

Iran: Commission To Be Formed Soon

By The Associated Press

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said today the international commission to investigate charges against the deposed shah may be formed "within a few hours," but the American hostages in Tehran will not be released until the panel finishes its work, according to an Italian news agency.

But former Irish Foreign Minister Sean MacBride said today the commission could hardly begin its work until the hostages have been released. Either they are released before the commission meets or they could be released concurrently with setting up of the commission."

Ghotbzadeh, speaking to reporters in Rome, was quoted as saying U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim telephoned him at 3 a.m. to discuss composition of the commission. The panel to investigate the regime's charges against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi has been regarded as a key step toward freeing the hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, who began their 104th day in captivity today.

"The conversation lasted an hour. Now one is waiting only for their acceptance. For us, the names aren't important. What is important is that the commission is formed," Ghotbzadeh was quoted as saying by the ANSA news agency.

However, he added, "the hostages will not be freed until the commission makes public its results," according to ANSA.

Ghotbzadeh had told a news conference Thursday that he hoped the commission would finish its work in 10 days to two weeks, but refused to be pinned down on when the hostages would be released. However, he said once the commission was formed "everything is in motion."

Earlier in the day he spent an hour at the Vatican for talks with Secretary of State Cardinal Agostino Casaroli. "We spoke about the Iranian revolution and the force of religion in the world," he said. He did not see Pope John Paul II, whose pleas for the Americans' release were ignored by Iran last November.

MacBride, interviewed in Dublin on NBC's "Today" program, said the commission would not have the power to call

Wholesale Prices Soar

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices surged 1.6 percent in January, the biggest monthly jump since November 1974, the Labor Department reported today.

The steep increase was propelled by sharply higher gasoline and home heating oil prices, which wiped out a substantial decline in food prices, the department said.

Changes in wholesale or producer prices often show up within weeks at retail outlets, thus affecting consumer pocketbooks.

January's 1.6 percent jump nearly doubled December's revised 0.9 percent increase, worsening the nation's inflation.

During all of last year, wholesale prices rose an average of 1 percent a month.

Prices increased 0.8 percent at the wholesale level in December, the most moderate rise since June, after climbing 1.3 percent in November.

Economists at Georgia State University, who prepare their own monthly wholesale-price analysis, said January's overall increase matched the 0.8 percent of December.

Wholesale food prices fell 1.5 percent, in large part because prices "softened" after President Carter announced the embargo of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union, the university economists said.

However, higher energy costs pushed the prices of non-food consumer items up 1.9 percent.

"Because some of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries raised their prices retroactive to November, signs of re-accelerated energy prices are apparent in our January survey," the university report said. "Because the energy components are lagged, more substantial increases are certain in coming months."

Prices rose 12.5 percent at wholesale from December 1978 to December 1979, helping to push retail prices up at the fastest rate in more than 30 years.

Although the Carter administration is predicting some moderation of the trend this year, officials admit that a surge in oil prices could upset their projections.

Saudi Arabia, the largest foreign oil supplier for the United States, and a number of other OPEC nations have in recent days announced a new round of crude oil price hikes for 1980.

Prices are falling in one area, however.

The Commerce Department reported Thursday that the average price of new homes fell 1.6 percent in the final three months of 1979. That was the first quarterly drop in more than two years.

The average price of a new, single-family home was $73,000 in the fourth quarter of last year, down from $74,200 in the previous quarter.

A downturn in housing prices often is the first sign of a recession and the president's proposed budget for 1981 says a recession "is expected in the first half of 1980."

American Ag Heads to D.C.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Agriculture Movement, which angrily descended on the Capitol last year to protest farm policy, is returning this time to tout the gospel of gasohol.

Marvin Meek, the group's president, said farmers did not plan as raucous an event as last year when tractors snarled Capitol traffic.

He said five "small" motorcades of alcohol-fueled vehicles left their home states Monday for Washington, giving demonstrations of how stills work along their routes.

"Don't really have any idea," Meek, of Plainview, Texas, replied when asked how many farmers were expected for the convention.

American Agriculture began two years ago as a grassroots organization to promote a farm strike, and he said there was still some reluctance to formalize it.

Plans called for the motorcades to arrive by Saturday. If permits were obtained, stills to demonstrate alcohol production would be constructed on the Capitol mall and in Lafayette Park across from the White House.

Meek said most of the farmers were not expected until Sunday.

"It's just kind of a place where we can get together," he said. "Since they won't move the capital out in the country, we thought we'd better come up here."

Speeches and meetings at the Commerce Department's auditorium are scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday. Farmers planned to march down Pennsylvania Avenue on Thursday to complete the week by lobbying for two days on Capitol Hill.

Meek shrugged off last year's demonstrations as a highly successful publicity gimmick. He added, however, that if farmers refrain from similar demonstrations it does not mean they are any more satisfied by the Carter administration's farm policy.

"We'll have farmers up here through the month of February, a few of them, to work on the hill - probably through March, too. However long it takes," Meek said.

CIA Opens Supply Line To Rebels

By The Associated Press

The CIA reportedly has opened a secret supply line to funnel small arms and anti-tank weapons across the Pakistani border to the Moslem rebels battling Soviet troops in Afghanistan.

Today's editions of the Washington Post quoted unidentified sources as saying the United States started supplying weapons to the anti-communist rebels after the Soviets began pouring an estimated 90,000 troops into Afghanistan on Christmas Day.

Prior to the Soviet military intervention, the United States secretly supplied the rebels with small amounts of medicine and communications equipment, the paper said.

The Post claimed the weapons being sent to the rebels were manufactured by

Eades, Brownlow Seek Re-Election

Place 3 and 4 city commissioners Bud Eades and Emory Brownlow filed this week for the April 5 city election. Brownlow filed Wednesday and Eades Thursday. No other candidates have announced their intentions to run since the month-long filing period opened Feb. 5.

Eades, managing partner of Plains Insurance Company, was appointed last year to fill the unexpired term of Dickie Gerles, who resigned from the commission because he moved outside the city limits.

Eades is past president of United Way, Kiwanis Club and Chamber of Commerce and is a deacon in the First Baptist Church. "Since I accepted the appointed term a few months ago, I feel have not yet had time to understand city government, and it will take a little longer before I feel I can really contribute anything," Eades said.

"Anybody that goes in there cold who claims to know all about city government is just blowing smoke. You have to be inside to know what it's all about and be able to contribute anything," he added.

"I have learned in a short time that our city is operated in a very efficient manner. For example, a lot of other cities

Clayton Testimony Set for March

HOUSTON (AP)— A federal grand jury probe into alleged insurance kickback schemes arising from the FBI's undercover Operation Brilab has been delayed until March when Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton will testify.

Union official L.G. Moore, another vital link in the investigation of alleged corruption in labor and politics, has gone to the federal courts in an effort to quash the grand jury subpoena.

The legal action is expected to delay Moore's appearance until March, even if the request to void the subpoena is rejected.

U.S. Attorney J.A. "Tony" Canales has indicated he will excuse the grand jury after today's session and recall them sometime in March.

The grand jurors have listened to testimony from at least 11 witnesses, including several labor leaders, and now need to hear Moore and Clayton before ending the probe.

In a written statement issued in Austin Thursday, Clayton said Canales had agreed to delay his appearance until next month.

And, he indicated the FBI has tapes of conversations, presumably made during a meeting with Moore and Joseph Hauser, an FBI informant posing as a Prudential Insurance Co. representative.

Clayton has acknowledged he received "a political contribution" of $5,000 from Moore during the Nov. 8 meeting in

Jurors Reduce Lucio Charge

A 10-man, two-woman jury deliberated until 2 a.m. today before finding Narcisso Lucio Jr. guilty of attempted voluntary manslaughter in connection with a May 18, 1979 shooting which left a young Hereford man paralyzed from the waist down.

Lucio was charged with attempted murder, but the jury decided on the lesser second-degree charge of attempted manslaughter.

Jurors began deliberations on Lucio's punishment around 10 a.m. today after the prosecution and defense presented character witnesses. He could receive up to 10 years in the state penitentiary and be fined $5,000.

Lucio was charged with shooting 17-year-old Danny Hernandez in the back during an altercation at 402 E. 13th. Hernandez testified from a wheelchair that he had challenged Lucio, who was sitting in a car in front of that address, to a fight, then turned around and walked away.

He told District Attorney Roland Saul that someone exclaimed that Lucio had started shooting before he was struck by a bullet. Defense attorney Ed Line called Lucio to the stand, and he testified he was shooting at two cars parked in the driveway and not at Hernandez.

Art Burton, a former Deaf Smith County sheriff's deputy, testified he had been hired by the defense as an investigator in the case. He said there was a bullet hole on the west side of a mailbox at the residence.

Testimony in the trial showed that Lucio was shooting a rifle from the east side of the mailbox. Line indicated in closing arguments that another gun was involved in the altercation and raised self defense as an issue.

The jury began deliberations at 9 p.m. Thursday and sent 222nd District Judge Wesley Guley a note around 1:15 a.m. stating that they were not unanimous on Lucio's guilt. The note said that the latest vote in the jury room was 10-2 but did not say if most jurors wanted a guilty verdict.

Sowers Content in Local Coaching Post

It has been said that a rolling stone gathers no moss, but the old saying didn't mention anything about a stepping stone. And as far as head girls varsity coach, Larry Sowers, is concerned that particular stone can stay put right where it is. The head mentor, now in his first year as head girls coach after heading up the boy's program at Stanton Jr. High for two years, says he's perfectly satisfied with where he's at and with what he's doing.

"I'm not and never have been looking at Hereford as a stepping stone to further my career, simply because I'm not sure there is a better place to be or a better job to have other than right here," Sowers said.

Sowers had served a previous stint spanning five years in Crownpoint (schools comprised of approximately 95 percent Navajo Indians) after graduating from Texas Tech University.

"We (my wife Daphne, My one-year-old daughter Suzanne and I) really like Hereford from the very start. My wife is a lab technician at the hospital and enjoys her work there, but I think the main reason that we've been able to adjust to Hereford so well is that we've been in this area most of our lives," he said.

"My wife and I are both from Clayton, N.M. and we both graduated from Tech, so we haven't moved very far away from familiar surroundings," Sowers said.

But, the surroundings weren't the only thing that made Sowers feel at ease in Hereford.

"Another thing that impressed me about Hereford right from the beginning, was that it had all the right ingredients necessary for making and building young athletes into very promising prospects," said Sowers. "The kids here are willing to work for success and have good attitudes which make my job easier right from the start."

And Sowers attributed those ingredients as the key building blocks for his young team's 16-14 accomplishment this last

Gentry Announces for Board

James Gentry, a member of the Hereford Independent School District Board of Trustees since 1975, announced this week that he will seek re-election.

Gentry, president of First Realty in Hereford, won a contested race for the board in 1975, ran unopposed in 1978 and received more votes than any of the other six candidates in a federally-mandated special election last year.

Gentry is past president of the school board.

"We have an excellent school system which is providing a diverse educational program to meet the needs of a very diversified student population. I am seeking re-election in order to contribute to the further improvement of all aspects of our local educational system," Gentry said.

Gentry will be a program participant at the National Association of School Boards convention during April in San Francisco.

According to Gentry, major accomplishments of HISD since his election in 1975 have included:

--an average reduction of 22 percent in tax assessments per property since the 1976 re-evaluation.

--a raise in beginning classroom teachers' salaries of 41 percent and 62 percent for the most experienced teachers.

intensive program to improve proficiency in reading and math.

--implementation and expansion of programs for gifted children.

--changing the special-education program to provide services for virtually any handicapped child.

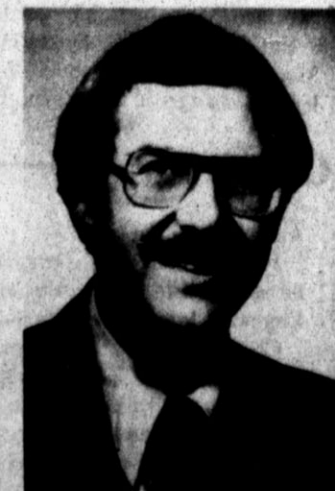

--rewriting the district's policy manual.

--expansion of the administrative and tax offices.

--development of a plan to complete maintenance on all school facilities by the summer of this year.

Gentry said the school board is responsible for the education of more than 5,000 students the employment and direction of 500 employees and overseeing annual expenditures of more than $9 million.

Fights Chicago Fires

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Jane Byrne and the firefighters union have taken hard-line positions in a strike that has left a makeshift corps of officers, trainees and suburban companies guarding more than three million persons against mid-winter blazes.

"They're lawbreakers, and I won't have anyone sitting down with them," Mrs. Byrne said Thursday, refusing to consider the resumption of contract talks until the firefighters return to work.

"There is a little macho... you know, male chauvinism in this," she said. "They do it hoping that a woman will get hysterical and strike out and do certain things. It won't work with me."

Chicago Fire Fighters Union leaders defied Judge John Hechinger's temporary back-to-work order and said they continue to do so.

The city put pressure on the strikers in other ways, canceling medical insurance payments, threatening to begin disciplinary proceedings today that could lead to firings, demotions or transfers and stepping up plans to hire 250 firefighters by March 1.

The strike, the first by firefighters in the nation's second-largest city, began before dawn Thursday.

Nixon's 3rd Book

To Be Controversial

SAN CLEMENTE, CALIF. (AP) — Richard Nixon's third book, to be released May 1, is a controversial one, he says, containing statements such as "World War III began before World War II ended and it's going on today."

"The great advantage about writing a book like this, as one not seeking political office, is one can be totally objective and I can without question write a controversial book," Nixon said in a copyright interview published Wednesday by the San Clemente Sun-Post.

"The Real War" touches on energy, China, Vietnam and Africa and gives a strong overview of the Mideast situation, Nixon said.

In his final days at San Clemente, Nixon said he had made some changes in the galleries to make his views on the Iranian hostage situation as topical as possible.

The book analyzes what has happened in global power politics in the recent past, what has worked and what has not, and what power the United States must have — including military power, economic power and will power, Nixon said.

Louisiana Governor

Denies Taking Bribe

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Gov. Edwin Edwards says he didn't take any money from a government informant who said the insurance company he claimed to represent could spend $50,000 a month for help in winning a state contract.

Edwards testified about his meeting with Joseph Hauser, posing as an insurance agent, at the opening session Thursday of federal grand jury hearings on suspected labor and government corruption.

However, Hauser did pay $10,000 to Louis Lambert's unsuccessful 1979 campaign for governor by purchasing tickets to a testimonial dinner, Lambert's lawyer, Camille Gravel, acknowledged. Lambert has denied doing anything wrong. Gov. James Fitzmorris and Lt. Gov. elect Bobby Freeman also appeared before the grand jury Thursday, but would not comment on their testimony.

In the Briab — for bribery-labor — operation, FBI agents and Hauser allegedly offered payment to government officials and others in Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas to try to win insurance contracts for Prudential Insurance Co.

Cronkite To Leave

'CBS Evening News'

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Cronkite, for many years one of the nation's most trusted television newsmen, will step aside early next year as "CBS Evening News" anchorman for a man he calls "the new champion" — Dan Rather.

"We — and you — will be in the best of hands," the grandfatherly Cronkite said Thursday in reporting the network's decision moments before signing off with his familiar "And that's the way it is..."

CBS News' selection of Rather to succeed America's best-known broadcast journalist climaxed years of speculation as to who would guide network television's No. 1 nightly news program after Cronkite. Rather, as did Cronkite, will double as anchorman and managing editor for the "Evening News."

"I can't think of anybody in this entire business," Cronkite told a crowded news conference Thursday afternoon, "who is as qualified as Dan Rather for this job."

CBS News President Bill Leonard said Rather, perhaps most-recognized for his tough questioning of President Richard M. Nixon during the Watergate scandal, had signed a new, long-term contract with the network. He would not discuss terms, nor would Rather.

Texas Briefs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Department of Public Safety asked Attorney General Mark White Thursday to clarify his legal opinion that a person receiving a probated misdemeanor drunken driving sentence must have his driver's license lifted.

DPS Director Jim Adams said about 4,000 convictions will be affected by White's answer. Adams asked if White's opinion, issued, Jan. 29, applies to all misdemeanor DWI convictions since the new law went into effect Aug. 27, 1979, or just since the Jan. 29 opinion.

Prior to the new law, passed by the 1979 Legislature, a finding of guilty with probation was not considered a final conviction and the mandatory one-year suspension of license was not mandatory.

Adams said he needs the opinion because many of the persons who pled guilty and were convicted of DWI after the new act went into effect may have done so believing that probation would prevent the loss of their driver license.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A new transportation study for the Lornvise urban area has been completed, the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation said Thursday.

The aim of the plan is to provide adequate transportation systems for the area until the year 2000.

Key recommendations include the widening of the major east-west traffic route, U.S. 80, to accommodate a left turn refuge; the development of additional cross-town routes and extending and reconstructing some existing roadways.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Austin City Council approved by a 6-0 vote Thursday new taxi fares that officials said are about the highest in the state. The new fare is 20 percent higher than that recommended by the city's Urban Transportation Commission.

Current cab rates of 80 cents for the first one-quarter of a mile and 20 cents for each one-quarter thereafter, will become $1 for the first one-fifth of a mile and 20 cents for each succeeding one-fifth. The increase is effective in 10 days.

City Transportation Director Joe Ternus estimated the new fare would make a three-mile trip in Austin cost $3.80. He said this gives Austin the highest cab rate of any of the seven largest cities in the state.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Railroad Commission said Thursday it has received more than 20,000 applications in just over 14 months from Texas oil and gas operators for gas well pricing and production determinations.

Program Supervisor Sandra Buch said the section docketed the 20,000th application on Feb. 1. It was filed by Southland Royalty Co. of Fort Worth.

as witnesses U.S. officials or the ex-shah himself, but could receive reports only from the Iranian government.

Objections to the former Irish Republican Army leader reportedly have surfaced in U.S. government circles because of his sympathy for leftist causes.

Asked to comment on holding the Lenin Peace Prize, as well as a Nobel Peace Prize, MacBride said, "I might add that I also hold the American Medal for Justice, which was awarded to me subsequently. I think that I am pretty well balanced from that point of view."

President Carter, discounting speculation that the approximately 50 Americans could be freed over the weekend, said he did not expect the issue to be resolved this month.

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, asked if the U.N. panel would convene in Iran, told reporters in Tehran Thursday. "They are waiting for me to make that announcement but I am waiting to see if the U.S. will accept our conditions."

He reiterated his three demands on the United States for release of the hostages: acknowledgement of alleged U.S. crimes against the Iranian people during the shah's reign; a pledge not to meddle in Iranian affairs; and agreement not to block efforts to return the shah and his wealth to Iran.

But Bani-Sadr, who this week told the French newspaper Le Monde that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary leader, had agreed to the plan, hedged that comment. "Earlier I was asked if the infam (Khomeini) agrees with the proposal and I answered I think he will agree."

Carter has said the United States will not take the blame for a CIA-backed coup that restored the shah to power in 1953, and the State Department has said it will not "profess guilt" for any subsequent Iranian developments.

On Wednesday, Carter raised hopes that a U.N. probe of the ousted shah could lead to the release of the hostages, telling a news conference, "an appropriate commission, with a carefully defined purpose, would be a step toward resolution of the crisis."

Dismissing speculation the hostages could be freed by the weekend, Carter said he did not expect their release before the New Hampshire primary Feb. 26. In an interview with the Boston Herald American, Carter said:

"I don't have any indication at all that we will have a resolution of the hostage issue that soon."

He called the hostage-holding a "burning issue," and said, "... it is impossible for me to revert to business as usual as an active campaigner as long as the hostages are being held."

Carter's chief rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, accused administration officials of misusing their offices in the campaign.

Austin. He has insisted the money was put in a safe place so it could be returned to Moore, the regional director of the Operating Engineers International Union.

Clayton said, "Frankly, my lawyers have been persistent in their advice that I cannot hope to fairly and fully present my testimony this week. Because of the extreme difficulties that we all face in our attempt to recall many events over the last 100 days as accurately and completely as possible, my lawyers have asked for additional time prior to my appearance before the grand jury, and the U.S. attorney has agreed."

Attorneys for Moore first asked U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue Jr. to quash the subpoena. This request was denied. An appeal was filed and Judge Reynaldo Garza of the U.S. 5th

Circuit Court of Appeals granted a temporary delay in Moore's appearance.

The federal panel heard only one witness Thursday—James Middleton, secretary-treasurer of the Laborers Local 18 of Houston.

One of Middleton's lawyers, Michael J. Hinton, said his client had received a substantial offer from Houston Port Authority commissioner John Garrett to change the union's insurance coverage.

Hinton said Middleton turned down the offer.

The union official spent about 30 minutes before the grand jury. He said not one word after being excused, letting attorneys do all of the talking.

By BARRY SHLACHTER Associated Press Writer

BAROGAI, Afghanistan (AP) — On April 20, 1979, troops of Afghanistan's Marxist government marched into the Afghan town of Kerala, rounded up males over the age of 7 and shot them, according to Afghans who said they survived the mass execution.

By the government's own count — accepted by the survivors — 640 men and boys were massacred that spring day in reprisal for allegedly helping Islamic rebels who then and now are fighting successive Soviet-backed Marxist regimes in Kabul, the capital. The mass killings took place before the present Afghan government of Babrak Karmal was installed in conjunction with a massive Soviet military intervention last December.

Contrary to earlier reports on the massacre, none of the survivors interviewed said he or she saw Soviet military advisers taking part. Russian advisers in much fewer numbers were then in Afghanistan and a former Afghan officer who defected to the rebel side last year said that at the time, they wore Afghan army uniforms and would have been difficult to distinguish.

Viewed now through binoculars from atop a nearby mountain, Kerala which had a population of about 5,000 looks like a ghost town perched in a valley between the converging Asmar and Pech Rivers that enrich its soil. The rice fields and the town's large public garden were the pride of the residents, but no one is tending them now.

The survivors I met first in Pakistani refugee camps, then here in Barogai and during a hike into Afghanistan said some of the men escaped by dressing in the long Moslem chadors (veils) of wives and sisters. Some told of soldiers who spotted them, hiding but did not give them away.

A 16-year-old survivor said some of the men were only wounded in the mass shooting but were buried along with the dead by a bulldozer as they shouted, "We are alive! Don't bury us!"

"We call it the War of Kerala," said the widow of Mullah Abdul Hakim, one of three resident Moslem clergymen, all of whom were gunned down by government soldiers.

The present military situation in the area prevented our entering Kerala and Chigha Sarai (formerly Asadabad), the capital of Kunar Province just across the Pech River.

The survivors — individually interviewed on a mountainous track leading to Pakistan, at a refugee camp across the border and at this tiny village in rebel-held territory — gave accounts of the incident that differed only in minor detail.

This is their story:

At 2 a.m. on April 20, about 110 Moslem rebels headed toward Kerala for what was to have been part of a larger offensive against it and Chigha Sarai, which had been besieged by anti-government insurgents for months.

The main assault never materialized and artillery fire created confusion among the guerrillas approaching Kerala.

Counterfeit Bill Passed at Store

TG&Y, W. Park Ave. has reported to Hereford police that someone passed a counterfeit $20 bill in the store.

According to reports, the bill was actually a $10 bill with $20 corners connected to it. Officers have no suspects in the case but are continuing their investigation.

A 4-year-old boy was struck in the face with a snowball while sitting in a car in the 200 block of Ave. J Thursday.

Dr. Milton Adams, 335 N. Miles, reported to police Thursday that the lights were turned on in his office while it was closed. Police are investigating the possible break-in.

Jesse Barrett, 1507 E. 1st, reported that three or four old water heaters were stolen from outside his plumbing business Thursday.

Mrs. W.H. London, 226 Ranger, reported Wednesday that someone entered her residence through the back door while she was away from the house and stole a stereo AM-FM eight-track tape player valued at $200.

Robert Fuentes, 212 Barker, told police that someone stole a tool box and coat from his pickup while it was parked Thursday at the hospital.

Police reported that a 17-year-old female is suspected of driving over several yards in northwest Hereford Wednesday night. No charges have been filed in the case, however.

claims the men failed to report the money for income tax purposes.

Those named in the indictment are Verne Regan of Plano, Clifford P. Huff of Farmers Branch, James Wilkins of Garland and Claude E. Smith Jr. of Irving.

An assistant U.S. attorney said maximum punishment for the men, if convicted on all counts, could range from 25 to 365 years in prison, plus large fines.

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston man was among 13 persons indicted in Miami, Fla., in the film pirating phase of the FBI Miporn operation announced Thursday.

Bobby R. Gillham, assistant FBI agent-in-charge, announced the arrest of Mickey Manos, 43, on a charge of anti-racketeering activity involving copyright violations and interstate transportation of stolen property.

The charge against Manos, owner of M and M Video Systems, alleges production of pirated video tape cassettes of major motion pictures and the sale of the copyrighted cassettes without the consent of the copyright owners or licensees.

Gillham said a federal search warrant was executed at the M and M studios Thursday after a warrant against Manos had been issued in Miami on Wednesday.

The earlier FBI announcement in Washington also had said the Miporn probe had led to the Miami indictment of 45 persons in 10 states on charges of conspiracy and interstate transportation of obscene material.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Seventeen Iranians and Arabs — arrested Thursday as they gathered for a scheduled meeting with a University of Texas dean — yelled "set-up" later.

The 17, most of them students, attempted to run as six uniformed police served them with arrest warrants and took them to the city police station to be booked on charges of disrupting a speech Jan. 31 at the university.

The speech was being made by a former Iranian ambassador to the United Nations.

The students arrested Thursday said they were supposed to meet with Associate Dean of Students David McClintock.

McClintock denied telling police about the meeting.

McCathern Lectures HHS Class

Gerald McCathern spoke on farm issues when he appeared as a guest lecturer for the History of Western Thought class at Hereford High School Wednesday.

The advanced history class is composed primarily of senior students. McCathern explained how agriculture fits into the national and world economy, and told students agriculture was a contributing factor to inflation because farm products were being underpriced in the market place.

McCathern told students that he thought the United States would solve its energy problems because OPEC was forcing us to find other fuel supplies. He also discussed the conversion of grain to alcohol.

McCathern said he had spoke to history classes in Amarillo for several years. He is currently a candidate for State Senator from the 31st District.

Woman's Lost Son Causes Heartaches

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Jean Macdonald always could count on her son George to make her laugh and remember her on special occasions. He was one of the pleasant certainties in her life.

But for the last seven years, uncertainty about George has been tearing the 69-year-old woman apart. "I just pray everything is OK for George," she said. "I don't think we can dictate in life what can be, but I wish I knew...."

It was shortly before Christmas 1972 when Air Force officials came to the Macdonald home to say that their 24-year-old son's plane had been shot down over Laos.

Two of the 16 men in the plane had definitely survived but there was no trace of George and the others, Mrs. Macdonald said. Searchers found open parachutes in the area, but no identification tags or bodies.

Colonels makes that recommendation it is passed on to the Secretary of the Air Force to be finalized. Mrs. Macdonald is upset. For seven years, she has pressured the government to find out what happened to her son, and she says too many discrepancies still exist in government reports for a final ruling to be made on George's case.

William Rogers. She was able to see only an aide, who provided no help, she said. In recent months, her efforts have gone into resisting the move to have George declared dead. Her declining health prevented her from attending Monday's hearing at Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas.

Nuke Leaks Said Not Unusual

WASHINGTON (AP) — Small leaks of radioactive gases from two nuclear plants, including Three Mile Island, caught public notice this week, but federal regulators say such leaks are not unusual and, in themselves, not dangerous.

Before Three Mile Island they would never have had public attention. ... There was not a public health problem in either case, said Dudley Thompson, acting deputy director of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's office of inspection and enforcement. The NRC staff was to make a report later today to the five-member commission about the two releases of small amounts of radioactive Krypton 85 gas from the crippled Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania earlier in the week. Thompson said in an interview Thursday that the NRC's concern about the releases at Three Mile Island and also at the Calvert Cliffs reactor in Maryland stemmed partly from increased public sensitivity about any such reports.

Utilities reported the events, although small radioactive releases normally would not require immediate notification under current rules. There are an estimated 3,000 to 4,000 incidents, mostly minor, reported to the NRC each year from nuclear power plants.

George learned to play bridge at the age of 5, loved to arm wrestle, hated to do chores and was good with numbers, she recalled. George also was good at making his mother laugh. "He had a very good sense of humor," she said. "And he was an all-around boy. He stood up for what was right."

Anti-Arson Group Seeks Insurance Changes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Current rules of the State Insurance Board make life easier for firebugs and should be changed, a group created to fight arson said Thursday. A Texas Advisory Committee on Arson (ATAC on Arson) urged the board to give insurers greater freedom to cancel policies on homes and businesses.

Kenneth Edwards of the Independent Insurance Agents of Texas said such coverage would be written only on better properties — not "the bayshore property, the dogs." W.R. Campbell of Dallas, speaking for companies, gave "qualified approval" of the proposal but said there were dangers in insuring contents of hunting cabins and "weekend retreats" for full replacement cost. People usually put cast-off items from their homes in such places, Campbell said. "If replacement cost coverage provides too much betterment in the event of a loss, that would lead to the moral hazard," he said.

Thompson said the agency wants to know about even small leaks to help alleviate any public fears, adding: "Since Three-Mile Island, utilities are going to be a rather suspect source." New rules, already approved by the five commissioners and expected to be published in a few weeks, would require reporting of virtually all un-planned releases of radioactive materials, no matter how small.

George grew up in Evanston, went to Ohio State University where he joined the track team and ROTC before heading to Thailand in the summer of 1972. She said that as he packed just before leaving, he expressed reluctance about keeping all his belongings. "He said, 'I just don't think I'm ever going to see you or my family again.' It was a very eerie thing," she said.

On that summer day seven years ago, Mrs. Macdonald had her last conversation with her son. "In a way," she said, "seven years is a long time. But in many ways, it's just like yesterday we were laughing together and doing things together."

Silver Thefts May Up Price

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — People of average means will pay more for homeowners insurance because of silverware thefts from the rich unless the State Insurance Board does something, the board was told Thursday.

"Silver is at $37 an ounce. When gold was $32 an ounce it was buried at Fort Knox," said John F. Knight of Republic Insurance Co. in Dallas. Because of this, he said, burglaries of silverware are on the increase, with insurance companies paying for huge losses covered by homeowners insurance.

But homeowners rates result from the total loss experience of insurance companies, and Knight said large losses from silverware thefts from rich homes could cause everybody's premiums to rise. "The have-nots," as respects silver, are subsidizing the haves," Knight said.

The Calvert Cliffs incident involved the release of 40 curies, well below federal limits, of radioactive Xenon-133 gas Monday and Tuesday. It was not reported and was only discovered by an NRC inspector reviewing plant logs. The NRC staff has indicated unhappiness over the way the

Charles Lohr of Dallas, immediate past president of ATAC on Arson, said the 60-day deadline for canceling a policy does not allow companies enough time to investigate the risk. "The result, he said, is 'the company must remain on a recognized arson bomb.'" He agreed with Mikeska that present rules protect arsonists, not insurance companies and the general public. "Shooting or threatening an investigator or adjuster, bodily harm, intimidation or refusal to allow the investigators to examine the damage is not a reason to cancel the policy," Lohr said. The board, conducting its annual property insurance rules hearing, also received a request from agents to let policyholders buy replacement cost coverage on contents of "secondary homes."

Airplane Crash Kills Navy Men

PORT O'CONNOR, Texas (AP) — Two Navy officers tried to bail out after their TA-4J jet hit a radio tower near here, but fell to their deaths with their parachutes streaming behind them, an eyewitness said. Thursday's crash was the second fatal accident in two days involving planes from the Aircraft Training Squadron 25 at the Beville Naval Air Station, Navy officials said. Navy officials have declined to identify the two officers pending notification of next of kin. "They ejected out sideways instead of straight into the air," said Dewayne Weaver, who witnessed the crash. "The chutes came out, but it was too close to the ground," he said.

jet was strewn over a field behind a club called the Opera House, about 35 miles northeast of Corpus Christi. In the other fatal accident involving an aircraft from the same squadron, Marine 1st Lt. Stephen D. Scott of Daley City, Calif., was killed Wednesday when his jet crashed on takeoff at the Marine Corps Air Station at Yuma, Ariz. The tower was operated by Bowen Smith Rental Management Inc. of Houston. Company spokesman Doug Irving said in Houston the 480-foot structure served for two-way radio communications for from 15 to 25 companies. He said most of the companies were involved in offshore oil and gas operations. "There will be no communications there for a while until we can move our customers over to one of the other facilities we have around Rockport or Corpus Christi or to someone else's tower," said Irving. Irving said the tower was properly painted and marked.

Lt. Cmdr. Mary Cooperman at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station said the jet was on a routine low-level flying maneuver in the Port O' Connor area when the accident occurred about 2:10 p.m. Weaver said he looked up when he heard the engine "flame out" or quit. "It hit the tower, sparks flying, and it was like a Roman candle," said Weaver. "It made an arc straight up and then came down, whistling and spinning around and around, and exploded in a big ball of fire." The concussion "nearly knocked me off my feet," said Weaver. The burning wreckage of the

OUR GREATEST LEADERS HAVE BEEN GUIDED BY FAITH

The leaders and founding fathers of free nations who are remembered and honored throughout their country's history have all had several things in common, despite their differences in personality and temperament. Without exception, they have been men of strong character, with an unselfish devotion to duty, a determination to overcome every obstacle and a complete subordination of all personal glory to the best interests of their country. They were men with a kind of principle that is hard to find today, and this was largely a result of their faith, upon which they depended for guidance during the dark hours of adversity. Attend the Church of your choice and learn some of this faith with which our revered leaders gave us our priceless heritage of freedom.

One language held his heart and lip,
Straight onward to his goal he trod,
And proved the highest statesmanship
Obedience to the voice of God.

—John Greenleaf Whittier

Ann Landers

Brassy Request

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In October I received the following note from a relative I see once a year: "These two squares of material are for 'Loving Care' quilts. Please embroider, applique, fabric-crayon, acrylic-paint or tie-dye. I hope you will forgive this short notice but I need the squares back by the second week in November, in time for Christmas. They are to be surprise gifts for two relatives."

My sister-in-law received the same letter and instructions. She answered, "Sorry, I don't have the time to fill your request within three days." She received a snippy reply saying, "We will leave your squares empty until you can get around to it." (Another sister-in-law who also said she didn't have time was told, "Find time on your lunch hour.")

I am not a handy person, and I don't know how to do any of the crafts mentioned. Furthermore, I think this relative has a lot of nerve to impose on members of the family this way. What is your opinion?—Manipulated In Michigan

DEAR MICH.: How long would it take you to write your name, diagonally, across the square in crayon or heavy pencil? I'll bet a lot less than it took to type a letter to me. I agree, your relative has a lot of nerve, but there are ways to short-circuit brassy requests and I just told you how to dispose of this one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you can help me. I don't know where else to turn. I married young, eight months pregnant at the time. All went well for about two years, then the marriage began to fall apart. We had a lovely little daughter, and I wanted to do what was right for her. When it came time to split I did a lot of soul-searching and decided her father would be the better parent. He had a good job and financial security. I was a high school dropout and the only kind of work I knew was waiting tables. Believe me, I shed a lot of tears before I made the final decision. My family was shocked and they sure let me know it. They could not understand how a "normal" mother could make such a decision.

It's been three years now, and I still can't get rid of the gnawing guilt—although I am sure I did the right thing. Please help me get this off my conscience.—Sleepless Nights In Virginia

DEAR VIRGINIA: If you feel that your decision was in the best interest of the child, that's all that matters. Don't let the relatives lay a guilt trip on you. Where were they when you needed them? Chin up, dear, one day your daughter will understand and thank you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A cousin I am very fond of was engaged to marry a man of questionable reputation. Her mother planned a big wedding. I sent an expensive silver tray with her new initials engraved on it. The wedding was called off and my cousin returned all the wedding gifts.

That was two years ago. Now my cousin is engaged to marry a man whose last name begins with the same initial as her former fiance. Would it be okay to send the same gift?—Strapped For Cash in Sarasota

DEAR SARA: Yes. On the card you enclose, thank her for her consideration. If she has a sense of humor she'll enjoy the joke. If not—so what?

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism — Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Be a Friend, Have a Friend

Who's Telling Who?

By JOAN DWYER

Big Brothers/Big Sisters

Have we, as parents, become subservient to our kids? Are they telling us what to do? Are we afraid of rejection or not being loved if we demand a bit of discipline and respect?

Yes, DEMAND it! Asking a kid doesn't always work (especially with a 5-year-old).

We have got to begin asserting ourselves. Respect is a two-way street. There is no way anyone can learn to respect or be respected if it's not taught first at home.

Giving in to a child's every whim only teaches him he doesn't have to exert any effort in this world; everything will be duck soup. Well, SOMEBODY has to shoot the ducks!

Even though a kid will fight for control of a situation he really doesn't want it. His security is found in rules, rituals, and consistent expectations of him. He also wants to be assured of what he can expect of you!

If you are feeling embarrassed about your child's behavior and feeling more like a carpet than a source of guidance and a teacher, probably your kid is telling you what to do! do!

Valentine Ball To Be Saturday

The city's four Beta Sigma Phi Sorority chapters will converge on the Knights of Columbus Hall tomorrow evening for their annual Valentine Ball, to be held from 8 p.m. until midnight.

Highlight of the evening will be the introduction of the chapter sweethearts, who will dance the traditional waltz with their husbands beneath a spotlight. A heart-shaped gold charm and long-stemmed rose for the City Council will be presented to each of the sweetheart honorees.

To be honored this year are Lillie Shipman from Alpha Alpha, Debra Cook from Xi Epsilon Alpha, Susan Sublett from Kappa Iota, and Susan Shaw, Alpha Iota Mu.

An Amarillo disc jockey, Dayton Todd will be on hand to present recorded dance music for the 65 expected couples.

General chairman of the Valentine Ball is Ginger Wallace. She is being assisted by the clean-up committee, composed of Nancy Graves, Lynn Carter, Phyllis Neill and Mary Anna Laing; and the decorating committee composed of Bonnie Decker, Roberta McNeese, Donna Jones and Lillie Shipman. Arrangements for the ceremony honoring the sweethearts are under the direction of Jan Walser and Mardel Robinson.

Tamale Sale To Be Held Saturday

San Pablo United Methodist Church will be holding a tamale sale Saturday from 9 a.m.-6 p.m. at the church, 218 Kibbe St.

The public is invited to support this project, which will provide funds for carpeting the church.

Sponsoring the event are the United Methodist Women of the church.

As a lawyer in 1770, John Adams, later second president of the United States, defended British soldiers who had fired on civilians in the "Boston Massacre."

Vega Advances To 3-A Finals

The Vega High School boys and girls basketball teams captured victories in the first round of the 3-A District Tournament here Thursday night in La Plata Gym.

The Vega teams both won the regular season titles in District 3-A, and both can clinch the playoff berths with triumphs tonight. The tourney is being hosted here by the Hereford School District and Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

The Vega boys scored a 49-39 decision over Springlake-Earth last night as Bobby Arnold and Scotty Cook tallied 33 of the winner's points.

The Longhorns will meet Bovina in the finals tonight at 8:30 p.m. Bovina downed Farwell's Steers by a 10-point spread, 62-52, last night. Harvey Shepherd meshed the nets for 20 points, and Ed Chisom had 17 for Bovina. Richard May hit 16 for the losers.

The Vega girls advanced to the championship match with a lop-sided 51-27 win over Hart. Mason led Vega with 30 points, while Catano had 14 for Hart.

The Longhorn girls will meet Springlake-Earth tonight at 7 p.m. S-Earth scored a close 52-51 overtime win over Bovina last night. Jackson and Keller led the winners with 14 and 13 points, respectively.

Since both Vega teams won the regular-season crowns, they can advance to the playoffs with victories tonight. Should either lose, there would be a playoff Saturday against the winners.

Longshots Stock, Borckink Win Medals

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The pre-Olympic form chart didn't mention young Austrian Leonhard Stock in the men's downhill skiing or Annie Borckink of the Netherlands in women's speed skating because they were longshots who weren't even supposed to be on the track.

But Stock and Borckink own gold medals of the 1980 Winter Games today after conquering challenging events with spectacular performances that could set the tone for this ice and snow sports carnival.

Russian cross-country skier Nikolai Zimjatov also won a gold medal, but hasn't yet received it. There was a massive foulup at the first awards ceremony. The Russians, apparently, didn't get the word as to when and where it was taking place. They didn't appear. No feelings were hurt. Many apologies were made.

There were several disappointments for the United States, relieved only by a surprising fifth-place finish by Pete Patterson in the downhill skiing and a rousing, 7-3 upset hockey victory over favored and second-seeded Czechoslovakia. The American hockey team now has gained three of a possible four points against the two toughest teams in its division.

Beth Heiden and Bill Koch, considered medal hopes in the speed skating and cross country, finished far out of the money. Heiden was seventh in her event and Koch, a silver medalist in the 30 kilometers at Innsbruck in 1976, never finished his race, dropping out with five kilometers to go.

America hoped for better results today when Heiden's brilliant brother, Eric, went after the first of a potential five golds, skating in the 500-meter race. Beth was entered in the women's 500, also on today's schedule.

Figure skating also got underway with Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner beginning their bid to beat defending champions Irina Rodnina and Aleksandr Zaitsev of the Soviet Union in the pairs competition.

Stock, a 21-year-old who almost was left off the Austrian Olympic squad, whipped Whiteface Mountain's physically demanding downhill course, flashing through the 3,009-meter run in 1 minute, 45.50 seconds. That was a half-second faster than teammate

Peter Wirsberger, giving the Austrians a gold-silver sweep in one of the Games' most glamorous events. The third place bronze went to Canada's Steve Podborski in 1:46.62.

Patterson, 23, matched the best American downhill finish in Olympic history, timed in 1:47.04. "This is the best race I've ever had," he beamed, "the best I've ever done."

Borckink, who at age 28 is many years older than most speed skaters, turned in the finest 1,500-meter race of her life to claim the Olympic gold for Holland in 2:10.95. Ria Visser, another Dutch skater, took the silver in 2:12.35 and East Germany's Sabine Becker won the bronze in 2:12.38.

The Soviet Union maintained its mastery of the demanding 30-kilometer cross country event, winning it for the third straight Olympics as Zimjatov, leading from start to finish, delivered the gold in 1 hour, 27 minutes, 2.8 seconds. Teammate Vasily Rochev took the silver in 1:27:34.22 and Bulgaria's Ivan Lebanov won the bronze in 1:28:03.87.

Zimjatov's gold medal was the 50th the Russians have won in Winter Olympic history and gave them the all-time lead over Norway, which has won 49.

In other competition Thursday, East Germany's Dettlef Guenther and Vera Zozulya of the Soviet Union again posted the fastest runs in the men's and women's luge to maintain their leads halfway through that competition. Russia's powerful hockey team scored another one-sided victory, routing Holland 17-4. In other hockey games, West Germany defeated Norway 10-4, Sweden shut out Romania 8-0, Canada took Poland 5-1.

Mark Pavelich, Buzz Schneider and John Harrington combined for three goals and four assists in the big upset of Czechoslovakia before a happy, partisan crowd. The United States now has three out of a possible four points against the top two teams in their division.

Baltimore Oriole pinch-hitters hit .353 in the 1979 World Series.

8th Grade Maverick Girls

The 8th grade La Plata basketball made their way into the district tournament after adding up a district record of 5-4. The Mavericks will play Plainview Blue at 12:30 p.m. Saturday in Plainview. Left to Right FIRST ROW-Teresa Phibbs, Melissa Brumley, Kim Booker, Dallas Ann Phillips, Kristi Lytal. SECOND ROW-Trinetta Bowling, Rene Hubbard, Shonda White, Dana Cabbiness, Vonda Richards. THIRD ROW-Coach Marsha Jones, Laura Thomes, Angela Richburg, Paula Mason, Vanissa Sims. Not pictured include Mgrs. Tina Smith, Kari Maddox, and Julie Patton. Maverick cager Marte Carille was also not pictured.

9th Grade La Plata Squad

After netting a 12-8 overall record and a 7-2 mark in district competition, the 9th grade La Plata basketball team will participate against Plainview Red in the district tourney being held at Dumas Saturday. The game is slated to begin at 11:30 a.m. following the Dumas Canyon Purple clash. LEFT TO RIGHT FIRST ROW are: Tori Self, DeDe Dobbins, Laura Kosub, Allyson Thomas, Viline Dutton. SECOND ROW-Mgr. Carol Estes, Kari Walterscheid, Marilyn Osborn, April Melugin, Michelle Clarke, Mgr. Brooke Taylor. THIRD ROW-Jana Morgan, Nancy Beach, Sherri Ellis, Coach Bob Horton, Stephanie Foster, Holly Veigel, Lisa Cortez.

In 1976, Toby Harrah of the Texas Rangers played a double-header at shortstop without a fielding chance.

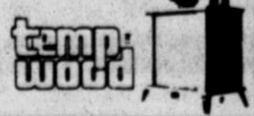

In a 1943 football game, the University of North Carolina permitted Virginia to run the ball only seven times for net gain of five yards.

Some of the fences in the hurdle events in the 1900 Olympics in Paris were made of sawed-off telephone poles.

Junior Colleges, TSTI Give Viable Alternative

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer
High school counselors shooed Robert Krienke off their campuses a decade ago whenever he came around to evangelize on behalf of vocational education.
"Our students go to college," they would snuff.
But as new realities emerged in the 1970s, "their attitude changed from hostile to neutral to very supportive," says Krienke, general manager of Texas State Technical Institute at Waco.

TSTI and junior colleges boomed as tighter family budgets, fewer jobs for college graduates and better opportunities for skilled workers caused many youngsters to seek alternatives to the traditional four-year university education.
State university enrollments grew less than 1 percent this fall while TSTI's four campuses posted a 10 percent gain and the 47 junior college districts had a 3.79 percent increase.

Junior colleges have 241,799 students, almost three times as many as a decade ago. TSTI campuses in Waco, Amarillo, Harlingen and Sweetwater have 5,949 students.
Junior colleges offer a mix of freshman and sophomore university courses and vocational education. They are inexpensive and close to most Texans' homes. Lacking entrance requirements, they also open higher education to students with poor high school records.

"Junior colleges are finding that a disadvantaged academic background does not mean that you are dumb, it does not mean an inability to learn," says Stanton Calvert, director of community college programs for the Texas College Coordinating Board.
A freshman or sophomore also might get better teaching at a junior college than at a university.

"Students are not taught by teaching assistants. They are taught by full-time faculty members, and the quality of instruction is outstanding," says Kenneth Ashworth, state commissioner of higher education.
Created locally, junior colleges get $245.6 million a year from the state, about a fifth of all general revenue appropriations for higher learning. TSTI gets $30.8 million.

Junior college districts, except Austin and Houston, supplement their state money and student tuition with property taxes. Half get more than 67 percent of their income from the state.

In theory, a student who wants a degree can take the freshman and sophomore years at a junior college, then finish at a university or upper-level school.
The Coordinating Board has issued "core curricula" in several fields that are supposed to transfer freely from junior colleges to universities.

"I would have to say it is reported to us that some of the universities are not honoring certain of the core courses," said David Kelley, the board's director of community colleges and continuing education.

The board is trying to learn why and iron out the problems, he said.
Kelley said national studies show that junior college transfers "compare favorably with students who began at a university."

Vocational students don't have to worry about transferring and can expect almost immediate employment at good wages.
TSTI president Maurice Roney says his graduates average three job offers apiece, while some college degrees are not marketable. Between 350 and 400 TSTI-Waco students already have bachelor's degrees.

Average starting salaries for 1979 TSTI graduates included $16,896 for welders; $18,133 for instrumentation technicians; and $16,300 in laser optics.

Students at TSTI-Waco's drab but well-equipped campus — a former Air Force base — average two hours of hands-on experience for every hour of instruction.
A machine shop course for 20 students is backed up by a $10,000 lathe, $10,000 milling machine and $30,000 turret lathe for each student.

Roney says students who attend TSTI — at an estimated cost of $3,435 per year for tuition, room, board and expenses — can expect hard work, with no college-type diversions or snap courses.

Nobody graduates from the FAA-approved aviation mechanic program without understanding the mathematics and physics of flight, and the drop-out rate is 50 percent.
"I told one student, 'Son, you are going to learn what makes that airplane work instead of just working on it.' That theory is very important. If they know the why and the how, they will develop the manipulative skill right along," said instructor Walter Luther.

Other TSTI offerings include pilot training, biomedical equipment technology, dental technician training, computer programming, electronics, livestock and ranch management, nuclear technology, and solar energy technology.

"People used to think this kind of schooling was for people who can't succeed at anything else. That is not the case. We have people who could succeed at anything," Roney says.
For TSTI and the junior colleges, as with higher education generally, money is the biggest headache as they enter the 1980s.

Roney worries about keeping instructors, whose skills would earn more in private industry, and about providing them sabbaticals to keep up with changing technology.

Calvert said junior colleges are vulnerable to taxpayer revolts and could lose state funds as enrollments stabilize.
"A financial squeeze is coming, and it's going to get worse," he said.

South-Central Texas May See Oil Boom

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A new technique allows the recovery of this far irrefutable oil from South and Central Texas, possibly turning that area into the nation's richest oil-producing region, according to research reports and some geologists.

It is estimated that geological formations in that area could yield 10 billion barrels of oil, said by one drilling company executive to be the equivalent of the North Slope of Alaska.
Mason Fargason, president of San Antonio-based Pozo Drilling Co., said oil producers have known for a long time that the Austin Chalk and Buda Limestone formations in the area are saturated with oil.

It has not been economical to recover that oil, he added.
"But the technique known as gaseous explosive fracturing will certainly make it possible to open up the Austin Chalk, so the oil and gas can be recovered," said Fargason.

The chalk formation is a broad band that stretches from Mexico across Texas northeast to Louisiana. A Houston firm and San Antonio-based Southwest Research Institute have undertaken considerable experimentation aimed at recovering that oil.
One SWRI report said the new method is expected "to result in the greatly enhanced oil recovery."

Another SWRI report states there are vast amounts of inaccessible oil deposits elsewhere in the United States that cannot be tapped for want of an effective recovery method.
"Wells which have previously been considered depleted actually require more elaborate techniques to remove the crude reserves," the report said. "Due to the national need for expanded oil production within the continental United States, we find that it is necessary to expedite the production of oil through the use of GEF."

Fargason said federal government figures and estimates by many geologists list the Austin Chalk as having possibly 10 billion barrels of oil. "That's as much as the North Slope of Alaska," he said.
An explosive method was used in Burleson County, where three big wells came in last week, Fargason said. "One is producing 1,500 barrels a day and another is producing more than 1,000," he added.

"This more than proves that by using explosives, much oil and gas can be recovered," Fargason said.
As many as 500 wells might be drilled along a path in the Central Texas area, with reserves reaching near 100 million barrels of oil, said a report by the Texas Independent Producers Association.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Stress affects her colon

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do you have a diet for spastic colon? I've been having pain for years and every time I went to the family doctor he sent me to get kidney X-rays. One time when he checked me over I was so bound up he couldn't even touch me because of the pain. He said that I had had a spastic colon all the time.

I haven't had this pain for awhile but then my husband has been sick and he's been in the hospital. Now I've got the pain in the lower left side again. My doctor said that when I get upset or nervous, this would happen. I don't know if it's because my husband is sick or if he's brought on because I really haven't been eating right. With all this running around with my husband in the hospital and the kids, the pain is really bad right now so if you could help me, I'd really appreciate it.

DEAR READER — Anyone who is having a lot of abdominal pain deserves a medical examination rather than deciding on his or her own exactly what the problem might be.
It's probably true that you are having trouble with a spastic colon since you've been diagnosed as having that problem in the past. And you can probably tell from your bowel habit whether this is so or not.

So I will send you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable or Spastic Colon and Constipation. It will include information that you might be able to use to help you develop a lifestyle to avoid such problems. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Also I would like to suggest that you stop drinking coffee, tea, colas and chocolate. All of these beverages may be irritating to a person who's having digestive problems. Also, they all contain caffeine which can add to your anxiety and nervousness at a time when you're already having too much stress.

If you can adjust your lifestyle in accordance with the recommendations in The Health Letter I'm sending you, you might be able to control a lot of your symptoms although it may not eliminate them entirely.

One of the most important aspects of the program I'm sending you is to include an adequate amount of bulk in your diet. One of the best sources for this is bran as obtained in whole wheat cereals. It may cause you to have an increased amount of gas the first few weeks after you've switched to your diet to include more bulk.

The larger amount of bulk in the colon may cause it to contract in a more rhythmic fashion and be less prone to create spasms for you. But remember I still feel that if you're having a lot of abdominal pain that you deserve a medical examination. To illustrate the problem, some people who appear to have a spastic colon really have an intolerance to milk. These people have the same symptoms as you often get from a spastic colon.

Incidentally, you can't just switch from regular coffee to decaffeinated brands since even those brands may be irritating to a sensitive colon. It is not just the caffeine that is the problem for some people.

Religious Roundup

NEW YORK (AP) — Although it ordinarily doesn't happen, Easter this year will be celebrated by all Christians — Eastern Orthodox, Protestant and Roman Catholic — on the same date, April 6.

Because of varying systems used in calculating the date, Eastern Orthodox churches and Western churches (Roman Catholic and Protestants) usually observe Easter on different dates.
But this year they coincide. All Christians, says Greek Orthodox Archbishop Iakovos, can "truly experience together ... the glory of the one Lord and the one undivided church founded by Christ, on the day we celebrate his resurrection."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer
— Infested with moths —

DEAR POLLY — We are told to use moth balls to keep moths out of our woollens but we are never told what to do if the moths get into them. My entire store room is infested with moths. What will kill them? — MRS. R.M.

DEAR MRS. R.M. — If your entire store room is infested with moths you need to call a pest control service and then make a clean start. Those moths will keep eating and breeding as long as they can find any source of food such as woollens, felt, furs and so on.

Keep these things that have been exposed to the moths away from clothes in other rooms or closets, or they may spread. Moths like dark, warm areas — sun, air and cleanliness are their mortal enemies. Wash, brush, air and shake out any items that might be a good breeding ground. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — To get rid of spiders I put moth crystals in small mesh bags, tape the tops closed and then tape these bags, about three feet apart, across the tops of the outside of the windows. When the crystals evaporate I refill the bags and have not had a spider since I started doing this — MRS. K.F.

DEAR POLLY — The way I keep sheets and bed pads in place in our camper would also work well on a bed at home. I bought two pairs of men's suspenders and took one pair apart and fastened one piece under the foot of the mattress and the other under the top (head) of the mattress. I crossed the other in the center and clipped on both sides of the pad and sheet. No more slipping. — ELOISE

DEAR POLLY — I use a liquid window cleaner to remove spots from my carpet and upholstered furniture. It works great and dries quickly. — C.S.

DEAR C.S. — Thank you. The window cleaner certainly eliminated two brown spots on my light beige carpet that had been marked by so-called brass "casters" on the bottom of chair legs. — POLLY

USOC To Send Carter Its Decision

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—The United States Olympic Committee will pass to President Carter the decision on whether to send a team to the Summer Olympics in Moscow, but it will not formalize any action for another two months.

Robert Kane, president of the USOC, also told a news conference Thursday about the committee's conflicting loyalties—to its country, its athletes and to the Olympic movement.

"Of course the USOC will accept any decision concerning our participation in the Games the president makes, in view of his analysis of what is best for the country."

"We are Americans first, the athletes and us."

Carter has said he will not want a U.S. team to go to the Games if Soviet troops have not started to withdraw from Afghanistan by Wednesday. He said he would not change his mind even if the troops were pulled out before May 24, the date by which the USOC must submit its entry for the Summer Games.

But Kane said the USOC's decision must, for legal reasons, be made by its House of Delegates when it meets at Colorado Springs, Colo., April 11-13. The USOC ultimately must take the action in either sending or not sending a team. It is a separate entity and is not bound by governmental policies. Kane's statement, however, said the USOC will abide by the President's wishes. Kane was asked if the USOC is being pressured by the White House.

Kane smiled. "Of course we are under pressure from the president. But I would like to point out that we share his distress over the site of the Olympic Games being in Moscow when the host country is invading and plundering its next door neighbor."

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said the government will advise British athletes not to go to Moscow.

Kane said he held the hope that something would happen in the meantime to make Moscow "a more appropriate place for a sports festival of peace and international friendship."

He revealed he and Col. F. Don Miller, USOC executive director, talked with Ignaty Novikov, a member of the Soviet Presidium and president of the Olympic organizing committee in Moscow, about the Afghanistan situation and the threat the United States may not participate in the Games.

"We had a feeling that he was going to strive very hard to make the atmosphere more appropriate for the holding of the Games," Kane said. "I understand he is already making attempts to do just that. We hope our U.S. athletes are able to compete."

Kane said regardless of the decisions about participation in the Moscow Games, the USOC is fulfilling its obligations to both the International Olympic Committee, which has rejected Carter's plea to move the Games elsewhere, and to the athletes.

The USOC will not lobby other National Olympic Committees, as requested by Carter, because that would be contrary to IOC rules, Kane said.

It will do its duty to its athletes and continue to prepare and select an Olympic team, whether it goes to Moscow or not, "in order to recognize the athletes who have been training as Olympians."

Kane said the USOC will go ahead with contingency plans for a national games at Colorado Springs, but expressed doubts about an alternate world games in the United States or elsewhere.

"Personally I would be opposed to the USOC being involved in any games that were in competition with the Olympic Games," he said. "Such games would need the approval of the international sports federations, and their principal games are the Olympics."

Kane and Miller appeared before the IOC this week and presented Carter's plea to have the Games moved or cancelled. The IOC rejected the plan and confirmed that the Games will go on in Moscow as planned—a unanimous decision supported by the two U.S. members, Douglas F. Roby and Julian K. Roosevelt. They do not represent the United States on the committee, but are the committee's representatives in the United States.

Miller said the stand taken by Roby and Roosevelt did not embarrass the USOC at all.

"That is what is so great about the United States," Miller said. "Everyone can have their personal opinions."

The XIII Winter Games got under way seriously Thursday. Some IOC members, who came solely for the vital meeting over Moscow and the threatened boycott, left Lake Placid and went home.

There was no sign the IOC planned to do anything more. Lord Killanin, the president, denied newspaper reports that he had talked with Carter on the phone or planned to go to Moscow to see President Brezhnev. The IOC has no further meeting scheduled until the last week before the Games in Moscow.

Rain Delays Tucson

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—What do PGA players do on a rainy day? Mostly, it seems, they sit around the clubhouse and answer questions from reporters—desperate for a story when there is none—about what tour golfers do on a rainy day.

The general response was: Hope for the rain to quit and get on the practice range, or if that fails, watch television or read a book or write a letter or do what anybody else would do when confined indoors.

After morning rain washed out Thursday's opening round of the $300,000 Tucson Open, Larry Ziegler told a handful of players that the driving range at Tucson National had also closed, meaning take the rest of the day off.

The first round was rescheduled for today at the Tucson National course, with a 36-hole finale slated for Sunday. Since the final two rounds of the 72-hole event are scheduled for national television, PGA officials made some adjustments for Sunday's play. The field will be cut to the low 50 golfers and ties after two rounds, instead of the normal qualifying field of 70, and the leaders will tee off first rather than last in order to fit the TV time slot.

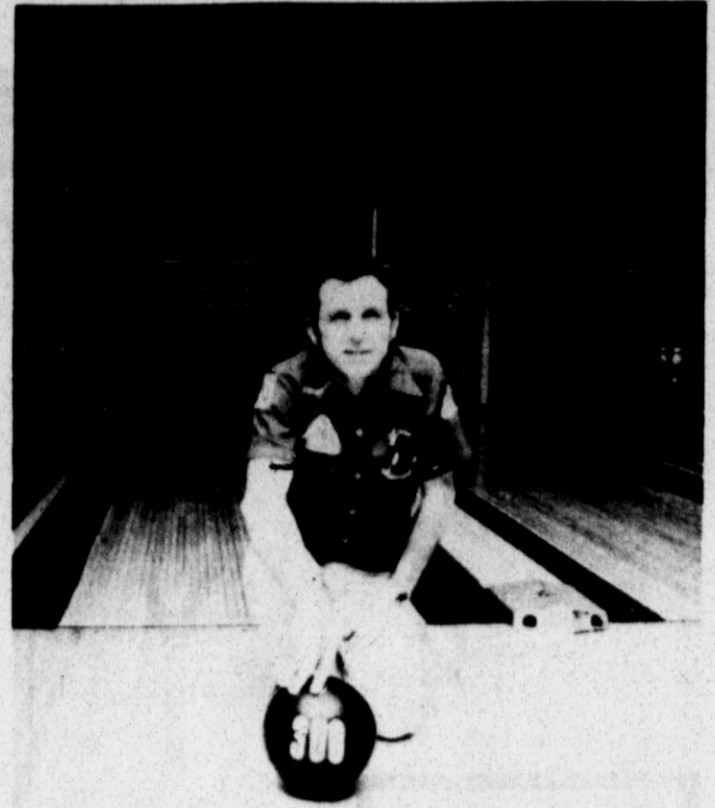

Ironically, this Southwest desert community had a stretch of warm, sunshine-filled days, but that ended when the golf tour arrived. Wednesday's program portion of the tournament was rained out, and it drizzled early Thursday, then finally poured again at mid-morning, halting play after only 66 players of the 144-man field had teed off.

The rain changes the character of the par-73 Tucson National layout, which plays 7,095 yards. The course recently had been redesigned to favor shotmaking, but the moisture gives the advantage back to the long hitters.

"The fellows who are long off the tee, and there are a bunch of them now, will have the edge now that the course is wet," said the veteran Art Wall, one of those killing time in the clubhouse after the first-round rainout.

"That means fellows like Andy Bean."

Bean is the Tucson Open co-favorite with Lee Trevino, but a wet course would give an edge to the long-hitting Bean, winner by three strokes over Trevino in the Hawaiian Open last weekend.

North Carolina Edges Rutgers

NEW YORK (AP)—For a while there, New York City looked like Upset City to North Carolina and Notre Dame.

There was Rutgers leading the 11th-ranked Tar Heels by five points at the half. And there was Fordham ahead of the 12th-ranked Fighting Irish by eight at intermission.

The expected outcomes eventually materialized at Madison Square Garden Thursday night, but not before the underdogs had their bite of glory in the Big Apple.

Especially Rutgers. "Playing North Carolina and playing in the Garden helped us get up for the game," said Rutgers Coach Tom Young after his team's 73-70 overtime loss to North Carolina. "But we're still a young team and our youth hurt us down the stretch."

The Tar Heel victory came in the first game of a doubleheader, preceding Notre Dame's hard-fought 86-76 victory over a sky-high Fordham team.

Losing 37-32 at the half, the Tar Heels got moving after intermission behind Mike O'Koren, who scored 15 of his game-leading 24 points in the second half. The Tar Heels appeared to have the game wrapped up in the last few seconds, but then Daryl Strickland hit a long-distance shot at the buzzer to send the contest into overtime, tied at 67.

"I thought we had the game won in regulation," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "We played good defense at the end, and I know that Rutgers didn't get the shot they wanted."

Strickland's shot set the stage for a low-scoring overtime and Smith's team finally put the Scarlet Knights down with the help of Dave Colescott's go-ahead basket with 2:35 left.

"Down the stretch, we didn't play like a normal Carolina team plays," added Smith. "We just played good enough to win."

Notre Dame was not up to its usual standard of play, either, allowing Fordham to hold a 37-29 lead at the half. But the Irish were a dramatically different team in the second half behind the inspired play of Orlando Woolridge and Kelly Tripucka.

Woolridge scored 12 of his 23 points to key an 18-6 burst at the start of the second half that propelled Notre Dame into a 47-43 lead with 13:46 remaining. The Irish held their advantage the rest of the way, several times taking 12-point leads.

"Orlando really turned it on in the second half," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps. "And we played a great second half of basketball. We needed this win to carry us the rest of the season."

Fordham Coach Tom Penders, struggling through a desultory 9-14 season, saw a lack of inspiration in his team after intermission.

"The halftime hurt us," said Penders. "We had the momentum going in the first half, and the intermission sort of slowed us down a little. I was worried about a Notre Dame flurry that would take us out of the game—and sure enough, it happened in the second half."

While North Carolina and Notre Dame managed to stave off upsets, two other Top 20 teams weren't so lucky, as No. 9 Ohio State was shocked by Minnesota 74-70 and No. 15 Purdue lost a 57-54 decision to Northwestern.

Elsewhere, third-ranked Louisville stopped West Virginia 90-78; fourth-ranked Oregon State turned back Washington 82-73; No. 17 Weber State defeated Nevada-Reno 57-55 and No. 20 Indiana trimmed Iowa 66-55.

Kevin McHale scored 20 points and Mark Hall sank seven free throws in the final two minutes to lead Minnesota's upset of Ohio State. Mike Campbell scored 21 points, including a free throw with 13 seconds left, to lead Northwestern over Purdue. Darrell Griffith scored a career-high 35 points to pace Louisville over West Virginia.

Mark Radford's 19 points triggered Oregon State over Washington. David Johnson scored 20 points, including two free throws with four seconds remaining, to seal Weber State's triumph over Nevada-Reno. Indiana beat Iowa as Butch Carter hit three key baskets in the closing minutes.

Knicks Rebound Past San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—New York Knicks coach Red Holzman summed up his team's narrow 128-124 victory over the San Antonio Spurs by saying the Knicks' rebounding made the difference.

The visitors pulled down 27 points off the boards, statistics showed, as the Knicks piled up a 53-40 edge in rebounds in Thursday night's National Basketball Association game.

Toby Knight and Ray Williams were the catalysts in the New York triumph.

Knight tallied 12 of his 32 points and Williams 9 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter.

The Knicks also got double-figure scoring from three other players—Bill Cartwright with 30, Joe Meriweather with 18 and Michael Richardson with 17.

Knight had 9 rebounds and Cartwright 8 for the Knicks.

The Spurs also had five players in double digits. George Gervin led the way with 32 points, as James Silas hit 26, Larry Kenon 24, John Shumate 16 and Kevin Restani 11.

The lead changed hands 35 times and the game was tied on 29 occasions before a short jumper by Williams with 1:10 left in the game put the Knicks ahead to stay.
