USDA Trims Export Figures

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department has reduced its estimate of U.S. grain exports this year by 9.5 percent because of President Carter's order suspending huge shipments of wheat and corn to the Soviet Union.

An analysis Wednesday showed that U.S. exports of wheat and feed grains, mainly corn, are now expected to be about 98.8 million metric tons. Before Carter ordered a suspension of shipments to the Soviets, those exports were projected at 109.2 million metric tons.

But the figures showed that even without the big Soviet orders, U.S. exports of wheat and feed grains will be up sharply from last season's 92.7 million metric tons and still will be at record levels.

Carter suspended the sale to the Soviet Union of about 17 million metric tons of corn and wheat that had been expected to be delivered in the 1979-80 year, which will end Sept. 30.

The report said part of the canceled sales will be made up by increased shipments to other countries, including prospects for larger corn sales to Brazil and Mexico.

Assuming a favorable impact of actions to help protect farmers - including the government's purchase of suspended grain contracts with the Soviets - the report indicated no change in projected farm prices of corn and wheat.

Those still are expected to average $2.25 to $2.55 a bushel, compared to $2.20 over the 1978-79 marketing year. Wheat prices projections held at $3.60 to $3.90 in 1979-80 against $2.94 last year.

Meanwhile, although details are still fuzzy, a senior USDA official says no windfall profits will be allowed to exporting companies whose grain orders from the Soviet Union were cancelled.

The administration, following Carter's embargo on 17 million metric tons of wheat and corn that had been specified for the Soviets, announced that most of it would be bought by the government as part of a program to protect farmers from severe price breaks. Howard W. Hjort, the department's chief economist and policy analyst, said "there should be no question in anyone's mind" about the intent of the administration regarding potential profits to exporters who hold contracts for the grain that had been ordered by the Soviet Union. "We are not going to permit profits on those contracts," Hjort, said. "If there are profits in those contracts, we're going to take them over and the taxpayers will benefit from those profits." But Hjort and other officials at a daily briefing admitted it will be some time yet before the mechanics of the government's grain purchases will be worked out.

As announced, the department's Commodity Credit Corp. will buy from exporting companies contracts totaling about 13.7 (See EXPORTS, Page 2)

PARENTS LOVE TO COMPLAIN about public schools as doing a lousy job of educating today's youngsters...and surveys and statistics tend to back them up.

But one of the primary reasons our schools are not doing so well is because of the lousy job our parents are doing as parents. The prestigious Carnigie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education recently produced a major report on the nation's high schools, called "Giving Youth a Better Chance," and it sums up what most teachers have been shouting for a long time.

It's the plain and simple fact that it is impossible to teach students in the absence of discipline. And discipline--first, last and always-begins in the home. If the youngsters doesn't get in the home first, he's not going to get it in the school, or in the Army or Navy.

And, to compound the problem, the Supreme Court, our government, and our official policies have made it difficult to administer discipline at any level.

It is a sad commentary on the times and upon our education system that a state law has to be passed to outline this matter of discipline. The new law, passed during the last session of the state legislature, gives teachers the authority to kick problem kids out of class and keep them out.

The law was designed to help teachers in big city schools where their classroom discipline problems have been compounded by timid administrators and school boards who fail to back up teachers in matters of discipline. And, we have a feeling, the law also was passed because parents are doing a

on Afghanistan blocked by the Soviet veto, the council adopted a resolution Wednesday night asking for an emergency session of the 152-nation assembly to deal with the situation in the Central Asian nation.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim announced that the assembly, which ended its regular 1979 session on Monday, would meet at 3 p.m. EST today.

The emergency session is expected to last several days, and the debate is expected to be a replay of the debate in the Security Council last weekend, with most of the members attacking the Soviet action in Afghanistan and the Soviet Union and its communist allies defending it.

The United States and its allies were reported confident that they could muster the twothirds majority necessary for adoption of the resolution vetoed by the Soviet Union in the Security Council. The big-power veto does not apply in the assembly, but adoption of the resolution will have only moral and propaganda value since the assembly has no power to order punitive action.

The resolution deplored the armed intervention in Afghanistan and called for the withdrawal of all foreign forces. The opponents of the Soviet action took their case to the General Assembly under a procedure established in 1950 to deal with situations in which a veto prevented the Security Council from taking action to preserve or restore peace.

The resolution asking for the assembly session was submittted by the Philippines and Mexico, and the vote in the 15nation council was 12-2, with the Soviet Union and East Germany voting no and Zambia abstaining.

The council vote Monday on the resolution calling for withdrawal of the Soviet troops had been 13-2, with Zambia voting with the majority. But that was an issue of substance on which the negative Soviet vote counted as a veto, while the resolution to go to the General Assembly was procedural matter exempt from the veto of the five permanent council members - the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China. Meanwhile, Tass, the official Soviet news agency, announced that U.S. plans to get the Security Council to vote sanctions against Iran were doomed to defeat.

"As regards the USSR, it will not tolerate any interference from the outside in the internal affairs of Iran, and will not allow the United States to impose a decision to apply economic sanctions against it," said Tass.

A senior American official in Washington said if the Soviets vetoed the sanctions resolution. the United States would try to get its European allies and others to join it in a program of sanctions outside the U.N.

Embargo Hurts Hereford Sales

By JIM STEIERT Brand Farm Editor

In the event that a local farmer may have wanted to sell his grain Wednesday, there were no takers in the Hereford area as the economic backlash of a grain export embargo aimed at Russia hit home in America's farmlands with a vengeance. Within seconds of the resumption of activity at the Chicago Board of Trade on Wednesday the prices of grain futures plummeted the maximum amounts allowed and trade was automatically halted. Many yeteran grainmen fear that is a trend that will continue in coming days as shock waves continue to reverbrate through the grain industry. Wheat futures dropped the maximum on the Kansas City

Board of Trade, 25 cents per bushel, while Chicago wheat plummeted 20 cents per bushel and corn was down 10 cents. Joe Artho of Hereford Grain Corporation commented on the events which are causing real concern in rural America. "The decline in the futures wasn't unexpected after the embargo announcement. All of our buyers have no prices posted currently and we have no recourse but to offer no prices locally," stated Artho. "I don't know when things will settle down. I guess when everyone decides the futures have dropped low enough. Until this thing hits bottom and levels off there won' be much normal activity. I don't expect there will be any normal trading again until Monday." he added.

Gene King of Easter Grain also reported no trade, pointing out that posting prices for local grain is pointless so long as grain futures continue their downward trend.

Local farmer Jerome Friemel termed the current uproar in farm comodities an "over-reaction to a crisis" and explained that the market must seek its own bottom before any rebound can be looked for. In an interview with the Castro County News Bill Clark. president of the Texas Federation of Cooperaties commented that he expects "to see the market fluctuate for several months and then stabilize."

Clark also warned about panic "If farmers and elevators who were caught with full inventories the first of the year do not panic and dump their grain on the market, I think this will help a lot to stabilize the market, stated Clark.

Storm Kills 12

In Pacific U.S.

By The Associated Press

Pacific storms have whipped up wind and rain in Hawaii and Southern California and stunned the Northwest with enough snow and freezing rain to sink more than 100 boats.

At least 12 persons were killed and two others missing in weather-related accidents over two days. Tens of thousands were without power as ice and snow downed lines.

Some 125 boats sank and numerous roofs collapsed under the weight of the snow in Oregon and Washington state, where many schools, businesses and highways were closed Wednesday.

Stranded motorists jammed hotels and motels throughout the Northwest. In Boardman, Ore., the Dodge City Inn was full but offered adults sleepingbag lodging for the night for $1 a head.

Deputies in a four-wheel-drive vehicle said it took them 41/2 hours to travel from Portland to Multnomah Falls, about 25 miles away.

Up to a foot of snow also fell in western Montana, where two cross-country skiers stranded for-fwo days in a cabin were rescued by helicopter late Wednesday.

Rebels Close Highway

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) - Moslem rebels closed a strategic highway linking the Soviet Union with Kabul, and battled Soviet troops east and southwest of the Afghan capital, informed source reported today.

The Salang Highway was blocked Tuesday by fighting near the Doshi or Khenjan bridges, about 90 miles north of Kabul, Afghan and Asian diplomatic sources said. They quoted Afghan military officials and travelers just returned from the area.

But the sources also said the Soviets were continuing to pour men and armor into Afghanistan. Three divisions moved in this week, raising the number of Russian troops to at-least 85,000, the sources said. A total of seven divisions have been brought in since the Russians moved in last month, they added.

Heavy military traffic was still heading south into Afghanistan from the Soviet cities of Torgundi, in the Turkoman Republic, and Termez, in the Uzbek Republic, several diplomatic sources said.

DALLAS (AP) - A Dallas woman robbed and stabbed by three men on New Year's Day is believed to be the first Texan to file for financial help under the new Crime Victims Compensation Act.

The woman's attorney, George Otstott, said he filed the application for Joan Marty, 38, with the Texas Industrial Accident Board this week.

"This is the first case filed in Dallas, and potentially, the first in Texas," Otstott said.

Ms. Marty was stabbed three times in the chest and abdomen and stripped of her fur coat and a briefcase filled with about $4,000 in jewelry as she walked from her job at a downtown hotel about 4:30 a.m. New Year's Day.

The accident board administers the act, which went into effect four and one-half hours before the attack. Funds for repayment of victims comes from payments by convicted criminals - $10 for a misdemeanor and $15 for a felony

The maximum amount recoverable is $50,000.

Otstott said no specific amount was requested in Ms. Marty's application, but added "as we get the bills together ... we'll know what she is eligible to receive.'

Court Refuses Movie Lawsuit

Wednesday to hear a case filed by a man who said the movie "The Town That Dreaded Sundown" improperly portrayed his . that was not accurate. sister as "a woman of loose and low morals."

The 6th Court of Civil Appeals at Texarkana had previously agreed with a trial court that the movie producers had not invaded Mark Melton Moore's privacy.

The movie was about a series of unsolved Texarakana murders in the 1940s. Polly Ann Moore — the plaintiff's sister was one of the victims. The lawsuit claimed a character named Emma Lou Cook in the movie bore an "unmistakable" resemblance to Miss Moore. Moore claimed the girl was portrayed "as a high school dropout and a woman of loose AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The and low morals, when in fact Texas Supreme Court refused none of such was true." He also complained his sister's murder was portrayed in a "particularly bloody and gruesome manner"

The suit claimed the movie was "offensive to community standards" and was "pandering to the baser instincts of the public."

However, depite his claims that the film brought into the public eye a "painful segment" of Moore's life, the Texarkana appeals court ruled Moore was entitled to no money from Charles B. Pierce Film Enterprises and American International Pictures Inc.

The appeals court said invasion of privacy cannot be claimed by a relative, 'Unless that relative is himself brought into unjustifiable publicity.'

Mondale Seeks Mexican Vote

- The Carter-Mondale campaign forces very much want to impress South Texas' thousands of Mexican-American voters in 1980.

Vice President Walter Mondale didn't hurt anything Tuesday with heaps of praise for the area's ranking Hispanic political leader and the announcement of an $18.8 million federal grant earmarked for San Antonio's huge Hispanic community.

Mondale came here to keynote a fund-raising, testimonial luncheon for U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, a staunch Carter supporter.

He took the opportunity to announce what he said was one of the Carter administration's largest Urban Development Action Grants. He then praised some of Carter's economic accomplishments to the crowd of about 2,000 Gonzalez support-

The grant is aimed at revitalizing a predominantly Mexican-American neighborhood near downtown San Antonio. Mondale explained that the city would use the funds to buy 100 acres and lease the land to a private Hispanic developer. That would create some 1,700

TVA leads solar way

We've had a lot of talk about solar energy but it took the Tennessee Valley Authority to start the ball rolling.

Last May, TVA's Robert F. Hemphill Jr., the utility's director of energy conservation and rates, got the go-ahead to com-mission TVA architects to design 11 different single-family

The houses range from 1.008 to 2.226 square feet and 42 of them are now being built in five of the seven states TVA serves - Tennessee, Alabama, Kentucky, Mississippi and Virginia. Three houses already are completed and the rest will be finished by the end of February. Hemphill says.

What's an electric utility, started by the federal govern-ment and still a federal entity, doing building solar homes? "We're meeting the demand for electricity at a less expensive price." Hemphill says. TVA reasons this way:

 Cost of new electrical plants, either coal or nuclear, will raise the average rate paid by all electricity users.

 Much of the rising demand for electricity comes from new housing

 So if an electric utility, like TVA, can figure out a way of lessening the demand, all buyers of electricity will benefit. Electric utilities should think of themselves as salesmen of energy services," says Hemphill. "They turn electricity into light, heat, cooling and shaft power. If we can spend to meet some of the demand for electric heating and cooling, everyone

Nine general contractors submitted winning bids on the 42 homes. Their bids average out to $30.50 a square foot. That means these houses, including the lots they stand on, will range in price from $35,000 to $80,000.

In January, says Hemphill, the average, conventional, allelectric house of 1,500 square feet will have an electric bill of about $150 a month. That's based on today's rates, which are

"If the solar homes work the way we expect." he adds. their residents will pay about $50 a month on their electric

A $100-a-month saving can help any family's economy Hemphill notes the 42 homes are non-high-technology They just use simple ideas to save electricity. Examples: An overhang on windows facing south, so the home gets the lower winter sun but avoids the higher summer sun; styrofoam around the concrete slab at the home's base, cutting heat loss 32 to 42 percent; a two-door entry hall that's essentially an airlock, a sliding wooden shutter over glass doors, reducing heat loss a third.

TVA will auction off its 42 houses. There already are 106 persons interested in the house at Union City. Tenn. As part of its sales contracts TVA will pay each new owner a $2.509 "inconvenience fee" because the walls will be instrumented and occasionally TVA will send in experts to test energy

Each home is designed to heat and cool passively. Each has

Each home is designed to heat and cool passively. Each has a heat collector — window, greenhouse, skylight or glass covering over a thermal wall — to store heat. Heat pumps provide backups for extremely cold or extremely hot days. The homes have wood-burning stoves and efficient fireplaces.

Hemphill says that after testing the 42 homes, TVA is likely to start a widespread campaign to get people in its area to build homes on these lines. He figures that Withers Adkins, the Knoxville-based chief archifect of the 42 homes, has brought the cost of solar-proofing to about 50 cents a square foot. Coming on line soon will be a similar program for factory-built solar homes costing $22,000 to $27,000.

For more information, write Fran Koster. Solar Applications Branch, Tennessee Valley Authority, Chattanooga, Tenn. 37401. Plans for the homes now being built are available at $6 37401. Plans for the homes now being built are available at $6 a set, though Hemphill cautions "they haven't yet been tested. so we call them preliminary.

Maine Town Loan Default Blamed on Low Taxes

SACO: Maine (AP) - On the 16th day of 1979, voters in this little Maine city eagerly passed a property tax limit styled after California's Proposition 13.

On the last day of 1979, Saco defaulted on a $2.1 million tax anticipation loan.

Residents were shocked. Officials scrambled to pay the Few argue that the tax limitation directly caused the default. But one year later, residents are sharply divided over the merits of the referendum and the direction their city should take.

The municipal default climaxed a troubled year for Saco: Scores of public employees were fired, city and school programs suffered deep cuts and the City Council weathered almost a complete turnover of members. Over it all rang unending, often bitter public debate.

Former City Councilor Robert Cassette, who led the tax revolt, blames past "mismanagement" for Saco's default.

"It was certainly not the tax limitation," Cassette said. "Thank God we had put a limit on what they (City Hall) can do to us."

School Committee Chairwoman Glen Roth felt differently: "By clamping that tax cap on, it brought all the underlying bined budgets.

City Administrator Curtis Tripp, the third person to hold that job in little more than a year, had no blame to assign.

"It's done, and my objective now is to cure the problem," said Tripp, who on Tuesday signed an emergency $200,000 oan agreement to tide Saco over for two weeks and allow the city to pay its employees.

As for whether the tax ceiling should be lifted, Tripp said, "It depends on the level of services the city wants."

The tax limitation, which stemmed from a controversial re-evaluation in 1978 in which some property doubled or tripled in assessed valuation, limited local property tax revenue last year to $3 million. In 1978, it had been $3.6 million.

The ceiling, which can be lifted only through another referendum, allowed for an inflation increase of just 2 percent in 1980 and each succeeding year.

Indira Gandhi Swept Back to Power

By GENE KRAMER

Associated Press Writer NEW DELHI, India (AP) -Indira Gandhi takes control of the Indian Parliament in triumph today after a landslide election victory that swept her back to power as dramatically as delegation and receive the forshe left it 34 months ago.

With races for all but one of emergency she declared as a working total of 372 votes.

India's two communist parties and other leftist groups won 52 seats and several went to minor parties and independents. Another 17 seats in the house will be filled later. Polling in two snowbound counties was put off until the summer and voting was suspended in 15 districts in Assam and Meghalaya states because of violence in which two candidates died.

The Janata Secular party of Prime Minister Charan Singh was second in the balloting. winning 41 seats. The Janata Party of Untouchable leader Jagjiyan Ram, who before the election had been considered Mrs. Gandhi's main opponent, won 31 seats, a long tumble from the 298 seats it carried in 1977 to topple her from power.

Mrs. Gandhi lost the 1977 election because of oppressiveness during her emergency rule period and was succeeded by Janata Party leader Morarji Desai. His 28-month-old coalition collapsed last month and Singh replaced him as prime minister.

In last week's election, opponents tried to depict Mrs. Gandhi as undemocratic, reviving arguments they used to oust her after the 19 months of emergency rule that saw thousands of her critics jailed, civil rights curbed, forced sterilizations and evictions, and press censorship.

They also said that if she returned as prime minister, it would increase the power of her controversial son Sanjay, also charged with contempt for activities during the emergency rule period. He was elected to Parliament, nevertheless, by a said Segal. "Second, it was an oddity. And third, the print media played it up. Sports fans were curious about what it looked like. Obviously, it was a nice promotional piece, but there was nothing insidious about it."

The Dec. 25 game drew an 8 rating with 30 percent of the TVs in use watching it, as compared to the Christmas Day game in 1978 between Philadelphia and New York, which had a 5.8 rating with 18 percent of the sets in use tuned in.

This season, we've also seen pictures, lots of them, plugging Larry Bird and Magic Johnson - the NBA's rookie sensations who've brought the most excitement to the league since the merger in 1976. And that was the last time the NBA had an upsurge in its ratings.

When Julius Erving and his American Basketball Association outcasts joined the NBA. CBS' Sunday games showed a 7.4 rating, meaning 7.4 percent of the nation's TV homes were plugged into pro basketball. The next season, the ratings dropped to 7.0 and last year, the figures fell to 5.2 — a loss of 26 percent of its viewers.

If those missing viewers were skiing or shoveling snow, that would be one thing. But some of them were watching college basketball on NBC. Head-tohead, the college games were beating the pros. This is the kind of comparison that hurts the losing network the most.

And the playoffs, the league's crown jewels, were not being picked up by five percent of CBS' 200 affiliates.

To guard against uninspired TV games, the NBA has tried to schedule against teams playing on Saturday and then on Sunday. Only 30 teams play twice on a weekend this season.

CBS has added a sixth camera to the telecasts and will have the same broadcasting team, Musburger and Hot Rod Hundley.

Musburger, honest and informative in football, at times came across last season as an NBA shill, getting super excited over a product that often didn't deserve it.

"That's probably a valid criticism," admits Musburger, who promises to tone down his enthusiasm this year. "I'm a reporter and a sports fans, but I'm determined to give it less of a hard sell.

"There won't be any cheerleading going on. There's no need for it. I'm going to let the NBA take care of itself."

Oiler Fans File Suit to Halt Game

Case in point: William R. Pabst - who says he is a minister and a "consumer advocate" - and his friend Diane Simons are hopping mad about the Pittsburgh Steeler's 27-13 victory Sunday in the National Football League's American Conference title tilt.

So mad, in fact, they filed a $6 million lawsuit in federal court Wednesday and asked for a federal injunction to halt the Super Bowl.

Pabst, who names the NFL. commissioner Pete Rozelle and official Donald Orr, is irked by a third-quarter call that cancelled an apparent Oiler touchdown.

On the play, wide receiver Mel Renfro hauled in a Dan Pastorini pass deep in the corner of the end zone that would have tied the score 17-17. But

Orr ruled the pass incomplete, torpedoing the six-pointer. On Tuesday, Rozelle said NFL films showed Renfro bobbled the ball momentarily as he crossed the end stripe, but Pabst says it was a bad call and

"National television," states the petition, "has already indicated that the judgement call was wrong. So, for the benefit of fair play ... we hereby request you sanction a re-match of the American Football Conference playoff game."

Oiler Coach Bulm Phillips is teed off, too, but not because of the nixed touchdown. He says there was flagrant pass interference on the play that should have been called.

Phillips, armed with the films at his weekly press conference, says he noticed the interference prior to the call when he viewed Oiler films early this week.

He said another angle of the catch showed Pittsburgh cornerback Ron Johnson interfered

San Diego Slips By Milwaukee 111-107

It was a National Basketball Association game but it brought back memories of Knute Rockne and George Gipp, Pat O'Brien and Ronald Reagan.

"I think they were up because of what happened and they went out and won one for the Gipper," San Diego assistant Coach Bob Weiss said after the Clippers, with Head Coach Gene Shue beginning a oneweek suspension, turned back the Milwaukee Bucks 111-107 Wednesday night.

"We got off the plane (in Milwaukee) about noon today and when we came inside, a man from the league office was there to meet us. And that's how we found out.'

What the Clippers learned was that Shue had been sus-and fined $3,500 by NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien for striking referee Dick Bavetta during a game in Chicago last Friday night and then failing to leave the court after being ejected.

Elsewhere, the Boston Celtics trimmed the New York Knicks 112-95, the Atlanta Hawks defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 111-107, the Philadelphia 76ers nipped the New Jersey Nets 108-105, the Washington Bullets shaded the Los Angeles Lakers 103-101, the Houston Rockets edged the Denver Nuggets 114-112, the Phoenix Suns whipped the Golden State Warriors 113-100 and the Seattle SuperSonics downed the Indiana Pacers 120-111.

Dave Cowens found his shooting eye early in the fourth quarter and helped the Celtics to their 17th victory in 18 home games. Boston built a 61-45 haltime advantage but had the lead cut to 73-72 late in the third

Chris Ford gave Boston some breathing room with a pair of free throws before reserve center Rick Robey scored on a layup buzzer. Cowens returned in the fourth quarter and immediately hit on an outside jump shot and a layup. He went on to score seven of his 14 points in the period as the Celtics opened a 101-79 lead. Nate Archibald led Boston with 20 points.

Hawks 111, Cavaliers 107

Eddie Johnson's six points in the final three minutes boosted Atlanta. Johnson's former teammate at Auburn, Cleveland's Mike Mitchell, had tied the game 107-107 with 1:24 remaining but Johnson sank two free throws 14 seconds later to put the Hawks ahead for good. Atlanta's Armond Hill sank two more free throws with eight seconds remaining for the final margin. Tom McMillen led Atlanta with 19 points while Mitchell had 32 for the Cavaliers. 76ers 108, Nets 105

A pair of free throws by Caldwell Jones with 19 seconds remaining, his only points of the game, helped Philadelphia turn back the Nets.

The Nets trailed 86-74 at the start of the final period but outscored the 76ers 23-9 and went ahead 97-95 on a field goal by Cliff Robinson with 5:06 re-

Carter Eyes Youth Job Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration, grappling with the stubborn youth unemployment problem, is mounting a frontal assault on functional illiteracy and bankrolling the campaign with a 50 percent boost in spending.

Informed administration sources said President Carter will unveil a new approach to youth joblessness today based on attacking functional illiteracy - the inability to read, write or do simple math. Coupled with this will be a broad effort to bring the nation's schools into a battle that has been waged largely through Labor Department job training only major new program and one of the largest spending increases in the budget Carter submits to Congress Jan. 28.

The proposal results from a nine-month study of the $4-billion-a-year youth employment programs by a task force under the direction of Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

The sources, who requested anonymity, said the president will call for additional spending of $1.2 billion in fiscal 1981 and $2 billion in fiscal 1982. If Congress approves, that will bring total spending to $6 billion in the 12 months beginning Oct. 1,

An unstated side benefit for a president challenged for renomination is that the proposal may shore up his support among labor, urban, civil rights and other Democratic Party constituencies.

The target is four million youths, aged 14 to 21, who face serious employment problems in the 1980s. Half have already dropped out of school and are unemployed; of those, 40 percent are minorities. The other two million are still in school, but in the poorest districts and in the bottom third of their class. Carter's planners hope the new program will reach three million of these youths.

Administration sources said the task force made three discoveries about the seemingly intractable problem of joblessness among the young: it will be worse in the 1980s for some youths and some communities; employers say their biggest problem is finding youths who have mastered the three R's: and they base their hiring of such youths mostly on a record of relibility in a previous job.

The shift of the economy from blue-to white-collar jobs has been dramatic. In 1950, 34 percent of all jobs were open to workers without a high school diploma. By 1970, only 9 percent were, but the high school dropout rate has remained at 13

'Once there were more such jobs than dropouts; now there are increasingly more dropouts than jobs for them," one source

The problem for business was illustrated by a telephone company that told the task force it has to interview 12 to 15 persons to find one qualified to take orders for telephones.

The task force found the heavy emphasis on previous job experience left youths who had never had a job in a Catch-22 situation, but almost as bad off were those who had worked only in government-financed job programs. As a result, the Carter program will add a Basic Employability-Skills Training program in the new Department of Education. Of the new money, Education will get $900 million in 1981 and $1 billion in 1982; Labor will get the remainder.

Carter's planners hope the Education segment will reach million youths in junior highs and high schools through these five components:

-It will finance the teaching of basic reading, writing and mathematical skills. The task force found that federal aid to education has left a big gap between the pre-school Head Start and elementary school Title I programs, on the one hand, and a series of college aid programs, on the other.

-It will provide money for school systems to hire employment counselors to set up parttime school, part-time work programs. The task force found such programs are attractive to youths and can provide private job experience.

-It will pay for school systems to develop classes and information about local labor markets. "Everybody's out there telling kids to become key punch operators, but those jobs will decline in the 1980s," one source said. "We hope schools will bring in local personnel managers to talk about their needs.

-It will pay for training teachers in literacy instruction. 'More than one teacher told us something like, 'I'm a biology teacher and I don't know how to teach reading," one source said.

-It will provide money to expand and integrate existing vocational education throughout local school districts. "Public vocational education has a good track record with kids and private industry," a source said.

At the Labor Department, three youth programs will be combined into one, giving local

DPS to Add Patrol Units In Effort to Enforce 55

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The Texas Department of Public Safety says it will add six to 10 highway patrol units to six counties in an effort to get better compliance with the 55 mph

Bell, Bexar, Ector, Smith, Williamson and Wise counties are targets of the stepped-up enforcment effort. All but Wise are on interstate

tor, said highway patrolmen will work approximately 37,000 hours of overtime through Sept. 30, when the program expires. He said there will be no reduction in normal patrolling of the highways.

Adams said a typical task force will consist of six to 10 additional patrol units on duty in each target county.

Cost of the overtime will be paid by a $700,000 contract with the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Adams said target counties were chosen on the basis of data showing above average speeds, high accident rates and a high volume of traffic.

Tourists-Y'all Come Here

For Americans to travel overseas used to make sense. The American dollar was worth more--would buy more--in most other countries.

And those countries needed our dollars.

That situation is reversed

Tourist money buys more goods in the United States and now it is we who need international income.

Yet our country is doing almost nothing to encourage foreign tourists to spend time and money here.

International travel is a $155 billion business and the United States is getting less than 5 percent of it.

If we could double the number of foreign visitors to our country we would create 270,000 home-front jobs and we would erase $3 billion worth of red ink from our nation's foreign trade deficit, and we could "knock some cents" back into the Yankee dollar.

Yet little Belgium spends more money attracting tourists than we do.

Canada spends twice as much as we do.

The tourism business tends to employ more women rand minorities; especially in the cities this could help solve a major unemployment problem.

Southwest Airline Tries to Stop Strike

Airline and union negotiators will try to avert a threatened walkout Sunday by mechanics, cleaners and stock clerks when they meet today in another attempt to reach agreement on a new contract

However, airline officials said if the negotiations fail there is a strong possibility the workers will strike at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

The airline is negotiating with the International Association of Machinist and Aerospace Workers, which represents 106 airline employees. The Airline employs about 1,600 persons.

Airline officials hinted any decision to continue limited operations if a strike is called could depend on how many non-IAM workers honor the picket lines. Southwest President Howard

Putnam, in a Jan. 5 letter to employees, said the airline has a contingency plan calling for the operation of "at least 12 planes, all of them 737s." He said if the plan was im-

The negotiations were suspended in mid-December by a federal mediator and a 30-day cooling period went into effect. Airline officials said they would not try to block the strike in the courts because under provisions of the National Railway Labor Act the union becomes eligible for a work stoppage on Sunday.

TDHR Expands Care For Elderly

Old age-- it's something all individuals are going to face at assistance with day-to-day some time. And although few expect it to be the highlight of their lives, old age isn't such a bad thing considering the alternatives.

More and more today, society tends to shuttle its elderly off to nursing homes-whether they really need the medical care or not. There, out of sight and our of mind, the elderly, who could not contribute so much to the lives of others, live out the rest of their days in uselessness and

But there are alternatives, according to Gary Ferguson. Department of Human Resources (TDHR) in Hereford. Ferguson explains that TDHR is attempting to expand its services to the elderly by providing alternatives to nursing home care

With a little help, many elderly people who would otherwise have to go to nursing homes, can remain in their owr homes or their own communities," he said. Help may be in the form of assistance with such personal care as bathing. exercising and taking medication, or household tasks such as shopping, minor home repairs and vard work.

activities, or "just don't have a home."

The foster homes are carefully studied and then licensed once it is established that they meet Departmental qualifications he explained. The cost of the care is shared by the individual and the Department of Human Resources.

The program really benefits both the elderly individual as well as the foster family. The elderly person benefits from the care and family atmosphere, while the foster family benefits from the companionship and life social worker for the Texas experiences of the elderly

'In those cases, everyone comes out ahead. The elderly client does not have to go to a nursing home, the home provider gets someone to share with, and foster care costs the state much less than nursing home care," he explained. "In this area, there are about 35 to 50 people who need foster homes. We just have to make people in the community aware of the need." he added.

If it sounds like TDHR is really anti-nursing-home--that is not the case. "Our goal," said cooking, cleaning, laundry. They always seemsort of proper. I've never seen tea They always seem sort of proper. I've never seen tea drinkers pour their tea into a saucer and blow on it. And I gulping a mouthful of tea from a tin cup, gargling it, and then throwing the dregs from the cups into the fire.

But if my mail is to be believed (and there's a first for everything), tea drinkers are cuing up for a revolution. A tea sipper in Salisbury, Md., writes, "I'm sick of being discriminated against. We're never offered a second cup oftea like coffee drinkers, and on airplanes the tea drinkers are

"And even in homes, the hostess serves coffee and when you ask for tea, I can see it written all over her face. She's hoping you'll say, 'Oh, don't bother.'

From Santa Barbara, Calif., another tea tippler writes. "People have no consideration for us whatsoever. They never have lemon, yet they have cream and sugar for coffee drinkers. I've even been to meetings where they say, If you drink tea, bring your own tea bag.

Cooking expert James Beard has long carried the banner for tea drinkers. He calls them the downtrodden minority in this country and points out that while coffee drinkers enjoy their steaming cup in restaurants, the tea drinker must face the pitiful sight of a pot of lukewarm water and a solitary teabag by the side. Or even worse, the dejected bag floating in a cup of tepid water.

Perhaps the most debilitating plight of the tea drinker is called the soggy tea bag experience. What do you do with the bag when it has strained itself into your cup?

I think we must take tea drinkers seriously. With the way things have been goingtin this country lately. I wouldn't be surprised if there is a decline in mixed marriages (coffee vs. tea drinkers). Look for "Thank You For Not Dunking" signs in restaurants. Look for signs in department and specialty stores: "Tea Spoken Here." I am predicting classes at the Schick Center for people who want to get off coffee and into tea and warnings on coffee cans that say, "Coffee may stain your dentures permanently. Drink tea."

All I know is if Mrs. Olsen pitches to a born-again tea drinker, I wouldn't want to be responsible for her safety.

Ann Landers Viking Funerals

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Have you heard of a Viking funeral? I hadn't until two weeks ago. Since then I have thought of little else. Please give me some guidance. I'm all fogged up on this one.

My grandfather has told my brother and me that he wants a Viking funeral. We didn't know what it was until he explained. The deceased person is put in a boat. The boat is set on fire ad shoved out to sea.

Grandpa lives in Minneapolis. and there is no sea anywhere around. He says he wants to use Lake Harriet instead. It all sounds very sentimental, but the other members of the family insist it's a crazy idea, and they will not agree to it.

My brother and I think Grandpa should have his way. After all, when life has gone out of the body what difference does it make what is done with it? Please agree with us. It would make Grandpa happy to know you are on his side. It might also help persuade the other members of the family to grant that sweet old man his last wish .-- Joe From Bismarck, N.D.

DEAR JOE: Every state has its own burial laws; and I know of no state where a Viking funeral is legal. Break the news gently to Grandpa. It sounds as if he had his heart set on it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I were married four years ago by a justice of the peace. No family was present. We were planning on a big wedding.but I became pregnant and we hurried it up some.

I refreed to have a church wedding because I didn't want to embarrass the family. I also felt I didn't deserve a church wedding because of my mistake. Now, four years and two kids later, we realize we missed out on something very special. We also realize we hurt the people we loved most. My question is this: Would it be acceptable to have a wedding now to renew our marriage vows? Should we invite just family, or family and friends We have a good marriage, a lovely home and beautiful children, but we both believe a church wedding would make us feel better about our life together. Are we crazy for wanting this now? Please tell us-Something Missing

DEAR MISSING: I don't see anything crazy about a second wedding ceremony in a church, to renew your vows.

Do it, and invite anyone you please. (P.S. I assume, of course, that you and your husband are paying for this, and not your parents.) DEAR ANN LANDERS:

Friends in their late 20s have a beautiful, healthy seven-monthold boy. The child's mother is a health nut. She refuses to have the child immunized against any shots actually contain small amounts of the disease, and she doesn't want anything like that injected into her son's system.

Her husband goes along meekly. We can't get through to her that she is doing the child a grave disservice. Maybe there are other well-meaning but misguided parents in your reading audience who need educating. Please say something to them .-- Worries In The Midwest

DEAR WORRIED: The "shots" do indeed contain "small amounts of the disease." The child's body then manufactures antibodies to fight the disease. and this is how immunity develops.

Parents who are afraid to vaccinate their children against polio, whooping cough, measles and typhoid need to be talked to by a pediatrician. Many schools will not permit a child to enroll unless there is proof of vaccination -- a very good idea.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. if you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois

Baptist Organization Conducts Installation

Officers were installed Monday evening by Ladies Christian Endeavors of Greenwood Baptist Church during a meeting in the home of Sharon Charest. Cara Dearing incorporated the home fireplace as her theme when installing the new officers. She paralleled the president's position to that of the main log. which burns steadily and keeps the fire from dying. She compared the vice presidency to the supporting logs of the fire and the secretary/treasurer to the outlying kindling, which she described as dependable and bright with a glow of organizational history. As each officer was installed, she placed a log on the fire, lighted a candle and received a redtipped carnation. Mrs. Dearing concluded the installation ceremony by stating. "As the logs burn, others will come because of the warmth and security." The officers for 1980 are Mrs. Anson Dearing, president; Mrs. Gary Bandy, vice president: Mrs. Millard Murray, secretary/treasurer; and Mrs. Lin Fisher, reporter.

Books (sometimes called by the Latin word, "liber") containing complete copies of all recorded, realtyrelated documents are maintained for each county in the county recorder's office. When a document is recorded, it is assigned a liber (book) volume and page number. But, say you don't know the liber or page location for the document you wish to examine: that information is in the Grantors-Grantees Index. (Loosely translated, "grantors" sell or give property . 'grantees" buy or receive property.) Separate index books are made for grantors and grantees, so that a document can be found by searching either name.

The favorite catchall also was called into service. The rally, it was explained, was one of those periodic occurrences of mass insight in which "the public" somehow decided that stocks were undervalued.

And why did the public so decide? Well, said an analyst-pro- on Wall Street. It is, you might spending: it was the new year ' moter, that old stock market just say, as fuzzy a concept as "Wall

Bert Parks' Career Zooming Since Being Fired

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) Jr., the pageant chief who can-Bert Parks, America's first cause celebre of the 1980s, says his career is zooming since he was fired as host of the Miss America Pageant.

"My God, man, I thought here you were with another job offer and I was going to have to turn you down," the 65-year-old Parks said when he answered the telephone at his Hollywood, Fla., home.

ned Parks, says he is considering four men to sing "There She Is" to the next Miss America in September. He refused to identify the prospects, but ruled whose names have been making Parks said Tuesday that job offers have been "unbelievable" since Marks announced he had not been invited back for nati," Parks said. Meanwhile, Albert A. Marks his 26th consecutive pageant.

Marks - himself 67 - said the 59-year-old beauty contest dismissed Parks because it wanted a more youthful image.

Parks said he has been asked to do several guest appearances out a number of possible hosts on television shows and many national television and radio commercials. He will soon perform previously offered parts on television's "Love Boat" and "WKRP in Cincin-

Parks said he has not received any serious offers to emcee beauty pageants. But officials of the Miss Hemisphere Pageant in Philadelphia announced Tuesday they want Parks to emcee their 17th show in August. In addition, Seaside Heights. N.J., Mayor George Tompkins has offered Parks the emcee's job at the town's Most Beautiful Grandmother contest.

Marks, an investment banker, said a decision on Parks' about three weeks.

"He will be male. He will be ideally between the ages of 30 and 45. He will have an instantly recognizable name," Marks said.

"He will be of the general type of Bert Parks in that he will continue to inspire comments in the girls themselves while not stealing the spotlight away from them," Marks said.

He said the new host "definitely will not be" Mery Griffin, John Davidson, Mac Davis, Gavin MacLeod or Ed Mc-Mahon, who have all been mentioned for the job. "Ed McMahon didn't even sell knives so good on the Boardwalk," said Marks, referring to McMahon's early days as a summer pitchman.

McMahon performs with Johnny Carson on NBC-TV's "Tonight Show." Carson, who says Parks is an American incampaign to have Parks rehired. America's senior citizens.' As a result of that campaign and drives by newspaper columnists and disc jockeys around the country, the pageant's offices have received more than 10,000 postcards and letters demanding Parks' return.
