

Reagan blames Democrats for economic troubles

BY OWEN ULLMANN

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON AP - President Reagan, conceding unemployment soon could hit 10 percent, is blaming two decades of Democratic policies for the economy's lingering woes.

Reagan also said at his nationally televised news conference Tuesday night that the U.S. Marines dispatched to Beirut will remain there until all foreign forces are withdrawn from Lebanon, and "I think that's going to come rapidly."

"The Lebanese government will be the ones that tell us when they feel that they're in charge and the troops can go home," the president said.

Reagan's comments were the first he has made on the tour of duty for the Marines whom he said would land in the Lebanese capital this morning to join Italian and French troops in a 3,000 - man multinational peacekeeping

The president, refusing to hold his own policies responsible for the long recession, said "We're heading toward a good recovery." But he also further last month and cautioned, "We still have a long way to go."

"We think August has been kind of in the doldrums and it may show a dip," Reagan said of economic statistics due out later this week. "But that'll be a glitch," he said, contending that most signs point to an imminent recovery that he has been forecasting since early this

But in a sharp retort by the nation's ranking Democrat, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., insists that Reagan "cannot pass the buck" for the failure of Reaganomics.

"The failure Reaganomics is an American tragedy," the Masachusetts congressman charged. "Last year, President Reagan predicted a 'new era' of prosperity. Tonight he predicted 10 percent unemployment."

The Labor Department is to release new jobless figures Oct. 8 in what will be the last employment report before the November congressional elections. Most economists acknowledged the economy are predicting at least 10 per-appeared to have weakened cent unemployment, marking the first double-digit jobless rate since the tail-end of the Great Depression in 1940.

With a recovery now almost certain to arrive too late for the November elections, Democrats will try to hold Reagan and fellow Republicans responsible for worsening unemployement and a severe economic slump that refuses to end.

Uncle Sam, Happy New Year

NEW YORK (AP) - To Uncle Sam and all his 232 million nephews and nieces, a happy new fiscal year.

Sept. 30 marks the end of the government's fiscal 1982, a year that didn't turn out so well on a lot of economic and financial counts. Unfortunately, few of '82's problems seem ready to disappear overnight when fiscal '83 begins on Oct. 1.

Old '82 will be remembered as the first year ever in which the federal government spent $100 billion more than it took in. To be precise, the deficit stands at $108.95 billion, with the figures for September still to come in. It will be remembered as a year of unrelenting recession in the private economy. Labor Department statistics due to be reported next week could show that fiscal '82 ended with the unemployment rate at or above 10 percent for the first time in more than a generation.

It will be remembered, also, as a year of dramatic failures - Drysdale Government Securities, Penn Square Bank - and a year in which the smooth, liquid financial statements of some companies and countries with a stake in oil turned to sludge.

New years traditionally bring new hopes. Those given to consulting the stock market for an economic forecast point out that share prices are higher, on balance, than they were a year ago.

On Sept. 30, 1981, the Dow Jones industrial average stood at 850. Thanks to a strong rally since mid-August, it was hovering in the low 900s this week.

The spirit of risk-taking is by no means dead as the new fiscal year begins. Oct. 1 is the opening date of Walt Disney Productions' EPCOT (Experimental Prototype Community of Tomorrow), a

Fifth day of rain pounds Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - A new storm that dropped 10 inches of snow in the Rocky Mountains brought a fifth day of rain to flood-ravaged Utah today, and a beleaguered road maintenance official said, "I sure hope we get some sunshine."

The National Weather Service forecast up to an inch of new rain today for Salt Lake County, already suffering from flooded homes and washed-out roads. Snow and hail were forecast for some areas of the state.

The storms already have flooded 2,000 homes and forced the evacuation of 400 people in Salt Lake County. Thousands of volunteers sandbagged canals and rivers to keep flooding to a minimum. Damage has been estimated at up to $20 million.

Snow fell east of Ogden in the Wasatch Mountains on Tuesday night, leaving much of State Road 39 covered with slush. In Monte Cristo, about 40 miles northeast of Salt Lake City, up to 8 inches of snow fell, the highway patrol said. Hail peppered southwestern Utah.

Two captured, search continues for prisoners

CASTAIC, Calif. (AP) - A widespread search continued today for five "desperate" prisoners who kicked out a jail bus window and escaped en route to a maximumsecurity lockup in the foothills north of Los Angeles, authorities said.

Two other escaped prisoners were recaptured Tuesday and another was killed after leaping from the bus, authorities said.

The eight men jumped from a moving bus on an access road to Interstate 5 in Valencia Monday evening, sheriff's deputies said.

Herbert Anaya, 22, awaiting trial on a kidnapping charge, was captured about 9:15 p.m. Tuesday about a mile from where the men escaped, said sheriff's Deputy John Radeleff. Anaya was picked up after a citizen reported a "suspicious" person walking near Magic Mountain Parkway, Radeleff said.

Investigators said they believe most of the men took a car from a motorist and headed south on Interstate 5.

Angry creditors attendmeeting

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Only 250 of more than 80,000 creditors of struggling Braniff International Corp. appeared for their first official meeting with the grounded airline, but those who attended came prepared to express their anger.

Some of the creditors contended Tuesday that Braniff was more interested in securing its reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws than in repaying debts and helping former employees recover.

"What will happen to the stockholders of Braniff in the case of a reorganization?" asked stockholder Louise

"You probably won't like this answer," said Braniff attorney Michael Crames. "Stockholders are far down the ladder. In the case of liquidation, the stockholders' interests would be wiped out completely. That is why we are endeavoring to reorganize the company."

The airline suspended operations May 12 and filed for protection from its creditors in federal bankruptcy court the next day.

Tuesday's session was required by law to allow creditors to ask reasons for the company's actions, when debts would be paid and what is being done to reorganize or liquidate assets.

Instead of reorga.izing, senior clerk Grace Barnes said, Braniff should "liquidate, get the money and pay people back."

Former employees sought to track down missing funds from officials during the tion to creditors. Braniff Chairman Howard Putnam defended the company, saying it had given creditors "all the information available."

'We have held nothing back," he said. "People came here today to ask about when they will go back to work and about their pensions, and we can't answer them now. These things take more time than you like."

Meanwhile, the Civil Aeronautics Board was continuing its hearing in Washington on two of Braniff International's overseas routes after the company lost a court battle to stop t(e proceeding.

"It is possible that we might touch 10 percent, unemployment," he said. "I hope not." He added: "I think we are ... going around the corner" toward a recovery that would bring unemployment down.'

To those critics who blame him for the economy's troubles, Reagan said: "I must ask, did these modern day Rip Van Winkles really sleep through the America of 1980? Don't they remember the unprecedented misery of double digit inflation, climbing unemployment and record interest rates?"

Dean caught in crossfire

By Lyndell Williams TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - Texas Secretary of State David Dean did not have a good week.

On one day, his well-intended efforts to purge felons from Texas voting lists led him into a threatened libel lawsuit.

Then later, his ruling that the name of a deceased state senator must remain on the Nov. 2 ballot was challenged vehemently by the Texas Democratic Party.

The double uproar was faithfully covered by the media, and, on the bright side for him, Dean's name identification was probably greatly increased across the state.

Survivor that he is, Dean will probably capitalize the incidents into votes whenever he decides to run for office himself, as he is expected to someday.

But for now, politically speaking, Dean finds himself caught in two cracks.

The trouble erupted for Dean when it was discovered that an Austin investor running for state representative was mistakenly included in the felons list which Dean had sent to Travis County officials. It might have all been resolved quietly if not for the fact that Dean is a Republican and the candidate, Jerry Angerman, is a Democrat running against a Angerman became an angry man, and held a press conference denouncing what he implied were Dean's efforts to sabotage his campaign. Other local Democrats joined in against Dean, labeling him from incompetent to "Nazi".

Angerman said he would file a libel lawsuit against

Dean. The DPS chief, meanwhile, said his staff had made it clear to Dean's office that the list contained both felonies and misdemeanors which could not be separated by the computer.

Deceased On Ballot?

Dean's troubles increased after State Sen. John Wilson. D-LaGrange, lost his courageous battle against cancer last weekend.

The race was on to replace Wilson on the ballot, until Dean ruled that the senator had died just hours after the 45-day deadline prohibiting a replacement. The deadline was supposedly up on Saturday, and Wilson succumbed on Sunday.

Dean ruled that the Democrats could not find a replacement, and that only the names of the decased Democrat and his Republican opponent could appear on the ballot.

chairman Bob Slagle went full speed ahead anyway and the District 18 executive committee has named State Rep. John Sharp, D-Victoria, as the senatorial candidate. The Democrats charged

Texas Democratic Party

Dean was just trying to sneak in another Republican senator and bypass a fair election. They argue the law provides that, if the deadline falls on a weekend or holiday, then the deadline is extended to the next working day: in this case Monday, the day after Wilson's death. The dispute will probably wind up soon in the Texas Supreme Court.

Tribute To Wilson

If uncertainty now surrounds the seat which Sen. John Wilson occupied, it was not present when Wilson held it. He was widely respected for his prowess as a legislator.

Wilson, 43, knew for more than two years that he would die from inoperable lung cancer. He never smoked a day in his life.

Friends and political foes alike respected his skill and dedication, which became stronger as death came nearer. On Sept. 7 he was sworn in as Senate president pro tem, helped from his wheelchair while his colleagues stood close to tears.

Search for kidnapper intensifies

CONROE, Texas (AP) - A dragnet for a 38-year-old man linked to three kidnappings, including that of a man who was buried alive, widened today after two of the victims freed themselves unharmed from the trunks of two different cars, authorities said.

Ronald Floyd White was being sought by sheriff's officers, Texas Rangers and the FBI on an aggravated kidnapping warrant in the abduction of Michael Baucom. 21, of Santa Fe, Texas. Baucom was rescued Sunday after being buried alive for four days.

White may have used one victim's credit cards to buy an airplane ticket out of the country, police said.

A Houston firefighter, held at gunpoint for two days, escaped early Tuesday from the trunk of his moving car after being held for 38 hours.

An oilfield equipment worker, missing since Monday night, freed himself Tuesday night by untying ropes that bound him in a car at the San Antonio International Airport, police said.

Robert Cameron, 40, told airport authorities about 7:45 p.m. that he had been kidnapped near the town of George West when a man who said he had car trouble flagged him

FBI spokesman Ron Kettler said White had been linked to all three abductions.

Coby Garland Hamilton. the 27-year-old firefighter, said his abductor described himself as a political terrorist with a "typical Commie philosophy" who would do "whatever he can to accomplish his means."

"At first I got jittery," Hamilton told reporters Tuesday at the Montgomery County Sheriff's Department here. "Then I got a chance to talk to the Lord about it and felt better. I had great inner peace. He gave me assurance I would get out alive."

Authorities said Hamilton, who also worked as a newspaper carrier, escaped about 2 a.m. Tuesday as his car was being towed near George West, about 200 miles from where he was abducted early Sunday.

Carol Bloomhuff of Bay City, Cameron's sister-in-law, said San Antonio police called Tuesday night and put Cameron on the phone.

"He was very emotional. He couldn't talk at first, but he seemed to be in pretty good shape. He never said so, but I think he certainly feared for his life. Bob's not the kind of person who goes to pieces at just anything," Mrs. Bloomhuff said.

Cameron told his wife. Joyce, that he agreed to take the man to a service station, but "ended up in San Antonio," Ms. Bloomhuff

"Normally Bob doesn't pick up anyone ... But the man seemed to be in such distress that he apparently thought it would be okay," she said.

Ms. Bloomhuff said the couple's two sons, Michael, 18, and Mark, 14, were "ecstatic" when their father called.

"They were so emotional they were not able to speak to their father on the phone," Ms. Bloomhuff said.

Ms. Bloomhuff also said the abductor took Cameron's wallet, containing $300 in cash and his credit cards. Police told Cameron's family the kidnapper may have used the credit card in order to buy an airplane ticket out of the country, Ms. Bloomhuff said.

Cameron flew back to Bay City early today, Ms. Bloomhuff said.

Cameron's mother-in-law. Edith Wbarra of Bay City first reported Cameron mnissing Monday night.

Hamilton said his abductor forced him to drive aimlessly before starting down U.S. 5 toward the Mexican border, Montgomery County sheriff's spokesman Ed deForest said.

Hamilton said White approached him at a convenience store in New Caney a Houston suburb near Conroe - said his car had broken down, and asked for a ride.

Sheriff Joe Corley said White pulled a 45-caliber automatic pistol inside Hamilton's car and ordered Hamilton to drive around South Texas.

Hamilton said he occasionally was tied up and put in his trunk. He said he was allowed to call his wife, but told her he was taking to Lufkin "a friend of a friend" who had been in an automobile accident.

Hamilton said he knew the story was one his wife would not believe. She later called authorities.

White ordered him to stop his car just outside George West about dusk Sunday, then tied him up and forced him to the get into the trunk, he said. Hamilton said he untied himself and managed to break out of the trunk and get into his car.

Authorities said Hamilton had been left in the trunk since 4 p.m. Monday and he freed himself around 2 a.m. Tuesday.

Baucom was buried alive for four days while his kidnappers attempted to arrange for a $75,000 ransom from his father. Baucom crawled to freedom Sunday morning. He suffered from a lack of water, from flea and ant bites, but was otherwise uninjured. Police made three arrests in the kidnapping and put out a warrant for White. They then were taken to Baucom's tomb. Charged with aggravated kidnapping were Mark Oler. 21, Deborah Williams, 29, and Tymothy Michael Connelly, 19, all of Conroe. The three are being held on $10,000 bonds in the Galveston County Jail.

3-5A playoff chase starting to heat up

BY LES GILES Sports Editor

The race for this year's two playoff spots, as the District 3-5A campaign heads into its fourth week, is beginning to heat up rapidly.

Monterey presently leads the way, after its 6-0 win over Hereford last Friday, but the Plainsmen are hardly a shoo-in at this point.

Plainview, the pre-season favorite to win the district title, is a half-game back of Monterey, while Coronado, Amarillo High and Hereford have only one loss.

Hereford will try to get back on the win track Friday when it hosts Caprock at 7:30 p.m.

Plainview head coach Greg Sherwood has suffered only two district losses since he's been there - to Monterey in 1979 and to Hereford last year.

Since Sherwood has been at Plainview, his Bulldogs have never lost to an Amarillo school at Dick Bivins Stadium. The Bulldogs have been beaten by Amarillo schools, but the losses have been in Plainview.

Hereford and Caprock will be meeting for only the second time in history.

The first meeting came in 1973 bi-district game, won by Hereford, 13-7.

This week's 3-5A statistics show Hereford leading in both total offense and total defense. The Herd, despite a 207-yard output against Monterey last week, is averaging 362 yards a game, while allowing 162.

Plainview ranks second in total offense (279 yards a game) and Monterey second defensively, yielding 169 yards a game.

Caprock is third in the district in total defense (183), but next-to-last (eighth) in total offense, averaging 170 yards

Plainview's 32.3 points per game ranks as the best in the district, while Monterey leads in fewest points allowed (four per game, or 16 through four weeks). The Plainsmen have allowed only two touchdowns this season.

Individually, Hereford's Alfred Ball continues to lead the league in rushing. Although he managed only 52 yards

It was the first - and only - hit off the 6-foot-4 righthander as he faced only 28 batters, one over the minimum, in hurling the Blue Jays to a 3-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Toronto completed a sweep of the doubleheader by downing Minnesota 4-3 in the nightcap.

"It was a good pitch," Clancy said of the one that Bush hit. "It was a fastball in. It broke his bat, but I guess I didn't get it in good enough. I thought for a while he (Garcia) might have been able to Clancy admitted to getting the jitters through the final three innings.

"My legs were shaking on every pitch the last couple of innings when the fans starting cheering every time I came out."

Bush, who went into the game hitting .248, got just enough of the ball to muscle it out of the infield.

"I didn't think it would fall in," he said. "It was a broken-bat hit."

Herd netters lose sixth straight match

In what has become a long season, Hereford's volleyball team suffered its sixth straight district setback Tuesday, bowing to Tascosa, 15-5 and 15-13.

The loss left Hereford with a 1-6 record in District 3-5A play, and a 3-14 mark overall.

Tascosa's triumph kept the Rebels a game behind league leader Caprock, which ran its loop record to 7-0 by defeating Amarillo High Tuesday.

Tuesday's games ended the first half of the district season.

Hereford begins the second half of league play Thursday by hosting Lubbock High, the only team it has beaten in district action thus far.

"Men of '51" following torrid NL pennant race

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

All over the country there's a bunch of middle-aged men following with keenest interest the cavalry-charge finish in baseball's National League West, and they're wondering:

Could it happen again? They're the "men of '51" the Dodgers and the Giants, Brooklyn and New York variety - who still live the excitement of the "Miracle of last-gasp playoff victory over Coogan's Bluff," and the home run heard 'round the world'.

"The greatest moment I've experienced in baseball," says National League President Chub Feeney, then vice president of the Giants, who was peeking out a window of his center field office at the Polo Grounds when Bobby Thomson lashed a three-run homer that gave the Giants a the Dodgers for the National League pennant.

There are people today who still don't believe it happened, yet it's conceivable although the odds are long that a similar drama could unfold next Sunday, exactly 31 years later, when the transplanted Dodgers and Giants clash in the climactic game of their final threegame series.

"There is certainly a cor- The Giants came out of ollary in the two situations," Feeney said. "In both cases, the Giants had to make strong comebacks after slow starts. The difference is, whereas we had a two-team race in '51, we now have, with nowhere, 131/2 games back at the end of July, and eight games out moving into September. Today they are in third place, two games behind Atlanta; one behind the Dodgers.

The 1951 Giants put on a powerful, late-summer drive, winning 16 of their last 20 games and 38 of their last 47.

the Dodgers with two games left. Both won those games to throw the race into a tie and force a best-of-three playoff. The Giants won the opener 3-1. The Dodgers took the second game, 10-0. Then came the decider.

The Giants' Sal Maglie pitched against the Dodgers' Don Newcombe.

The Dodgers got eight hits off Maglie and took a 4-1 lead into the bottom of the ninth. Horace Stoneham, the Giants' owner, was seen leaving his box. He and other Giants fans had given up.

But then Alvin Dark and Don Mueller singled. Monte Irvin, the team's RBI leader with 121, fouled out. But Whitey Lockman doubled, scoring Dark and sending Mueller to third. Mueller

Dodger Manager Charlie Dressen yanked Newcombe and brought in Ralph Branca, normally a starter and who had been a 20-game winner at age 21, to face Thomson.

Monte Stratton dead at age 70

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) - Monty Stratton, whose attempt to make a comeback in professional baseball after losing a leg made him the subject of a major motion picture, died today. He was 70.

Funeral services were pending.

Stratton died in the Citizens General Hospital in Greenville. He had suffered cancer in various forms for a number of years. He was a native of the area.

Stratton pitched for the Chicago White Sox, but his career was shortened when he lost his leg in a hunting accident in 1938. His comeback attempt in pro ball inspired a 1948 movie, "The Stratton Story," that starred James Stewart and June Allyson.

He was inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame two Stratton made his major league debut late in the 1935 season after being called up from St. Paul in the American

The swift, 6-foot-5, 195-pound fastballer became a starter for the White Sox during the 1937 and 1938 seasons. He had just finished two 15-game winning seasons when, on a bleak Nov. 27, 1938, a shotgun blast ripped through his Hunting rabbits on his mother's farm near Greenville, he was going down hill toward a small creek when he slipped on a piece of brush and fell. His gun accidentally discharged, and his leg was amputated the next day in a Dallas hospital.

But Stratton didn't give up baseball, a game he walked 10 miles to play on a cow pasture as a boy.

Equipped with a wooden leg, he worked with the White Sox for the next two years as a coach and batting practice pitcher. When the war came, he tried to enlist but was rebuffed. He organized a semi-pro team at Greenville, always working, experimenting — in his living room or throwing against the barn, with his wife, Ethel, as a cat-

Finally, he was ready and he startled the baseball world in 1946 by not only pitching professionally but by winning 18 games with Sherman in the Class C East Texas League.

The next year, he had only a 7-7 record with Waco in the Class B Big State League, but he felt he could have done better the next year. But Hollywood wanted to film his ory, and he agreed

"I got to where I could field bunts pretty well, but I wasn't able to get any spring off the mound, and therefore I didn't have the fast ball I once had," Stratton said.

He sold movie rights to his story and spent a year in Hollywood as an adviser, while Stewart "did a great job playing me, in a picture which I figure was about as true to life as they could make it."

Asked once if the movie of him told it like it was, Strat-

"Yep, they just told about the life of an old country boy. They had to condense it, but it was pretty well accurate except for the ending."

One scene in the movie had the crippled Stratton (Stewart) learning how to pitch again by throwing the ball to his wife (Allyson) out by the barn. He finally gets enough steam on the ball to topple her backward.

"It actually happened, and I was a pretty good catcher back then," Mrs. Stratton said in an interview several years ago.

The close of the film had Stratton pitching his comeback debut in an all-star game at Houston. Stratton allows some hits and a run but wins it by throwing out the last batter of the game while still on the ground after fielding a

"This is the only part of the movie that isn't true. Actually, I pitched a three-hitter and drove in the only two runs of the game with a single off the centerfield fence," Stratton said.

"The movie people didn't think anybody would believe a one-legged pitcher could pitch a shutout.'

It will easy to tell the two coaches apart. Bryant - the tall, gravel-voiced man shuffling along in the checkered houndstooth hat. Lacewell the sawed-off whippersnapper with the high-pitched sound and a bunch of funny lines like this:

Or this:

-"The difference between us and Alabama is that when a first-team player at Alabama gets hurt, he's a high school All-American. The second-teamer they bring in to replace him is another high school All-American. My first-team player was all-district. My second-teamer was allcounty, maybe just all-town."

Lacewell was born in Fordyce 24 years after Bryant, who actually hails from the Fordyce "suburb" of Moro Bottom, which Lacewell says is "so far out in the country they have to pipe in sunlight."

High Frontier: latest defense proposal

By HOWARD BENEDICT AP Aerospace Writer

WASHINGTON (AR) -The concept is staggering: station 432 killer satellites in orbit, each with 40-50 rockets ready to knock out attacking Soviet missiles before they can reach their American targets. The cost: $50 billion.

The plan, labeled High Frontier, was introduced to the public in March. Its chief architect says it has received considerable attention on Capitol Hill and some response in the White House - but little notice from the State Department and a cold shoulder from the Pentagon. "We have several hurdles to get over, but we feel confident," said retired Army Lt. Gen. Daniel O. Graham, former head of the Pentagon's Defense Intelligence Agency and a military adviser to Ronald Reagan during the 1980 presidential campaign. "We hope within a month or so to have either an amendment in Congress or instructions for the administration to consider."

High Frontier resulted from a seven-month study commissioned by The Heritage Foundation, a conservative, Washington-based public policy research institute. It was drawn up by a team of 31 scientists, space engineers, economists and military strategists directed by Graham.

Other proposals in the plan are a defense system around U.S. ballistic missile silos, an advanced manned space shuttle to open up industrialization of space and development of solar power satellites to beam energy to Earth.

The killer satellite network is the centerpiece of the plan and has drawn the most attention and created the most controversy.

orbits, Graham said, at least one-fourth of them would be in position at any time to repulse a Russian missile attack. They would be in two layers — the first to intercept rockets as they rise into the atmosphere, the second to knock out those along the path to their target in case they get by the initial defense line.

Here's how the system would work:

-A Soviet missile bursts out of its silo aimed at a target in the United States or Western Europe.

-An American early warning satellite tracks the missile using infrared sensors and radar and computes its course, selecting a highprobability point in the atmosphere through which the missile will pass.

-A designated killer satellite launches one of its rocket-propelled canisters containing a conventional explosive at the interception point. As the canister nears the missile it explodes, somewhat like a grenade, into several hundred small explosives, some of which hit and destroy the missile.

-Any missile which penetrates both layers of the satellite defense is cleaned up by a ground-based antimissile net protecting U.S. silos.

Graham said that even though he had been a Reagan military adviser just two years ago, he had "some initial trouble getting through the palace guard" in attempts to present the plan to the White House.

But in recent weeks, he said, he has talked with White House science officials, and "we believe the presidential science adviser, Dr. George Graham said that perhaps A. Keyworth, is moving from the biggest obstacle to the a rather negative view to a view that we should have a community that advocates spaceborne defense system the Mutual Assured Destruc- against missiles." Some defense officials, he said, might fear a loss of authority in the High Frontier recommendation that development of the killer satellite force be given independent status so it can be implemented quickly. Graham said, however, he was encouraged when Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger recently spoke of the need for a space-based defense system against missiles.

Graham said major High Frontier supporters in Congress, all Republican, are Sens. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, William V. Roth of Delaware, William L. Armstrong of Colorado and Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming and Reps. G. William Whitehurst of Virginia, Newt Gingrich of Georgia and Kenneth B. Kramer of Colorado.

He said he plans to meet soon with Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, a liberal Democrat who has expressed an interest in the plan.

Behavior self-destructive

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 25-year-old daughter has been dating a 23-year-old excuse for a man nearly two,

We do not approve of this person because we do not know his true personality. We have never seen him sober. He passes out at parties, and it's up to the host to arrange to get him home. Our daughter must use her car whenever they go out because ed - for drunken driving, of course.

We are sick of him waking up the whole family at all hours with his telephone calls. Many nights she has thrown her clothes on and left the house to meet him in some crummy bar.

We know our daughter reads your column and that she respects you. We have talked to her until we are blue in the face. Now will you please say something? --Beside Ourselves In Rapids.

DEAR B.O.: If you have described the situation accurately, there is nothing I can say that will make any difference. Your daughter's behavior is self-destructive. One of the worst things about going with drunks is that it's so easy to join them. I wish her luck. She'll need it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You goofed. There IS an escape from the tyranny of copper. I refer to your comment (that there was not) when a reader suggested the merchants stop pricing items at 99 cents and $2.98, so they'd seem cheaper.

You said some dumb thing about getting stuck with pennies, no matter what, because of the tax.

Several years ago I managed a gift shop in Dallas. When the local government added a gift tax of 2 cents, I priced the $1 items at 98 cents. Later when the tax went to 4 cents, I priced the $1 items at 96 cents. I applied the same formula to everything we sold, from 19 cents to $75. This was why we never had a copper shortage.

Tax is paid on accumulated value sold. Sometimes the merchant collects extra tax, and sometimes he's a little short - but it averages out and he doesn't lose anything.

There is always a better way to do things in business but it means using your head - which so many people find extremely difficult. - G.W. In The Big D.

DEAR BIG D .:: How true, Thanks for hauling me up short. I had it coming.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our eldest daughter is being married soon. She is a young business executive and her soon-to-be husband is a fine, well-respected man. We gave our other daughters beautiful weddings and we plan to do the same for Lorraine.

Yesterday we went shopping for her wedding gown, and she chose an off-theshoulder style which would be gorgeous except for one thing. Lorraine has a tattoo on her right shoulder - a remnant of her rebellious college

Members of the Pioneer Study Club met at the Caison House for lunch on Tuesday with Mmes. H.E. Miller and Frank Ball as hostesses.

After Mrs. Ray Johnson presented new club yearbooks, Mrs. Delmar Sigle gave a program entitled "Look What Dickens Did" outlining the formation of the General Federation of Women's Club, of which the Pioneer Study Club is a member.

She noted that today the GFWC, which was chartered by Congress in 1901, is the largest international service organization of volunteer women in the world with clubs in all states, including the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, and in 46 other

CBS places first in Nielsens

LOS ANGELES (AP) -The top-rated prime-time television show last week was CBS' "The Royal Romance of Charles and Diana," placing it well ahead of a version ABC rushed to the air in a bid to win viewers, figures from the A.C. Nielson Co. show.

The CBS movie finished atop the Nielsen ratings for the week ended Sept. 26 with a rating of 24.0. Nielsen says that means in an average minute of the show, 24 percent of the televisionequipped homes in the nation saw at least part of the program.

"Charles & Diana: A Royal Love Story," the version ABC hastily scheduled a few days ahead of the CBS movie, was No. 28 for the week ended Sept. 19. The ABC move failed in its apparent bid to get the ratings by being first.

In all, CBS took seven of the Top 10. ABC had two and NBC had one.

NBC had the week's five lowest-rated shows: "Powers of Matthew Star," "CHiPs," "NBC White Paper: The Man Who Shot the Pope," the NBC Friday Night Movie, "The Martian Chronicles, Part III,"; and the Sunday Canadian Football League Game

CBS easily won the week with a rating of 17.6. ABC was second with 15.8, and NBC was third with 14.4. The networks say this means in an average prime-time minute, 17.6 percent of the nation's homes with TV were tuned to CBS.

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated program:

"Royal Romance of Charles and Diana," a rating of 24.0 or 20 million households, CBS; "60 Minutes," 23.6 or 19.7 million. CBS; "Trapper John, M.D.," 22.8 or 19 million, CBS; "The Jeffersons," 21.9 or 18.2, CBS; "One Day at a Time," CBS, and "Knight Rider," NBC, tie, 21.7 or 18.1 million; "WKRP in Cincinnati," 21.0 or 17.5 million, CBS; "Gloria," 20.9 or 17.4 million, CBS; "Hart to Hart," 20.7 or 17.2, ABC; "Too Close for Comfort," 20.5 or 17.1 million, ABC.

Guests and members

Besides procreating and dying, that's about all they

But a group of pigs housed in a small, austere room behind the College of Veterinary Medicine at Texas A&M University are an exception to the general rule. These pigs work.

Four times a week, they climb up on a treadmill and run. And run. And run. For 30 minutes they run - at a pace calculated to be about 80 percent as fast as they possibly can run. They do this in the service of better health. Human health, that is.

The pigs are part of a research project designed to see whether exercise can decrease or even eliminate the buildup of fatty tissues known as plaque in the body's main artery. That plaque buildup leads to a condition called arterosclerosis. When pieces of plaque break away from the arterial wall, they can clog smaller arteries in the heart, causing a heart attack. When the plaque material breaks off and clogs an artery in the brain, the result is a stroke. "Since half a million people a year in the United States die of complications from this disease (arteriosclerosis) either from heart attacks or strokes — it's a matter of considerable interest," says Dr. David R. Gross, a professor of verterminary physiology. Gross is conducting the experiment along with Gijs van Oort, a Dutch-born doctoral student in health and physical education. The work is funded by the university's Center for Comparative Medicine.

Other researchers have posited a relationship between exercise and the elimination of fatty deposits in the arteries. But Gross says most of the evidence is based on studies of human populations, where it's impossible to isolate one factor and say positively that it's the cause of the healthy blood vessels. "That's always the problem in any study done on humans," Van Oort says. "You can't control all the variables. "But by using the animal model you can control all the variables," he said. "You can keep them all under the same conditions - same amount of stress, same temperature, same type of handling. The only thing different is the amount of exercise and the Van Oort and Gross have divided their collection of 20 miniature pigs into four groups. Pigs were chosen for the experiment because their cardiovascular system resembles that of humans and because, like humans, they are omnivores.

One group gets ordinary pig feed and does no exercise. A second group has regular feed and hits the treadmill for the workout four times a week. The third group gets a diet high in fat and cholestrol and does not exercise. The last group gets the high fat diet and exercises.

Gross describes the highfat diets "equivalent to someone who ate very, very rich French food every day, along with a half-gallon of ice cream.'

For eight weeks, the pigs eat. Then they are put on the treadmill for eight weeks of exercise.

The treadmill is an old machine designed for humans which Van Oort got from A&M's physical education department. He built a wooden cage around it to keep the animals on course and decorated the cage with - what else? - a portrait of the ineffable Miss Peggy.

The cage "looked pretty shabby in the beginning, so I had to do something to cheen it up," Van Oort says.

To entice the pigs to their labors, he places an Oreo cookie on the treadmill. He had learned from another researcher that pigs are quite partial to the popular cookie.

But as Gross explains, when the bill for the Oreos reached the desk of university budget control officers, it did raise some evebrows.

"So, I sent the famous cookie memo," he says, "detailing exactly what we did with the cookies - with photographs."

What Gross and Van Oort hope to see when the research project is completed is that the pigs on the high-fat diet who exercised have demonstrably less fatty tissue in their aortas than those who ate the rich diet but weren't exercised.

Eight pigs already have run through the 16-week experiment and their aortas have been extracted for inspection.

The preliminary evidence looks promising, officials

"Our impression is that exercise does cause less plaque," Gross said, "but we haven't completed all the necessary measurements yet, so we can't say for sure."

"Strong beliefs win strong men, and then make them stronger." Walter Bagehot

The Manville bankruptcy

NEW YORK (NEA) - The bankruptcy petition of the Manville Corporation, formerly Johns Manville of asbestos fame, focuses attention on a problem that predictably is going to recur from time to time, and reminds us that we ought to be devising some equitable way of dealing with it.

Every corporation that works with advanced technology runs the risk of encountering wholly unanticipated perils, the ill effects of which may not manifest themselves until long after it is too late to avoid them. In the case of Manville, it now seems established that workers who repeatedly inhaled these fireproof mineral fibers, back in the days before their dangers were discovered and adequate safeguards installed, run a higher than normal risk of developing lung cancer or other lung diseases.

Now they or their surviving families are coming after Manville by the thousands, accompanied by lawyers and demanding millions of dollars in damages in each individual case. It is often no great trick for a clever lawyer to convince a jury that there was a causal relation between a worker's illness and asbestos fibers in the atmosphere of his workplace — and then to persuade the jurors that proper compensation for his suffering and-or death, plus his loss of income (on which his family depended), is a cool two or three million dollars. How much of this goes to the plaintiff's attorney is between him and his client, but it is usually about

Calculating what it will have to pay in damages if even a substantial fraction of these lawsuits go against it, Manville which is otherwise a perfectly healthy company - correctly concluded that its assets are exceeded by its (potential) liabilities, and accordingly filed a petition in bankrupt-

There are two separate questions here, the first of which is exactly how many of these claims are in fact justified. As it becomes harder, thanks to modern medicine, to die of other things, a few intractable illnesses like cancer and the diseases of old age assume a larger role in the mortality tables. At present, one out of every four or five Americans can expect to die of cancer even if he or she never came within whiffing distance of an asbestos fiber. This means that at least 2,000 out of every 10,000 cancer victims who bring lawsuits against Manville would have contracted the disease anyway, whether they had worked for Manville or not, and that of course makes it extremely difficult to establish the causal relationship needed for recovery of damages. The trouble is that juries, confronted by weeping widows and orphaned children are often tempted to raid some corporate treasury in an effort to console them, whether a solid case for the corporation's responsibility has been established or

The only remedy here is dry-eyed judges, either in the trial itself or on appeal. Excessive verdicts can be reduced, or set aside altogether, and certainly ought to be in appropriate cases

But what about those cases in which a causal connection between asbestos fibers and the plaintiff's illness has been satisfactorily established? Should the sky be the only limit to the damages awarded in every such case?

Even if we decide it should, it won't be — if only because the Manville Corporation isn't infinitely rich. If the first two or three thousand plaintiffs (and their lawyers) waltz off with a couple of million bucks apiece, there may be nothing at all left for plaintiffs coming along later with claims just as good, or better. There may also be no Manville Corpora-

The solution here is legislation to bring a little order into this disorderly and highly emotional area. In particular, the amounts of individual jury verdicts in these cases could be limited, especially so that they would bear some relation to the age and potential earning capacity of the plaintiffs. The latter can be calculated, for any given age, by actuarial tables unimpressed by baritone attorneys with moist eyes.

The objective would not be to relieve the Manville Corporation of a responsibility which it must clearly share, but to make that burden financially bearable and distribute the available compensation more equaitably among those entitled to it. In the long run we will all be better off if Manville survives and, under proper safeguards, continues to mine those fireproof fibers that have, after all, not only cost but saved an unknown number of lives.

Most of the 3.9 million people lived in farm areas.

Spectrum of depression

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a manic-depressive. I know plenty of others in the same boat, some better some worse. One of the biggest injustices to us is the overemphasis given to will power. Will power is fine. It is important in patients with heart problems, diabetes or any other chronic physical problem. My psychiatrist and internist agree that chronic depression is a physical disease caused by a chemical imbalance. Many news stories and even medical columns seem to say our problem is mostly weakness, that we "don't strive to help ourselves." What a put-down. No one should be told that will power will heal. We don't need a guilt trip added to our other problems. By taking medicine faithfully and trying to diversify my activities I function normally. Twelve years and a long fight back from a complete mental breakdown have given me insight into long fight back. DEAR READER Thank you for sharing your thoughts. You are mostly right in your remarks. You can add to "will power" the frequent comment that a friend you can talk to will solve the problem. It won't, and that is dangerous

I would not have had such a meddling. Depressions are dangerous disorders and can be life threatening. The only proper course is to get professional help, and the sooner the better. Part of the confusion stems from the broad spectrum of depression. Everyone has mood swings. The degree and duration is the important point. In fact, those disappointments in life and mild depression or mood ing a mature personality — growing up. But these are vastly different from the more severe and longer disorder of the manic-depres-

There is another danger. It is not always easy to recognize depression. A man may be impotent because he is depressed, not because he hates women. Another person may have chronic constipation as a symptom but it may be caused from depression. You will appreciate reading The Health Letter 10-10. Depression: The Ups and Downs of Life, which I am sending you. Others can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 25-year-old female. A couple of years ago I had a tubal ligation done for health purposes. I would like to know if there is any chance of getting pregnant. Is this a sure method of birth control? I have never been sexually active but I would like to know what to expect should I decide to do so. Can I do it without worry? I read that a sterile womb is a seat for cancer later in life. Is

DEAR READER - If you have had BOTH tubes ligated there should be no way that an ovum can enter the tubes and be fertilized Tubal ligation done for the purposes of birth control is one of the most effective and sure methods available. Rarely the tubes reunite or overcome the injury of liga-tion. You should check with your doctor to be sure what kind of operation you had that it involved both

If the tubes are ligated and the ovaries are healthy and left alone your uterus should function normally. In that case you should not have any more problems than other woman who never becomes pregnant. I know of no evidence that lack of having children predisposes a woman to cancer of the
