That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says men still die with their boots on but, in far too many cases, one boot is on the accelerator.

When asked about the "C" in conduct on his report card, the little boy replied: "I guess I just don't know how to do that."

RECENT ACTION BY CONGRESS in providing a 90-day preemption of state usury laws for residential mortgage interest rates should have a positive effect on housing, according to a spokesman for the National Association of Realtors.

Artificially holding down mortgage rates with outdated usury laws only causes funds to flow out of the housing sector and reduces access to credit, claims Dr. Jack Carlson, executive vice president of the NAR.

Coming at a time when the national economy is entering a moderate recession, Carlson noted, and when overall housing starts have already shown a decline, the impact of usury ceilings on housing construction in 1980 could be particularly severe. "Unless the state legislatures take the initiative," he said, "to do away with usury ceilings altogether in the next 90 days, we will see a bad impact on the housing industry."

ONE OF THE BLEAK PROSPECTS we face in the new year is the possibility of gas rationing. The government has already announced plans for such an emergency and has explained how it will work.

Naturally, the basic concept will include a federal tax and in keeping with current government thinking, it would be used for welfare purposes.

Every registered vehicle owner would get in the mail from the government a check entitling him to a certain amount of gasoline. These checks would be used to purchase gasoline coupons at local food stores or post offices. The coupons could then be used to buy gas, or to trade on the "white market" for an estimated $1.50 a gallon.

The $1.50 coupon does not buy gas; it is in addition to the cost of gas. If rationing went into effect now, gasoline would cost about $2.50 a gallon with the new tax.

The government would control the amount of gasoline that a coupon would buy from time to time, depending upon the shortage. The Department of Energy plans provide for issuance of coupon purchase checks every 30 days. Ambulances, police cars, post office vehicles and unregistered agricultural vehicles would get priority in rationing.

At $2.50 a gallon, we Americans might finally get the message and do less driving. Most of us have already noticed a big difference at $1 a gallon!

One of the biggest losses for motorists, to date, has been the decline of full service stations. This means it is getting more difficult to find a station where you can get a flat fixed, and the places where you can get the oil changed, the car lubricated, the battery checked, the anti-freeze measured, brake fluid filled, tires switched, etc.

DALLAS (AP) — A new requirement that Dallas Baptist College employees take a religious doctrinal oath has prompted authorities to hold up more than $85,000 in tuition grants to the school.

The Texas College Coordinating Board said the federal and state grants have not been canceled but would be suspended until allegations about the "Articles of Faith" could be investigated.

DBC students could lose more than $165,000 in grants for next year if the oath is found to violate qualifying guidelines of the state and federal education agencies.

DALLAS (AP) — A professor blames the nation's productivity slump on the diversion of engineers and scientists from industrial to military technology and the arms race.

Lloyd J. Dumas of the University of Texas at Dallas said at least one-third of the nation's technological talent has been diverted to participate in the international arms race.

In a paper prepared for delivery in San Francisco at the 1980 meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Dumas said civilian productivity growth is directly related to invention and innovation.

DEL RIO, Texas (AP) — More than 100 Iranian student pilots are continuing their academic studies at Air Force bases across Texas and await word on whether they will remain grounded from flight training.

"Nothing has really changed" since the Defense Department order Nov. 23, said Lt. Karen Foster of Laughlin Air Force Base in Del Rio. "They are just waiting until they can fly. And they don't know which way it's going to go."

The 50-week course in which the Iranians are enrolled comprises academics and flight training.

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — A man pushed a woman from an overpass at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport Wednesday afternoon and jumped after her, an airport spokesman said.

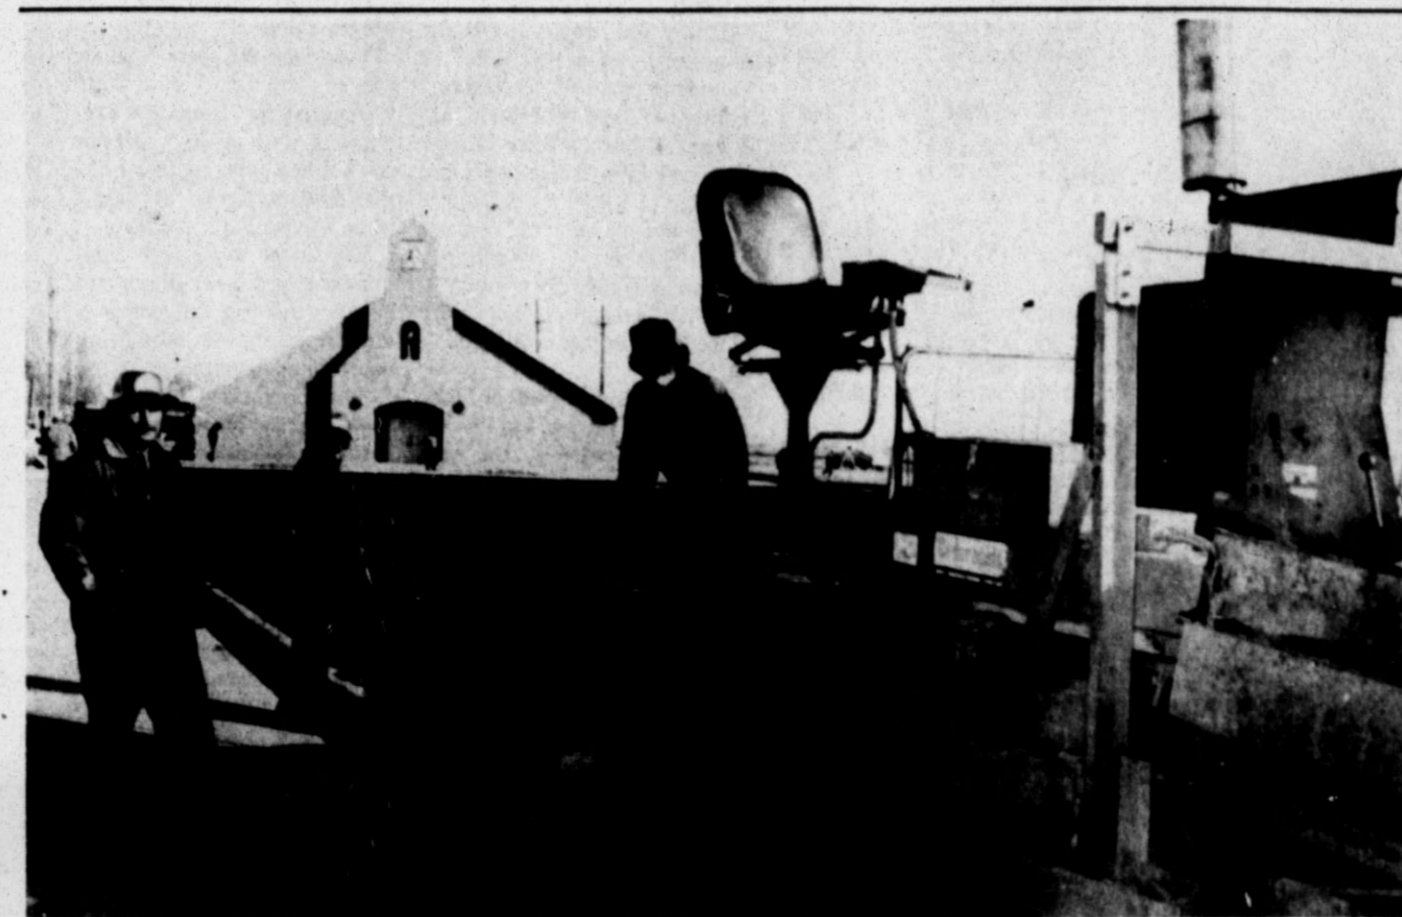

The man, who said he was from Kilgore but had been living in West Germany, and his companion, from West Germany, were hospitalized in fair to good condition.

An airport spokesman said that when an officer approached them, the man pushed the woman, and then struggled with the officer until he could jump.

Students Demand U.S. Diplomat For Questioning

Church Nearly Ready

The finishing touches have been put on the new San Jose Catholic Church on Brevard St., and all that remains to be completed is the parking lot. Jake Diel Construction workers began putting down black top this week for the large lot. Church members will move from the San Jose Labor Camp to the new building on the morning of Jan. 13, a Sunday. The church dedication will take place at a later date. [Brand photo by Paul Sims]

For Questioning

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Iranian militants today demanded America's top diplomat in Iran, L. Bruce Laingen, be turned over to them for questioning, the state radio reported.

Laingen, the U.S. charge d'affaires in Tehran, is one of three U.S. diplomats who have been held at the Foreign Ministry since the militants overran the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4, seizing some 50 American hostages.

The state radio broadcast said the militants demanded Laingen be brought to the occupied embassy "for necessary explanation of espionage documents." The report did not elaborate, but apparently referred to documents the militants claim they found at the embassy.

There was no immediate response from the Foreign Ministry, which has rebuffed previous demands from the militants that it surrender the 57-year-old Laingen. The ministry has said he and the two other Americans — political officer Victor Tomseh and security chief Michael H. Holland — are being held at the ministry for their own protection. They were not at the embassy when it was seized.

The militants' statement was broadcast only hours after Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim left Tehran for New York after Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Iranian revolutionary leader who holds the key to freedom for the American hostages, refused to see him.

Waldheim described his visit to Iran as "dangerous but useful," referring to the Iranian announcement of a plot against his life as well as his talks with Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh and other Iranian officials.

Commenting on the Iranian mob that forced him to flee a Tehran cemetery Thursday, Waldheim said, "This is not the first time such a thing has happened to me. But looking around I had an unpleasant feeling and was wondering who would be at my side if something happened."

Waldheim made his comments to reporters in Zurich, Switzerland, where he boarded a New York-bound flight.

He left Iran almost a full day ahead of schedule. Shortly after the secretary-general departed, a spokesman said he was needed in New York to attend the Security Council debate today or Saturday on the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Waldheim arrived Tuesday on orders from the Security Council to seek release of the hostages, who entered their third month in captivity today.

His personal spokesman, Francois Guillani, said the secretary-general would report the extent of his progress to the council, which meets Monday to consider limited economic sanctions against Iran unless

Carter To Announce Steps To Get Tough with Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is getting set to announce a package of get-tough measures toward the Soviet Union, but some of the key items are being held back until U.S. allies give their support.

Specifically, sources here said, the administration is continuing to consider trying to organize a boycott of the Olympic Games this summer in Moscow and to slow down shipments of grain and technology.

But to be effective, these measures must be coordinated with other western countries.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said the United States also is urging its friends to take a flinty view of credits for Soviet purchases from the West.

On the other hand, some of the options aimed at punishing the Soviet Union for taking military action in Afghanistan have been considered within the administration and rejected. These, officials said, included a break in relations with Afghanistan's pro-Soviet government and supplying U.S. weapons directly to insurgents fighting to overthrow it.

A boycott of the Olympics would be a heavy blow to Soviet prestige. The Moscow games in August will be the center of world attention and the Russians intend to make them a glittering showcase.

Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher discussed the Olympic possibilities with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies in Brussels earlier this week.

SALT Receives Another Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of Senate hearings and nearly a decade of negotiations, the Strategic Arms Limitation treaty is paralyzed and possibly dying, a victim of Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Many senators contend the treaty is dead for 1980 and say President Carter's action in calling for a delay in the debate over its ratification was simply facing facts.

The latest delay is another example of events not directly related to the treaty's purpose overwhelming attempts to have the proposal considered solely on its merits. The treaty is specifically aimed at putting a cap on the strategic nuclear arms race.

Another recent example of outside events hurting the prospects for SALT ratification was disclosure late last year of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba.

Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, reminded reporters at a news conference Thursday that as long as three years ago he was saying the treaty could not be considered in a vacuum; that Soviet adventurism in the world had to be taken into account.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia restated the case in favor of ratifying the treaty, but concluded: "It would not be conducive to the SALT process to bring up the SALT treaty at this time."

He said it would remain on the calendar ready for debate when the climate improves.

"I think the president was just facing political reality," said Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D. "The SALT process is temporarily paralyzed if not dead. The treaty was in serious trouble before Afghanistan. Right now the chances of moving the treaty in the Senate are nil."

Clements May Cut Taxes More

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Some Texans are questioning whether they saved any money as a result of all the legislative noise about tax relief in 1978 and 1979.

Gov. Bill Clements said Thursday he has heard the talk — including concerns expressed by Speaker Bill Clayton — and already has a confidential report from his budget director on the subject.

He said budget director Paul Wrotenberg had "studied carefully" various tax relief options and submitted a report to Clements. The governor, who still mentions tax relief as a possible special session topic, said Wrotenberg listed 19 options.

"I am trying to evolve answers as to what would be the best course of action," Clements said at his weekly news conference.

Tax relief legislation passed in 1978 and 1979 consisted mainly of exemptions from school taxes, but Clayton says some school districts simply raised tax rates to keep revenues from dropping.

Clements also commented on recent congressional action eliminating state-imposed ceilings on home mortgage interest rates until March 31, with a possibility the limits will come off permanently.

He said the action was an infringement on state rights but in economic terms probably was justified because the money market is nationwide and is affected by federal fiscal and monetary policy.

Clements called high interest rates a "disgrace" and predicted they would rise past the point where Texas consumers could afford to borrow money for homes or major appliances.

But he said a free market, where interest rates would respond to competition, supply and demand was "the only way we are going to get those interest rates down."

The governor announced he has appointed Donn D. Woolery of Amarillo and Glenn Heckmann of Brazoria as two of the six state commissioners who participate with the Board of Pardons and Paroles in making parole recommendations. Woolery, sales manager for an oil jobber, is an ex-convict.

Gold Buying Soars To Frenzied Pace

HONG KONG (AP) — The rush to replace battered currencies with solid gold picked up today where a frenzy of worldwide buying began a day earlier — at the Hong Kong exchange.

Gold trading opened here today at $631.48 an ounce, up $18.22 over Thursday's close. Dealers described trading as active, with concern over Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and the U.S.-Iran crisis again pushing prices higher.

Gold hit a record high of $649.73 on the Hong Kong market on Thursday before closing at $613.26. It later closed at $630 in London and $635 in Zurich. In New York, bullion reached a record $635 a troy ounce before settling back to $621.

Thursday's rush to gold depressed the dollar until European banks intervened by buying up dollars being sold in favor of bullion. The intervention stemmed the selling tide and left the dollar stronger by the end of the day.

Late New York rates included 1.7119 German marks, up from 1.7070 late Wednesday, 4.0220 French francs, up from 4.0088, 1.5732 Swiss francs, up from 1.5712; and 238.80 yen, up from 237.58. The Canadian dol-

Fisherman Worry Over Another Spill Assault

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Businessmen and shrimp fishermen predict some of them will go broke if a second wave of Mexican oil sullies the Texas coast this spring.

"If the oil happens to be out there when the shrimp hatch, there won't be a live shrimp left," shrimp farmer Walter Zimmerman said Thursday. "The crop will be wiped out."

The multimillion-dollar tourism and fishing industries are agonizing over recent predictions that oil from the damaged Ixtoc 1 well will return this spring unless Mexican crews can cap the runaway flow.

Approximately 140 miles of South Texas coastline wore black ribbons of oil three months after the well blew out June 3, 1979, and started spewing 30,000 to 50,000 barrels daily into the Gulf of Mexico off the Yucatan Peninsula. Most beaches now are free of oil although small tarballs occasionally wash up.

Officials of PEMEX, the Mexican national oil company, maintain they have cut back the well to a 2,000-barrel a day leak. However, some U.S. observers claim containment efforts have failed and the well continues spouting 50,000 barrels a day.

Zimmerman and others met for two hours with Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, to discuss the problem. Many residents complained about lack of reliable information on what is being done to contain the well. Others castigated the federal government for not doing more to help those suffering losses from the unwanted oil.

Small Business Administration loans of up to $100,000 at 7 1/2 percent interest are available. "If the well is not stopped, all this SBA money will be going down the drain because a similar situation to last August would be disastrous and would be fatal in many cases," said Steve Woolverton, president of the Port Isabel-South Padre Island Chamber of Commerce.

The U.S. Coast Guard and other agencies battling the spill last summer relied on gulf currents to keep much of the oil from reaching the shoreline and backwater wildlife habitats.

Scientist John Robinson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration last week said there's a 30 percent chance oil will begin a second invasion later this spring if Mexican crews do not cap the well. Robinson said the currents that have kept away the oil will

Recovering Poster Girl Loves the Attention

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Eight-year-old Jeanette Alvarado discovered Thursday that a hospital somehow isn't so bad when you've got flowers and a phone call from your favorite television star, actress Suzanne Somers.

An excited, but shy Jeanette, the national Easter Seal poster child who was wounded in a puzzling New Year's Eve shooting, talked for about five minutes Thursday by intercom phone with the actress.

Ms. Somers, the national chairperson of the Easter Seal campaign this year, had earlier sent flowers and arranged for Jeanette to have a color television in her room, hospital officials said.

"Jeanette was real excited about the flowers and the call," said her mother, Helen Alvarado.

Jeanette, wearing a bandage over the bullet wound a half-inch from her right eye, later shyly told reporters that Ms. Somers' TV comedy show, "Three's Company," was her favorite. She also said she "felt fine" and was anxious to return to her second-grade class.

"It wasn't publicity hype," said hospital spokesman Jeff Duffield. "Ms. Somers called us direct Wednesday. The Easter Seal people didn't even know about it. She said she had heard about the shooting incident, was concerned and could she talk to Jeanette."

The crippled child has been a paraplegic since birth due to a spinal cord disorder. A small-caliber bullet hit her in the upper side of her cheek about 12:15 a.m. Tuesday as she sat in a family group outside her grandmother's house and watched neighbors explode fireworks.

"The doctors told us that if the bullet had hit a half-inch higher, Jeanette would have lost an eye or it would have gone into her brain," said Mrs. Alvarado.

Jeanette's 31-year-old aunt, Alice Alvarado, was also wounded, but was released from the hospital Wednesday.

Jeanette was moved out of intensive care Wednesday and was listed Thursday in good condition. Duffield said the child should be out of the hospital within a week.

Local Easter Seal officials said Jeanette most likely will be able to serve as the 1980 poster child. Jeanette still plans to take part in the March Easter Seals telethon with Ms. Somers.

Police have speculated that Jeanette and her aunt were hit by bullets fired by New Year's

Soviet Troops Expect

Long Afghan War

By The Associated Press

Soviet forces were reported facing a long war in Afghanistan while the Kremlin accused President Carter of "wicked" outrages and the U.N. Security Council prepared to open debate on the Soviet military intervention in its Central Asian neighbor.

In the Afghan capital of Kabul today, Prime Minister Babrak Karmal was quoted as promising a "new democratic constitution" soon and as proclaiming his government's "deep respect" for religion.

The comments, reported by the official Soviet news agency Tass, were seen as an attempt by Karmal to reach out to Moslem Afghan insurgents who have been fighting three Marxist-leaning Afghan governments for the past 20 months and Soviet troops for the past week.

Karmal, installed as prime minister a week ago Thursday when an estimated 35,000 to 45,000 Soviet troops poured into Afghanistan, "emphasized the importance of creating the country's broad national front with the participation of all political, public and religious organizations," Tass said.

Gregg County Officials

Remain Free on Bond

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Four former Gregg County officials remain free on bond today pending appeal of their conviction and subsequent sentencing on federal racketeering convictions.

The officials resigned or were suspended from their jobs following their trial.

Former Sheriff Tom Welch was sentenced to 20 years in prison Thursday and three other officials received lesser penalties on their federal racketeering convictions.

Welch, 50, was assessed two five-year sentences for facilitating illegal gambling and 10 years for murder conspiracy and racketeering.

However, U.S. District Judge William Steger let the 10-year term run concurrently with the two five-year stints so Welch will only spend 10 years in prison, barring early release.

Welch also faces possible trial later this year on a charge that he violated the civil rights of a prisoner in his custody. The Associated Press erroneously reported Thursday that Welch faced sentencing on a conviction for civil rights violation.

Klan Burial Set

Saturday in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Addie Barlow Frazier's funeral arrangements are complete and the longtime leader of the local Ku Klux Klan chapter will get a full, traditional Klan burial Saturday.

Frazier, 73, had asked for a full-scale Klan funeral before her death Saturday, and Dudley Hughes Funeral Home East finally completed the arrangements late Thursday — but not without problems.

The funeral home where Mrs. Frazier originally made her burial arrangements refused to handle them when officials there learned Klansmen wanted a ceremonial service, complete with full Klan robes.

Dudley Hughes Funeral Home East, however, accepted the plans for two memorial services for this Saturday — one at the funeral home and a hooded procession from the cemetery gates to the burial site.

There, said funeral home spokesman Casey Cohlmia, a Klan minister will read Biblical passages and make a short statement.

Beverly Pittman, Mrs. Frazier's granddaughter, said people had called from "all over the country" wanting to know when the funeral would be.

Houston May Up

Property Taxes

HOUSTON (AP) — Citing public pressure for improved police protection and better streets, Mayor Jim McConn said a 10 percent hike in property taxes may be needed to help finance improved city services.

"It may be time to test the water and see if the people really want those things done," said McConn Thursday in his state of the city message. McConn began his second two-year term as mayor Wednesday.

He said the city was "in trouble as far as revenues are too excessive." 1977 levels until the entire city is revalued in 1982.

"I heard enough in the campaign to think people may really want the potholes fixed...it takes money, equipment and people to go out and do those things," he said.

McConn also said he expects to present a $700 million budget to the City Council later this month, adding he expects a "95 percent" improvement in city transportation this year.

Female To Head Studio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the movie industry, where moguls are always male, 20th Century-Fox kicked off the 1980s with a shocker — naming Sherry Lansing president of production, the first female studio chief in Hollywood history.

In her first day on the job — which reportedly pays $300,000 a year — the 35-year-old Ms. Lansing vowed to turn out movies with "someone to root for, movies that make you laugh and cry."

This philosophy shone through two of her projects at Columbia Pictures — "China Syndrome" and "Kramer vs. Kramer," recent winner of the New York Film Critics best film award.

Her appointment brought a bold "Variety" headline: "20th-Fox Gets a First Lady," but Ms. Lansing was reluctant to focus on her status as a woman.

"I am very excited by the challenges of the job, but I hope as the '80s progress, the appointment of a woman to a major post will not be so newsworthy, that it will become natural for women to have high positions in every industry," she said.

However, in a wide-ranging interview at her new office, Ms. Lansing admitted her story is unique — the tale of a bright, beautiful young woman who taught math in the ghetto, then sought a new career.

Ms. Lansing, daughter of a Chicago furniture dealer, graduated summa cum laude from Northwestern University with majors in math, English and theater. Then she headed for Los Angeles.

"I taught math in Watts for three years and I loved it. I guess part of me wanted to be a social worker," she said. "I stopped when it became repetitive. I was becoming the kind of teacher I hated. I didn't have the passion anymore."

She left teaching and fell back on her most obvious asset — her extraordinary good looks.

"I didn't know what I wanted to do and modeling gave me the maximum amount of time and a lucrative income. I was very lucky as a model. I was under contract to Max Factor and Alberto Culver."

Then came the spark, a minor role in "Rio Lobo" with John Wayne. She "became fascinated with film," taking courses and going to the movies five times a week. "It wasn't work. I loved film," she said.

She landed a job with independent producer Raymond Wagner, reading and synthesizing scripts. She was soon being asked for opinions.

"As I progressed, they let me come to story meetings, but at first I was told to be silent," she said. Eventually, she was allowed to speak and became an associate producer.

Two years later, she moved on to Talent Associates, hunting TV talent on the West Coast. "I left there because it was mainly television oriented. ... I found myself going out to the movies every night rather than sitting home watching TV. I realized I had a passion for movies," she said.

Ms. Lansing joined MGM studios in 1975 as executive story editor and later was promoted to vice president for creative affairs. Two years ago, she left MGM and joined Columbia Pictures as vice president in charge of production.

"At Columbia, my scope was broadened. There were two production vice presidents and we were responsible for cutting, editing, even distribution. And out of that came 'China Syndrome' and 'Kramer vs. Kramer,'" she said proudly.

Ms. Lansing sees a new wave of executives like her — people who love movies more than just about anything.

"Films are a vision of the few and they come out of somebody's passion," she said. "They are my passion. I'm excited about this job because I want to make good movies. It's really that simple."

Her appointment as president of Fox seemed to surprise everyone except Sherry Lansing.

A cordial, energetic woman with a firm handshake, she exudes enthusiasm and confidence that her success will continue uninterrupted. Her secret?

"The only thing I can honestly say about myself is I've worked hard," Ms. Lansing said. "When I was in college, I got all A's, not because I was smarter than anyone else, but because I worked harder."

"If I had to give anyone advice, I'd say, enjoy the process and don't be obsessed with goals. ... I never even fantasized this job. I loved what I was doing every step of the way."

Ms. Lansing, who is divorced, considered how her new position would affect her personal life. "I don't see why this job should prevent me from loving or even having children. ... I certainly would like to have a relationship with someone I love. It makes life better. ... How can you make movies if you haven't lived?"

Ms. Lansing, who said she believes in "equality for everyone," remarked that her climb to the top of a highly competitive industry is a revolutionary concept to her mother, a housewife.

"My mother wanted me to get married and have children. I got married and divorced, and as I continued my career I knew she worried about me," she said. "It wasn't until about two years ago that I noticed my mother was proud of me and valued what I was doing."

"I called her this weekend to tell her about my new job, and she was thrilled."

'Shah Suite' Criticized

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Lackland Air Force Base officials, besieged by angry protests from fans of World War II hero Claire Chennault, want it known that they're not renaming the Chennault Suite in honor of its most recent tenant — the shah of Iran.

Lackland spokesman Joe McAnally said Thursday that base officials spoke too soon when they announced the name change two days after the shah's Dec. 15 departure.

"Changing the name to the Shah Suite was never given official consideration. We especially would not consider it now after the calls and letters," said McAnally.

The manager of the Visting Officers Quarters and a Lackland officials spokesman had said proudly — but mistakenly — the name of the suite would be changed in honor of the deposed monarch.

The shah spent 13 days last month in the modest two-bedroom apartment reserved for visiting colonels, generals and other dignitaries.

"We'll find another suite to name for Chennault," Maj. Elliott Johnson said at the time.

News of the name change prompted dozens of angry phone calls and letters, most from retired military officers incensed with the thought that the memory of the famous Air Force general was being slighted.

"Gen. Chennault was quite a hero. Their reaction has been that it's a slight to him and inappropriate to rename it for the shah," McAnally said. "The letters and calls were not anti-shah, but were very supportive of Gen. Chennault."

The recuperating shah was quietly and secretly moved here Dec. 2 from a New York hospital.

He was given the Chennault Suite although it isn't the most plush of the 12 VIP apartments in the renovated World War II barracks. Officials said the shah was given the second-floor Chennault Suite because it would be easier to protect him there.

DALLAS (AP) — A state appellate court has ordered a new hearing for a civil lawsuit brought by former Mayor Wes Wise against D magazine.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Betty Denton, D-Waco, called Thursday for mobilization of all state health resources to find a cure for cancer.

"If we faced an enemy that was taking 20,000 citizens a year, all out war would be declared and we would not stop until unconditional surrender could be achieved," she said in a letter to Robert Bernstein, acting state health commissioner.

"I want the public to really know what has happened to me, the pros and cons of Bob Hayes," he said during a prison interview last fall.

Sportswriters gave Hayes the nickname "World's Fastest Human" after he won two gold medals at the 1964 Olympics.

A year later he was wearing a uniform for the Dallas Cowboys. He made All-Pro as a rookie, and several seasons afterward, at wide receiver.

During his 10-year Cowboys career he set records, which still stand, for touchdowns, receiving and punt returns.

After he left pro football he engaged in several Dallas-area business ventures, but made few headlines until his 1978 indictment.

He pleaded guilty on March 14, 1979, to charges of deliv-

Police Investigate Harrassing Calls

Hereford police are investigating three separate reports of harrassing telephone calls Thursday.

One involved a heavy breather, another a threat on the person receiving the call and the third was from an individual who refused to say anything, according to reports.

Officers are investigating the theft of a telephone, a piggy bank containing $10 in change and box of shotgun shells. Mary Hamby, 328 Ave. E, reported the burglary, which she said occurred sometime over the holidays.

Police investigated a neighbor dispute, Thursday in the 400 block of Long, worked a minor traffic accident, issued nine traffic citations and arrested a man for driving while intoxicated.

GASOHOL TEST

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Gasohol is being test marketed here and in Des Moines and Council Bluffs.

Phillips Petroleum said the gasohol — 90 percent unleaded gasoline and 10 percent ethanol — is being evaluated for its handling properties and customer acceptance, because it is one possibility for increasing supplies of motor fuel.

The test program could be expanded if results are favorable, the company said.

'Bullet Bob' May Be Let Go

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Prison gates could swing open in March for "Bullet" Bob Hayes and let the former Dallas Cowboy great make a fast exit from the cell that held him a broken man, financially and emotionally.

The state Board of Pardons and Paroles recommended Thursday that Hayes be released from prison, less than a year after he began serving two concurrent five-year prison terms for delivering cocaine to an undercover officer.

If Gov. Bill Clements approves the recommendation, Hayes could be on the streets in March, and the former athlete already is making plans for a book about his life.

"I want the public to really know what has happened to me, the pros and cons of Bob Hayes," he said during a prison interview last fall.

Sportswriters gave Hayes the nickname "World's Fastest Human" after he won two gold medals at the 1964 Olympics.

A year later he was wearing a uniform for the Dallas Cowboys. He made All-Pro as a rookie, and several seasons afterward, at wide receiver.

During his 10-year Cowboys career he set records, which still stand, for touchdowns, receiving and punt returns.

After he left pro football he engaged in several Dallas-area business ventures, but made few headlines until his 1978 indictment.

He pleaded guilty on March 14, 1979, to charges of delivering cocaine to an undercover agent. He was sentenced a week later, after describing himself as a broken man.

"I'm guilty. I was wrong," Hayes said from the stand, in an effort to gain probation. "I've paid the price in image and my respect. People see me as 'Bob Hayes, the dope dealer,' not 'Bob Hayes, the citizen.' It hurts."

"I've hit rock bottom financially. I'm broke," he added.

Several Cowboys testified in Hayes' behalf at the sentencing, hoping to convince judge Richard Mays to be lenient.

"I see the potential in Bob as a human being," said quarterback Roger Staubach. "This tears my guts out."

However, the judge gave Hayes five years on each of two counts of selling cocaine, and added a seven-year probationary period to begin with Hayes' release.

Oct. 21, 1979, Hayes was released from prison for a day, to joined 19 former teammates at a halftime ceremony marking the 20th anniversary of the Dallas Cowboys.

The parole board panel's recommendation will go before Clements on Friday, but he may not act on it immediately.

The governor's office reviews all parole recommendations before final action.

In an earlier interview at the prison, Hayes said he already had plans for his release.

"The first thing I want to do is grab my wife and hug and kiss her," said Hayes.

Obituaries

GENE COMBS

Services will be conducted tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. in the Avenue Baptist Church for Carl Gene Combs, 41, of 433 Ave. K. The Rev. Bob Miller of Happy will officiate. Interment will be in West Park Cemetery under direction of Gilliland-Watson Funeral Home.

Mr. Combs was dead-on-arrival Thursday morning at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo after an apparent heart attack.

Born March 10, 1938 in Plainview he moved to Hereford in 1940 and was manager of the Dairy Queen. He married Sandra Townsend Dec. 18, 1960 in Hereford and she preceded him in death in October of 1979. He was a member of Avenue Baptist Church.

Survivors include a daughter, Eugenia Combs of the home; a son, Chip Combs of the home; and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Combs, also of Hereford.

BRUCE L. MILLER

Memorial services for Lieutenant Commander Bruce Lafayette Miller, 32, will be held at 11 a.m. Monday in St. Thomas Episcopal Church with the Rev. Charles Threewit, vicar, conducting the requiem eucharist. The family will receive visitors immediately afterwards at the church.

Serving in the U.S. Navy, Lt. Comdr. Miller was lost at sea on Dec. 29 as a result of an accident during flight operations aboard the USS Kitty Hawk in the Arabian Sea. He was serving as a radar observer.

Born Aug. 23, 1947 in New York, N.Y. he was the son of longtime Hereford attorney Bruce L. Miller Sr. and his wife, Katy. He attended local grade schools and graduated from Culver Military Academy. He was an alumnus of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.

He was a member of St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

Surviving him are the widow, the former Vickie Loretta Inman of Oak Harbor, Wash.; two daughters of the home; two sisters, Kathy Miller and Pamela Miller, both of Santa Fe, N.M.; an uncle, James T. Marshall of Edna; and an aunt, Mrs. Milo K. Roth of Silom Springs, Ark.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests memorial donations to the Children's Orthopedic Hospital and Medical Center at Seattle, Wash. Donations may be made in care of St. Thomas Church.

Holiday Dinner Draws Crowd

Nearly 100 persons gathered last week for the Aggie Mothers Club annual holiday dinner.

Special guests were Dr. W.J. Hill, D.V.M., of Dimmitt, and his wife and two sons. Dr. Hill, graduate of Texas A&M University School of Veterinary Medicine, spoke to the group about motivation, attitude and goal setting. He encouraged the students especially to "feed their minds" constantly and listed several books he has found to be motivating influences in his own experience.

The barbeque dinner was catered by Savage's Hickory Pit at the Community Center. Elizabeth Brown of Adrian, vice president in charge of projects, directed the plans for the evening and the decorations. Individual tables were decorated with TAM banners while a large maroon and white bouquet of carnations adorned the speaker's table.

Katie Wright of Dimmitt and member of the Aggie Moms created a three-tiered cake topped with a miniature Aggie football helmet. Another small replica depicting "Ole Sarge" stood between the pillared tiers. The cake consisted of maroon and white layers.

Other tables contained pictures, books, albums and other memorabilia pertaining to Texas A&M University.

Charmayne Klett, club presidents, served as mistress of ceremonies and introduced the speaker. Barbara Hardin, immediate past president, read a brief history of the Aggie Mothers Club since its birth in 1922. The Hereford club was formed nearly 10 years ago with nine members and now has approximately 40 members.

Jason Clark, sophomore student and member of the Texas Aggie Band, presented a film of the band's halftime performance at a 1978 homefield football game.

Mrs. Klett introduced three students present who had received the Aggie Moms scholarships prior to entering

A&M as freshmen. There were Rhonda Clark, Doug Walterschied and David Fish. Eight scholarships have been presented through the years.

The Aggie Moms will install their newly-elected officers at the next meeting scheduled to meet Tuesday, Jan. 29, at the Thompson House at noon.

Outstanding Woman To Be Recognized

The "Outstanding Woman for 1979" will be cited Tuesday evening by the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division during their annual installation dinner at the Community Center. The time is 7:30 p.m.

This is the ninth consecutive year that the coveted honor has been bestowed on a Women's Division member in recognition of her service to the Chamber and the community in general. Previous recipients of the honor have been Irene McKinster, Katherine Kester, Violet "Peaches" Reinauer, Wynelle Robinson, Lavon Nieman, Inez Albright, Sherry Hoover and Susie McGee.

Making the surprise presentation Tuesday evening will be the 1977 recipient, Sherry Hoover. This year's award-winner will receive an engraved silver cup and a sheath of roses.

Tuesday evening's banquet is also important because it will mark the beginning of the 1980 terms of a new slate of officers, to be installed of Frances Berry, president; Betty Gilbert, vice president; Mary Thomas, secretary; Mary Herring, parliamentarian; and Olivia Denning, Leatrus Clark and Marcia Snyder, board members.

Members of the Chamber board of directors will be special guests at the upcoming installation dinner. Women's Division members are also welcome to bring their husbands as guests.

Mary Herring, who is ending her year's term as president, encourages all Women's Division members to attend the installation dinner, to be catered by Dickies Restaurant. Cost per person will be $4.50 and it is asked that individuals make reservations before noon Tuesday by calling the Chamber office, 364-3333.

The installation dinner is the first of four general membership meetings held by the Women's Division throughout the fiscal year. The executive board convenes on a monthly basis.

Banquet Speakers

Participating in the program during the Aggie Mom's recent holiday dinner were, from left, Charmayne Klett, club president; Dr. V.J. Hill, DVM of Dimmitt; and Jason Clark, member of the Texas A&M Aggie Band. The holiday dinner is an annual event of the Aggie Moms Club for A&M Alumni and their families.

Ann Landers

High Stakes

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

When I was in junior high I read your column for laughs. Now that I'm a grown woman, I find myself turning to you for help.

I'm 31 years old and have a wonderful husband and two beautiful children. We have been married for seven years, and he gives me everything I want. I really must be crazy to be taking such chances, but I can't seem to break out of this pattern.

I don't know how to describe my problem except to say I find myself going to bed with every man who pays me a compliment or shows the slightest sign of affection.

This has been going on for the last three years.

My last affair was with a man my husband works with. If he knew, he would throw me out and take the children.

My husband is as straight as an arrow. He has no tolerance for infidelity. I know I have been very lucky, and I simply must stop this sleeping around before my luck runs out. Please, Ann, help me.--The Lady Is A Tramp

DEAR FRIEND: Your story is pathetic--and I've heard it many times before. It sounds as if you grew up without the paternal love you needed as a child. You've been filling in the void by latching on to shoddy substitutes.

You need professional help, and I hope you will get it at once. Now that you have a fine husband you must learn to get your fulfillment from him exclusively. With proper help you can do it--and you must. The stakes are mighty high.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have arthritis of the eyes. This was not my diagnosis. It was my doctor's. The problem is very painful, but worse than the disease is the reaction of my friends. They think it is simply hilarious. I get no understanding or consolation whatever.

A relative who is a physician's assistant told me emphatically that I could not possibly have arthritis of the eyes because arthritis is a disease that affects only the joints.

Will you please publish my letter and verify what I have said? Your word will mean something. Mine doesn't mean a hoot, obviously.--No Laughing Matter In Georgia

DEAR GEORGIA: My word won't carry any more weight than yours, but my consultant in this matter is a most distinguished ophthalmologist, and what he says should count for a great deal.

Dr. David Paton of Houston says arthritis can be found in the eyes. The explanation is much too complicated and clinical to go into here, but you are right--and your friends should stop laughing, for more reasons than one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a girl, 17. I used to be crazy about Jeff but he treated me so rotten I finally told him to get lost. Guys always want what they can't get so he began to hang around a lot. Now I really can't stand him.

Mom thinks Jeff is the living end. He keeps coming over and she has been trying to sell me on him. Last night he sat in the living room for two hours talking to Mom. I read the newspaper and watched TV. I know it was rude but I don't like the jerk.

How can I get Mom to stop being so nice to him? It's just a plot to get me interested.--Jean DEAR JEAN: Since he's your mother's guest you have no obligation beyond saying hello. After that you can excuse yourself and go to another room. Jeff will get the picture soon and give up.

Parents Advised To Accept Their Child's Illness

BALTIMORE (AP) — It is normal for parents whose child has a permanent disability to feel some responsibility, but guilt feelings must be eliminated for the good of the child, says McKay Vernon, of the department of psychology, Western Maryland College.

"The guilt feeling has such pervasive effects on human behavior that its presence must be recognized and resolved if permanent social, psychological and educational damage is not done to the child," says Dr. Vernon, who serves as chairman of the Human Advisory Services Board of the National Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation.

The organization offers counseling services to parents of children who are slowly losing their sight because of RP, a hereditary disabling eye disease, which most often leads to total blindness.

To most parents, Vernon points out, the discovery of an irreversible disease of any kind is a traumatic blow, the full depth of which is rarely sensed by the doctor making the diagnosis.

"Counseling at this point is largely wasted," Vernon explains, "because the lengthy details about rehabilitation come at a time when parents are in such shock that they are unable to assimilate the information."

The difficult task of guiding parents through a predictable series of emotional stages until they reach that important stage of acceptance is a responsibility that largely falls on the shoulders of the consulting physician, he points out.

Denial is the first reaction, according to Vernon, a defensive mechanism that accents the positive and minimizes the unfavorable aspects when the traumatic discovery is made. This is followed by a period of mourning and grief.

"This is an accepted reaction to tragedy, but if it is not openly felt and expressed, the result can have serious emotional repercussions," says Vernon.

It's got to be a euphoric feeling to be wanted and needed and be in a position to respond. I thank God for those who do.

Women Urged To Prepare For Jobs in Management

NEW YORK (AP) — Fact: A woman with a college education, working full time, earns less today than a man who is a high-school dropout.

Fact: Women hold only 22 percent of all managerial jobs, and they earn only 59 percent of what their male counterparts are earning.

"Those recent government findings are a dose of reality for those who believe that women managers are faring well in business," says Eleanor Diston, vice president of an executive search firm.

"Many stories have been written about successful women and their achievements. However, it's important to understand how small that percentage of successful women is. We should take a long, hard look at working women as a whole, and then measure their success," says Ms. Diston, of MSL International Consultants Ltd.

Top corporate executives really are not rejecting women who want to move up, Ms. Diston concedes. The problem is that there just aren't enough women with the required background and training to fill those executive spots, she explains, citing figures from the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor.

"We can obtain more of those management jobs, and enjoy higher salaries," she says, "if our qualifications are equal to our male counterparts. There's no question in my mind that we've got to be equipped for those high level jobs first."

"Also," she adds, "and this is very important, women must be aware of their management paths. If it's your goal to climb the corporate ladder and become a senior vice president, your management path should assure the appropriate financial and legal grooming required to attain that goal.

"I think we've got to remember that we can't expect to be pushed along -- we've got to do the pushing ourselves," says Ms. Diston, who offers some tips to help fill the void of qualified women and to help women succeed in management:

— Obtain an MBA, with more MBAs flooding the job market than ever before, it has become an important asset.

— Be capable of handling people; in management this is crucial.

— Be tough without being hard; working alongside men doesn't mean that you have to lose your femininity.

— Always act and dress in a businesslike fashion; this can never be overemphasized.

— Show a strong desire to succeed; and don't be easily discouraged if it takes longer than you thought.

— Express yourself clearly and concisely; being articulate is important.

— If you believe strongly in something, don't back off; be assertive without being aggressive.

— Accept criticism gracefully; beware of showing that you're hurt.

— Decide where you want to go, then realistically evaluate your chances of getting there. Be sure to let your supervisor know what your aspirations are.

— Join professional organizations that will give you exposure within your industry or field.

Project Raises More than $4,500

A total of $4,565.78 was contributed to this year's Project Christmas Card, it has been announced by the co-chairmen, Carolyn Canon and Claudia McBrayer.

Proceeds of the recently-waged campaign will be spent on various surgical instruments for the hospital's operating room, mattresses and pillows for the hospital wards and to the existing scholarship fund. The decision of how the PGC money is spent is determined by the city's physicians.

Those individuals and families who contributed to Project Christmas Card were listed in The Brand's Christmas and New Year's issues. However, the following need to be acknowledged for donations: George and Jane Belford and Family and Helen Watts.

The Medical Auxiliary expressed appreciation to all those who supported the recent campaign through their generous donations.

Huckerts to Speak To Women's Aglow

Bob and Doris Huckert will present their Christian testimonies this evening during a meeting of Women's Aglow Fellowship in Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room. The program will begin at 7:30 p.m.

All interested persons are invited to attend to Aglow meeting.

Serving as hostesses will be the chapter officers, including Joan Culp, president; Janet Coleman, vice president; Gwen London, corresponding secretary; Margaret Hare, treasurer; and Clea Bowers, recording secretary.

First Baptist Church

Announces New Schedule

Due to renovations underway in the sanctuary of First Baptist Church, two morning worship services will be held each Sunday in the Fellowship Hall in order to accommodate the congregation. The following schedule will be in effect until construction is completed in mid-May.

The first worship service will begin at 8:45 a.m. Sunday School will follow at 9:45. The second morning service will begin at 11 o'clock. The regular evening service will begin at 7 p.m.

Carter Foes Begin Assault on Iran Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The political truce on President Carter's handling of the Iranian hostage crisis is coming apart. Now the question is whether campaign criticism of the president and his policies will hurt him or help him.

For two months, Carter's challengers have been relatively restrained on an issue that has helped revive the political fortunes of the president.

When Sen. Edward M. Kennedy talked about Iran, it was with a denunciation of the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, not with direct criticism of Carter and his policies. Those comments boomeranged, and Kennedy wound up the object of a wave of criticism for a statement the administration said was not helpful in its efforts to gain release of the hostages.

Republican National Chairman Bill Brock now has assailed Carter's policy as one of weakness and deception. He said Republican presidential candidates shouldn't be constrained on anything save the specifics of administration efforts to get the hostages freed.

He also said he was not reneging on a Nov. 29 pledge of support for Carter's efforts to gain release of the hostages. He and Democratic National Chairman John C. White joined in that pledge as a signal of national unity.

White said Wednesday that Brock had put that unity in question. He said that discipline had been almost universal until Brock broke ranks.

Actually, the truce was coming unraveled before Brock spoke out.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. already had accused Carter of playing politics with the hostage situation. Brown, who had quoted heavily on a Jan. 7 debate in Des Moines to bolster his campaign, said Carter's withdrawal from that forum amounted to "exploiting the plight of the hostages to help his own campaign."

Republican campaigners like John B. Connally, Ronald Reagan and Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. have been criticizing administration policies they say are signals of weakness that encouraged the Iranians to think they could seize hostages and get away with it.

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas said Carter "bears a heavy responsibility" for the continuing captivity of the hostages, and questioned whether Carter really is doing all he can to get them out.

That's as far as any candidate has gone in criticizing Carter on the specific question of gaining release of the hostages. Their comments have, for the most part, been more general.

Carter has canceled his own campaign appearances, saying he has to stay in constant touch with developments in Iran. While that crisis persists, he said, he will forgo "events which are exclusively part of a partisan political campaign."

That casts him as a president doing his job, apart from and, in effect, above the political battle. That course has paid political dividends in his resurgent ratings in the public opinion polls.

Women Gain High Offices During 1979

NEW YORK (AP) — It was not politics as usual in 1979 — a year in which a woman became prime minister of England and others of her sex were challenging the "For Men Only" tradition in government leadership all over the globe.

When Margaret Thatcher and the Conservative Party swept to victory in Britain's general election, she became the first woman to be prime minister in any European country. The new resident at No. 10 Downing Street in London is a 53-year-old Oxford-educated chemist and lawyer.

In the United States, another political first was scored when Jane M. Byrne was elected first woman mayor of Chicago. Mrs. Byrne, 44-year-old Democrat, took over the running of the nation's second largest city after winning a landslide victory.

Maria de Lourdes Pintasilgo joined Mrs. Thatcher as a European government head when she was named first woman prime minister of Portugal. The 49-year-old chemical engineer and diplomat is a longtime feminist.

Bolivia got its first woman chief of state in 154 years of independence when Lidia Gueiler, 51, was selected by the country's congress to serve as interim president until an election next May.

Simone Veil of France was elected president of the 410-member European Parliament. The 52-year-old champion of liberal abortion laws and women's rights served as health minister of France for five years before being elected to the parliament of the nine-nation European Common Market.

And in this country, President Carter nominated 54-year-old Judge Shirley Mount Husted, of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit, as Secretary of the new Department of Education.

Janet L. Norwood, 55, a former economics professor named commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, became the first woman to hold the top post in the agency's 95-year history.

A Denver lawyer and former deputy attorney general, Jean Eberhart Dubofsky, 37, was appointed the first woman Supreme Court justice in the 103-year history of Colorado.

Not only in government, but in other fields, women were still breaking barriers.

For the first time in its 300-year existence, the French Academy of Sciences elected a woman as a full-fledged member. Physicist Yvonne Choquet-Bruhat, 55, was honored by the prestigious academy for her studies of Einstein's theory of relativity, the dynamics of fluids and the links between gravitational and electro-magnetic fields.

Betsy Ancker-Johnson, former assistant secretary of commerce for science and technology, was elected the first female vice president of General Motors Corp. Dr. Ancker-Johnson, 51, is in charge of the company's environmental activities staff.

Joining her a few months later as a GM executive was Marina von Neumann Whitman, named chief economist of that company and also a vice president. Dr. Whitman, 44, is a former White House economic adviser.

At American Motors Corp., Dr. Patricia Shontz Longe, professor of business administration at the University of Michigan Graduate School of Business Administration, became the first woman to be elected to that company's board of directors.

Beverly Sills, 50, former prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera, took over as new director of the New York City Opera.

When she was named cadet regimental commander at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, Cadet 1st Class Linda Johansen, 21-year-old senior, became the first woman to command an entire cadet corps at any of the nation's four service academies. There are 83 women among the total student body of 817 at the Academy in New London, Conn.

Lt. j.g. Beverly Kelley at 26 became the first woman in history to command a U.S. military vessel. She assumed duties as commanding officer of a Coast Guard cutter, the 95-foot Cape Newagen, which has a 14-member, all-male crew.

Just two months later, a second woman — 25-year-old Lt. j.g. Susan Ingalls — took over as skipper of another U.S. Coast Guard cutter, the Cape Current, with a 13-member, all-male crew.

On another waterfront, women were adding a new word to the vocabulary of labor: longshorewoman. The first ever allowed to work as dock hands on New York City's piers proved they could handle a forklift as deftly as a fork.

Ten years after women were first admitted to Yale University, and for the first time in the 101 years the Yale Daily News has been published, a woman took over the editorship. The editor-in-chief is Anne Gardner Perkins, a 20-year-old junior from Baltimore, a history major.

Cathleen Black, appointed publisher of New York magazine, at 35 became the nation's first woman publisher of a major weekly magazine.

Columbus Enjoys Real Dog's Life

HOUSTON (AP) — Perched on his master's shoulder, Columbus is a white rat leading a dog's life and couldn't be happier.

"He's a great pet and he's wonderful with kids," says Kelly Dillen, who wants to be an animal health technician and admits a long-standing grudge against rats in general.

"We had a behavioral training project (in school) and most of the class used rats except me," she says. "I used a dog. I just couldn't understand why anyone would want to work with a rat."

But when a classmate decided to release Columbus in an apartment complex after the project was over, the soft spot in her heart for animals overruled her own distaste for Columbus and his brethren.

"Columbus knows me and he knows his name," Ms. Dillen says, even though Columbus is probably a mental midget when compared with the neighborhood pooch.

"Yesterday he was on my sister's shoulder and I came in and he ran straight to me. Of course, I feed him, so he also identifies me through that."

However, Columbus is no ordinary rat and bloodlines count — even in varmits. Columbus, says Ms. Dillen, is a Long Evans Hooded Rat, bred especially for laboratory work.

"It does make a difference," she says. "Lab rats are bred to be better-natured, intelligent and to stand pressure. They are also much cleaner. He washes himself like a cat after I pick him up."

Although she is amused by the adverse reaction many people have to her unusual pet, she says much of people's aversion to rats can be blamed on bad press.

"As a breed, they've gotten a lot of bad publicity from television and the movie 'Willard.' Also, I guess women traditionally have always disliked rodents."

"Mostly, they look at him (Columbus) and say 'Yuck.' One woman I know ran clear across the room when she first saw him," she says. "It's the tail that gets them. It is pretty ugly and gets worse as rats grow older."

"But," she says, "I do think people should realize that there are 'rats' and there are 'rats.'"

When she finishes her two-year course at Houston Community College, Ms. Dillen says she would like to take her love for animals on the road and join a circus, but says she would only do it for a year "because I know it would be rough."

It may be lonely, too. A close friend's father recently told her it might be difficult to find a steady boyfriend if she insisted on keeping Columbus perched on her shoulder.

"I just didn't care," she says. "I guess it's gotten down to a case of 'love me, love my rat.'"

Today In History

By The Associated Press Today is Friday, Jan. 4, the fourth day of 1980. There are 362 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 4, 1790, President George Washington delivered the first message on the state of the nation.

On this date: In 1642, Sir Isaac Newton, who wrote the law of gravity, was born.

In 1938, the British postponed a plan for the partition of Palestine.

In 1951, North Korean and Chinese forces took Seoul in Korea.

In 1972, Pakistan sought talks with India after the war that resulted in East Pakistan becoming the independent state of Bangladesh.

In 1978, President Carter conferred with Egypt's

President Sadat in Aswan. Ten years ago, Israel said it downed two Egyptian fighter planes attacking across the Suez Canal, while Egypt said it downed one Israeli jet.

Five years ago, President Gerald Ford set up a special commission to look into allegations of wrongdoing by the CIA.

One year ago, President Carter, Britain's Prime Minister Callaghan, France's President Giscard D'Estaing and West Germany's Chancellor Schmidt opened a two-day summit on the Caribbean island of Guadeloupe.

Life-Support Ordered Disconnected from Baby

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A county judge has ordered doctors to disconnect life-support equipment from a comatose infant for three minutes to determine if the alleged child-abuse victim is "brain dead."

Judge Ron Rogg of Sedgwick County District Court on Thursday ordered a series of tests for the infant after a hearing on a suit by his stepfather, who is seeking to keep him on the respirator.

Thomas Saad, 25, has been charged with aggravated battery and could be charged with murder if 3-month-old Michael Saad dies.

The infant was listed in critical condition early today.

Rogg said the test results would be presented when the hearing reconvened today.

Physicians from Wesley Medical Center testified Thursday that Michael's brain was dead. Under Kansas law, a patient is legally and medically dead if there is "an absence of spontaneous brain function" for a sufficient amount of time.

Hospital attorney John Gibson argued that Saad was challenging the doctors' decision "only to better his own defense."

The baby has been on life-support equipment since he arrived at the hospital on Christmas Eve with massive head injuries. His stepfather was arrested and charged three days later, and is being held in the county jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Saad filed suit from his jail cell to keep his stepson's life-support equipment operating, and Rogg issued a temporary restraining order upholding the request.

Saad's court-appointed attorney, Steve Robison, told the judge Thursday that Michael is legally still alive, but Gibson said the hospital's tests are conclusive that "the brain of this child is no longer functioning."

Dr. Richard Gilmartin, a Wesley neurologist and head of the hospital's "brain death" team, testified his team performed all but three of the hospital tests for possible brain death.

Gilmartin said the court order last week prevented him from removing the life-support devices for a few minutes and from performing two other tests. He said the three tests were on the team's checklist, but were not necessary to conclude that the boy's brain was dead.

An EEG performed last Friday showed no signs of brain activity and a brain scan showed no blood flow in the brain, he said. Gilmartin testified that a hospital panel was unanimous in its conclusion that brain death had occurred. He said he did not think the additional tests were necessary, but wouldn't object to them.

Michael's physician, Katherine Pennington, testified that she agreed with the panel's conclusion and saw no need for the additional tests. She also testified that it would be "a disservice to the child to keep him on the respirator at this point."

The boy's mother, Karen, joined her husband in the suit Thursday, saying she hoped to "find out if there are any more tests that can be done."

She and Saad were married last summer.

Bright and Brief

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The state Division of Taxation said John Cervase misfigured his taxes. By 13 cents.

Now the tax people want Cervase, a retired lawyer, to pay a $10 late-filing penalty, and he's gone to court over it.

Although he is retired, Cervase keeps a desk, filing cabinet and telephone in his home and handles an occasional case or two. He sent the tax department $1.30 for business personal property tax last year.

But the state determined Cervase should have paid $1.43. Because the 13 pennies were late, the state also charged him $10 in late filing penalties and up to $2 a day plus interest.

"There must be a limit in a reasonable law beyond which penalties are barred," said Cervase. "I would think a 13-cent deficiency ought to be within the excusable limits."

He paid the bill, but took his case to Small Claims Court, where he is asking for $8.83 plus court costs and interest for the penalties.

RICH SQUARE, N.C. (AP) — Ominous black clouds have been passing over Rich Square every morning and evening. The usually crisp air has begun to sour with a foul odor and awesome, screeching echoes.

The blackbirds are back. Although no one knows just how many birds have flocked to this Northampton County town, fair estimates range in the millions.

"I figure them at 6,341,900," said one resident, Frazier Helms. "I count their little feet and then divide by two."

The starlings and grackles have become the target of a lot of dirty-bird jokes in Rich Square, mostly because the 2,500 folks who live here do not know what else to do about the winged intruders.

Health officials say the flock does not yet pose a health hazard, although they promised to keep an eye on the situation.

The Town Council elected to do nothing because, as one councilman put it, "There is absolutely nothing we can do with millions and millions and millions of birds who refuse to go."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Henry Gooden had lunch last week with Mayor-elect Bill Green, and he's says he supposed to meet President Carter some time in March.

"It's all part of my plan to become mayor," says Henry, who is 13 years old.

Twice a week now for two years, Henry has been visiting the seat of city government, getting chummy with some of the town's top officials.

It all began when a teacher at Ada H. Lewis Middle School in Germantown, where Henry is an eighth-grader, suggested that he quench his thirst for politics firsthand.

During Mark Twain's days as a newspaperman, he was editor of a small Missouri paper. One day he received a letter from a subscriber, stating that he had found a spider in his paper, and asked if this was an omen of good or bad luck.

Twain replied: "Finding a spider in your paper is neither good nor bad luck. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising so that he could go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

HHS Girls Come From Behind; Beat Caprock 57-51

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Brand Sports Editor

When the Hereford Whiteface girls' varsity basketball team hit the court here Thursday night against Caprock they proved three things. First, that Hereford just isn't big enough for two different Herds. Second, that the Hereford Whitefaces are a tougher breed than their Longhorn counterparts and third, that they just won't lay down and die unless you give them a real good reason to.

The HHS Herd trampled Caprock in a come from behind 57-51 victory in the La Plata Jr. High Gymnasium and advanced its season win mark to 9-7. The loss tumbled the Longhorns into a 3-15 pit.

The Longhorn's opened up the play early in the first quarter with a small 4-0 lead, but almost five minutes passed before fans would be granted another scoring display from either team. At that point Caprock and Hereford saw which team could miss the most shots and still win the game.

Once again, however it was the Longhorns who went ahead and broke the scoring ice.

It was only when Caprock had added up a 10 point lead 10-0 with 2:14 remaining on the clock, that Hereford stiffened and would not permit anymore one team bandstands.

Sparked by a 10 foot jumper from Lori Albracht, (who netted the second leading scorer for HHS with 20 points), the Whitefaces tallied up six quick points with less than a minute left in the first period. It was a tally that narrowed their deficit to 10-6 before the end of first quarter action.

But the previous scoring slump followed the Whitefaces into the second quarter as the Longhorn's capitalized on numerous HHS miscues and racked up 13 unanswered points to the tune of a 21-8 advantage. The advantage seemed impervious and impossible to overcome for HHS, but those words weren't in the Whiteface cager's vocabulary.

Three minutes were left in that period of play when Hereford inflicted a scoring spree of its own, and it was a spree that eventually broke Caprock's back and any hope they might have had about winning the game.

HHS Post woman Louise Mays and forward Lori Albracht ripped the nets for six points each while Rhonda Ford dumped in four to close the Whiteface's scoring gap to a near margin of 28-24 going into the locker room at half.

The stage had been set. And all the Herd needed then was to cap off the performance and that's exactly what they did.

After a brief exchange of shots by both teams early in the third period, Mays drove the baseline and dropped in the game tying bucket. Then Cathy Lang brought the Herd it's first lead of the match (34-32) as she connected on a jump shot from the bottom of the key.

The Whiteface's had received the taste of blood and they liked it so well that they just decided to make a meal out of it, as they jumped to a 43-38 lead.

HHS never relinquished the five point lead and the only thing left for Caprock to do was to start the crying. The Longhorns had been corraled by a superior herd.

"I don't think it was the layoff that hurt us in that first half of play, but rather that they were just trying too hard," said HHS head coach Larry Sowers. "I really pumped them up before the game and that might have had something to do with their trying to hard."

"We can be one of the best scoring clubs around if we take our time, but in that first quarter we were just rushing our shots too much," said Sowers. "But I'm very pleased with the intensity they showed and the fact that they didn't give up when it would have been easy to."

Hereford 6 18 12 21--57
Caprock 10 18 8 15
HHS -- Amy Schumacher 1 2 4;
Lori Albracht 6 8 20; Cathy Lane 2 1 5; Rhonda Ford 1 2 4;
Beverly Nixon 2 0 4; Louise Mays 3 9 15; Deborah Rodgers 2 0 4; Joyce High 0 1 1. Team totals 17 23 - 57.
CHS -- Felton 1 8 10; Walker 6 5 17. Team Totals 15 21-51.

UP AND IN -- Hereford forward Lori Albracht (40) goes up for a jump shot in Thursday nights come from behind victory over the Caprock Longhorns as Louise Mays (34) and Cathy Lane ready themselves for the rebound. Albracht netted 20 points to grasp second leading scorer honors for the Herd.

CORNER SHOT -- Cathy Lane (24) tries an attempt from the corner as Beverly Nixon (32) and some Caprock players look on. The Whitefaces defeated the Longhorns 57-51, and advanced their season record mark to 9-7.

Tech, A&M Win Openers

Associated Press Writer
Texas basketball Coach Abe Lemons, known for his quick sense of humor, borrowed a line from comedian Flip Wilson after his first conference game of the year, but he wasn't trying to be funny.

"What you see is what you get," said Lemons after Texas Tech beat Texas 57-54 in Austin Thursday night. "We've got guys who just don't know where to go or what to do."

In other opening-night SWC action, Texas A&M struggled to a 69-63 win over Texas Christian, Arkansas cruised past Southern Methodist 84-69 and Houston beat Rice 78-70.

"Probably the biggest key for us was our defensive play," said Tech coach Gerald Myers after the win over Texas. "We seemed to keep them off-balance a little bit."

That defense held the normally hot-shooting Texas guards to a total of six points to help throw the Longhorns off their game.

"Jeff Taylor played real well on both ends of the court," said Myers in what has to rank as the understatement of the night.

Taylor led Tech scorers with 18 points and covered Texas guard George Turner like a coat of paint. He held Turner to four points, 31 less than Turner's output in his last two games, and forced several turnovers.

Texas Christian out-rebounded and out-shot the taller Aggies, but A&M outscored the Horned Frogs by eight from the free throw line to take the three-point win in Fort Worth.

"We hit our free throws down the stretch, didn't we?" asked winning coach Shelby Metcalf. "I was proud of that."

However, Metcalf had a mild reprimand for his team. "We need to start playing harder," he said. "Our forwards have been carrying us too much lately."

Forward Vernon Smith led the Aggies in scoring with 21 and in rebounds with 10, while 6-11 post man Rudy Woods captured just one rebound in the game.

"You can't underestimate Rice," said Houston guard Robert Williams after he and back-court partner Kenneth "Juice" Williams combined for 39 points for the win over the Owls. "Anyone that takes them lightly will get beat."

Houston went to a full-court press in the second half to seal the win, and Williams said that was the difference.

"The press definitely changed the tempo for us," he said. "It gave us the edge ... and that's what we intend for it to do."

After Arkansas rolled past SMU in Fayetteville to break a three-game losing string, the Hogs' coach and center sounded clear warnings to future opponents.

"This basketball team is not as good as some in the past but I believe we will get better and become a good team," said coach Eddie Sutton.

"I think tonight we re-established ourselves ... and regained some confidence," said center Alan Zahn. "We've re-dedicated ourselves after the three losses and it seems to me we're much closer now."

Clippers Clobbered By Knicks, 138-101

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"We were awful, just awful," said Gene Shue, coach of the San Diego Clippers. Then he broke into a laugh.

The Clippers had just been clobbered by the New York Knicks 138-101 Thursday night in a game that was decided in the very first quarter. The Knicks broke in front 16-3, built the lead to 30 points after one period and never let the Clippers back into contention.

So why was Shue laughing? "I can laugh because I know it's just one game," he said. "We'll come back tomorrow and play the way we can -- I've got to believe that. Tonight? It was just one of those nights when nothing goes right. It was a bad game ... obviously."

The Clippers shot 5-for-26 -- a .192 percentage -- in the first quarter, when the Knicks ran off streaks of 12, 12 and 10 consecutive points to bust the game wide open at 42-12. New York led by 34 points in the second quarter and by at least 20 throughout the second half, with the gap reaching 40 points in the final minute.

"We put them in a position where they just gave up," said guard Ray Williams, who led nine Knicks scoring in double figures with 23 points. "I sensed at times they didn't want to play."

In other National Basketball Association games Thursday night, the New Jersey Nets upset the Atlanta Hawks 126-119, the Philadelphia 76ers trimmed the Cleveland Cavaliers 109-108 and the Milwaukee Bucks defeated the Indiana Pacers 106-96.

Nets 126, Hawks 119

Mike Newlin scored 10 of his 24 points in the final period as the Nets broke Atlanta's seven-game home winning streak.

Three baskets by Atlanta's Charlie Criss cut the deficit to three points at 122-119 before Newlin sealed the verdict with a 15-foot jumper over the Hawks' Eddie Johnson with 15 seconds to play.

76ers 109, Cavs 108

Maurice Cheeks' basket and two free throws in the final 33 seconds rallied the 76ers to their fifth victory in the last six starts.

The Cavaliers led by as many as 13 points in the first half before the Sixers came back behind Julius Erving, who scored 20 of his game-high 35 points after intermission.

Bucks 106, Pacers 96

Dave Meyers scored a season-high 26 points and Junior Bridgeman added 23, all but two in the last 18 minutes, as the Bucks broke a three-game losing streak and dealt Indiana its fourth straight loss.

Olympic Preview Seen For U.S. Swimmers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — In what is billed as a "1980 Olympic Preview," five national women's teams, as well as individual swimmers from five other countries, will compete here Saturday and Sunday.

Some 175-200 swimmers have entered the meet, including seven women who hold eight world records.

This will be the third annual USA Women's International Swimming Competition.

The first was held at Brown University in Providence, R.I., in 1978 and the second at Harvard in Cambridge, Mass., last year.

Although officials will not keep team points, the individual performances should give an indication of the countries' relative strengths in advance of the Olympics this year.

The national teams entered are from the United States, Russia, East Germany — which dominated the 1976 Olympics at Montreal, Canada, by winning 11 of 13 possible gold medals — Canada and Sweden.

The United States team was chosen on the basis of their times at the 1979 AAU Long Course National Championships. It includes world record holders Tracy Caulkins, 200-meter and 400-meter individual medleys; Sippy Woodhead, 200-meter freestyle; Kim Linehan, 1,500-meter freestyle; and Linda Jezek, 200-meter backstroke.

The other world record holders are Russia's Julia Bogdanova, 100-meter breaststroke, and Lina Kachushite, 200-meter breaststroke, and East Germany's Barbara Krause, 100-meter freestyle.

Krause, 20, missed the 1976 Olympics because of illness but has won every 100-meter race she has entered since 1976.

She was the first woman to break 56 seconds in the 100 freestyle — 54.41 — and two minutes — 1:59.03 — in the 200 freestyle.

Woodhead, however, has since broken the 200 freestyle record.

Stanton Frosh Belt Boys Ranch

The Stanton Jr. High boys ninth grade basketball team stuck another win under its already heavy 10-1 win belt Thursday, as it traveled to Olden County and gave Boys Ranch a 72-45 lesson in roundball play.

The final score wasn't quite indicative of how closely matched the two teams were at one point because both went into the locker room at halftime tied 31-31.

But led by the hot shooting of Jay Hodge-17 points, Alfred Ball 16, and Charles McDowell with 12 points for the night, the Dogies nailed the lead shut on Boys Ranch.

The 8th grade Dogie team won their bout also as Johnny Adame, Craig Jones and Gomer Garcia each dropped in eight points to lead the scoring in the 29-23 win. Cager Jeff Streun followed in the scoring tally with a total of five for the match.

In the 7th grade contest, the Dogies weren't so lucky however, as the efforts of Lee Brockman, who had 12 points and Kevin Reeves with a tally of 10 went for nought and ended up as a 29-23 loss.

The next scheduled action for the Stanton teams is slated for Monday Jan. 7th as the 8th and 9th grade pair off against the Pampa Red teams. The seventh grade is scheduled to play the Dumas Demons.

Oilers May Be Ready For Pittsburgh Invasion

Win or Lose, McKay Proved Point With Cinderella Buccaneers

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Even if the clock strikes 12 for John McKay's Cinderella Tampa Bay Buccaneers Sunday, the old "Silver Fox" won't be riding out of Tampa Stadium in a pumpkin and without his shoes.

He'll be leaning back in the fanciest chariot you ever saw, adoring crowds screaming his praises and he puffing away contentedly on his big fat cigar while leering at his critics.

Win or lose against the favored Los Angeles Rams in the National Football Conference's championship game, the 56-year-old retreat from college ranks has made good his boasts and proved two things conclusively: 1. He can coach football, whether it be sandlot, college or pro; 2. He has few peers as a judge of football flesh.

Take the first point: When McKay left the security of the University of Southern California, where he forged championship teams over a 16-year stretch, to accept a $1.5 million contract to take over a ragtag expansion pro team on the other coast in 1976, he was labeled a fool.

College coaches just don't make it in the pros, hardened observers insisted, citing Dan Devine and Tommy Prothro as examples. Of course, this isn't an absolute. But percentages support the theory. Lou Holtz and Chuck Fairbanks fled back to the campus and Bud Wilkinson, one of the legends, found he couldn't stand the gaff.

"Football is football," McKay retorted laconically. "Give me five years and I'll give you a contender."

Now here he is — he and all his beleaguered proteges in their Florida orange colors — one step away from the Super Bowl. The old game has never witnessed such a dramatic turnaround.

Now for the second point: Reeling from 26 straight losses and buffeted by the insults of his disappointed and impatient bay area fans, the former USC genius had a chance to redeem himself by grabbing Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh, the all-time leading ball carrier of college football, in the 1977 draft.

When Tampa Bay's name was called, first out of the box, McKay stunned everybody.

"Ricky Bell," he said, choosing a hard-running tailback he had tutored at Southern Cal.

"Boo, boo, boo!" screamed Tampa Bay fans.

"Home-cooking," growled unbelieving impartial critics.

"Stupid," said the experts.

For two years it looked as if the second-guessers were right. While Dorsett, despite injury problems and a tendency to fumble, was making his mark with the Dallas Cowboys, Bell was joining his old boss in taking the heat at Tampa Bay, gaining only 436 yards his rookie year in 1977 and 689 last season.

The taunts escalated.

"It was one of the smartest moves coach ever made," O.J. Simpson, another McKay disciple, was saying at the Rose Bowl earlier this week. "Ricky is much more durable than Dorsett. Tony is great but I don't think he could have stood up under the torment Bell took the first couple of years."

By The Associated Press

Facing the Steelers in Pittsburgh is a little like going off to war, so it isn't surprising that the Houston Oilers may be suffering from some preinvasion jitters.

The Oilers and their coach, Bum Phillips, are normally an easy-going group, but two incidents Thursday indicated that they may be coming down with a case of "Pittsburgh Paranoia," a very common ailment in the National Football League. The Steelers, who destroyed Houston 34-5 in last year's American Football Conference Championship game, meet the Oilers Sunday in Pittsburgh for the AFC title.

Quarterback Dan Pastorini, recovering from a groin injury that sidelined him last week, shoved a writer through a door and had to be restrained by Phillips. No punches were exchanged but the writer's jacket was torn as the two fell through the door.

In a rare move, Phillips closed the team's workout from the press. Several Pittsburgh newsmen had been escorted from the Oiler dressing room following Wednesday's practice.

Neither Pastorini nor Dale Robertson, who covers the Oilers for the Houston Post, were injured in the scuffle that the writer said had been simmering for some time. Pastorini has not talked to Robertson for much of the season because the quarterback was annoyed at several stories that had appeared in the Post, Robertson said.

Robertson had quoted Pastorini in Thursday's paper after listening to a local broadcaster's taped comments from the quarterback.

"He told me not to quote him in the paper unless I talked to him," said Robertson. "I told him I couldn't do that if he didn't talk to me. I told him I had a job to do and was trying to do it the best way I could."

Pastorini refused to comment on the fracas.

Phillips put the Oilers through their paces in secret at Rice Stadium. He apparently was seeking to avoid a recurrence of last week's incident, in which film of a sideline interview picked up a special Oilers blocking scheme and was aired on a San Diego sportscast the night before the game.

Apparently what newsmen couldn't see at the practice was good news for the Oilers. Pastorini, who didn't play last Saturday in the Oilers' 17-14 victory over San Diego, was upgraded from doubtful to questionable, which means he has a 50-50 chance of playing.

Before the scuffle with Robertson, Pastorini said, "There are certain things I have to be able to do, but I'm going to make sure I get as much rest as I can. I'd say it's certain I'll be a starter."

Earl Campbell, the NFL's leading rusher who also missed the San Diego game because of a groin injury, was listed as a probable starter for Sunday's American Football Conference championship game. Campbell called himself 100 percent. Other wounded Oilers upgraded from questionable to probable were running back Rob Carpenter, wide receiver Kenny Burrough and tight end Mike Barber.

It will take more than a broken leg to keep defensive end Jack Youngblood out of the Los Angeles lineup when the Rams and Buccaneers meet in Tampa Sunday for the National Football Conference crown.

"Ain't no time to lag back," said the All-Pro defender. "I'll be out there somehow."

Writer Picks Steelers, Tampa Bay to Win

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

TAMPA BAY (AP) — They are football's own small miracle, a team of unknowns, rarely exposed on national television, hidden away in the closet. Now they are about to complete a giant-sized step up in class.

Would you believe the Tampa Bay Bucs in the Super Bowl?

Nah, no way, you say. The Bucs are losers. Twenty-six times in a row over two dreary seasons. How could the Bucs be in the Super Bowl?

Just sit back and watch it happen.

How could the Mets make it to the World Series in 1969? By having everybody underestimate them, that's how. And now the Bucs are going to pull the same kind of surprise a decade later.

The earmarks are all there.

Consider that the Rams may have to go without All Pro defensive end Jack Youngblood, perhaps their best defensive player.

Consider that the Bucs' 3-4 defense led the league and battered quarterbacks with far more experience than Vince Ferragamo of the Rams.

Consider the home crowd that will have Tampa Bay playing at an emotional feverish pace.

Believe the Bucs. And start figuring out a formula for them against Pittsburgh.

The Picks:

TAMPA BAY 21, LOS ANGELES 13: The Rams are here on a pass — a 50-yard, nothing-to-lose heave by Ferragamo in the dying minutes against Dallas. The Bucs are here on a solid 60-minute wipeout of a pretty good Philadelphia team. Keep that in mind.

Also remember that the Bucs beat LA convincingly here early in the season, when LA was a whole lot healthier than it is now.

So play a hunch and take this underdog. Remember what happened to the favorites last week.

PITTSBURGH 27, HOUSTON 7: The Steelers are awesome. Plain and simple. They won't let Houston's secondary sit back there waiting for passes the way San Diego did.

The Oilers won last week on emotion and perfect execution. The Steelers, however, force mistakes and then take advantage of them.

Pittsburgh is making the Super Bowl an annual outing. And that's as it should be for the best team in the game.

Young Tennis Star Puzzled by Fans

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Little Tracy Austin is a little perplexed.

The 17-year-old mighty mite of women's tennis doesn't quite understand why she hasn't gained more respect for her accomplishments, and why she encounters negative spectator reactions.

A crowd of 9,100 in Capital Centre was clearly for top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd Thursday night, sticking with the erstwhile queen of tennis even while she was being overwhelmed by third-seeded Austin, 7-1, 6-3.

Second-seeded Martina Navratilova also remained unbeaten in the double elimination $250,000 tour championship, advancing with Austin to Saturday's semifinals by beating fourth-seeded Evonne Coolidge-Cawley 6-3, 6-2.

In today's matches, involving players with 1-1 records, Cawley will face Wendy Turnbull and Lloyd takes on Regina Marsikova.

Turnbull eliminated fellow Australian Diane Fromholtz, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, at a Thursday afternoon program attended by only 1,572 fans. Marsikova, a Czechoslovakian, advanced when veteran Australian Kerry Reid defaulted because of recurring elbow tendinitis.

"I was surprised a little bit by the crowd," Austin said, "especially when I double faulted and they clapped. That was kind of bad and it hurt."

"It doesn't really upset me. I'm not going to start crying, or anything," she said, "but I can't get used to it all the way."

"I guess it's because Chris dominated the game for so long that a lot of people still say Chris is No. 1," said Austin, who has beaten Lloyd in five of their last seven head-to-head matches. "I guess I'll have to keep doing it over and over."

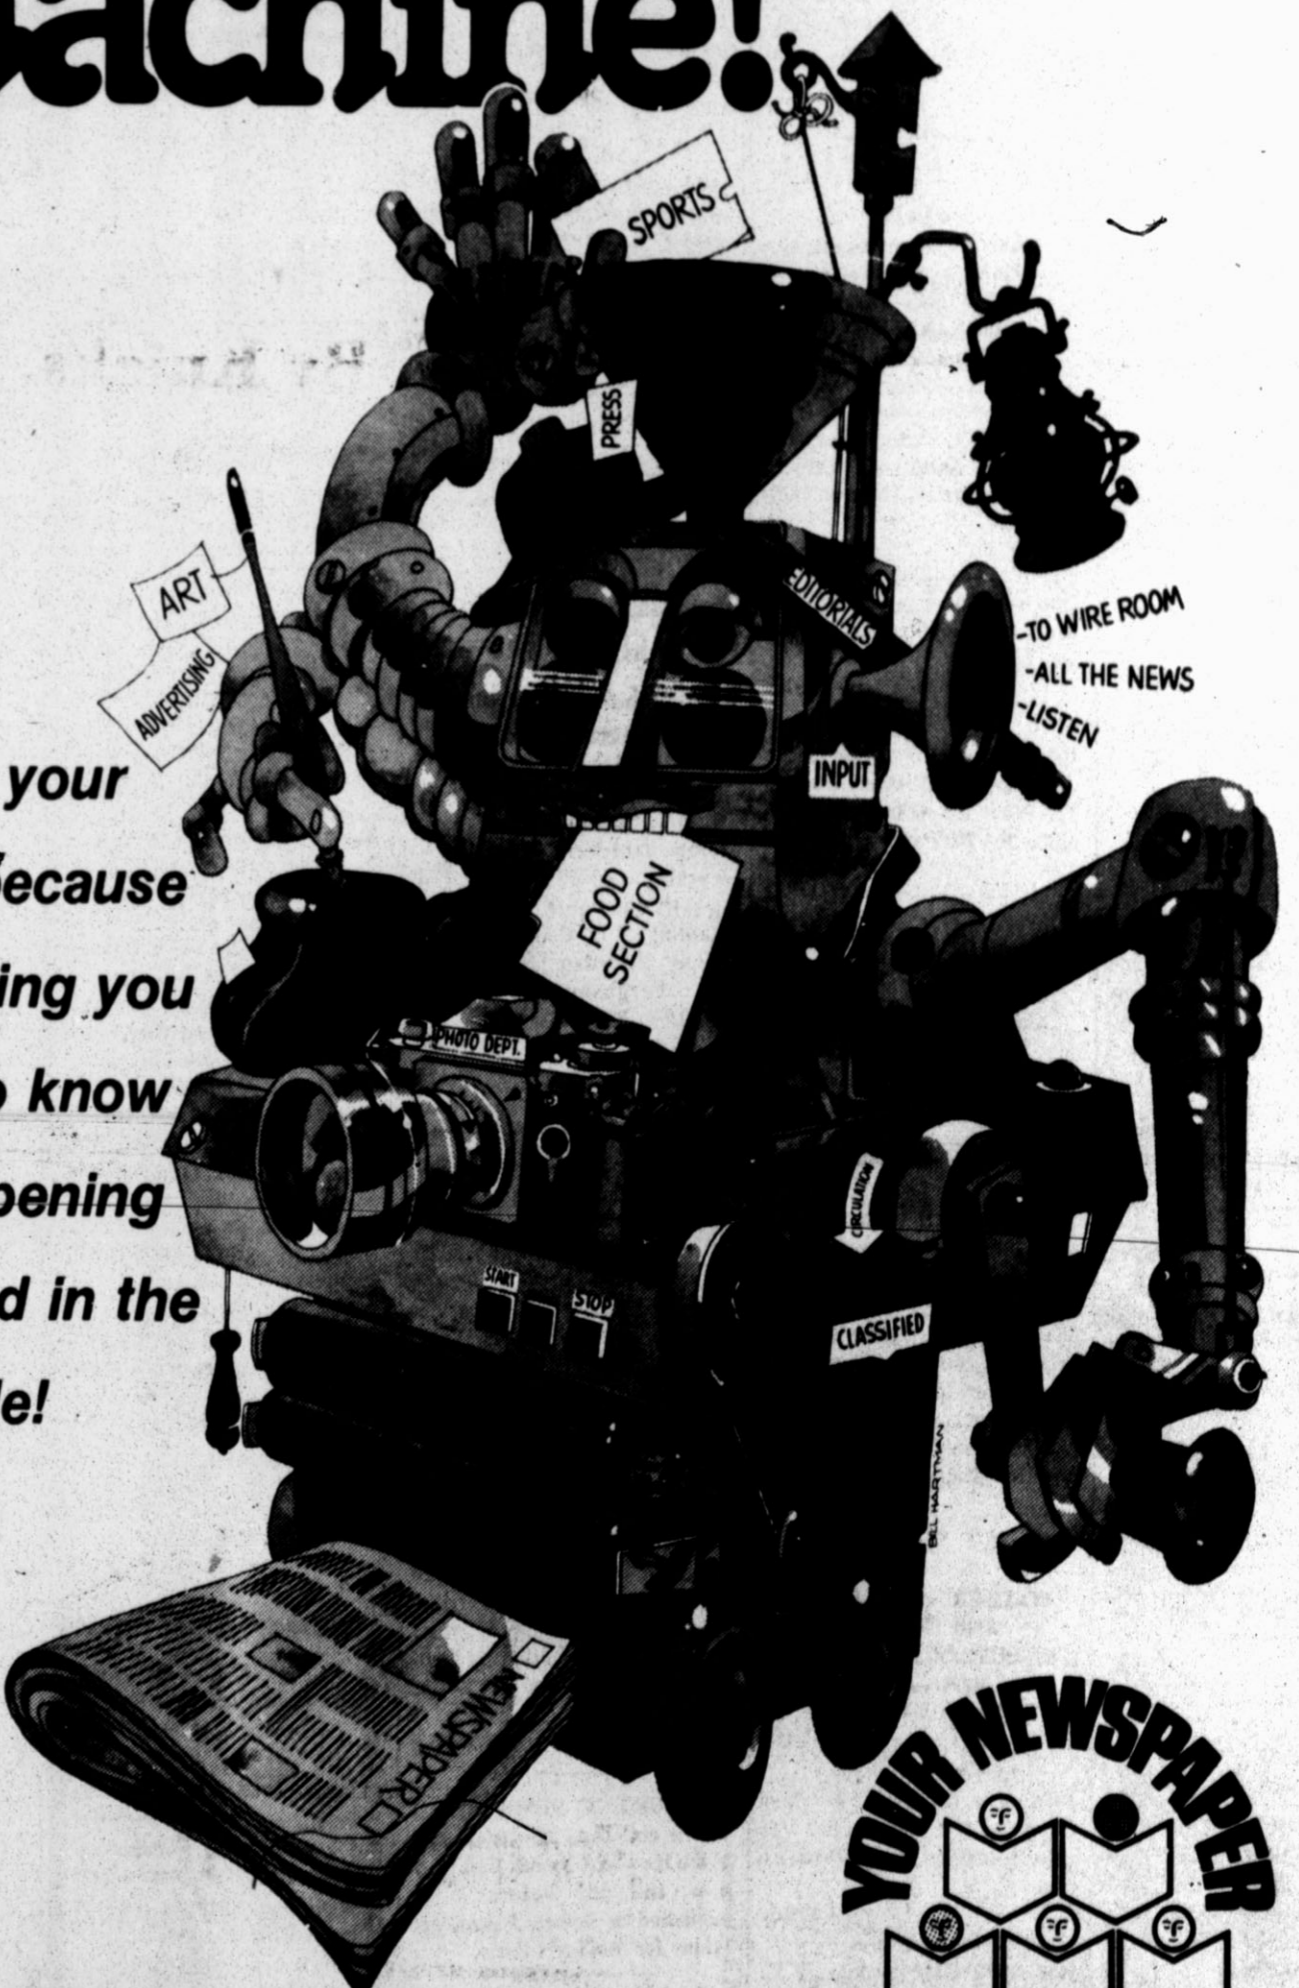

Austin conceded she may actually have been motivated when, after Lloyd put away a backhanded placement to pull even at 15-15 while serving with the second set tied at 3-3, a voice broke the silence with: "Yeh, THAT was Chrissie Evert."

Whatever the reason, Austin swept the next four points to break Lloyd's service for the third time in the set, and lost only two points in the final two games to close out the match.

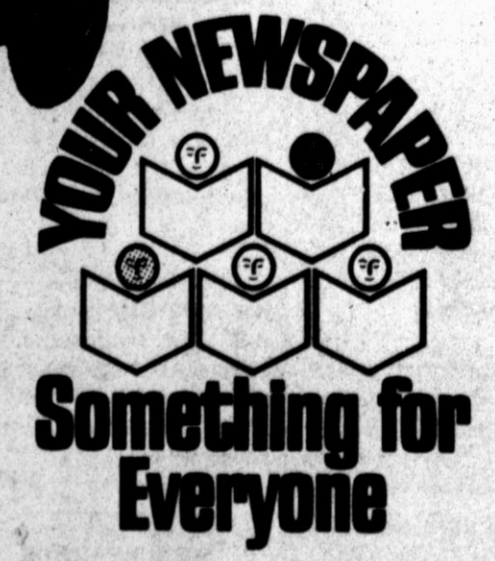

"Maybe it worked to my advantage," Austin said of the easily heard comment, "but I'd still rather have everyone for me."

Rhine Turns to Brine

PARIS (AP) — The Rhine is turning to brine.
The mighty river that has stymied armies, inspired poets and survived the filthy assault of the Industrial Revolution is now the object of a diplomatic brouhaha over salt dumping.
Holland claims its sector of the 820-mile Rhine is growing saltier, primarily because the Potash Mines of Alsace, located upriver in France, each year dump about 6 million tons of waste salt into the waterway.
That figure represents almost half the river's salt content.
This month, when France balked at taking expected action on the salt pollution, the Dutch were so incensed they called their ambassador home from Paris.
The recall — unprecedented among the nine nations of the European Common Market — underlined Holland's concern that the salt could poison its hard-won farmland and its drinking water.
"The French break their word again," sniped Britain's Guardian newspaper. "The confrontation is one of the worst advertisements for the Common Market that the world has ever seen."
The French, clearly embarrassed, have asked for time to come up with new proposals, and Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet has said that France "has in no way renounced its commitment" to help clean up the Rhine.
But the only alternative that has been made public — selling the salt — ran into instant opposition from salt producers in France and other European nations, who claim the market is saturated.

In 1976, France signed a treaty with Holland and the other Rhine countries — West Germany, Switzerland and Luxembourg — under which 2.3 million tons of the potash company's salt would be pumped underground more than a mile beneath Alsace's lush countryside.
Earlier this month, the French government withheld the treaty from the 499-member parliament at the last minute, saying it did not expect a majority to favor ratification.
That action prompted the diplomatic recall by the furious Dutch.
The Alsatian lobby, which commands support both from the Gaullists and the communists in the French parliament, does not want the salt going beneath Alsace for fear it would damage the province's subterranean water supplies.
"Under the pretext of guarding our water supplies, the government practically forbids our cows to pee in the pastures," grumbled Alsace county legislator Louis Uhlrich. "So it would be absurd to pump in astronomical quantities of brine."

project to begin that they even advanced France $11 million to finance it.
Under the treaty, Germany and Switzerland were also to help pay for the $34 million project.
France and its sister-states along the Rhine have been more successful in combating chemical pollution.
With 20 percent of all the world's chemicals being produced in the Rhine basin, parts of the river were close to ecological death in 1972.
But water treatment plants and stringent laws against chemical discharges have helped the Rhine recover to the point where salmon and trout are swimming in its waters for the first time in 25 years.
According to Pietar Heisen, secretary of the International Commission for the Protection of the Rhine Against Pollution, the Rhine's mercury content has been slashed from 2.5 micrograms per liter in 1972 to 0.3 last year.
Ammonia content was down from 2.42 micrograms in 1973 to 0.91 in 1978, while oxygen has risen from a mean of 4.4 milligrams per liter in 1971 to 7.6 last year, said Heisen.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer

Polish won't spread

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know if there is some way of thinning nail polish. It has gotten so thick it will not spread smoothly. I have several bottles of polish that are too thick and I hate to throw them away. — DONNA

DEAR DONNA — I am sure many of the readers are going to say to themselves that this is an easy problem — just add a bit of polish remover. I have done this, too, on occasion but it is only a temporary solution because the remover will soon evaporate and you are back where you started.
I was advised by the makers of a widely sold brand of nail polish that there is really nothing that can be satisfactorily added to the old polish. But this thickening can be prevented.

After using the polish use a wad of cotton to thoroughly wipe the rim of the bottle, particularly around the ridges where the top screws on. When the top is then put on it is tightly closed, no air gets in and the polish stays at the proper consistency. Use a tissue or piece of paper towel to do the same to the bottle of liquid make-up that might also get too thick. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I have two lamps with brass bases that appear to be corroded, and I have used several brass cleaners but they do not remove this. I hope you can tell me how to clean these lamps. — K.R.

DEAR K.R. — Most "brass" lamp bases are plated and come with a lacquer finish that is applied at the factory. Metal polish should never be used on them. Dusting with a soft, polish-free cloth and an infrequent coat of paste wax should keep them in good shape. You have doubtless made matters worse and the corroded look may be from polish that was not thoroughly removed.
Take your bases to a brass plater, have them relacquered after being replated and then forget the polish and follow the above directions. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — To remove oil or grease from a driveway, pour charcoal lighter fluid on it, let it set and then rinse off with the hose.

To remove ballpoint ink or carbon from your clothes or hands pour rubbing alcohol directly on the ink and rub lightly, let it stand for a few minutes and then wash.

When loading silverware in the dishwasher separate it by placing all forks together, knives together, etc. This makes for easier unloading as you pick up the various pieces by groups and put them away. — KITTY

DEAR POLLY — I save the rubber bands that come around the daily paper but often need larger ones, so I cut the elastic waistbands from old pants about one-half inch below the stitching. I do the same with knee-high and ankle length socks and have great bands that cost nothing. Also when I need elastic for a pair of slacks I find the elastic band from a pair of my husband's undershorts works fine.
A large screw from your husband's work box is perfect for getting a cork out of a bottle in one piece. — GERTRUDE

DEAR POLLY — I have moved into a new home and the cupboards are invaded with ants. Spraying has not fazed them. What can I put in my cupboards to drive the ants away? — F.B.

DEAR F.B. — Plan to have cucumbers in some form for dinner tonight. Save the skins and put them all around in your cupboards and leave until they are very dry. Then replace. The odor is nice and fresh and I have found the ants will stay away. Some people sprinkle cinnamon or cloves on their shelves. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — A reader had black ants all over her house and could not get rid of them. She should buy some tobacco dust (sold at most garden or hardware stores) and sprinkle it all around the outside foundation of the house. This has been the only sure-fire solution I have ever found and after using it I have never seen another ant. — SARAH

DEAR POLLY — Like Mrs. B.C.M. ants invaded my kitchen — they seemed to be everywhere. I made small lines of borax just outside my back door and then along the sink and this effectively discouraged them. They disappeared and never returned so after a week I removed the borax. There is just my dog and me in the house and I tried the borax instead of a poison because of my pet and it worked. — RONALD

FDA To Study Cancer 'Cure'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has indicated it will approve a scientific study of the effectiveness of Laetrile in treating cancer patients, the Los Angeles Times reported in today's editions.

One FDA spokesman was reported by the Times as saying the approval to begin the testing on humans would come within the next two weeks. A second FDA official confirmed that a decision has been made to approve the Laetrile study.

Neither Rain, Nor Sleet — Nor Handicaps

BINGER, Okla. (NEA) — It took Charles Klingman almost 20 years to get the job he always wanted. And he had to overcome some big obstacles along the way.

Klingman admits that the job he waited so long to get is usually pretty routine.

He sorts and delivers mail to rural customers who live within an 8- to 10-mile radius of his Oklahoma hometown of Binger. Every working day he drives more than 100 miles, making 188 stops for 225 families.

The rural route averages 117 letters, 30 parcels and 205 newspapers and magazines a day. But that number is swelled at the end of the year by Christmas packages, greeting cards and income-tax forms.

Otherwise, the mail rarely gets more unusual than shipments of baby chickens or sets of encyclopedias.

Despite having to do the same old thing every day, Klingman says he doesn't get tired of his job. And he is so faithful at it that his customers can almost set their clocks by his schedule.

Klingman's quest for a post-al position began back in 1945, when the chief carpenter's mate wrote on his Navy separation papers that rural mail carrier was his first choice of civilian jobs.

But the post office wasn't hiring. And an old rule that carriers had to get their mail at the same place they worked made it a long time between openings.

Thus, opportunity was slim for newcomers.

Klingman, who had a wife and baby son to support, took a job as a lineman for an electric cooperative, still waiting for a chance to apply for the postal job.

Then an accident almost dashed his hopes forever. Working in April 1950 with a crew remodeling power lines, he came in contact with a 7,100-volt wire that was believed to have been shut off. He lost his left arm above the elbow, his left leg above the knee and part of his jawbone.

But he didn't lose his spirit. His jaw was rebuilt by plastic surgery using flesh from his chest. Then skin from his leg was used to help his chest heal.

In less than a year, he went back to the electric cooperative in a wheelchair to work behind a desk as a cost accountant.

Klingman was fitted with an artificial leg so that he could begin to walk again. He also resumed driving his car, though the traffic bureau was initially hesitant to reissue his license.

After 13 years in the office, the opportunity Klingman had been waiting for arrived. A carrier retired in Binger.

He scored among the top three on the written exam. He even passed the physical.

"Some of them didn't think I'd be able to handle the job," he recalls.

Yet, in February 1963 he was appointed by his congressman to the Binger position.

Delays Could Bring Shortages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Delays by utility companies in carrying out safety improvements the government ordered for nuclear power plants could result in power shortages in some parts of the country, according to Energy Department officials.

Officials said Wednesday about half the country's nuclear power plants have not met the Jan. 1 deadline the staff of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission set after the Three Mile Island accident.

The NRC said it is giving utilities extensions of from several weeks to six months to comply with the orders or face shutdown.

Harold Denton, the NRC's director of nuclear reactor regulation, told a news conference he is determined to see that utilities complete the improvements at all 68 reactors by June

1. The so-called "short term" safety improvements demanded by the government range from implementing new procedures to installing new safety monitoring equipment.

"We've come to the end of the road. ... Nothing in meeting these requirements can go beyond June 1. That's the absolute end date," Denton said.

However, Energy Department officials said that as the utilities try to meet the new NRC deadlines for making the changes, some parts of the country could face power problems. Most of the remaining changes require plants to shut down temporarily.

The NRC said operators of 30 reactors have met the Jan. 1 deadline and companies operating an additional 14 reactors have agreed to comply by the end of the month.

CBS Has Top Television Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS continued its challenge to front-running ABC in the television networks' prime-time ratings race, claiming the seven most-watched programs in the week ending Dec. 30, all of them continuing series, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

"60 Minutes" was No. 1 for the fifth time in the last 10 weeks, followed by "The Jeffersons," "Trapper John, M.D.," "Alice" and "The Dukes of Hazzard."

ABC built its leadership on continuing series, like "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley," and CBS appears headed in that direction.

The rating for "60 Minutes" was 32.6. Nielsen says that means of all the TV-equipped homes in the country, 32.6 percent — nearly a third — saw at least part of the program.

CBS now has been first five of the last seven weeks. The network had a rating in the last full week of 1979 of 18.6 to 15.8 for ABC and 15.5 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 18.6 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to CBS.

It was the first time since the week ending Dec. 2 that CBS and ABC didn't swap first place, and CBS nudged even closer to No. 1 ABC for the season so far. The two networks are separated by less than a ratings point.

NBC, which has been struggling for over a month now to escape the ratings cellar, scored in the latest Nielsen check with "CHiPs," No. 8, just ahead of ABC's newsmagazine, "20/20."
