President heads for summit meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, embarked Saturday for his first summit meeting with a Soviet leader, harbors no fanciful illusions about the "tough-minded people" with whom he'll be dealing in Geneva, said a top aide.

Reagan and his wife Nancy left the White House Saturday amid a flurry of pomp and color, with members of the Cabinet and several hundred invited guests on the South Lawn wishing him well, waving tiny U.S. flags and holding aloft posters reading "Good luck" and "Our prayers are with you Mr. President."

At Andrews Air Force Base, the president shook hands with Vice President George Bush before boarding the plane for the eight-hour flight.

Reagan's trans-Atlantic flight aboard Air Force One was due to put him in Geneva at 4:30 p.m. EST. He planned meetings with his senior advisers Sunday and Monday in preparation for the start of talks with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev there Tuesday morning.

In a significant step before his departure, word was received that 10 Soviets with relatives or other ties in the United States would be allowed to emigrate, said State Department spokesman Bruce Ammerman. Eight are married to Americans, one has relatives in the United States and another holds dual U.S.-Soviet citizenship, he said.

All were on lists of Russians from divided families submitted by the State Department to Moscow in advance of the summit meeting. A department official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the United States would continue to insist on release of the others as well.

The president has declared a principal goal of the superpower meeting is easing "suspicions and mistrust" between the two superpowers in their first summit in more than six years. He will propose the broadest people-to-people exchange between the United States and the Soviet Union in more than six years.

Virtually ruled out by U.S. officials is any breakthrough in arms control. Administration officials have described differences between the two sides as too deep to bridge at the summit.

The senior Reagan adviser, meanwhile, told reporters at the White House on Friday it would be "fanciful" to expect solutions across a wide range of issues although some agreements would be concluded in Geneva.

Phone call unites lost relatives

Last week, Carmen Briones received a phone call from her nephew Aurelio, from Germany. She had been waiting 60 years for word from the child she last saw at a niece's funeral when the boy was three.

For Aurelio, she was his only family.

"Delphina had been ill for nine months and she passed away during the night," said Carmen remembering her older sister.

"Ginoveba was five then and Aurelio, my nephew was three," she explained.

Carmen, already helping care for three of the family's children, also took in Genoveba and Aurelio.

"Later the father came and took the boy and girl to Uvalde," said Briones.

While living in Uvalde, Genoveba was bitten by a skunk and died of rabies. Briones went to the funeral and this was the last time she saw her nephew.

"The father, Martin, died a year and a half later," said Briones. She said the boy was then taken care of by his paternal grandmother.

Aurelio went to school in Uvalde. After graduation, the boy went into the Air Force.

Aurelio was in the service for three days when he received word that his grandmother had of a heart attack died.

In 1941, Aurelio tried to find Briones. He went to Eaglepass and was told she had left for Montana one day earlier, before he arrived. Aurelio then went back to Germany, he was only home on leave.

Over the years, Briones didn't give up.

"I went to Uvalde three times..." said Briones, "asking uncles of my nephew, asking everybody if they knew where Aurelio was."

L'Allegra assuming Project Christmas Card

The L'Allegra Study Club has graciously assumed the management of the annual Project Christmas Card which the Hereford Medical Auxiliary has relinquished this year.

The auxiliary has sponsored the project for the past 29 years. An auxiliary spokeswoman said the group's relinquishment was only due to a change in times and in the size of its group.

Volcano toll at 20,000

ARMERO, Colombia (AP) — Authorities evacuated a river valley dammed by ice blown off the top of a volcano, fearing sudden floods would add to the more than 20,000 deaths already blamed on mudslides unleashed by the eruption.

The Ministry of Health said 21,559 persons were dead or missing in a statement released Saturday, but did not say how many bodies have been recovered.

A wall of mud created by snow melted by the volcano roared down the Armero Valley on Wednesday night, burying this town about 105 miles northwest of Bogota and partially destroying 13 villages.

La Madre Mia Study Club informally kicked off the Christmas Stocking Fund campaign this week by donating $100 to the annual project. The CSF started five years ago by an anonymous group of men to help make Christmas brighter for local needy families. The Brand collects funds for the campaign.

In addition, La Madre Mia members contributed $100 to help a needy family during the Thanksgiving period. That's two good reasons for buying a $2 ticket to the club's Christmas Tour of Homes next Sunday—enjoyable afternoon out and the money goes to worthwhile causes.

How big will Deaf Smith County be by the year 2000? It will grow 34 percent and reach a total population of 27,683, according to a projection made by the Kiplinger Texas Letter. If the projections are correct, Deaf Smith would join Randall, Oldham and Hartley as the fastest growing counties in the Panhandle.

The forecast is for Texas to keep outpacing the U.S. totals. Texas is predicted to have 20 to 22 million people by the year 2000, compared to about 16 million at present. Potter County is predicted to have a 28.8 percent growth.

The following article was borrowed from a church bulletin.

"To make it possible for everybody to attend church next Sunday:

"Cots will be placed in the back for those who say Sunday is the only day they can sleep.

"Blankets will be provided for those who say the church is too cold.

"Fans will be provided for those who say the church is too hot.

"We will have hearing aids for those who say the minister talks too soft and cotton for those who say he talks too loud and alarm clocks for those who say he talks too long!

"Calculators will be available for those who enjoy counting the hypocrites present.

"Finally, the sanctuary will be decorated with both Christmas poinsettias and Easter lilies for those who have never seen a church without them."

Local priest's collection to be displayed in Amarillo mall

By CINDY SMITH

Creche, nativities, manger scene, Joseph and Mary and Baby Jesus lying in his crib, Christmas cribs...

These are all synonyms for the collection that Father Joseph Egan will be displaying at Amarillo's Westgate Mall in celebration of Christ's birthday. Father Egan has close to 100 creches from 21 countries and five continents.

He was inspired during the 1965 World's Fair in New York by the Vatican's exposition which included nativity scenes from around the world.

"At that time, I had a few creches and I was prompted to display them all year 'round rather than putting them back in the boxes and storing them in the attic until next Christmas," explained Father Egan. "This was really the beginning of seriously collecting creches as a hobby."

Egan, of Irish descent, said the Irish always referred to the scenes as "Christmas cribs."

Through the years Father Egan has been interviewed about his collection on several television programs, including shows in New York and South Bend, Ind.

The collection has been exhibited at New York Bible Society's headquarters, Gimbel's Dept. Store, and numerous public places, churches, and schools.

The creche collection was on

"Creches...not just for church or Christmas" display last year in the Deaf Smith County Library and has been displayed in other libraries such as the University of Notre Dame, the largest collegiate library of the world.

"These creches are not just for church or Christmas," stressed Egan. "They're to be enjoyed and shared all year around."

"My favorite creche is a 3-piece wood carving from Zambia in Central Africa that was made especially for me, and was given to me as a present when I celebrated Christmas in Lusak (Zambia's capitol) in 1972," grinned Egan.

He also has another favorite, a creche he found in a store window in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

"While I was visiting the capitol of Brazil, I found the little treasure and the store was closed.

"I went back, found my way to the store, which wasn't easy, and bought it the next day.

"This particular scene includes a small tree that I carefully wrapped and carried all the way back to New York.

"Over the years it has lost several twigs," laughed the father, but one could tell by the way he unpacked it, that he could still see the twigs that were no longer there.

He doesn't travel exclusively to buy the creches.

"But I do keep my eyes open for these unusual treasures at art festivals," he said. "And I usually buy one scene a year.

"I don't buy these five and dimes, I care where the creches come from. They mean more to me."

Outdoor at an art fair in Richmond, Vt., the father picked up a beautiful ceramic and asked who the artist was. She happened to be the girl he was asking.

Egan had said how impressive it was to meet and get to visit with the artists of such unusual figurines.

"That's what makes it so special," smiled Egan.

"A lot of my creches have been given to me as gifts by family and friends who know about my collection," said the father.

Father Egan recently received a multi-colored wood carving from El Salvador, sent by his brother, John.

"The gifts are not only given at Christmas time, you see. My brother gave me this carving in celebration of my 35th anniversary of my priesthood this past June," said Egan.

The father is very excited about his creches being exhibited at Westgate Mall.

Egan said he's not selling anything—he's just excited about the message of the birth of Jesus that will be enjoyed by thousands, especially children, going through the mall during the Christmas season.

Father Egan's creche collection will be displayed at Robin's Rappin' located between Hickory Farms and Spencer's Gifts in the mall.

The Christmas cribs will be on display beginning today through New Year's from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. weekdays. On Sundays the Christmas collection can be seen from 12:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

—Powell, Lasiter named honorees—

Marjorie Lasiter and Audrey Powell have been selected by the local Classroom Teachers association as the Hereford School Districts honorees as Administrator of the Year and Retiree of the year, respectively.

The two will be submitted to the state CTA office for competition among other districts in the state that are Hereford's size.

Lasiter has been director of special education for Hereford schools for the last 10 years. Prior to that she was a special education counselor and diagnostician for the district.

From 1956 through 1970 she was a classroom teacher in Littlefield, Callalen and the Pharr-San Juan-Alamo districts.

After graduation from Cherokee, Texas, High School, Lasiter attended Southwest Texas University, Pan American University, Texas Tech and West Texas State University.

She is a member of the Hereford Educators Association and was a lifetime member of CTA until she became an administrator. She also holds memberships in the National Education Association, the Council for Exceptional Children, the North Plains Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, the Texas Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, the Texas Association for Supervision and Curriculum, the Panhandle School Leaders Association, and the Educational Diagnosticians Association.

Through speaking at civic clubs and other organizations she strives to make the public aware of the district's programs and needs of the special education department.

Powell spent 38 years teaching and was a charter member of the local CTA when it was formed 35 years ago in Hereford. Three times she has been the organization's secretary.

Prior to her 35 years at Hereford she taught one year each at Aspermont, Abilene and Amherst schools.

She received an associate of arts degree from Wayland Baptist, then continued at Hardin Simmons University for bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees. She received her master's from West Texas State University.

She is a lifetime Texas State Teachers Association member and is a member of NEA.

She has been a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, which is by invitation only for teachers, for 15 years. In that organization she has been at the treasurer and president's posts.

She is involved in the Order of the Eastern Star and attends First Baptist Church.

Texan walks the line

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

A new Texan is traipsing around. He's walking 3,200 miles of the state border on foot with backpack and tent.

"I've always been impressed with Texas and its history," said Vasile Bolos, 42, of Houston.

Walking since Sept. 17, Bolos has walked a total of 1,230 miles of Texas with another 2,000 miles to go.

"I walk the closest highways to the Texas border, only the outlying counties," explained Bolos. "So far I have covered 36 counties out of the 71 outside counties."

Bolos walked into Hereford last Tuesday night around 9 p.m. and he spent the night here just walking around.

What most impressed him about Hereford Tuesday night?

"Everybody wanted to pick me up and give me a ride," laughed the man, overwhelmed by the people's kindness.

"It's a pretty big county, when you think of Lipscomb County which had only six or seven houses," he smiled.

Born in Romania, Bolos has lived in Texas since 1978. He has a wife and two grown children who live in Houston where he previously worked as a machinist.

"I thought of walking across Texas six years ago..." said Bolos, sentimentally. "I went to see the San Jacinto monument a few times in Houston, and that impressed me so much that I decided to walk for the 150th anniversary of Texas," said Bolos with sincerity.

A friend of Bolos' from Houston will be in Hereford Monday morning to follow him part of the way in a van since winter is coming.

"Those long roads on the west are very difficult in carrying too much supplies," said Bolos. "That is why I need someone to follow me, help support me morally," he explained.

"Also, when my friend gets here I'll be able to carry more painting supplies so I can do some of the pain-Duro would be to build a fire and soon coyotes would be around asking me what I was doing on their land," said Bolos.

"It surely was their land at one time," he said.

"When I finish the walk I plan to take this route again by driving," said Bolos, "this time to get more research on Texas and its history."

"I plan to take photographs, stop and talk to the people I have met, and I want to paint a lot of Texas' scenery," said Bolos.

"I do intend to write a book on Texas in general," he said. "I have paintings and sculptures made especially for the Sesquicentennial which will be my way of appreciating Texas and its anniversary," said the backpacker.

"Probably, the central idea of my book will be the people that make up Texas," said Bolos.

"That's just it—without the people, we probably wouldn't have Texas."

With his next stop being Farwell, the proud Texan heads off toward Muleshoe and will walk on highway 214 until he completes the long journey.

Coyotes would be asking me...

"And that's where I started out, at the monument and I'll be back there the 2nd of March," said Bolos with a thick accent. "I have to be there the 2nd of March, dead or alive...I have to be there because it's Texas' Independence Day."

He said if he walks and gets there any sooner, it's okay. "But I've got to be at that monument on the 2nd of March," said Bolos. He is serious about it.

tings that I want to do," he said.

Bolos explained that another advantage of his friend coming would be that he would have a van to sleep in.

"I've been sleeping for many, many nights surrounded by coyotes with all-night howling," admitted Bolos.

"It's quite an experience. The first thing I would do when I camped out Three Forks Red River and Palo

"One of the people told me everybody (the family) had moved and another one told me the rest of the family was dead," said Briones, but she refused to believe this. Briones said she knew Aurelio was alive and wanted him to know he had some family left.

Her last effort was fruitful.

"I told my oldest son, Elizar, who lived in Utopia (near Uvalde), to go and find out anything he could about the boy," said Briones, "anything...any address, anyone that remembered the family..."

Elizar came up with only one lead—a phone number.

"I called the number," said Briones, "and talked to an aunt of Aurelio's. She told me Aurelio was married and living in Hanauer Land, Germany, and gave me an address and phone number to call," said Briones, reliving the excitement.

Briones wrote to the address. After three weeks she received a phone call from Germany.

"He was real excited to have found his mother's sister," exclaimed Briones, "and he invited all his friends and neighbors over to listen to the letter before he called me."

"He asked me on the phone if I could contact my brothers and sisters for him, but I told him that everyone (two of his uncles, two of his aunts, and my parents) were dead," said Briones.

"He told me he had a daughter here in the states, living in Washington," said an elated Briones. "Her name is Janet Wear."

"Janet called and said she was so happy to find someone still living on her mother's side," said Briones. "The only relatives they had was the one aunt and uncle of their father, you see, and they weren't very close. Janet said she had not seen them in years."

"It's funny..." said Briones, "when you find somebody...I cry, you know..." said a tearful, but happy Briones. "Janet says she's coming out sometime..."

Midwives flourish along Texas border

EDITOR'S NOTE — Hundreds of midwives, "parteras," exist in a sort of shadow world along the Mexican border, following codes and customs of their own. Officials estimate that about half of their patients are Mexican women from south of the border. That's because a baby born in the United States is automatically a U.S. citizen.

By JULES LOH AP Special Correspondent

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A month ago, Mrs. Irma Ramirez walked heavily up a dirt path to a small house typical of many in this border town. She had come to give birth to a child, her ninth, and was well on the way.

The woman who greeted her, Mrs. Eufemia Lopez, was likewise no stranger to childbirth.

Outside the one-story, clapboard Lopez house, scrawny chickens pecked at tufts of thin grass beneath a sign that said: "Se Atienen Partos." In the local idiom: "birthing done here." Mrs. Lopez is a "partera," a midwife.

She is one of the more experienced in the American towns along the Rio Grande. She calculates she has assisted at more than 2,000 births — about 150 a year for 14 years. Her fee, $200, is about average.

Midwives flourish along the border for a variety of reasons, mostly to do with poverty, but also with politics, for a simple reason.

Immigration, generally illegal, is at a historic high along this very porous, 1,950-mile border. Congress is trying yet again — for the fourth time in four years — to write a law to control it. Authentic U.S. citizenship has never been more prized.

Well, a baby born in America is automatically a U.S. citizen. So if a Mexican mother times it right, she can give that precious gift to her offspring with no more trouble than a brief trip across a bridge. Records are unreliable, but the best estimate in this one Texas county, across the river from Matamoros, Mexico, is that up to half the midwife deliveries are to Mexican nationals.

Mrs. Irma Ramirez's nationality was not recorded. Tragically, it doesn't matter. Mrs. Ramirez died giving birth to her ninth child. So did the child, a boy.

"How many babies are buried in backyard graves we have no way of knowing," said Antonio Zavaleta.

"I do know," he added, "that Hispanics have the highest birthrate in the nation and the lower Rio Grande valley has the highest birthrate among Hispanics. The problem of untrained, unregulated midwives is going to get worse unless something is done."

Zavaleta is a 38-year-old professor at Texas Southmost College in Brownsville. He is also the chairman of the city's Lay Midwife Advisory Board, which he started eight years ago as a way of getting something done.

"Until then," he said, "nobody gave midwifery a second look. It was just sort of accepted, the way things were."

Zavaleta grew up in Brownsville. But he had been away from home, away from the border and its customs, for 10 years. He returned not only with a doctorate in anthropology (his specialty: folk medicine) but also a fresh look at old ways.

He persuaded the city commission to enact an ordinance requiring lay midwives, parteras, to complete a course of training and to pass a test to get a license. It also sets out procedures. One is to require the expectant mother to be first examined by a doctor.

These requirements, however, end at the city limits of Brownsville.

Mrs. Lopez, after a hearing, lost her license — not necessarily because of the deaths but for failing to follow prescribed procedure. This, however, will be nothing more than an inconvenience.

"I will move outside the city to the county," she said. "I don't want to do that, but I will have to."

When she does, it will leave only seven licensed lay midwives in the city compared with about 40 in the county — and hundreds more all along the border where requirements for a license are no more than filling out an application and paying a fee.

To prove the point, Zavaleta dropped by the courthouse one afternoon and picked up one himself.

"Cost me five bucks," he said. "All I need to do now is rent a house trailer, park it outside the city limits and hang up a sign. I could make a lot more money than by teaching in a junior college. It doesn't matter that I've never delivered a baby or had an hour of training. It's outrageous, dangerous and unscrupulous."

Also suspicious. It took only minutes for word to be passed from partera to partera that a reporter was nosing around asking questions; best not to talk to him.

These are the parteras who operate out of their homes. Elsewhere in this valley are clinics which provide excellent obstetrical care by registered nurses further trained as Certified Nurse Midwives. At the two branches of Su Clinica Familiar ("Your Family Clinic") in nearby Raymondville and Harlingen, a dozen nurse-midwives deliver about 1,300 babies a year. The patient pays what she can afford, usually less than a partera's fee.

But the clinics can't begin to meet the needs of the burgeoning border towns. Besides, like prying reporters, the clinic staff asks questions, keeps records. They also follow up every birth with a house call.

"Many of our people are recent arrivals," Zavaleta said. "They don't speak English. They are confused. They are poor. Parteras seem less threatening to them, so that's where they go. Unless we can get them regulated throughout the state, and the regulations enforced, not much will change."

So the parteras exist in a sort of shadow world of the border following codes and customs of their own. Registering births, for example. A midwife license, so easily come by, is all that is necessary to register a birth. This is supposed to be done within five days of delivery, but... "Think of it as collateral," Zavaleta said. "Until the mother pays the midwife, the child does not get registered. No registration, no citizenship. There are kids walking around who are as much as two years older than the date on their birth certificates."

Does anyone check to see if the baby was born?

"No. And if the delivery results in the baby's death it is never recorded."

Attracts too much attention."

Theoretically, then, a midwife could go to the registrar with a list of names of children not actually born in the United States?

"Theoretically nothing," said Zavaleta. "It's done all the time." A midwife two counties up the Rio Grande was suspected of having made as many as 80 such false registrations. Instant citizens, without even crossing the river.

"Presumably," said Zavaleta, "the price was right."

Hustlin' Hereford...it's different; it's unique. We've always had a class act together here and the vast majority of us want to keep it that way.

Many things go into creating a community that's different. Those factors include: professionalism in schools and local government, quality in the facilities offered the public, a general caring attitude by the citizens, strong and healthy financial institutions, and active support and participation by a viable retail district.

And it's the latter that we're concerned about. All of us have a vital stake in keeping a healthy retail district. It boils down to simple arithmetic—the healthier the stores, the greater the tax base for school, county and city; and the greater the tax base, the easier the load in property taxes for all homeowners.

Every community loses retail dollars to neighboring cities and every community wages a constant battle to try and keep most of those dollars at home. Statistics compiled in a business publication provide one indication of the problem.

The effective buying income for households in Hereford last year totaled $148.5 million. That's the income households had to spend after taxes.

Local retail sales totaled $67.4 million last year, which means that $81 million went to Amarillo, Lubbock or wherever. The metro areas rank high in retail sales per capita, and that's because they draw so many dollars from the area.

Some of it goes up the road out of necessity, but a community cannot lose 55 cents out of every household dollar without a lasting and telling effect locally. It brings less inventory on the part of the merchant less inventory means less sales, and less sales means a decrease in inventory and decrease in jobs.

Eventually, unless the trend is checked or reversed, it means one less retail firm in town—and that means one less firm to go to for staging a benefit, one less firm to support the Whitefaces, one less store to buy 4-H club steers or lambs, one less store to help the United Way, and dozens of other community projects.

It's not the big volume firms that make a town go—it's the small ones. They're the ones who have the interest of the community at heart because the community is their economic lifeblood.

We have the freedom in this country to shop where we please and no one can tell us otherwise. But every homeowner in Hereford, every family with a child in school, every parent who cares about the recreation facilities made available to his children, every local taxpayer has a stake in where that $148 million is spent each year.

For the short haul, you may save a dollar or two by shopping out of town, but for the long haul it will cost you, your children and your community. We've got a great thing going for us in Hereford, but we could make it better for everyone.

What's Ahead?

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce held its Mid Winter meeting in Kerrville recently and heard a variety of experts attempt to take a look into the future and see what's ahead for us as Texans.

First and foremost is the matter of state government and its cost. It is generally agreed that state income is not keeping pace with demand for state services and there is mounting pressure to find some new source of money to do the things Texans apparently want their state to do for them.

The recent session of the legislature wrestled with this sort of problem, dealing with a shortfall in state revenue caused by a drop in worldwide oil prices, and ended the session on a note of triumph since there were no new taxes levied.

However, the legislature did boost a lot of fees to the tune of several million dollars. Whether a fee increase is easier to handle than a tax increase remains to be seen.

At the WTCC meeting several speakers stated that Texas is moving closer and closer to a state income tax because of the need for more revenue. This is likely to start first as a corporate income tax but before too long will become a state personal income tax.

Texas is one of seven states without a state income tax and most Texans hope they will never have to pay one. But it appears that the time is coming when this will happen.

Several ways of staving off the income tax are being mentioned.

A state lottery, called a "painless form of taxation" is seen as one solution. Other states take in millions of dollars through state lotteries and while there is still a strong moral stigma against gambling, state lotteries, being legal, seem to have caught on.

Along the same line, the horse racing lobby sees the time getting ripe for enactment of a horse racing bill which would allow legal betting on the ponies.

Lobbyists for this measure point out that development of a horse breeding industry could boost the economy in Texas even for those who never go near the tracks.

Both the state lottery and the horse racing measure are seen as ways to get more money into the state coffers without raising taxes on the folks who don't gamble.

Eventually Texas will be forced to choose between fewer state services and higher taxes. It may not be as simple as it appears on the surface, either, because a lot of things we take for granted will be hard to give up.

The Penultimate Word

HOSPICE

Last week I had the privilege of speaking to the national convention of a remarkable organization. The Hospices in the United States held their annual convention in Washington, D.C. This organization is growing rapidly all over the country. Cities and communities are organizing Hospices organizations to serve their people. I can think of no service more needed.

Hospice has as its aim the helping of people as they face death. Their hope is to find methods for making people comfortable while they die with dignity. The quest for this goal has led them to study several areas.

Pain Management. The Hospice idea deals with quality of life instead of quantity of days. Their belief is that the comfort of the patient is paramount.

Death at Home. This is not possible in all cases, of course, but every effort is made to allow the patient to die in their home with family and friends. The Hospice idea is to provide nursing help in the home to give the family the assistance needed to accomplish this goal when possible.

Volunteers. This maybe the best part of the idea. Hundreds of people around the country have become well trained volunteers dedicated to helping people face death. They help people in more ways than even they know. In the process they find meaning for their own lives. The happiest people I know are volunteers in Hospice. Not everyone can do this work with comfort since dealing with death with reality demands the ability to deal with the ultimate intimacy.

Grief Counseling. Hospice does not stop at death. They conduct grief recovery groups to help the family after the death of a loved one.

Listening. When people face death they want to talk. It is often difficult for them to find someone who will listen. Most people run from dealing with such a tough issue. The result is that most people die with un-faced agendas they never get to talk about. Hospice lets them deal with these agendas. Hospice means no one needs to die alone. Now that is a great piece of work.

Warm Fuzzies,
Doug Manning

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek examines summit meetings this week.

Dear editor:
It's hard to understand the purpose of a summit meeting.

For a month before the one in Geneva Nov. 19 Mr. Reagan and Mr. Gorbachev were reported spending long hours briefing themselves on each other. At the same time, everybody was cautioned not to expect too much from the meeting. "Mainly it's for the two leaders to get acquainted," we were told.

Sure seems like a lot of hard practice just to get to know somebody.

A summit meeting I think is like a session of Congress. When it's over it's hard to find out what happened. As I understand it, arms control is supposed to be a goal a summit meeting is supposed to attain. Only trouble is, it never happens. Both sides go home and keep on making nuclear missiles on borrowed money. I'll tell you, the world is in shaky condition when it's faced with the prospect of waging a war with mortgaged weapons.

As for summit meetings, something ought to be done to let them achieve some positive, reportable goals. It's not fair having 500 reporters from around this world standing outside in the snow in Geneva waiting for something to happen, and nothing does.

Yet there are positive goals possible. For example, I believe the two leaders of the world's two most powerful countries, if they put their minds to it and threw away petty pride, could agree to arms reduction of, and maybe total elimination of, B-B guns.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

Having just completed our Sophomore Class Supper, we feel a sense of satisfaction for a job well done, and also a sense of gratitude to all those who helped to make it a success. We appreciate those marvelous parents of a truly outstanding class of sophomores for their enthusiasm, their time, and their hard work.

We appreciate an excellent group of class sponsors for their dedication. And how could we have done it without the support and generous contributions of our business people and our community.

It has been a joy and a privilege to have worked with all of you and we thank you for everything. At times like this we realize how fortunate we are to live and teach in Hereford where we have the loyalty, the love, and the support of our parents, business people, and community for our kids. After all, they are the ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS.

Sincerely,

Dear editor:

We have a lot of "thank you's" to express—because in 29 years a lot of people have helped us a lot. Yes, for 29 years Project Christmas Card has been a part of Hereford's Christmas season and we are glad we have been the sponsoring group for such a successful community project.

However, due to change in times, circumstances, the size of our group, or whatever reasons (29 years does change things), we have decided to relinquish the leadership of Project Christmas Card. But, at the same time, we are so pleased to let you know that L'Allegra Study Club will assume the responsibility for the continuation of the project.

At this time, then, we would like to publicly express our sincere and heartfelt gratitude to: 1) The Hereford Brand for publishing the "Christmas Greeting" page with the list of all participants without any cost to Project Christmas Card, and for the excellent pictures and news stories, 2) KPAN for their assistance in publicizing the project so well, 3) both of our banks which helped and cooperated in various ways, and 4) all the businesses who allowed us to put posters and collection containers in their stores. And, of course, we really appreciate all of the Hereford residents who have participated in Project Christmas Card...many for the entire 29 years. It is a pleasure to be a part of such a great community.

We are so glad that L'Allegra Study Club will now be the sponsors of Project Christmas Card. They have such a good record in community responsibility and involvement. We know each of you, along with us, will continue to support this project under their guidance, direction, and discretion.

Thanks so much to each and everyone!

Dear editor:

I'm writing concerning the controversial episode of "Cagney and Lacey" which aired this past Monday on CBS (Channel 10).

In the show abortion is presented as the compassionate alternative to an unexpected pregnancy and the abortionist as the "angel of mercy" who will rescue the expectant mother.

In an attempt to completely overlook the real victim of abortion—the baby, this show focused on the rights of the mother to have an abortion.

But what about a woman's right to counseling before making a decision which will affect her the rest of her life?

Her right to information about her unborn child; the indisputable scientific evidence which proves beyond doubt that her baby is a living and unique individual?

Her right to know all the risks to her in an abortion: death, hemorrhage, infection, sterility, tubal pregnancies later in life, and the increased chance of premature birth and miscarriage in later pregnancies?

Her right to post-abortion counseling to help her cope with the psychological damage resulting from abortion?

Her right to have a licensed physician perform the abortion and in sterile surroundings?

It has been those people who fight for the rights of the unborn that have also fought to insure these rights—Not the Abortionist!

To simply offer an expectant mother the death of her child is an "easy" out. An abortion takes very little time, requires no emotional involvement with the mother and brings in a nice profit on top of that.

On the other hand it is much harder to give a woman the time and support she may need to carry her baby to term and to work to see that she had the resources and skills necessary to nurture her new family and be a responsible parent.

I ask you "Which is the compassionate alternative?"

I encourage everyone to contact CBS and the show's sponsors to protest this type of biased programming and to join me in boycotting CBS during the remainder of November, their "ratings" month. You may wage a complaint by calling the CBS program division at 1-212-875-3247.

Dear editor:

In response to several letters recently published in your newspaper, I am concerned that the letter writers may be passing along inaccurate information. I can find no confirmation of information they cite as "stated facts."

The hostility of those who oppose Planned Parenthood is especially perplexing since family planning is basically preventative health care and education. Without contraceptive health care, more families would face the heartaches of unwanted pregnancies and many would ultimately choose abortion.

Planned Parenthood has been providing education for many Panhandle churches and schools for as long as 16 years. The education department provides workshops geared to the specific needs of the audience whether the group is more comfortable with a parent/child, father/son or mother/daughter format.

I dare say, the churches and schools would not repeatedly request programs, if in fact, the programs were not of high quality and supportive of both ideals and morals.

Supporting family planning programs is a wise investment. In 1981 alone, family planning helped women avert more than 800,000 unwanted pregnancies which would have meant an additional 282,000 births and an additional 433,000 abortions using reliable statistical data.

Teenagers are getting pregnant at an incredible and distressing rate. In 1982, more than 10 percent of teenage girls, about 1.1 million of them, got pregnant. The rate of teen pregnancy in the Texas Panhandle is even higher than the national average. Although these statistics are disturbing, they still do not reflect the even larger proportion of teens who are sexually active.

Teens who come to Planned Parenthood for help, have as a rule, been sexually active from 6 months to a year before seeking contraceptive care. Approximately 50 percent of the teens make their first clinic visit with their parent's knowledge.

Because Planned Parenthood provides such high quality education and medical services, the organization has earned respect from a wide variety of health-care professionals, volunteers and community leaders.

Having children can be one of life's great joys. And that is what family planning is about—trying to make sure that giving birth is a joy.

Sincerely,
K. Dye

In halls of Congress

Musician finds inspiration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Francis Vincent Zappa, rock music's Jonathan Swift, found inspiration in the halls of Congress. So much, in fact, he's incorporated America's lawmakers into his new album. "An average musician doesn't really think about Washington, D.C. You don't keep your mind on politics," says Zappa. "But you can sure get mad if you get a whiff of it."

This is the same outspoken Frank Zappa, looking more like a stockbroker than a 44-year-old rock musician, who came to the nation's capital in September to do battle against the forces who want to put warning labels on rock albums.

He angered at least one senator, and left town disturbed by the machinery of government and vowing to fight on.

Zappa's plan is to launch the youthful forces of rock 'n' roll as a ship of attack.

He said, "there's a lot of people out there who are 18 years old and I think the people in Washington, who are wasting everybody's time and money, should be alerted to the fact that they can vote like a beast. And I'm going to encourage them to do so."

Phase one of Zappa's plan is his newly released album: "Frank Zappa Meets the Mothers of Prevention." It contains a 12-minute cut called "Porn Wars," which was inspired by the Senate hearing on record labeling demands by the Parents' Music Resource Center.

The song, a typical Zappa creation, is a computer-generated musical collage. It blends electronic and rock music with remarks by senators and witnesses at the Senate Commerce Committee's hearing. The statements often are speeded up or slowed down to change the pitch.

Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., for example, can be heard repeating the phrase: "Fire and chains and other objectionable tools of gratification in some twisted minds."

Phase two of Zappa's attack is still uncertain, but he hopes to fashion a music video of the committee proceedings.

Zappa is no stranger to outrage. He thrives on it. His albums, since "Freak Out" was released 20 years ago by The Mothers of Invention, have lampooned and slung satirical darts at many targets.

Along the way he fought the record industry for censorship and accounting practices, suing three record companies. He now owns his own label, Barking Pumpkin, which frees him to pursue interests beyond the rock world.

PLANO, Texas (AP) — Don and Mary Thompson joke that it was greed that prompted them to start Texas' first microbrewery.

But since the dollars aren't flowing with the beer, they've decided production of their Collin County Pure Gold brew is an effort to "help educate people to what beer is meant to be."

The couple met in Europe where they both discovered they loved beer — real beer — not "alcoholic soda pop," the term they use to describe America's "light" beers. Thompson's favorite beer is Guinness Stout.

They returned to the states and got married, then decided a few years later to join the ranks of a half dozen other U.S. entrepreneurs by starting a microbrewery, one that produces less than 10,000 barrels of beer annually.

The Thompsons' Reinheitsgebot Brewing Co. currently produces a mere 600 barrels a year. Employing just one other worker, the business is tucked away in about 3,000 square feet of warehouse space in this booming Collin County suburb of Dallas.

It is one of 29 microbreweries or "boutique breweries" in the U.S., most of them in the Pacific Northwest, according to Alan Dikty, editor of The New Brewer, a Boulder, Colo.-based trade journal for the specialty and microbrewing industry.

Dikty says it is a segment that didn't exist five years ago and now is "rapidly expanding. It will continue to do so for the foreseeable future ... It is the domestic answer to the rise in import sales.

"What it amounts to," Dikty adds, "is the population as a whole is getting older. People drink less, and their tastes improve. I shudder to think what I drank in college," when price and quantity were the key factors, he adds.

The outlook for success by these new small breweries is improving as the people who get into the business are "increasingly more sophisticated business people," according to Dikty.

As for the Thompsons, he says, "I like their beer. If they get their act together, they'll succeed. Texas certainly is a good enough beer market."

Mrs. Thompson warns that microbreweries are not a way "to get rich quick."

"That's not to say it hasn't crossed our minds," she adds as she and her husband exchange glances. "Ours started out as greed and became a philosophical thing."

With their first bottles of Collin County Pure Gold hitting the market last February, the Thompsons are still waiting for the day when they break even and eventually recover their $200,000 investment.

The couple hopes the addition of two aging tanks will help them boost their production from 800 to 2,000 cases of beer a month, thus reducing their price to distributors. Six-pack prices range from $4.29 retail to a pricey $5.60.

The other problem for Collin County Pure Gold is credibility.

"We just beg (retailers) not to put it near the Bozo beer. They do it continuously. They think it's a novelty," Mrs. Thompson laments.

"The first thing people say is, 'Oh, not another Texas beer.'"

But Thompson says the Collin County brew is basically the same beer that won him "Best of Show" at the 1982 American Home Brewers Association.

Pure Gold has a more robust taste than most light domestic beers, and an alcohol content of 3.9 percent, Thompson said, compared to 3.6 percent for Coors and Miller and 3.8 percent for Budweiser.

The Thompsons' beer also has no additives, no malt substitutes, isn't pasteurized and is made from hops grown in Germany or the Pacific Northwest and a European variety of barley that's grown in the northern Midwest.

Combining the ingredients to make beer is the easy part, the Thompsons say. But it took almost three years to collect the equipment they needed, find a site and get their brewery cranked into operation.

"We had no idea it was going to take us three years before we sold our first beer," Mrs. Thompson recalls.

It was in 1980 that her husband hit the books at the library and two years later produced the award-winning beer that was the predecessor of Collin County Pure Gold.

Buoyed by their success and tired of their jobs, — she worked for a travel agency, he was a courier for a delivery company — the Thompsons decided to build their own microbrewery.

First, Thompson visited a successful small brewery, the Sierra Nevada Brewing Co. of Chico, Calif., where the operators told him to expect two years of work before brewing their first beer.

"I thought, 'Geez, these guys have been sniffing fruits and nuts too long. We can get that sucker going in six months.' It was two and a half years," Thompson said with a smile.

A chief problem was finding equipment small enough to handle such low production.

But they say their small size will enable them to fill a niche market with specialty beers the larger brewers can't afford.

By the end of the year, the Thompsons hope to bottle Collin County Black Gold, a dark "winter" beer, and they have plans for other new brews.

They are upbeat about their operation and believe time will solve the startup troubles.

As Mrs. Thompson puts it: "Doing something off the wall like that — Americans have been told that's the American way."

POLL RESULTS

FARMINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Nearly 9 out of 10 Americans believe spies convicted in peacetime should be executed.

The 88.1 percent favoring the death penalty were among the 5,600 persons queried in a survey made for a recent Emhart quarterly report. Other points covered by the wide-ranging poll showed that 72.7 percent believe President Reagan can be effective during the remainder of his term.

Accent on Health

The infant mortality rate in Texas dropped to its lowest point in history during 1984-10.4 deaths per 1,000 births—according to figures from the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

The Texas infant mortality rate is lower than the provisional national rate of 10.6.

The actual number of infant deaths decreased from 3,254 in 1983 to 3,118 in 1984, while the number of births for the same period increased by 1.2 percent. The infant mortality rate is a traditional index of the quality of health care.

There were 1,951 deaths of infants under 28 days of age last year for a neonatal death rate of 6.5 deaths per 1,000 births, another record low for Texas.

There were 298,756 births to Texas mothers last year for a birth rate of 18.7 per 1,000 population. This is a slight decrease from the state's birth rate of 18.8 births per 1,000 population in 1983, when 295,178 births were reported.

The U.S. Census Bureau estimated the state's population as of July 1, 1984, at 15,989,000. The excess of births over deaths added 182,000 to the Texas population last year.

Over-all, the state's death rate remained at a low 7.3 deaths per 1,000 population last year for the third year in a row. The number of deaths in the state increased slightly to 116,755 last year, up from 114,714 the previous year.

The leading causes of death for the state were: Heart Disease (39,782); Cancer (23,794); Cerebrovascular Disease (8,974); Accidents (7,240); Bronchitis, Emphysema, Asthma and Allied Conditions (3,655); Pneumonia and Influenza (3,339); Homicide (2,187); Suicide (2,153); Diabetes Mellitus (1,972); and Certain Conditions Originating in the Perinatal Period (1,461).

All together, the four leading causes of death in Texas were responsible for seven out of 10 deaths in 1984.

The leading causes of death nationwide in 1984, based on provisional national data, were the same in the six highest categories (heart disease; cancer; cerebrovascular disease; accidents, bronchitis, emphysema, asthma, and allied conditions; and pneumonia and influenza). The national death leaders in the top 10 included: (7) diabetes mellitus, (8) suicide, (9) chronic liver disease and cirrhosis, and (10) atherosclerosis.

Program expanded to improve efficiency

AUSTIN, Tex. — State Comptroller Bob Bullock has expanded a creative program to cut costs and improve efficiency in his office by offering internships to a handful of Texas' brightest college students.

Bullock said his office will select up to 10 outstanding college students each semester to work with management in the Comptroller's office in finding better ways to serve Texas taxpayers.

Last year, Bullock used a three-person team of agency employees, who were selected through competitive testing and interviews, to work on a wide range of agency problems and issues.

The Comptroller's Honors Intern Program will begin with a group starting to work in January. Three groups of students will be included in the program each year for four-month periods. Bullock said that successful candidates for the program will be paid $1,251 per month while participating in the program.

He said the interns will work with the agency's professional staff in virtually all areas of the Comptroller functions including tax collection, electronic data processing, training, enforcement, administration, taxpayer services and executive administration.

College students interested in the program may contact either the Comptroller of Public Accounts' personnel division or placement offices on the campuses where they attend school.

Lifestyle remains same in small Texas town

STERLING CITY, Texas (AP) — There's no picture show and no bowling alley, no bright lights or dark bars or honky tonk angels.

It's 43 miles south to San Angelo and 42 miles north to Big Spring.

There's not much crime, little industry, even less unemployment and only an occasional divorce.

Years ago, desperados Frank and Jesse James hunted buffalo in the low slung rock hills and scrub brush that surround Sterling City.

So did the Comanche, Kickapoo and Kiowa.

But aside from the golden wedding anniversary of Bill and Minnie Green, the front page news recently concerned the Cowchip Ball and Luau and an election of officers by the Silverbell Cowbells.

Last year's big story was the hiring of a second government trapper to curb the predatory adventures of the wily coyote.

What we're talking about here is a rural slice of Americana and 915 largely contented folks who enjoy what they've got and don't much miss whatever it is they don't have.

And they see no compelling reason to change.

"We've got a good county and a good town and a lot of good people, and we're proud of it," said Carolyn Brewer, a mother of four, a deputy tax collector and Sheriff Poke Brown's secretary.

She said only rarely is a major crime committed in Sterling City but that stray dogs and missing children and speeding motorists keep things hopping.

"Mercy, yes, we have enough to keep the sheriff and two deputies busy," she laughed one recent evening while reciting for a visitor the charms of Sterling City and Sterling County.

Not all those charms are visible to the naked eye, but there was a certain appeal to a sign outside the Old

Landmark Cafe promising "All you can eat shrimp — $5.95."

What makes Sterling City special is its people and its personality, although it probably doesn't hurt to have all those pumping oil wells.

Unlike many small towns, Sterling City is not much interested in wooing new industry and new people and wouldn't know where to put them if they showed up.

"There's just no land and few houses for sale at any price," said County Clerk Sandra Peel. "Buying small 10 or 12-acre tracts is almost unheard of here."

Explained County Treasurer Beth Kilpatrick:

"Most of the land is ranchland, and nobody wants to sell. It's been handed down from generation to generation. This has been going on for four or five generations that I know of, and I'm sure they'll continue to do so — Unless they quit reproducing."

Ranching was, is and probably always will be the major industry in Sterling County, but oil and gas is its lifeblood.

"We're very fortunate to have the oil and gas business because it's a tremendous help to the county finances, and it helped the ranchers through the drought," said Sandra

Peel.

For a county with only one town and a total population of 1,206, those petro dollars go a long way in easing the burden on taxpayers.

"We're not in debt," said Treasurer Kilpatrick.

Not by a long shot.

According to 1981 census bureau figures, the per capita income in Sterling County was $8,492, which is more than twice as much as some Texas counties and only slightly less than such populous and prosperous counties as Tarrant (Fort Worth) and Travis (Austin).

"Our oil evaluation has increased every year for 10 years," said County Judge Roland Lowe.

Born and raised in Sterling City, Lowe, 79, said he'd spent all but 10 years of his life there and wouldn't change anything if he could.

"It's a wonderful place to live," he said. "It's a good place to raise your kids. We've got a nice town here. We have a nice hospital and nice schools and nice churches."

"Just about everything we need is right here in Sterling City."

And while most like it like it is, Kirk Hopkins, executive vice president of the First National Bank, believes the town could stand a little progress.

"Everything depends upon ranching and oil here," he told Texas Scenes magazine recently. "The only farming is a few fields along the streams where ranchers grow small grain pastures for livestock."

"The town's businesses have been slowly fading away. We lost the drug store, a clothing store, the best little cafe in West Texas and two new car agencies."

Still, the mood is almost universal upbeat. Says Sandra Peel:

"We do have a few problems but nothing compared to other people."

And Beth Fitzpatrick: "This is quite a little town. It's different. I had four kids to raise, and this is a good place to do it. You can keep up with them better than in a big city."

"They don't have an opportunity to do things they might in a larger school, but I think the advantages outweigh the disadvantages."

She said only recently did she begin to lock her doors at night, something she never did when growing up out here "in the sticks."

In fact, she chuckled, "I'm not sure we even had locks on our doors back then."

But even "back then" they had a weekly newspaper, the Sterling City NewsRecord, founded in 1890 and owned for the last 41 years by Jack Douthit, 72.

"I bought the building and all in 1944 for $2,000," said Douthit. "There wasn't much to it, but I modernized it. Now it's obsolete. Everything in here, including me, is obsolete."

Douthit said an oil boom and a bank robbery were about the biggest stories he's dealt with in his four decades in Sterling City, adding: "Nothing big, really, but I've had a lot of fun living here and raising my family."

His wife Evelyn is assistant editor and circulation manager.

A son, C.J., is now a vice president of an international construction company and lives in London. A daughter, Lee, is a government archeologist in Worland, Wyoming.

Both graduated from Sterling City High School, a Class A school with a total 1985 enrollment of 90.

"There were only eight in my daughter's graduating class," Douthit recalled with a smile.

In his folksy column, Douthit touches on some of the issues with which his fellow West Texans must cope.

"With all the rains of the past few weeks..." he wrote the other day, "the grass grows so fast, mowers can't hardly keep ahead of it."

And this: "I've heard that someone is busily poisoning dogs around town. Several have been reported, said Sheriff Poke Brown."

Ah, the drawbacks of life in the city.

Ann Landers

Ann in trouble

DEAR READERS: Diamonds are supposed to be a girl's best friend. Well, they aren't mine. They got me into a heap of trouble with my readers. In an attempt to settle a bet, I made the statement that the Hope diamond, not the diamond Richard Burton gave to Elizabeth Taylor, was the world's largest.

My readers let me know quite promptly I was wrong. Here are the facts, as explained to me by hundreds of gemologists, jewelers and people who like to do research just for the fun of it:

The Hope diamond is the world's largest BLUE diamond. It weighs 44.4 carats and is on display in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C. The Taylor-Burton diamond originally weighed 69.42 carats and is no longer owned by Elizabeth Taylor. She sold it in 1979.

The world's largest diamond is the Cullinan, which weighs a hefty 530.20 carats. It was found in the Premier Mine in South Africa in 1905. In its uncut state, the Cullinan weighed 3,106 carats and was as large as a man's fist. Two major stones were cut from it, the Great Star of Africa, 530.22 carats (it is set in the head of the British Royal Scepter), and the Second Star of Africa, which weighs

317.4 carats. (This stone is set in the British Imperial State Crown.)

Other famous diamonds are the Regent, 140 carats; the Colenso diamond, 133 carats (stolen and probably recut); and the Tiffany diamond, 128 carats.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a devout Lutheran, but several months ago I attended services at a Catholic church out of curiosity. I found myself intensely attracted to the priest, a young man who is probably 10 years my junior.

I have been attending Mass as often as I can, just to look at him. I introduced myself one day, and his personality is as attractive as his physical appearance. He was very courteous and friendly and has no idea that he has knocked me off my feet.

Ann, I've become obsessed with this man. I think about him constantly. Every time the phone rings, I expect it to be him calling, even though I know it is impossible. I'm certain he doesn't even know my name. After Mass last week, I followed him to see where he lives. Almost every day I find myself driving by his house even though it's out of my way. I doubt that I ever will have the nerve to ring the bell, but I can't be sure.

This obsession has been affecting all areas of my life. For one thing, I've gained 18 pounds since I first laid eyes on this fascinating priest. My intense desire to be with him triggers a craving for food. Just this week I ate seven boxes of cookies. I haven't dated anyone in three years. He is the first man I've ever wanted. I'm afraid to approach him because I don't know if he has taken a vow of celibacy. Also, I am out of practice. What should I do? This is no put-on. I am dead serious.—LAFAYETTE DILEMMA

DEAR L.D.: All Catholic priests take a vow of celibacy. I suggest that you stop attending Mass and return to your own church at once, and get professional help. Your attraction to this man is beyond the bounds of normal fantasizing. It's sick.

Americans underestimate stroke

Americans underestimate the number of lives claimed each year by stroke, and they don't always associate lifestyle changes with stroke prevention, according to a recent American Heart Association survey.

Respondents to the random survey incorrectly rated accidents as the third leading cause of death instead of stroke.

"The survey indicates to us that people aren't aware stroke is the third leading cause of death in this country, behind diseases of the heart and cancer, and that it claims more than 155,000 lives a year," said William L. Winters, Jr., M.D., president of the Texas Affiliate of the American Heart Association.

Those polled also have not learned that they can take an active role in reducing the risk of stroke. Although 90 percent of those with high blood pressure said they knew high blood pressure was a major cause of stroke, 85 percent of the same group said they thought nothing could be done to prevent stroke.

"Certain lifestyle changes can help control high blood pressure, which is a major risk factor for stroke. It is disturbing to know that those polled with high blood pressure, as well as healthy Americans, don't realize this fact," said Winters.

According to Winters, maintaining ideal body weight, reducing salt in the diet and following a doctor's orders on medication can help control high blood pressure, and, in turn, may reduce the risk of having stroke.

The survey also showed that those responding were not entirely certain of the warning signs of a stroke. Although 91 percent knew that loss or slurring of speech was a warning sign, only 65 percent identified weakness or loss of feeling in the arm or leg as a warning sign. About 74 percent correctly identified sudden loss of sight in one eye as a warning sign of stroke.

Knowing and recognizing these signs is critical to preventing some strokes, according to Winters.

"We know at least 10 percent of stroke victims have a mini-stroke, called a transient ischemic attack (TIA), before a major stroke," he said. "By recognizing the significance of the warning signs, a person who has a TIA can get to a doctor before a major stroke occurs."

Other significant statistics show that black Americans and those in lower income groups were the least informed about stroke, yet these groups have a higher incidence of high blood pressure and stroke.

Most of the respondents recognized that patients who have been affected by stroke can recover and be helped by therapy. But confusion about rehabilitation was evident when almost a third indicated that stroke survivors are so disabled that they require institutional care.

Most elderly people not certain of their coverage

Many elderly people, unsure of the difference between Medicare benefits and what they might owe a doctor or hospital, buy too little or too much insurance to bridge the gap.

Those results were found in a survey of persons who used a unique, free insurance counseling service sponsored by the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) at Texas Tech University and the Better Business Bureau in Lubbock. The survey was conducted by Dr. Gail House, assistant dean for external affairs in the College of Home Economics.

In the program, retired insurance broker Nat Kizer spends his Thursday afternoons counseling the elderly about their insurance needs. He provides them information but refuses to be a part of any sales gimmicks. In fact, he won't even tell you who carries his insurance.

In a recent survey of 109 of his clients, almost 46 percent said they were not sure if their health insurance coverage was adequate. Forty-three percent also said they understood only part of the terms and conditions of their plans.

In a follow-up interview to which 40 people responded after counseling with Kizer, 23 percent said they found they had too much coverage and 25 percent had too little. Many either added or dropped policies or changed companies altogether, while 35 percent made no change.

"The biggest misconception is in the way sales people state their coverage," Kizer said. "I'm not accusing anyone of misrepresentation, but the plan isn't always clear."

Kizer explained that confusion results because Medicare pays 80 percent of "approved professional charges." Sales representatives may say that they pay 100 percent of the difference, but that claim doesn't always mean that the patient is totally covered.

As an example, Kizer said, a person may pay a $100 medical bill, but the approved professional charge is $60. Medicare pays $48 of that fee, leaving $12 to be covered by private, supplemental insurance. That leaves the patient short $40.

"There's still a big gap in coverage," Kizer said.

Kizer began the counseling program after he was contacted by an acquaintance about what type of policy his mother should buy.

"A light went on in my head; I could offer this kind of service," he said.

He talked to Better Business Bureau Director Alan Bligh about his idea, and Bligh offered him office space.

A licensed insurance broker and agent since 1956, Kizer then called the state commissioner of insurance about the ethics of setting up such a program. He got an OK with the condition that he agree not to sell or recommend policies.

Persons interested in receiving counseling may call the Better Business Bureau for an appointment.

Kizer has performed the service since the latter part of 1983 and has gotten a favorable reception from insurance professionals. The area chapter of the National Association of Life Underwriters made him an honorary member.

In his work, Kizer has discovered that the economic middle class seems to be most aware of insurance needs and responsibilities. Those in high income brackets don't seem to be as concerned about their risks, and those of low income are on Medicaid or feel they will be covered by Medicare.

"A lot say that Medicare will take care of it, and it won't," he said.

Those people in the $10,000 to $30,000 income range appear to be the most concerned that they not become a burden to anyone or a charity case. Those below $10,000 either don't understand or don't realize their responsibilities, Kizer said.

Kizer offered some tips for people who want to do some homework before consulting a professional.

He recommended looking at a copy of "Best's Insurance Reports" at a local library. That publication lists several important facts about companies, including their rating from A-plus to C "depending on how they get along with their policyholders."

The book also lists how often companies pay health and accident claims and their financial ability to pay them. A group policy should pay at least 75 percent of its claims and a private one 60 percent "if they're doing their job," Kizer said.

A toll-free consumer hotline operated by the State Board of Insurance also is available for customer complaints by calling 1-800-252-3439.

Cowboys-Bears game has many sideshows

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Chicago-Dallas National Football League joust on Sunday has enough sideshows for a circus of the three-ring variety: the teacher-student confrontation, the amazing feats of the refrigerator man and the blood feud.

The unblemished Bears will be trying to clinch the National Conference Central Division title and become the first NFC team since the 1970 merger to win their first 11 games of the season.

The 7-3 Cowboys will be hoping to at least stay tied with the New York Giants atop the NFC East.

Those are the stakes on the line under the Texas Stadium big top before a sellout crowd of 65,000.

However, the sideshows almost overshadow the game.

There's former Cowboys' assistant Mike Ditka trying to whip his old Dallas boss Tom Landry for the first time. Ditka lost to him last year 23-14 and went on one of his famed temper tantrums.

There's 302-pound William "The Refrigerator" Perry, a touchdown threat on offense and a sacker of quarterbacks on defense. Will the Fridge pass for a touchdown? Step right up with your $18 for a peek under the tent.

Ralph Kiner is the only major league baseball player to hit home runs in All-Star Games three consecutive years. Representing the Pittsburgh Pirates, Kiner hit homers for the National League in 1949, 1950, and 1951.

There's bad blood. Ten players on each side were fined by the NFL after an August exhibition game that resembled a full contact karate scrimmage. Retribution has been promised by the Bears.

Chicago hasn't beaten Dallas since 1971 and has lost six straight games to the Cowboys.

"I spent 13 of the best years of my life in Dallas but I'd like to beat 'em," said Ditka. "I know how tough it can be. There's no players on this team who have ever beaten Dallas."

Ditka admitted, "I was upset last year and it was my fault how bad we played. I was upset but I made a promise to never let personal things get involved again."

Landry said Ditka "tried hard to beat me last year. That was understandable."

Bears offensive tackle Keith Van Horne feels he has a score to settle with the Cowboys.

Dallas defensive tackle Randy White made a fool of Van Horne by yanking off his helmet and beating on another Bear with it during the preseason rumble.

"I hate the Cowboys," said Van Horne. "They always think they're better than other people."

Chicago linebacker Otis Wilson said, "We're going down to Dallas with a chip on our shoulders. The last time we played them it was like all they wanted to do was fight. We'll see what happens this time."

Wide receiver Dennis McKinnon said, "This is a grudge match and we're going to have all our artillery ready."

Ditka has tried to prevent open warfare, saying, "If it was a contest to see who was the toughest we ought to get our uniforms off and get on the street. Nothing makes me madder than penalties for unsportsmanlike conduct."

The Cowboys aren't backing down. White said he didn't try to hurt Van Horne in the August game.

"If I had wanted to hurt him, I wouldn't have let him off the ground after I tore his helmet off," said White, who was ejected from the game in the first-quarter incident.

"We're not going to take any bull off the Bears," said White.

There seems to be a great deal of fascination among the Cowboys about Perry, who has run for a touchdown and caught a pass for another.

"All we have to do is hit Perry hard and he'll go down," said White. "We're a lot more worried about Walter Payton than we are about a refrigerator."

Perry has become a coast-to-coast celebrity. He was on David Letterman's late night show on Monday and is scheduled for a Nov. 26 appearance on Johnny Carson's television show.

"I'm not sure what we'll do to stop Perry," said Landry. "It is amazing how nimble he is with his feet."

Bears quarterback Jim McMahon was listed as "doubtful" for the game because team doctors said he is suffering from tendinitis and needs rest and medication. If McMahon is unable to play, he will be replaced by backup quarterback Steve Fuller.

The news comes one day after McMahon had been listed as questionable for the contest and backup quarterback Steve Fuller had been given the starting assignment by Bears Coach Mike Ditka.

Team doctor Clarence Fossier said Friday that McMahon needs rest and medication for nagging shoulder injury. He added that surgery was not expected to be necessary, according to team spokesman Brian Harlan.

McMahon said he injured his shoulder in the San Francisco game Oct. 13, and aggravated it in Green Bay Nov. 3. The Bears have been calling the injury a bruise and a sprain of the shoulder joint.

Ditka had said earlier in the week he expected the former Brigham Young star to play and his status was "questionable."

Discussing Game Strategies

Cracking the Red Dot was big highlight

Seniors reflect on football career at HHS

Beating Plainview at home! Cracking the red dot at home was one of the most popular season highlights among Hereford's class of graduating football players. That and finishing the season without a home loss.

I had a chance this week to chat with the group, who in their final high school football game Friday before last drubbed the Tascosa Rebels 29-14. We discussed their future plans and their highlights of the past season and football career. Here is what they told me:

Casey Smith: The 200 lb. lineman who started offensively and defensively this season, plans on going to college and majoring either in business or education. Casey felt that the highlight for him this past season was beating Plainview at home. Casey also made the point that he enjoyed his entire football career and there was not really one specific point that stood out in his mind. The advice that he would like to pass on to next season's Herd is to work real hard and give it all they got.

Freddie Gamboa: The hard-hitting defensive back is planning on attending Texas Tech University and majoring in pre-law. Freddie would like to become an attorney. Freddie also felt that beating Plainview was the highlight of this past season and mentioned running back an interception for a touchdown against Monterey as his career highlight. Freddie would like to see next year's squad pull together for a successful season.

Rodney Torres: The 17-year-old free safety is also planning on attending Texas Tech, but to major in physical education. Rodney felt that being named player of the week was his biggest thrill for both this season and his career. The 150 lb. defensive back wanted to tell next year's players to work as hard as they can because it truly pays off come game day.

Stefan Hacker: Whiteface quarterback and co-captain Stefan, or "Hack" as his teammates referred to him, plans on attending either Austin College, the University of Texas, or Baylor University in 1986, and becoming either an electrical engineer or an orthodontist. The district 3-5A's number one ranked passer felt that the season's opener against San Angelo Central was his career highlight. "The big stadium and all the fans made it very exciting," Hack stated.

Stefan also claimed the win over Plainview at home for his season highlight. Hacker wanted to tell the members of future Hereford teams that if they stick with good work habits, they should be able to do well.

Darren Jones: The 17-year-old receiver is planning on attending McMurray College next fall and wants to major in computer science. Darren felt that his season highlight was simply getting to play as much as he did. "I played a lot more than I figured I would," Jones told the Brand.

Darren felt that catching two passes this year highlighted his Whiteface career. He would like to tell next year's team that if they stick with it, they can do anything they want to.

George Bermudez: George would also like to attend West Texas State University in the fall and major in commercial art. The 17-year-old would like to be a freelance artist. The highlight of George's season was just the fact that the team had a winning season. George felt that the highlight of his football career was not losing a home game during the 1985 season. George's advice to future players is to keep after it, keep up the winning tradition and work hard.

Pat Rodriguez: Pat would like to attend Texas State Technological Institute next year and perhaps become a diesel technician. The senior lineman also felt that beating Plainview at home was definitely his highlight of the 1985 season, and attributed two blocked punts as being the highlight of his football career. Pat's advice to future Hereford players is to never give up, because your teammates will never give up on you.

Focus on Sports with Shawn Cockrum

Trent Layman: Trent handled the kicking chores for coach Jerry Taylor's team in 1985, along with being a runningback and defensive player. Trent stated that he would like to attend Texas Tech, but is undecided about a major. Trent recalled kicking a 35-yard field goal against Tascosa as his season highlight, and a defensive solo tackle against Plainview as the highlight of his career. Trent would like next year's team to "kick some tail."

Curtis Cotten: Curtis will be attending either Oklahoma State University or North Texas State University after graduation. His season highlight was just being able to play so soon after surgery. Curtis' career highlight is the 1984 Plainview game, where the linebacker compiled 18 tackles, recovered a fumble, and grabbed and interception during the contest. Curtis would like to see next year's team have fun, warns them not to get to feeling down if anything goes wrong.

Adam Olivarez: Adam would like to attend either Texas Tech or the University of Texas, and major in chemical engineering. The 18-year-old lineman stated that beating Plainview was the highlight of this past season and dubbed playing against "Mojo" during his sophomore year as the highlight of his career. Adam's advice to all those futue Whitefaces is that if they play as a unit, they will go far.

Alan Dudding: Alan plans to attend West Texas State University in the fall and major in business administration. Dudding, who led all Whiteface runningbacks with 664 total yards, said that beating Plainview at home was the biggest thrill of the 1985 season. The 130-yard game against Tascosa was the highlight of his football career. Alan wanted to tell future Herd members to make the best of everything because it will be over before they know it.

Phillip Webster: The senior wide receiver will be attending either Southwest Texas State University or Texas Tech next year and would like to major in business. Phillip stated that his biggest thrill in the 1985 season was almost getting to drop kick in a game, and his audition as a "refrigerator" runningback against Tascosa. Phillip recalled the Stanton-LaPlata ninth grade in 1982 as his career highlight, Webster was quick to point out that Stanton won that encounter. Phillip said that he hopes that next year's team will keep up the home winning streak.

Daniel DeToro: Daniel has not yet decided whether he would like to go to college or join the work force after graduation. The starting guard said that "beating the dog out of Plainview," was the 1985 season highlight and making a sack against Tascosa was the highlight of his football career. Daniel's advice to future Hereford teams is to have fun and work hard.

Bruce Walterscheid: Bruce is planning on attending West Texas State University next fall and would like to major in drafting. Big No. 77 said beating Plainview was the season's highlight and driving Amarillo High's Jason Dipple off the line was the highlight of his football career. Bruce's advice for the group to wear the colors of Hereford is to work hard over the off-season.

John Simmacher: Though undecided about a major, John would like to attend Texas Tech next year. The linebacker stated that beating Plainview at home was a big thrill and credited a touchdown saving tackle against Monterey as his career highlight. John's words for next year's players is to just have fun.

Bobby Martinez: Bobby would like to attend either West Texas State University or Texas Tech next year and major in physical education. The senior tackle said that starting on varsity was the season highlight, and beating Plainview was the career highlight. Bobby would like to see next year's team stick with the tradition that can make them champions.

Patrick Phibbs: The 160 lb. cornerback plans on attending either Texas Tech or Southwest Texas University in the fall and major in engineering. Patrick recalled being named player of the week against Plainview as his season highlight and claimed the entire 1985 season as his career highlight. Patrick's advice to next year's squad is to stick together and play like Hereford always plays, keeping up the spirit and tradition.

Frankie Villegas: "Papa Mosquito," as his teammates liked to call him, said that he may be going into military service after graduation. Frankie said that blocking a pass against Caprock was the thrill of the season and beating Plainview, because "I hated them guys," was the career highlight. Frankie would like to see future Hereford teams keep up the tradition of being the Hostile Herd.

Chris Rowton: The 140lb. receiver plans on attending West Texas State University next fall and would like to major in business administration. Chris stated that catching a 30-yard pass against Lubbock High was the season highlight and beating Plainview was the highlight of his football career. Chris said that he hopes to see the future Hereford teams keep up the winning tradition.

Mark Scott: Mark said that he would like to attend Texas Tech after graduation and major in engineering. The 158 lb. end stated that causing two fumbles against Plainview was both his season and career highlight. Mark's advice for next year's squad is to just get after it.

Two quarterbacks have common goals

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
 AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Pittsburgh quarterback David Woodley and Houston's Butch Woolfolk and Drew Hill will have goals in common when the two teams meet in a National Football League game in the Astrodome Sunday.

Each is trying to establish himself as a major contributor to his team's offense.

Woodley, obtained in a trade from Miami last year, has started the past two games and last week led the Steelers to a 36-28 victory over Kansas City that kept the Steelers in a share of the American Football Conference's Central Division lead.

Woolfolk, the Oilers' leading rusher and receiver, came to the Oilers this season from the New York Giants, where he felt his talents weren't used to the fullest.

Hill, the Oilers' No. 2 receiver and big play specialist, came from a similar background with the Los Angeles Rams.

The Steelers rallied around Woodley last week after Kansas City's Deron Cherry intercepted one of his passes and returned it 47 yards for a touchdown and a 7-0 lead.

"Because of his experience, David mixes his plays well," Steeler running back Walter Abercrombie said. "He seems to have a feel for things once he gets in a game. When David's in there, we don't lose anything."

Woodley displayed a fiery nature against the Chiefs, chewing out teammates to shake up the offense.

"It wasn't even something wouldn't have done last year," Woodley said. "But our offense has had so many problems. We had guys just showing up for the game."

The Steelers, 5-5, have the No. 2-ranked defense among the 28 NFL teams, giving the Oilers a tough assignment for rebounding from last week's 20-0 loss to Buffalo.

Oiler quarterback Warren Moon completed three of 14 passes for 22 yards and threw three interceptions against the Bills in rainy, 38-degree temperatures. The loss ended a three-game winning streak and dropped to Oilers to a 4-6 record.

"The weather was so obviously a problem, everybody tries to think of some other reason," Woolfolk said. "But that was our biggest problem. We're going to be all right this week."

Woolfolk has rushed 311 yards on 83 carries and one touchdown and caught 38 passes for 446 yards, one an 80-yard touchdown reception. Hill has caught 35 passes and leads the team with six touchdowns, including one for 57 yards.

"I always knew I could contribute but I was involved with a run-oriented offense in LA built around Eric Dickerson," Hill said. "Here, I've gotten into the flow of the offense and Warren and I have worked well together."

Prior to their three-game winning streak, the Oilers suffered through a five-game losing string. Hill doesn't expect any regression.

"We have to look at Buffalo as that one worst game of the year," Hill said. "We're not going to fall back to anything like before."

Kickoff is at noon CST. For Pittsburgh's Walter Abercrombie, running to daylight means escaping the shadow of Franco Harris.

"Franco is gone but there's still a shadow of him around here because he was such a great running back," said Abercrombie, in his fourth season of trying to make Steeler fans forget Harris, who gained 11,950 rushing yards before leaving pro football in 1984.

Abercrombie returns to his native state Sunday when the Steelers try to hold onto their American Football Conference Central Division lead against the Houston Oilers.

Abercrombie was the Steelers' No. 1 draft choice out of Baylor in 1982, but the Steeler offensive alignment and his running style haven't turned him into a 100-yard per week replacement for Harris.

YMCA girls' volleyball title match is Thursday

The Hereford and Vicinity YMCA girls' volleyball championship match is scheduled for Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

Teams vying for the league title are the Dinkers and the Spiketts.

The league playoffs began this past Thursday when the Dinkers defeated the Diggers, 15-4, 15-7, and the Spiketts defeated the Vollets, 15-3, 17-15.

Merchandise turkey shoot is set Sunday afternoon

A merchandise turkey shoot is planned Sunday at the Hereford Gun Club range.

The shoot will be held from 1:30 p.m. until dark at the range near the airport.

Club officers notes that a variety of games are scheduled, and that the shoot will be held weather permitting.

ment for Harris.

"I'm a different style runner and it took a little while before the people got used to me," Abercrombie said. "Hopefully, in the next few years, they'll get used to my style and things will be the way they used to be."

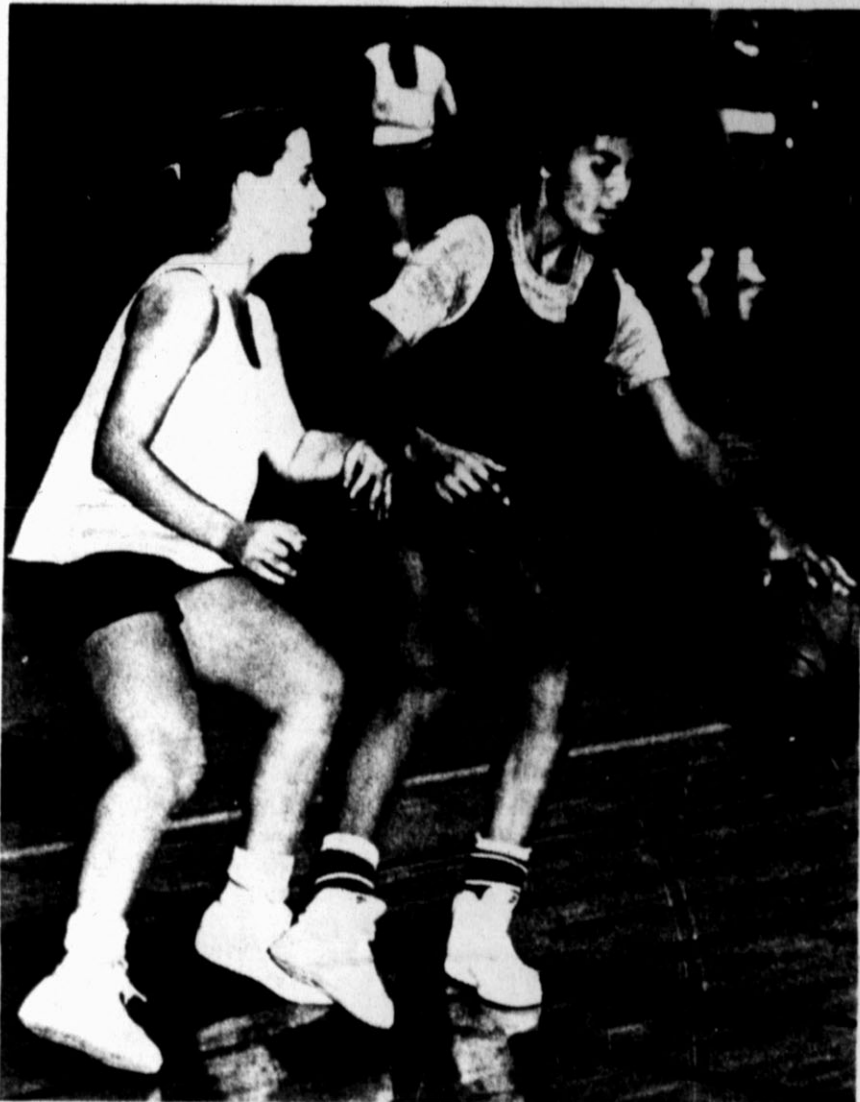

Although the Steelers are no longer beating an annual path to the Super Bowl, they still are winning their share of divisional titles.

"This is not the team that went to the Super Bowl in the 1970s," Abercrombie said. "We have to live with those Super Bowl teams over our heads. People are going to expect a lot out of you."

"We try to uphold our image and be positive but it can be a negative, too, because when we lose it's like the whole world is going to cave in on the city."

Abercrombie shares the running load with Frank Pollard, who also was his former running mate at Baylor. Pollard has 561 rushing yards on 133 carries and Abercrombie has gained 524 yards on 146 carries.

"We've played together a lot," Abercrombie said. "I've got a feel for what he's going to do on the field. I feel good when he's blocking for me and he knows I'll give 100 percent for him, too."

As Dallas Cowboys coach

Tom Landry likes to solve mysteries

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Tom Landry is happiest solving mysteries. The Dallas Cowboys' coach enjoys piecing together a human puzzle of football players who have different levels of talent, attitude, and character.

Once the final peg is in place and a Super Bowl is won, Landry seems downright bored the next year.

"I like the challenge of building a team into a champion," says Landry. "You have to devote a lot of time and energy to becoming a champion. As long as I enjoy doing that, I'll stay in coaching."

This roller-coaster season has Landry asking himself: "Am I having fun yet?"

Landry is in his 26th National Football League season and he says he's never seen a crazier one.

"The entire league has been as unpredictable as I've ever seen it," he says. "Chicago is about the only team you can figure."

He includes his own team as a contributor to the bizarre and strange happenings.

The Cowboys resembled one of their old Super Bowl champion teams in blowing out Washington 44-14 in the season opener. It was a big victory after a disappointing 9-7 no-playoffs season.

The next week they stumble and fumble in Detroit and are inflicted with a 26-21 hickey.

They've been on a roller-coaster ride that has left their 62-year-old coach a bit baffled if not dizzy.

Asked if he was having fun before Sunday's game against the Bears, Landry quipped "It depends on what week you ask me. This is a Chinese puzzle."

The Cowboys have had more highs and lows than a weather map.

They've subdued a crowd of 74,000 in the Meadowlands with a 30-29 Sunday night victory over the New York Giants and invoked sidesplitting laughter from the Atlantic to the Pacific by losing on a Monday night to the low-flying St. Louis Cardinals.

They came out of camp emphasizing togetherness and team play then started barking at each other because seven members of "Thurman's Thieves" were interviewed on television in gangster hats 90 minutes before the 24-10 Cardinal debacle.

The Cowboys talked some trash to each other and defensive tackle Randy White was ready to do more than talk about it.

Then comes the Cowboys' 13-7 victory over the Washington Redskins and White was last seen wearing one of the "Thieves" hats on the plane ride home.

The players claimed the media had overblown their in-house feuding.

The Cowboys aren't a "Cuckoo's Nest" yet but they sometimes play like they were hatched in one.

"I've given up trying to figure out this team," says Landry. "All I know is that every game we play is a struggle."

The Cowboys had lost three road games to inferior teams by coming out of the dressing room at halftime like they were off to the beach.

Against the Redskins on Sunday they played one of their best third quarters of the year. Dallas still has been outscored 60-57 in the all-important period.

Since 1980 the Cowboys are 50-3 if they lead after three quarters.

Want some more Silver and Blue slaps?

Dallas has a quarterback with an atrocious 74.1 rating, one of the worst in the league.

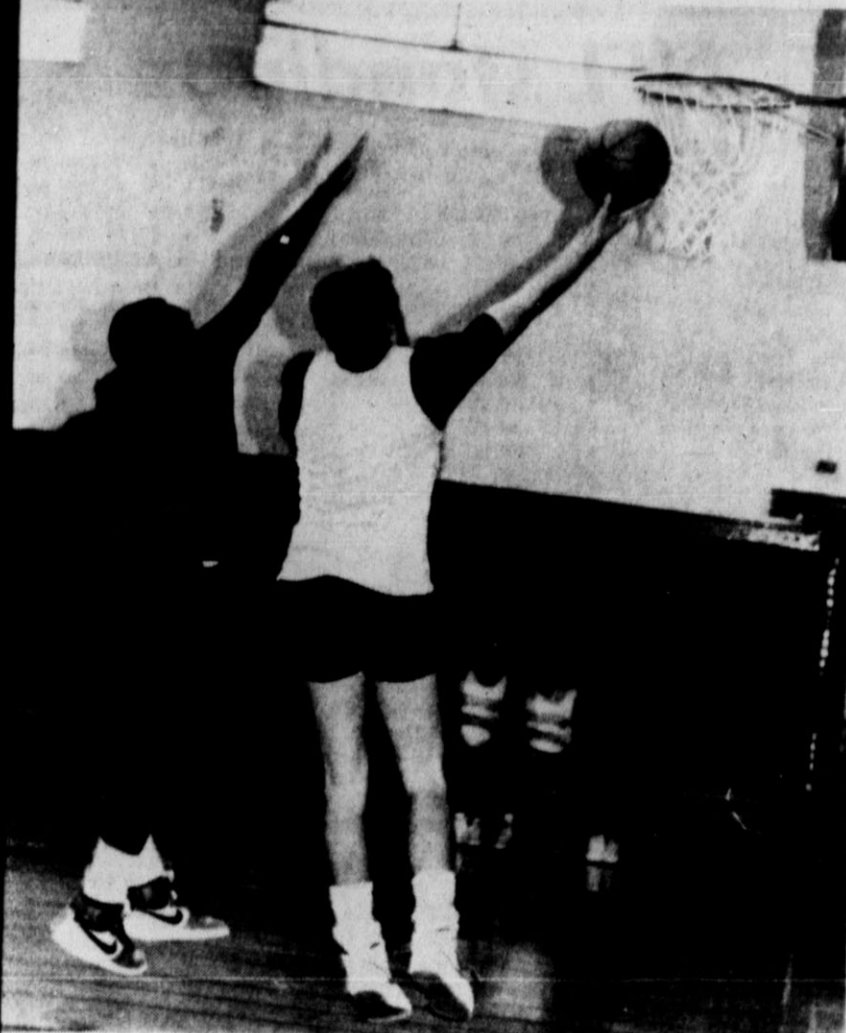

Danny White has thrown 11 touchdown passes but he also has 13 interceptions. He has completed 58.7 per cent of his passes but he has only averaged 6.83 yards per attempt. He's been trapped 22 times for a whopping 184 yards in losses.

Tony Hill has 60 catches which sounds good but he's also dropped three possible touchdown passes. He has scored just five times.

Does this look like a stable team? The Cowboys are fun to watch because you don't know whether they will play like champions or clowns.

Fun to watch, maybe, but fun to coach?

We'll get back to Coach Landry on that one about Christmas.

KEY STATISTICS
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Frank Layden, the coach of the Utah Jazz of the NBA, believes that statistics are more important at certain parts of a game than at others.

"To me," Layden said, "the first two minutes of the game are important, the last four minutes of the first half, the first two minutes of the second half and the last four-to-six minutes of the game. I want to know who is producing when the game is on the line."

MCHALE'S HEROICS
 BOSTON (AP) — Although the Boston Celtics lost to the Los Angeles Lakers in six games in the 1985 NBA championship series, Kevin McHale, the celebrated sixth man of the Celts, was a towering hero in defeat.

McHale, a starter in the series because of the injury to Cedric Maxwell, scored 156 points in the series, an average of 26 per contest. "We never could solve the Kevin McHale puzzle," Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said, "but he couldn't beat us alone."

To give baseball fans a break

Rangers to prove something

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers are out to prove that nice guys don't have to finish last.

The Rangers — who finished in the basement of the American League West Division in 1985 — have decided to give the fans a break next season.

Ticket and parking prices will not increase, Rangers marketing director Larry Schmittou said Wednesday.

But hot dogs and beer may cost slightly more during the 1986 season, Schmittou said.

The Rangers are gambling that a better team in 1986 and an expanded promotional package will improve the club's financial position, he said.

The club has suffered seven-figure losses in each of the past two seasons, Schmittou said. The Rangers executive would not reveal specific figures.

The team's losses in 1985, including interest on past indebtedness, totaled almost $4 million, according to club president Mike Stone.

"We're hoping to show a commitment to our fans," Schmittou said.

"We also believe our team will be better next year and we will make up for the revenue that price increase would have accounted for by drawing more people."

The best seat in the house again will cost $8.50, and parking will remain $3 a space, Schmittou said. The Rangers drew only 1.1 million fans in 1985.

A winning baseball team, which draws additional fans to the ballpark and generates greater revenue for the team, is the secret to maintaining ticket prices, Schmittou said.

"It's hard for us to keep our prices the same," he said. "If you knew you would draw two million (people), you could probably charge a dollar less a ticket. We're just fighting as hard as we can to keep the ticket price down."

TRACTORS OF THE FUTURE MAY TELL THE FARMER MORE AND SAVE MONEY AT THE SAME TIME. Kansas State University researchers have spent the last two years conducting experiments using conventional tractors with installed microcomputers to guide the farmers in using the best tractor settings for a given job in the field. The microcomputer records the farmer's driving habits, reads tractor ground speeds and engine speeds and calculates fuel consumption ... all at the same time. By comparing gear ratios to this data, the microcomputer can determine the best gear ratio and throttle speed to achieve maximum fuel savings. A display mounted inside the cab will tell the farmer what needs to be done to save, for example, 2 gallons per hour. The farmer then decides whether he wants to follow the computer's recommendations. However, the researchers' data indicates as much as 30% in fuel savings is possible.

Cattle feeders convention set

Beef industry leaders from across the country will gather in Fort Worth Nov. 17-19 to address cattle feeders as they attend the Texas Cattle Feeders Association 1985 annual convention.

The convention, carrying the theme, "A Powerful Force," will be at the Hyatt Regency in historic Fort Worth. About 900 people are expected to attend, according to Ron Banks, TCFA membership director and convention manager. TCFA represents more than 150 feedyards and their customers, who feed nearly 25 percent of the nation's fed beef.

The Texas CowBelles, leading promoters of beef, will meet in conjunction with the TCFA gathering.

A question on the mind of all in the industry will be addressed when a panel of experts discusses "A Turnaround Coming—When?? The panel, moderated by TCFA Market Director Jim Gill, includes Topper Thorpe, general manager of Cattle-Fax (the marketing arm of the National Cattlemen's Association); Bob Price, leader of the Denver-based Western Livestock Marketing Information Project; Brad Johnson, Southwest regional corn and sorghum merchant with Cargill, Inc.; and Chuck Hendryz, director of meat operations programs, H.E. Butt Grocery Company.

Other educational seminars are on tap as well. Three breakout sessions promise to provide cattle feeders with the tools they need to help the industry remain "A Powerful Force" in the U.S. Dr. Wayne Purcell of Virginia Tech will discuss "Does the Futures Market Affect Cash Prices?" Other breakout speakers are Joe Wood and David Hutchins of Clayton Brokerage Company in Amarillo, who will talk about "Options Made Simple," and Dr. Marjorie Barlow, a family therapist from Kingsville, Texas, who will help attendees learn "How to Keep Your Job and Family, Too."

TCFA President Bob Josseland, president of AZTX Cattle Co., Hereford, Texas, will update the membership on 1985 TCFA activities and what can be expected in 1986.

Other convention speakers include: Jo Ann Smith, president of the National Cattlemen's Association; Dr. Henry Stoessinger, an internationally recognized political analyst; and Jim Wacker, head football coach at Texas Christian University.

Cotton, grain yields good

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) Cotton harvesting generally dominated the Texas agricultural scene in western areas and throughout the plains this week, and most farmers are reaping good yields, said Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Sorghum harvesting also continues in full swing in parts of the Panhandle and South Plains, and sugar beet harvesting is active, Carpenter said, and the corn harvest is about complete.

Some peanuts remain to be harvested in central, eastern and coastal areas due to recent rains, and soybean harvesting in eastern and coastal areas has been stalled by wet fields. Wet conditions have hurt the quality of both crops, said Carpenter.

Some harvest operations also are active in the Rio Grande Valley, with sugarcane harvesting in full swing and some early oranges and vegetables moving to market. The orange crop will be short and there will be little grapefruit as the citrus industry is still reeling from the devastating freeze in late 1983.

This year's pecan harvest is in full swing over Texas, and the crop appears good to excellent in both quality and quantity, Carpenter said. Prices to growers generally are good.

Some recent improvement in cattle prices along with improving forage conditions have given a boost to the state's livestock industry, added Carpenter. Warm-season grasses have made some recent growth due to good rains and warm weather, and now small grains — wheat and oats — as well as clovers and ryegrass are starting to provide grazing for livestock. Stocker cattle and lambs are being moved onto small grains over much of the state.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

PANHANDLE: Sorghum harvesting is in full swing while most of the corn crop is in. Cotton and sugar beet harvesting also is active. Early planted wheat is making excellent progress and is providing grazing for stocker cattle.

SOUTH PLAINS: Cotton and sorghum harvesting is active along with the harvesting of some sugar beets and other vegetables. Cotton turnout is generally better than expected. Wheat continues to make excellent progress, and livestock are in good condition. Pecan harvesting is under way.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton harvesting is making some progress although many farmers are awaiting a killing freeze. Farmers are still planting a little wheat, with early planted fields offering grazing for livestock. A fair to good pecan crop is being harvested.

NORTH CENTRAL: Wheat and oats are making good growth, and some early planted fields are being grazed. A few peanuts still remain to be harvested due to rain delays. Early pecans are hulling and some fall vegetables are being harvested. Livestock are in good condition.

NORTHEAST: Most wheat and oats are up and growing. Farmers are still harvesting some hay and peanuts, and the pecan harvest is active, with average yields and quality. Cattle are in good shape due to improved grazing conditions.

FAR WEST: Cotton harvesting is active although scattered rains are continuing to cause some delays. Harvesting of sorghum and bell peppers continues while the cabbage harvest is complete. Early pecans are being harvested and the crop is excellent.

WEST CENTRAL: Farmers are harvesting cotton as weather conditions permit; about half the crop is in, with dryland yields at 1-4 to 1-3 bale per acre. Peanut harvesting continues, with good yields on irrigated land. Wheat is making excellent growth and is providing grazing for stocker calves and lambs.

Accent on agriculture

By DENNIS W. NEWTON
County Extension Agent

Whether or not grazing stocker cattle on small grain pasture is profitable depends on many economic and production decisions and developments.

A manager can influence some of these factors and should look at their costs and benefits.

Several factors analyzed with a stocker cattle production and marketing analysis computer program suggest the following:

1. The higher the pasture variable costs, the higher the breakeven selling price required to cover either variable cost or total cost.

2. The higher the pasture variable cost, the greater the effect of stocking rates upon the breakeven stocker selling price. For example, with a $75.00 pasture variable cost the decrease in the stocking rate from 0.75 to 1 acre per head increases the variable cost $19.37 per head and the total cost $24.38 per head. If the pasture variable cost increases to $85 per acre, the variable and total cost increases $22.01 and $26.95 per head respectively. This illustrates the extent to which reduced stocking rates will cut profits or increase losses.

3. At the 1-acre stocking rate, and pasture variable costs of $75, $80 or $90 per acre, the stocker selling price required to cover total costs is near $68-69 per cwt. It appears that stocker operations can afford little rollback in the selling price if all costs are to be recovered. This reflects the increased costs of growing small grain and other costs of doing business during the last 10 years.

4. Using a 12 percent interest rate instead of 14 percent cuts the interest charge per head by about $3.31 (assuming $80 pasture variable cost and stocking one head per acre). With an average daily gain of 1.44 pounds, this translates to a 50 cents per hundredweight reduction in the breakeven price to cover variable cost or total cost.

By substituting the power of a microcomputer for a pencil or a pocket calculator, a manager can game play how numerous combinations of stocker purchase price and selling price affect profitability as well as how the many other selected economic and production factors influence the operation. This provides an opportunity for profit.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service provides Stocker Cattle analysis to producers. Forms are available from the County Extension Office. Producers wishing to look at the variability of their stocker operations are encouraged to make use of this analysis service. Management is the key-to-profitable stocker cattle production. Computer analysis is an excellent management tool.

At Hereford Community Center

Festival of Arts, Crafts scheduled

There are 45 booths reserved by people from the local and surrounding area who will be exhibiting all sorts of crafts and baked goods during Wesley's Festival of Arts and Crafts Bazaar set Saturday, Nov. 23, at the Hereford Community Center. An added feature this year will be a youth food booth as well as a baked goods booth. Checking out the toys and cookies are (from left) April Riley, one-year-old daughter of Tim and Georgia Riley, and one-year-old Christopher Ruckman, son of Gary and Pam Ruckman.

A variety of crafts will be featured during the bazaar including woodworking, cornhusk dolls, doll clothes, ceramics, oil paintings, taxidermy, covered photo albums and Christian jewelry. Displaying just a few of the unique items to be for sale are Pat Green (at left) and Nell Hodges.

As in previous years, the Festival of Arts and Crafts will be featuring musical entertainment throughout the day in various rooms of the Community Center.

Performers include Frances Rincenbaw, pianist; Kassi and Kerri Price, singing to pre-recorded music; Jamie Mendoza, gospel singing group; Marilyn Bell, pianist; Elizabeth Criner's violin students; Jenifer Holmes, pianist; and Heather Gee and Wendy Sanders, singing to pre-recorded music.

MRS. PAUL AARON BUCKLES
...nee Cynthia Ann Easterwood

Nuptials spoken by couple Saturday

Standing amid silk flowers designed and made by her mother, Cynthia Ann Easterwood became the bride of Paul Aaron Buckles of Amarillo early Saturday evening in First Baptist Church.

The Rev. Doug Manning, former church pastor, officiated at the ceremony which was also the date of the bride's maternal grandparents' 50th wedding anniversary.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex W. Easterwood of Hereford and the bridegroom is the son of Caroline Buckles of Albuquerque, N.M. and Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Buckles of Amarillo.

Burgandy and ivory colored silk floral arrangements, consisting of roses, carnations and tiger lilies, were arranged in brass containers at the church altar and ivory bows marked the pews.

Mary F. Moss of Amarillo served as maid of honor and Ben Prichard of San Antonio was best man.

The bride's cousin, Saundra Land of Albuquerque, was the bridal attendant and Howard Denton of Amarillo was groomsmen. Escorting guests were Jimmy and Chuck Scott, both of Amarillo.

Serving as flower girl was the bride's cousin, Mary Ditto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Ditto of Richardson. The groom's nephew, Colby Buckles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Buckles of Amarillo, was ring bearer.

The groom vocalized one of his original songs entitled "Love's Winding Road" and Archie Coplen and Jan Walser sang a duet, "Nobody Loves Me Like You Do." Walser also provided musical accompaniment.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a candlelight antique satin gown fashioned with a Victorian neckline of candlelight illusion made of European Sposakella lace, scalloped edge and fitted bodice with turn-of-the-century point decorated with pearls and sequins.

The satin sleeves were puffed at the shoulders and were attached by delicate lace to form fitted bridal illusion sleeves which extended over the bride's wrists.

The full skirt, enhanced by Sposakella lace, swept into a cathedral-length train edged with Sposakella lace, scalloped edges with rose and leaf designs etched into the lace. The gown was designed in New York by Bonnie Antonicci.

The candlelight floor-length veil, adorned with satin, was attached to a turn-of-the-century hat which was swept on one side and was adorned with a satin flower on the swept side. The hat was also trimmed with lace flowers entwined by miniature seed pearls.

She carried a bouquet of orchids, roses, carnations and English ivy in dusty rose on an off-white Bible that her mother carried at her wedding.

The bride wore the traditional garter which was also worn by her mother in her wedding and carried a handkerchief belonging to her maternal grandmother.

Bridal attendants wore dusty rose floor-length taffeta dresses and carried lace fans decorated by dusty rose and off-white carnations and roses.

The bride's cousin, Michelle Land of Albuquerque, invited guests to register at the reception in the church fellowship hall.

Rebecca Boening of Amarillo, the groom's cousin, served cake and Linda Ditto of Richardson, the bride's cousin, poured punch and coffee. Staci and Jennifer Smith, both of Amarillo, presided over the groom's table.

The bride's four-tiered cake, which was topped with a wedding ornament used in her parents' wedding, centered the bride's table where punch was served. Enhancing the table were all brass serving pieces.

The groom's table, where hot cider was poured, was centered with a German chocolate cake and decorated by all crystal appointments.

Leaving for her wedding trip, the bride wore a white wool suit with a navy sweater and navy colored accessories. The couple will make their home in Amarillo.

The bride is a 1979 graduate of Hereford High School and has her associate degree in interior design.

The bridegroom served in the United States Air Force and is employed by Wal-Mart in Amarillo.

Red Cross Update

Special thanks to Garth Thomas, the board of directors, the uniformed volunteers and friends that wrote letters recommendation in order that I might receive the Red Cross's Tiffany Award for staff members.

I really appreciate the honor and kind words. I could not possibly do anything without the volunteers. Volunteers do the work and make the work possible with their funds.

Kingdom Seekers assemble

Members of the Kingdom Seekers Sunday School class met Tuesday evening in the home of Velma Carroll.

The opening prayer was led by Erma Bain and the hostess gave a devotional thought entitled, "He Loves You."

During the business session, plans were made for the Christmas party which will be a covered dish dinner in the home of Rosie Wall Dec. 10.

Christmas gifts for Westgate Nursing Home were also discussed.

Roll call was "A blessing I've received in 1985." Wall voiced the closing prayer to those present. They included Pauline Landers, Shirley Brown, Coy Tice, Fannie Townsend, Maxine Coleman and Luella Thomas.

Hamby, Blevins exchange nuptials Friday evening

MRS. GARY DWAYNE BLEVINS
..Ina Irene Hamby

Wedding vows were exchanged by Ina Irene Hamby and Gary Dwayne Blevins Friday evening in First Christian Church with the Rev. Mack McCarter of the church officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hamby of 328 Ave. E and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Blevins of 225 Elm.

The front church altar was decorated by brass candelabra trimmed with pink and ivory bows and greenery. A unity candle, which was lit by the couple's mothers before nuptials were spoken, also adorned the altar. Church pews were marked by pink and ivory bows.

Anne Hamby served her sister as maid of honor and the groom's father was best man.

Bridesmaids included the bride's sisters, Marie McIntosh, Judy Hamby and Michelle Hamby. Others included the groom's sister, Carol Blevins, and Kim Mills, Corie Culp and Sharon Wright.

Serving as groomsmen were the groom's brother, Darrel Blevins, and Willie Jaggar, Randy Stribbling, Pat Mercer, Doug Boozer, Brad Belford and David McKay.

Escorting guests were Willis Dugan, Edwin Maxwell and Mike Malone.

Serving as flower girls were the bride's niece, Michelle McIntosh, daughter of Marie McIntosh, and Martha Claudio. Ring bearer was Mikel Jarret, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mikel Jarrett. Lighting candles were Mike Malone and Edwin Maxwell.

The traditional "Wedding March" and "Triumphal March" were played at the ceremony. Mrs. Kenneth Adams sang "And There is Love" accompanied by Frances Parker playing the organ and piano and Lori Parker, violinist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a French styled antique satin gown designed by Bonnie Fashions. A renaissance of the 17th century Queen Anne period, the gown was enhanced with a Queen Anne neckline outlined with satin ruffles which stood high on her neck. The sleeves were French puffed in the style of Marie Antoninette and decorated with pearls and imported European hand-embroidered lace. The delicate sleeves were tight to a point and were highlighted with a runner of pearls.

The bodice, favoring the sweetheart style, was encrusted with pearls and embroidered motifs and the fitted waist was crystal pleated and cinched to a point and gathered with pearls and starburst motifs. Behind the gown flowed a seven foot cathedral-length train scattered with satin scallops which were edged in reembroidered European lace. Embroidered satin roses were delicately arranged on the train which was edged with European lace crocheted on the under side.

The Juliet cap headpiece was adorned with pearls, sequins and jewels as well as sprays of pearls and ivory in candlelight colors. The three dimensional candlelight bridal illusion veil featured scalloped edges of alcon lace of flowers and rose petals and trailed down the back of the gown.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of creamy white roses, silk gardenias and pink rosebuds set off by lace, seed pearls and further enhanced with ivory lace and pink and ivory ribbon streamers.

As something borrowed, she wore a strand of antique pearls belonging to her mother; something new, pearl earrings; and as something blue, the traditional blue lace garter.

Attendants wore flowing formal-length full chiffon gowns in white accented by pink ribbons at the waists and single pink roses. Further enhancing the spaghetti straps of rolled chiffon were three-quarter-length gloves. The bodices were gathered and layered.

Their halo headpieces of small pink flowers were intertwined with honeysuckle and pink, ivory and white ribbon strands and they carried bouquets of pink and ivory roses accented with honeysuckle and pink, ivory and white ribbon strands.

During the reception held in the church reception hall; Julie Crawford invited guests to register from a table decorated by a single rose.

A slide-audio "Love Story" presentation with music was given by Jody White of Tulsa during the reception.

Darren Saul served cake and punch and coffee were poured by Hope Saul and Karen Wright. Others assisting included Elaine Jones, and Mmes. Sonny Evers, Lynn Jones, Johnie Burkhalter, Dale Henson and Jimmy Rowton.

The main refreshment table, covered by a lace cloth over a pink underlay, was highlighted by the two-tiered cake surrounded by five smaller cakes decorated with white icing and pink roses. The cake was set off by a flowing pink water fountain and topped by a Precious Moments wedding figurine.

Leaving for a trip to Carlsbad Caverns, N.M., the bride wore a street-length mauve silk dress featuring a gathered banded waist and silver embroidered roses. She also wore matching accessories.

The couple will be at home after Nov. 20 in Hereford.

The bride, a 1984 Hereford High School graduate, was a three year

National Honor Society member and is a certified emergency medical technician.

The bridegroom, also a 1984 HHS grad, is a member of Cross Country and is presently employed by Hereford Welding Supply.

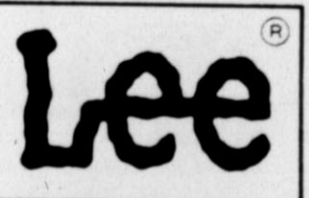

Special out-of-town guests included the groom's grandparents, Lerah Rogers of Canadian and Willie Moore of Clarendon. Also, present were the bride's godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Obrecht of Claude. Other towns represented were Tulsa, Amarillo, Oklahoma City, Ok. and Plainview.

Kitchen shower given for Nicolynn Behunin

A kitchen shower honoring Nicolynn Behunin, bride-elect of Robby Cook, was held recently in Kinsey Parlor of First Baptist Church.

Corsages in contrasting shades of purple, the bride-elect's chosen color, were presented by the hostesses to the honoree, her mother, Eileen Behunin; and the prospective bridegroom's mother, Earlene Cook. Several games were played during the shower and a "piece of advise" was given to the honoree by guests.

Refreshments of dainty cookies, finger sandwiches, nuts and mints, punch and coffee were served.

The hostesses' gift was a set of cookware and utensils.

Hostesses were Judy Baker, Earline Schneider, Nell Miller, Margaret Perez, Tawana Hollowell, Joan Slentz, Sharon Pennington, Louise Walker, Corda Glover, Lorraine Anthony and Carolyn Baxter.

Reunion planned Nov. 30

All former members of the Hereford Business and Professional Women's Club are invited to the annual reunion beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 30, in the home of Carmen Angel, 301 W. Park Ave. A covered dish luncheon will be served at 12 noon.

COMPLAINERS MAKE GOOD CUSTOMERS

ARNOLD, Md. (AP) — Companies that cultivate complaints about their products or services are finding that complainers make loyal customers, according to a marketing expert.

"It is in every company's best interest to encourage what they dread most, and to ask for complaints," says George R. Walther of the Telemarketing Foundation. "If the complaint is resolved quickly, the complainer is nine times as likely to continue as a customer."

TERMINOLOGY

ATLANTA (AP) — Most people with arthritis oppose the use of terms such as "deformed," "invalid," and "crippled" to describe their condition, says the Arthritis Foundation.

MRS. TIM CARROLL
...nee Teresa Carr

Carr, Carrol! exchange vows during evening ceremony

Teresa Carr became the bride of Tim Carroll during an evening ceremony Saturday at Avenue Baptist Church. Clarence Powell officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Lee and Shirley Carr of 714 Blevins and the bridegroom is the son of Derrill and Natha Carroll of 217 Ave. B.

The main church altar was decorated by an archway trimmed with mauve and rose colored flowers.

Robin Carr served her sister as maid of honor and Johnny Carroll served his brother as best man.

The groom's sister, Brenda Carroll, and Wendy Roe were bridesmaids and the bride's cousin, James Carr, and her brother, Randy Carr, were groomsmen.

Escorting guests were Todd Esqueda and Kevin Foster.

Flower girl was Jessica Caster, daughter of Stacy Caster and the late Jessie Caster, and ring bearer was Justin Carroll, son of Johnny and Cindy Carroll.

Tim Tiley vocalized "The Search Is Over" accompanied by Rosie Wall.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length white gown designed with a Victorian lace collar and fitted bodice enhanced at the shoulders by a border of white fur and a wide lace ruffle. The double puff satin sleeves were gathered at the elbows and extended into fitted lace sleeves.

The full skirt of bridal satin was trimmed with a border of white fur and several lace flounces and extended into a cathedral-length train.

Her fingertip-length veil of bridal illusion was edged with matching lace and was enhanced with lace appliques. It was attached to a lace caplet decorated with tiny seed pearls.

She carried a cascading bouquet of mauve and rose colored flowers entwined with baby's breath and decorated with white ribbon streamers.

Attendants were attired in designer dresses in burgundy taffeta accented with ruffles round the necklines, down the gown's back and along the hemlines.

The flower girl wore a mauve taffeta dress adorned with burgundy flowers and carried a small bouquet of mauve and rose flowers and baby's breath.

Jennifer Eggen invited guests to register at the reception held in the church fellowship hall.

Cindy Carroll and Deanna Hobles served cake and Trudy Hobles pinned on flowers.

The three-tiered heart-shaped cake was decorated by small flowers and the top layer, which was placed upon pillars, was topped with the traditional bride and bridegroom figurines.

The couple plan to make their home in Tyler, Tx.

The bride, a 1983 graduate of Hereford High School, attended Hereford Cosmetology and completed the course in May of 1983.

The bridegroom, a 1982 HHS grad, attended TSTI in Amarillo and completed an auto mechanics course in August.

Out-of-town guests represented Amarillo, Pampa and Carlsbad, N.M.

DR. GOTT

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have an 8-year-old granddaughter. When she was about 3, she started having problems. When she urinated, she would have a bad burning, and her vagina got red and sore. The doctor said she had a herpes or yeast infection and that she would have the problem all her life. All she could do was use ointment. It seems terrible to think a child would have to go through life like that. Is there anything to be done?

DEAR READER — Get your granddaughter to a urologist fast. Although occasional urinary infection or vaginal irritation may occur in children, a chronic condition may become serious.

Deadline nears for entering program

Deadline for entries in the local Voice of Democracy scriptwriting program is Nov. 30. The event is being sponsored locally by VFW Post 4818 and its auxiliary.

The program, which is entitled "New Horizons for America's Youth", is open to all 10th, 11th and 12th grade students and offers local, district and national recognition and awards with the national award being a $14,000 scholarship.

Students interested in participating need to contact Lana Hall, Hereford High school speech teacher, or Marie Goheen, auxiliary chairman.

Remodeling sale set this week

The public is invited to a remodeling sale Thursday and Friday in the Lamar Room at King's Manor Retirement Home on Sunset Drive.

The sale will feature many articles such as record players, sewing machines, Christmas decorations, crafts and others.

Anyone may donate items for the sale. Proceeds will be used for the new decor.

Faith is what permits you to believe that this time members of the congregation won't leave the parking lot like crazed stunt drivers. Someone's always taking the fun out of life. Those plastic trash bags prevent you from checking up on how much booze your neighbor's been using.

Entrants must write and then tape record a three to five minute broadcast script expressing their views of "New Horizons for America's Youth." The tapes will be judged for content, originality and delivery.

National awards in addition to the $14,000 first place scholarships include $7,000, $4,500, $3,500, $2,500 and $1,000 scholarships for second through sixth place winners.

TAXES & SHELTERS
NEW YORK (AP) — Before investing in a tax shelter there are several questions you should ask yourself, advises Albert E. Barrette. Barrette, president of Astor Securities Inc., says one of the most important questions is: How stable is your marriage? He says, "If you are having trouble and there's a strong possibility you might get divorced, you should avoid a tax shelter because joint ownership with your wife will cause all kinds of problems."

Other questions to ask yourself, he says, are: What funds do you have for your children's education? How's your health? How stable is your job? When do you expect to retire?

WINDOW ENERGY TREATMENTS.

Energy control at windows first involves the climate. The number, size and construction of the windows, the direction they face and the heating/cooling system are also factors. Add the insulative value of the treatment, its cost, its appearance and its ease of use. The insulative value of one layer of common treatments, from best to worst, are as follows: lined woven woods; aluminized pleated shades; unlined woven woods; window shades; lined draperies; unlined draperies; vertical blinds; metal mini-blinds; and sheer curtains. When any two of these are combined at one window, their total insulative value is more than the sum of their individual values. This is because a layer of dead, insulative air has been created between them.

When you're looking for both insulative and decorative coverings for your windows come in and talk to our knowledgeable staff at FINISHING TOUCHES, 501 E. Park, 364-8870. Our coverings will add beauty and value to your environment. Custom made draperies will be designed with your rooms in mind. Open: 9am-5pm Mon thru Fri, and by appointment.

Planning Annual Tour

Three Hereford homes have been selected for La Madre Mia Study Club's annual Christmas Tour of Homes scheduled from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 24. Making plans for the event are from left, Mary Beth White, chairman; Franeyne Bromlow, tickets; Sharon Hodges, publicity; and Georgia Sparks, refreshments. Homes to be toured include the residences of Larry McNutt, Darwin McGill and Steve Wright.

Christmas Home tour planned

The annual Christmas Tour of Homes was discussed when members of La Madre Mia Study Club met Thursday evening in the home of Ruth Black with Lavon Nieman serving as co-hostess.

Mary Beth White, chairman of the annual event to be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 24, gave a report on the tour plans.

Tickets are priced at $2 per person and may be purchased from any club member or at the tour homes. Homes to be featured include the residences of Larry McNutt, Darwin McGill and Steve Wright. Refreshments will be served at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

Co-chairmen for the tour are Georgia Sparks, refreshments; Sharon Hodges, publicity; and Fran-cyne Bromlow, tickets.

During the business meeting, club members voted to donate $100 to the Christmas Stocking Fund and $100 to a worthy needy family.

The club sponsors a child in the Big Brothers/Big Sisters Organization and several members attended an appreciation dinner Friday evening.

The program for the evening was provided by roll call which was "Show It-Wear It-Do It." Each members presented her talent and a special performance by "Dolly Parton" Watson was enjoyed.

Hebrew language studied by speaker

Claudia McBrayer presented a program to members of Calliopean Study Club Thursday in the home of Mrs. Trow Mims.

Following a brief business session, McBrayer gave the program on her study of the Hebrew language. She showed the alphabet and compared it with the English alphabet. She explained that the Hebrew Torah is kept in scrolls in the temple and their books read from back to front.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Paul Coneway, Audine Dettmann, Jane Gulley, Virginia Holmes, Faye Holt, Sue James, Sheri Kerr, McBrayer, Cherry McWhorter, Kay McWhorter, Mims, Wilma Nobles, Kathlee Palmer, Vera Threewit and guest, Mrs. Duffy McBrayer, Sr.

The next meeting will be held Dec. 12 at Cherry McWhorter's home. This will be a Christmas dinner.

John Gary to appear Dec. 6

Members of the Hereford Community Concert Association are reminded that John Gary and Friends will be performing during the first concert of the 1985-86 year on Dec. 6 at 8 p.m. in the Hereford High School auditorium.

Gary has appeared on television with the Carol Burnett Show, Ed Sullivan, Johnny Carson and others. He has his own show, "The John Gary Show," that has been shown in almost every major market in the United States.

Gary has toured with a new version of "Student Prince" in which he received outstanding reviews. He has played in the biggest and best night clubs including the Coconut Grove, the Ambassador Hotel, The Persian Room at the Plaza Hotel in New York and the Venetian Room, both in San Francisco and Dallas.

He is a former U.S. Marine and lives in the Dallas suburb of Richardson with his wife and five children.

Country Christmas Bazaar set

The ninth annual Country Christmas Bazaar, sponsored by Westway Extension Homemakers Club, is planned from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 7, at the Hereford Community Center.

Christmas ornaments and gifts and a variety of baked goods will be on sale to the public.

For further information call (806) 276-5822 or 276-5516.

WHO SAYS IT'S COLD?

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska is trying to change the image that its winter weather is uncomfortably cold, according to the state's Division of Tourism.

The department says that during most of the winter months Ketchikan is warmer than Boston, Anchorage is warmer than Quebec City, and Juneau is warmer than Chicago. Fairbanks averages 10 degrees above zero during January, and Nome, closer to Siberia than anywhere else, runs 4 above during the same period.

The department says visitors should dress as they would for the upper American Midwest to be comfortable in most of Alaska.

Between the Covers

"Christmas Crafts" are featured this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. Leslie Linsley's "Night Before Christmas Craft Book," "All Through The House," and "Christmas Tree Ornaments" by Lorraine Bodger are available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library.

It's the night before Christmas and you suddenly realize that you forgot to get a present for Aunt Helen or you need a small gift for a neighbor. Leslie Linsley and Jon Aron are designers who have created hundreds of craft projects for over twenty books and magazines. For this Christmas collection, they have designed over seventy-five gifts and decorations that can be made using a variety of crafting techniques. Full-size patterns, diagrams, and charts are provided for easy crafting.

"Christmas is the best excuse for crafting," says Leslie Linsley. There's something for everyone! From the tiniest cross-stitch Noel ornament to a lovingly stitched basket wreath. Children will love the quick-to-knit fat bunny slippers or the bright yellow doggy mitten. Other books by Leslie Linsley are "Quick and Easy Knit and Crochet" and

"America's Favorite Quilts."

In "All Through The House," the Vanessa-Ann Collection presents Christmas in cross-stitch. Selections from the classic Christmas story, "The Night Before Christmas," are artistically interpreted in cross-stitch along with sixty-five other original projects for Christmas decorating and gift-giving.

Large easy-to-read graphs make stitching these designs simple enough for a beginner. Measurements are given for the finished pieces in a variety of fabrics, to help you quickly figure the amount of fabric needed. To enable you to capture these same colors in your own creations, both DMC and Susan Bates color charts are included.

"Christmas Tree Ornaments" captures the spirit of Christmas past and present with beautifully designed ornaments in traditional and modern motifs. Lorraine Bodger has designed six trees to represent six different Christmas themes. While each tree looks wonderful as it appears in its photograph, you will find that it is easy to mix the ornaments to create combinations that best express your own Christmas style.

The six trees are the formal, Victoria Ornaments tree trimmed in elegant pale blue and lavender, the Old-Fashioned Country Ornaments tree in bright, country colors, the homey Scrapbasket Ornaments tree, the Children's Ornaments tree, the Folk Art Ornaments tree which are displayed on two different trees, the Scandinavian tree and the Mexican tree, and the Natural Ornaments tree. Bodger does include step-by-step directions for her ornaments. Other books available this week at the library are "Christmas With Southern Living 1985," "Christmas Is Coming! 1985," and "Creative Ideas For Christmas 1985."

Life Skills Workshop doing its job

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

"When I went into Planned Parenthood, I was just scared to find out the results," said Clara Garcia, 17. "And when the nurse said it was positive, I just felt like my whole life had gone down the drain."

Living with her parents, Garcia, like many expectant young mothers, didn't know where to go or what to do.

"When I told my parents, they were pretty upset, since I was the baby of the family and all," she said.

"I was going to get married but I didn't want to quit school and I knew my parents were behind me," said Garcia.

Since then, Garcia says, "I've learned that you don't have to get married just because you're pregnant."

"I feel like it would be easier to finish school without worrying about a husband too," she explained. Garcia is a senior and attends community classes for others like herself.

"A long time ago, guys would think 'She has a baby, she's been around, she's no good,' and they'd lose respect," said Garcia. "But nowadays, guys will respect you whether you have a baby or not—if you want to be respected," said the 17-year-old.

"At first I felt like I was 'nobody' because I was going to have a baby, but the workshop made me realize that if there is a goal, that I can reach that goal and be somebody, hold down a job, support myself and my baby," said Garcia.

The workshop Garcia and other young mothers attended (including women in general), is a course teaching self-improvement, goal setting, and career advancement offered once a year at the community center to women interested in making a change.

Life Skills Workshop is a program offered in Hereford by Amarillo College. The workshop lasts a week and the college's counselor, Donna Moore, does an excellent job in presenting and organizing all the facts needed to further these girls lives.

CLARA GARCIA

"Sponsored by the Department of Human Services, Life Skills Workshop focuses on self-improvement, setting goals for the present and future, and career information to those not necessarily just pregnant, but to women who want a new direction in the way their lives are going," explained Moore.

"We have three participants in the workshop that are not pregnant, but are wanting to set career goals and investigate the possibilities of returning to school," she explained.

Moore said the workshop is for people who are in a transition, people who want to make a change or take another step.

Through the workshop I can ammend the mistake I made made'

"That's my job," said Moore, "I help these people to help make changes for themselves."

"Everyone has physiological needs," said Moore, "and these needs—food, clothing, shelter—have to be met before the person can concentrate on self-improvement."

"During the workshop, we introduce the girls to a lot of community resources," said Moore. "They are told where they can go in the community to get food or clothing, vaccines, etc. in addition to other community services designed especially for women in this kind of situation," said Moore.

Give feet special attention

In the course of a lifetime, an average person's feet bear a weight equal to several million tons and travel an estimated 70,000 miles. Proper foot care can help prevent a wide variety of foot problems, says the Texas Medical Association.

Corns and calluses appear on the skin as a response to repeated friction and pressure from shoes. The best prevention is to wear shoes that are wide at the instep and across the toes. Using a razor blade or acid preparation on corns and calluses is unwise. The thickened skin protects the foot from shoe pressure. If too much skin is removed, an ulcer can develop and lead to infection.

Bunions occur when big toe joints are out of line and become swollen and tender. Bunions may result from ill-fitting shoes pressing on a deformity or from an inherited weakness in the foot. Sandals, shoes with extra toe depth, and doughnut pads can help, but sometimes surgery is necessary.

Fungal and bacterial conditions—including athlete's foot—occur

"We try to concentrate after completing this first step to focus on completing their education," she said.

Participants are encouraged to graduate from high school and seek additional schooling to plan for a career.

"Programs are given in financial aid and vocational areas," said Moore, "we help the girls get in touch with the resources, the counselors, the colleges..."

"Whether it be becoming a mother, searching for a career, or going back to school, we try to help," she explained.

Moore is a counselor for Adult

Students and Women's Program at Amarillo College. "It's an arm of the counseling center to provide counseling support to adults wishing to change their lives," she said.

On a one to one basis the counselor and the person needing help will go through together what possibilities there are for assistance in work, school, or raising a child are available.

"Some of the people come in saying 'I'm burnt out, and I don't want to go back to school, I hate my job and I need a new career,'" said Moore.

"Women tend to feel that they cannot do the same things men do for a living," said Moore. "They tend to feel that their role in life is to wash dishes and have babies..."

"This is not true, their life after having a baby. We try to make these girls realize there is more to life than that."

"This is where the career planning comes in," said Moore. "We let the girls know there are a lot of opportunities out there, but the college will not come knocking at their door."

"Public assistance is temporary," stresses Moore. "The Dept. of Human Services will meet a need at the time one needs help, but it was not designed to be permanent assistance," she explained.

"This is why we have this course; to make aware of the opportunities available and to stress the need for a career after the baby comes."

"I plan to go to college after the baby is born and I'm going to study fashion design," said a positive Garcia.

Due to deliver on the 24th of this month, Garcia was one of the girls that completed the Life Skills Workshop with a new goal in sight.

"Through the workshop I felt like I can go back and pick up the pieces; I can ammend the mistake I made and I have faith that God will help me," said the young mother.

*This is the day we count our lives
Before our friends and God above.
In years to come as we recall,
Again we'll thank you, one and all.
All you who came from far and near,
We're grateful for your presence here.
And may God bless you, this we pray,
As He has us this wedding day.*

Mr. & Mrs. James M. Hamby and family would like to express their sincere Thanks for all the help and the gifts which were received by Gary & Irene Blevins

Discount trip offered

Southwest Airlines is once again presenting the Home for the Holidays program affording senior citizens from the Amarillo area the opportunity to be with friends or relatives during the time of year we all like to be "home."

In the Home for the Holidays program, Southwest Airlines provides complimentary airline transportation within our area of service for a set number of senior citizens in each of the 26 cities we serve. This is Southwest Airlines' gift to some of these special people, people who would not be able to afford to travel.

These individuals must be 60 years of age or older and unable to make such a trip on his/her own means.

Departures can be made any time on or after Dec. 9. Return flights may be scheduled any time on or before Jan. 10, 1986.

Turn in nominations immediately at Hereford Senior Citizens Center to Margie Daniels because the selection of two recipients has to be made by Nov. 20.

Each individual must travel to one of the following Southwest Airlines' markets: Albuquerque, N.M.; Amarillo; Austin; Chicago (Midway); Corpus Christi; Dallas; Denver; El Paso; Houston (Hobby); Houston (Intercontinental); Kansas City; Las Vegas; Little Rock; Los Angeles; Lubbock; Midland/Odesa; New Orleans; Oklahoma City; Ontario, California; Phoenix; Rio Grande Valley (Harlingen); St. Louis; San Antonio; San Diego; San Francisco; or Tulsa.

Friena to host bazaar

A variety of arts and crafts will be featured at the Friena Christmas Bazaar scheduled Nov. 22-23 at Friena Community Center.

The bazaar is planned from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Friday, Nov. 22, and from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Nov. 23.

Five programs will also be presented during the bazaar.

CHOCOLATE FIGHTS TOOTH DECAY

NEW YORK (AP) — Recent studies conducted at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Forsyth Dental Center in Boston show that chocolate can help fight tooth decay, reports Chocolatier magazine.

Findings indicate chocolate contains a protein team component that inhibits activity of a mouth enzyme which is the key element in the formation of plaque.

Also, the cocoa butter in chocolate helps to clear food quickly from the mouth. The faster food leaves the mouth, the less its cavity-producing potential.

Malouf speaks to study club members

"Celebration of the Arts" was the theme of the Pioneer Study Club's luncheon Tuesday at Something Special. Bea Hutson and Willie Wimberly served as hostesses.

Mary Panciera was program leader and introduced guest speaker, George Malouf, a local businessman and noted author.

Eunice Petersen, local artist and art teacher, displayed five of her award winning pictures. She has been a frequent winner at the Women's Federation art shows.

Gladys Miller and Billee Johnson gave reports on the Top of Texas Federation of Womens Clubs board meeting and workshop held recently at Wellington.

Miller reported on the new rules for compiling convention reports and announced that the district president, Mrs. Wood Craig of Sunray, would be a guest at the next meeting.

According to Johnson, the title of the program for this administration of the General Federation of Womens Clubs is "Today's Woman Celebrates Woman." The purpose of this program is to recognize the importance of today's woman and the goal to recognize outstanding club women especially in the area of the arts.

Johnson said that Petersen had made a difference in her club and her community by her art activities and her name would be sent to GFWC to be included in the History of Outstanding Club Women.

Gladys Miller conducted a short business session and Bessie Hill reported on the final bulb sale.

Hutson reminded each one to bring cards and stamps to the next meeting.

Those present included Mmes. Frank Ball, Leatrus Clark, O.G. Hill, Sr., R.B. Hutson, Ray Johnson, H.E. Miller, Ted Panciera, Paul Rudd, Delmar Sigle and R.L. Wilson.

Reinauer attends annual convention

Mrs. Joe Reinauer, Sr. was among area members of the Texas Federation of Music Clubs that met in Borger recently for the First District's 25th Annual Convention.

The all-day meeting was held in the Borger Country Club with Reinauer, district president, presiding over the business session.

Delegates represented music clubs from Hereford, Stratford, Amarillo, Dawn, Spearman and Gruver.

During the morning session, members of the Junior Division presented a mini-concert by Jerrie Keith, district junior counselor. These young musicians are students of the federated teachers in the district.

Mrs. Del Cluck of Gruver presided at the luncheon which featured Richard Kidwell of Amarillo as speaker. Kidwell served a number of years as supervisor of Public School Music in the Amarillo Public Schools. He is now in private business, but remains active in music as music director in an Amarillo Church, and is also active on the Amarillo Symphony Board.

A performing arts program was presented that afternoon under the direction of Mrs. John R. Yows of Borger. Members of District I dedicated the convention in her honor.

Mrs. Paul Lyons was remembered in a special memorial service during the annual convention.

The next fall convention will be held in Amarillo Clubs for the Sesquicentennial year 1986.

HER LIGHT
NEW YORK (AP) — As part of the centennial renovation of the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor, a new combination of lights will create the effect of natural daylight and save energy, notes Energy User News.

Two new sets of metal halide lamps and fixtures will be used.

An intense blue-white light will highlight the sculptural details of Liberty's robe and features, while a warm light will illuminate the green patina of the 151-foot statue's metal skin. In tandem, the new lights will create the appearance of natural light, the publication reports.

The new system will be lit by 62 lamps and will cut the operating costs for the National Park Service from $22,800 to $6,000 annually.

The original incandescent lighting, installed in 1916, was composed of 246 lamps that would cost more than $20,000 to operate today. The current lighting, installed in 1976 for the U.S. Bicentennial, has 69 lamps.

Lifestyle Section Policies

The Hereford Brand welcomes and solicits news reports of interest from local residents, clubs and organizations. We ask your cooperation with our guidelines when submitting news items and photographs:

—Please submit club reports the day following the meeting. Remember, we are a NEWSpaper, not a publishing firm for scrapbooks. Meeting reports turned in late are subject to editing or omission. Reports can be phoned in if not too lengthy.

—General news items for the Lifestyles pages should be submitted by 1 p.m. the day before publication. The Brand, of course, reserves the right to edit any or all copy. Brief items of interest about former residents or college students are welcome concerning degrees, honors, career promotions, etc.

—Brand staffers make photos of club officers, donation presentations, or unique projects. We normally need 24 hours notice. Photos can be made at the Brand office in the afternoons, or can be arranged at meetings if scheduling can be arranged.

—Our "Calendar of Events" is open to any club meeting or project. Items or changes should be submitted prior to the Wednesday or Sunday publication time.

—Wedding and anniversary photos and information should be submitted five days prior to the event. If the contributor desires both an engagement and wedding photo, the engagement should precede the wedding by at least four weeks. Photos should be black and white; we will use color only if the contrast is deemed suitable for good reproduction.

—The Brand publishes a Lifestyle "cover page" on most Sundays. Contact our Lifestyle editor well in advance to determine if a reservation can be made for the page.

—Birth announcements are obtained from Deaf Smith General Hospital. Information on infants born elsewhere, or who have grandparents in Hereford, should be reported to The Brand within a week.

—Staff photos published in The Brand may be purchased for $1; first come, first-served. Reprints can be ordered at $3.50 for 5.7 and $4.50 for 8x10 prints.

Annual holiday activity scheduled at Tech museum

A look into Christmases of yesteryear will highlight Candlelight at The Museum, the annual holiday activity at The Museum of Texas Tech University and its Ranching Heritage Center Dec. 12-15.

Luminarias and lanterns will light pathways at the Ranching Heritage Center (RHC) 6-8 p.m. Dec. 12 and 13 when volunteers decked in period costumes will take part in holiday activities typical for the era represented by the RHC's historical buildings.

The Ranching Heritage Center will also be open 1-4:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 15, for individuals unable to attend the evening events. However, the volunteers will not be featured.

Among the activities, a choir will sing carols from the steps of the Barton House and school children will create holiday crafts in the RHC schoolhouse. A cowboy Santa Claus will greet children at a chuckwagon and cowboys will offer songs around a campfire.

The historic buildings will be decorated with bows and greenery and The Museum atrium will be graced by a 20-foot fir tree. Entertainment in The Museum will include choirs, dancers and a puppet show.

A 20-minute audiovisual program, "The Star of Bethlehem" will be shown continuously at Moody Planetarium both nights and during the afternoon event.

The events will be free. Refreshments will be served at The Museum and RHC. Activities are sponsored by The Museum, West Texas Museum Association and Ranching Heritage Association.

George Fox, the founder of the religious group the Society of Friends, or Quakers, died in 1691.

Mother-daughter workshop scheduled Tuesday evening

The eighth grade Discovery Club will be sponsoring a program entitled, "Dear Diary", at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Camp Fire Lodge.

This program is a mother-daughter workshop and all sixth through ninth grade age girls are invited to attend. Gwen Killmer with Planned Parenthood of Amarillo will be the guest speaker.

The film "Dear Diary" will be shown and a discussion session will be held. The content includes changes during adolescence, teen esteem and decision-making and dating. A session will be held for mothers on understanding their teenage daughters.

Also, the club will be sponsoring a suicide prevention clinic Dec. 3. It will be given by Esther Quine, director of Suicide Prevention, Crisis Intervention, Amarillo.

Camp Fire will distribute gifts packs provided by the Salvation Army to the Hereford senior citizens at a later date.

If there are any questions, contact the Camp Fire Lodge at 364-0395. There is no charge for these programs.

Visitors welcomed by Order of Eastern Star

The Hereford Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star met Tuesday evening at the Masonic Temple for its regular meeting.

Twenty-eight members and visitors attended including Iona Stoker and Doris McClenny from Dumas.

The School of Instruction was discussed and plans were made for members to attend the school Nov. 21 in Floydada.

Registration is set for 8:15 a.m. that morning. "The Galley Luncheon" is planned at noon with "Jesus is the Lighthouse Banquet" at 5 p.m. A fraternal visit from the Worthy Grand Matron, Elsie Caladino, will be at 7:30 p.m. that evening in the Masonic Temple.

Norma Lou Rainer, deputy grand matron, will make her official visit to Hereford chapter Jan. 14, 1986.

The Christmas meeting was planned for Dec. 10 with a gift exchange for members. A box of gifts will be sent at that time to the Eastern Star Home in Arlington.

Hereford Music Study Club meets recently

The Hereford Music Study Club met Monday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Allen Cansler.

Cansler, club president, welcomed guests including her mother, Mrs. Lloyd McGee; her mother-in-law, Mrs. Zearl Cansler; and a new member, Betty Gilbert.

After reciting the collect and the creed, Rosie Griffin gave a thumb-nail sketch of the life of Richard Rodgers from the study text, "World of Musical Comedy" by Stanley Greer.

The program then continued with various musical selections presented by club members.

"The Sound of Music" and "The King and I" were given by a vocal ensemble consisting of Mmes. Joe Reinauer, Sr., Donald Meyer, Frances Parker, Joe Reinauer, Jr., Bill Brady, Doug Manning, Bob Sims, Griffin and Lloyd Ames. Mrs. Thomas Betzen accompanied the group on the piano.

Cansler and Mrs. Brent Caviness performed a vocal duet in costume entitled "Falling in Love With Love." Mrs. Sid Shaw was pianist. "Blue Moon" was the piano duet presented by Betzen and Caviness and "Bewitched" was vocalized in custom by Mrs. Joe Wallace with Shaw playing the piano.

Members unanimously voted to admit Dee Anne Trotter as a member to the club. Also, the Christmas meeting with husbands and children was set at 7 p.m. Dec. 9 in the parlor of the First United Methodist Church.

It was announced, that next spring, the state TFMC Convention will be held March 12-15 at the Sharton Marina in Corpus Christi. This will be among the Sesquicentennial Celebration activities for 1986.

The 1986 Junior Convention will be held at the University of Texas in Austin.

Parker directed the hymn of the month followed by singing the benediction, "Bless Us O God."

Serving as co-hostesses were Betzen and Mrs. Wes Fisher.

Public invited to view slides

Good Guys Youth Ministries is presenting a 1,000 frame slide show program called "Salute the Herd" on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Church of the Nazarene Gym.

In the show will be slides from junior and senior high school events including pep rallies, the bon fires, football games, band performances, the homecoming parade and more.

Saturday's party will include skits, awards, and refreshments.

The Good Guys would like those who attend to bring a used toy to benefit their "Toys for Tots" drive, however it is not mandatory.

BIBLE

GOD HAS A PLAN FOR YOUR LIFE TOO!

"As I was on the road, nearing Damascus" (Paul continued), "suddenly about noon a very bright light from heaven shone around me. And I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to me, 'Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting Me?'"

"Who is it speaking to me, sir?" I asked. And He replied, 'I am Jesus of Nazareth, the one you are persecuting.' The men with me saw the light but didn't understand what was said."

"And I said, 'What shall I do, Lord?' and the Lord told me, 'Get up and go into Damascus, and there you will be told what awaits you in the years ahead.'"

"I was blinded by the intense light, and had to be led into Damascus by my companions. There a man named Ananias, as godly a man as you could find for obeying the law, and well thought of by all the Jews of Damascus, came to me, and standing beside me said, 'Brother Saul, receive your sight!' And that very hour I could see him!"

"Then he told me, 'The God of our fathers has chosen you to know His will and to see the Messiah and hear Him speak. You are to take His message everywhere, telling what you have seen and heard. And now, why delay? Go and be baptized, and be cleansed from your sins, calling on the name of the Lord.'"

Acts 22:6-16

Toys for Tots drive slated this week

The Good Guys Youth Ministries will conduct a "Toys for Tots" drive Wednesday through Sunday to benefit needy children in Hereford.

The group has a goal of 500 used toys. Persons interested in donating may bring the items to the Church of the Nazarene or call 364-8303 for pick-up.

BOOKING TRAVEL BY HOME COMPUTER
NEW YORK (AP) — A new "user friendly" computer system has been developed that will enable travelers to book their own airline tickets, hotels and car rentals on their own personal computers, reports Travel Agent magazine.

The system, developed for American Airlines, is programmed to book tickets automatically at the lowest-priced fare that meets restrictions. Users would then have the option of designating their own travel agent to complete the ticketing procedure.

The agent's name will be encoded into the system so that all bookings will accrue to that agent for ticketing, or the traveler can elect to use a listing of agents in their own mail ZIP code area.

Other alternatives would include having the ticket sent to an airline city ticket office or sent by mail.

According to the travel publication, most of the users are expected to be business travelers, because they own the highest percentage of personal computers.

The average man's beard has 13,000 whiskers — 390 per square inch on his cheeks and 580 per square inch on his chin.

Kirili makes art history

By MARILYN AUGUST
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Sculptor Alain Kirili spends half the year in his Manhattan loft, but French critics hail the 39-year-old Parisian as one of France's most refreshingly innovative talents, heir apparent to the incomparable Auguste Rodin.

Last summer Kirili made art history by becoming the first living artist to show at the Rodin Museum. Three important works, "Nudite," "Commandement" and "Generations," adorned the gardens of the museum located in the Hotel Biron.

"Grand Nudite I," a mass of hand-sculpted bronze soaring 10 feet into the air with its burnished surface bearing the deep finger marks of its creator, was a stone's throw from the Rodin masterpiece, "Monument to Balzac."

Other pieces in the "Nudite" series and a dozen other recent Kirili works were exhibited last month at the Adrien Maeght Gallery in Paris.

Writing in the show's catalog, American art critic Kirk Varnedoe stressed Kirili's unabashed commitment to the sexual nature of the art of sculpture, which Kirili calls one of the most intensely physical art forms.

"I'm not afraid of verticality," Kirili said during an interview at his Paris home. "I think sculpture which denies the three-dimensional, vertical round bump (the phallic symbol) is a denial of the sexual drive in us all."
