Emergency work at wreck

Hereford volunteer firefighters used the Jaws of Life Rescue Tool to pry open a 1988 Ford Tempo driven by Wanda Lewis, 63, of Hereford on Friday. Lewis died about three hours after the accident, which happened at 12:08 p.m. on Highway 385.

Woman dies after wreck

A 63-year-old Hereford woman died about three hours after she was critically injured in a car-truck accident on U.S. Highway 385 in north Hereford.

Wanda Lewis died while being transferred from Deaf Smith General Hospital to St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo. An official cause of death has not been issued.

Lewis was driving her 1988 Ford Tempo north on U.S. 385. The car swerved sharply into the rear wheels of a northbound grain truck. Johnny Morningster, 36, of Davey, Neb., wasn't hurt, but the truck blocked the northbound lanes of the highway for several hours while its load of corn meal was unloaded.

Morningster said he had slowed to below 30 MPH because of roadwork being done Friday morning that limited traffic to one lane. He was in the left hand lane when the hopper trailer was struck by the Tempo.

Hereford volunteer firefighters had to use the Jaws of Life Rescue Tool to pry open the roof of the car and tear away one of the side-posts to remove Lewis from the wreckage. Hereford EMS personnel managed to wriggle into the car to administer first aid to Lewis. About 40 minutes elapsed from the time of the accident report until Lewis was removed from the car.

UWDSC's annual meeting Tuesday

United Way of Deaf Smith County will hold its annual public board meeting to discuss 1992 allocations at noon Tuesday at the Caison House. Twelve member agencies will share in the $100,000 pledged and contributed. Allocations, as determined by a special committee established by the board, include:

- Big Brothers/Big Sisters, $15,000.
- Boy Scouts, $10,000.
- Hereford Campfire, $12,000.
- Childrens' Rehabilitation, $1,200.
- High Plains Epilepsy Center, $3,750.
- Family Services, $7,880.
- Girl Scouts, $1,800.
- American Red Cross, $16,000.
- Salvation Army, $4,000.
- Senior Citizens, $8,000.
- Hereford YMCA, $12,500.
- Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center, $7,870.

Another $14,000 raised in the 1991 fall campaign will be used for local administrative costs. None of the money raised locally will go to United Way of America until problems with the national office are corrected, according to the local board. The local United Way has been a dues-paying member of the national group for three years.

Each year, agencies must submit a detailed request for funds, the proposed budget for the year and a calendar of fund-raising activities. Agencies receiving funds from United Way are not supposed to solicit funds from the public during the campaign, usually held from mid-September through October.

A small contingency fund is kept by UWDSC in case of an emergency. Agencies may request their money earlier than scheduled, but that requires board approval.

John Sherrod is the UWDSC president this year. Sherrod, who moved to Hereford three years ago to become executive vice president of First National Bank, has been active in UWDSC work since moving to the city. In the near future, Sherrod and the board will name a campaign chairman for the 1992 campaign.

"We are going to try to set a realistic goal and help our agencies so they can help as many people as possible," said Sherrod. "We also want to get as we can involved and knowledgeable about United Way, what we do and the agencies. I hope that soon we will be able to meet every request of every agency."

Joslin fell head-over-heels for several stars

By GEORGIA TYLER
Staff Writer

When Warren Joslin looks at a movie or television show from the 1950s and 1960s, some of the faces he sees on the screen are more than mere names. They are real people he knew.

The names are a Who's Who of the film and television industry of that era: John Wayne, Richard Boone, Ward Bond, Edgar Buchanan, Victor McLaglen, Alan Ladd.

There are the names that attract attention today: Burt Reynolds, Charles Bronson, Brian Keith, William Conrad, and others.

Joslin, who moved here in January to become director of transportation for Hereford Bi-Products, spent about five years in the land of make-believe. He worked primarily as a stuntman.

"My dad was a football player in high school in Arizona and got a scholarship to play at the University of Southern California," Joslin said. "There were six or seven football players at the time who went into motion pictures. The best known probably was John Wayne, and my father was one of them."

Warren Joslin and a sister got their first taste of show business as extras in a picture when they were children. Their father, Howard Joslin, was in the production end of the business.

After finishing high school and a tour of duty with the U.S. Marine Corps, Joslin asked his father if he would help him get work in pictures.

"I'd done ranch work and was pretty good with horses," said Joslin. He obtained a card in the Screen Actors Guild (a necessity) with some help from his father, and went to work.

"Sometimes you needed pull to get the card but once you had it, you had to keep it on your own, do the job," he said.

"I was on contract with Paramount," he said. "The studio did several westerns." For Joslin, the most important western at the time was "Have Gun, Will Travel," which starred Richard Boone.

"I doubled most of the guest stars on the show," Joslin said. "Hal Needham was Boone's double."

Familiar names, such as William Conrad, now of "Jake and the Fatman," and Charles Bronson, the ultimate tough guy, appeared on some of the westerns made at the studio.

"Charles Bronson was one of the nicest guys you'd want to meet, very quiet and not into the Hollywood scene," Joslin explained. "Brian Keith used to like to hang out with the cowboys and stuntmen."

He remembers Dick Farnsworth (now starring in a network show, "The Boys of Twilight") when Farnsworth broke into the business.

"He used to be strictly a stuntman," said Joslin. "He got his first part in a Steve McQueen movie."

When Joslin began working in the picture business, he was a young husband and father of two sons. He enjoyed some success in the business, but admits he wasn't mature enough to handle it. He doesn't regret the decision he made to try another career, although he believes he could

Remembering another era

Warren Joslin, a new resident of Hereford, remembers the stars he met while working as a stuntman in television and motion pictures in the 1960s.

Wheat price drawing cattle from pastures

From local and wire reports

Area feed yards are getting more business than usual this time of the year as cattlemen pull their stock from wheat pastures.

Cattle are coming off the wheat earlier than usual because wheat is at the highest price it's seen in a while. Friday at Hereford Grain, wheat was $3.66 a bushel. At some points in the region, it's getting up to $3.90 per bushel.

The wheat price is strong because of a bullish export market.

The best wheat in years has been reported in the northern Panhandle where wheat is king of the crops.

"The wheat really looks good this year," said Monte Cluck of Dean Cluck Cattle in Gruver. The Clucks have pulled most of their 8,000 head from 8,000 acres of wheat in the north.

"We really need to cut a wheat crop because it puts money back in the economy," Cluck said.

Area producers have been without a good wheat crop, or a decent price, for several years. Growers have come to grips with the Russian Wheat Aphid and prices near $2 a bushel. Neither was welcome.

Texas Agricultural Extension Service Economist Brent Bean said warm weather has sent the wheat crop into maturity earlier than usual. Bean said every day cattle stay on pasture past March 1, the grower will lose a bushel per acre.

"If they're shooting for maximum wheat yields, they need to get the cattle off," Bean said. "Once the immature head reaches a couple of inches above ground, then that head will be lost if cattle are still grazing."

DSGH gets check for indigent care

Deaf Smith General Hospital will receive a $372,608 check next week to offset its costs for treating indigent patients.

The Texas Department of Human Services will send checks totaling almost $26.7 million to 91 rural hospitals. Ten Panhandle hospitals will get about $3 million.

The DHS reported that the checks represent eight months of payments to the hospitals through a "disproportionate-share" program. The program was approved last July to increase Texas' share of federal Medicaid matching funds.

The program is designed to assist hospitals that have a disproportionate share of low-income or uninsured patients. Deaf Smith General's check is the largest in the Panhandle, while Plains Memorial Hospital in Dimmitt is next at $246,849.

Under the program, 24 large Texas hospitals are assessed 1.25 percent of their non-Medicaid patient income each month. The estimated $293 million contributed by the hospitals this year is being used by the state to draw $818 million from the federal government.

Ninety-five percent of the funds will go to the larger hospitals that paid into the state pool. Five percent is set aside for small, rural hospitals.

have advanced. "If I'd had my head screwed on straight, I could have advanced, become a stunt coordinator," he said. He, including his wife, Arnoldette, and two sons, settled down in Phoenix. Warren went into the transportation business, driving a truck and eventually becoming director of transportation for Fleming Foods of Phoenix. He took early retirement from that company early this year and came to Hereford a few days later. "My brother-in-law, Troy Byers of Earth, told me about this job, and I flew here for an interview," he recalled. "I left Fleming on a Thursday and went to work here on the next Monday." West Texas was not new to him. Arnoldette was born at Wheeler and grew up at Littlefield, he said. The couple met after her family moved to Phoenix. They married in 1961. "We've been in this part of the country visiting every year and fishing at Ute Lake," said Joslin. Although he enjoys remembering his stuntman career, Joslin said today he's more "addicted to sports" on television than other kinds of programming and motion pictures. He readily recalls the falls off buildings and horses during his stuntman days.

"I never had any broken bones but I separated every part of my body in those five years," he said, with a deep chuckle. The worst experience he had was what he described as a "safe" stunt. "I was riding a horse off the side of a mountain," he explained. "The horse wasn't supposed to fall but it stumbled and went down. I was really scared." The accident was so bad that the horse had to be destroyed but Joslin was not seriously hurt. Joslin worked for John Wayne's production company, Batjac, quite a bit when the television shows were on hiatus. He worked in "McClintock" and "In Harm's Way." The latter provided him with some residual payments. "I got the last check, $8,98, two years ago," said Joslin. Residuals are paid only under certain circumstances. Joslin said "Have Gun, Will Travel" was never syndicated so no residuals were available for his work on the show. A trace of nostalgia crept into Joslin's words as he recalled some of the stars of the past, men like Gary Cooper, Joel McCrea, John Wayne and the rest. "They don't make them like that anymore," he said.

One of four persons show symptoms of depression

CHICAGO (AP) - Symptoms of depression affected nearly one-quarter of the people interviewed in a new study, contributing to problems ranging from lost time at work to suicide attempts. The study published today found about 23 percent of the people studied suffered two or more symptoms of major depression. It found about 6 percent suffered clinical, or diagnosable, depression. Among the 23 percent were reports of using prescription drugs for depression, losing days from work and even attempting suicide, said researchers who studied 18,571 adults in five cities. "It translates into a lot of people who are not leading productive lives," Susan Dime-Meenan, executive director of the National Depressive and Manic Depressive Association in Chicago, said Tuesday.

WTRT to hold annual meeting

A catered barbecue dinner, drawings for more than $1,000 worth of door prizes, a "Flashback" to tunes of the past and the election of three directors will highlight the 38th annual membership meeting of West Texas Rural Telephone Cooperative, Inc., here Thursday. The gathering will be held at the Bull Barn, beginning with registration and a barbecue beef and sausage dinner at 6 p.m. A business meeting will follow at 7 p.m. Special entertainment for the evening will be provided by "Flashback," a quartet of instructors from the Hereford school system who perform songs dating from the 1950s to the present. Much of their repertoire is performed acapella. Members of the Flashback include James Maclasky and Mike Bryant, band directors at Hereford High School; Joe D. Rogers, a history teacher at HHS, and Don Summers-gill, a music director at Hereford Junior High. Terms of three directors representing the Milo Center, Westway and Tharp exchanges in Deaf Smith and Parmer counties are expiring. An election will be conducted to fill those positions during the business meeting. Incumbent directors Carl Straufus of the Milo Center exchange, Ernest Brown, Westway, and Jimmie Cockerham of the Tharp exchange have all been nominated for reelection. A nominating committee composed of representatives of each of the cooperative's nine exchanges also submitted the names of Audie Freeman for Milo Center, Ernest Flood of Westway, and Rick Mayfield from the Tharp exchange as candidates. Nominations may also be made from the floor. Members of all of the co-op's exchanges are eligible to vote in the director election. Ballots are limited to one per membership. Director and employee service award recipients will also be recognized during the business meeting.

WTRT was incorporated May 5, 1950 to provide rural telephone service in Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties. Today, the co-op has 3,047 connected telephones and 1,651 miles of line in operation in nine exchanges over an area of more than 3,000 square miles that also includes a portion of Bailey County.

"We Care"

Relating well to the family of a dying person is important. They, too need fellowship and emotional support both before and after death occurs. This can take the form of small things such as a brief visit or a small gift. Since much of human wisdom and understanding comes from within, a wise and understanding friend needs to listen. This can be "active" listening, which involves appropriate responses, a question, an indication of understanding and acceptance or the sharing of a memory. If, after a considerable length of time has elapsed following the funeral, and a survivor is unable to resume the normal functions of living or remains severely depressed, it may be wise to suggest professional counseling.

THREE'S A CROWD

"Two's company, Three's a crowd," is an old adage. And while we're not sticky about actual numbers of prospective buyers looking through a property, there's one person who should generally not be there. When a home-owner is hovering around, prospects do not feel free to imagine themselves, their family and furniture in the rooms being shown. They are inhibited about opening closet doors and expressing opinions. Those comments are important, because they often show how seriously a prospect is considering the property. If the comment is negative, the real estate professional is ready to counter with a "yes but..." selling point. We've learned from experience when to speak and when not to, when to sell and when to let the prospect sell himself. And we know not to interrupt just when the prospect is deciding to buy. When it comes to real estate, a professional, usually makes the difference!

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says you can't expect a man to see eye to eye with you when you're looking down on him.

Some people will go any length to change their width.

Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas appears to be well on his way now to claiming the Democratic nomination for President. If he had been derailed, Clinton would have endorsed Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, according to some sources.

Texas Land Commissioner Gary Mauro told AFL-CIO headquarters that Clinton has twice given Bentsen the same message. Mauro is Clinton's campaign manager in Texas.

A traveler nearing a big city asked a man at a service station, "What are the people like in the city?"

"How were the people where you came from?"

"A terrible lot," the traveler replied. "Mean, untrustworthy, detestable in all respects."

"Ah," said the oldtimer, "you will find them the same in the city ahead."

Scarcely was the first traveler gone when another one stopped and also inquired about the people in the city ahead. Again the old man asked about the people in the place the traveler had left.

"They were fine people--honest, industrious, and generous to a fault. I was sorry to leave," declared the second traveler.

Responded the wise one: "So you will find them in the city ahead."

The average American owns 10 credit cards and owes about $1,600 on them, according to the Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Reminds us of the story passed along by Walter Buckel in The Lamesa Press Reporter. A guy in the coffee shop reported his wife had lost her purse, which included her driver's license, a bit of money and all her credit cards. They had been missing about three months.

"I guess you cancelled the cards and got replacements?" his coffee-drinking buddy asked.

This week's column is being written by Ann Marilyn Dos Savant Flanders. She is the world's smartest woman giving advice.

I have had some people asking me for advice and feel that it would be better if I called in some outside help.

We also need to make up for a week without Ann Landers. Through some technological quirk (like someone deleting the files after they had thrown the copy away) we went without Ann for a week. There was only one major complaint lodged. That person said she didn't normally read Ann but had given up TV for Lent. Since she couldn't watch Sally and Oprah and Divorce Court, she was looking forward to Ann.

She was ready to give me up for Lent.

I don't know. I had the same question posed some time back by a guy named Og Newman. He said he "would hate to see what they live like at home if they live like this here."

I don't know everything, but I

"Nope," replied the husband. "Whoever stole the cards is using them a lot less than my wife did."

While we're on the subject of tall tales, there's a "sick joke" about a group of hunters in East Texas. One hunter went to claim his deer when he was hit in the leg by a shot from an unknown origin. His buddies gave him first aid, then headed back to the hunting lodge with the deer proudly on their shoulders.

Someone asked the whereabouts of Fred. The hunters explained that he had been shot, fell and hit his head on a tree stump, knocking himself out.

"You mean you left Fred shot and lying there alone, unconscious, and carried that deer carcass instead?"

"Yep," said one of the hunters. "Ain't nobody gonna steal Fred."

The following letter is no bull; it is an exact copy of the original. It was contributed by Dan Tucker for re-print recently in The Tullia Herald. According to Tucker, the letter was written in pencil and is on file in the claims office of the A&Y Railroad in Greensboro, N.C. The letter was written in all seriousness without any attempt to be funny. The writer lived on a rural route in Bear Creek, N.C.

God must have a sense of humor

(Editor's note: John Laird is the son of Bob and Carol Lohr of Hereford. He won the Charles E. Green Award from the Headliners Foundation of Austin as the state's top columnist.)

By JOHN LAIRD
El Paso Times

EL PASO - Ever on the lookout for new and effective ways to enlarge the flock, Pastor Guy Jones recently invited people to come sin with the choir.

"I typed it myself," Jones, pastor at Fort Boulevard United Methodist Church, said with an embarrassed laugh. "I guess I just got in too big a hurry, but everyone at our church seemed to enjoy the typo."

There it was, for all to see in the bulletin given to everyone entering the church on Sunday:

"We are giving an open invitation to all members to come and sin with the choir."

Now, that sentence in itself would be considered a novel attempt to increase church membership. But Jones, like many columnists and other writers, simply did not know when to stop. The preacher just HAD to add one more sentence, which effectively doubled the laughs:

"The more the merrier!"

Was this true? Were the fine folks who live in that quaint section of El Paso around Fort Boulevard actually redefining the role of the choir in the modern Methodist church? Hey, I LIKE that. A progressive attitude should be considered a basic component of religion today.

Jones, though, could not stop with those two sentences.

He just HAD to add a third sentence, which served to triple the humor:

"Just make a joyful noise for the Lord!"

A church member asked Jones early that morning if he had seen the bulletin. "I said of course I'd seen it. I TYPED it." Then Jones was invited to scrutinize the bulletin more closely. "And when I saw it, everyone roared with laughter. What made it even funnier was that the choir had asked me to sing with them that Sunday and I agreed to try to help out."

So picture this: After his written invitation for everyone to come and sin with the choir, Jones stepped into the pulpit for his sermon titled, "True Identity." And then, as if to assert his true identity, he concluded his sermon and walked over to join the choir for the anthem.

Surely, God has a sense of humor. We are reminded of this every time a preacher wanders through a church unaware that his wireless microphone is still on and private conversations are being broadcast throughout the building.

God must roar every time a church newspaper publishes something like: "Sunday's sermon is titled, 'What is Hell?' Come early and hear the choir rehearse."

We are reminded of God's humor each time a preacher says, "It is kistomary to cuss the bride." God's humor is alive in the face of a child who says her favorite Bible story "is the one where everyone loafs and fishes."

As long as good-sport preachers and inept typists such as Guy Jones keep humor alive in religion, even the harshest skeptics have reason to enter God's house.

75 YEARS AGO

March 23, 1916: The number of children of school age has increased about 10 percent over last year, the enumeration showing 506 now as compared to 457 the previous year. Counting the school population as about one-sixth of the whole, the population of Hereford must be nearly three thousand.

50 YEARS AGO

March 19, 1942: War Ration Books began arriving at the courthouse last week as concrete evidence that the war has arrived in the consumers' households, if that evidence wasn't felt previously. ...Mayor Charles Paddock and city commissioners Verne Witherspoon and Nestr Gass authorized The Brand to announce their candidacy for reelection.

Discipline time

The first appearance of warm weather in the spring brings blooms to fruit trees, gardeners to the outdoors, and a faint stirring of house cleaning. But to us, it used to signify haircut time--and blessed relief.

The Old'un(our Dad) was one who believed in immediate response to a kid's misbehavior. He didn't bother to study, contemplate, or worry about the proper parental response to each act of wrongdoing. He grabbed the first thing he could get his hands on--it was usually a head of hair--and started shaking.

It not only brought immediate swift punishment to the guilty, but it evidently stimulated the scalp because all six kids wound up with healthy heads of hair. From fall to early spring, the hair presented an easy, obtainable, achievable target for a quick grab by the Old'un and a thorough shaking of the head and upper torso. And the punishment brought the desired effort of stopping the misbehavior immediately.

But along with brother Wesley, we always looked forward to early spring and the time for a burr haircut--a burr so short that the Old'un couldn't grab enough hair to obtain the leverage for good shaking. The relief was always temporary. Failing with head shaking because of the burr, the Old'un simply moved the target area much lower down.

But it was effective discipline. It seems the word "discipline" is an alien term in today's society.

We used to move forward in this country with discipline in the home, in the workplace, in the school and in the community at large. An individual progressed by a disciplined approach to study, to learning, to behavior, and to his work. He was disciplined in his personal hygiene, his morals, his dress, his relationship to family, friends, neighbors and to society at large.

We can't help but believe that the increasing violence rampant in public schools across the country can be traced back to the past when the courts, with the help of some parents, effectively removed both morality and discipline from our public schools.

Have those 12 and 13-year-olds carrying .22 pistols to school--to use defensively or aggressively--ever had their hair grabbed and their heads shook by either a parent or a teacher? Have they ever felt a switch or a paddle on their rears for misbehavior by a parent, teacher, or concerned neighbor? Have they ever been exposed to morality, to the difference between right and wrong, to honesty as opposed to theft?

The august members of the Supreme Court probably wouldn't agree, but we can't help but feel that a little applied discipline at an early age very well might save needless violence later on.

THE VOICE OF BUSINESS

REAL ESTATE IS THE KEY

by Dr. Richard L. Lasher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON -- The key to getting our country out of the recession is the same one that got us into it -- real estate values.

Real estate is the foundation of individual and commercial equity for countless citizens and businesses. The decline of real estate pulled the rug out from under many viable enterprises. By reducing the value of collateral behind business loans, it helped spark a crisis in the banking industry.

Of course, stringent regulatory enforcement also contributed to the "collateral crunch" afflicting banks, but it was erosion of real estate that set the process in motion in the first place. The consequent impact upon construction of housing and rental properties also has been devastating. It is now abundantly clear, if it weren't clear before, that real estate is a key component of our economic health.

Nor do we need to look far to find the primary cause of real estate's troubles. The chief culprit appears to be the Tax Reform Act of 1986. That law limited deductibility of losses from "passive" activities, which can no longer be used to offset gains from active business endeavors, and also raised the capital gains tax.

The restricted treatment of "passive losses" means that if you invest your hard-earned money in a real estate venture in which you do not actively participate, and suffer a loss that year, the government limits your ability to write it off your taxes. Rental real estate operators are treated as passive investors regardless of their direct material participation in business. If they have a loss on their investment that year, no matter if they worked 70 hours a week on site, it is just tough cookies as far as Uncle Sam is concerned.

Just as taxes on "unearned income" discourage savings, the restriction of "passive losses" discourages investment in real estate.

The restriction on treatment of "passive losses," along with the increase in capital gains taxes, combined to reduce real estate asset values in the United States by 13.5 percent. It has added countless billions to the cost of the savings and loan bailout, and as a result added immensely to the federal deficit.

It is fundamentally unwise for a nation as dependent on real estate as ours is to discourage investment in real estate. Congress would be wise to restore full deductions for "passive losses," and either reduce or eliminate the capital gains tax. The sooner we restore vigor to our real estate industry, the sooner we can expect relief from the recession.

Nutritionists have suggested a varied diet for decades but it is not clear that people know what variety means.

"Eat a variety of foods" is the first of the seven "Dietary Guidelines for Americans" published by the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Health and Human Services. The guideline explains that more than 40 nutrients are needed for good health. A variety of foods, not a few highly fortified foods or supplements, is the recommended way to get these nutrients. No single food can supply all of these nutrients in amounts needed. For example, milk supplies calcium but very little iron and meat supplies iron but little calcium.

The guideline addressing variety summarizes what is needed daily from the five major food groups:

vegetables, 3-5 servings; fruits, 2-4 servings; breads, cereals and grains, 6-11 servings; milk and dairy products, 2-3 servings; and meat, poultry, fish, dry beans, eggs and nuts, 2-3 servings.

The number of servings you need depends on your age, body size and activity level. Almost everyone should have at least the lower number of servings suggested from each group to get recommended amounts of nutrients.

Follow the other guidelines when selecting a varied diet, making choices low in fat, saturated fatty acids and cholesterol and moderate in sugars and salt. Variety and moderation are the keys to eating right.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap, or national origin.

Weather the storm

When the weather report calls for rain and stormy conditions, parents instantly translate the forecast into the inevitable - keeping children busy INDOORS. Here are some rainy-day ideas to have up you sleeve.

-Find the weather page in your newspaper and read it together with your children. Point out the weather prediction for the day, noting the temperature lows and highs.

-Teach your preschoolers how to identify some of the symbols on the weather map. Your children may enjoy cutting out the symbols and creating their own weather page. Clap pictures from magazines depicting various weather conditions, and glue them to a piece of paper to illustrate the symbols (sunny, cloudy, rainy, etc.)

-Note the lows and highs for other cities, especially where friends or relatives live. If relatives or friends are on a trip, check the weather forecast where they are traveling.

-Draw or paint a picture of the day's weather conditions; date it and hang it on the wall.

-Talk to your children about the importance of rain, and share experiences you have had in a down pour or a storm.

-Listen to a weather report on the radio or watch one on television. Assist you kids in preparing their own weather report to give to one another or to the entire family at dinnertime. Let everyone try to make his or her own weather forecast for the days ahead. Write down the predictions, and check them as the days go by.

Herd golfers 2nd after 1st day of tournament

Three of the best

Hereford's Paula Britten watches her drive sail down the fairway at No. 18 during Friday's first round of the Hereford Invitational Golf Tournament at Pitman Municipal Golf Course. Looking on are Pampa's Diana Pulse (left) and Andrews' Lisa McQuatters, who led the girls' competition with a 90. Britten was tied for second at 92.

Hereford's Jayson Mines concentrates on getting his ball near the hole on Pitman's No. 16. Mines was tied for second at 77 after one day of the Hereford Invitational. He was tied with teammate Cory Newton and two others.

Newspaper raises questions of gambling by Bulls' Jordan

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) - Questions have been raised a second time about check payments by Chicago Bulls star Michael Jordan and this time the NBA says it will look into the matter.

"I wouldn't call it an investigation, but we are looking into it," NBA spokesman Brian McIntyre said Friday after reports that two checks signed by Jordan and a copy of cashier's checks totaling $108,000 were found by lawyers and police in the estate of bondsman Eddie Dow.

Dow's lawyer and his brother said the checks were to pay gambling debts incurred by Jordan, The Gaston Gazette reported.

Jordan has denied knowledge of the checks and said he wasn't familiar with information about gambling.

After Wednesday night's game against the Washington Bullets, Jordan said, "I am totally out of that situation. I have no further comment."

Two checks dated Aug. 22, 1991, were drawn on the account of Michael and Juanita Jordan at First North Shore Bank in Northbrook, Ill. One for $11,000 was payable to the bearer; the second for $20,000 was payable to Dean Chapman, a long-time friend of Dow.

Last year, federal agents seized a $57,000 check Jordan wrote to James "Slim" Boulter on Oct. 22, 1991.

Both of Hereford High School's golf teams were second after the first day of the Hereford Invitational Golf Tournament Friday.

Hereford's boys totaled 315 and were five strokes off the pace set by Pampa. Tulia was third at 335 and Levelland was fourth at 341. Players from those four teams were to play together for the final 18 holes Saturday.

The Hereford junior varsity totaled 350, good for fifth out of 11 teams. The girls team shot a collective 370 and trailed only Andrews at 357. Pampa and Borger were close behind at 371 and 375 respectively.

Lisa McQuatters of Andrews had the best individual score (80). Hereford's Paula Britten and Borger's Leslie Reed were second at 82.

Hereford's boys' team was led by Cory Newton and Jayson Mines, who each shot 77 and are tied with two others for third place. Cory Stone of Pampa and Chris Mahaney headed the field with a 74. Pampa's Brandon Brashears and Jeff Nunn of Levelland also shot 77 Friday.

Hereford's Clay Cantrell was alone in seventh with a 78. The other Hereford varsity players were Mikel Walsor (83) and Kevin Kelso (84).

Hereford's varsity girls' were Jennifer Prater at 92, Stephanie Walls at 96, Dusty Saul at 100 and JoJo Lytal at 103.

The girls' JV totaled 404 for fifth place. They were led by Brook Weatherly's 88.

Phipps' HR's beat Hereford

Brett Phipps cracked a pair of two-run homers to power Tascosa past Hereford 13-0 Friday at Whiteface Field.

Phipps homered in the first and fourth innings as the Rebels won in five innings and raised their record to 8-5. He also had a run-scoring triple in the second inning, giving him five RBIs for the game.

Hereford falls to 2-8-1. Tascosa scored five in the first inning, powered by Phipps and a two-run single by Darrell Barron. They added three in the second, three in the fourth and two in the fifth. Ryan Johnson had three RBIs, two on fielders' choice grounders.

Tascosa's Shane Garcia pitched the complete game. He struck out the side in the bottom of the fifth, giving him eight for the game.

Ralph Holguin started the game on the mound for Hereford. Richard Rodriguez relieved with no outs in the fourth and a man on and was greeted by Phipps' second homer.

Rodriguez struck Phipps' out looking in the Rebel clean-up hitter's fourth and final at-bat. The Herd got two highlight-reel catches from center fielder Chris Brummett in the late innings.

There was a frightening moment in the third inning when Hereford shortstop Rene Cano was hit in the face with a pitch. The impact shattered one lens of his eyeglasses.

"He's got a bruised eye," Hereford head trainer Ed Morrow said after the game. "He got cut above and below the eye."

Cano was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital immediately. He was treated and released, a hospital spokesman said Saturday morning.

In 1959 relief pitcher Elroy Face of Pittsburgh had a record of 18-1 for a .947 percentage.

YOUR EYES

WHEN YOUNGSTERS DON'T SEE WELL ENOUGH

There's a difference between learning to read and really reading. The beginner can read a few words in large type, but different skills are needed to read long passages of relatively small print. It's estimated that one child in six has difficulty making the transition after fourth grade. For those youngsters, the problem is one or several eye functional disabilities which cannot be ascertained with ordinary vision screening - usually the Snellen chart with the E on top. Some of the problems that affect reading and learning include:

- the inability to use two eyes simultaneously for a long time
- the inability to focus and refocus from blackboard to book, and
- eyes that turn out - looking in different directions - and send different and confusing messages to the brain.

The safest way to check a child's effective vision is to schedule regular, complete eye examinations with your optometrist.

Cajuns, Aggies spring upsets in wild West

By The Associated Press

WEST

SW Louisiana 87,
No. 23 Oklahoma 83

At Tempe, Ariz., Bryon Starks scored 21 points and Southwestern Louisiana (21-10) made 12 consecutive free throws down the stretch to upset Oklahoma (21-9). Five players sank one-and-one free throws for the Ragin' Cajuns in the final 1:48, starting with a pair by Todd Hill that broke a 75-all tie. Eric Mouton made four in a row in the last 11 seconds to seal Southwestern's seventh consecutive victory.

New Mexico St. 81,
No. 24 DePaul 73

Sam Crawford had 21 points and 11 assists as New Mexico State upset DePaul. The 12th-seeded Aggies (24-7) led by as many as 15 points in the first half and DePaul got no closer than three in the second half. David Booth had 19 points for fifth-seeded DePaul (20-9), which committed 12 turnovers in the first half.

Louisville 81, Wake Forest 58

Dwayne Morton scored 18 of his 20 points in the second half and keyed an unusual four-point play that boosted Louisville. The eighth-seeded Cardinals (19-10) led 35-25 at halftime, but Wake Forest closed to 44-40 with 13:40 left when Morton, a 6-foot-6 sophomore, made a 3-pointer from the right side. Cornelius Holden was fouled underneath on the play and made the first of a one-and-one to give Louisville control for good at 48-40.

EAST

No. 6 Kentucky 88,
Old Dominion 69

At Worcester, Mass., Kentucky used a late 15-2 run to beat Old Dominion in the Wildcats' first NCAA tournament game since 1988. Kentucky (27-6) led by only three points with 8:25 remaining against the team with the worst record in the tournament (15-15). But the Wildcats turned up the defensive pressure, finally found the range on 3-pointers and opened a 77-61 lead. John Pelphrey had 22 points for Kentucky, which failed to get a bid in 1969 and missed the last two tournaments because of probation.

No. 17 Massachusetts 85,
Fordham 58

The Minutemen used a balanced attack and runs of 20-6 and 19-3 to rout Fordham. Massachusetts (29-4) stretched its winning streak to 13 games. Fordham, whose worst previous loss of the season was by 24 points to Bucknell, finished 18-13. Massachusetts had five scorers in double figures, including Louis Roe with a career-high 19.

No. 21 Syracuse 51, Princeton 43

Syracuse freshman Lawrence Moten single-handedly ended Princeton's run of near upsets in the first round of the tournament. Moten nearly outscored the Tigers by himself in the second half and had 14 straight points for the Orangemen (22-9) at one point. Princeton (22-6) had nearly beaten Georgetown, Arkansas and Villanova in consecutive years in the tournament, but Moten made sure this one wasn't even close.

Iowa St. 76, NC-Charlotte 74

Iowa State, which came into the tournament on a serious skid, nearly slid out of the tournament despite leading North Carolina-Charlotte by nine points with less than two minutes left. But the 10th-seeded Cyclones, who lost six of their previous eight, pulled out the victory after Charlotte (23-9) closed to 71-69 on a 3-pointer by Rodney Odom with 45 seconds left. Justus Thigpen led Iowa State (21-12) with 21 points.

SOUTHEAST

No. 11 Oklahoma St. 100,
Georgia Southern 73

At Atlanta, Byron Houston scored 29 points and Oklahoma State took charge with a 20-0 second-half run. Georgia Southern (25-6), the Trans America champion, stayed with the Big Eight power until Sean Sutton started the big run with a 3-pointer with 16:15 remaining. Oklahoma State (27-7) improved to 17-0 outside the Big Eight.

No. 15 Michigan 73, Temple 66

Freshman Jalen Rose scored 19 points, including a tiebreaking 3-pointer with 4:53 remaining, to lead Michigan over Temple. Rose, one of Michigan's "Fab Five" quintet of starting freshmen, took charge down the stretch, scoring 11 of the Wolverines' last 18 points. The Wolverines (21-8) recovered after blowing a 14-point lead and falling behind 57-53 on a 3-pointer by Vic Carstarphen, who made five long-range baskets for Temple (17-13).

MIDWEST

No. 2 Kansas 100, Howard 67

At Dayton, Ohio, Kansas dominated inside and shot 61 percent to overwhelm Howard. The Jayhawks (27-4) scored 35 of their 42 baskets on layups, dunks or other inside shots. Greg Ostertag led the attack with 16 points, while Adonis Jordan had 15, Eric Pauley 12 and Rex Walters 10. Kansas never trailed and put the game away with a 15-0 run midway through the second half. Howard (17-14) was the champion of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference.

No. 12 Cincinnati 85, Delaware 47

Nick Van Exel scored 18 points and Cincinnati's pressing defense forced 33 turnovers as the Bearcats snapped Delaware's 20-game winning streak. Anthony Burford added 14 points for Cincinnati (26-4). Delaware (27-4), making its first tournament appearance, shot only 39 percent from the field.

No. 14 Michigan St. 61,
SW Missouri St. 54

Low-scoring Mark Montgomery led a late 7-0 run that helped Michigan State beat Southwest Missouri. Montgomery, who averages only seven points per game, got five points during the decisive run, which gave Michigan State a 57-50 lead with 1:18 left. Dwayne Stephens led the Spartans (22-7) with 17 points. Jackie Crawford had 16 points for Southwest Missouri (23-8).

Flamingo Home

MIAMI (AP) - For more than a half-century the Hialeah Park racetrack has been home to hundreds of flamingos as well as horses. About 800 of the long-legged fliers live there year round. During the winter they are joined by a large number of migratory waterfowl. The track feeds all the birds, resident or transient. Dennis Testa, the general superintendent of the course, says the birds get a porridge of high-protein dog food, chicken feed, cracked corn, whole wheat and a vitamin supplement.

Testa and his assistant, Sergio Lopez, are the only humans the birds will accept food from.

Seiver, Carthel vows exchanged March 14

Amid the soft glow of candlelight, Brooke DeShaun Seiver and Tracy Boyd Carthel, both of Hereford, exchanged wedding vows Saturday afternoon, March 14, in Avenue Baptist Church.

Officiating at the ceremony was Bro. Larry Cothrin of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Seiver of 231 Juniper and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Carthel of Friona.

The church altar was decorated with a brass arch which was flanked by two brass triple-arch candelabra holding long white tapers and accented with a variety of greenery. Also, adorning the setting were two large white baskets filled with calla lilies, greenery and baby's breath. The white unity candle, enhanced with baby's breath and greenery, was placed on a table covered with amethyst moire.

Jill Samuels of Canyon was maid of honor and Brian Blackburn of Friona was best man.

Jayne Moore and the bride's cousin, Ronna Wells, were bridesmaids. Groomsmen included Michael Elam and the groom's brother-in-law, Richie Herring of Friona.

Guests were escorted by the bride's brother, Billy Seiver, and Cody Burney of Friona.

The bride's cousins, Molli and Marc Wells, children of Mr. and Mrs. Robb Wells, served as flower girl and ring bearer, respectively. Also, serving as ring bear was the groom's niece, Morgan Leal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richie Herring of Friona.

Vickie Barnes, with accompaniment provided by organist, Cynthia Streun, vocalized "There Is Love", "Endless Love", "The Wedding Prayer" and "Everything I Do, I Do It For You."

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a romantic gown of ivory satin and alencon lace. It was fashioned with a fitted bodice and a Sabrina neckline heavily beaded with sequins and pearls. The Renaissance sleeves were also accented with sequins and pearls. The sheath gown, designed with an elongated waist, was emphasized at the back with a deep V marked by a large satin designer's bow which was centered with a delicate satin rose. The flowing, ornate, semi-length cathedral train was edged with scalloped lace and featured lace cutouts adorned with sequins.

The waist-length silk illusion bridal veil formed a large pouf at the back of an ivory satin picture frame hat decorated with lace and sprinkled with pearls and sequins.

The bride carried a hand-tied arm bouquet of calla lilies and burgundy sprigs of leptospermum mixed with greenery and baby's breath.

Bridal attendants wore amethyst moire floor-length sheath gowns designed with portrait collars, fitted bodices fastened with black covered buttons, and long sleeves. Each carried a hand-tied arm bouquet of plum liatris mixed with greenery.

The bride's cousin, Cory Ott, invited guests to register at the reception held at the church.

Rusty Seiver, the bride's sister-in-law, served the bride's cake, and Kim Herring, the groom's sister, served the groom's cake. Punch and coffee were poured by Jennifer Betzen. Also, assisting was wedding coordinator, Laquita Cadena.

The three-tiered white bride's cake was topped with clusters of calla lilies and English ivy made from icing. It was placed on a table which was accented with brass candelabra entwined with ivy. The groom's cake was German chocolate. All refreshment tables, adorned with brass appointments and greenery, were covered with ivory crepe cloths which were draped with amethyst moire.

Leaving for a wedding trip to San Antonio, the bride wore a two-piece amethyst and black suit.

The couple will make their home in Hereford.

MIAMI (AP) — Jose Canseco and prosecutors reached a tentative agreement that could keep the Oakland Athletics slugger out of court on charges he rammed his wife's car.

Terms of the agreement were not made public, but prosecutor Margaret Rosenbaum said Thursday it could prevent the case from going to trial.

Police arrested the 27-year-old ballplayer Feb. 13 after he allegedly rammed his wife's BMW twice with his Porsche. He pleaded innocent to aggravated assault, which carries up to five years in prison. He is free on bail.

Esther Canseco, 25, wants authorities to drop the case. She says the couple have halted divorce plans.

Rosenbaum and a lawyer for The Miami Herald argued that the tentative deal should be made public. Canseco's lawyer, Claire Tacher, wants the file sealed.

Judge Philip Bloom left it up to prosecutors to decide.

You can make a difference

Landowners across America are doing their part to protect the environment by becoming land stewards—people who actively manage their forestland and natural resources.

They're doing this with the help of a U.S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service program that is designed, among other things, to plant and improve trees in rural areas, improve woodland habitat for wildlife and enhance outdoor recreation. Called the Stewardship Incentive Program (SIP), it will provide cost-share assistance for the installation of approved practices. These include reforestation, forest improvement, windbreak and hedgerow establishment, soil and water protection and improvement, fisheries and wildlife habitat enhancement and forest recreation enhancement.

Cost-share rates for SIP practice vary in each state and may vary from practice to practice; they may not exceed 75 percent of the actual cost to establish the practice.

For kids' sake, don't smoke

You've heard it all before" Smoking causes heart disease. Smoking causes lung cancer. Smoking causes emphysema.

There's an even more compelling reason to not smoke. Your child.

About 75 percent of teen smokers' have parents who smoke, according to the American Heart Association.

Children are even more likely to acquire the habit if their siblings smoke as well.

Still want to light up? Then think about the dangers.

Children who live in households with people who smoke are almost twice as likely to be unhealthy as children who live in smoke-free homes, a recent Department of Health and Human Services survey of 47,000 families found. Other studies show that children of smoking parents have more lung illnesses such as bronchitis and pneumonia. And parents who smoke have a greater tendency to cough, thus spreading more germs.

More frightening is the death toll. About 435,000 Americans die yearly from disorders related to smoking. Cigarette smoking will kill more children than all other drugs combined.

Yet, children continue to start smoking even as more adults are quitting. About 2.4 million American Children 12-17 smoke. About 60 percent of first-time regular smoking occurs among children 12 to 14. And about 90 percent of all smokers start by age 19.

The early start is due in part to peer pressure at a time when your children are getting closer to friends than family. It's also when young people are ore likely to rebel against adult authority.

Even if you or your spouse don't smoke, discourage your children from starting. For example, don't allow smoking in your home-by your children or visitors. Support community and school efforts to end smoking. And tell our children about the dangers of the habit, about ow it's the single most preventable cause of death in the United States.

Nicotine is one of 4,000 harmful chemical substances in cigarettes and other tobacco products. The highly addictive, toxic drug can increase your blood pressure, heart rage, and the flow of blood from your heart.

Cigarette smoking can increase the development of atherosclerosis. This process occurs when fatty deposits, cholesterol and other substances build up on the inner walls of your arteries. This narrows and hardens the blood vessels.

Cigarette smoking also causes the platelets in your blood to stick together and clot sooner. Clogged arteries are a major cause of heart attack and stroke. If you already have high blood cholesterol and high blood pressure, smoking will increase our risk of heart attack even more.

These are some of the reasons you should avoid smoking around your children. Explain to them how you got started and how hard it is to stop.

The younger your children start smoking, the more likely they will remain smokers, smoke more often and die early.

But there's good news if you-and your children-stop. No matter how long or how much you've smoke, the risk of heart disease rapidly drops after quitting. Ten years after ending a pack-a-day habit, your risk of death from heart disease is almost the same as for people who have never smoked.

So if you smoke, quit. If you don't sake, don't start-from your and your kid's sake.

Contact your nearest American Heart Association for more information about smoking.

"TEXAS" discussed at Calliopian meeting

Members of Calliopian Study Club met recently in the home of Mary Sue Hull to hear Patty Bryant, assistant manager of "TEXAS", discuss the musical drama.

Bryant related that the production "TEXAS" in Palo Duro Canyon will mark its 27th season this year and is the number one outdoor drama in the country having been seen by over two million people. The speaker began her career with the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation eight years ago as publicist and has served as assistant manager of the production since October.

"TEXAS" features a cast of 80 with 60 auxiliary members. Cast members have come from Tucson, Ariz., Norman, Okla., Austin, Dallas, Canyon and Lubbock. The gala opening of this 27th season will be June 10. Those present were also invited to attend the annual meeting of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation to be held Wednesday, March 25, at the Amarillo Quarterhorse Association.

Also, present at the meeting was special guest, Lois Rice, president of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, the non-profit producer of "TEXAS." The foundation has 2,000 members in 40 Panhandle counties.

President Marjorie Mims appointed Mary Fraser, Linda Gilbert and Dorothy Ott to a nominating committee to present a slate of officers at the April meeting.

Hostesses, Hull and Ott, served refreshments to members and guests present: Bryant, Rice, Mims, Jan Furr, Betty Koelzer, Claudia McBrayer, Cynthia Streun, Louise Leasure, Donna Bogan, Kathryn Ruga, Audine Dettmann, Irene Conaway, Fraser, Kay McWhorter, Dorothy Noland, Faye Holt, Jan Walser and Gilbert.

NEW YORK (AP) - ABC correspondent Syliva Chase, Time Publisher Elizabeth P. Valk and Women's Wear Daily columnist Aileen "Suzy" Mehle are among the winners of this year's Matrix awards.

The 22nd annual awards will be given at an April 8 luncheon held by New York Women in Communications Inc.

The winners, named Thursday, were chosen by their peers. The awards are given to women in communications.

POLK CITY, Fla. (AP) - More than 1,000 people turned out to help retired Army Gen. James A. Van Fleet celebrate his 100th birthday.

America's oldest living four-star general was praised Thursday as a hero, a soldier's general, a combat commander whose campaigns remain models today in war colleges and the man who helped stop communism in Greece and Korea.

"And many of us feel he won the war in Europe as well," said Gen. Edwin H. Burba Jr., noting that Van Fleet spearheaded the landing at Utah Beach on D-Day and the Battle of the Bulge.

Between the Covers

By JOE WEAVER

Congratulations Ronnie, Connie, Michelle and Shawn Lance. The Lances were honored last Monday as the Deaf Smith County Library Family of the Year in recognition of their consistent use of the library and its services. The plaque honoring the family of the Year hangs in the library, and we are proud to add the Lance's name to it.

WHAT'S YOUR FAVORITE BOOK? This week we asked the Family of the Year. Here's what they chose:

Ronnie—The Old Man and the Sea by Hemingway. (I think it's because he identifies with the title character!)

Connie—Mother Earth, Father Sky by Sue Harrison

Shawn—Summer of the Monkeys by Wilson Rawls...and Michelle - couldn't pick a favorite from all that she has read.

The Friends Open House was termed a success, even though the turnout was a little light. Those that came were not disappointed as Jena Rawley-Whitaker gave a very informative and highly entertaining discourse about her life as an artist and her experience as an illustrator. If you weren't there, shame on you! You're in luck though. We videotaped her presentation, so come by and check it out. The Friends are still collecting dues for 1992. Enroll now to insure that YOUR library maintains top quality. Virginia Garner won the drawing for River of Darkness. Congratulations, Virginia...and happy reading!

NEW BOOKS... Yes, we have some new books going out this week, but nothing you would really want to read. Just kidding! If you can't find something to interest you in this week's lineup, you're just too darn hard to please.

My Sister the Moon by Sue Harrison continues the chronicle of Chagak and her adventures among the cold and harsh Aleutian Islands of nine thousand years ago. This is the story Harrison began in Mother Earth, Father Sky and there is already a waiting list, so get your name in the pot.

Another with a waiting already started is John Grisham's The Pelican Brief. The author of 1991's bestseller The Firm is back with a gripping tale that begins with simultaneous assassinations of two Supreme Court Justices. Darby Shaw, a brilliant law student, finds herself the target of assassins as she closes in on the solution.

Where had it all gone wrong? That's the question pondered by the Osbourne family in Treasures by Belva Plain. (I don't know about you, but I think Belva Plain sounds more like some South American prairie than the name of an author.) Coming from the bottom in a little Ohio town the Osbornes soar to stellar heights in Houston, New York and Laszbuddie. (Just seeing if you were paying attention.) As they watch their world shatter, they must decide to stand alone and watch their dreams die, or work together to salvage what they... treasure!

We ordered a book the other day because we felt the library in Hereford needed a contrasting point of view, if only for laughs. In Beyond Beef, crackpot/author Jeremy Rifkin "proves" that Western Civilization is decadent and doomed because of our attachment to beef. Disease, pollution, global warming, dandruff and bad breath are all blamed on that heinous malefactor-beef! (I might have gotten a little carried away with a couple of those afflictions, but you get the idea.)

The study of names is named onomastics.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Whenever my husband flies on business, he goes first class so he can have an unlimited number of free drinks. His pattern is as follows: He has two beers before boarding a flight from Chicago to Dallas (about two-and-one-half hours). When beverages are offered on the plane, he orders two beers immediately so he won't have to wait for the second one. A short time later, he asks for two glasses of wine. The flight attendants serve him these drinks, no questions asked.

When he gets off the plane he drives a rental car to the hotel in town. If he should kill someone, will the airline be liable?

This worries me because I have never seen airline personnel refuse a drink to anyone, no matter how drunk the passenger was. I was on a flight recently with several people returning from a football game. They drank all the beer and liquor on the plane within an hour. Although some of the passengers became loud and obnoxious, no attempt was made to restrict the drinking.

Smoking is no longer permitted on planes, thank heavens, but apparently passengers can get all the booze they want. Why?—Worried Wife in Illinois services at United Airlines, George Mueller, vice president of customer service at American Airlines, and Robert Harper, manager of public relations at Delta in Atlanta. All three said the same thing.

DEAR WORRIED WIFE: My office contacted James M. Guyette, executive vice president of field

The airlines have alert, well-trained personnel and no passenger who appears to be inebriated is permitted to get on the plane. They do not set a limit on the number of drinks a passenger may have, but flight attendants are taught to recognize the signs of over-imbibing.

If passengers exhibit slurred speech, belligerence or unsteadiness or are talking unusually loud and using profanity, they are told they may not have any more alcohol. Although I'm a frequent flyer, I've never seen it done, but all three airlines said they've received letters of complaint from disgruntled passengers whose drinks were cut off.

I have never heard of an airline being sued because an intoxicated passenger got into an accident while driving from the airport into town. The possibility of this occurring, however, seems very real to me.

As a lifelong blue nose total abstainer, I may not be competent to judge, but in my opinion, two drinks should be enough for anybody before lunch or dinner, and after that, one glass of wine is plenty.

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' booklet, "Gems," is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

Send the Right Message

I hope I shall possess firmness and virtue enough to maintain what I consider most enviable of all titles, the character of an honest man. - George Washington

At first, I didn't believe what I was seeing. Surely, they wouldn't steal right in front of everyone. However, as I watched closely, that is exactly what was happening.

The scene of the crime was a pizza parlour and the perpetrator was a mid-30s female. She was well-dressed and appeared affluent. Her accomplices were three young girls whose ages I judged to be 6, 8 and 9.

The restaurant offers an all-you-can-eat salad bar and pizza buffet. The mother had purchased one adult buffet and one child's. The three girls were to share the pizza buffet from a single plate. The mother and daughters created a do-it-yourself, three-for-one special price.

I may be old-fashioned, but to me that is stealing. They were taking merchandise (food) without paying for it. I believe this mother was sending the wrong message to her children.

I'm sure this working mother would justify her actions by pointing out the high cost of eating out. She would rationalize that they are little girls and don't eat very much, not enough to justify the full price for one child's buffet for each of them.

She would probably suggest that the restaurant makes more money than is proper. After all, the prices are so high. Finally, she would justify her actions by saying her daughters deserve the treat and everyone does it.

This kind of dishonesty costs businesses millions of dollars every year. Ultimately, you and I pay for others dishonesty in the form of increased prices.

It also sends a destructive message. Our children learn more from our actions than our words. Everyone is doing it

One of the oldest excuses for unethical behavior is everyone else does it too. In questions of ethics it doesn't matter what others do. We are not judged in this life, or the hereafter, by what others have done. We are, however, responsible for our own actions.

There are those who would dilute ethics by posing questions that are difficult to answer. However, stealing is stealing, lying is lying, cheating is cheating and dishonesty is dishonesty.

I cannot agree with those who would let our nation glide down the path of moral destruction by simply shrugging and saying that everyone else is doing it. We must take a stand for doing what is right, telling the truth and accepting the consequences.

Little foxes

The Bible says that little foxes spoil the vines. In ethical questions, we usually find subtle and gradual deterioration. For example, we teach children that to rob a bank is wrong, but to share a meal is all right.

We tell them not to lie to their parents or teachers, but we ask them to say they are still 11 years old so we can save at the movies. We teach them not to steal, but we bring home just a few office supplies from work.

Our own examples become little foxes. We make an excuse to get out of doing something, and the children overhear. We hunt without a hunting license, and our sons observe. We ignore the speed limit, make illegal U-turns and don't return excess change given in error. We urge our youth to say no to drugs, then abuse alcohol or tobacco ourselves.

In our personal lives, our businesses and our relationships we send messages every day. Does our every action show our honesty and unquestionable integrity? Are we sending the right message?

You may write to Don Taylor in c/o "Minding Your Own Business," P.O. Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

WRAP-AROUND PORCH IS EYE OPENER

Heart Warming Country Exterior

This plan is reminiscent of days gone by but includes modern features too. The wrap around porch leads you directly into the vast great room with open wood burning fireplace at the end and full view to the second floor stair. This stair is also open to the formal dining room.

An unusual but functional kitchen is central. It includes excellent cabinet space and counter top work surface and has a view to the breakfast room by the open corner sink cabinet. The fully isolated laundry is great as it includes space for laundry appliances and a special location for the freezer. It also provides access to the side entry double garage.

A half bath/powder room for daytime use and guests, is hidden beside the master bedroom. The master bedroom suite is endowed with a tray ceiling, private compartment master bath and two large walk in closets.

There are two bedrooms shown for the second floor. Each is provided with good closet space and a central full bath services both.

The plan is drawn for a basement foundation. The country exterior is constructed of horizontal wood siding and accented by the steep gable roof, dormer windows and a wrap around front porch.

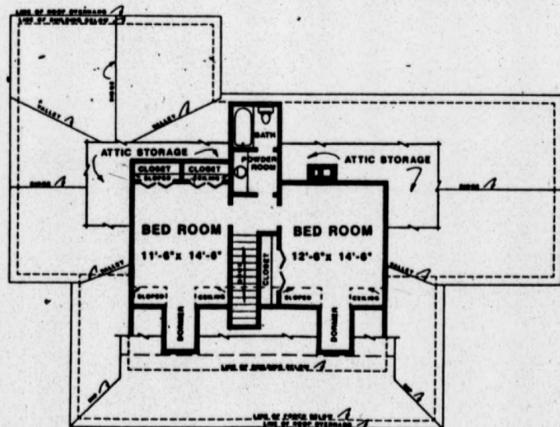

The plan is Number 2175. It includes 2,171 square feet of heated space. It is a computer generated plan. All W. D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write W. D. Farmer, P. O. Question-Answer

Q: I have a brick retaining wall on either side of my driveway. Behind the wall is a grassy area. Quite a few of the bricks have spalled - the face has broken away, leaving cavities all over. Probably each broken brick will have to be chiseled out and a new brick will have to be inserted with fresh mortar. After going through this labor and expense, what can I do to keep the new bricks from suffering the same fate?

A: Apparently, water is being absorbed by the bricks. During the winter this water freezes and thaws - a cyclical frost action that causes the bricks to spall.

Before you replace the damaged bricks, you must eliminate the source of the water. Seal and repoint all cracked and open joints in the coping on top of the wall and also between the exposed bricks. Perhaps the grassy area does not drain properly. If that soil periodically gets wet and stays wet for long periods, the water could seep into the wall and cause the spalling.

In this case the wall must be protected from the water. You may have to excavate the area from behind the wall and fill it in with gravel to about 6 inches below the final grade. Cover the gravel with vinyl sheets and then with top-soil. Make weep holes by chiseling out the mortar in places between the bricks at the bottom of the wall if there aren't any.

In ancient Greece, the laurel tree was considered sacred to the god Apollo, patron of poets. Hence, poets who won distinction were crowned with a wreath of laurels.

Older Women

They're busy making the golden years theirs

EDITOR'S NOTE - Wrinkles are a liability, gray hair a handicap. In America, that's the message older women hear. What many see, however, is a silver lining in the golden years. These are active, outspoken individuals who are not willing simply to await death's inexorable approach. Not while there is work yet to be done.

By LESLIE DREYFOUS
AP National Writer

Stereotypes suggest they should be bent, wrapped in a shawl and passivity, quietly waiting for their grandchildren to come. But listen:

"It's like your dreams come true. You can do whatever the hell you want." - Caroline Bird, 76.

"I said to myself, 'You've got to do something different, lady.' And that's what I did." - Priscilla Sherwood, 62.

"We have lots of energy - and nothing to lose." - Ruth Harriet Jacobs, 67.

"It's about finding your own truth ... and that's exciting." - Sandra Martz, 47.

Far from the crotchety image etched so firmly on the American consciousness, these women are tackling old age with a zeal that might tire a teen-ager.

Their "twilight years" are about second or even third careers, traveling, studying, working on behalf of social and political causes. They are mentors to women half their age, examples of vigorous mental and physical health.

"We need to feel our lives are worth living until the very end," said Ruth Harriet Jacobs, author of "Be an Outrageous Older Woman." "I don't want to sound bizarre, but I have a dream of unleashing older woman power."

It's a notion on the minds of many among the nation's 18.6 million women over 65, a growing number of whom are gambling at last on long-deferred dreams.

"I just finished a new book, so I went out and bought myself something special: an outrageous, $45 shawl," said Jacobs, a researcher at the Wellesley College Center for Research on Women. "It's colorful and loud and takes a lot of courage to wear."

But wear it she does - with pride. She's earned this blessed time of no-holds-barred living and liberation. She is a woman aging in style.

In the geriatric lingo, such women are walking advertisements for "compression of morbidity," the notion of minimizing the physical, and sometimes mental, decline that can accompany aging.

"There's not a lot we can do to help people live longer, but there's a lot we can do to make those last years the highest quality possible," said Dr. Mark H. Beers, author of the new guide "Aging in Good Health."

It's an activist approach to aging that Beers says is changing the face of geriatrics. The group entering their "golden years" are perhaps the healthiest and best educated the nation has ever had.

Certainly, their projected lifespan is longer. In 1990, the average man lived to be 72. The average woman, meanwhile, lived on eight more years. And those who aren't widowed may find themselves divorced.

Either way, women are statistically likely to end up alone. It is for many a terrifying probability - until they get beyond.

Priscilla Sherwood was a mainline New England Wasp. A mother, a wife, a woman who played by the rules, married at the right time and knew she was destined to retire with her husband in genteel, snapshot style.

How far wrong she was, living as she does at 62 in a new Vermont home town. She has divorced, gone back to school, taken to traveling and solitude and risks she never contemplated before.

"No one has come into my home without exclaiming how much like me it is," said Sherwood, who lives in Burlington, Vt. "It's warm, with touches of color and style. I've always shared places. But this is just mine."

After decades first of nurturing their children, then nurturing their parents, then in some cases nursing their grown children again, old age comes as a blessing to many women.

They finally have permission to stop putting the needs of others before their own. At last, a chance to retire the good girl persona.

"You're released!" said Caroline Bird, a feisty septuagenarian who lives alone in upstate New York. "Because our culture has dismissed older women, there are no expectations. You can make your own role."

Thousands have chosen to play the role of working woman, according to Bird's new book "Second Careers." They are exercising their life's experience as business consultants, educators, entrepreneurs or political activists.

"They simply like to work. They like being with people, getting out of the house, being engaged," said Bird, whose book was based on a survey taken for Modern Maturity magazine.

"The folklore is that old people decline, can't do a job as well as young

Proper nutrition can stop late day brain drain

By CHARLOTTE R. CLARK
MS RD/LD

This year the American Dietetic Association chose the theme "EAT RIGHT AMERICA" to emphasize that nutrition is vital to all age groups. Whether you rate your eating habits as poor or good a "1" or a "10"-there is usually room for improvement. To build a solid foundation, arm yourself with the basic food and nutrition facts.

First, there are no "good" or bad foods. You can enjoy your favorite foods. What is important is to eat a wide variety of foods in moderation. Making small changes in portion sizes and giving more careful thought to what you eat over the course of a day can reap big dividends. Remember in your efforts to "Eat Right" it is progress-not perfection-that counts. As long as one makes progress, you are a step ahead. While you strive to be a "10", focus on small steps and consistency.

10 WAYS TO BEAT BRAIN DRAIN ON THE JOB

1. Don't leave home without breakfast
2. Space your meals throughout the day. Go no longer than five hours without eating.
3. Snack on lowfat foods when there's no time for lunch.
4. Pack your desk and brief case with snacks such as lowfat crackers, pretzels or juice boxes.
5. Drink lots of water. Also, contribute to your daily water needs (minimum eight cups) by drinking teas or hot water with twist of lemon.
6. Limit coffee to two cups a day. Too much coffee can drain vital fluids. Caffeine is a diuretic which causes the body to lose water.
7. Pass on the doughnuts, except as a special treat. Try bagels and fresh fruit for a breakfast on the run.
8. Keep power lunches light.

Overeating during midday can cause drowsiness.

9. Take five- a five-minute walk or stress break beats eating to ease stress.

10. Keep the office stocked with energizing snacks such as nonfat yogurt, snack-size cereals, lowfat cheeses and single servings of water-packed tuna.

Whether you are a frequent grocery shopper or an "only by necessity" drop-in shopper, here are some quick tips for adding a health advantage to your shopping cart.

Produce: Fruits and vegetables are low in fat and high in fiber. Buy the freshest possible produce for top nutrition.

Cereals: Whole-grain cereals are a good choice for fiber and nutrition. Check labels. Some cereal, such as granola, may have hidden fat.

Dairy Case: Choose skim milk, buttermilk, evaporated skim milk, non fat dry milk and lowfat plain yogurt. Look for lowfat variations of cheese favorites including ricotta, pot/farmer cheese, skim-milk mozzarella and cottage cheese. Check the labels of new lowfat cheeses to be sure they fit your nutrition standards.

Frozen Foods: Choose frozen fruits and vegetables without sauces, lowfat frozen yogurt, ice milk, and fruit-juice bars. Check the labels of frozen entrees and select items that fit within your daily fat allowance. Limit fried foods, cream sauces and high-fat baked items such as puff pastry, croissants and doughnuts.

Meats: All cuts should be lean and trimmed of visible fat. Choose the following:

Beef-round, loin, sirloin, and extra lean ground, lamb-leg, arm, loin, rib, Pork-tenderloin, leg, shoulder, turkey-chicken-skinless, fish and shellfish.

General: Stock up on pasta, noodles and rice, especially some of the whole-grain selections. Try to incorporate cornmeal, bulgar, barley and other grains into recipes. Include dried and canned beans, split peas, lentils and chickpeas. Supplement fresh fruit and vegetables with frozen or canned fruits, vegetables and juices when more economical.

Breads: Along with enriched white products, add the flavor and nutrition of whole-grain breads, English muffins, bagels and crackers. REMEMBER the available variety of rice cakes, lower fat muffins and pita bread.

The Deli: Select sliced turkey or chicken, lean ham, lean roast beef and low-fat cheeses, instead of the usual "luncheon meats." Limit use of high-fat, high-sodium processed sausages and meats, hot dogs, bacon and salami.

Fats and Oils: All of these choices should be used sparingly. Select unsaturated vegetable oils for cooking and reduced or lowfat salad dressings and lowfat mayonnaise. Limit use of butter, cream cheese and margarine.

Are you puzzled by nutrition? It is easy to be confused about Nutrition.

Scientists are continually discovering new benefits in some foods and causes for concern in others. Remember the BASICS. Eating right means a wide variety of foods in moderation every day. There are no good or bad foods. There are only bad eating habits. With spring just around the corner we are all thinking about our weight and waistlines. Here are 10 tips for successful Waist management:

1. Start with a commitment-a goal to lose -number of pounds for a special event in your life.
2. Identify your major problem area. A food journal of daily intake with when, where, what and why you eat would be helpful.
3. Be realistic.
4. Fight the "quick-fix" temptation of crash diet.
5. Don't put your lifestyle on hold to "go on a diet"; it ignores the real challenges such as sweet attacks, eating out, alcohol, and exercises.
6. Choose a plan you can realistically follow for a lifetime. Be sure it includes foods you like.
7. Exercise-but choose an activity you enjoy.
8. Remember that weight plateaus are normal. Focus on your progress and remember where you started.
9. Keep in mind that one food indiscretion does not make or break your weight. It is when you eat on a regular basis that counts.
10. Don't skip meals. Skipping meals can make you hungrier and you end up overeating, regardless of your intentions. The quality of your food choices makes a significant impact on your path to optimal nutrition and health.

President's Corner

BY LESTER WAGNER, HSCA PRESIDENT

We are glad to have Truman Thurston as a board member. Welcome aboard, Truman!

The Center has become one of the hubs of activity in Hereford. I want to express the board's appreciation to the staff, volunteers, members, and people in the community who work together to make things at the Center good for senior citizens and other people in town who enjoy the Center so much.

Many volunteer hours go into our operation. In fact, those hours are about the same that 12 full-time employees would put in. We could never thank these people enough.

We extend a personal invitation to people in town who haven't been to the center to come and join in the activities.

people, aren't as well-educated and can't keep up in the workplace. But age is a very poor way of dividing people," Bird said.

Nonetheless, no less than race and sex, age frequently determines the way people are regarded in the world. America's is a youth-oriented culture that accords limited respect to the wisdom of years. Older citizens are too often treated as vaguely disabled or - worse, many say - as children.

It's known as ageism, a prejudice many in the over-65 set are battling either as individual activists or through membership in such powerful groups as the American Association of Retired Persons.

"The idea is to promote independence and protect the rights of older Americans," said Dianna Porter, a director with the Older Women's League in Washington, D.C. "We have to make growing older a positive thing."

That means monitoring Social Security and pushing for better, more affordable health care, promoting geriatric research, improving women's retirement benefits and supporting the Older American's Act when it comes up for reauthorization, as it is this year.

"Women in particular need to watch these things," Porter said. "They suffer the double whammy of age and sex discrimination. The stereotypes are still with us. The inequities haven't been corrected."

Travel and leisure belong to those who are fiscally secure. Only one in 12 women over 65 had an income of more than $25,000 in 1990, according to the Census Bureau.

Some 2.7 million, or about 15 percent, of women over 65 live in poverty and nearly a quarter hover in the purgatory of near-poverty, the percentages nearly double among minority women.

"You have to ask yourself how much fun you'd be having," said Jessie Allen, director of the project on women and aging at the Southport Institute for Policy Analysis in Connecticut.

"The golden years aren't very golden for many older women," she said. "But that's not carved in stone. Policies can change."

There is already a vanguard, a growing cadre of older women who are redefining old age. They are breaking bounds and inspiring their younger sisters to prepare for the adventure of aging.

New doll classes to start soon

We are now having a second porcelain doll class instructed by Bobbie Edwards. We enjoyed the first class and our showing of the dolls.

The present class has four beginners: Viola Stovall, Teresa Paetzold, Mildred Hicks, and Thelma Lamb.

We have a number of repeat "performers". Those taking the class for the second time are Edna Schulte, Barbara Wirt, Helen Spinks, Emily Suggs, Opal Elliston, Lou Sherman, Joelene Bledsoe, Rosalie McGowen and Juanita Coker.

The beginners and some of the other members of the class are making "Sugar Britches", the doll we began with. Others are working on several different kinds of dolls, even one set of twins, Indian princess, and others.

This has been a very enjoyable project and we all appreciate the opportunity to have this class at our center.

AARP meeting in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas--There will be something for everyone at the 1992 Biennial Convention of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) being held June 2-4 at San Antonio's Henry B. Gonzalez Convention Center.

The theme for this convention is "Generations Growing Together" and it will feature dozens of nationally known experts on issues including personal finance, health and fitness, the future of the economy, consumer fraud, and the environment.

New drug therapies help fight

Each year in America, colon cancer kills more than 50,000 people.

A recently approved combination of two drugs, fluorouracil and levamisole-promises to reduce that death rate.

These two medications are used as supplementary treatment following surgery for colon cancer. By killing undetectable cancer cells that may remain after surgery, they lessen the chance that cancer will recur.

For many years, surgery has been the mainstay of treatment for colon cancer, a killer second only to lung cancer as a cause of cancer-related deaths.

Unfortunately, the cancer often spreads to lymph nodes near the tumor. Once this spread occurs, surgery is less effective.

The new combination therapy is specifically designed to prevent recurrence and further spread of colon cancer after surgery.

Although these drugs offer new hope, the medications themselves are not new. Fluorouracil, often referred to as 5-FU, is a cancer-fighting agent that has been available for three decades.

Levamisole, developed 25 years ago in Europe to kill intestinal parasites in farm animals, is given in tableted form; 5-U is given by intravenous injection.

Mayo Clinic researchers recently reported on their experience with this combination in two studies conducted over an 11-year period.

The treatment reduced the rate of cancer recurrence by 41 percent, and lowered the death rate by more than 30 percent.

Experts now believe the new technique could save more than 5,000 lives annually. Many specialists see it as a major advance in curing colon cancer.

During the studies, most of the 1,700 patients who participated in the research programs were treated in their home communities.

For best results, the new drug combination treatment must be started within three to five weeks of surgery.

At the doses used, unwanted effects of levamisole are infrequent and generally limited to mild nausea.

Undesirable effects of 5-FU include nausea, vomiting and a lowered white blood cell count. Less-common effects are diarrhea and sores in the mouth. A physician closely monitors the treatment.

The new regimen is given for about a year, but doctors still are evaluating optimal treatment time. Some believe a shorter period may suffice.

Although the new treatment clearly can help many people, it is not universally effective. Therefore, if you have colon cancer, your physician will discuss with you the therapy regimen best suited to your needs.

HEALTH CARE COSTS THREATEN YOUR BUDGET

By Ron Pollack

Thirty years ago, John F. Kennedy campaigned for a national health care program for older Americans to protect them from the catastrophic cost of getting sick in America. In the wake of his assassination, Medicare was born.

Medicare doubled the number of elderly people with health insurance and guaranteed them basic care for serious illness. But even with Medicare, the amount seniors have to pay to stay healthy keeps rising. Why? In part, because of gaps in coverage and increasing cost-sharing. But the biggest reason: rising health costs.

In fact, seniors are spending a bigger proportion of their incomes on health care today than before Medicare.

It's all part of what's happening to everybody in America: health costs are skyrocketing. By the end of this decade, health care spending will eat up twice as big a chunk of the American family budget as it did in 1980.

In 1980 the average American family spent $1 out of every $11 dollars of its income to support our health care system. By the year 2000 that same family will have to spend $1 on health care for every $6 of income.

As most older Americans know, the fastest growing component of family health spending is health insurance premiums, for Medicare and for private insurance. Medicare premiums more than tripled since 1980.

Where will the average family get the money to afford these skyrocketing health costs? By cutting back on mortgage payments? By eating less or skipping doses of their prescriptions?

$9,400 a year for health

In 1980 the average American family paid a total of $1,700 for health care, including out-of-pocket expenses, health insurance, and state and federal taxes that go for health programs like Medicare. By the end of this decade that same family will be paying $9,400 for health!

In the coming months, you'll be hearing about all sorts of health care proposals from politicians of every stripe. There will also be plans from the insurance industry and the American Medical Association—those with high stakes in protecting the enormous amounts of money they are making at the expense of the rest of us.

Most of these plans will involve a bit of sleight of hand: shifting your costs from premiums to out-of-pocket costs, or cutting the tax burden by increasing your premiums, without actually reducing the total amount that you have to spend.

Listen to the fast talkers who say they'll cut taxes to save you money: do they tell you whether your out-of-pocket costs and insurance premiums will go through the roof?

Listen to the fast talkers who say they'll cut costs by cutting Medicare! That doesn't cut costs. It just shifts a heavier cost burden onto your shoulders.

Listen for the insurance industry lobbyists who will tell you that they will lower premiums to save you money: Sure they will, but will you be covered for less so you'll wind up spending more of your own money for care?

Listen carefully as to whether any of them has a realistic plan to CUT health care costs, not just shift the burden from one of your shoulders to the other.

Any proposal will bear scrutiny on three counts: How much money will it really save you, if any? Does it protect the quality of care that you can afford, quality that is threatened by rising costs? Does it protect consumers from the insurance and health care profiteers, or does it protect the insurance companies and drug companies and hospitals from real reform?

The fact is that health costs threaten the economic security of America's elderly and American families. And the only way to really take the pressure off is to get costs under control for all Americans, young and old.

The only reason that we have Medicare is that a young president, John F. Kennedy, fought for it. We have a right to expect leadership from Washington today to get us all out of the mess the folks at the top have let the health care system get into.

Never too late to stop smoking

"I've smoked two packs of cigarettes a day for 40 years-what's the use of quitting now?"

How many times have you heard someone make that statement?

At any age there are many reasons to stop smoking. Smoking doesn't just cut a few years off the end of each smoker's life. Smoking affects the lungs and air passages, causing irritation, inflammation and excess production of mucus. Smoking effects can result in a chronic cough and, in more severe cases, the lung disease known as chronic bronchitis. Long term smoking can do lung damage leading to emphysema.

When a person stops smoking, the benefits begin right away. The risk of heart attack, stroke and other circulatory diseases drops. Circulation of blood to the hands and feet improves. Although quitting smoking won't reverse chronic lung damage, it may slow the disease and help retain existing lung function. Smokers have a higher risk than non-smokers than non-smokers of getting influenza, pneumonia and other respiratory conditions such as colds.

There are many ways to stop smoking. No single method works for everyone, so each try to find what works best for them.

'When the Lion Roars,' it's time to take a seat

Between takes in filming the musical Athens in 1954, the young Debbie Reynolds poses for a MGM portrait photographer. The rich legacy of the powerful movie studio is examined in the three-part retrospective MGM: When the Lion Roars, airing Sunday, Monday and Tuesday on TNT.

MGM history enthralling journey through past

By Dan Rice

One of the most popular forms of entertainment, the motion picture remains a powerful component of culture past and present. Much movie history has to do with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the quintessential dream factory that at one time reigned supreme among film studios. The inspiring birth, glorious life and sad demise of this entertainment giant is told in the six-hour documentary MGM: When the Lion Roars, airing on TNT in three parts, from Sunday, March 22, through Tuesday, March 24.

The making of When the Lion Roars was a monumental task. Producer Joni Levin oversaw the two years of research which involved not only the MGM library of 3,000 films, but also volumes of press reports, hours of home movies and mountains of other materials.

"We went through millions of photos," Levin notes. "With all the material available, this could easily have been a 24-hour film."

To guide us through this fond remembrance, Levin chose as host and narrator Patrick Stewart (Star Trek: The Next Generation), rather than a well-known movie star "whose image could conflict with the thrust of the films." Stewart, resplendent in a '30s-era wardrobe on an art deco set nestled in the clouds, plays the fictitious "spirit of MGM." His booming voice conveys the passions and animosities that fueled the movie empire.

MGM was born of theater magnate Marcus Loew's desire to control the supply of features for his chain of movie houses. In 1924, he orchestrated the merger of Metro Pictures,

Goldwyn Pictures and Mayer Productions into a massive production/distribution complex with Louis B. Mayer as head of studio operations. Mayer, the son of an immigrant junk peddler, had entered the industry as a young man selling theater tickets, and came to realize that "movies are the only thing you can sell and still own."

The films of MGM speak for themselves. Movie series following the exploits of Andy Hardy, Tarzan and the Thin Man were box-office favorites. Musicals like Singin' in the Rain and Gigi defined the genre, while audiences were whisked away to thrilling new worlds in the vehicles The Wizard of Oz and 2001: A Space Odyssey.

MGM: When the Lion Roars recounts the empire's rise and fall with new and archival interviews, studio promotional films and a plethora of marvelous clips from its diverse productions. Anyone who loves the movies was seduced in large part by MGM's sweet offerings and will find many of their most cherished screen memories in this wonderful retrospective.

STAR NOTES

Lavin returns to TV in dual role

By Suzanne Gill
Linda Lavin spent the first part of her life making music — first as a would-be concert pianist, and from high school onward, as a musical-theater actress. After years in New York and a stint with Chicago's Second City players, Lavin earned a recurring role on Barney Miller.

In 1976 Lavin won the lead in Alice, which was a top-10 hit on CBS for nine seasons. During that time she turned her hand to directing and producing as well.

After the end of Alice's run, Lavin returned to New York, where she won several awards, including a Tony, for her performance in Neil Simon's Broadway Bound. Last season, she was executive producer of the critically acclaimed "Sunset Gang" on PBS' American Playhouse.

Lavin returns to series television Tuesday, March 24, as star and executive producer of Room for Two. She plays Edie Kurland, the widowed mother of a Manhattan career woman (Patricia Heaton). Edie leaves Dayton, Ohio, to take a job on the TV wake-up show her daughter produces, and the two get to know one another in a new setting. Thirteen episodes of Room for Two have already been taped.

Ironically, ABC's version of Broadway Bound also airs this week. Lavin isn't in the cast, and though critics may deplore the loss, this mellowing star says she's content.

Bengal Brigade  An army officer struggles to quell a rebellion in 19th-century India. Rock Hudson, Aline Dahl 2:00. (1954) ● March 23 10:30pm.

Beyond Evil  Newlyweds move to a house which proves to hold demons and terror. Lynda Day George, John Saxon R Profanity, Nudity, Violence. 2:05. (1980) ● March 27 1:00am.

Big One: The Great Los Angeles Earthquake * A seismologist discovers the possibility of an earthquake. Joanna Kerns, Dan Lauria 3:00. (1990) ● March 22 7:00pm. □

The Blackboard Jungle  A teacher at a New York high school confronts a rebellious student. Glenn Ford, Anne Francis 2:15. (1955) ● March 27 11:00am.

Body Heat  A wealthy wife and her lover plot to murder her husband. Kathleen Turner, William Hurt R Profanity, Nudity, Violence. 2:30. (1981) ● March 25 12:00am.

Boys Town  Father Flanagan develops a school for juvenile delinquents. Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney 1:36. (1938) ● March 22 2:36am.

The Brinks Job  An unlikely gang of thieves makes off with $2.7 million. Peter Falk, Peter Boyle PG Profanity, Violence, Adult Situation. 2:00. (1978) ● March 22 5:00pm.

TIME OUT

WLAf finds more fans in Europe than U.S.

By Steve Paschal

Last year, the United States staged a successful cultural invasion of Europe with the debut of the World League of American Football. However, the troops weren't as successful on the home front where they faced competition from baseball and basketball as well as having to contend with America's annual migration to outdoor activities.

But, since Americans have an insatiable appetite for sports, the WLAf is back for a second season, with Saturday games on the USA network and Sunday matches on ABC. This week, ABC viewers will see either the Ohio Glory taking on the Orlando Thunder or the New York/New Jersey Knights against the London Monarchs.

The biggest challenge facing this made-for-television league is the absence of a grass roots following in the United States. In contrast, the WLAf exploded onto the European sports scene where the fans are discovering this American game without the league being saddled with a September through January viewing tradition or superior competition from the NFL. The Barcelona, London and Frankfurt, Germany teams averaged over 33,000 fans a game, and London's 21-0 victory over Barcelona in the first World Bowl drew 61,108 in attendance, just slightly less than the first Super Bowl.

'P.S.I. Luv U' unloved by CBS

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I was wondering if the show P.S.I. Luv U has been canceled. It was a great show. Will it be back on television ever again? —Carol Berry, Paso Robles, Calif.

A: P.S.I. Luv U, starring Connie Sellecca and Greg Evigan, was replaced on the CBS schedule by The Boys of Twilight. At this time, the network has no plans to bring P.S. back.

Q: I desperately need the address of the Boston Celtics. If you can't find the address, but can point me in the direction of someone who could help me, I'd appreciate it very much. —Suzann Coles, Auburn, Ky.

A: Write the Celtics at 150 Causeway Street, Boston, Mass., 02114.

Q: I would like to know what happened to the actress Linda Blair. Some people say she died. If not, what is she doing now? —Barbara Jones, Brownwood, Texas.

Connie Sellecca, star of P.S.I. Luv U to correct her teeth yet not have it show. Maybe I'm wrong about this, but I'd swear I read it. —Julie Grant, Frederick, Okla.

A: Linda Blair is alive and well. She has other interests besides acting and she is pursuing them at this time. She is an avid equestrienne and also enjoys writing. At this time, she is writing a screenplay about horses.

Q: I was wondering if you could give me some information about Sylvester Stallone. He is one of my favorite actors. —Macey Rekkedal, Devils Lake, N.D.

A: Stallone was born July 6, 1946, in New York. He was raised in Philadelphia following his parents' divorce. A part in a school play made him determined to succeed as an actor, and in the early 1970s he practiced his craft between jobs of sweeping lions' cages and ushering. It was as an usher that he met his first wife, Sasha. They had two children. But, after the success of his movies The Lords of Flatbush, Rocky and F.I.S.T., the pair split. From 1985 to 1986, Stallone was married to Brigitte Nielsen. Since then, he has dated a number of women. Lately the actor has been trying to lighten up his screen image with the comedies Oscar and his newest, Stop! Or My Mom Will Shoot.

Q: Addressing the question about Melissa Gilbert wearing or not wearing braces while filming Little House on the Prairie: I remember reading a long time ago that Gilbert wore special braces on the back of her teeth, thus allowing her

A: I've gotten a couple letters telling me they heard that same story. Who would have thought someone's teeth would spark so much interest?

Q: I don't know if you are the proper one to mention this to, but here it goes. Please tell me why music on the movies, commercials, shows, etc., has to be so very loud. One cannot hear what the people are saying, many talk so low and the music is way above them. Why is it even necessary to have music? The program is of interest, not the music. Last night, I got such a headache from the show I was watching, I had to turn the television off. I hope you can help. Many of my friends say the same thing. —Mrs. J.M. Kocisko, Prescott, Ariz.

A: This is not an uncommon complaint. Many times the director of the show or movie feels music adds to the mood of the program. Sometimes, that's true. But in the case of commercials, it is often said that the sound level is higher to get the pitch to people who have left the room during the break. Advertisers, of course, deny it. I suggest you write the networks and the worst offenders among the advertisers.

EXCELLENT GOOD FAIR POOR DON'T WASTE MONEY

THE MAMBO KINGS: Starring Armand Assante, Antonio Banderas, Cathy Moriarty and Maruschka Detmers. If you love Latin music, you'll like The Mambo Kings. For here and there, this colorful, "should have been great" film has the stylish melodramatic bustle of the 50s musical it was meant to be. However, this adaptation of The Mambo Kings Play Songs of Love, Oscar Hijuelo's novel of two Cuban mambo musicians trying to make it big in New York City, does not have a consistent or original pulse.

With its undertones of sibling rivalry and love, and its peek into the pulsing world of the New York mambo scene, The Mambo Kings should feel wild and emotional. But everything in the film is a little stilted, as though the entire movie took its cue from Desi Arnaz, Jr.'s flatfooted imitation of his father. Armand Assante is Cesar, the wild, spontaneous brother, the one with the big ambition. Antonio Banderas, a sloe-eyed Spanish actor, is Nestor, the sensitive sibling, the one who writes songs and moons over the girl he left behind. Both actors overplay their roles, never allowing the audience to get into the threadbare story line, or relax and enjoy the music.

Even so, there are a few moments that are very likable. If you are willing to fill in the gaps, the movie seems most what it's trying to be when the minor mambo players take over, including the bandleader Tito Puente, who plays himself, and Celia Cruz, the first lady of Afro-Cuban music. She plays the owner of Club Babalu and, in a sense, through song, is the mistress of ceremonies of The Mambo Kings. Rated R for nudity and sex.

Two and a Half Boxes

NEW VIDEO RELEASES

DEAD AGAIN: (1991) Starring Kenneth Branagh and Emma Thompson. If you missed this film when it was in first-release, then run to the video store and put your name on the waiting list. It's a humdinger! Murder reincarnated is the game in Kenneth Branagh's film about a crime that resurfaces forty years later with the same set of characters in updated guises. Non-stop, keep-you-on-the-edge-of-your-seat action occurs in both eras. In the present day, Kenneth Branagh and Emma Thompson (his wife in real life) are Mike Church, a private eye, and Grace, a mysterious young woman with no memory; in the past, he was Roman Strauss, an impresario executed for killing his wife, played by Emma Thompson. Less complicated than it sounds, the film is another of those entertainingly dizzy romantic mysteries that audiences swallowed whole in the 40s and 50s. You will thoroughly enjoy all the grand passions and mad motivations, and thanks to the actor's great skills and director Branagh's immense talents, you'll have little awareness of the great filmmaking craft that lies just below the surface sheen of this wonderful film. Rated R for violence. See it! See it!

Four Boxes

Armand Assante seems to have made a career of giving excellent performances in B films. However, two of his more interesting roles in better films are in:

UNFAITHFULLY YOURS: (1984) Also starring Dudley Moore and Nastassja Kinski. In this entertaining and sometimes hilarious remake of Preston Sturges' 1948 comedy, Dudley Moore plays a symphony orchestra conductor who suspects his wife (Nastassja Kinski) of fooling around with a violinist (Armand Assante) and decides to get revenge (the nasty kind). This delightful comedy is briskly directed and smartly acted by a perfect cast. Rated PG for nudity and profanity.

Three Boxes

BELIZAIRE THE CAJUN: (1986) Also starring Gail Young. Somewhat of a lost gem, Belizaire

the Cajun is a film that is atmospheric in the best sense of the word. The Louisiana bayou of the 1850s is richly recreated in a cadence of texture and deep, dark swampland colors, along with the rhythms of Cajun accents and full-bodied folk music. A good sense of historical detail also adds to the luster. Armand Assante is well-cast as Belizaire, an herbal doctor who finds himself in a mess of trouble because of his affection for his childhood sweetheart (now the Cajun wife of a wealthy Anglo) and his efforts to save a friend from persecution. Robert Duvall, credited as a creative consultant, appears briefly as a preacher. Rated R.

HIDDEN GEM-OF-THE-WEEK

BLIND TRUST (POUVOIR INTIME): (1987/Canadian/French with Subtitles) Starring Marie Tifo, Pierre Curzi and Jacques Godin. The subtitles are sparse for it is the action that runs this superb, intelligent crime/gangster drama about an undercover cop and an ex-con involved in a plot to pull off a fake robbery for the government. It's a classic heist film, worked into an ingenious twist. Powerful performances by a cast of unfamiliar faces lends this intense and fascinating film an air of authenticity. An original and inventive musical score sets, sustains and moves along the twisted plot so well that the story would be easily followed without subtitles. Great acting, suspenseful direction and first rate writing add up to terrific entertainment. Rated PG-13 for violence.

THE ADVENTURES OF THE GREAT MOUSE DETECTIVE: Walt Disney/Animated Comedy Caper. Re-release.

It's hard to go wrong with Walt Disney, even substandard Walt Disney. The Adventures of the Great Mouse Detective was Disney's 26th full-length animated feature and, at the time of its initial release in 1986, signaled the welcome beginning of a new period of productivity at the studio. In The Great Mouse Detective there is a little action, a little mystery and a lot of comedy, but not a lot of magic. However, this column's six-year-old barometer seemed to enjoy it and got all of the jokes.

The story revolves around the supersleuth mouse, Basil of Baker Street, who, once again, matches wits with his old nemesis, the rat, Professor Ratigan (voice by Vincent Price). Basil challenges the Professor's diabolical scheme to become the "super ruler of all mousedom."

The mice characters live in a miniature world that's delightful and lends itself readily to animation. In fact, the movie is a good example of a story that could only be told with animation, and the real fun comes when Basil pursues his rat rival from the depths of London's sewers to the heights of Big Ben's clocktower. (Knowing a little about Sherlock Holmes, some London geography and a touch of turn-of-the-century English history will make the film much more enjoyable.) Rated G. It's not great, but any Disney is good Disney.

NEW VIDEO RELEASES

This one may be hard to find, but worth the effort.

ELEVATORS TO THE GALLOWS: (1957/French with English subtitles) Starring Jeanne Moreau and Maurice Ronet. Who but the French - in this case, Louis Malle directing his first feature film - could have come up with this set of particulars? A war hero, Julien Tavernier (Maurice Ronet), kills the husband of his lover (Jeanne Moreau), then is accidentally trapped in an elevator while two teen-age lovers steal his car, commit a double murder in a motel (for which Julien is accused), steal their motel victims' car and then try to commit suicide.

The sullen, sensual Miss Moreau (who was in on the murder of her husband), left alone wondering what's keeping Julien, takes to the Paris streets to find him. The film is intriguing, but has no surprises. In fact, the entire film is mostly watchable for its style and character. Not rated. Would be an R.

P.S. This film may be carried in the U.S. under the title Frantic, but don't get it mixed up with Harrison Ford's 1988 film titled Frantic.

REQUESTS FOR INFORMATION

This column often gets letters requesting names and addresses of companies that carry foreign films. From time-to-time we will print information where hard-to-find videos may be ordered. However, your best source will continue to be your local video store. Ask often for all of the hard-to-finds. Then, please, support the local video store with rentals when they do buy special videos.

GETTING READY FOR THE OSCARS

OSCARS GREATEST MOMENTS: (1991) Columbia Tri-Star.

Jane Fonda won two Academy Awards for best actress. So did Glenda Jackson and Sally Field. These and other Oscar presentations and highlights from the last 20 years - best actor, best film, most notable incidents from drippingly sentimental to awkwardly contentious (Marlon Brando's refusal of the best actor award in 1972, for instance) - have been put into this 20-year retrospective of Hollywood's annual show.

Primly seated in a stately library, screamingly out of context with the razzmatazz on stage, a grandfatherly Karl Malden narrates an entertaining account that continually rescues itself from the schmaltz with a brisk pace. Not rated. Runs 1:50. Sells from $19.95.

FAMILY CLASSICS

Walt Disney's Beauty and the Beast recently broke all industry records for animation by becoming the first in its genre to pass the $100 million mark at the box office. Here's a quick reference to good animated films on video. All rated G. All...

NEW VIDEO RELEASE

BARTON FINK: (1991) In the early '40s an altruistic playwright (John Turturro) heads for Hollywood to make big money and maybe elevate the place with his concerns for the Common Man. But life at Capitol pictures, where his first assignment is a wrestling movie for "Wally Berry," induces writer's block and embeds him in a seedy hell with a cast of characters straight from a film he'd like to write. Created by the brothers Eathan and Joe Coen, Barton Fink is said to have sprung from their minds when they were similarly blocked during the making of an earlier film, Miller's Crossing. This time the movie leaps out fresh and full blown, a fine dark comedy of flamboyant style and immense technique. Not every nuance will be understood but it is fascinating filmmaking. Rated R.

HIDDEN GEMS

BAD MEDICINE: (1988) Starring Steve Guttenberg and Julie Hagerty, with Julie Kavner. Steve Guttenberg and Julie Hagerty play students attending a "Mickey Mouse" med school in Central America. When they find the health conditions in a nearby village unacceptable, they set up a medical clinic stealing the needed drugs from the med school's pharmacy. The jokes are mostly one-liners, but the all-star cast does not disappoint on the delivery. Rated a very strong PG-13 for profanity, sex and adult situations.
