

School Trustees Support Sidewalk Plan

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Hereford Independent School District trustees Tuesday evening offered their support to the same group which petitioned Deaf Smith County commissioners Monday to construct a sidewalk along Bradley Street for young students walking to and from West Central Elementary School.

The group, comprised of parents of West Central schoolchildren, presented the same petition to the school board and said they would also present it to city commissioners next Monday night.

The parents, who attended Tuesday's meeting with two attorneys from Texas Rural Legal Aid, are concerned about the lack of a suitable walking area on Bradley St. Wet ground along the sides of Bradley forces children to walk on the street, the group told trustees.

Ernestina Tijerina, the group's spokesperson and a school board candidate last year, said the fact there is no sidewalk, crossingguard or law enforcement on the street creates a dangerous situation for the children.

Trustee Paul Ramirez, a police lieutenant, said that the street is often patrolled by city officers even though it is a county road, but assured the group that enforcement would be intensified.

West Central principal Robert Ray told the board that there are "quite a number" of speeders on Bradley during the hours when children walk to and from school.

"It scares me because one of the days a little kid is going to jump in front of a car and it will take a broken leg for him to learn his lesson," Ray said.

Ray's signature was among those on the petition.

Mrs. Tijerina said she realized that the school district cannot construct a sidewalk since the county owns the road. "We're just asking for your influence," she said.

"About all we can do is let the county know that we've got a problem there," Trustee Mack Tubb said.

Board member James Gentry said he would attend Monday's city commission meeting "not as a representative of the school district but as a concerned citizen."

President Sallie Strain then appointed Gentry to represent HISD at the commission meeting—an act applauded by the parents' group.

The county owns the property along the south side of the street, but commissioners said Monday in their regular meeting that a drainage ditch alongside this street would prevent construction of sidewalk.

The county commission added that it would investigate the possibility of obtaining enough right-of-way from property owners north of Bradley to build a walk.

Trustees, on another issue, heard a report from Superintendent Harrell Holder on an engineering study of Hereford High School and West Central—the first step in the school district's effort to comply with a federal law aiding handicapped persons and to reduce energy costs.

The law requires all portions of public buildings to be accessible to handicapped persons by 1981. Holder said the high school is representative "of at least four of our other buildings,"—the reason for its inclusion in the proposed study.

West Central was selected for the energy study because of heating and air-conditioning problems at the school.

Lubbock architect Herb Brashear will conduct the study, and Holder will make recommendations to the board in a future meeting.

The board, in closed session, discussed the purchase of property north of the high school for future expansion and voted, after reconvening into open session to buy the land.

The expenditure agreed upon totaled $56,272, which includes a house and more than two acres of land.

Assistant Superintendent Larry Wartes presented the monthly enrollment report, which showed a continued decline among students during the present school year.

On Tuesday, there were 5,359 HISD students, compared with 5,514 last year and 5,423 on Oct. 16 of this year.

There were 1,139 high school students Tuesday, 1,115 last year and 1,153 on Oct. 16. Enrollment at Stanton and La Plata junior highs stood at 1,305 Tuesday, 1,378 last year and 1,311 on Oct. 16.

Carter Halts Iranian Withdrawals

By The Associated Press

Iran, striking a new blow in an economic war with the United States, decided today to withdraw billions in Iranian government money deposited in American banks. But President Carter immediately ordered a freeze on those funds.

Iran's foreign affairs chief, Abolhassan Bani Sadr, also reaffirmed that the 98 hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran will remain captive until Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi is deported.

U.S. Says No to International Investigation of Deposed Shah

By The Associated Press

The U.N. Security Council and OPEC appeared today to be the next battlefields in the cold war between Iran's revolutionary regime and the United States.

The U.S. government rebuffed the Iranian Revolutionary Council's apparent offer to free the hostages in the American Embassy in Tehran if the United States agreed to an international investigation of the deposed shah's alleged crimes and transferred all his holdings in the United States to Khomeini's regime. Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., reported after a briefing by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance that the Carter administration

Bani Sadr reportedly said, however, that some might be freed by the weekend if found "innocent."

In another development, northeastern Iran was rocked by a powerful earthquake today, and rescue workers said at least 500 persons were killed.

Bani Sadr announced at a Tehran news conference that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime had decided to withdraw all of its funds from U.S. banks and re-deposit them in banks of nations "friendly" to Iran.

He said the funds amounted to $12 billion, but reporters in Washington were told it was closer to $5 billion.

Bani Sadr declared the withdrawal would seriously erode the already shrinking value of the dollar on world markets, and the dollar did fall abruptly on foreign-exchange markets and gold rallied. One London dealer said the Iranian fiscal squeeze play "took the market by storm." But the dollar began climbing back up later.

After an emergency meeting of U.S.

Treasury officials, White House press secretary Jody Powell announced that Carter had acted to "block" official Iranian assets — including deposits of the government of Iran, Central Bank and "other controlled entities" in U.S. banks and their foreign branches and subsidiaries.

"The purpose of this order is to insure that claims on Iran by the United States and its citizens are provided for in an orderly manner," Powell said.

Powell's statement said the exact amount of money being blocked is not known, "but there is no reason for disturbance in the foreign exchange or other markets."

Bani Sadr, asked today whether his letter to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim asking for a Security Council session on the crisis represented a softening of the Iranian position, told Tehran Radio: "No, our position remains unchanged," meaning the hostages would remain until the shah is extradited.

But the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said Bani Sadr also told reporters that hostages who — in Tanjug's words —

'Strictly Bull' To Unfold On Thursday

"Strictly Bull, Part II" will publicly unfold at 7 p.m. Thursday in the high school auditorium.

Tickets for the second Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce "Follies" show are on sale at Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, both banks and from chamber directors and Hereford Hustlers for $4 for adults and $2 for children under 12.

Tickets also will be sold at the door, but chamber manager Michael Carr today urged persons to purchase tickets prior to the show because of anticipated large crowds.

"All seats will be reserved," Carr said. "Last year's response was great, but this is even better."

This year's show, scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, will be a totally-different production from last year's, according to Carr. The "Follies," sponsored by the chamber, is staged by Jerome H. Crgill Production Agency of New York.

Approximately 120 local persons, including 91 cast members, are in their third week of rehearsal of the "Follies."

Reagan Announces GOP Candidacy

NEW YORK (AP) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan is kicking off his presidential campaign by advocating statehood for Puerto Rico and calling for the transfer of many federal functions to state and local governments.

Reagan made the proposals, part of what he called his "new agenda" for the 1980s, in a speech Tuesday night formally declaring his candidacy for the 1980 Republican nomination.

Reagan's entry brings to 10 the number of Republicans seeking the job.

The one-time film star is following up his formal declaration with a five-day, 12-city campaign swing through most of the early primary states after a news conference today in Washington.

A videotape of Reagan's speech was seen in most parts of the nation and the candidate delivered a live version to a packed hotel ballroom.

Both Reagan's call for granting Puerto Rico statehood and for transferring certain functions of the federal government to states and communities echo proposals voiced in 1976.

President Gerald R. Ford, the last Republican in the White House, proposed statehood for Puerto Rico shortly before leaving office.

Reagan now says: "I favor statehood for Puerto Rico, and if the people of Puerto Rico vote for statehood in their coming referendum, I would, as president, initiate the enabling legislation to make this a reality." Puerto Rico's Feb. 12 primary election will be the first in the nation.

Reagan also advocated closer ties with Canada and Mexico, including establishment of a North American accord, and permitting officials of these neighboring governments to sit in on high-level U.S. policy sessions.

Reagan's call for a shift in federal programs away from Washington reiterated the basic thrust of a controversial proposal he made in the early stages of his unsuccessful 1976 effort to unseat Ford.

Reagan, who is making his third bid for the presidency, also called for an across-the-board tax cut, increases in defense spending, removal of remaining price controls on energy, increased use of nuclear power "within strict safety rules," and rejection or delay of President Carter's proposed "windfall-profits" tax on the oil companies. Carter wants the tax to accompany his program

Wheat Producers Rip Iran Sales

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

The Texas Wheat Producers Association, headquartered in Amarillo, relayed a message to the White House early Tuesday encouraging President Carter to halt the further sale of American wheat to Iran while a group of Iranian students hold 60 Americans hostage at the U.S. embassy there.

The move marks a major alteration in policy by the wheat association, according to a spokesman for the organization, who pointed out that the TWPA has never favored using food as a political weapon, but supports the proposed wheat cutoff as a measure of national security.

Jim Allison of the TWPA reported the move Tuesday afternoon, and according to Allison, Bill Nelson of the TWPA office in Amarillo contacted an advisor to President Carter on domestic affairs and policy at the White House Tuesday morning.

Nelson made the call on behalf of Otis Harman of Tulsa, president of the TWPA.

Nelson quoted from a prepared statement to the President which read:

"Farmer members of the Texas Wheat Producers Association have strong policies against using food as a diplomatic weapon and embargoes as an economic tool except in a case of national security. In as much as Texas and United States wheat has continued to be sold to Iran as a balance of payments medium to offset oil imports, this is to let you know that TWPA, in the interest of a show of strength and national unity, would support you in a decision to now stop wheat sales to Iran, and in fact, urges you to do so if you do determine that it is in the interest of national security."

Allison commented on the message, stating, "We have no indication the administration will actually follow our recommendations, but it is a significant move considering the association's view of using food as a weapon."

The TWPA move marked the first major action in this region concerning the statement which has evolved in Iran after radical students there seized the American embassy over a week ago.

Leo Witkowski of Hereford, chairman of the Texas Wheat Producers Board and a member of the National Wheat Producers Board voiced approval of the move to cut off U.S. wheat to Iran.

"I think it's a good move. Our resolutions state that we're normally against any reduction of exports, but I think this is clearly a case of national security," stated the local wheat official.

Questioned on the possible effects of a cutoff of wheat to Iran, Witkowski commented, "Iran buys quite a bit of wheat. I think a cutoff of wheat would certainly have an effect on them because they import so many things. I don't feel there's any need to keep sending the Iranians more wheat when our country has done so much for Iran and they treat Americans like they do now."

IN WASHINGTON

Martha Angle and Robert Walters
Jerry (the poseur) Brown

WASHINGTON (NEA) - California Gov. Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown Jr. poses as a politician of integrity, independence and courage. But a recent series of events suggests that his character is seriously flawed on all three counts.

Brown's behavior has been widely publicized in California but the episode has received little attention elsewhere in the nation, even though he is one of three major contenders for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

At the center of the controversy is Martin Huff, a man of unshakable independence, integrity and honesty. Since 1963 he has been the chief executive officer of California's Franchise Tax Board, the state agency responsible for collecting billions of dollars annually in corporate and personal taxes.

Jonathan Rowe, associate director of the Washington-based Citizens for Tax Justice, describes Huff as "tough-minded but thoughtful, a first rate individual and a top-rank government administrator who is principled, above reproach and totally professional."

Huff reports to the Franchise Tax Board, whose members are: State Controller Kenneth Cory, an ambitious politician (he is expected to seek the governorship in 1982, who long has been rankled by Huff's independence and has worked for five years to undercut his staff director); William M. Bennett, chairman of the state Board of Equalization, who has been Huff's staunchest supporter on the board.

Mary Ann Graves, director of the state Finance Department, a Brown appointee, she presumably does the governor's bidding — and in recent years has sided with Cory in his campaign to throttle Huff.

Huff has been the only appointed official in California's state government who could not be fired by administrative fiat, however, because of a special law requiring a two-thirds vote of the state Senate to dismiss him.

But legislators hold a grudge against Huff because he had the temerity to question the tax-free status of his $46-per-day expense allowances and to conduct detailed audits of the campaign finance reports filed by the lawmakers.

Huff and Brown had a falling out over conflicting methods of taxing corporations doing business in California. When Brown bowed to business pressure for a lenient tax system, he wrongly accused Huff of providing him with "flaky data."

In the final days of this year's session of the state legislature Cory orchestrated a successful effort to add to an obscure technical bill a provision repealing the special job protection for the politically sensitive post.

Almost all of California's major newspapers and countless civic organizations urged Brown to veto the bill. The governor failed to do so, but he also lacked the courage to sign the legislation.

Instead, he allowed the bill to sit on his desk for 10 working days, when it automatically became law without his signature. Huff promptly quit, accusing the governor of "a lack of statesmanship."

Others were less discreet. "What a cowardly way to do it," said Bennett. "He (Brown) is tampering with the integrity of the tax law and taking a step to politicize tax administration in California."

But the last word on Brown's shabby method of handling the sensitive issue belongs to the man who appointed Huff to the job 16 years ago — former Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown Sr., the father of the current governor.

On Oct. 2, the day after the governor allowed the malicious legislation to become law, his disappointed father sent a telegram to Huff. It said:

"Deeply regret my son's failure to veto this very unfair bill. You are one of the most courageous, independent and fair men that I have ever met. I am proud that you were part of my administration."

Like many other Californians, Pat Brown apparently is ashamed of Jerry Brown's recent conduct.

Gunning for Kennedy defeat

Handgun Control Inc., a "citizen lobby" group that is one of the most forceful advocates of gun-control legislation, last month hailed the "courage and leadership" displayed by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in introducing new handgun-control legislation.

Which is interesting, since Kennedy's own office — normally fast off the blocks with a press release about his every achievement — didn't say a peep about that particular bill. Nor has the senator indicated as yet whether he plans to stress his longstanding support for stricter gun controls during his presidential campaign.

Downplaying the subject certainly won't spare him the wrath of the so-called gun lobby. The National Rifle Association and other pro-gun groups are already campaigning furiously for Kennedy's defeat.

Ann Landers Diet Rip-Off

DEAR ANN LANDERS:What is happening in the world that is making everyone so diet-and-exercise-conscious? The last time I looked at the New York Times best-seller list, three of the top 10 books were on diet and running. (My doctor says they are a ripoff.)

This morning when I asked the doorman to get me a taxi he said, "You'd feel a lot better if you walked half way." I came close to clobbering him with my umbrella.

Around 3:30 this afternoon I felt the need for some quick energy, so I went to the vending machine and got myself a candy bar. When I got back to my desk, a secretary I barely know tapped me on the shoulder and said, "You don't need that." I looked at her in shocked disbelief. She then added, "An orange would be a lot better for you, and it's only one-third the calories." I told her they didn't sell oranges in the vending machine. She snapped, "Well, why don't you bring one from home?"

I became irritated and announced that I wasn't interested in a lecture on nutrition. She replied, "The people who need it never are."

Who started all this nonsense that "the thinner is the winner"? Why the sudden preoccupation with what we should eat? Frankly, I am--Bored By the Overkill

DEAR BORED:I agree that fad diets are for the birds--the cuckoos, that is--and there is entirely too much rubbish being published on how to lose 30 pounds in 30 days. Also, running is not for everybody. Today's joggers may be tomorrow's arthritics.

We have learned a lot in recent years, however, about diet in relation to heart disease.

We also know obesity is very unhealthy. I believe in daily calisthenics and walking whenever possible. But, when it comes to denying oneself all the delicious things to eat in exchange for a figure like a broom handle, count me out.

DEAR ANN: I despise cats. Yet I can be in a room with 12 people, and if there's a cat, he will pick me out and jump on my lap. It happened again last night. I said, "Go away" and "Scat," but he hung around, shedding on my navy blue suit.

When I shoved him off my lap, he ripped my pantyhose.

The hostess sighed, "Too bad, dear. I'm sorry." Should she have offered to buy me a new pair?--Steaming In Larchmont

DEAR STEAM:Yes. In fact, you have every right to send her a bill. It's time she learned the responsibilities of a hostess.

DEAR ANN LANDERS:I'm going to visit my Dad. I haven't been home for more than five years. Naturally, I want to see all my friends and relatives, especially my Dad's sister. She is like a second Mom to me.

Problem: My dad and this aunt are battling in the courts over easement rights. He absolutely forbids me to see her, even though she lives next door.

Should I forget the trip? I've been looking forward to it for a long time. Please advise.--Monkey In The Middle

DEAR MONKEY:Go! Tell your dad his problem with his sister has nothing to do with you, and you're going to see her. Then do it. But don't listen to one word from either about the other. That's your ace in the hole, honey.

Borg Not Dodging Anyone Herd Faces State Ranked Monterey

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennis' heavyweights aren't playing a cat-and-mouse game as do their boxing counterparts, insists Bjorn Borg — they're just grubbing for the sport's mother lode.

"I don't purposely duck John McEnroe, Jimmy Connors or anybody else, and I am sure they don't dodge me," said the Golden Swede, the world's recognized No.1 player. "It's just the way our schedules fall."

The 23-year-old Borg was in New York briefly Monday to accept another trophy and a $10,000 check as the men's tennis winner in the Seven Crowns of Sports competition. It marks the third time he has won it.

The competition is sponsored by Seagrams. Borg is in good company.

Lou Gehrig, baseball's "Iron Horse," hit 23 home runs with the bases loaded during his career.

Among others honored are Tom Watson in golf, Fred Lynn in baseball, Walter Payton in pro football and Guy Lafleur in hockey.

Borg, en route from a Pacific tour to his home in Monte Carlo, paused long enough to answer those critics who contend that men's tennis suffers because the star performers — principally the "Big Three" of Borg, McEnroe and Connors — rarely meet, except in major championships.

As a case in point, while Borg was heading for the Mediterranean, Connors was winding up a tournament in Hong Kong and McEnroe was beating fellow American Gene Mayer in Stockholm.

"If there were fewer tournaments, we would face each other more often," the young Swede explained. "But with promoters willing to put up so much money, and as long as they insist on name players, you naturally are going to see the top players split up."

"It's more practical for the sponsors. It's financially better for the players. But we don't work it out among ourselves. Individually, we just make out our schedules and let them happen."

The next confrontation of the king and his chief challengers probably will be in the Grand Prix Masters at Madison Square Garden in January. Then there will be the early summer WCT Final in Dallas, followed by Wimbledon and the U.S. Open. It's a mad circle.

"There may be a few other tournaments where two of us meet, or maybe all three," Bjorn said.

Borg has a 3-2 lead this year over the 20-year-old McEnroe (they are 3-3 for their careers), and 4-0 over Connors, having given Jimmy a straight-set lacing recently in Tokyo.

The blond Viking acknowledges that the fiercely competitive and maturely poised McEnroe poses the greatest current threat to his No.1 ranking, but he disdains comparisons.

Borg said his top priority for 1980 is to win the U.S. Open, a title that has escaped him although he has won four straight Wimbledon.

A Swedish paper reported that Borg already had earned $13 million from his tennis and outside activities and would add $30 million if he stayed healthy.

"I wish it were so — why didn't they say $100 million?" he said.

Last Second Touchdown Gives LaPlata Victory

What looked like would end as a scoreless contest changed with no time on the clock as La Plata intercepted a pass and score to defeat Stanton 6-0 in the seventh grade game.

With three seconds left on the clock, Stanton got the ball on its own 30 yard line. Stanton Quarterback Matt Albracht went back for one last desperation attempt and when he could not find a receiver was forced out the pocket. When he did finally find one he went to pass and it was partially deflected and fell into the waiting arms of La Plata Augustine Castillo who took it 25 yards into the endzone for the only touchdown of the night.

The rest of the game was just a massive defensive struggle with neither team moving the ball.

La Plata moved to the Stanton three yard line at one point in the second period but coughed up the ball and it was recovered by Stanton to end the drive.

La Plata has won two out of the three games this year. The eighth grade lost its contest to Stanton last week.

Thursday's Hereford-Monterey contest is the final game of the 1979 football season and will put the Whitefaces in the position of facing the toughest team in the district.

The Plainsmen are 8-1 overall having lost to only Midland High early in the season. They are also rated 10th in the state by Associated Press and eighth by UPI.

The Plainsmen like to rush, their statistics tell you that. They have 2,422 yards on the ground, 697 in the air for an average of 346.6 yards per game, tops in the District. They have scored 235 points while giving up only 62.

Coach James Odom's backfield is intact and consists primarily of running back Willie Johnson, the Plainsmen's super-charged runner. Johnson has gained 1,309 yards going into the game and will be doing his best to play "catch me if you can" with the Hereford Defense.

Hereford Head Coach Don Cumpston called Johnson "the key individual and we will have to key him pretty good."

The quarterback for Monterey is Kip Potts, who has passed for 697 yards and three touchdowns.

Explosive as the running and passing games are for the Plainsman, let's just face it: their whole offense, the defense is nothing to be set out to pasture. Its defense has let loose of only 1151 yards or an average 12.9 yards per game. That's not much real estate.

Hereford will be counting heavily on its explosive passing game to penetrate the defense. Coach Cumpston commented "that if they do have a weakness it is in their secondary."

The pressure of going into a pressure type situation as the under dog is nothing new to this team, they have been doing it all year. The pressure should be the least of anybody's worry's, the Faces have shown they can handle that more than once this year.

Secondly, Hereford has won five games so far this year while losing four. The best games that Hereford has played so far has been to powerhouse teams.

They lost to Plainview with no time on the clock, but played like a crack football team all the way through. It seems to be the tougher the competition the better the Whitefaces play, and if that is the case the Herd should be in top form tomorrow night both offensively and defensively.

Bowl Bids Up In Air

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas or Texas would play in the Jan. 1 Sugar Bowl in New Orleans under an arrangement that was to be presented to bowl officials today.

The proposal would give the Sugar Bowl two shots at landing a 10-1 team to oppose either Georgia or Alabama.

The bowl invitations are to go out at 6 p.m. on Saturday and the fact that the host team in the Jan. 1 Cotton Bowl may not be decided until Dec. 1 is clouding the picture.

In essence, the arrangement would work this way:

—If Arkansas beats Texas A&M on Saturday, the Razorbacks would be heavy favorites to finish 10-1 since the season finale is against Southern Methodist University on Nov. 24. Then, if Houston went to the Cotton Bowl by virtue of a Texas loss, the Sugar Bowl would get Arkansas.

—No matter what Houston does, if Arkansas and Texas finish 10-1, Arkansas will go to the Cotton Bowl. That would put Texas in the Sugar Bowl.

Texas' 21-13 victory over Houston created the confusion.

At the moment, Arkansas, Houston and Texas each have one loss in Southwest Conference play and the three teams are through playing each other.

If all three win the rest of their games, there would be a three-way tie for the championship and Arkansas would go to the Cotton Bowl because both Houston and Texas have been to the bowl since the Razorbacks.

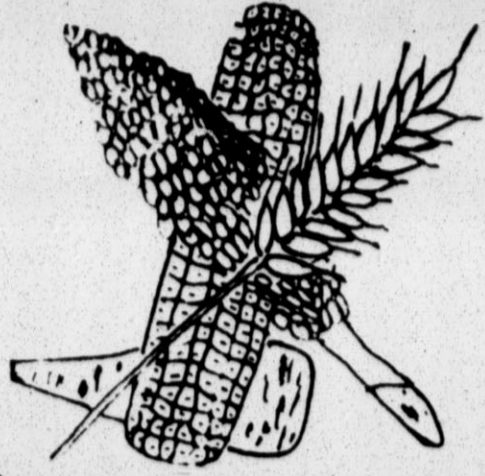

Texas still has to play Texas Christian University, Baylor and Texas A&M. If Houston and Arkansas win the remainder of their games and Texas loses once, Houston would go to the Cotton Bowl since the Cougars beat Arkansas.

Houston is off this week and finishes against Texas Tech Nov. 24 and Rice Dec. 1.

The fact that Texas and Houston don't finish the season until Dec. 1 means the Sugar Bowl would have to gamble if officials agree to the proposal.

Still, that would be no more of a gamble than, say, inviting Pittsburgh and taking a chance that the once-beaten Panthers get by Penn State Dec. 1. Or, agreeing to take the loser of the Oklahoma-Nebraska game on Nov. 24 and winding up with a twice-beaten Oklahoma team.

Georgia will get the host spot if it beats Auburn on Saturday. A Georgia loss would put Alabama in the Sugar Bowl.

Hereford Producer, Swiss Visitors Trade Notes On Rate of Gain, Production Costs for Swine

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

A group of Swiss farmers, stockmen and veterinarians got a first-hand look at livestock production Panhandle-style Tuesday as they visited facilities in Amarillo and Hereford as part of a whirlwind tour arranged through the Texas Department of Agriculture.

The tour group, accompanied by TDA Marketing Specialist

Lynn Kemper of Lubbock and Monica Hilling of the language department of West Texas State University, who served as interpreter for the French-speaking Swiss, viewed swine production facilities in the Hereford area with a stop at Triangle Pork Producers, north-east of Hereford.

Bill Walden, owner of the Triangle Pork firm explained procedures at the confinement swine operation and compared notes with Swiss feed mill representatives concerning feed costs and rates of daily gain.

Edmond Blanchoud, manager of the LACTA feed mill in Geneva headed up the Swiss tour group.

Through an interpreter, Blanchoud reported that feeding and feed mill operations are conducted on a massive scale here when compared to the activities of his own Swiss firm.

According to Blanchoud, wheat, oats, millet and sorghum are among products utilized by the LACTA feed mill, while meal products are also manufactured.

The Swiss feed mill supplies both beef and dairy cattle operations with supplementary feed, and also produces complete feed for swine and poultry operations.

Blanchoud proved particularly interested in the automated feed mill at Triangle Pork, which allows conveyance of feeds to a number of confinement facilities from a central mill at the firm, and enables five men to run the operation.

The visitors questioned control measures governing waste disposal and indicated that such procedures are strictly regulated in their own country, where the population is concentrated.

Walden estimated a 3.5

pounds of feed per pound of pork ratio.

The Swiss visitors also expressed interest in waste management procedures at the local pork firm, where holding lagoons are utilized and manure is spread on surrounding fields.

The visitors questioned control measures governing waste disposal and indicated that such procedures are strictly regulated in their own country, where the population is concentrated.

Walden pointed out that regulations are also to be reckoned with in this country, and that he had to obtain a permit before he could place the waste in a holding lagoon, and that the waste could only be spread on his farmland in the immediate area of the swine operation.

Visitors appeared impressed by the fact that the large swine operation could be handled by only five workers, and asked questions concerning the pay scale for farm workers and the length of their work days.

The language barrier didn't prove all that wide when questions surfaced concerning the bottom line of a break-even point for a pork operation.

Walden pointed out that current pork prices are below his cost of production and Blanchoud responded with a knowing "quel dommage" as he carefully took note of the fact.

Kemper reported that the local stopover by the Swiss visitors was a part of a tour arranged by the TDA to help the visitors study American technology, concerning livestock feeding operations.

Other stops on the tour included area feedyards and packing plants in addition to grain handling facilities.

Farm Energy Costs Soar

A study of New York dairy farms shows farm energy costs soaring. The average cost per farm in 1977 was $2,775 for gasoline and oil, $1,515 for electricity. Last year, costs rose to $3,293 for gas and oil, $1,877 for electricity.

And this year, the average annual costs are $5,269 for gas and oil, $2,159 for electricity.

The conclusion: energy costs, previously five percent of milk selling price, have risen to 6.4 percent for the farms studied.

Land prices, are the greatest barrier to entry into farming, according to the USDA.

WANTED WHEAT PASTURE CALL DAVID BRUMLEY 289-5902

THANKS, FARMERS.

It started ahead of planting time in 1974. Fearing a trade deficit, the U.S. Government asked farmers to grow more acres, harvest more crops for export. Farmers responded by producing $15.5 billion in sales to foreign markets that year, about double the level of 1972. And even after deducting the cost of food and fiber imports, agriculture's contribution to the nation's trade balance exceeded $10 billion.

But it was only the beginning.

In 1975, American farms produced $17.4 billion in exports. And in '76 the total soared to $22.8 billion, then reached $24 billion in '77. And farm exports hit an astonishing $27 billion in 1978. That year alone, agriculture contributed a $13.4 billion trade surplus to help prop the battered and sagging U.S. dollar. It was crucial. The dollar bottomed and began to rise again.

After a performance like that, what do you do for an encore?

Here's what U.S. farmers did: During the marketing year just ending, they produced and sold overseas more than $32 billion of grain and other commodities. That's an 18 percent gain in one year. And it came in the face of a strengthening dollar. When final figures are in, agriculture's net contribution toward lowering the U.S. trade deficit will likely rise to nearly $16 billion during 1979.

That's quite an achievement.

America asked for it, and farmers grew it. Thanks again, farmers.

National WIFE Convention Slated This Weekend

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

The third annual national convention of Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE) will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center in Lubbock.

A primary topic for the three day session will be the production of gasohol, and an exhibit of a working still producing this fuel product and a public discussion with gasohol experts will highlight the convention.

Also featured will be keynote speaker Sarah McClendon, a newspaper, radio and television journalist who has served as White House correspondent, and Dr. Frances Hill, professor of the University of Texas.

Registration for the convention will get underway at noon and continue through 6:45 Friday at the Lubbock Civic Center.

Members will get right into the primary topic for their session Friday night as they host a session on gasohol at 7:30 p.m. at the Civic Center.

Bob Soleta, director of the alcohol division of the Iowa Corn Growers Association will address members of the farm organization along with Dr. Lance Crombie concerning the production of alcohol fuels.

A working still will be used as a model to illustrate Friday night's presentation.

National WIFE President Betty Majors of Osceola, Nebraska pointed out that alcohol stills "could and should be constructed on every farm in the nation."

Mrs. Majors pointed out that the gasohol presentation at the Lubbock session is particularly timely.

"Gasohol has been WIFE's number one priority. Our purpose in having the demonstration still along with gasohol information is so we can go home with plans, knowledge and expertise to enable us to construct alcohol fuel stills on our own farms and ranches," she stated.

The gasohol demonstration still will also be operated at 10 a.m. and 2 and 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in the Mall area.

Registration for the convention will continue Saturday at 7:30 a.m. and business activities will begin at 9 a.m. with opening ceremonies, followed by various business activities.

At 10:45 Saturday morning Dr. Frances Hill will address the gathering on "Women in Agriculture."

Among works currently in progress by Dr. Hill are "American Women on the Family Farm," an examination of the occupational, cultural and economic basis of the political behavior of American farm women; special emphasis on women's roles in agricultural policy process and their attitudes toward the women's movement based on tape recorded interviews with 103 farm women and 3,000 personal mail surveys, in addition to

"Food and Agricultural Policies in the Administrative State" and "The Third World and Global Agriculture."

Business activities will continue Saturday afternoon, and will include minishops on preparing testimony and testifying before legislative groups.

Saturday evening's activities get underway with a Texas barbecue at 7 p.m. with Sarah McClendon featured as the guest speaker.

Nationally famous for her television encounters with five presidents, Ms. McClendon is also the author of "My Eight Presidents-With a Capital Cast of Thousands." She is past president of the American Newspaper Women's Club and past vice president of the National Press Club.

A Cotton Inc. style show and square dance will close the evening.

Election of officers will be held from 8-11 a.m. Sunday by the WIFE organization, and the Spearman chapter will be in charge of worship services at 9 a.m.

A business session including resolutions will begin at 9:50 a.m. followed by an 11:45 a.m. luncheon including entertainment and the president's report by Mrs. Majors.

A final business session at 1:30 p.m. will conclude convention activities.

Authorization Removed For Sorghum Withdrawal

WASHINGTON — Sorghum may no longer be withdrawn from the farmer-owned grain reserve without penalty since the national average market price is $4.03 per hundredweight, 21 cents below the $4.24 reserve release level, according to Ray Fitzgerald, executive vice president of Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC).

Fitzgerald said this decision was made following a review by CCC of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Prices report released here at 3 p.m. today.

Fitzgerald said reserve barley remains in call status and release will continue through Nov. 30 for wheat, corn, oats and rice. On Nov. 30 the national average market prices of these commodities will again be reviewed to determine their reserve status.

Fitzgerald said the national average market prices for the commodities remaining in release status (with the reserve release levels in parentheses) are: Oats $1.30 per bushel ($1.29); rice $10.20 per hundredweight ($9.96); wheat $3.90 per bushel ($3.29). Corn was released in October and therefore is not subject to review until November 30.

Storage earnings will continue uninterrupted for sorghum. No storage payments will be made for barley, rice or wheat.

For oats, storage will continue to be earned in Michigan, Nebraska, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Wisconsin where the market price is below the release level.
