goes down to the "grass roots" because the people in it—from Extension people to local leaders and even the young people themselves—actually help decide programs and activities. So, besides involving the family group, 4-H also closely involves the community group.

Anyone who works with young people can tell you that most of them want and need to belong, to be recognized, to be respected for what they are, to develop a sense of responsibility and a sense of freedom which disciplines, and to have a good feeling of doing something meaningful by themselves. The 4-H program, a people development program, can provide these things.

The National Statuary Hall in the U.S. Capitol occupies the original quarters of the House of Representatives. It was created in 1864 and each state was invited to contribute not more than two statues of distinguished persons. In 1933 the number was limited to one statue from each state. To date a total of 91 statues has been contributed by the 50 states.

Ann Landers

"Pon Manufacturing"

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the woman who split her slacks at a party and blamed it on "sloppy workmanship" points up a common misconception—blaming poorly-made products on the workers.

If a garment for any other manufactured article is shoddy, it's because the manufacturer planned it that way. They use cheap material and production shortcuts to keep the price down and/or the profits up. Inspectors in all factories follow orders and work within the precise guidelines of their employers.

So please place the blame where it belongs, Ann—on the greedy owners of such firms, be they manufacturers of slacks, shoes, automobiles, ranch houses, monkey wrenches, or what have you.—Mad As Hell And Not Going To Take It Anymore

DEAR MAD: Your point is well taken. "Planned obsolescence" is indeed a fact of life and we've all seen proof of it. But so is shoddy workmanship and goofing off, as well as flagrant disregard for equipment and material.

Dedication to the job and pride in doing one's absolute best ain't what it used to be.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am in no way trying to sound off about my parents because I know that they love me very much.

I have some good advice for anybody out there who is willing to listen. This is going to sound a little strange, but I am dead serious when I say people over 40 should think twice before they have children.

Every parent knows how difficult generation gaps can be, especially when the kids are in their teen years. So, think how a 14-year-old feels when her 54-year-old parents are TWO generations older.

I don't go around telling people about all the insane rules I have to put up with, but life around here is not easy. And please, Ann, don't tell me my parents grew up in an entirely different world. I know all that. I also realize it's that my Mom and Dad are as old as some of my friends' grandparents.

This letter probably won't help me any, but it might give some older parents something to think about.—Newport Victim

DEAR VICTIM: Sorry you weren't more specific about your beefs. If you consider your parents old-fashioned because they want to know where their 14-year-old is at all times, who she's running around with, and insist that she be home at a certain time, you get no support from me. Buttercup, if, on the other hand, they won't permit you to have boys over to the house or go to school dances—that's another story.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have an only child—a daughter, so I'm sure you will understand. Please tell me if you think it is "sick" for a married woman (age 29) to telephone her mother five or six times a day if she feels like it. My husband says I'm a little nuts but actually he gets mad when he tries to call me from the office and the line is busy. What do you say?—Stockton, Cal.

DEAR STOCK: It may not be "sick," but it certainly is excessive. Jot down on a piece of paper the things you want to say after the second call and save them for the next day. Then phone someone else—like maybe your mother-in-law.

King, Alexander Win Honors

CANYON - Eight West Texas State University students swept the top honors at the recent Epsilon Delta Pi Programming Contest on the WTSU campus. Among the winners were two Hereford youths, Chris King and Rowan Alexander.

Thirty-one teams consisting of one to two people from WTSU, Texas A&I University, Amarillo College, and Pan American University competed in the two day meet.

This second annual competition was sponsored by Epsilon Delta Pi, national honorary computer science association, which is dedicated to furthering an interest in computing.

The teams could enter in five different categories. Their task was to take the assigned problem, write a program to solve it, implement the program and get it running on the computer, according to Sandra McCallion, computer association member.

They were given two hours to complete the project. Whoever was able to get the program running first, or who came closest in that period, won the competition in that category.

Top honors in the Advanced Basic competition went to team members Mike Taylor, WTSU freshman from Andrews, and Jim Bass, WTSU sophomore from Dimmitt. Second were team members Joe Austin and Richard Kilgore, both WTSU seniors from Amarillo; and third was John Franknecht, WTSU freshman from Houston.

In the Fortran competition, first place went to the WTSU team of Jim Bass and Mike Taylor, second at the Texas A&I team of Ed Garcia and John Peacock and third to Pan American University's team members Steve Ametri and Steve Grim.

The WTSU team of Barbara McLeod and Lee Thrasher, both Canyon seniors, won first place in the COBOL competition, followed in second place by WTSU team members Joe Austin and Richard Kilgore, and in third by Pan American team Steve Ametri and Steve Grim.

The PASCAL event put Susan Riles, WTSU senior from Borger, in first; Jim Riles, WTSU senior from Borger, in second; and WTSU team members Ron Acker, Canyon sophomore, and Rowan Alexander, Hereford sophomore, in third place.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The telephone, the invention which made Alexander Graham Bell famous, almost became a musical instrument.

The fathers of two deaf students Bell was tutoring became intrigued with his ideas for a musical telegraph and agreed to finance its development, but they believed the telephone was impractical.

But Bell persuaded them of the value of the telephone idea and in 1876 he was granted a patent for "a device that would transmit the human voice over wires," according to Intellectual Property Owners, a non-profit, public educational group dedicated to promoting American creativity.

DA VINCI PAINTING WASHINGTON (AP) — A painting by Leonardo da Vinci from the Hermitage in Leningrad will be seen for the first time in this country starting May 13 at the National Gallery of Art.

The show will also include paintings by Raphael, Cima da Conegliano, Lorenzo Lotto, Palma Vecchio, Andrea del Sarto, Correggio, Francesco Melzi, Pontormo, Primaticcio, and Titian.

Whitefaces Pick New Grid Captains

By MARC HERRING
Brand Sports Editor
Seniors Robbie Fish, Joe Walker, Cory Christie, Edward Dominguez, and Barry Morgan were selected as the 1979 Hereford Whiteface captains for the football team coach Don Cumpton announced.

Fish and Walker were tabbed as the offensive leaders, with Christie and Dominguez heading the defensive teams, and Morgan was selected as the special teams captain.

All of the captains are returning lettermen, with Fish Walker, Dominguez and Christie going both ways for the 'Faces' last year.

Coach Cumpton said that the selections were excellent choices and though there were many good ones to choose from, the team picked these five to represent them.

Fish, at 5-11 and 178 pounds, returns to the offensive line as a guard and will also be called upon to handle defensive tackle duties.

Walker is a running back and defensive end and is listed at 6-0 and 175 pounds. Timed in the 40 at 4.6. Coach Cumpton feels that Walker can really help the team with his outside speed.

Dominguez, who tips the scales at 165 and is 5-7 is returning starter as a defensive back last year and will be in the strong safety position for the 79 season. He will also be seeing time as a running back in the veer formation.

Christie is listed as nose guard and offensive guard for the Herd and has dimensions of 5-9 and 170 pounds. He was hurt in the early stages of Spring training and will miss the Maroon-White game this Friday.

Morgan, another returning defensive back from last year, is the free safety for the 79 Whitefaces and is sized at 6-2, 180 pounds. He will be used also at the tight end position of offense.

Coach Cumpton and the coaching staff said they were real pleased in the players selection of their captains and these five will be called on to lead the team. Spring Training ends this Friday with the annual Maroon-White game, with the freshman contest set to begin at 5 p.m. and the varsity contest to follow at 6:30.

The format will be like a regular game with the exception of no kickoffs and punting. Each squad will have a staff of coaches to help them out and about 45 players to the team.

Everyone is invited to see the game, which will be held at the La Plata field, on Centre.

LP Golfers Hold Lead

Hereford's junior high golf team continued to dominate their district after the second week of competition, taking the top three spots at the second round in Canyon last Friday.

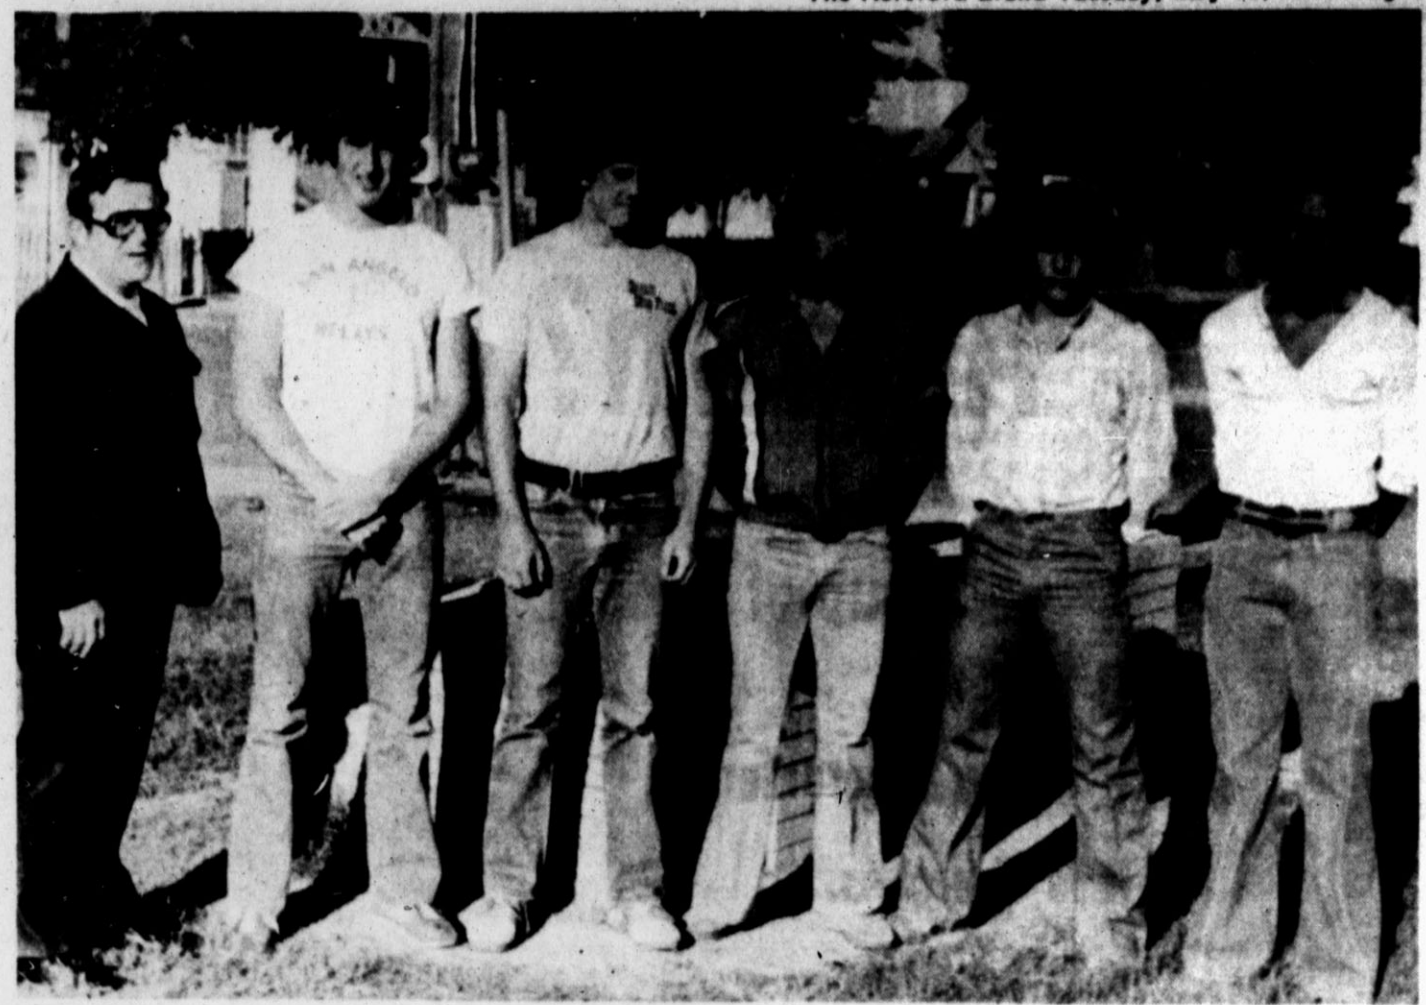

La Plata 'A' kept first place, with a team total of 310. 26 strokes better than second place La Plata 'B'. Stanton 'A' had the third best round with a round of 338. Canyon 'A' was the first non-Hereford team after that with a team total of 362.

After two weeks, team scores have La Plata 'A' with a total of 636, with Stanton 'A' second with 676. La Plata 'B' third with 681 and then Canyon 'A' fourth with a team total of 740.

Individual scores for the Canyon stop had Steve George of La Plata and David Dudding of Stanton with 75 and Tony Flores of La Plata with a 76.

Medalist scores after two rounds have Alan Wartes and Flores of La Plata leading with 157 total, followed by Dudding with 159 and George with 161.

Next action for the teams will be here in Hereford Friday, May 18. The 18 hole round will begin at 9 a.m.

Rangers Use Kern To Edge Twins

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) - Two of the American League's best relief pitchers went at it head to head Monday night, and the Rangers' Jim Kern came out on top in his battle against Mike Marshall of the Minnesota Twins.

Kern pitched three hitless innings to raise his record to 5-0 as Texas triumphed 7-5 over Minnesota, pulling them to within 3 1/2 games of the division leading Twins.

But Kern said he didn't consider the end of the game a personal duel between him and the former Cy Young Award winner.

"I'm just competing against their hitters," said Kern, who struck out four of the final six batters he faced. "Our hitters have to worry about Marshall."

The Rangers' hitters fared better against Marshall than the Twins did against Kern, however.

Both firemen entered with the game tied 5-5. In the Texas eight, Bump Willis reached first on a fielder's choice and stole second, where he scored the go-ahead run on a single by Buddy Bell.

"Any hit's gonna score Bump from second with his speed," said Bell, who went four-for-five.

Jim Sundberg drove in an insurance run in the ninth off Marshall, who dropped to 6-2. Marshall, who started the game with an earned run average of 0.77 and nine saves, has given up runs in only two of his 37 innings.

But it was the flame-throwing Kern who took command of the game. The Twins had hit Rangers' starter Ferguson Jenkins fairly steadily through the first six innings.

Ron Jackson slammed a two-run homer, his fifth of the year and a Twins' round-tripper for the 15th straight game, in the fourth. And Glenn Adams and Goy Smalley had RBI singles as Minnesota clung to a 5-4 lead after six innings.

Pinch-hitter John Ellis doubled in the tying run, though, and after the Rangers jumped ahead for good, Kern just mowed the Twins down.

"It was popping nicely tonight," said Kern. "I don't think I've ever thrown any harders."

Kern walked Butch Wynegar with one out in the seventh, but got Jackson to hit into a double play. He then fanned the side in the eighth, got Mike Cabbage on strikes to start the ninth before Smalley fley out and Ken Landreaux bounced to second to end the game. "I was glad I was on his team tonight," said Bell, who was Kern's teammate at Cleveland last year, but was reunited with him after separate trades over the winter. "He's awesome, simply over-powering."

Mud Will Stop Flying Paster

BALTIMORE (AP) - Flying Paster, who came in a disappointing fifth in the Kentucky Derby, will not be run in the Preakness if the Pimlico Race Course track is muddy, according to trainer Gordon Campbell.

But the colt, once considered to be Derby winner Spectacular Bid's main rival, worked out in mud at Pimlico Monday fast enough to satisfy Campbell.

Campbell said he was pleased with the colt's performance, he added that owner Ben Ridder "definitely does not want to run him" over a muddy track in the Preakness.

Ridder and Campbell theorize the drying-out track conditions at Churchill Downs may have accounted for Flying Paster's poor performance.

Campbell said Flying Paster was "blowing hard" at the end of the Derby. "I guess it took him 20 minutes to get back to the barn and then he walked for another hour and 15 minutes. He was still blowing," the trainer said.

The other four Preakness candidates stabled here also worked out Monday.

Screen King, the latest arrival and a sixth-place finisher in the Derby, galloped two miles over a sloppy track and "loved it," according to trainer Luis Barrera.

Spectacular Bid, the Maryland-owned colt seeking to become the third consecutive Triple Crown winner, galloped two miles for exercise rider Robert A. Smith. Gerry Delp, the son of trainer Buddy Delp, said Bid would have his final workout Thursday for Saturday's running of the $200,000-added classic.

Also galloping was Derby runner-up General Assembly, who went two miles for exercise rider Ron McKinsey. Trainer Leroy Jolley is expected to put the Secretariat colt through a brisk workout Wednesday, the same schedule as before the Derby.

Trainer Loren Rettele, just arrived at Pimlico, put Golden Act, the third-place Derby finisher, through six furlongs in 1:16.2-5. The William Oldknow-Robert Phipps owned colt then galloped through seven furlongs in 1:32.

"Loren doesn't like him to go too fast in the morning, just enough to put air in him," said exercise rider Tim Head.

Racquetball Growing In U.S.

Racquetball is surfacing as the hottest racket sport in the country. "It's a super game," says John Zwahlen, senior buyer for Herman's World of Sporting Goods, a division of W.R. Grack & Co. "It requires less talent and dexterity than tennis does and the average person can learn it in 30 minutes."

Herman's has seen a steady rise in the volume of sales of racquetball equipment over the past three years.

According to Mr. Zwahlen, until 1976 when the sales volume* at Herman's soared to five times that of the previous year, most of its racquetball business was institutional, with such organizations as YWCA's for example. Today more than 50% of the business is with individual players.

The United States Racquetball Association (USRA), which runs over 1,000 tournaments a year, estimates that eight million Americans, 30-40 percent of them women, are playing the game today as against a mere 50,000 back in 1970 when the Association was founded. The USRA estimates there are nearly one thousand racquetball facilities in the U.S. today with anywhere from 10 to 55 courts each, as against next to none in 1970. Estimates for 1980 project some 14 million players and 1,700 facilities.

What is this hot new game and why has its rise been so meteoric? Racquetball is an indoor court game played on a four-wall court 40 feet long, 20 feet wide and 20 feet high. It is played with a short-handled racquet, the length and width of which may not exceed a total of 27 inches, and a hollow pressurized ball 2 1/4 inches in diameter.

What is A Town?

A town is a group of people.

- It is schools.
- It is city government.
- It is churches.
- It is hospitals
- It is industry and jobs.
- It is retail businesses.

They all have to work together. All must have the support of the people.

Or there is no town.

Give your local merchant a chance for your business. You shouldn't spend your hard earned money with him unless his selection is adequate and his price competitive. But give him the first opportunity to make the sale.

Bullets Must Win In S.A. To Keep Hopes Alive

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — They've lowered the baskets and taken up the hardwood floor at Capital Centre. Whether another National Basketball Association game is played in the arena before next fall is up to the Washington bullets and the San Antonio Spurs.

The defending champion bullets would have all summer to dream about the home-court advantage if they lose to the Spurs Wednesday night in the sixth game of their best-of-seven Eastern Conference championship series in San Antonio.

San Antonio has won both of its home games in the series so far, in addition to taking the opener at Capital Centre.

The Spurs lead the series, 3-2, after dropping a 107-104 decision to Washington here Sunday. A seventh game, if needed, would be played here Friday night.

Only two teams in the history of the NBA playoffs have come back from a 3-1 deficit to win three straight and a series — the Boston Celtics in 1968 and the Los Angeles Lakers in 1970.

The Bullets, however, are confident they can rally to advance to the finals for the third time in five seasons.

"I think we're going to play them awfully even," said guard Kevin Grevey, who scored 23 points Sunday. "We're not going to blow them out. They have too much offense to do that. But there will be a lot of pressure on them."

Tom Henderson, who scored 16 and had nine assists from Washington's other starting guard spot, added: "There will be a lot of pressure on them. We want to bring it back here. We're about ready for a win down there."

Elvin Hayes scored 24 points and 22 rebounds, both tops for the Bullets, but Coach Dick Motta said it was the play of the guards, Grevey and Henderson, that keyed the victory.

"Probably the most discouraging aspect of the series is that they (the Bullets) can get that layup anytime they want," said Motta. "If they (the Spurs) continue to double, we can get the slice."

San Antonio Coach Doug Moe said his team "shot poorly but we played tough."

"You can't expect to beat this team every time," said Moe. "The key for us was that the effort was there. Now we just go home and try to convert that effort into victory."

George Gervin, the NBA's top scorer for the past two years who sank 42 points Friday night, got only 28 points, going nearly 28 minutes at one point without a field goal. He got 17 of his points in the fourth quarter.

"They weren't falling but I wasn't about to stop shooting... that's my game," said Gervin. "This ballgame is behind us. We just have to be ready to play Wednesday."

Suns-Sonics Down To Deciding Game

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phoenix Suns Coach John MacLeod said his team can't expect to win the National Basketball Association Western Conference playoff with Seattle if the SuperSonics are allowed "to run roughshod on the boards."

"I've said all along that their offensive backboards are the key to the series," said MacLeod late Monday. "We simply cannot let them run roughshod on the boards."

The SuperSonics dominated the backboards 43-27 Sunday to edge the Suns 106-105 in Phoenix and even the series at 3-3. The final game will be played in Seattle's Kingdome Thursday night.

In their three victories, the SuperSonics have tripped up the Suns by an average of 21-14 on the offensive backboards and 52-37 overall.

The Suns' triumphs were fashioned with a 16-16 break on offensive rebounds and a slim 46-44 advantage overall.

Seattle is a physical team," said MacLeod. "They're big and strong and they love to bang around inside. When the game is loosely officiated, it definitely works to their advantage."

"We have a lot of motion in our offense," MacLeod continued. "We need freedom to run without the other club grabbing and holding. When we're allowed to play our game, we're much more effective."

The Suns coach also makes more use of his bench than Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. The only Sun who didn't play Sunday was injured center Alvan Adams, and it was uncertain whether he would be ready for Thursday night's final game.

When the fouls mount and the bench becomes a factor, Phoenix gains a decided edge. Seattle spent its losing part of the series trying to run with the Suns. The SuperSonics' fast break produced points, but the effort appeared to weaken them on the backboards.

"We had people thinking fast break and maybe taking off a little early," said Wilkens. "We're a good, fast-breaking team, but you have to get the ball before you can run with it."

Seattle rarely initiated the break in Sunday's game, but converted five of eleven fastbreak opportunities for 11 points.

"We were much more patient with our offense," as Wilkens put it. "We didn't take nearly as many bad shots."

The result was a 54 percent shooting effort for the SuperSonics, up from 43 percent in their first five games.

"We can play either the fast game or the slow game," said Seattle forward Lonnie Shelton, who had 12 points and eight rebounds Sunday. "I think Phoenix likes the fast game better. When we slow it down, we cut down on our mistakes and make them play a game they don't like as well."

Longhorns Win SWC Baseball

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — There seemed to be little doubt in anyone's mind, especially the Texas Longhorns, that they were going to win the third annual Southwest Conference baseball tournament.

"We expected to win it when we started and we simply went out there and won it," Horn Captain Mark Chelette said Monday after UT had sliced up Arkansas 12-6 to win the tournament title and advance to the NCAA Central Regional play-offs.

"I think we proved today that we're the better ball club. We've taken some pride in our number one ranking. Everybody has felt that we were the best and we wanted to play like it."

Texas' rowdy, cheering fans won't have to go farther than Disch-Falk Field to see the Longhorns continue in the play-offs. SWC officials announced during the game that the Central Regionals would be played here May 25-27.

Texas' deadly execution of the Razorbacks did nothing to decrease the team's confidence.

"I think we've got the kind of team that can go all the way," Chelette said. "Our pitching is unreal, and if we keep it going and don't let down, I don't see how we can't win it all."

"All" would be a fourth national championship for the Longhorns, who last won the title in 1975.

The Longhorns quickly established the trend of the game in the first inning when they scored two runs on a throwing error by starting pitcher Bob McHale. They boosted it to 6-1 in the fifth on Terry Salazar's three-run home run and Keith Walker's double.

Arkansas scored once in the fourth on John Hennell's grounder and got three more in the fifth on Hennell's double and a two-run single by Johnny Ray.

That's when the Longhorns opened the flood gates with five more runs in the seventh. The runs came on singles by Jim Tjader, Joe Bruno and Kevin Shannon and errors by Arkansas shortstop Larry Wallace and third baseman Bob Kauffman.

Arkansas got two back in the eighth on a bases loaded double by slumping Ed Wallace, the regular season batting champanion, but Texas still had the last word: Tjader clubbed a solo homer in the ninth.

The team Arkansas had on the field tonight wasn't the team they had all season," Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson said sympathetically. "They had a tough assignment this afternoon and we know how it felt because we've been there."

Arkansas had defeated Texas A&M 6-2 earlier Monday in a loser's bracket game to earn the right to meet Texas for the championship.

"We played awful, certainly not as well as we're capable," agreed Arkansas Coach Norm DeBrin. "The game showed we had a letdown from our victory over A&M."

The Razorbacks won't go home too discouraged however. They expect to also receive an NCAA playoff bid as an atlarge entry.

PARK City, Utah (AP) — Becky Dorsey of Wenham, Mass., has announced her retirement from competition with the U.S. Ski Team because of a chronic knee problem.

Dorsey, 22, a member of the ski team since 1973 and three-time U.S. National giant slalom champion, has severe articular cartilage damage in her knee, said team physician Dr. Richard E. Steadman.

Dorsey was ranked seventh in the world in slalom in 1979. She won the national slalom championship in 1978 and the giant slalom in 1975, 77, and 78.

All-Star Voting In The Hands Of Fans

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Baseball fans across the United States and Canada begin voting this week for the starting teams who will face each other in the 50th renewal of the All Star Game, set for Tuesday night, July 17, in the controlled climate of the Seattle Kingdome.

The fan vote, frowned upon by some, is applauded here as perhaps the most significant accomplishment of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's administration.

This is a showcase game, a place to salute baseball's greatest players, and it belongs to the fans. Sure, sometimes they make mistakes. Sometimes they vote for reputations instead of current production. But so what? Is it so very bad for a star who's on the way down to be called back for one more curtain call?

It's certainly better for the public to make a mistake in this vote than when it goes to the polls to elect a President. And that one, by the way, is the only election with more votes cast than the baseball All Star balloting.

For a long time, the fans were not asked their opinions about who ought to be representing the two leagues in this midsummer game. That's because in 1957 they forced baseball to take the vote away after some dreadful ballot box stuffing in Cincinnati.

The Reds, who finished fourth in the National League that season, strictly on merit, nevertheless had seven starters elected to the National League

All Star team. That was courtesy of their forgiving home fans, who flooded the polls with neatly clipped newspaper coupons carrying the names of all the Cincinnati starters.

Somehow, first baseman George Crowe missed out, but he was the only Reds' regular who didn't make it.

That bit of voting shenanigans convinced baseball that the fans couldn't handle the ballot and so it was taken away and turned over to the professionals — the players, coaches and managers.

Don't for one moment, however, think that giving the vote to the people who allegedly know the game best eliminated the inequities. Quite the contrary. The ground rules prevented the voters from casting ballots for teammates but they found a way around those regulations. Joe Reichler, a former sports writer who now works for the Baseball Promotion Corp., was in charge of counting the votes and tells this story.

"Suppose two players at a single position were close," Reichler said. "Teammates couldn't vote for their own guy but they wouldn't vote for the other guy either. They'd vote instead for some third player who didn't belong. What they were doing was depriving deserving players of votes in the hope of helping their teammate."

Reichler counted all the votes at home in one long weekend and that's how the starting teams were picked from 1958 until 1969. Then, along came Commissioner Kuhn, computer punch cards and a new voting system underwritten by the Gillette Company's Safety Razor Division. And now, instead of 500 or so players, coaches and managers selecting the teams, the voting belongs to the fans.

Player Asks For Change In Court Ruling

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Donald M. Gomes, the boy who wants to play on the girls' volleyball team at his high school, has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to vacate a lower court decision that prevents him from playing.

"It's an extreme situation," Robert D. Parrillo, Gomes' lawyer, said Monday after asking the court for the stay. "Since it's the only avenue available we decided it was important to do it."

U.S. District Court Judge Raymond J. Pettine ordered May 1 that the Rhode Island Interscholastic League allow Gomes to play on the girls' volleyball team at Rogers High School in Newport.

Pettine said it was improper to keep Gomes off the team merely because of his sex. There is no boys' volleyball team at Rogers.

The league claims that if boys are allowed to play on girls' teams they will dominate and ruin sports opportunities for girls.

The league appealed to the 1st Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston, which last week granted a stay of Pettine's order pending a June hearing. Gomes, 19, will have graduated by that time.

"We're asking that the Circuit Court of Appeals' stay be vacated," Parrillo said. He said the request for the order was sent to the U.S. Supreme Court Monday and should have arrived by noon today.

Robert B. Mann, attorney for the league, said a reply to Gomes' motion would be filed sometime today.

Gomes played in two matches before the appeals court stayed Pettine's order. Lawyers in the case say Gomes is the first boy in the country to ask a federal judge to be allowed to play on a girls' team.

Reds Keep Lead In West

CINCINNATI (AP) — Paul Moskau groped for an explanation of the third inning bluffs that spoiled an otherwise pretty good game for the Cincinnati Reds' sometimes starter.

"My breaking pitch was good, my fastball was good and my changeup was good. It just wasn't going were I wanted it to go," he said. "I just stood out there skaking my head, wondering what was happening."

What happened was the Moskau led the bases on three straight walks, then cleared them by giving up a sacrifice fly and a two-run single.

After that lapse, he faced just 13 batters in the next four innings and notched his third victory, against no losses, as the Reds beat San Diego 7-4 Monday night.

The game was the only one scheduled in the National League, and the victory moved the Reds a full game ahead of Houston in the Western Division.

"I don't know what happened. It's totally confusing to me," said Moskau, whose return to the starting rotation

Boxer In Coma After Technical Knockout

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Amateur boxer Ronnie Newton wanted to go on fighting after the punch that dropped him to the canvas and put him in the coma that continues almost three days later, said the man who refereed his fight.

Newton, 20, was dropped by a chopping right hand with 22 seconds to go in his title bout against Donald Curry of Ft. Worth, Texas, in the AAU national championship tournament at Lake Charles, La., Saturday night. Newton was wearing protective head gear when he was felled, even though it isn't mandatory to do so.

Referee Elmo Adolph Jr. counted to three, then signalled that the fight was over and called a doctor into the ring.

"Ronnie was asking me - at what would have been an eight count - to let him go on,"

Adolph said. "I told him just to stay on one knee."

"The thing we're in there for is the safety and well-being of the fighters. I'd rather stop a thousand fights too long than let one fight to go too long."

"We've been schooled that every second is precious in a knockout, so the first thing I did was wave a doctor into the ring. At the same time, Ronnie was saying, 'I'm okay. I'm okay, Mr. Adolph.'"

"I just told him to stay on one knee. I had to hold him down."

"I had a certain gut feeling that he was really hurt. If I'd let him get up, he might have staggered around and got hit again and been hurt even worse."

After struggling to rise, Newton rolled over and lay sprawled in the ring while the doctor examined him. He then walked to a dressing room.

Minutes later, he collapsed and was taken to St. Patrick's Hospital, where he was still in serious condition after surgery to remove a blood clot.

Dr. Gerald Litel, who operated on the Fort Smith, Ark., fighter's brain Saturday night, said the clot didn't appear to have been caused by the blow in the championship fight.

"I would guess he got it the night before," he said. "The story I got was that he had been complaining of headaches Saturday, but didn't tell anyone from the AAU."

Adolph said that Newton had also been knocked down in an early fight in the week-long tournament.

"It wasn't a hard blow, and he bounced right up," Adolph said. "I gave him the mandatory eight count, but he was absolutely clear by the count of two. By four, he put his gloves up and told me he was okay."

Amateur boxer Ernauld Maurice of the Army team at Ft. Bragg was killed by a head injury suffered during the golden Gloves regional tournament at Knoxville, Tenn., two months ago.

Adolph, 45, said that prior to Newton's injury, he had never worked a fight where one of the boxers was seriously hurt.

"I cried," he said. "I've searched my conscience, and I know I did everything right, but it shook me up."

The Oakland Park racetrack in Hot Springs, Ark., calls itself the No. 1 tourist attraction in the state.

In nine of the first 13 Super Bowls, the winning quarterback wore No. 12.

Rooney Remembers Early Football

NEW YORK (AP) — He wears the map of Ireland on his face. He peers at you through spectacles that look to be an inch thick and throws up a smokescreen with puffs from a dollar cigar. More than a half-century in sports — as competitor, organizer and administrator — has failed to make a single dent in his crusty facade.

"They call him 'Super Granddaddy.' He is Art Rooney, Sr., pioneer of the National Football League, founder and board chairman of the Pittsburgh Steelers, champions of the whole football world.

They don't make men like him any more, somebody lost the formula.

It was quite fitting that Rooney and his brood were the guests of honor at the $200-a-plate dinner Monday night at the Waldorf-Astoria for the Ireland Fund's "Gaelic Celebration."

Rooney, a puckish and unpretentious man of 78, fidgeted in his Sunday-Go-To-Meeting suit and relished memories of the old days. Sometimes he wishes they were back.

He bought the Pittsburgh franchise in 1933 for $2,500. The property today is worth perhaps $20 million. He and George Halas of the Chicago Bears are the remnants of the infant circuit that was promoted on the exploits of the great Red Grange.

Rooney recalled that in the early days nine men would gather in smoke-filled room and make out the league schedule on a blackboard in a few hours.

"Now you've got lawyers, accountants and computers all of the place," he said. "Back then, you'd write the schedule on the blackboard. If somebody didn't like it, they'd go up and erase the whole thing."

"Then you would have to start again."

Rooney played baseball with Wheeling, West Va., in the Mid-Atlantic League. He attended Indiana Pa. Normal and Georgetown and played football against Tim Thorpe, the Sac Indian who was a great Olympic athlete and rated by some as the greatest football player who ever lived. He also won an AAU boxing championship.

One of the early players Rooney signed for the Supreme Court. But Rooney admits that the Steelers, through poor judgment of his coaches, cut Johnny Unitas and passed over Jim Brown in the draft.

"I never interfered with the coaches," he said. Art and Kathleen Rooney still live in the house they bought for $5,000 in Pittsburgh's predominantly Irish first Ward now the 22nd 40 years ago.

Their five sons, all involved in the family's football and horse racing enterprises, sons' wives and six of the 34 grandchildren were present at Monday night's fund-raising Irish gala. The ball room was festooned with trappings of Steeler colors — gold and black. A well-known Irish comedian from Dublin, Hal Roach, told jokes and served as master of ceremonies.

Waits Tosses Two-Hitter Against Blue Jays

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Reliever Jim Waits is doing the same thing with Texas this season as he did with Cleveland a year ago — with one slight difference.

"I think a relief pitcher with a winning team's more important than a relief pitcher on a bad team," Kern said Monday night after picking up his fifth victory without a loss. The 6-foot-5 right-hander pitched three hitless innings in relief to beat Minnesota 5-3.

Texas right-hander Ferguson Jenkins gave up all five Twins runs in 5 2/3 innings. Dave Rajsich got the final out in the sixth, then Kern took over. He struck out the side in the eighth inning and struck out one more batter in the ninth.

Another former Indian, Buddy Bell, also played a key role in Texas' victory. Bell had four hits, including a tiebreaking single in the eighth inning off Mike Marshall, 6-2, who as the loser in relief.

In the other American League games, Cleveland edged Toronto 10-10. Detroit defeated the New York Yankees 3-1 and Kansas City got by Seattle 1-0. Baltimore at Boston was postponed by rain.

The victory moved Texas within 3 1/2 games of the Western Division-leading Twins.

The Twins took a 5-4 lead in the sixth on singles by Rick Sofield, Mike Cabbage and Roy Smalley. Texas tied it the following inning when pinch-hitter John Ellis doubled home Richie Zisk. Zisk scored an insurance run in the ninth on Jim Sundberg's single.

Ron Jackson smacked a two-run homer for Minnesota in the fourth. His fifth of the season. The Twins now have hit homers in 15 consecutive games, a club record.

Indians 1, Blue Jays 0

Left-hander Rick Waits tossed a two-hitter, yielding only a single and a double to Toronto second baseman Dave McKay, in a pitching duel with Tom Underwood.

Neither pitcher yielded an earned run. Cleveland's only run came in the first inning when McKay bobbled the throw on an attempted force lay, allowing Paul Dade to score from second base.

Underwood scattered six hits in absorbing his fifth loss without a victory. Waits, 4-3, walked seven and struck out three.

Tigers 3, Yankees 1

Detroit right-hander Milt Wilcox pitched a four-hitter, holding the Yankees hitless after the third inning, and Steve Kemp singled home the winning run with two out in the eighth inning.

Kemp scored the insurance run when Jason Thompson doubled and Lance Parrish followed with an infield single. Ed Figueroa, 3-4, was the loser, succumbing to the Tigers for the first time since May 11, 1976.

Wilcox, 3-2, walked two and struck out six, including Reggie Jackson in the first inning when the Yankees had a man in scoring position.

Royals 1, Mariners 0

Rich Gale notched his third straight victory with a five-hitter, and Pete LaCock drove in Kansas City's only run with an eighth-inning sacrifice fly.

Gale, 3-2, walked four and struck out one. He duelled with Seattle starter Floyd Bannister for 7 1/3 innings before Bannister walked George Brett on four pitches, then threw two more balls to Amos Otis. Byron McLaughlin relieved, walked Otis, and both runners advanced on a passed ball by Mariners catcher Bob Stinson.

That set the stage for LaCock, who was pinch hitting for Johnathan.

Bannister allowed just three hits in his stint.

Mears New Racing Star

There's a new racing star zooming on the United States Auto Club (USAC) Championship Circuit—26-year-old Rick Mears.

A recent USAC Rookie of the Year, Mears is the fastest rookie to qualify in the history of the Indianapolis 500.

Driving a turbo-charged car called The Gould Charge, sponsored by international developer of electrical and industrial products, Gould Inc., Mears sped to victory in the Rex Mays 150 USAC National Championship Citicorp Cup Race in Milwaukee and the Gould Twin Dixie USAC National Championship/Citicorp Race in Atlanta, where he set a USAC track record.

Mears started racing motorcycles in 1968 when he was 16 years old, and in two and a half years, he won over 60 trophies.

"But my mom was afraid I'd get hurt," says Mears. So when my dad and I saw a sprint-buggy race at Ascot Park in Gardena, California, he made a deal with me. He would build me a sprint-buggy if I gave up motorcycles."

While concentrating on racing, Mears has won many sprint-buggy races. In 1976 he wrote his name in the Pikes Peak Hill Climb record book by winning overall honors in the sprint-buggy open-wheel class, posting the third fastest time ever turned on the hill.

AN INNOCENT LADY NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — Pro golfer Bobby Wadkins, younger brother of Lanny, has a towering temper which he tries to keep under control but not always successfully.

During a tournament in 1978, Wadkins reprimanded a woman spectator for moving while he was trying to putt. The lady was startled at the outburst.

"I wasn't moving," she told a friend. "I wasn't even talking. My teeth were frozen shut."

U.S. Bonds Interest Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Buyers of U.S. Savings Bonds finally have been given what appears to be a break, beginning June 1, when the interest yield rises to 6.5 percent from 6 percent.

Critics, however, quickly point out that 6.5 percent, whether in a savings account, corporate bonds, stocks, or Savings Bonds, doesn't earn you much, perhaps not a cent, so long as inflation continues.

The ... rate compares with Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal's inflation estimate of 8.5 percent for 1979, made almost simultaneously with the bond rate announcement.

If his estimate is correct, it would mean old bondholders would be left with a minimum 2 percent loss for the year. New buyers would suffer more, because interest begins low and rises as bonds mature.

"The 6.5 percent interest rate, coupled with the tax advantages ... represents a fair return and makes the bonds more attractive as a long-term investment," said Arzie Morton, the U.S. treasurer.

The tax advantages are real. Owners of Savings Bonds pay no state or local taxes. And, instead of paying federal taxes each year on the interest earned, they may defer payment until the bonds are redeemed.

For long-term savers, these tax advantages can be compounded. A couple at peak earning power, for example, might defer taxes until they are retired, when they might be in a considerably lower tax bracket.

But, so long as inflation continues, there remains the question of whether 6.5 percent is a fair return, as the treasurer states, not just for holders of Savings Bonds but for other savers as well.

It isn't true, as banks and government maintain, that you can't lose. The banks advertise that your savings are insured. From bank collapse, yes, but not from the economic theft of inflation, which in just 11 years has cut in half the buying power of the dollar.

The same applies to bonds. What must be conceded is that the government is involved in a dilemma, because by raising the rate paid to bondholders it simply adds to the inflation that dilutes the value of the bond.

While this probably satisfies nobody, it doesn't needlessly offend them either. And it still permits the federal government to stress the other reasons why people should own U.S. Savings Bonds.

First of these is probably the payroll deduction system, in which a worker can have a certain amount deducted from his paycheck and applied to bond purchases. The technique is acclaimed as painless saving.

Tax deferral remains a unique advantage. Safety still has its appeal. And then there is patriotism.

As a spokesman for the U.S. Savings Bond Division states in a letter: "Probably no form of liquid saving can keep up with today's inflation. But not saving is not the answer."

For those who must build their assets through fixed-return savings, as differentiated from investments that might "float" with inflation, there is almost no protection. No answer. Not even in Savings Bonds.

We'd Rather Switch

The use of electricity has been rising by almost 6 percent a year since 1960. The Conference Board observes, "Besides the spread of home ownership, this trend has been fueled by more and larger appliances and a drift away from gas to electricity for both cooking and heating."

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Don't jog too fast

many doctors thought that the proper diet was to cut down on carbohydrates. That has a lot to do with some of the really wild things that are said about sugar these days, particularly as related to heart disease. A more discriminating look at the problem and some careful studies showed that the big problem was obesity from too many calories of almost anything.

Of course sugars and starches and concentrated carbohydrates are excellent sources of large numbers of calories so eliminating these substances in the diet tended to decrease the calorie intake. When the calorie intake is decreased enough to eliminate obesity, many patients have a significant decrease in triglycerides. Your husband's diet should eliminate any of the obesity that he has.

He should increase his exercise GRADUALLY until his body composition is changed. It doesn't matter so much what a person weighs as long as it's all muscle. But even if you don't appear to weigh very much and have a lot of fat under the skin, that's not so desirable.

If a person is in top-notch physical condition so that he can exercise rather extensively at least every other day, the exercise is a good way to lower the triglyceride level. If your husband has not been doing any exercise, he should start gradually with a simple, daily walk and slowly build up his exercise capacity. He should be able to walk an hour at a fairly good rate without getting excessively tired before he tries to do anything more strenuous.

At that point he could start jogging a few steps at a time in the middle of his walk and then gradually build up the number of steps he jogs at a rate of 10 jogging steps a day. This gradual build-up will slowly develop his capacity to exercise.

Because men are so competitive, I find it necessary to continually remind them that when you talk about jogging, you're not talking about speed. Most of the people who get into trouble jogging are the ones who are trying to jog or run too fast. A slow, gentle jog that covers a lot of distance is worth an all-out effort to beat your previous time or to beat your buddy. Speed and kill.

Comforter keeps sliding

DEAR POLLY — Please help me. My gorgeous new satin comforter is driving me out of my mind. It keeps sliding off the bed. I do not know what to use that will not damage my comforter. I hope someone has a solution for me. — Lucille

DEAR LUCILLE — You do have a bothersome problem. The best suggestion I have is to use a piece of elastic about an inch wide and long enough to go all around your mattress. Sew ends together and slip around the mattress (about 6 or 8 inches above the lower edge).

Put comforter on in the position you would like it and then with strong thread tack through the comforter and top of the elastic every 6 inches or so. When you put the comforter on the bed at night slip the elastic around the mattress. Any sort of planning will doubtless end with a tear or so in the comforter. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I use the double-saucer method to avoid water spots on shelves and tables where I have potted plants. I put a normal-size saucer under a plant's pot and then put this in a larger one. If a plant is watered too much and the first saucer does not hold all the excess water the back-up saucer catches it. No more racing for a towel to soak up the excess.

Another solution for this is to cut a square of indoor-outdoor carpet in a circle that is the size of the saucer being used. When cutting the square leave the plastic on the back so the circle can be easily moved and not have to be pulled up. The plastic back also adds to the waterproof abilities of the carpet circle. — JON

DEAR POLLY — Newspapers torn in thin strips make a good substitute for the expensive product we normally use in our cat boxes. The print on the paper seems to do away with the odor. Change every day and be sure strips are not too wide. Tip box over on a newspaper, roll it up and throw away. Give kitty time to get used to it and both of you will love it. — MILLIE

Polly will send you one of her signed thank-you newspaper coupon clippers if she sees your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

House Provides Money

NEW YORK (AP) - Housing investment you can live in, requires little money down, appreciates faster than the inflation rate, that provides tax deductions and, in a way, a savings account.

You have heard it over and over, and you listen again. Authors and lecturers, such as William Nickerson, Albert Lowry and Mark Haroldsen, grow rich on the word.

All preach the beauty of buying undervalued properties, improving them, and perhaps raising rents. They praise inflation to the extent housing prices exceed general price rises. They extol tax benefits.

The story varies in the telling, but the message generally is the same:

You spot a two-unit income property selling for $38,000. You are attracted by the basic soundness of the house.

You use the cosmetically poor appearance as an excuse for offering only $28,000. You bargain, and settle for $32,000. Already you are ahead; you'll only have to spend $3,000 to improve the appearance.

The bank offers an 80 percent mortgage, which means you put down 20 percent, or $7,000, on the $35,000 combined purchase and improvement price.

The existing rents are $250 for each apartment, which adds up to $6,000 a year, or about one-sixth the purchase price. More commonly stated, the purchase price is six times the rent roll.

You improve the property; you will not settle for six times.

You raise the rents to $275 each, or $550 a month or $6,600 a year. Now the multiple is down close to five.

Just as importantly, you will have raised the market price. Houses in the area sell for about seven times the rentroll. That would mean your house's resale value is now $46,200. Agreed.

Snake Sitter Sets New Guinness Record

HARTBESPORT, South Africa (AP) - A 25-year-old carpenter got into the Guinness Book of World Records after 36 days in a snake pit, but he says he may stay two weeks more to protect his record.

Peter Snyman grinned - very carefully - when Jack Seale, the caretaker of the Hartbesport Snake Park, told him he had broken the world snake-sitting record on Sunday.

"It'll become more difficult to stay," he said from the stiff position he has had to maintain since April 7 to avoid a bite from the 24 vipers slithering around him. "Now that I've broken the record, the inclination to get out of the cage is greater."

He originally planned a 40-day stay, but he might hold out for 50, he said.

"I've had a black mamba slither over my face in the dark, attempt to crawl into an ear or a nostril and explore inside my shirt. A bite could kill in three seconds," Snyman said. "But I think the challenge has been worth it. My name will be you'd have to bargain hard to get it, but negotiating is an art you're developing.

There are other ways to figure your growing estate. Consider that inflation might be adding 10 percent a year it was 12.1 for existing homes in 1978 to market value.

A 10 percent gain on $35,000 means $3,500 in current dollars is added to your estate. But since you put up only $7,000, your yield is figured on that basis. Before interest payments, it comes to 50 percent.

Since you're borrowing at 10.5 percent, you have some hefty interest payments to make, which effectively cut into your yield. But remember: Uncle Sam finances debt; it's tax deductible. And so is depreciation.

Add the cash flow excess of rental income over operating costs and the appreciation, and the equity buildup, and the tax deductions, and you have a return many times what you could get from a savings account.

Can it be done? It is being done. Can you do it? That's a different question. Timing and lucky play roles. Judgment too. Handiness, free time, common sense, and credit-worthiness are involved.

Inaugural Fund Set Up

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Senate voted Monday to set up a special fund to pay for the inauguration of the governor and lieutenant governor.

"The state would pay rather than having a few fat cats in Travis County picking up the tab," said Senate sponsor Bill Moore, D-Bryan.

Moore said inaugurations cost approximately $100,000.

Harvey Heard by Millions

By MARC WILSON
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - His voice boomed a sound test: "Woof one, two, three, four. Diddle dee, didlee dee. Woof, one, two, three." Then vocal calisthenics: "Nee-naw, nee-naw, nee-naw."

Seconds remained before he would talk to seven or eight million people.

His shoulders sagged a bit, and he turned to his three visitors in the tiny network studio and asked in a stage whisper:

"Did you see the thing about Mickey Mantle dreaming every night about a comeback?"

"Real sad. Says he can understand why people talk about suicide. Once you get used to the applause it's hard to have it stop."

He shakes his head in sympathy, perhaps empathy. What would he do if the applause stopped, even turned to boos? He, too, loves adulation, but criticism to heart. "Applause is a narcotic," he says.

He swivels back to the two microphones. The red light flashes on.

"Hello Americans, this is Paul Harvey!"

It's a typical day for the 60-year-old Harvey. Wake before 4 a.m., do pushups "with zest." Wash down oatmeal with juice and Kava. Ride from his suburban River Forest home in a chauffeur-driven limousine to his fourth-floor office overlooking the murky Chicago River.

He uses the hours flanking sunrise to scan wire service reports, news magazines, letters, newspapers - looking for the oddball story, the human touch, the bright phrase, the incredible saga, the sex crime, the 60th wedding anniversary.

"I love work now more than ever. The second youth is the best youth." He jogs or plays golf in the afternoon and is in bed each day by 8 p.m., even if he's on one of his frequent speaking trips. He's a workaholic. His secretary says "he'd make notes in the shower if he could."

He recently signed a seven-year contract with ABC, which calls him "America's No. 1 radio commentator ... whose listeners respond by ... spending millions of dollars on advertiser products."

He sends radio newscasts a day to 809 stations - five minutes at 8:30 a.m., 15 minutes at noon and a "Rest of the Story" feature in the afternoon. He writes the newscast material; his son Paul, 30, composes the feature copy.

Typically, the newscasts begin with an advertisement that sounds at first to be a top news story. "Energy crisis ... invention can help nation ... buy Macklanburg-Duncan door threshold." His secretary says Harvey takes pride in writing "l his ad copy.

The news:

Brezhnev ill ... Salt Lake City without phones because pipe breaks in women's room at Mountain Bell ... two causes of cancer found ... Shah of Iran's gold stolen ... Kennedy-Carter clash on oil decontrol. Carter refreshingly candid ... Fran Tarkenton may retire, likes ABC ... Mantle dreams of comeback, understands talk of suicide. ...

Another live commercial, Harvey reads: "Possible food shortage ... can what you can't eat ... think Kerr every time you can ..."

More news: Disneyland in Toyko ... farm prices up ... the author of song "Cheaper Crude or No More Food" is disabled Vietnam vet ... Steve and Cindy arrested in kidnapping and rape, maybe this time he'll get the hair ...

Newscast over: "My bride and son just came in." Harvey tells his visitors, pointing through the glass into the control room. "They're here for the 'Good Morning America' TV pieces I'll do later this morning."

Harvey and his entourage walk to the other side of the building to his suite of offices. The security door buzzes open and Harvey says, "Feel free to look around while I change."

Beige carpeting, wood paneling, modern furniture made of or trimmed in chrome. On the wall are copies of the Bill of Rights, the Gettysburg Address, the Declaration of Independence, keys to cities around the nation, plaques. One reads, "Whereas Paul Harvey informed the public to the dangers of anarchists ..."

Harvey closes the door to his private office where his wife, Lynne, helps him put on a different suit over his real suspenders, and a toupee over his balding top. She has been called the driving force behind Harvey. He says he "married an education," noting her Phi Beta Kappa key and his "very few classes in college."

A makeup woman takes over, puts some "pancake" on his face and hands so they won't reflect the TV lights.

"This is the first time I've used makeup," he says. "Don't know if I'll like it. It's just an experiment. ABC sent her over."

Back to the studio. Harvey's been doing twice-weekly segments for ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" since January. For radio, he needed only an engineer. For TV Harvey adds a director, light man, script man, makeup woman and minicamera. Harvey doesn't write his own TV scripts. That's left to his son, whom Harvey calls "young Paul," although he's 30 and married.

"Great way to get a second-string, raise 'em yourself." Mrs. Harvey whispers, pointing to her son as the script is rehearsed. The son is a concert pianist who finds better money working for his dad, writing "The Rest of the Story" scripts.

"I grew up in Depression-era Tulsa," Harvey says. "My education is all in one direction, vertical. I'm very proud that my son's education is horizontal. He can handle any subject."

His son was a conscientious objector to the Vietnam War. Long, sometimes heated, discussions between the two resulted in Harvey's switch in the late 1960s from super hawk to dove.

Harvey was angered by a recent story in Esquire magazine that said he changed his position on Vietnam because he wanted to keep his son from being drafted.

Harvey says he was brought up to believe that the only reason to fight a war is to win it. "The best the U.S. could do in Korea was to install a military dictatorship. In Vietnam, we weren't out to win, just mark time and bleed so I thought it was time to get out."

Harvey says his son had received a medical deferment a year before the famous newscast Harvey opened with. "Mr. President, I love you, but you're wrong" about Vietnam.

The Esquire story also said Harvey was discharged from the Army in 1944 because of psychosis, lied about the circumstances of his father's death, and changed his name to cover his Army record.

Harvey says he wrote "a point-by-point response to each point raised in the article, but then decided it was pointless. ... ABC convinced me that all it would do is result in headlines that repeated the charges - 'Paul Harvey denies beating his wife.' So I decided to step around it rather than step in it."

Harvey gave The Associated Press a copy of the rebuttal he had written, but had withheld at ABC's request.

"First, I have never undergone any kind of psychiatric treatment in my life," he wrote. "This does not disparage such therapy but I have never experienced any of it at any time ..."

"I have never, in military service or out, tried to kill or maim myself ..."

"My time in uniform was abbreviated because I had volunteered for the Air Corps. I had left a comfortable deferment to enlist - was accepted - passed all tests - but before I could start training I was advised that the Air Cadet program had been abolished and I was 'in the infantry.'"

"I resisted the arbitrary switch vigorously until I was mustered out of uniform with an entirely honorable discharge ... and before I could be drafted back in we ran out of war ..."

"I remember an Army officer who thought I was crazy; I thought he was. I was angry, not mad ..."

"Next: My father was not killed in 'a hunting accident.' He and the then chief of police in Tulsa, Okla., were ambushed by hijackers, both shot, my father was killed and Chief Blaine never walked again ..."

The Oklahoma Sheriffs' and Peace Officers' Association confirmed that his father, Harry A. Aurandt, "is enshrined on a public monument among Oklahoma lawmen killed in the line of duty."

Harvey says he dropped Aurandt as his last name at the request of his first Chicago sponsor in 1944, adding "my own immediate family cannot agree on the pronunciation of Aurandt."

Harvey says he can't explain his success. "I'm not an introspective person. You'd have to ask someone who listens to me. But I can say that health is terribly important. I love what I'm doing but I couldn't do it without health and a great deal of energy."

Then he was off to tape his syndicated TV commentaries, to write his thrice-weekly newspaper column, to give a luncheon speech in Chicago, to fly to Fayetteville, Ark., for a speech. "But you can reach me at my office every morning after 4:30."

U.S.-China Signs Pact

CANTON, China (AP) - The United States and China initiated a broad trade agreement Monday, and both sides hailed it as a significant step on the road to economic normalcy after a 30-year break. Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps said the pact opened the way for the two countries to expand their trade "to its full potential."

The agreement was initiated in Canton by Mrs. Kreps at 6:07 p.m. in both English and Chinese. Chinese Foreign Trade Minister Li Qiang Li Chiang initiated the document in Peking earlier. It was flown to Canton for the ceremony.

"Today marks a major step on the way to full normalization of Sino-American economic relations," Mrs. Kreps told the ceremony at the initialing, which was toasted with champagne.

Chen Jie Chen Chieh, China's deputy foreign trade minister, told the gathering, "I am sure the initialing of the trade agreement will have the fruitful result in the final signing of the trade accord. ... This is an important step. I'm sure it is conducive to furthering our trade relations."

The agreement still must be signed and submitted to Congress for approval. Mrs. Kreps said she hoped that could be accomplished within the next two months, but the end of the year would be a more realistic target date.

For 30 years the people of the United States have had little or no commercial, or other, contact with nearly one quarter of the population of the world," she said. "Today we take a major step together in resuming the unimpaird exchange of goods and services - and therefore the exchange of experiences, ideas, and good will."

The secretary said the agreement would establish a framework for orderly trade and business, provide reciprocal most-favored-nation status and eliminate a major obstacle to granting of official credits to China.

She also said it would greatly increase business contacts through trade exhibits, individual firm offices and other aids, and would assist medium and smaller-sized companies which have done very little business with China.

"In short, as a result of this agreement we shall be able to expand trade between our countries up to its full potential," she said.

U.S.-Chinese trade was $1.1 billion in 1978. After diplomatic relations were established in January, U.S. officials projected the figure would hit $2 billion in 1979 and reach $3 billion to $4 billion a year by 1984.
