

Moisture-Stressed Crops Get Boost From Rainfall

By JIM STEIERT
Brand Farm Editor

With some good moisture available to them from rains that fell over a wide area earlier this week, Deaf Smith County's corn, milo and sugar beet crops continue to make excellent progress in their growth toward maturity.

MANY FIELDS OF grain and sugar beets had been suffering some moisture stress prior to the storms early this week, but the cool, soaking showers which fell in the wee hours of Tuesday morning went a long way towards alleviating that problem.

Heavy rains which fell at a rapid rate Monday also contributed to the local moisture total, but for the most part, come too fast to allow crops to soak up much of the moisture which went spilling off the fields.

Calvin Jones, assistant agriculturalist at Holly Sugar Corporation's Merrill E. Shoup Plant here reported that beets are growing well, with only minor problems encountered thus far.

"Some of our growers were short on water and a little behind on their irrigation program prior to the rains," said Jones. "We do have some powdery mildew still present in a few fields and growers need to keep up their control program for this problem, in addition to control measures for leaf spot," he added.

ACCORDING TO JONES, leafhoppers, which brought on a serious curly top infestation in the beet crop last year, have not yet made an appearance this growing season.

Some local vegetable processors shut down potato packing operations earlier this week, due to muddy fields, and many were "in between" packing early maturing onions and onions which come off at a later date.

A spokesman at Dick Barrett Produce here indicated that his shed was processing potatoes grown in the Clovis and Springlake area, and had been able to continue working without shutting down due to wet fields.

Locally grown produce was reported to be making reasonably good yields, but the market for spuds is still leaving much to be desired.

THE POTATO MARKET was reported at $3.75 to $4 per cwt. for Norgold variety white potatoes this week.

"A few growers are breaking even right now, depending on how much they put into growing their crop, but I don't think there are any growers actually making anything," the Barrett spokesman said.

Locally grown corn has already tasseled out for the most part and is in the ear-forming and grain developing stages.

Numerous fields of corn were curling up slightly in the hot weather which proceeded this week's rain, but the moisture got most fields over their hurt, and the rapidly growing crop continues to progress.

THE NEMESIS OF the High Plains corn crop, the Southwestern Corn Borer, is reported to be in the second generation stage in most area fields, and most growers are in the middle of their borer control programs utilizing Sevimol or Furadan to control the pests.

Fields of milo are rapidly approaching or have already reached the heading stage, and greenbugs reportedly infested some fields, although the heavy rains may have helped eliminate some of these pests.

Jesse Owens Awarded Medal

WASHINGTON (AP) - Olympic hero Jesse Owens has been awarded a Medal of Freedom by President Ford, who told the 1936 track and field champion that "your character, your achievement, always will be a source of inspiration."

Owens, the black athlete who outraged Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler by winning four gold medals in the Berlin Olympics 40 years ago, was given the nation's highest civilian honor at ceremonies in the White House east garden on Thursday.

Abbie Hoffman Gets Job

NEW YORK (AP) - Crawdaddy magazine wants to send a check to its new travel editor for payment for his first article. Trouble is, they don't know where to reach travel editor Abbie Hoffman.

Hoffman, the fugitive founder of the Yippie movement, has been keeping one step ahead of the law since jumping bail in April 1974 while awaiting trial as an accused cocaine dealer.

In its July issue, Crawdaddy printed a letter purporting to be from Hoffman, asking if he could be the rock music magazine's travel editor.

"Figuring he was kidding ... we agreed to put his name on the masthead in the same issue," the magazine said. "Apparently Abbie bought or stole a copy of Crawdaddy, saw what we had done, and decided to take his job seriously."

Hoffman's first article, about Hollywood, appears in the current issue and is titled "Shoot-out in Tinseltown."

Health Officials Optimistic

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) - Health officials are optimistic that the explosive outbreak of "legionnaire's disease" may have run its course. The source is still unknown, but swine flu and other influenza viruses have been all but ruled out.

Cease-Fire Survives War

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Christians claimed conquest of the moslem slum of Nabaa today, but the latest cease-fire in the Lebanese civil war appeared to have survived the battle.

Leftist newspapers accused the right-wing Christian militias of "perpetrating a massacre" at Nabaa, saying the moslem district in Christian-held eastern Beirut had been "turned into a skeleton ... with bomb holes gaping in buildings and corpses littering the alleyways."

School Trustees To Act On Handbook Today

The Hereford School Board of Trustees has scheduled a called meeting at 4 p.m. today at the central office of the school district.

The agenda states that the trustees will consider action on the proposed student handbook for the 1976-66 academic year, approve personnel changes and convene in closed session to review more applications for superintendent and possibly interview its sixth prospect.

The application specifies a deadline of today for applications to be submitted for the position left vacant when Roy Hartman resigned the superintendent's job in June to accept one in the Grapevine school district.

Today's open session is the first one held over the last three meetings of the trustees. They have been meeting in closed session to consider the applications.

Larry Wartes, assistant superintendent, has been acting superintendent for the last two weeks. He said school is progressing well with all plans in motion for the first days of classes on Thursday, Aug. 19.

Thieves Take

Money, Lawnmower

Burglars took a rare $2 bill and a silver dollar which was mounted in plastic from the home of Mrs. Tom Carroll at 511 McKinley Thursday.

According to police reports, the burglars gained entry through a rear window.

The thieves also took a transistor radio and went through the house, but nothing else was reported missing.

Bob Hammock of 323 Ave. K discovered Thursday that his lawnmower had been stolen from the back yard of his residence. Police were unsure just when the theft occurred, and no estimate of value was available on the lawnmower.

Unemployment Rate Hits 7.8 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Unemployment increased for the second month in a row in July, rising from 7.5 to 7.8 per cent, and leaving more people out of work than at any time in the past seven months, the government said today.

At the same time, however, the Labor Department said about 400,000 more people found jobs in July, pushing total employment to a record 87.9 million.

But the pickup in hiring since the recession has apparently lured into the job market thousands of workers, particularly adult women, who hadn't bothered to look for a job when times were tight.

The number of people without jobs in July rose 280,000 to 7.4 million, the most since 7.8 million couldn't find work in December. The 7.8 per cent unemployment was the highest since an identical level in January.

The 7.5 per cent unemployment rate in June was an increase over the 7.3 per cent level in May. The June-July increases represent a threat to the administration's projections that unemployment will slip below 7 per cent by December.

There were fewer people unemployed in January than there are now, but the unemployment rates were the same because the labor force is constantly growing.

The work force has grown by 2.3 million, or 2.5 per cent, in the past year. Part of that is accounted for by normal population growth, but the rate is far above the eight-tenths of a per cent growth in the total population last year.

The bulk of the growth in the labor force has been among adult women, even though they represent less than a third of the total work force. The percentage of working-age women at work or seeking a job has risen to 47.4 per cent from 46.1 per cent a year ago.

The number of women in the work force has traditionally been considered a sign of the pressure families feel for the beefing up of their incomes. And economists still consider that to be a factor, but in recent years demographers have found a surge in women's work force participation rates unrelated to underlying economic conditions.

The unemployment rate for adult women in July was 7.6 per cent, up from 7.1 per cent in June. Adult male unemployment was 6.1 per cent, compared to 6 per cent the previous month.

Unemployment among household heads climbed to 5.4 per cent from 5.1 per cent.

Unemployment among blacks and teenagers improved, but analysts said the rates remain so high that the change isn't likely to signal any dramatic improvement. Unemployment among teen-agers slipped to 18.1 per cent from 18.4 per cent. Among blacks the rate fell from 13.3 per cent to 12.9 per cent.

One-Man Cab Company Here Specializes In Helping Elderly

Unique

Jack Drye, shown here with his one-cab fleet, is always on the alert for danger situations as he makes his rounds each day. Drye says he

By BOB NIGH
Brand Staff Writer

"I help elderly people mostly. I know I'll be one someday." With those words Jack Drye, owner and driver of Hereford's one-car taxi company summed up his philosophy as a cab driver.

The 52-year-old Drye has owned the Hereford Cab Company for three years, having bought the firm from Bernie Kerens, also of Hereford.

Drye, with help from his wife Bernell and dispatcher-bookkeeper Lois Clinard, operates the small business which caters to some 20 calls per day on the average. "Of course that's just a guess on the number of calls," Drye said as he talked about his work day that begins at 4:30 a.m. and continues to 11 p.m., seven days a week.

IN ADDITION TO DRIVING the cab Drye also said he runs errands, makes deliveries, buys groceries, and does small odd jobs for many of his customers.

"I specialize in elderly people... and pay very special attention to them," he reiterated.

Licensed by the city for his work Drye covers the greater Hereford area, charging his customers by zones. He charges $1.50 for transportation in what he calls zone one—the area encompassed in the triangular area bounded by Park Street, Hwy 60, and Hwy 385.

For the rest of the city, or zone two, Drye charges $1.75. "For trips out of the city I usually charge two dollars," he said.

Those out of town trips often include treks to liquor stores just over the county line, along with occasional jobs to Amarillo, he revealed.

"On Fridays and Saturdays I sometimes make six or seven trips to the liquor stores," Drye said with a laugh. "For those trips I charge $6," he added.

DRYE SAID HIS BUSINESS has begun to pick up a little lately, and he depends on about 12 regular local customers to bid him over when it slacks off.

"There are some people I take to King's Manor, to Westgate, and to buy groceries each week," he said. One of his shortest fares each week is a local lady whom he takes to the store just three blocks away from her home.

His longest fares are trips to the Amarillo airport, and he claims six persons as the largest number of people he has transported at one time. All coming into town from the local airport.

When just cruising around town Drye always keeps his eyes open for automobile accidents or fires. "When I see a wreck of fire I call the dispatcher and have her call in to see if it has been reported," he said.

DRYE'S MOST UNUSUAL fare was probably the time he received a call from a lady who said she had to get to the hospital due to an emergency.

"I called the police to see if they could help better than I could, but she refused to go with them and said she wanted to ride in a cab," he explained.

"We asked her if she was going to have a baby, and she said 'No, my daughter is,'" he said with a laugh as he completed the story.

As far as trouble goes, Drye said he has never been approached by a would-be robber, and that he keeps away from large dogs. "I just sit in my car and honk the horn until they run off," he said.

He also reported that he gets a crank or false call once in a while, and that he checks them all out. Recently he was kept extra busy by a youngster who kept calling in false fares.

"The kid called in about $35 worth of false calls before I finally located him by having his calls traced," Drye revealed. "His father paid for the time I had lost, so it all worked out, though," he added.

Ford Hunts VP Running Mate; Reagan Scrambles for Delegates

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford is hunting for a vice presidential candidate but Republican challenger Ronald Reagan, who already found one, is busy hunting convention delegates in his running mate's home state.

Presidential spokesman Ron Nessen has confirmed that Ford will wait until after the GOP convention in Kansas City to name a running mate. But he said Ford has expanded the list of Republicans whose advice he will consider in making that choice.

The President sent letters to 350 GOP mayors and elected local officials Thursday to ask their views on a vice presidential nominee. He already had asked the opinions of all 4,518 delegates and alternates to the convention, all Republican members of the Senate and House and some high-ranking party leaders.

Meanwhile, Reagan and his running mate, Sen. Richard Schweiker, head into Pennsylvania today hoping to add to the six new delegates they picked up in New York and New Jersey Thursday.

The joint campaigning effort won the pledged support for Reagan from two delegates in New York and four in New Jersey. But the former California governor still trails Ford in an Associated Press delegate survey, with neither candidate having a 1,130 delegates needed for nomination.

Ten days before the convention's starts, Ford has 1,100 delegates to Reagan's 1,035. The AP total counts only those delegates publicly stating a preference or legally bound—not those leaning toward a candidate.

Pennsylvania now stands 76 for Ford, 10 for Reagan and 17 uncommitted. The uncommitted delegates are prime targets of the Reagan-Schweiker hunt, but Schweiker says he feels Pennsylvania's support of the President may be eroding. In campaigning with Schweiker in Mississippi, New York and New Jersey, Reagan has claimed that adding the liberal Schweiker to the conservative Reagan team boosted the campaign.

"I'm very optimistic. I don't believe we lost support any place," he said Thursday. He said Schweiker's selection "was aimed at November, not August."

Schweiker added: "We believe this is the only kind of base that can beat Jimmy Carter." He said the Democratic ticket of Carter and Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota would beat a GOP ticket headed by Ford.

A possible running mate on the Ford ticket, former Texas Gov. John Connally, said Thursday it would be "difficult" for him to turn down an invitation to run with the President.

Economics Slows Pace Of United States Labor Market

WASHINGTON (AP)—A slowed rate of economic growth is the underlying sluggishness in the labor market, but economists say productivity advances and growth in the number of people looking for work are contributing to the situation.

The Labor Department's report on the July employment situation is due out today, with economists reluctant to guess which way it will go. They say a rise in unemployment is possible, and that any improvement for the month probably wouldn't be too dramatic.

Unemployment in June stood at 7.5 per cent, not too far below the 7.8 per cent level of January.

The Ford administration has predicted unemployment of less than 7 per cent by December. But administration economists were somewhat confounded in June when the unemployment rate reversed a steady decline and edged upward by two-tenths of 1 per cent from 7.3 per cent in May.

The number of Americans holding jobs advanced to a June record, but the number of unemployed swelled to the 7.14 million level. And that was the largest number of people out of work since January when 7.29 million were unemployed.

The growth rate in the economy was cut in half in the second quarter of this year and goes a long way toward explaining why unemployment didn't improve much over the first six months of the year. But John W. Kendrick, chief economist of the Commerce Department, says the job picture is being complicated by above-average growth in both productivity and labor force.

Productivity, or the volume of goods or services produced per hour worked, traditionally rises during an economic recovery. Employers use their most efficient facilities when they're running at less than full capacity, as they are now. And they wait until they are getting the most out of those already at work, usually preferring to pay overtime before calling furloughed workers back.

Kendrick noted that early this year productivity was 5 per cent ahead of a year ago, which is slightly above average.

Even more dramatic, however, he said, has been the growth in the number of people looking for work compared with previous recoveries at a similar stage.

It's not unusual that during a recession some workers simply drop out of the labor force, if for no other reason than they feel looking for a job is hopeless. Then, when things pick up, they're back out knocking on doors and swelling the ranks of the unemployed.

Kendrick's computations show that this phenomenon, along with normal population growth, had pushed up the size of the civilian labor force by 3 per cent since the low point in the recession. The average labor force growth in other recoveries at this point in their development was 1.3 per cent, he said.

TULE ELK

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—The arrival of a cattle truck bearing 18 tule elk at San Luis National Wildlife Refuge recently signaled the return of these rare members of the deer family after an absence of almost a century to their ancestral home in the northern San Joaquin Valley.

Prior to their transfer to San Luis Refuge, they had lived in a pen at the San Diego Wild Animal Park.

Once widespread in California's Great Central Valleys, the tule elk came near extermination under the guns of meat hunters in the late 1800s.

The present population of the elk in the whole world is estimated at a little over 500.

Sea Nettle Research Has Multiple Goals

By NORMAN BLACK Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP)—One University of Maryland researcher's outlook for sea nettles this year is good. That's bad for humans. But another researcher's outlook is also good, and that might some day save lives.

The two researchers are David G. Cargo, a 51-year-old associate with the Chesapeake Biological Laboratory, and Dr. Joseph W. Burnett, a specialist in dermatology with the University of Maryland School of Medicine.

Their work, which continues despite an ever-present lack of funds, involves a three-pronged scientific attack on what to most people is nothing but a nuisance.

The poisonous sea nettle has caused problems for residents of the Chesapeake Bay area at least since colonial times. They sting swimmers, water skiers and watermen, clog boat engines and factory pumps, and work their slimy way into fishing nets and crab pots. And Cargo, who is responsible for monitoring the jellylike, tentacled creatures, thinks the temperature and salinity of the bay this summer will bring the nettles out in force.

A bumper crop of nettles can mean millions of dollars a day in lost revenue to Maryland and Virginia resorts and watermen, so Cargo's prediction will not make many people happy.

But when Burnett predicts "an antivenom, topical agent and theoretically, control" of nettles, the outlook brightens.

Each sea nettle has a blob-like top, six or seven inches in diameter, and about 50 tentacles ranging from four to six feet long. In those tentacles the nettle stores its sting.

Burnett and others are convinced that when a nettle comes in contact with a human, it fires a tiny dart at great speed with a small dose of one of many toxins.

"Man is an inadvertent victim," Burnett says, "so the question becomes, 'Is it possible to change man's response?'"

After seven years of studying the nettle's anatomy, Burnett thinks the answer is yes. "His work is now at the stage of extracting and refining the nettle's toxin for injection into test animals and the subsequent production of antibodies.

While there is no documented evidence that the sting of a nettle has ever proven fatal, Burnett's research could some day prove life saving on two fronts.

First, the sea nettle is related to the sea wasp, a rare animal found off the shores of Australia that kills two or more people every year. Outside Maryland, the only research comparable to that of Burnett's is being conducted by Australians.

Secondly, in working with the nettle toxin, Burnett and another researcher found it had much the same effect on a dog's heart as digitalis, a drug given humans suffering from congestive heart failure.

"We found it had an effect on the transport of calcium, which is needed for nerve and muscle transport in the heart," Burnett explained. "It definitely affects calcium transport, much like digitalis. While I can't say now exactly where that will lead us, it's got to be an important discovery."

Burnett does not set a timetable for development of a vaccine or toxoid, nor does he foresee a mass immunization program once it is developed.

"We might help solve the problem of bay watermen, or divers in Florida or the Australians with a vaccine," he said. "But there's no reason why we couldn't come up with some topical agent, or ointment, to be applied after a person is stung."

"We know now that we're not just going to get rid of the nettle," Burnett added. "The third part of our program is the possibility of using jet streams of water or other methods to keep them away from swimmers."

"And it could be just a matter of delaying their life cycle—six weeks would do it for bay swimmers. But I can theoretically see control."

Ann Baumgartner Carl, then a California test pilot, was the first American woman to fly a jet airplane. In 1953, she piloted an experimental twin-engine jet.

UNDERSTANDING MENTAL HEALTH

Furnished by the Hereford Family Services Center

Today there are a number of modern methods for treating mental or emotional disorders. The following are some examples. Short-term psychotherapy is used when the problem seems to be one brought on by some event or episode in life, such as a death in the family, divorce, or physical illness. Even good news can sometimes cause a severe upset. A job promotion or a move to a better home are good examples. The goal of the therapist is simply to help iron out the problem as quickly as possible. Usually, this takes only a few visits.

In family therapy the whole family is interviewed to help determine the root cause of a problem. Perhaps a son needs to be with his father who is unavailable in the evenings. A mother may be spending too much time worrying about things that would be less of a problem if she could see them in a different way. If the family therapist can lead the family members to see each other in a new light, then their behavior toward one another can improve, and their problems begin to fade.

Group therapy takes place when a small group of people gather to discuss their problems with each other under the guidance of a therapist. Directions, offers advice if needed, and points out things the group members might otherwise miss.

One form of group therapy is called psychodrama. By playing a role—such as father or brother, sister or mother—and making up the part, one can discover personal feelings and reactions to others that were unknown before treatment.

Group Pushes Greek Feminist Cause

By PAUL ANASTASSIADES Associated Press Writer

ATHENS (AP)—Working out of a one-room ground floor office in downtown Athens a largely American-led international women's liberation group is developing into a potential steering force for the infant Greek feminist movement.

Called the "Multinational Women's Liberation Group of Athens," it has about 100 active members who have established organizational links with feminist groups in North and South America, Western Europe, Australia and New Zealand.

It all began with the launching of International Women's Year in January 1975.

"It started with a children's party when a few of the mothers present got a chance to exchange views," says Becky Sakelariou, 31, of Framingham, Mass. "We wanted no leadership figure and followers, but structure and organization eventually became inevitable."

The self-financed body now has a library, publishes a newsletter, offers advice, is divided into "action groups," committees and forums, holds classes and has debated with antifeminists over the U.S. Air Force radio station here.

It describes its main objective as "consciousness raising" for women, and classes so far have included such varied themes as rape, violence, motherhood, abortion, guilt, jealousy and body image.

"Sensitivity towards one another and awareness is our main difference from nonfeminist women," adds Miss Sakelariou. "We have discarded jealousy and petty competitions, awareness of what we must and must not do and say in society. The feeling of freedom is fantastic."

Sandy Vouyoukalou, a sociologist of Perth, Western Australia, stresses that the group's main difference with the Greek feminist organizations is that it is nonpolitical. She charges, however, that a recently established Greek constitutional provision stating equality of men and women is "without content both in law and practice," and says Greek feminist political action is necessary.

She says the group "wants to fit into women's activities here without becoming a nuisance," and disclaims any intention of assuming a leadership role for the Greek feminist movement.

But Lena Doukidou, one of the foremost writers here on Greek feminism, says the international group "is by far the most advanced in its outlook and experience, and will inevitably cause much influence at least."

The group, open to Greek membership as well, has invited Greek feminists for discussions, and has met with woman parliamentarian and former American citizen Virginia Tsouderou, perhaps the foremost advocate of women's rights here.

But the group's most ambitious and exhaustive project has undoubtedly been a study of "schoolbook sexism," the conclusions of which are being passed on to British and American schoolteachers here and to Greek feminists.

Some of the group's members are now writing children's books for Greek schools.

Dig up the facts—that way there's no room for doubt.

Farwell Coffee Honors Mrs. Frye

Mrs. Charles Frye was honored at a farewell coffee Thursday morning in the home of Mrs. W.E. Sparks with Mrs. Dean Herring serving as co-hostess. Mrs. Frye will be moving with her family to San Antonio.

Mrs. Roger Williams and Mrs. Alex Schroeter served refreshments of pigs in a blanket, cinnamon coffee cake, fruit, coffee and punch from the table laid with a cloth over pink. The centerpiece consisted of an arrangement of pink carnations, white chrysanthemums and maroon straw flowers. Guests included members of the La Madre Mia Study Club in which the honoree has been a member for 18 years and a local bridge group.

They were Meses G.C. Merritt Jr., Bobby Owens, Craig Smith, Bud Synder, Charles Watson, Williams, Butch White, Gerald Martin, Clinton Allred, Waldo Baxter, Dickie Gerles, Don Lane Schroeter, Dwayne Walker, Dennis Lomas, Dave Hopper and Bud Eades.

New Resident Is Pleased With Friendly Hereford

A new pretty face in Hereford is Mrs. Lanny Smith of 401 Sycamore Lane who has been a Hereford resident one month. She remarked that one thing she has really learned to appreciate is the availability of fresh fruits and vegetables, and the fact that shopping is excellent for a town this size.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, who moved here recently from Lindsay, Oklahoma, a town of about 5,000, have two sons, Kerry, eight, and Mark, five. They have been enrolled in the Summer Reading Program at Deaf Smith County Library.

They are members of Central Church of Christ and Lanny is employed by the Hereford Brand.

Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Eucler of Summerfield will celebrate their 50th anniversary August 9.

Friends and relatives are invited to a reception in their honor from 2-4 p.m. Sunday in the home of their son J.R. Eucler of Summerfield.

No invitations will be mailed and the family requests cards or personal notes be sent instead of gifts.

Also serving as host are the couple's daughters and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry day of Tucson, Ariz., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tiffany of Questa N.M. Also present at the reception will be their children, Darryl, Deanne, and Daureen Day and Bruce and Tom Tiffany. Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Eucler's children Lesley, Mrs. Wayne Barber and David will be present along with their spouses and great-grandchild, Cheri Eucler. Mrs. Eucler's sister, Mrs. Wayne Patterson of El Paso will also join the family.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Saw you on the Tonight Show with Barbara Walters hosting in place of Johnny Carson. You really are a nifty dancer but then, Ray Bolger could make anybody look good.

I loved your white dress with the rows of fringe. Did you make it yourself?

I have also seen your sister, Dear Abby, on the Tonight Show, and she, too, is darling. But I wish you girls would keep your mouths shut.

What in the world is wrong with your voices? You both have the same speech impediment. You could both use a good speech therapist. Have you ever heard a playback of yourselves? That rasping, irritating nasal twang CAN be corrected. Please don't blame it on Iowa. I was raised in Des Moines and I don't sound as if I am talking through two sets of false teeth.

Someone should level with you, and your best friend Barbara Walters won't because she doesn't sound a hell of a lot better. Sign Me--Sore Ears From Houston Who Tells It Like It Is.

DEAR EARS: Thanks for your warm comments. Glad you like my dress. No, I didn't make it myself. Bill-Blass deserves the credit.

As for that rasping, irritating, nasal twang--nobody's perfect. In the meantime, Barbara Walters will soon be making a million claims a year with her "impediment." Eat your heart out, Houston.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was disturbed by the reply you gave the 11-year-old girl who asked if she could get pregnant before she started to menstruate. You said no.

I'm a registered nurse who works in labor-delivery. I've cared for four 11- and 12-year-olds who became pregnant before the onset of their periods. These girls happened to have intercourse at the time of their first ovulation and got caught. Please change your answer. It would be awful if that youngster started to fool around because of you.

A similar occurrence is the new mother who gets pregnant before her six-week check up, assuming she is "safe" because she has not resumed her menstrual cycle.

Accepting Yourself Without the ability to accept yourself you can hardly accept another person.

The volunteer (or any friend, for that matter) must realize that he will have both positive and negative feelings toward his Little Brother or Little Sister.

It is often hard for us as adults to admit that we have negative feelings toward kids. As a Big Brother or Big Sister you are labeled as being a giving, caring and helping human being. Then you are matched with a Little Brother or Little Sister who makes unreasonable demands, rejects you and wipes ice cream on your car upholstery! It is at this point that you must not deny your angry feelings.

These feelings should be experienced and expressed without a negative evaluation of your Little Brother or Little Sister as a person. You might say, "I am really mad about my car being messed up". Avoid a personal attack. "I despise you".

Recognize what's going on inside you. As one great philosopher once said, "Let it all hang out", but make sure it's pointed at behavior and objects, not at a little person.

Develop Good In-Law Relations

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a four-part series concerning in-law relationships. Part one deals with the importance of beginning to get along with in-laws even before marriage.

Good in-law relations begin long before marriage--on both sides Debby Johnson, a family life education specialist, points out.

"Studies show that couples who have had frequent positive interactions with their prospective in-laws have a greater tendency to develop satisfactory relationships during marriage," she added.

Miss Johnson is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Couples generally find that if their parents approve of their future spouse, good in-law relationships will result.

"Also, research indicates that when parents do not approve of their child's future spouse, relations with the son- or daughter-in-law are more likely to be strained and tense," she said.

Parents may disapprove of their child's future spouse because of his family background--different religion, educational attainment, occupational potential, social class differences and personality traits, she said.

While research is contradictory in this area, it indicates that when couples are not from similar family backgrounds, conflicts with in-laws are more difficult to resolve, she reported.

"Because in-laws constitute a major area of marital adjustment establishing harmonious relations before marriage is important--particularly for couples and in-laws who will live near each other. And parents-in-law can help start things off right by being fair, honest and cooperative with their son- or daughter-in-law.

"In-laws need not be a source of conflict for the couple or the parents. The support and guidance from the other can strengthen the marriage as it progresses through the years.

"More is to be gained by the old rule of 'give and take' than resentment, bitterness and jealousy," Miss Johnson reminded.

Food comes first--a recent poll showed the high cost of food ranked first on the list of public concern. Crime and nutrition specialist with the violence, inflation, high cost of medical care, high cost of gasoline, corruption in govern-

RECIPE ORANGE SPREAD

1/2 cup soft type margarine
1/2 cup confectioners' sugar
1/2 cup frozen Texas orange juice concentrate, thawed and undiluted

Blend margarine and sugar together. Gradually add orange juice concentrate, stirring until blended. Serve on waffles, pancakes, biscuits, toast or rolls. Yield: 1/2 cup spread.

RUBY RED MARMALADE

2 cups Texas Ruby Red grapefruit juice and sections
1/2 cup Texas orange juice
5 cups water
5-5 1/2 cups sugar
1 tsp. salt

Combine grapefruit juice and sections, orange juice and water. Boil for approximately 40 minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Boil rapidly for approximately 30 minutes or until mixture thickens to consistency of marmalade. Pack in sterilized canning jars. Yield: approximately 1-1/2 to 2 quarts.

Faith dispels Our Fears about the future

The future is something we view with alarm,
When we think what tomorrow might bring;
For we all are concerned with our safety from harm
That could come from some terrible thing.
Yet through faith and your Church you develop a trust,
Then the future can bring what it may;
For you'll learn through each lesson that will be discussed
That the Lord will protect you today.
So, forget all those things that may never appear,
Such as poverty, sickness or crime;
You can go all through life and have nothing to fear,
If you'll live it one day at a time!

Judge's Won-Lost Record Deceives

BIG LAKE, Tex. (AP) - The Regan County attorney says he hasn't lost a case before a county court jury since 1972. But he hasn't won any either. He says he simply hasn't had the opportunity to try any.

Jack P. Schulze, the attorney for this Far West Texas county, said Thursday that County Judge W.T. Mills has refused since 1972 to set criminal misdemeanor cases for trial.

Schulze said he's asked the Texas Judicial Council to investigate Judge Mills.

Earlier this year, said Schulze, his office dismissed 200 cases dating back to 1968 because they were "too old to prosecute."

Schulze said he has 50 cases on the docket now "ready to go to court tomorrow" in this county of 3,300 residents.

Schulze did acknowledge, however, that Judge Mills will take an occasional guilty plea.

Judge Mills refused comment.

Schulze said, "As a result of the stagnant administration of the court docket, the defendant goes free without having to appear in court, the county loses revenue from fines which could be levied, there is a general loss of respect for the court system, the prosecutor is unable to properly function without a forum for the determination of guilt or innocence, justice is not served and the crime rate continues to rise."

CHINS Cause Hell for YTC

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Youth Council director Ron Jackson says a group of youngsters called CHINS are "causing us unmitigated hell."

CHINS stands for Children in Need of Supervision—kids who have been in lots of trouble but who have not been declared delinquent by a court.

Jackson appeared before budget examiner for the legislature and the governor's office on the TYC's budget request for 1978-79.

through a diagnostic program.

He said juvenile courts should either take responsibility for dealing with CHINS through local programs or delcare them delinquent.

Not counting it three children's homes and four training schools for delinquents, the agency is requesting $17.5 million in 1978 and $14.1 million in 1979—roughly double the present appropriation.

State assistance for community-level rehabilitation efforts would increase from $2.1 million in the coming year to $2.5 million in 1978 and $3.4 million in 1979.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe held up expenditure of much of those funds this year until Atty. Gen. John Hill issued an opinion saying, in effect, that he had misinterpreted the appropriation bill rider giving him certain review powers.

The budget document recommends repeal of a state law allowing a commitment of CHINS to council institutions or, alternatively, revision of the 1975 law that prohibits the council from mingling them with delinquent youngsters.

Most CHINS now are placed in the council's Corsicana or West Texas children's homes.

"They cause us unmitigated hell," Jackson told the budget examiners. "They have nearly torn up our institutions."

Jackson said the council plans to put the approximately 150 CHINS in its forestry program at Corckett next year and run them

Police Search House In Millionaire Murder

FORT WORTH (AP) - Fort Worth police have obtained warrants to search the estate of T. Cullen Davis and the residence of his girlfriend in connection with the killing spree at the Davis mansion earlier this week.

Justice of the Peace Bob Ashmore issued the search warrants, which led to the speculation that the weapon used in the slayings of two persons have not been found.

Police found five weapons at the residence of Karen J. Master, Davis' girlfriend, was apprehended after the Tuesday morning shooting that also wounded two others. Another weapon was also discovered at the $6 million mansion.

The two survivors of the Davis mansion killings remained under hospital care Thursday and both were responding favorably to treatment for bullet wounds, officials said.

Doctors said socialite Priscilla Davis, 35, was in good condition and that 21-year-old Gus Gavrel Jr.'s condition remained fair.

Davis is charged with murder in the shooting deaths of Stan Farr, 30, his estranged wife's boyfriend, and Andrea Lee Wilborn, 12, Mrs. Davis' daughter by a previous marriage.

Davis, who is free on $80,000 bond, also is charged with attempted murder in the wounding of his wife and Gavrel, a friend of the Davis family.

Texas Weather Tops 100 Degree Mark Thursday

By The Associated Press
Temperatures topped 100 degrees in several areas Thursday as August heat baked Texas. The torrid weather was expected to linger through the weekend.

Limited relief was promised as sometimes heavy thunderstorms rumbled south from Oklahoma during the night. They rebuilt this morning, centering between Mineral Wells and Abilene, north of the Fort Worth-Dallas area, around Greenville, Bonham and Paris, and between Longview and Tyler.

Temperatures Thursday afternoon hit 100 degrees at Fort Worth and Midland-Odessa, 102 at Mineral Wells and Wink, 104 at Presidio and 105 at Wichita Falls. Near dawn the range was from 82 at Palacios on the coast down to 65 at El Paso.

Readings up to 105 were promised again before day's end along with scattered thundershowers over all but the west and central parts of the state.

The governor announced Wednesday he will ask the legislature for a package of bills that would increase highway spending by $825 million over the 1978 and 1979 fiscal years without raising new taxes. The money, in effect, would be siphoned away from other state programs.

Bullock added the governor's proposed highway spending to other items that he was proposed and said only $209 million would be free for improvement or expansion of state programs by the legislature.

He included, however, $692

Governor's Highway Solution Criticized By Bullock, CC

million for state employe and teacher pay raises. Briscoe has instructed his staff to prepare such a proposal but has not publicly declared it is part of his legislative program.

The Comptroller's calculations do not "even include the rosy dream of a $1 billion fund to hold in trust against the day when the oil and gas wells run dry," something Briscoe favors, Bullock said.

Bullock said that while he favors additional funding for highways, he does not think it could be done through statutory dedication of funds. That, he said, would be "government by straitjacket."

Ms. Davis said the governor's priorities were scrambled.

"There is no reason on earth why improving our prison system, improved health care delivery systems, mass transportation, better regulation of utilities or a more equitable education system for our children should take a back seat to Texas highways," she said.

"If funding highways is that important in the governor's legislative program, then he should abandon this phoney 'no new taxes' stance, rather than take the meat cleaver to the rest of the state budget."

Texas Sugar Production Shows Rapid Growth

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

Texas' new sugarcane industry produced its first sugar only three years ago, but has already grown to represent a substantial portion of South Texas' Valley income. Currently Texas ranks fourth in the nation in the production of sugarcane.

The importance of the growth of this new industry cannot be over-emphasized, since the United States presently imports more than 50 percent of its sugar supply.

The sugarcane industry in Texas, after being abandoned in 1923, came back strong in 1973 in the fertile Valley region of South Texas. Research by scientists with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES) in cooperation with the Agricultural Research Service (ARS) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, helped the industry get started.

Since then scientists have worked with the 115 member Rio Grande Valley Growers association, applying research results to problems in the field. Current sugarcane research by the scientists is focused upon variety evaluation, fertility and irrigation requirements, cultural practices both for burnt and unburnt cane, disease and insect control, and the development of a green cane harvester.

With the help of TAES scientists, the Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers, Inc., built the first sugar mill in the Rio Grande Valley, and this year obtained yields of 126,164 tons of raw sugar. During the same grinding period, from October 8, 1975 to April 15, 1976, molasses yields equalled 53,881 tons.

This production resulted in returns to growers amounting to $39 million, an amount which represents about 10 per cent of the total Valley income. This income was generated from less than 4 percent of the Valley's irrigated land, according to Dr. Chan Connolly, Resident Director of Research at the Experiment Station in Weslaco, Texas.

The mill and harvesting equipment used in the Valley represents an investment of more than $43 million, but growers foresee greater future needs and are tentatively planning to build a second sugar mill. The second mill would increase annual output as well as serving as a back-up mill in case of temporary failure of the original structure. The present mill, the most modern in the United States, each year handles more than 1.4 million tons of raw sugarcane.

The mill, built in 1973, was named after W. Raymond Cowley, former resident director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in Weslaco.

Although the mill was intended primarily to process sugarcane, it was used for the first time during the fall of 1975 to mill sweet sorghum. This was the first time sweet sorghum was commercially processed for sugar in the United States. ARS-USDA chemist B.A. Smith has developed and patented a process to extract sugar from sweet sorghum, a process which could greatly increase U.S. sugar yields.

Many varieties of sweet sorghum have a good sugar yield and can be mechanically harvested. Also, the production of sweet sorghum for sugar offers a practical means for increasing Valley sugar production, since the sorghum is harvested and milled during the off-season. Thus, growing both sugarcane and sweet sorghum provides an opportunity for year-round use of equipment and full-time employment of workers.

Production of sugarbeets in the High Plains region of Texas also looks more promising, since recent research has cleared the way for growing sugarbeets with greatly reduced inputs of hand labor. Traditionally sugarbeets have been hand-thinned and weeded, but now scientists have developed herbicide sequences that will give almost complete control of annual weeds. They have also developed ways to plant to a stand to eliminate thinning costs.

Research has also shown the proper methods of nitrogen fertilization for maximum net return in sugarbeets. Scientists have found that nitrogen deficiencies early in the growing season reduce tonnage, while excessive nitrogen reduces sucrose in the root.

Scientists have also found that the date of sugarbeet harvest is important — returns to the grower increase 25 percent after September 15 due to increased tonnage and sucrose concentration. This 25 percent can represent all or most of a grower's profit, and is gained at no cost other than a slightly increased risk of weather-related crop loss.

Sugarbeets are drought-tolerant plants and are well adapted to areas where irrigation is limited. Future sugarbeet research, according to TAES scientists, will be devoted to developing high-yield, reduced input systems of production. The systems will utilize limited tillage and crop residues to conserve rainfall and reduce erosion losses.

So, sugar producers in Texas now have three crops that should go far toward reducing our sugar imports and, at the same time, increase employment and revenues in the state.

Collectors of Bicentennial stamps will be interested in the new American Bicentennial Album by Minkus. The loose leaf album has spaces for the stamps issued by foreign countries honoring the 200th year anniversary. All special issues, commemoratives, airmails and souvenir sheets have been included. # BOYS WILL BE BOYS... AND SO WILL A LOT OF MIDDLE-AGED MEN

--KIN HUBBARD

Harrison Page stars as Arnold "The Chopper" Jackson, an inept private eye whose nickname comes from the karate hand of forged lead he carries, fails in his efforts to avoid working for the underworld in "Adventuring With The Chopper", SATURDAY, AUGUST 7.

Packaged "sex tours" will be spotlighted on NBC News' "Weekend" Saturday, August 7, on NBC. The story focuses on groups of young German bachelors who fly to Thailand, where commercial sex is a major tourist attraction. The girls shown here work in one of the hundreds of massage parlors in Bangkok.

Report Predicts Confusion As CB'ers Snarl Airwaves

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) - Protesters orchestrating demonstrations over the air, prostitutes soliciting customers and police fighting back with electronic jamming - all are possibilities envisioned in a federal government study of the future of citizens band radio.

The wild proliferation of the small-talk medium could cause international protests in the next few years as CBers snarl world-wide communications, the report speculates.

In a series of scenarios, the study speculates about developments in telecommunications over the next 15 years. The scenarios are not predictions but, in the words of the study, are "futable" - they could happen.

The report also envisions: -The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. carrying all television service into homes over phone lines. TV stations

Filming Sharks Dangerous Business, Expert Admits

By CLARENCE GOMEZ SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - "Sharks are more afraid of me than I am of them," says underwater filming expert Ron Taylor, who together with his wife, Valerie, was responsible for all live shark footage in the movie, "Jaws."

feet in length with a weight exceeding 1,000 pounds although one of the species recently caught off western Australia weighed 3,388 pounds.

"I used to spear all kinds of sharks before because I thought they were all dangerous," but now he says, "I'm more afraid of being swept away in a current than of the sea creatures; being lost at sea swept away from my boat; that's my greatest fear."

HER OWN PLANE HARVARD, Ill. (AP) - Working every night and weekends for some two years, Susan Dacy, a 17-year-old high school senior, has restored a Stearman, a biplane last built in 1943.

These remarks do not really mean that the uninitiated skin diver should head for shark-infested waters to observe the underwater giants in their natural habitat.

That may not sound too intimidating but according to the Australian shark expert he was once photographing one of these creatures when it apparently took fright and sped head-first into solid rock. Its nose whacked straight into the rock, sending vibrations through its body but with the nose remaining firm and unhurt nevertheless.

MISS DACY COMES FROM AN AVIATION-ORIENTED FAMILY. Her father is an airplane mechanic. Her three brothers all have planes and her sister, who is nine, is planning to build a Sopwith Camel, an observation and pursuit plane of World War I vintage.

Other uses will create problems as well. Lookouts will warn bandits of approaching police, and prostitutes will cruise the streets broadcasting their offers.

Economics Slows Stall Labor Market

WASHINGTON (AP) - A slowed rate of economic growth is the underlying factor involved in the current sluggishness in the labor market, but economists say productivity advances and growth in the number of people looking for work are contributing to the situation.

predicted unemployment of less than 7 per cent by December. But administration economists were somewhat confounded in June when the unemployment rate reversed a steady decline and edged upward by two-tenths of 1 per cent from 7.3 per cent in May.

The Labor Department's report on the July employment situation is due out today, with economists reluctant to guess which way it will go. They say a rise in unemployment is possible, and that any improvement for the month probably wouldn't be too dramatic.

The growth rate in the economy was cut in half in the second quarter of this year and goes a long way toward explaining why unemployment didn't improve much over the first six months of the year.

stop broadcasting on the air. The U.S. Postal Service jeopardized by competition from private firms. The rivals deliver color facsimiles of letters into homes over the telephone network and electronically provide newspapers and magazines that can be read on television screens.

Productivity, or the volume of goods or services produced per hour worked, traditionally rises during an economic recovery. Employers use their most efficient facilities when they're running at less than full capacity, as they are now. And they wait until they are getting the most out of those already at work, usually preferring to pay overtime before calling furloughed workers back.

Unemployment in June stood at 7.5 per cent, not too far below the 7.8 per cent level of January. The Ford administration has

It's not unusual that during a recession some workers simply drop out of the labor force. If for no other reason than they feel looking for a job is hopeless.

Pentagon Oversells 3,000 U. S. Built F-16 Fighter Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) - Some key defense officials are admitting that the Pentagon may have oversold the prospects for worldwide sales of about 3,000 new U.S.-built F16 fighter planes.

before the four NATO nations at a time when they were considering whether to buy the U.S. plane or a competing French Mirage-EL fighter.

With the U.S. Air Force and the four NATO countries planning to buy a total of 1,000 F16s, the Pentagon forecast made in 1974 and 1975 suggested that "third country" sales could total about 2,000 planes.

Not a single new F16 sale has been announced in the 14 months since Norway, Denmark, Belgium and the Netherlands agreed to buy 348 of the planes.

After much behind-the-scenes maneuvering by rival French and U.S. officials, the four European allies finally chose the F16 over the Mirage in June 1975. Their deal with the Pentagon guaranteed them, among other things, a 15 per cent share in parts production for any F16s bought by "third countries."

But so far, Pentagon officials say only a few countries have indicated a definite interest in the F16 even though its $6.7 million price makes it cheaper than other new U.S. fighters.

We would like you to meet Doyle Christesson, one of our many important people at AVI Corporation.

Doyle is our service and parts department manager and his training and skill at his trade is one of the reasons that AVI Corporation is enjoying such a successful business in the agricultural irrigation field and especially in the center pivot irrigation method.

Doyle has devoted a great deal of time toward organizing his parts department so that our service technicians waiting time for parts is kept at a minimum and your down time on your Valley Center Pivot Irrigation System is short.

Doyle and his wife Rena, have five children: Nina, 22; Phil, 21; Darrell, 20; Tammie, 17; Beverly, 12 and one grandson, Lester Lee, nine months.

Doyle enjoys fishing and hunting and also has two rather unusual hobbies as leathercraft and silverwork. He and his family attend the Baptist Church.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Admiral Charles Hector d'Estaing brought the first French fleet to American shores, July 8, 1778, in support of the colonies' waning sea trade. D'Estaing's fleet arrived off the Delaware coast and chased away inferior British naval forces, allowing the dying American seaborne trade to re-establish its importance to the Revolutionary War effort. The World Almanac points out that Giscard d'Estaing, president of France, is a descendant of Admiral d'Estaing!

Wing Walking Unforgettable Way To Get Breath Of Air

By PATRICK CONNOLLY
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP)—Wingwalking is an unforgettable way to get a big breath of fresh air.

It's like standing on top of a ladder while somebody shakes the legs. But the ladder is tall enough to reach the windows of an 80-story building and sways. It seems easy when you watch 22-year-old Steve Trevor, a soft-spoken premed student at the University of California in Irvine, dangling from the wing by his hands and feet and turning upside down as part of his regular act.

The pilot of the act, Joe C. Hughes, 44, of Huntington Beach, Calif., said of Trevor: "I know every one of his moves. If anything ever goes wrong, I'll pull back the stick sending the plane into a vertical climb and he'll fall into the cockpit."

Trevor says that standing on his head on the wing of a twirling, looping biplane is "relaxing."

Relaxing? Not exactly, in the opinion of a reporter who is more accustomed to sitting at a typewriter than standing on the wing of a bouncing plane.

The first lesson is that before you learn to wing-walk you must learn to wing-crawl, which you do by clambering through a maze of wires and struts to the top wing of Hughes' red and white biplane.

You jam your feet onto two small metal platforms covered with leather footholds, which don't appear much more substantial than the grips that used to hold your feet to rollerskates as a kid.

The small of your back leans against a hand-size metal brace. A thick canvas belt, which is connected to a metal bar protruding from the wing like a lightning rod, is tightened around your middle. The belt around your waist is your lifeline. What do you wear to a wing-walk? The same clothes you wear to the office with the addition of a leather aviator helmet and goggles, which sit askew over eyeglasses.

Encouraging you to waver to onlookers, Hughes taxis to the runway, idles the throbbing engine briefly, then kicks on the power. For showmanship, he blows a burst of pink smoke from under the fuselage and barrels down the runway.

From toes to scalp, all your muscles tighten into a body-length grimace. You almost forget to wave.

The thunder of the propeller and the force of the shove of air against the body at 85 miles an hour are the first surprises. You instinctively brace against the hand-size piece of metal bar in your back, and hope it doesn't break for the first time.

Then the bumping of the runway surrenders to the thumping of your heart and the plane leaves earth.

Instantly the ground gives way to blue sky and clouds and your next surprise comes—realization that you are actually standing on top of a plane wing in the sky. It is a haunting feeling.

You recall the old days of solid office floors, the lawn, sidewalks, even elevators. Your thoughts wander to loftier things as Hughes banks over a cemetery on the edge of Detroit City Airport.

Hughes circles the airport at about 800 feet and then rapidly descends for a buzz of the field. Your stomach is doing very well—it probably is only 50 feet behind you.

At mid-runway, Hughes yanks the stick and catapults the plane almost vertically back to 800 feet, much to the surprise of the beginner's circulation system.

The air rushes into the lungs, even as you hold your chin to your chest to get out of the draft. For the most part it is fresh air but you experience another dimension you would have missed in a closed-cockpit plane—a whiff from a factory smokestack.

Magazine Aimed At Layman

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Because most people seem to know more about the inside of their car than their own bodily makeup, a medical school graduate has conceived a magazine to help them learn.

The pilot edition of the quarterly magazine, "Medical Self-care," delves into such subjects as "how to be your own doctor, sometimes," female sexuality, teaching medicine to children and how to deal with physicians.

Editor Tom Ferguson, who has just graduated from the Yale medical school, said the publication was designed to help people stay well and to cope with illness when it strikes.

"I don't know if my colleagues will be outraged or not at the idea of encouraging people to care for their own health," he said.

The first edition consisted almost entirely of excerpts and comments on informative medical publications but future issues are planned to include more instructions about "basic paramedical clinic skills," he said.

Ferguson, 32, said his only goal in medical school until last February was becoming a family practitioner, an objective he still holds.

"But during my first year on the hospital wards I was continually amazed at how little responsibility most patients took for their own health. People know more about the inside of their car than they do about the inside of their abdominal cavity," he said.

Continual exposure to smokers with lung trouble, heavy drinkers with liver disease and women with advanced but unattended breast cancer convinced him many people should be encouraged to be more concerned about staying healthy.

But after the first pass, the flight seems secure. You forget the engine's roar. The wind in your face feels good. Your lifebelt is still as tight as it was when they strapped you in and the metal brace presses comfort because you wedge them in deeper and deeper.

You aren't wing-walking but "wing-standing." For a few moments as you watch the freeways, sky, skyscrapers, homes and clouds, the world is a peaceful place and it is a nice day for flying.

Hughes banked evenly and slowly to the left again, lined up with the runway, went in and touched down without a bump.

The pilot with the handlebar moustache has worked with three professional wing-walkers and with other amateurs.

"Have you ever wing-walked?" he was asked.
"Not on your life. There aren't enough pilots I'd trust," Hughes winked. "I'm no dummy."

Commercial Fishing Trade On Upswing On Ohio River

By STRAT DOUTHAT
Associated Press Writer

EUREKA, Ohio (AP)—Some people may think the Ohio River is a heavily polluted stream, nearly barren of fish. Not Ed and Kenny Feustel.

They know better. The Feustels are commercial fishermen. They are among a small but growing number of people attempting to make a living by fishing in the Ohio, one of the nation's largest rivers.

They were on the river, which runs beside this tiny Gallia County community, one evening, recently. And while they checked their nets, their sister and brother-in-law, Gloria and Butch Triplett of Gallipolis, sat on the Feustel brothers' small floating dock, talking about catfish in particular and the river in general.

"I've seen Ed and Kenny pull catfish out this long," said Mrs. Triplett, extending her arms wide. "I hope they catch some today because you just wouldn't believe the size they get to be."

"Yes," chimed her husband. "Some of them would run five feet and weigh as much as 60 pounds."

Triplett checked the three lines he had in the river and then spat disgustedly at the muddy water.

"No luck today," he said. "Usually they bite good when the water's like this."

"My brothers love the river," said his wife. "Our father loved the river and they must take after him. They've been catching catfish, bass, crappie, eels, gars and you name it."

"I file the catfish and roll them in egg and cracker crumbs. They're delicious. Used to be you couldn't eat anything you caught in the Ohio."

"That's right," said Triplett. "That was before the federal government cracked down on these boats and plants that were polluting the river. Before that, the fish tasted too oily to eat."

Just then, the Feustel brothers came chugging upstream, checking their nets as they came.

"Did you catch anything?" shouted their sister.

"Not much," replied Ed Feustel. "Just these few here in the bottom of the boat. The river dropped too fast. It must have been four foot higher yesterday."

The Feustels came ashore and loaded a dozen 36-inch catfish into a large can. Ed Feustel carried the catch up to their pickup truck while his brother secured the boat.

"We got our commercial license back in February," said Kenny Feustel. "We found the fishing was best during the spring. Why, we were pulling in between 600 and 800 pounds a week back then."

The Feustels got their commercial license from the State of West Virginia which controls the river to the low water mark on the Ohio side. There's among 26 such licenses issued since the first of the year, said Alpha Gerwig, an employe in the West Virginia Department of Natural Resources.

She said the state's 1967 legislature authorized commercial fishing on the Ohio. The practice began in 1971 but soon was curtailed because of a mercury scare that swept the nation. "Then," she said, "after the river was tested, commercial fishing began again in 1973. The number of permits has been increasing each year since then."

The law permits residents of Ohio and West Virginia only to fish commercially in the river between Pittsburgh, Pa. and Huntington, W. Va. Ohioans pay $100 for a license while West Virginians pay $25.

Mrs. Gerwig said of the 26 licenses issued this year, "Thirteen went to Ohioans and the same number to West Virginians."

Although the number of commercial fishermen is increasing, the river's potential is hardly being scratched, according to Michael Hoeft. He studies the river at the natural resources department's wildlife testing station near Point Pleasant.

"Last year," he said, "the commercial catch was between 10,000 and 13,000 pounds. We figure the channel catfish potential is about 500,000 pounds. The carp potential is about the same."

Hoeft says the State of West Virginia regularly checks the river. "The river is cleaner and the fish are cleaner," he said.

"There's a good market for the fish. The fishermen get about 50 cents a pound at the river bank," he added. "The live haulers who put them in tanks and take them to the pay lakes—commercial fishing lagers get up to 95 cents a pound."

The Feustels confirm Hoeft's estimate. They say they get about 50 cents a pound for their fish.

"We keep them in a holding tank," said Ed Feustel, who has been fishing fulltime, since being laid off from his job at a nearby chemical plant. "When we get about 500 pounds, we call a fish hauler out of Dayton and he comes and gets them. There's plenty of buyers. We even had a couple from Iowa."

The Feustels spent about $8,000 getting into the business. The cost included their nets—nearly $100 apiece—their dock, their boat and motor and the holding tank.

"It's not cheap," said Kenny Feustel. "It's also a lot of work. And on top of that, there's the times boaters cut your nets or kids steal your catch. You have to be on the river about every day."

Patriots' Fairbanks To See Other Side Of Washington

By The Associated Press

The last time he saw Joe Washington, Coach Chuck Fairbanks stood on the sidelines cheering on the young freshman halfback. Tonight, four years later, Fairbanks will be on those same sidelines trying to devise a way to stop him.

The change in the coach's allegiance occurred, of course, when the two parted the college scene at Oklahoma for the pro-Fairbanks to the New England Patriots and Washington to the San Diego Chargers.

Those teams will oppose each other in a National Football League preseason game, one of two scheduled tonight.

The site makes the Fairbanks-Washington confrontation even more interesting—they are returning to Owen Field at Norman, Oklahoma, the first pro game to be played there since 1959. A crowd of 40,000 is expected to cheer their old favorites.

The other game will match two neighbors, the Washington Redskins and the Baltimore Colts at Baltimore, a battle between two of the NFL's powerhouses.

Oklahomans get still another chance to greet their old heroes on Saturday afternoon when the Cleveland Browns play the Atlanta Falcons in the first pro game ever at Stillwater, Okla., home of Oklahoma State.

On Saturday night, Buffalo will play at Cincinnati, Minnesota at Kansas City New Orleans at Houston, Dallas at Los Angeles in a nationally televised game, Tampa Bay and Green Bay at Milwaukee, Chicago and Seattle at Spokane and St. Louis and Oakland at Phoenix.

Two games will be played Sunday afternoon, Miami at Detroit and Denver at San Francisco. On Monday night, the New York Giants play at the New York Jets and Pittsburgh plays at Philadelphia.

Washington will not be the only former Oklahoma player Sooner fans can cheer. The game will almost resemble an alumni affair with San Diego also bringing in former Sooner guard Kevin Grady and former Sooner assistant coach Rudy Feldman.

Fairbanks has five ex-Oklahoma players—tight end Al Chandler, running back Leont Crosswhite, nose guard Raymond Hamilton and linebackers Rod Shoate and Steve Zabel.

Each team opened preseason play with victories last week—San Diego beat Philadelphia 20-7 and New England stopped the New York Giants in overtime 13-7. Washington, in his pro debut, ran for one touchdown and rushed for 38 yards.

The Redskins and Colts also opened on successful notes last week and are expected to play their regulars a good portion of this neighborhood rivalry. Baltimore has a bit of an added incentive, having been beaten by Washington four straight times in exhibition games.

The fans at Stillwater on Saturday could have some problems deciding whether to cheer or boo. They won't have any trouble pulling for former Oklahoma State football and wrestling star Jerry Sherka, a tackle with Cleveland. But what do they do about running back Greg Pruitt and cornerback Tony Peters of the Browns, who played at bitter rival Oklahoma?

Both teams lost their openers, Atlanta to Washington and Cleveland to Baltimore.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Olympic gold medal winner Jennifer Chandler has been made an honorary member of the Alabama Legislature. The 17-year-old Lincoln, Ala., high school student was allowed unlimited access to the House and Senate for all day Thursday in honor of her championship performance in the threemeter spring board diving competition at the summer Olympics.

Trail Blazers In Chips After Dispersal Draft

By MIKE RECHT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Now that the National Basketball Association has held its dispersal draft, a number of NBA teams might think it only fair that the Portland Trail Blazers hold one of their own.

If they did, the Trail Blazers probably would collect almost as much for their two front lines along as the NBA took in for the 12 American Basketball Association players selected Thursday.

For example, how much do you think other NBA teams would fork over if they could take home Bill Walton or Sidney Wicks or Moses Malone or Maurice Lucas? Lloyd Neal would not come cheap either, and no doubt someone would pay a few shekels for former No. 1 draft pick Larue Martin and current No. 1 draft pick Wally Walker.

All but Walker, who has yet to sign, belong to the Trail Blazers now after they selected Lucas and Malone in the telephone draft conducted at the NBA league office here.

They had to trade All Star guard Geoff Petrie, the last original player from Portland's 1970 expansion club, to Atlanta with reserve Steve Hawes to get Atlanta's No. 2 selection spot in the draft.

But it appears there are NBA general managers willing to send Portland adequate replacements in the following days and weeks if the Trail Blazers will part with some of their big men.

Veteran 6-9 forward Sidney Wicks once again found himself a big name in the trade rumor mill and there also was speculation that Malone would not be with the Blazers for long.

Portland probably will get its money's worth after shelling out $350,000 for the 6-10 Malone $300,000 for the 6-9 Lucas, two of the ABA's bright young stars last season with St. Louis and Kentucky, respectively.

With the prices for the players pre-determined, only the Chicago Bulls dropped more into the kitty. They paid $1.1 million or 7-3 center Artis Gilmore of Kentucky, the top prize in the draft, which was still another step toward completing the merger agreement between the NBA and ABA.

Chicago had the first selection by virtue of its won-lost record last year, the worst of any of the 18 NBA teams or the four ABA teams that will be part of the merger this season.

The other high-priced selections were guard Ron Boone of St. Louis, picked No. 3 by Kansas City for $250,000; forward Marvin Barnes of St. Louis, selected No. 4 by Detroit for $500,000, and guard Bird Averitt of Kentucky, picked No. 8 by Buffalo for $125,000. Buffalo swapped picks with Milwaukee and three in a second-round draft pick next spring to get a shot at Averitt.

In all, 12 of the 20 available players from the St. Louis and Kentucky franchises were selected—all but one on the first of the three rounds of the draft and the teams paid a total of $2,832,750 for them. The money will be used to cover obligations to ABA players, the Kentucky and St. Louis franchises and those NBA teams which gave up original draft rights to the players involved.

The eight players not selected become free agents.

JOHNNY PAYCHECK
...AT XIT Rodeo Dance

Johnny Paycheck To Sing At Dance

When country music folks talk about soulful voices emanating from Nashville, the pros will tell you about George Jones, Hank Williams and Lefty Frizzell. These veteran superstars have influenced a lot of today's biggest country recording artists. Johnny Paycheck was influenced by their distinctive styles, but as a great student should, he used his own talent and creativity to capture their emotion in his voice.

Paycheck has it. He puts soul in his songs and his final arrival in the 1970's has brought perhaps the most memorable vocal "feel" of the decade. For Johnny Paycheck, singing a song is making people know he believes in it. He's been at this thing for a long time.

Saturday night Paycheck will continue to do his thing when he performs for a dance at the XIT Rodeo and Reunion Dance at the Rita Blanco Coliseum in Dalhart.

Paycheck's performance will include three successive nights of big-name entertainment at the Rodeo as he follows Barbara Fairchild and Red Steagall on the stage.

The dance will begin at 9 p.m. and last until 1 a.m. as a conclusion to the Rodeo and Reunion.

In 1965, Paycheck's "A-11" nailed down a Grammy nomination. Six or seven hits followed including "Little Darlin'", and in 1966 came "Lovin' Machine" with "Jukebox Charlie" coming in 1967.

The success story of Paycheck seemed to have reached its final page by 1968. Down and out, he was living in Los Angeles, quite removed from the world of hit records. He hadn't understood success before, but by 1970, two years of just getting by told him the whole story.

He made a vow to himself to get it all together again. At that time, Billy Sherrill, Vice President of A&R for CBS Records in Nashville, was looking for him. Sherrill has made it a habit of finding great country talent and making them superstars. He had the same idea for Johnny Paycheck.

It took a little while for Sherrill and Paycheck to get together, but no time to cut a hit. By the fall of 1971, Paycheck had his first Epic single "She's All I Got". The single soared to number one on the national country charts and at the 1971 DJ Convention in Nashville, he came home to a roaring, standing ovation. Again, he received a Grammy nomination, while Billboard Magazine named him the Biggest Comeback Artist of the Year.

Hit singles have followed consistently without exception. The next year brought "Love Is A Good Thing", "Someone To Give My Love To", "Let's All Go Down To The River" with Jody Miller, and "Somebody Loves Me". Since then, his hits include "Something About You I Love", "Mr. Lovemaker", "Song and Dance Man", "My Part Of Forever", and "Keep On Loving Me."

Reds Increase Lead; Nudge Dodgers, 3-2

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers have been chasing Cincinnati up a hill all season, but have finally run into a big Red stop sign, it seems.

The Reds have put some daylight between themselves and their closest pursuers in the National League West, opening up a formidable 10-game lead with Thursday night's 3-2 victory over the Dodgers.

The pace was the defending World Champions going like 100 this season.

"We can honestly win 30 games or more," said the Cincinnati manager after the runaway Reds won their 70th game of the season. "I know we're a good team, and every year from the spring we point to winning 100 games."

The Reds won 108 games last season and figure to hit the century mark again, the way they've been playing of late. They've won eight of their last nine games and 24 of 32.

The Philadelphia Phillies are dominating the East Division the way Cincinnati is the West. With Thursday night's 5-2 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh's 7-4 loss to the New York Mets, the Phillies have opened a stunning 14-game lead over the Pirates.

In other National League action, the San Diego Padres trimmed the Houston Astros 4-3, the San Francisco Giants nipped the Atlanta Braves 2-1 and the Chicago Cubs beat the Montreal Expos 4-3 in the first game of a doubleheader before rain washed out the second game.

Tony Perez slugged a bases-empty homer, Pete Rose doubled and singled twice and Fred Norman scattered seven hits to lead Cincinnati over Los Angeles. Perez' 12th homer, coming off loser Don Sutton, 12-9 gave the Reds a 3-0 lead.

George Foster drove in his 93rd run with a single in the third inning and Dave Concepcion singled home Cincinnati's second run in the fourth. Norman, 11-2, posted his fifth straight victory by striking out six, including Reggie Smith three times.

Phillies 5, Cardinals 2
Ollie Brown's home run triggered a four-run Philadelphia fifth inning and helped the Phillies beat St. Louis in a rain-shortened eight-inning game. Hector Cruz' homer had provided the Cards with a 2-0 lead in the second inning.

Met 7, Pirates 4
Jon Matlack pitched and batted New York over Pittsburgh with relief help from Skip Lockwood. The New York starter allowed all of Pittsburgh's six hits before leaving the game in the eighth inning. In addition, Matlack drove in one run and scored another in one run and scored another as the Mets hammered four Pirate pitchers for 17 hits.

Padres 4, Astros 3
Doug Rader drove in two runs and Dave Friesleben and Butch Metzger combined on an eight-hitter, lifting San Diego over Houston.

Giants 2, Braves 1
Gary Thomasson smashed a home run, then doubled and scored the go-ahead run as San Francisco trimmed Atlanta. Thomasson hit Phil Niekro's second pitch of the game into the right-field seats for his fourth homer of the season.

Cubs 4, Expos 3
Solo homers by George Mitterwald and Rick Monday and two unearned runs in the fifth inning gave Chicago its victory over Montreal before rain washed out the second game in the second inning.

Bert Uses Fastball To Nip Angels, 1-0

Bert Blyleven, a major league pitcher since 1970, only recently learned how to throw a fastball.

Lacking one major tool of the trade for much of his career, Blyleven still has managed 104 victories. The latest came Thursday night when Blyleven relied on his usual baffling curve ball and a newly-discovered fastball to pitch the Texas Rangers to a 1-0 victory over the California Angels.

Blyleven, a 25-year-old right-hander, has been a stone's throw away from superstardom in his career. It now turns out that the thrown stones was a fastball.

Sid Hudson, Texas' pitching coach, said Blyleven's problem was in the palm of his hand all the time. Hudson merely had Blyleven change the grip on his fastball.

Blyleven, 9-12, allowed only two runners to reach second base and forced 16 Angels to ground out. "I tried to kick myself in the tail from the sixth inning on and keep the ball down," said Blyleven.
