DARE expands program

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

When Terry Brown went off to college, he had no idea he would be a police officer.

He was majoring in biblical youth counseling at religious college when he answered a different call.

"I saw an ad in the newspaper for police officers," Brown said. He responded to the ad and was hooked.

The Amarillo High School graduate moved back to the Panhandle, working first at Pampa, then moving to Hereford two years ago.

He has now combined his first and second callings, serving as the Hereford Police Department's DARE officer in area schools.

The Hereford Police Department began its Drug Abuse Resistance Education program almost four years ago. It was one possible answer to combat substance abuse in the city.

Although officers must go through special training, there had been a high turnover rate among officers teaching the program.

"I'm in it for the long haul," Brown told the Hereford Lions Club last Wednesday. "I gave the chief (Caydon Brush) a long-term commitment to teach the program."

The program was designed several years ago by the Los Angeles Police Department and has grown across the country. At this summer's DARE convention, Brown and Brush were joined by over 7,000 other officers from around the country.

Brown said the program focuses on sixth graders, teaching a 17-week course that culminates with a special graduation. This semester, Brown is teaching at West Central, Bluebonnet and Walcott; he'll hold classes at Shirley, Nazarene Christian Academy, St. Anthony's and Community Christian schools.

The local DARE program, like most others across the country, focuses on sixth graders. "We want to get to the students as young as we can, and fifth and sixth graders know the difference between right and wrong," Brown said. But he also has special sessions for students from kindergarten through high school seniors.

"We do follow-up visits with junior and senior high school students and talk about things like date safety and domestic violence," said Brown. One day, he hopes the program may be expanded to have a second officer teach classes for junior high and senior high school students.

"Some people question whether it is worth the cost to pull a uniformed officer off the streets," Brown said, before presenting statistics showing the connection between drug abuse and crime. According to Brown:

--55 percent of murders are drug related.

--70 percent of burglaries are drug related.

--80 percent of bank robberies are connected to drugs.

--375,000 children are born each year with some type of drug or substance addiction. The first year cost for those babies is $250,000, and parents or the state will pay another $750,000 during the rest of the child's life because of physical and emotional problems the child is likely to suffer.

Brown said DARE is different from other programs because there are no displays of drugs and no drug addicts come to visit the students.

"The former drug addicts come and talk and say they messed up but they're okay now," Brown said. "The kids might take that to mean they could do drugs and be okay later. That's not the message we want to present. We don't want them to ever start and take the risks."

New items have been added to the DARE curriculum this year, including students from the Peers As Leaders (PALS) organization at HHS. Students in PALS have taken a pledge to be drug-free and to lend positive peer pressure to friends who face a variety of temptations.

The students go to schools and help answer questions from Brown's pupils.

"Sometimes they can better answer questions about problems the kids are facing," Brown said. "We let the sixth graders ask them any questions they want, and they usually ask some real good ones."

Another addition this year is the DARE Bear, a stuffed bear that goes with Brown to each class.

"Every student in the class has an opportunity to earn the bear for the day," Brown said. "By doing extra work or something special."

But with the bear comes a special responsibility: the children must care for the bear as if it were a three-year-old. If the student neglects the bear or does something else that may constitute "bear abuse," a petition is started by the students and a mock trial is held. If the student is found guilty of bear abuse, the student loses the bear.

"It's just one more way to teach responsibility, and that's what this is all about," Brown said.

Annual Otonofest is Sunday

How's your blood pressure? could it stand a few hours of fun, music and good times?

Well, you can have fun, and get your blood pressure checked, and much more at the annual Otonofest Celebration in Dameron Park on Sunday.

Otono is the Spanish word for autumn. It's the third annual event, and this year is a joint effort by St. Anthony's and San Jose Catholic churches. In the past, San Jose has been the sole sponsor, but St. Anthony's has joined in as part of a greater cooperative effort between the two parishes.

Hereford EMS and others will be on hand to conduct a free blood pressure screening, and the infamous "Schlingen Gloussen" will be on display. The Schlingen Gloussen has two wheels, whistles, honks, pushes, pulls, turns, rolls and does much more, and will be part of a special display.

There will also be games, food booths and live music throughout the afternoon. There will also be a raffle, where prizes include cash and merchandise. Tickets will be available at the park Sunday.

There will be live music throughout the afternoon featuring local groups Animacion, The Moon Dogs, Blue Sage and mariachis.

Lottery forces gear showdown

AUSTIN (AP) - Voters in Texas, where lotteries have been prohibited for 146 years, will decide Nov. 5 whether to amend the constitution and allow the numbers game.

Backers say a Texas lottery would be a billion-dollar bonanza for a state government forced to raise taxes repeatedly since the devastating oil and real estate busts of 1986.

But opponents, including such traditionally powerful gambling foes as the Baptist church, argue that state-sanctioned wagering is the wrong way to fund government services.

If opinion polls are correct, Proposition 11 will find a winning number of voters and Texans could be playing a state lottery by summer.

A Texas Poll, conducted in February for Harte-Hanks Communications Inc., found 76 percent of 1,002 Texans surveyed favoring lottery. Only 19 percent were opposed and 5 percent undecided.

"A lottery is the one thing they do favor," said state Rep. Ron Wilson, the Houston Democrat who sponsored the lottery amendment.

"If you ask them how they feel about a sales tax, we'll get run out of the room. If you ask them about income-related taxes, they'll hang most of us," the lawmaker said.

All five Texas constitutions enacted since statehood, in 1845, have prohibited lotteries. Texas today is the largest state in the nation without one, while more than 30 states and the District of Columbia operate lotteries.

Lottery legislation died in 1983, 1985, 1986, 1987, 1988, 1989, 1990, and during the Legislature's regular session earlier this year. At the same time, major tax increases were approved in 1986, 1987, 1990 and this year.

So when cash-strapped lawmakers met in a budget-balancing special session this summer - facing a projected deficit of about $5 billion - the lottery amendment finally won the two-thirds majority needed to place it on the ballot.

The state comptroller estimates that a Texas lottery would generate about $1 billion profit every two years once in full operation. It would bring in a projected $462 million for the 1992-93 budget cycle if games begin by July 1992.

First-term Gov. Ann Richards, who wound up signing a $2.7 billion tax increase to balance the 1992-93 state budget, pushed lawmakers hard to give voters a chance to speak on lottery.

"The public enthusiastically endorses a lottery," Richards said. "We ought to give them that right, to determine whether they'd rather have that than taxes."

But opponents call it a "sleazy" way to run state government, and say it teaches children to gamble, entices the poor to waste money and is an inefficient way to raise government funds.

"How can anyone have respect for a government which is deciding to run a carnival with the sole intent of clipping the suckers?" asked Weston Ware of the Texas Baptist Christian Life Commission.

Jude Filler, executive director of the Texas Alliance for Human Needs, accused state leaders of "hypocrisy and cynicism" in advocating state-run gambling to raise funds.

"I will be the first to admit that playing the lottery can be fun, just like wishing on a star or breaking a wishbone. But to fund government on such a basis is idiotic," she said.

Several anti-gambling groups say they will mount a campaign against the lottery amendment.

Sue Cox, director of the Dallas-based Texans Who Care, said the group would try to educate voters about lottery problems but likely spend less than the $500,000 used in an unsuccessful bid to defeat pari-mutuel horse and dog racing four years ago.

A lottery would be the latest in a gradual erosion of gambling prohibitions in Texas.

In 1980, voters amended the Constitution to permit bingo games held for charity. A 1987 referendum lifted the half-century-old ban on pari-mutuel horse and dog race gambling.

Lottery supporters, apparently believing opinion polls and figuring they're on a roll, have been subdued. No television advertising has been aired urging pro-lottery votes.

"We're going to be hard-pressed to lose this election," an unidentified pro-lottery strategist recently told the Houston Post.

Gov. Richards, who made unprecedented appearances before legislative committees to seek lottery approval, will be urging voters to ratify several of the 13 amendments on the November ballot - including lottery, an aide said.

"The key to all of those issues is turnout," said Chuck McDonald, the governor's deputy press secretary. "We feel like if the turnout is good, all of those will pass."

Volleyball boosters seek big crowd for Tuesday match

In the context of an entire season, Tuesday's volleyball match in Hereford doesn't mean much.

There have been other games; there will be others after Tuesday's match. But none, so far, have been as important as Tuesday's match against the archrival Dumas Demons, at 7:30 p.m. at Whiteface Gym.

The Lady Whitefaces have won two of three matches this year against the Demons, at tournaments in Lubbock and Amarillo. Dumas came back, though, to take the most important match so far, on the first day of District 1-4A play two weeks ago.

Herd boosters are hoping for a large crowd to back the Lady Whitefaces. The gym at Hereford Junior High will open about 6 p.m., and action will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the junior varsity match. The rivalry among the two JV teams is almost as intense as that of the varsity teams.

"I think maybe we were a little intimidated by the crowd, and the size of the crowd, at Dumas," said one booster. "We want to make sure the gym is packed, and we want to do everything in good taste."

Hereford fans are encouraged to wear maroon and white and bring booster towels or other paraphernalia to help boost the Lady Whitefaces. Admission to the matches is $2 for adults and $1 for students.

The winner of the game will have the inside track to the second-half title in the district. Going into Saturday's final matches of the first half, Dumas was expected to take the first round championship. The teams are favored to come back through the playoffs and meet against in the quarterfinal round, as they did last season. Dumas came from behind to win that match and go on to its third-straight state championship in 1990.

BRANSON, Mo. (AP) - Johnny Cash is coming. So are Willie Nelson, the Gatlin Brothers and Andy Williams.

There appears to be no end in sight to the country music stars rushing to this booming Ozark Mountain resort town to open theaters. Cash and wife June Carter Cash, Nelson, the Gatlins and Williams plan to open theaters in 1992.

"I think Branson's already exploded and the explosion is just now being felt around the world," Nelson said. "All you folks knew about it all along, and it took guys like me a while to come in here and really see what's going on."

Roy Clark was the first Nashville celebrity to recognize Branson's potential. He opened a theater in 1983 along the neon-lighted strip filled with miniature golf courses and craft shops and has since added a hotel.

A plethora of entertainers have followed the theater route, including Mel Tillis, Ray Stevens, Jim Stafford, Boxcar Willie, Mickey Gilley and Moe Bandy.

All have eyes the size of silver dollars on the same prize - a piece of the $1.5 billion spent annually in the town of 3,700 by more than 4 million visitors.

"I told Larry (Gatlin), 'You have got to take a look at this town. It is absolutely unbelievable,'" said Ben Bush, developer of a $25 million entertainment complex that includes a theater headlined by the Gatlins.

For the past summer season, Branson offered more than 41,000 theater seats for 43 music shows. With the debut of several new stars and theaters, Branson will have more than 57,000 seats for shows in 1992.

Some 6.5 million tickets were sold to music shows in 1990. Two-thirds of Branson's visitors see two or more shows during their stay. And despite the recession, business is up about 5 percent this year.

The potential for further growth is enough to make developers and entertainers giddy.

"It's just a tremendous, tremendous opportunity for this community," said Jack Herschend, president of Silver Dollar City. His family helped ignite the local tourism industry when it opened the theme park in 1960.

"And it's so healthful," he said. "We've got lakes, we've got a theme park, we've got this fantastic country music and beautiful scenery. We've got so much going for us."

Silver Dollar City will make a foray into the theater business next year with the Grand Palace of Country Music, a $13 million development featuring a 4,000-seat theater and two as yet unnamed headliners.

Nelson, who owes $16.7 million in back taxes to the government, probably wishes he'd arrived sooner in Branson.

At about $15 a ticket, the 10 likely sold-out shows he will perform a week in his leased 1,500-seat theater from next May through October could go a long way toward whittling the singer's debts.

For the Cashes, headlining a theater in Branson offers a break from years on the road. For the Gatlins, Williams and other entertainers past their prime, Branson offers a lucrative promise of packed houses for two shows a day during the peak May through October tourist season.

Gatlin, Nelson and others say Branson offers what they and many country music fans once expected to find in Nashville - a variety of live music shows besides the Grand Ole Opry.

Gatlin recounted how entertainer Liza Minnelli visited him at his home in Nashville recently and wanted to go out and hear some music.

"I didn't know where to take her," he said. "Really, there's no place in Nashville you can go hear a Ray Stevens, Willie Nelson, Ray Price, Cristy Lane, Danny Davis, Buck Trent, Roy Clark, Mickey Gilley or the Gatlin Brothers."

Adds Nelson: "A good picker, a good singer, a good writer can come here and have a better chance to get a start" than in Nashville.

Branson soon may offer some production competition to its friendly rival in Tennessee.

Bush says he hopes by next summer to launch a national country music cable television network similar to The Nashville Network, to be based in Branson. And when it opens next spring, the Grand Palace will be equipped with audio and video facilities capable of producing network-quality television specials.

Becoming a country music mecca has its drawbacks, however. Traffic along the two-lane strip is horrendous, with gridlock rivaling that of any major city.

"We need roads, roads and more roads," Herschend said.

Also, the influx of big-name stars could doom some of the family shows that have operated here for decades. At least two theaters along music row now sit empty, and there's talk at least one other may fold after this season.

But the newcomers say the Branson pie is big enough for everyone to share.

"There's plenty of room for all of us," Gatlin said.

East Europe becomes mapmakers' nightmare

EDITOR'S NOTE - With all the political upheavals in Eastern Europe, today's map of the region may be out of date tomorrow. Writers of history books are wondering when they can finish this latest chapter. And now that the Communists are virtually out of business in Moscow, professional Kremlin-watchers in the West are out of work.

By LARRY McSHANE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - President Bush on Sept. 2 recognized the Baltic states as sovereign republics. Four days later, the Russian legislature voted to change the name of Lenin-grad back to the pre-revolutionary St. Petersburg.

It's about time, thought the folks at Rand McNally. The world's largest mapmakers had made the same moves more than a week earlier for their forthcoming Cosmopolitan World Atlas.

"We took a gamble. We pulled our atlases off the presses on Aug. 26 and made the changes. Right now, we're feeling pretty good about that," says Conroy Erickson, head of public relations for the Illinois-based firm.

But it's not just cartographers who need a crystal ball to do business these days. The collapse of communism in Eastern Europe and the dismembering of the Soviet Union has textbook publishers, mapmakers, professors and Soviet-watchers scrambling to keep up.

"We have an editorial department now completely comprised of armchair political scientists - everybody offering their opinion on what might happen," says Chuck Lees of Hammond Inc., another mapmaking firm.

Hammond wasn't as fortunate as its competitor. Their new books were already printed when Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia won their independence. That's the bad news. The good news is that everyone in the industry believes people will soon be spending money on new maps.

While mapmakers saw a business boom in the new boundaries, the demise of the Communist Party and the old Soviet Union signaled bad news for others, particularly those who made a living analyzing what went on behind the Iron Curtain.

"For the field of Soviet studies in general, about 85 percent of the profession is out of business," says Alexander Motyl of Columbia University's Harriman Institute for the Advanced Study of Soviet Affairs.

"This means the foreign policy people are out of business, except if they're historians, and the Kremlinologists are gone. Kremlinology is for all intents and purposes dead."

So is the Yearbook on International Communist Affairs. The folks there saw the handwriting on the Berlin Wall last year, and the Stanford University publication is shutting down this year after its 25th anniversary edition in October.

Things were different but difficult at Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, where they had plenty of orders for textbooks but no idea what would go in them. The Austin, Texas-based publisher produces world history books for high schools nationwide, but they couldn't write history as fast as the Soviet State Council was rewriting it.

The new book was due out in early 1992, but the stunning events across the Atlantic led the publisher to push the publication date back two to three months to allow time for an update, says spokesman Anson Franklin.

"I think it's a long time since you've had anything this dramatic happen," Franklin says. "It's incredible. I can't think of a time since the war in Vietnam when you've had things this dramatic."

Rand McNally's Erickson agrees. "These are the most sweeping and dramatic changes in the history of cartography," he says. "And the potential is there for ongoing change."

The fall of communism was not quite the boon for capitalism some hoped it would be. At the Annin Flag Company in Verona, N.J., there was no sudden demand for the yellow, green and red Lithuanian number or the red and white banner of Latvia.

"We've been making flags for these suppressed nations for some time," says Dan Connors, director of public relations for the company. "People from the Ukraine, Latvia and Lithuania in this country have bought them all along."

There is one exception, he says, the red, white and blue flag of the Russian Republic. "That one hasn't been available in, oh, 70 years," he says. "But again, we're not getting orders in large numbers."

Chinese bureaucracy: a three-day nightmare

BEIJING (AP) - It was just past 2 p.m. and the young man at the customs window was tired. He had been working for about an hour since his 90-minute lunch break.

When the next applicant handed over her forms, he drawled, "Just a minute. I have to rest."

As those waiting in line watched in astonishment, the young man sat down, rubbed his face, poked around in his shirt pocket, plucked out a cigarette and leaned back in his chair.

After puffing a few minutes, he got up and walked out the door.

No one waiting in line dared protest - he might slap on an unusually high customs tax or create other problems.

Similar scenes are played out every day in offices all across China.

The government is so hobbled by red tape, the official Economic Daily reported recently, that it took one company two years and 173 stamps of approval to import a single piece of machinery.

Chinese have perfected the art of dealing with bureaucracy after a lifetime of standing in lines, filling out forms and dealing with rude, unhelpful officials. Young women play damsel-in-distress, grannies scold and badger and nearly everyone smiles and grovels.

They know better than to lose their tempers. To do so could mean not getting a Beijing residence permit or a telephone installed.

A foreign businessman overseeing construction of a major business complex in Beijing said customs agents realize the costs their delays could bring.

He and everyone else who spoke about the customs system did so on condition of anonymity, fearing future import problems.

The businessman's shipping agent has resorted to giving bribes - at first just small gifts such as imported cigarettes. He said the bribes increased to televisions and videocassette recorders as the project's deadline neared.

For the woman whose forms were rejected by the tired young customs official, taking delivery of batteries shipped from Japan took three days, nearly 30 forms, three trips to the airport customs office and four trips to the warehouse.

In the course of one afternoon, she was sent back to the starting window six times, once because her forms were not stapled together and another time because they were not in the right order.

When she asked what the right order was, the customs officer jerked his hand to the information desk and said, "Ask there." There was no one at the information desk.

At the tax window - the last stop - the tired young man ordered the woman back to the start because one line on her forms was corrected by hand by a previous officer. He wanted the whole thing re-typed.

TIME IS MONEY

There's an old saying, that the first offer you get on a piece of property, is often the best. But, that can only be true when the property is carefully appraised. Waiting around for a high figure that may not be offered, earns nothing on the money invested. We were reminded of this when Donald Trump, the well known entrepreneur, bought himself a winter vacation home in Palm Beach, Florida. Several years ago, when Mr. Trump first saw the property, the Mar-A-Lago estate, built by Marjorie Merriweather Post, he offered $15 million and was turned down. The property remained unsold for several years, until Mr. Trump bid again. This time he got the house for a mere $5 million. Another $5 million bought all the furnishings, and a two acre beach next door. Is there a moral to the story? Of course: list your property with a real estate professional, with a firm grasp on real estate values in our area and listen to their professional advice.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says how long a minute is depends on which side of the bathroom door you're on.

During a tour of America, a wealthy Arab sheik stopped his entourage by a roadside stand to buy an apple. The farmer told him the apple would cost $50. "Apples must be very scarce," said the sheik.

"We got loads of apples," said the farmer, "but Sheiks are scarce."

"The Lone Star State," our state motto, has finally been approved by the Texas Highway Commission to be placed on the Texas passenger vehicle license plates.

In August, 1989, the commission decided to leave the state tags sloganless after nearly 25,000 Texans protested a highway department proposal for adding "Friendship State" to the plates. Most protesters felt that this slogan was too whimpy. Instead a Texas flag was added to the upper left of the previous plain plates.

The "Lone Star State" was the overwhelming favorite slogan for new Texas plates in an Austin newspaper poll, but many readers submitted their own ideas, ranging from political commentary to off-the-wall statements.

Of the 7,636 ballots submitted, 6,515 chose "Lone Star State." Another 387 like the plates the way they were--without a slogan--while 613 had other suggestions.

Only 121 chose the "Friendship State" idea of the highway commission that ignited the license plate controversy.

One person was so adamant in the poll that he said that "You should have a second category in the poll. The members of the Texas Highway Commission should be (1)shot, (2)hung, (3)exiled. The protesters even got a resolution passed by the Legislature supporting "Lone Star State."

One of the most unique suggestions was a license plate bearing the image of an armadillo. Other suggestions included: Don't Mess with Texas; Don't Mess with Me State; Don't Litterdamit; Pinhead Legislature; The Bank Failure State; Texas, the Insolvent State; Yankee Go Home; Bluebonnet State; Gateway to New Mexico; and Gateway to Oklahoma.

Some of the 121 that liked the commission's idea said if we made it "Lone Star State," people would only think of beer!

The new slogan, which will be added in blue lettering at the bottom of passenger vehicle tags, should start appearing on Texas highways in early 1992.

A Panhandle publisher tells the story about a policeman who had stopped a senior citizen motorist.

The patrolman had begun to write the ticket when the feisty little old lady snapped, "What are you putting on that ticket?"

"Well, ma'am, I'm writing that you crossed over the center line three times in two blocks, that you ran a stop sign, that you ran a traffic light, that you almost ran into the car in front of you, and that I had to follow you for five blocks with my lights flashing before you stopped."

"Just typical," responded the indignant motorist. "Instead of picking on innocent citizens, why don't you arrest some of those drunk drivers that are a danger to all of us?"

"To tell you the truth, ma'am," he said, "I thought I had one."

Hereford football fans were disappointed Friday night when the Pampa Harvesters downed the Herd by a 21-6 score. Make no mistake about it, Pampa has a good football team. The Whitefaces' strengths appear to be in the offensive and defensive lines, but they'll have to improve in other areas to be a playoff contender. Hang in there, Herd!

Fire Safety Week has just passed and we'd like to add our thanks for the service given by our local volunteer firemen. No one ever really appreciates a fireman until they are needed. Here's a poem about firemen that we spotted in the Littlefield paper:

The Last Alarm
My father was a fireman;
he drove a big red truck,
and when he'd go to work each night
he'd say, "Mother wish me luck."

Then Dad would not come home again
til sometime the next day, but the thing that bothered me the most was the things some folks would say.

"A fireman's life is easy;
he eats and sleeps and plays, and sometimes he don't fight a fire for days and days and days.

When I first heard these comments,
I was too young to understand cause I knew, when people had trouble,
Dad was there to lend a hand.

Then my father went to work one day,
and he kissed us all good-bye,
but little did we realize,
that night, we all would cry.

My father gave his life that night and I wondered why he'd risk his life, then the floor gave way below,
for someone he didn't know.

But now I realize the greatest gift a man can give,
is to lay his life upon the line,
so that someone else might live.

So as we go from day to day,
and we pray to God above,
say a prayer for your local fireman,
he may save the ones you love.

One of the hottest movers of all the Hereford Bi-Products/Merrick Petfoods products is hooves.

Oh, the dog food (Beef 'n' More) is going great, and the hooves won't supplant them at the top. But the hooves are going great.

Mark Kelley brought by the highly-popular 16-pack of hooves. They're great for dogs, all protein and hard as a, well, cow's hoof. As it says on the package, they are preservative free, all natural, help your dog exercise his mouth, combat boredom and clean his teeth.

"They're really going big in Florida and New Jersey," Mark said. They are in over 60 Sam's Wholesale Club warehouses across the country. They are also pushing Hereford, "The Capital of Beef Country, U.S.A.," on the package. Hereford's mentioned at least four times on the package.

Still available are the individually-packaged hooves. Those hooves have gotten plenty of free advertising across the Panhandle as one of the prime door prizes at the Panhandle Press Association's convention every year.

It started a couple of years ago as a "gag" gift (in one case, literally). Last year, otherwise esteemed publishers from the Panhandle area wanted to win one of the hooves.

It's amazing how Garth Merrick and his cracker-jack workforce have taken their "used cow dealership" and turned it into a tremendous success.

P.J. O'Rourke has written a great book, Parliament of Whores. It's about our, the U.S., government and the Great American Political System (GAPS, which is an original thought by yours truly).

I first remember seeing something by P.J. O'Rourke in National Lampoon or something way back a long time ago. He's now the Washington correspondent for Rolling Stone, which must be one heckuva job. P.J., like me, used to be a little liberal but has since grown up, seen the light, and is pretty darn conservative. Neither one of us believes lethal injection should be used for first-time shoplifters.

P.J. details the entire process, from running for president to the political conventions to what a president actually does, and the workings (or lack thereof) of the government.

P.J. is a big Ted Kennedy fan. He was enjoying the fruits of a hospitality suite at the 1988 Democratic Convention while watching Ted Kennedy's "Where Was George?" speech. You know, the one where he kept bringing up all these things and asking, "Where Was George?"

Anyway, P.J. says that every time Teddy would say, "Where Was George?" someone in the room would come up with something like, "Well, he wasn't out drowning campaign volunteers."

The next day the t-shirts cropped up: "Dry, sober and home with his wife." P.J. said he had never been at the birth of a slogan before.

Perhaps the most interesting insight is early in the book, where he

An AP News Analysis

Advice and consent begins at home

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Instead of conferring with their lobbyists and each other, the men seeking to confirm or deny Clarence Thomas a seat on the Supreme Court should have talked with their wives.

Then they might not have tried to file and forget the belated sexual harassment accusation against Thomas. It is an issue that stirs outrage among women, anger that snarled Senate switchboards with protest calls before the Thomas confirmation vote was postponed.

Until the protests erupted, neither the Senate's leadership nor its Judiciary Committee, both all male, saw them coming. By then, the issue was no academic matter - it involved the political reality that female voters outnumber males.

Women's rights organizations already were trying to block Thomas' nomination, counting him an almost certain opponent on abortion although he wouldn't answer questions about it at his hearing.

The intensity soared when the harassment charge surfaced. For all the rhetoric about Senate integrity, the gravity of the charge, the need to dispel a cloud, leaders on both sides of the Thomas struggle had privately decided two weeks in advance to shelve the matter and vote, first in the committee, which deadlocked, then on the floor.

There had been a two-day FBI inquiry, the accuser wanted anonymity and the case was to be closed. As Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., observed, that's the system - allegations in FBI reports often are "evaluated in some sort of contained way," and the Judiciary Committee did so on the harassment charge.

But it wasn't contained for long. And a conversation with a working wife would have forewarned that this undisclosed charge was an explosion waiting to detonate. It did, forcing reopened hearings on a nomination that had seemed assured.

Now there is to be a vote at 6 p.m. next Tuesday, after the sexual harassment charge is investigated with public, sworn testimony by Thomas and the female former aide who accuses him of that conduct a decade ago.

Suddenly, the Thomas case has become a symbol of an abuse working women say they know too well. And the Senate's failure to investigate the charge - which Thomas has sworn is false - came to symbolize the insensitivity of a male establishment to a problem that torments women.

Senate managers didn't seem to know what was hitting them Tuesday until it did, stripping away what had been a majority for Thomas.

Two Democrats who had talked it over with their wives sent early warnings of the Senate's traumatic Tuesday, one with a surprise motion to adjourn for a week, the other withholding his announced support for Thomas unless the vote was delayed.

Delayed it was, but not until almost everybody with a hand in the proceedings had played it poorly.

"The Judiciary Committee did not screw up on anything," Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., snapped at one point.

Not all of his colleagues agreed, having been blindsided by weekend disclosure of the harassment charges in accounts by Newsday and National Public Radio.

The Judiciary Committee had been told, before its 7-7 vote, withholding any endorsement as it sent the Thomas nomination to the full Senate. Senate leaders had been briefed on Sept. 25. The White House knew all about it; the FBI report went there first.

But the rest of the senators didn't know of the accusation when the vote was scheduled for this Tuesday.

Biden said he'd been unable to get the charge investigated until Sept. 23 because until then, the accuser, Anita Hill, wouldn't give permission "even to have the FBI look at this matter."

Even then, he said, she didn't want senators outside the Judiciary Committee told unless she was guaranteed anonymity. Biden said that tied his hands until Monday.

Investigating senators seldom are so deferential, but Sen. George J. Mitchell, the Democratic leader, insisted that Biden's handling was proper, fair and responsible. Mitchell said committee and Senate leaders would have been criticized for challenging her request if they hadn't played it her way.

Now, Biden says, the whole matter will be investigated publicly, "because we cannot fail to take seriously such a charge." Before the outcry, he had said reopened hearings weren't necessary.

Biden opposes the confirmation of Thomas. Two other opponents, Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, dispatched the aides who first turned up the harassment accusation, early in September. But they didn't pursue it either until it had been leaked and published, stirring the protests of women who said it wasn't being taken seriously.

At issue, said Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., "is the relationship of 98 men to the majority of the people of this nation - women."

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor, I was thrilled to see the half-page article, "Spurs Mr. Robinson finds christianity" in the Sept. 29 Brand.

The media, in general, tends to refrain from printing any positive comments concerning God and his son, Jesus. Most seem to take a rather dim view of Christians. I believe if more stories like this were printed and broadcasted, our world would be a much better place in which to live. Thank you for recognizing that David Robinson's commitment to God is, indeed, newsworthy. Who knows, in the not too distant future, maybe it will make front page news. Keith Ann Gears

Dear editor, Every chance I get to tell the people of Hereford just how proud they should be of the emergency medical staff, I will take it.

The Hereford EMS, along with the Hereford Fire Department, responded to a tragic accident Oct. 4. Because of these two departments' combined efforts, lives were saved and permanent paralysis relieved.

There are 10 EMS technicians that assist one another in covering Deaf Smith County. I am very proud of all these people, but especially Kenneth Cook, Mike Foster, Sharon Pennington and Gary Phipps. While we were on the scene these people handled a bad situation very professionally.

We are in the process of raising funds for equipment. Special thanks to Poarch Brothers Inc., for the $750 donation that brought our total to $1,995.33. We would like to put pulse oximeters on our two main ambulances. The cost is $4,195 each. These machines would greatly enhance our patient care. If you, your group or business would like to assist in purchasing these machines, please call the EMS office at 364-2141 or contact one of the EMS personnel.

The next time you see one of these EMT's, stop them and tell them you are proud to have them caring for the residents of Deaf Smith County.

Dear editor, We are all fortunate to live in a great community of people who support one another.

Our very own Lady Whiteface volleyball team will be challenged Tuesday night when they face the Dumas girls at Whiteface Gym. As many of you know, Dumas was ready for us when we hit their town a couple of weeks ago. On the streets were signs, banners, painted cars, and even more.

Back when Plainview was our big rival in football, we did just the same. When Plainview hit town our local businesses and fans were ready with that same type of display. We came out the victor in most of those games. Of course, a lot of that was due to the determination of a young men and coaches, but they also got great support from the community.

We all need to do what we can to get ready for Tuesday night, when Dumas comes to Hereford. Let's make their path into Hereford full of HERD SUPPORT. Please let the Lady Whitefaces and coaches know we are behind them 150 percent. Do why you can to uplift the determination that thrives in the hearts of these girls.

Sincerely,
Sue Urbanczyk

Damascus has special charm

By G.G. LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer
DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) - In the ancient city of Damascus, with all its historic shrines and relics of civilizations gone by, tourists can't find a shop selling T-shirts with catchy slogans touting the place.

One reason is, there aren't many tourists to sell them to.

Not that there's nothing to see. Damascenes like to call their town the world's oldest inhabited city. The tomb of the Muslim conqueror Saladin, scourge of the Crusaders, is just around the corner from the shrine inside the Ommayed Mosque that is said to contain the head of John the Baptist.

On the Street Called Straight, St. Paul walked. Nebuchadnezzar, Alexander the Great and Cyrus of Persia all seized the city in their time. A Turkish bath built in the 7th century is still operating.

But nowhere in the jumble of Damascus, a city of 4 million people, can you find a vendor selling shirts that say things like, "My parents went to ... and all I got was this lousy T-shirt."

Middle East wars and Syria's political isolation saved Damascus from those ersatz curios. The tourism boom of the 1970s and '80s wasn't even a whimper here.

Damascus' pleasant seclusion could end soon since Syria is cozying up to the West in hopes of economic aid and an Arab-Israeli peace agreement. But even without hordes of tourists, you'd hardly call Damascus unspoiled.

Just the aura of political intrigue precludes that. And the shopkeepers know precisely how high to set prices to be haggled down to a "bargain" on Persian carpets and the wooden boxes inlaid with mother of pearl that are Damascene specialties.

Damascus has a dash of French flavor from its colonial past and just got its first American-style fast-food restaurant. Discarded plastic shopping bags - the litter of the West - drift along the streets on a dusty, desert wind from the East.

That's fitting when you consider the description of Damascus by Kassem Toueir, director of the National Museum's Center of Archaeological Research, as "the key to the gate between two continents."

The evidence of Europe meeting Asia is everywhere.

The Ommayed Mosque, first built in the 8th century, stands opposite the surviving columns of a Roman temple to Jupiter. The mosque itself is testament to the succession of races and religions that have coursed through Damascus over the centuries.

The site was originally a temple dedicated to Hadah, the chief deity of the Arameans, nomads who settled here in the 13th century B.C. The Romans converted it into a temple to Jupiter. The Byzantines later built a cathedral named - after John the Baptist and finally, in the 7th century, the conquering Arabs made it a mosque.

Toueir seems most comfortable talking about the old city, dating from the first Muslim conquest in the 7th century in the "Golden Age, when Damascus ruled an empire stretching from the Atlantic to the border of China."

"Damascus is the best preserved old city in the Middle East," he says proudly, noting that new streets have cut through historic areas in both Cairo and Baghdad.

Not in Damascus. A maze of alleys and courtyards spreads out from the square around the Ommayed Mosque. The gold market, the spice market, shops for Damascene brocades, workshops where the tap of hammers is heard as craftsmen pound silver and gold designs into brass trays.

George Nassan, the 81-year-old patriarch of an old merchant family, believes Damascus still makes the Middle East's best crafts, inlaid boxes and tables, silk brocade, curved Arab swords.

He laments that sales have plunged since the days before the 1967 Middle East war when tourists made a regular circuit from Jerusalem to Beirut to Damascus.

Nassan's factory employed 300 men then. Now he has 20 workers.

"During the last war (Iraq's invasion of Kuwait) we didn't see a single stranger," Nassan says.

He's hoping that new U.S. efforts to bring peace to the Middle East will succeed and tourists will return.

Nassan leads visitors through his factory's workshop to his family's old home around a courtyard. "The palace," he calls it, and the name fits. The walls and ceilings were intricately tiled and painted 200 years ago and have been lovingly restored.

The rich house behind the simple workshop is a little like Damascus, where things are not always what they seem.

Like the Street Called Straight, which isn't.

It's taken a few jogs since the Bible's Acts 9:11 recorded God commanding Saint Ananias to "go into the Street Called Straight and inquire in the house of Judas for one called Saul of Tarsus." Ananias laid his hands on Saul, who was cured of his blindness and became the Apostle Paul.

Finally, there's the story of Damascus' sobriquet as the oldest city still inhabited.

Toueir notes that the Armana tablets date the city to at least the 14th century B.C. But he adds there is evidence that Aleppo in northern Syria, still very much inhabited, is 400 years older. Still, some say Damascus is older yet.

Seminar Tuesday for law

A seminar to help local businesses and others comply with the American With Disabilities Act will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

The seminar is being presented by the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Law Office of Sid Ham, Panhandle Action Center for Independent Living, and the Texas Rehabilitation Commission.

The Americans With Disabilities Act will take effect on Jan. 26, 1992. The law has been dubbed "the Emancipation Proclamation for those with disabilities," and will provide civil rights protection for some $3 million Americans with disabilities.

The law has five major sections and will bar discrimination by both private business and state and local governments in employment, accommodations, public services, transportation and telecommunications. The Act requires handicap accessibility to virtually every area in which a business or service is conducted.

The seminar will introduce the provisions of the law and help develop strategies for cooperative implementation of the act's provisions through the use of available community resource groups. Economic means of compliance through imaginative business approaches will be emphasized.

To register for the seminar, call the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office at 364-3333.

CHINA

Finally, import taxes paid and permission in hand, her company driver went to the warehouse to pick up the batteries. There, a customs official decided the company had not paid enough tax and would have to go back and start the process again.

At that crucial moment, Chinese "guanxi" - connections - came into play.

The driver suddenly recognized an old schoolmate working for customs at the warehouse. Not only did she approve the tax assessment, she waived the warehouse storage fees.

Pampa gains district edge with 21-6 win

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

The Hereford Whitefaces ran into a stingy Pampa defense, and Harvester tailback Sammy Laury ran away from Hereford defenders for three touchdowns and 177 yards as Pampa claimed a 21-6 victory Friday at Whiteface Stadium. It was the District 1-4A opener for both teams.

The Harvesters' win was their first over Hereford since 1980.

"We are great admirers of the Hereford program," Pampa coach Dennis Cavalier said. "It's very satisfying when we can come here, compete and actually win the game."

For the Whitefaces, it was a disappointing loss in the game which decided the district last season and may do so this season.

"When you put as much into it as (the Hereford players) did and you lose, it's hard to take," Herd coach Danny Haney said, sitting two rooms over from a somber Hereford locker room. "It's an emotional game."

The Harvesters' defense held the Herd running game in check all night. Hereford managed only 14 rushing yards and four first downs in the first half, and 59 rushing yards for the game. Hereford tailback Leo Brown was held to 67 yards on 18 carries--well below his average of 150 yards per game.

Though Hereford gained 139 yards through the air, several times Pampa blitzes resulted in sacks which stopped Herd drives before they got started. Richard Sanderson, who started at quarterback for the Herd, was sacked four times for 28 yards in losses.

"The big guys did all they could," Sanderson said. "Sometimes Pampa stunted late and we didn't pick it up, and we didn't have enough men to block it."

The passing yardage was mostly the work of tight end Derek Mason, who had four catches for 107 yards, including a 57-yarder for Hereford's only score.

Hereford's defense contained Laury most of the time. Much of his yardage came on his three touchdowns: runs of 24, 31 and 51 yards. Laury showed on all three that after he got past the line, no Hereford defender could catch him from behind.

Pampa had unexpected success with its passing game, which was left mostly untapped in their first five games. Quarterback Andy Cavalier completed 6-of-7 for 122 yards Friday. His only incompletion came when wide-open split end Greg Moore dropped a sure touchdown pass. Fullback Zach Thomas was a factor in the running game only as a blocker, but he caught four passes for 71 yards.

Neither team could mount a sustained drive in the first quarter, and it ended scoreless, but Pampa scored on its first possession of the second quarter. They were helped in the beginning of the drive by an offsides penalty--a call that was made against Hereford several times in the first half. Sometimes the Herd's line would jump, other times they lined up offside.

"Their offensive line lined up kind of far off the ball. We weren't used to being so far from the ball. We tried to get closer, and when we did, we were lining up offside," Herd defensive end Mark Kreighsauer said.

Pampa's first scoring drive started at the Harvester 38-yard line. It might have stalled at the Hereford 48 when Pampa faced a third down-and-11 situation, but Cavalier connected with tight end Phillip Sexton for 24 yards. On the next play, Laury ran 24 yards for the score. Todd McCavit kicked the extra point to make it 7-0 with 9:55 left in the half.

Neither team got close to a touchdown for the rest of the first half. Pampa got to the Hereford 35 with six seconds left in the half, but McCavit's 52-yard field goal attempt was short.

In the second half, Pampa took the kickoff for a touchback, then went 80 yards in nine plays for its second score. They had another big pass play, this time a short pass which Thomas turned into a 39-yarder.

Four plays later, Laury scored from 31 yards out, and McCavit added the extra point. Pampa led 14-0 with 7:19 left in the third quarter.

The Harvesters scored again quickly, and they did it right after the momentum appeared to swing toward Hereford. After Pampa made it 14-0, Hereford's Petey Colvin returned the ensuing kickoff 32 yards to midfield. However, on the third play, Sanderson threw a pass too low, a linebacker got a hand on it and it ended up in the hands of one of Pampa's defensive tackles, Matt Clark.

On Pampa's next play, Laury went 51 yards down the right sideline for his third touchdown. It was a run which

Pagliarulo's HR lifts Twins

TORONTO (AP) - Mike Pagliarulo didn't waste the opportunity of a lifetime.

Pagliarulo hit a pinch-home run with one out in the 10th inning Friday night to give Minnesota a 3-2 victory over Toronto and a 2-1 lead in the American League playoffs. The homer off Mike Timlin also broke a streak of 12 consecutive scoreless innings by Blue Jays relievers.

Only two years ago, Pagliarulo almost was out of baseball after hitting .196 in 50 games with the Padres. Now, he's a big deal in the playoffs.

"It was the biggest game of my life," Pagliarulo said. "I was looking to hit the ball up the middle, but the ball was over the plate so I pulled it. I almost missed first base."

Toronto got a good performance from its bullpen, but the Twins were even better. David West, who slumped in the second half, pitched 2 2-3 shutout innings, allowing one hit, and series surprise Carl Willis worked two scoreless innings, giving up one hit.

Mark Guthrie got the final out of the ninth and gained the victory, and Rick Aguilera finished for his second save of the series.

Pagliarulo was batting for rookie Scott Leius, who was 0-for-3. It was the sixth pinch homer in playoff history, and the third in the AL. The last in the AL was by Kansas City's Pat Sheridan in 1985, also against the Blue Jays.

"I was surprised Pags hit it out," Minnesota manager Tom Kelly said. "Our bullpen did a great job."

The Blue Jays kept a late-arriving SkyDome crowd of 51,454 on their feet in the first inning when Joe Carter hit Scott Erickson's 3-2 pitch 451 feet to center field with two outs. Candy Maldonado made it 2-0 with an RBI double later in the inning.

Toronto, however, could have had much, much more. In the first seven innings, the Blue Jays were 1-for-8 with runners in scoring position. They also had eight walks, but only of those runners scored.

"We left too many runners on base," Toronto manager Cito Gaston said. "It was just one of those nights."

Erickson (20-8) staggered through four-plus innings, allowing three hits and walking five, the latter his season high. He walked the first two batters in the fourth with no damage and the Blue Jays wasted two walks and two David West wild pitches in the fifth.

In 13 of the previous 14 games between the teams this season, the club scoring first went on to win. In Game 3, the Blue Jays' inability to apply a knockout gave the Twins reason to hope.

Wilmer-Hutchins' streak ends

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

An extended dream season finally has ended for No. 4 Wilmer-Hutchins.

Fifth-ranked Waxahachie ended the Eagles' 19-game winning streak, which included last year's Class 4A title, with a dominating 17-0 victory Friday night.

Waxahachie dominated Wilmer-Hutchins both on offense and defense, rolling up 257 yards rushing while holding Wilmer-Hutchins to 125.

Indians' quarterback Lamont Moore carried 14 times for 110 yards and a 14-yard touchdown in the second quarter. Waxahachie scored all its points in the first half.

The Eagles lost last season's opener, 12-0, to Dallas Roosevelt before winning their final 14 and starting this year at 5-0. Waxahachie coach Scott Phillips said the 1991 Wilmer-Hutchins team, with no returning starters, is vastly inferior to the 1990 version.

Friday's loss not end of world

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Friday's 21-6 loss to Pampa does not mean the end of the world for the Hereford Whitefaces this season.

"Our goals are still intact and they are in reach," said Hereford coach Danny Haney.

Haney wasn't too subdued, but those around him were. On the other side of the cinder block wall in the fieldhouse, however, the Harvesters were doing the "war chant" popularized by the Atlanta Braves, Florida State Seminoles, Kansas City Chiefs and, oh by the way, Hereford football players cheering at recent volleyball games.

It all started off so well for the Herd, with quarterback Richard Sanderson hitting tight end Derek Mason on an option pass for 24 yards on the first play of the game.

After that... "We had some thing happen to us," Haney said. "We got the ball down there when the score's nothing--nothing and get a penalty. It put us in a bad spot because they were going to defend the pass in that situation.

"I thought we could run the ball on them but I knew it would be tough to break the big one because they're a good, solid football team. Penalties hurt us early, and it ended up putting their offense on the field. You give their offense enough opportunities and they're going to score."

One of the reasons the Herd couldn't run the ball was because of linebacker Zach Thomas.

"I have great respect for that man," said Hereford center Ramiro Garza. "I didn't think they were going to (be that good on defense). Watching the films I thought they were just one man, Zach Thomas. He proved it to me. He's the best I've played against this year."

"I don't know what happened," Garza said. "In practice we were perfect; we just didn't deliver tonight. We'll be ready for the next ones. We still have four more to play, and we've just got to get ready for the next one. They played a helluva game and we tried, but we just couldn't come out on top."

While the Herd was stymied much of the game on offense, the defense was baffled by the Pampa attack. The Herd took away the middle of the line with a defensive adjustment to help tackles Monroe Timberlake and Santos Liscano. The Harvesters disdained the middle, going to the outside.

It left Timberlake frustrated. "It's hard to explain," Timberlake said. "Something just didn't click tonight. I don't know what that is, but Monday we'll find out what it is and we'll start getting down to business."

Timberlake was surprised that Pampa was able to score three times against the Herd.

"I didn't think we'd score 21 points combined," he said. "I thought we might score 21, but I didn't think they could. When we checked that extra defensive tackle in, they checked it outside. They tried to keep us honest, but they didn't run up the middle much.

"We were surprised they passed so much. They had made their living on the ground. They had passed 22, 23 times in the past four games, so we were ready for the run. We weren't really ready for the pass, and that's why we put the extra defensive tackle in."

"They executed their pass plays well," Haney said. "When you're keyed in on the running game, sometimes you let those guys get behind you. That's what happened tonight."

Volleyball teams to be introduced to boosters

The Whiteface Booster Club will have a special treat at its meeting at 7 p.m. Monday in the HHS cafeteria. In addition to football coach Danny Haney discussing the Pampa game, the meeting will feature the introduction of the varsity and junior varsity volleyball teams.

Varsity coach Brenda Reeh will talk about Tuesday's big game: the Lady Whitefaces go up against Dumas, the three-time defending state champions, at 6:30 in Whiteface Gym.

Boosters are hoping for a huge crowd Tuesday--just like the crowd that cheered for the Demonettes when the District 1-4A rivals met two weeks ago in Dumas.

Rangers need better pitching to contend

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Once again the Texas Rangers faded away to the Hot Stove League, a mystery to no one at all why they didn't do better in the standings.
They finished 10 games behind the American League Western Division champion Minnesota Twins and once again played a September where the games didn't mean much.

The pitching staff led the majors in walks and giving up gopher balls just like it usually does.
Jose Guzman and, of course, the incredible Nolan Ryan, were the only arms to shout about.
The Rangers almost didn't have Guzman. They cut him in spring training then re-signed him to a minor league contract. Any team in the major leagues could have had him for the waiver price. Luckily, the Rangers were lucky.

Ryan pitched his seventh no-hitter and survived two trips to the disabled list to finish the season strong and remove any doubts about his return next year.

The only question that comes to mind watching the 44-year-old wonder is why can't other pitchers on the staff learn from him? At least they should adopt his grit and determination. Can't they see how he studies and works? Didn't they see his seventh no-hitter?

Kevin Brown are you listening? Brown is blessed with one of the best arms in the majors but can't find the winning attitude.

Pitching coach Tom House returns again in 1992 with his controversial methods which have yet to make the Texas pitching staff the envy of baseball. But Ryan likes him. Enough said.

Dugout coach Davey Lopes doesn't come back. He got into a tiff with Manager Bobby Valentine apparently over loyalty and other grievances. Bye bye, Davey.

The Rangers were an awesome offensive machine. They led the majors in scoring runs, more than five per game, and were near the top in most offensive categories.

Julio Franco earned the batting title and Franco, Rafael Palmeiro, and Ruben Sierra each knocked in more than 100 runs.

Budding superstar Juan Gonzalez had a team-high 27 homers.

The Rangers did Steve Buechele a favor by trading him to the pennant-winning Pittsburgh Pirates. The question before the house is did they do themselves a favor by putting all that pressure on young Dean Palmer at third base?

Palmer showed flashes of what he can do, hitting five homers in five games, but he was strikeout prone and suffered fielding lapses that had pro-Buechele fans cringing.

The Rangers were a poor team defensively and can't expect to be a pennant contender next year unless they get better at fielding and catching and turning double plays.
Also, the outfielders need to be reintroduced to the art of hitting the cut-off man.

Texas also was one of the worst teams in major league baseball in running bases. They were picked off and thrown out at a higher rate than most teams.

Injuries to Scott Chiamparino and Bobby Witt hurt the pitching staff and reliever Jeff Russell blew too many save opportunities.

The Rangers were in first place at the All-Star break then separated from the Minnesota Twins like a booster rocket.

The Rangers were a big commercial success, drawing the most fans in their history at 2.3 million. They finished third, good for a $4,000 bonus check for each player.

Valentine and general manager Tom Grieve will be back again next year to try to piece together the Rangers puzzle which always produces intrigue but never a pennant.

Grieve says the Rangers will work hard in trying to improve their pitching staff.

"It's an area where we have to be concerned," Grieve said. "We weren't that far away, just 10 games. If Brown had had a big year we would be right there."

Many critics are blaming Valentine. They say the team mirrors the emotional lows and highs of Valentine and will never play consistent baseball under him.

Owner George W. Bush disagrees and says Valentine will return in 1992 for a Ranger record eighth season.

For the Rangers, it's another one of those "Wait 'til next year" deals.

Pokes go into game as favorites

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys have reached a new winning plateau where they wonder and worry about being the favorite against lesser teams.

Such is the case Sunday when winless Cincinnati comes to Texas Stadium and coach Jimmy Johnson has warned his Cowboys (4-2), installed as seven-point favorites, about this "most dangerous" team and the pitfalls of the Great Open Date Malady.

Johnson told his team that the Bengals (0-5) demand and deserve respect.

"It scares me they have so much talent," Johnson said. "They have won and know how to win. They were in the playoffs last year."

Cincinnati coach Sam Wyche admits the Cowboys are playing a "dangerous team" on Sunday.

"Nobody thinks we can win on Sunday so we will be a team totally unleashed," Wyche said. "We're going to do something to shake this thing up. Stranger things have happened than for us to win Sunday."

Wyche said the losing streak has been hard on him and his team.

"I don't even go to a self-serve gas station anymore," he said. "I don't want to go in and pay for it and hear about it."

Almost as worrisome to Johnson as the wounded Bengals is the fate of teams headed to an open date after the week they play.

Johnson's research shows that there is an open date hex.

"Of 14 games, only four won prior to the week they had an open date," Johnson said. "It tells me some people are taking open dates mentally before they get to it."

"Guys are setting up golf games and finding out where their families are going and making arrangements for the two or three days off instead of concentrating who they are playing on that Sunday."

The Cowboys face something of a budding hex against Wyche.

Dallas is 0-2 against Wyche although this is his first head-to-head meeting with Johnson.

Boomer Esiason directed the Bengals to victories of 50-24 in 1985 and 38-24 in 1988 over the Cowboys. Esiason has completed 31 of 54 passes for 470 yards, six touchdowns and has never thrown an interception against Dallas.

"Boomer is as good a quarterback as there is in the league," Johnson said. "Cincinnati can score a lot of points in a hurry. The only thing that has been killing them is turnovers. Boomer can take a team down the field in a hurry."

Johnson is even worried about what Dallas faces after the Cincinnati game - four road trips out of five games against Detroit, Houston, New York Giants and Washington.

"Those four games on the road give me concern," Johnson said.

The Bengals and Cowboys are 2-2 in their all-time series.

The happiest hunters in Texas are the archery enthusiasts. Between now and Oct. 31, the only hunters allowed in the field must use a bow and arrow. One can usually tell bow hunters from normal people because normal people seldom wear camouflage face make-up, full body camouflage clothing, or smell like scared skunk.

Archery hunters do have the proper attitude that allows them to enjoy the beauty of the great outdoors where actually taking a shot is considered a bonus.

Archery Tip of the Week--If you want to make an archery hunter happy, just ask "What is 'jumping the string'?" Warning: a complete description will take up to 30 minutes. Describing how a trophy buck jumps at the twang of an arrow leaving a bow string is what separates the pretenders from real hunters.

In the world of fishing, some of the most dedicated anglers are what I fondly call the "little old ladies." They may not be little and need not be old, but they share two common traits: they love catching fish and are good at it.

Meet Mary Marsh of Pampa. This 62-year-old enjoys catching fish. Her husband, Darrell serves as guide during their frequent trips in search of strippers, crappie and walleye. On September 9, while trolling for strippers at Oklahoma's Fort Cobb Reservoir, something attacked her gold Hot-N-Tot.

This stripper didn't act right. It just sat on the bottom and tried to pull Mary into the lake. After two hours of pumping and winding, her 17-pound Stren line won the tug-of-war. Darrell used an antique hay hook to somehow pull a huge catfish into their boat.

Mary was exhausted, and Darrell wondered if that fish would ever stop thrashing his fishing tackle. Later at J&M Bait Shop, this monster catfish measured 48 inches long, 36 inches in girth, 12 inches across the head and 8 inches between the eyes. Oklahoma Park Ranger John Bailey verified Mary's flathead catfish at an official 62 pounds.

Like golfers who shoot their age, Mary is already making plans for next year's 63-pound fish.

Quail--With recent surveys indicating a 20 percent increase in quail populations, it is past time for both you and the bird dog to get ready for opening day Nov. 2.

Oops!--Recently in this column, when discussing cove kills by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, I incorrectly noted "no record of cove kills at Lake Baylor." It has come to my attention that all the fish in a cove at Lake Baylor were indeed killed by rotenone 12 years ago. My mistake: I failed to check records that far back in history.

Playa Pete thinks that Lake Meredith could use a twelve year rest from cove kills. Think about it.

First and Last

NEW YORK (AP) - Henry Aaron, the all-time home-run king, hit his first of 755 home runs in the uniform of the Milwaukee Braves and the last for the Milwaukee Brewers.

It was 22 years between Hank's

first homer on April 23, 1954 - the victim being righthander Vic Raschi of the Cardinals - and his last.

Aaron's final four-bagger was struck against Dick Drago of the California Angels on July 20, 1976, in a game in Milwaukee.

Rain increases deer population

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department predicts deer across the state should be in good shape this year after receiving sufficient rainfall.

But the department notes that with healthy deer comes better range conditions and tougher hunting.

"Overall, deer and range conditions are very good in Texas," said Mike Reagan, assistant whitetailed deer program leader.

"Fawn crops should be better than average, antlers probably will be better than average and the deer should be in excellent condition.

"Hunting, though, will be tougher if the rain continues into the season. Hunting is harder under better conditions because deer don't have to move as much to feed," he said.

"It probably won't be a record harvest, but it should be a good hunting season."

Biologists began annual deer census surveys in mid-July and results won't be complete until some time in October. However, biologists who spend time in the field are aware of the conditions in their particular area.

The archery deer season runs Oct. 1-31 statewide. The general whitetail season is Nov. 2-Jan. 5 for most of the state, Nov. 9-Jan. 12 in South Texas. The general mule deer season in the Panhandle is Nov. 23-Dec. 8 and in the Trans-Pecos, Nov. 30-Dec. 15. For bag limits check local county listings.

Here are the department's forecasts for the state's different regions:

PANHANDLE

Once again, adequate rainfall has made for good range conditions.

"Most animals are in good shape," said Danny Swebston, district leader from Amarillo. "We haven't seen many bucks but that's not unusual during our surveys. What bucks we've seen have been pretty good."

The eastern Panhandle has heavy vegetation. "Some of the river bottoms are pretty green," he said. "They've got plenty to eat. Depending on when we get our first freeze, early season hunting could be tough."

Swebston said when the final numbers are tallied the Panhandle's population will be slightly higher than last year, mainly because of the range conditions and a small increase in fawn survival.

TRANS-PECOS

Last fall, the Trans-Pecos began to climb out of a prolonged drought. Since then, the area has had above average rainfall and forage conditions are excellent, said Mike Hobson, district leader from Alpine.

"We anticipate an increase in deer numbers. We anticipate good fawn survival this year and good antler development," he said. "Last fall, the rain came in time to improve body weight but not antler development. This year, we should see an improvement in antler development and continued improvement in body condition."

"The deer are going to be there but hunting may be tougher," Hobson said. "There's so much surface water and food out there the deer won't have to move as much."

POSSUM KINGDOM

Larry Holland, district leader from Brownwood, is expecting an excellent year in this area. Numbers are up, fawn survival is up and antler development is good.

"The numbers are up considerably in some areas, especially the western portion of the district (Edwards Plateau and Permian Basin-type areas). It's up significantly," he said.

"It's up probably because of a tremendous fawn crop. Fawn survival is good because of the good range conditions we've had and the cover for fawns."

Holland said range conditions are so good in some places that it may have hampered the census.

"We're anticipating a good season," he said. "Some deer are already shedding velvet. We've got above average antler development. We've had good conditions throughout the year." Another factor for improved antlers is that 1987 produced a good fawn crop and those deer are now 4 to 4 1/2 years old.

"Hunting will be more difficult if the vegetation lasts until hunting season, and I anticipate it will," Holland said. "There's not much of an acorn crop and what we have has already fallen. They should all be gone by the time hunting season opens."

EDWARDS PLATEAU

The acorn crop may be spotty, but continual moisture has the range conditions in excellent shape and still improving, said Max Traweck, district leader from Kerrville. Body condition will be average to above average and the bucks should have above average antlers.

"We have good quality food and cover but an average year for us is the deer not having enough quality food," he said. "If anything, we're a little above average this year, but that's temporary. We're limited by the amount of good quality food. There's not enough habitat being managed."

PINEYWOODS

The Pineywoods should be comparable to last year, not an all-time high but pretty good, said Gary Spencer, district leader from Jasper.

"We have about the same adult population but I believe we have an above average fawn crop," he said.

POST OAK SAVANNAH

"Range conditions are excellent in this area," said John Wallace, district leader from Tyler. "We had a relatively mild late summer and adequate rainfall. This is normally a stressful period for deer."

OAK PRAIRIE

The Oak Prairie has had good range conditions all year, according to Bob Carroll, district leader from La Grange.

SOUTH TEXAS

Overall, the number of deer in South Texas will probably be down somewhat from the recent three-year drought, but the condition for deer in the area is good.

The happiest hunters in Texas are the archery enthusiasts. Between now and Oct. 31, the only hunters allowed in the field must use a bow and arrow. One can usually tell bow hunters from normal people because normal people seldom wear camouflage face make-up, full body camouflage, or smell like scared skunk.

Archery hunters do have the proper attitude that allows them to enjoy the beauty of the great outdoors where actually taking a shot is considered a bonus.

Archery Tip of the Week--If you want to make an archery hunter happy, just ask "What is 'jumping the string?'" Warning: a complete description will take up to 30 minutes. Describing how a trophy buck jumps at the twang of an arrow leaving a bow string is what separates the pretenders from real hunters.

In the world of fishing, some of the most dedicated anglers are what I fondly call the "little old ladies." They may not be little and need not be old, but they share two common traits: they love catching fish and are good at it.

Meet Mary Marsh of Pampa. This 62-year-old enjoys catching fish. Her husband, Darrell serves as guide during their frequent trips in search of striper, crappie and walleye. On September 9, while trolling for stripers at Oklahoma's Fort Cobb Reservoir, something attacked her gold Hot-N-Tot.

This striper didn't act right. It just sat on the bottom and tried to pull Mary into the lake. After two hours of pumping and winding, her 17-pound Stren line won the tug-of-war. Darrell used an antique hay hook to somehow pull a huge catfish into their boat.

Mary was exhausted, and Darrell wondered if that fish would ever stop thrashing his fishing tackle. Later at J&M Bait Shop, this monster catfish measured 48 inches long, 36 inches in girth, 12 inches across the head and 8 inches between the eyes. Oklahoma Park Ranger John Bailey verified Mary's flathead catfish at an official 62 pounds.

Like golfers who shoot their age, Mary is already making plans for next year's 63-pound fish.

Quail--With recent surveys indicating a 20 percent increase in quail populations, it is past time for both you and the bird dog to get ready for opening day Nov. 2.

Oops!--Recently in this column, when discussing cove kills by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, I incorrectly noted "no record of cove kills at Lake Baylor." It has come to my attention that all the fish in a cove at Lake Baylor were indeed killed by rotenone 12 years ago. My mistake: I failed to check records that far back in history.

Playa Pete thinks that Lake Meredith could use a twelve year rest from cove kills. Think about it.

First and Last
NEW YORK (AP) - Henry Aaron, the all-time home-run king, hit his first of 755 home runs in the uniform of the Milwaukee Braves and the last for the Milwaukee Brewers.
It was 22 years between Hank's

first homer on April 23, 1954 - the victim being righthander Vic Raschi of the Cardinals - and his last.

Aaron's final four-bagger was struck against Dick Drago of the California Angels on July 20, 1976, in a game in Milwaukee.

Rain increases deer population

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department predicts deer across the state should be in good shape this year after receiving sufficient rainfall.

But the department notes that with healthy deer comes better range conditions and tougher hunting.

"Overall, deer and range conditions are very good in Texas," said Mike Reagan, assistant whitetailed deer program leader. "Fawn crops should be better than average, antlers probably will be better than average and the deer should be in excellent condition."

"Hunting, though, will be tougher if the rain continues into the season. Hunting is harder under better conditions because deer don't have to move as much to feed," he said. "It probably won't be a record harvest, but it should be a good hunting season."

Biologists began annual deer census surveys in mid-July and results won't be complete until some time in October. However, biologists who spend time in the field are aware of the conditions in their particular area.

The archery deer season runs Oct. 1-31 statewide. The general whitetail season is Nov. 2-Jan. 5 for most of the state, Nov. 9-Jan. 12 in South Texas. The general mule deer season in the Panhandle is Nov. 23-Dec. 8 and in the Trans-Pecos, Nov. 30-Dec. 15. For bag limits check local county listings.

Here are the department's forecasts for the state's different regions:

PANHANDLE

Once again, adequate rainfall has made for good range conditions.

"Most animals are in good shape," said Danny Swebston, district leader from Amarillo. "We haven't seen many bucks but that's not unusual during our surveys. What bucks we've seen have been pretty good."

The eastern Panhandle has heavy vegetation. "Some of the river bottoms are pretty green," he said. "They've got plenty to eat. Depending on when we get our first freeze, early season hunting could be tough."

Swebston said when the final numbers are tallied the Panhandle's population will be slightly higher than last year, mainly because of the range conditions and a small increase in fawn survival.

TRANS-PECOS

Last fall, the Trans-Pecos began to climb out of a prolonged drought. Since then, the area has had above average rainfall and forage conditions are excellent, said Mike Hobson, district leader from Alpine.

"We anticipate an increase in deer numbers. We anticipate good fawn survival this year and good antler development," he said. "Last fall, the rain came in time to improve body weight but not antler development. This year, we should see an improvement in antler development and continued improvement in body condition."

"The deer are going to be there but hunting may be tougher," Hobson said. "There's so much surface water and food out there the deer won't have to move as much."

POSSUM KINGDOM

Larry Holland, district leader from Brownwood, is expecting an excellent year in this area. Numbers are up, fawn survival is up and antler development is good.

"The numbers are up considerably in some areas, especially the western portion of the district (Edwards Plateau and Permian Basin-type areas). It's up significantly," he said.

"It's up probably because of a tremendous fawn crop. Fawn survival is good because of the good range conditions we've had and the cover for fawns."

Holland said range conditions are so good in some places that it may have hampered the census.

"We're anticipating a good season," he said. "Some deer are already shedding velvet. We've got above average antler development. We've had good conditions throughout the year." Another factor for improved antlers is that 1987 produced a good fawn crop and those deer are now 4 to 4 1/2 years old.

"Hunting will be more difficult if the vegetation lasts until hunting season, and I anticipate it will," Holland said. "There's not much of an acorn crop and what we have has already fallen. They should all be gone by the time hunting season opens."

EDWARDS PLATEAU

The acorn crop may be spotty, but continual moisture has the range conditions in excellent shape and still improving, said Max Traweek, district leader from Kerrville. Body condition will be average to above average and the bucks should have above average antlers.

"We have good quality food and cover but an average year for us is the deer not having enough quality food," he said. "If anything, we're a little above average this year, but that's temporary. We're limited by the amount of good quality food. There's not enough habitat being managed."

PINEYWOODS

The Pineywoods should be comparable to last year, not an all-time high but pretty good, said Gary Spencer, district leader from Jasper.

"We have about the same adult population but I believe we have an above average fawn crop," he said.

POST OAK SAVANNAH

"Range conditions are excellent in this area," said John Wallace, district leader from Tyler. "We had a relatively mild late summer and adequate rainfall. This is normally a stressful period for deer."

OAK PRAIRIE

The Oak Prairie has had good range conditions all year, according to Bob Carroll, district leader from La Grange.

SOUTH TEXAS

Overall, the number of deer in South Texas will probably be down somewhat from the recent three-year drought, but the condition for deer in the area is good.

Farm and Ranch

Rural needs may be 1992 election focus

By JENNIFER DIXON
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rural America is struggling to hang on to its schools, doctors, Main Street shops and political clout.

Although family farmers and their representatives acknowledge an erosion in the strength of the "farm vote," there are signs that the needs of growers and rural communities could be a factor in the 1992 presidential race and some Senate contests.

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole issued one of the first warnings on the political implications of a distressed farm community. In a letter to President Bush, Dole wrote, "The agricultural economy now could best be described as a house of cards."

"We will have a farm policy debate next year, and, very likely, we need one. Farm policy will be a vital issue in 1992," said Dole, who is up for re-election in Kansas next year.

Dole also suggested that a high-visibility debate pitting Republican farm policy against the positions of two Democratic presidential candidates, Sens. Tom Harkin of Iowa and Bob Kerrey of Nebraska, "would fan the flames of populism and possibly reduce Republican strength in Congress."

Kerrey agreed. "There will be a high visibility debate on farm policy next year, the flames have been fanned, and Republicans are at risk," Kerrey said.

Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, who is leading fund-raising efforts for Republican Senate candidates, acknowledged that votes could be lost "based on the lack of prosperity in rural America" but said he is confident Republicans would lose neither votes nor the debate.

"Farm policy issues are still very important," Gramm said. "American agriculture has more political clout than generally understood."

Family farmers say they, too, look forward to a debate that would focus on their troubles - prices below the costs of production, the competition from heavily subsidized foreign agricultural products, and lower domestic spending on farm programs.

They also hope the spotlight focuses on the problems in their communities, which have lost population, hospitals, banks and doctors through the 1980s.

"The situation in rural America is much worse than in 1988," said Vance Morris II, vice president of the American Agriculture Movement and a farmer from Gruver, Texas. "Cities and counties have had to raise taxes, there's more unemployment, people continue to get further and further into debt, there have been bank failures."

"Everything points to the destruction of rural America if it's allowed to go on," Morris said.

According to Calvin Beale, senior demographer in the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service, the number of full-time farm operators and managers fell from 1.48 million in 1980 to 1.24 million in 1990. At the same time, more than half of the nation's non-metropolitan counties lost population - or 1,260 out of 2,385. Only 460 of those counties had lost population in the 1970s.

Farmers will have to unite with other groups to call attention to these losses and their implications, say David Senter, executive director of the American Agriculture Movement, and Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla.

"Rural communities and farmers in particular desperately need to form a coalition with another political block. And I don't think that coalition has developed," said English, who doesn't think farmers will have much of a role in next year's presidential politics.

"These folks are pretty well lost in the shuffle," added Rep. Dick Arney, a Texas Republican.

But Arney said he has no doubt the troubles of family farmers will be a topic of conversation, although the real clout lies with giant agribusinesses that no candidate will ignore.

"The primary value the family farmer has to the process is the sustaining of the pretension - that is to say, you can only be successful in practicing the politics of greed if you wrap it in a language of love and compassion," Arney said.

"So even though farm policy works out to the detriment of the family farm, the myth of family farm, the tradition of the family farm, the romance of the family farm is an integral part of why we manage to keep it in place."

WALDEN

Walden re-elected to TBSWCD board

Bill Walden of Hereford has been re-elected to the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District board of directors. Walden will represent Zone 3 of the district.

Walden is active in Texas Farm Bureau, Texas Pork Producers and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, besides his work with the TBSWCD.

As one of five directors, Walden will be responsible for district policies and procedures for carrying out the district's programs within the framework of the Texas soil conservation district law.

The board coordinates the conservation efforts of various local, state and federal agencies (and other organizations) and has authority to enter into working agreements with governmental agencies and private concerns to carry out its work.

EPA seeking comment on wetland regulations

The Environmental Protection Agency is receiving public comment on proposed changes to the federal manual for wetlands delineation. Comments received during the comment period, scheduled to end Tuesday, will be used to form final rules for wetland delineation.

Several areas (playa lakes in particular) have been delineated as wetlands. Producers who have wetlands on their farms and ranches are currently operating under a farm operating plan prepared according to the Food and Security Act. Changes in EPA regulations will impact these plans.

So far, comments received have been 35 opposed and 1 for the proposed changes. Those opposed to the changes favor more restrictive rules for wetland delineation and use.

Farmers and ranchers who have wetlands on their property are encouraged to comment. Copies of documents that outline the proposed changes are available at the Deaf Smith County ASCS Office at 317 W. Third. Comments should be sent to Gregory Peck, Chief, Wetlands and Aquatic Resources Regulatory Branch, Mail Code (A-104F), USEPA, 401 M Street SW, Washington, DC 20460.

The comment may be extended to afford ag producers more time to consider the proposals and formulate responses, since the comment period coincides with harvest; however, no such extension has been announced.

Cotton comment deadline coming

The U.S. Department of Agriculture is accepting public comment applicable to the 1992 Upland Cotton Program through Wednesday, according to Ted Peabody, county executive director of the Deaf Smith County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

USDA has estimated planted acreage, production, domestic and export use, ending stocks, program participation rates and deficiency payments for three ARP levels.

Comments on the 1992 Upland Cotton program should be mailed to the Director, Commodity Analysis Division, USDA/ASCS, Room 37140S, PO Box 2415, Washington, DC 20013.

This Home Has Five Bedrooms and Four and One Half Baths!

NEED LOTS OF BEDROOMS?

BY W.D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

The foyer opens into the formal living room, dining room, or family room. The family room includes a fireplace, a wet bar, and book shelves, and it opens onto a sun deck. The kitchen is centrally located between dining room and breakfast room. A half bath, a large laundry room, and a double garage complete the first floor plan. The sun deck is accessible from the family room or breakfast room.

On the second floor, there are five bedrooms and four baths. The master suite features a bedroom with tray ceiling, two dormers, and a spacious walk-in closet. The master bath features a double vanity, separate shower, and garden tub. Two of the remaining bedrooms have private baths; the other two bedrooms share a bath but have separate, private powder rooms.

This home is built on a basement foundation.

The stucco exterior is enhanced with decorative quoins, twelve-lite windows, dormer windows over garage and master bedroom, panel door and a combination hip and gable roof with multiple roof breaks.

This is a computer generated plan. The plan is number 3323. It includes 3320 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to VA and FHA requirements. For further information, write to W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Q. - My concern involves the black mortar used on the brickwork of my 10-year-old home. This mortar was used to accent the bricks.

When it was new, the mortar was very black. However, after the first year, it turned gray. Now, after 10 years, the sun and the weather have turned the mortar almost neutral.

Is there anything I can do to restore the black? In every home I've seen with similar mortar, it has become faded.

A. - Although nothing can be done to restore the black in the original mortar, there is something you can do to produce black mortar joints.

You can either stain the joints or tuckpoint them. Both of these methods are tedious and labor-intensive, so, unless you do the work yourself, it can become quite an expensive undertaking.

The original mortar mix probably had carbon black to produce the black color rather than a mineral oxide. They say that carbon black is sensitive to ultraviolet light, not stable, and has a life of about seven months to a year.

If you want to tuckpoint, you will have to grind out the existing joints to a depth of about five-eighths inch and then fill them with new mortar containing a black mineral oxide pigment.

The other method of producing black joints is to stain them using a water-repellent, penetrating masonry stain. The stain can be applied using a one-half inch brush. You must work carefully, however, so as not to smear stain on the bricks.

SAFETY PAYS

EXCEL Salutes
Its Texas Employees

Approximately 3,000 employees of EXCEL Corporation's beef processing plants in Friona and Plainview, Texas, received checks of up to $350 each this week. The gifts were a one-time payment recognizing each employee's contribution to EXCEL and to overall safety and safety costs.

Non-management workers at each plant divided at least $400,000. The amount of individual checks varied depending on length of service with the company.

EXCEL employees' safety, ergonomic and medical management efforts resulted in overall plant improvement. This combined with EXCEL opting out of Texas' worker-compensation program enabled the company to prevent injuries and costs associated with employee injuries.

"Our work force's dedication to producing quality products with a continued strong emphasis on safety helped reduce injuries to employees. The most important result was the benefit to the health of individual employees, but a secondary result was a dramatic reduction in medical claims. We're using this one-time disbursement to share a portion of that savings with those responsible for implementing the expanded safety and ergonomic safety programs," said Cary Humphries, general manager of the Plainview plant.

Congratulations EXCEL employees!!!

PALS program piloting friendships at Hereford High

By DANEE' WILSON
Lifestyles Editor

School days are a time of learning and growing up, but sometimes the growing pains are too great for one to handle. Several relief remedies are available to students who are having troubles, but the one made up of peers and students who have "been there" may be the best.

PALS is an acronym for Peer Assistance and Leadership, a program in its pilot year at Hereford High School.

The purpose of PALS is to train select students to serve as peer helpers with younger students.

Students in the Hereford class were selected after students filled out a questionnaire on who they would turn to if they had a problem.

The students whose names were listed most often were asked to join.

PALS students went through a training process in the beginning and the training is ongoing.

Cindy Simons and Gail Binder are the leaders of PALS. Their role is to help guide the students to be better listeners and offer help in situations too great for the students to handle.

Although PALS is not a "cure all or a source of advice or solutions" it does offer a troubled person a "caring, sharing listening experience."

Students in the PALS class come from a variety of backgrounds and peer groups, but all enjoy working together for the improvement of their school.

"The reason I wanted to be in PALS is because I wanted to help kids and give them something I never had, a teenaged listener," said Claudia Ramirez. "PALS means a lot to me, especially getting the chance to do something useful."

Simons said it was difficult to recruit young men for the program because they didn't know much about what being a PAL would entail. She is optimistic about next year. "I think once they figure out what PALS is about, more will want to be in it."

Parents, students and teachers should not get the wrong idea about PALS and expect the PALS to change the school. They are not trained counselors, but friends. Their purpose is not to offer advice, but an ear to allow the troubled student to work the problem out for themselves.

"PALS is a very good opportunity to get to know how people have different feelings and share their feelings," said Ismael Arroyos. "I feel PALS is a good organization because it gives different ideas on how to be a friend."

"I see PALS as a real asset to the school district as well as top the students who are in the class," said Simons. "The PALS have worked so hard and have already benefited from the class, each is his or her own way."

Some of the students in PALS have since patched up old rivalries in an attempt to better themselves. They also are finding it easier to be friends with everyone, not just the people in their peer group. They are starting to understand how their actions affect other people.

"It is a privilege to be a PAL," said Amy Long. "Being a PAL helps you be become a better listener and a better person all together."

"I think PALS is going to be very helpful to other students and to the Hereford community," Matthew Gavina said.

Students have not been real active, yet as they have been in training. Some are starting to go to the elementary schools and help there.

Although some have been faced with problems they were not capable of handling, they are ready to try again and all agree that if they have helped at least one person, then they were successful.

PALS more than a friendly face

Extension News

By Beverly Harder County Extension Agent-HE EATING BREAKFAST MAY BE A HEART-SMART CHOICE

A new study shows that children who skip breakfast have significantly higher blood cholesterol levels compared to children who eat morning meals.

Researchers looked at the breakfast habits of more than 500 children (ages 9 to 19) and divided them into six categories: Skipper; ready-to-eat (RTE) cereals with fiber; traditional breakfast of eggs, bacon, sausage, waffles or pancakes; chips or sweets; other RTE cereals; and mixed breakfast.

Breakfast skippers were found to have cholesterol levels 7 percent to 8 percent higher than those who ate breakfast. Dr. Ken Resnicow, director of child health research with the American Health Foundation in New York City and conductor of the study, found that the group consuming RTE cereal with at least 2 grams of fiber per ounce had the lowest cholesterol levels. Those consuming chips and sweets had the highest.

Encouraging children to eat breakfast can pay off. The morning meal provides energy and can help the child concentrate during study or play. However, it may be difficult to get some children to eat the traditional-type breakfast like bacon and eggs or cereal. Trying a little breakfast variety can encourage a child to look forward to morning meals. Here are some suggestions:

- *Make a shake for breakfast--combine milk, fresh fruit (bananas, strawberries or peaches) and ice in a blender. Before serving, add a dash of cinnamon and nutmeg.
- *Make popsicles from low-fat yogurt, our fruited yogurt in popsicle molds and freeze on a stick.
- *Serve sliced apples or crackers with a dip made of peanut butter, cream cheese, honey, raisins and flaked coconut.
- *Serve leftover spaghetti, chicken or pizza (hot or cold).
- *Bake a potato and top with grated cheese, steamed vegetables or chili.
- *Serve bagels and English muffins. Spread with cream cheese or peanut butter and top with chopped bananas or crushed pineapple.
- *Make Kabobs with combinations of cheese, fruit, sliced or cubed cooked meat. Be sure to remove toothpicks before serving.

*Sprinkle flour tortillas with grated cheese and broil. Then, top with yogurt or chili sauce. Tortillas can also be served with other combinations such as potatoes, cheese and eggs.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

During the Middle Ages, the year began at various dates in different times and places. In England it was not until 1751 that January was restored to its place as first month, as it had been during the Roman era.

YOUR EYES

BABY LEARNS TO SEE

Babies can see almost at birth, but it takes a while for them to learn how to do it right. At first, a baby may use one eye at a time -- or both, each looking at a different object. It may be a month before the infant is able to direct both eyes at the same object. At first they focus on objects that are close, actually moving the head to follow movement. Eventually, the child learns to move the eyes as a team instead of moving the head. By a year, binocular vision should be pretty well established; neither eye should be wandering in, out, up or down by itself. To "exercise" those new eye muscles, many parents provide a mobile above a crib, or soft toys that baby can reach for. Every time you bring the baby to another room, or outdoors, you provide it with more to look at. If either eye seems to wander after a year, see your eye professional promptly. Early treatment is most effective.

MR AND MRS. LEWIS AVEN

Aven, Cox marry in outdoor ceremony

Lewis Aven and Kathy Lea Cox were united in marriage recently at the Forrest Hills Country Club in Round Rock.

The wedding party and guests entered the patio through an archway of pink and turquoise balloons. The bridal party stood before and heart-shaped archway.

The bride was attired in a champagne tea-length gown fashioned with cap sleeves. The gown was trimmed with sequins and pearl buttons. White roses and baby's breath were intertwined in her hair.

The bridal bouquet featured white roses and baby's breath.

Nancy J. Coker of Austin served as matron of honor. She wore a champagne tea-length dress featuring lace sleeves and a hip-line bustle. She carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

Michelle Reed of Austin served her sister as bridesmaid. She wore a turquoise tea-length dress and carried a white rose bouquet.

Honoring her mother as junior bridesmaid was Heather Cox. She was attired in a floral tea-length dress with a satin ribbon sash. She carried a basket of flower petals. She scattered them down the aisle as she entered.

Legion to host zone meeting

The American Legion and Auxiliary are hosting a zone meeting on Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the post home.

A meal will be provided before the meeting. All members are invited to attend.

Ruland attends meeting

Kee Ruland was District 15 delegate to the 46th Annual meeting of the American Cancer Society Texas Division on October 2-3 in Austin, TX.

Dr. George N. Peters of Dallas was elected state president. Dr. Peters specializes in Breast Cancer and is especially interested in promoting programs and activities that support breast cancer detection emphasizing mammography and clinical breast examination.

Other programs encouraged and developed are to ensure that cancer patients and families have access to resources, information and guidance.

Primary cancer prevention in schools (K-9) as a part of comprehensive health education and the promotion of community participation in the great American Smoke out, which is November 19, were also programs discussed.

For 77 years, the sword has been the A.C.S. emblem of hope. The new A.C.S. theme was introduced, "There is Nothing Mightier Than the Sword." "In the war against cancer we don't just want to fight but to eliminate cancer," said Ruland.

For information on cancer related programs, call Kee at 364-0857 before 9 a.m. and after 6 p.m.

Festive foods session set

Festive Foods will be presented by Mary Blinderman, Home Economist, on Tuesday. There will be two sessions, one beginning at 2:00 and another repeat session at 7:00. Both sessions will be held in the Reddy Room of the SWPS building.

The annual Festive Foods Program features electric cookery of holiday recipes and free recipe booklets will be handed out.

Space is limited so reservations are necessary and may be made by calling the county extension office at 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Between the Covers

By JOE WEAVER
NEWS FLASH...NEWS FLASH...
NEWS FLASH!!!

Don't forget that this weekend is the Annual Friends of the Library Book Sale. There are TONS of books (I know - I helped set them up) waiting to be picked up for a song. Well, actually it will cost a little more than that, but not much! Most books will go for a quarter, and some will only cost a dime. We have magazines, paperbacks, encyclopedias, biographies, how-to's, self-help, religious, text books, and of course, HUNDREDS of novels. Titles range from Peacock Manure to Strange Women, and we're not kidding!

We have a special treat for patrons this year. We will be selling, by sealed bid, an autographed, limited edition copy of Window on the Prairie. This fine book features outstanding illustrations of birds of the Texas Panhandle, by Carolyn Stallwitz, and graphic text by Georgia Tyler, feature writer for the Brand. This book is a necessity for any Texas Panhandle home, so come by during the sale and place your bid!

The sale will be Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the basement of the library. There will be a pre-sale the night before from 5 to 9 p.m. This pre-sale is open only to the members of the Friends of the Library...but WAIT! If you haven't paid your dues, you can pay them any time this week...even the night of the pre-sale. Annual dues are $2.00 for an individual, $5.00 for a family, and $10.00 for a business or organization. In a future column, we'll tell you about the good things the Friends have done, are doing, and will do for the Deaf Smith County Library. Right now, it's time to tell you about some books!

Truth may be stranger than fiction, but it's seldom as fun. If that's the way it is with you, then you'll enjoy Zev Chafetz's new novel Inherit The Mob.

William Gordon is the hottest foreign correspondent in the newspaper business. When he returns to New York for the funeral of his uncle, he receives an offer he can't refuse: the Mafia. And while Gordon may think this inheritance will make him rich, the old-time Italian mafiosi don't take kindly to a young Jewish reporter's taking over their family business. The result is a dazzling caper as clever as Prizzi's Honor and as fast paced as Married to the Mob. In The Godfather everybody dies. With Inherit The Job, you'll die laughing.

Moving back a few centuries is Sherwood. The title divulges the topic. The stirring tale of England's artful outlaw who troubled and challenged the throne itself is known to everyone. But where might the legend have arisen? Who might the historical "Robin" have been all those years ago in Sherwood Forest?

Parke Godwin's Robin Hood is subtly different from the usually accepted version. The setting is shortly after the Norman conquest in 1066. Young Robin is a Saxon landowner who must bow to a brutal foreign king or lose everything his family and people have fought to hold. Sherwood is a realistic historical fiction of the highest order - a compelling, detailed narrative that evokes and illumines a lost time.

Also new on the fiction shelf are:

The Headsman, by James Neal Harvey - a literate story of terror that will have you listening for footsteps in the darkest hours of the night...and, Bayou, by Pamela, Jelke, a sweeping novel of the Southern Delta. (You can read it "Bayou" self!)

Back in the real world, as they say, is the story of David Jacobsen in Hostage. Jacobsen, with Gerald Astor, recounts his "nightmare in Beirut" when he was held prisoner by terrorists for 17 months. In this personal, forthright, and revealing account, the author spells out, for the first time anywhere, the who, what, when, where, how, and why of the Middle East hostage crisis - from inside and out.

Other non-fiction selections consist of four "bird" books, including Roger Tory Peterson's Western Birds Field guide, and a number of medical titles. Somewhere between truth and fiction is Dave Barry's The Only Travel Guide You'll Ever Need. The nationally syndicated columnist dispenses dubious travel tips with his typical wry humor. If you're familiar with Barry, 'nuff said. If not, better read this before your next trip. You may cancel your plans!

SEE YOU AT THE SALE!

Did you know...that each week over 250 local children are involved in a library Story Hour???

Oh, by the way...for the first time in its long history, the Deaf Smith County Library has a male assistant librarian...and...uh...Well, we don't want to hear any smart remarks about there being a man "Between the Covers"...okay?

TERRY VALDEZ, DAVID PEREZ

Couple announce engagement

Teresa Valdez of Hereford and David Perez of Plainview plan to exchange wedding vows Nov. 9 at St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Hereford.

Terry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Azael Valdez of Hereford. David's parents are Severa Casias of Plainview and Edmundo Favila of San Diego, Calif.

The bride-elect is a 1986 Hereford High School graduate and received a Bachelor of Arts in criminal justice from West Texas State University. She is currently employed at Community Supervision and Corrections Department as a corrections officer.

David graduated from Plainview High School in 1984 and attended Eastern New Mexico University. He is employed as a manager at the Wal Mart Distribution Center in Plainview.

Up until 1930 when anyone purchased a bar of soap, the grocer simply hacked off a chunk from a large block.

Fiestas Patrias hosting party for candidates

A Coke party for all girls interested in running for Fiestas Patrias Queen in 1992 will be held at 3 p.m. Oct. 19 at the Parish Hall at San Jose Church, 716 Brevard in Hereford.

The party, hosted by the Fiestas Patrias Committee, is open to all girls of all races and denominations between the ages of 15 and 21. Their parents are also invited.

The 1992-93 queen will be awarded a $1,200 scholarship. All interested girls and their parents are urged to attend the party.

AIM plays games

Alpha Iota Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the office of Stan Fry recently and played "Your Significant Other and You Game."

The program on "Your Significant Other" was presented by Wanda Huseman. Each member and their spouse filled out a questionnaire and a comparison was done. The most compatible was Tommy and Donna Weaver. The least compatible was won by Marrie and Don Leverett.

During the business session, the chapter voted to make a donation to the Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Hereford.

Plans were made for the chapter's booth at the Halloween Carnival sponsored by Crime Stoppers.

An announcement was made concerning the rituals being held Nov. 19. The Alpha Iota Mu Chapter will be the hostess for the event.

The meeting was the "model meeting." Guests were presented a memento from the committee chairmen.

Those attending were Janice Beizen, Jaime Bromman, Glenna Calaway, Patty Frerich, Teresa Hopping, Wanda Huseman, Marrie Leverett, Mary Beth Messer, Donna Weaver and Jill Alexander.

Guests included Pattie Urbanczyk, Carmen Gonzalez, Cruz Salinas and Jan Reeves.

Hostess Mary Beth Messer and co-hostess Patty Frerich served 7-up punch, pretzels and a pumpkin roll.

The next meeting is set for Oct. 17 at the SPS Reddy Room. The program, given by Donna Weaver, will be "Exercise: For Health and Pleasure." Hostess will be Wanda Huseman with Teresa Hopping as co-hostess.

Teachers feel better than secretaries and construction workers.

Phonics class graduates

Brent Huseman (l) and Eric McNutt recently graduated from Alphabetic Phonics Class. It took the boys three years to graduate from the class taught by Gayla Kimball. The program helps dyslexic children and is taught at home.

Auxiliary urges voting

The Ladies Auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #4818 met recently and voted to take coffee to the fire station for Fire Prevention Week.

During the meeting, opened by ritual, treasurers report was given and bills were presented and paid. Committees gave reports.

Brochures for Fire Prevention Week were taken to the school children.

Five aprons were made and presented to the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Auxiliary members urge the public to vote on elections day.

Prior to the meeting, auxiliary and VFW members enjoyed a supper.

Those present include Betty Boggs, Martha Bridges, Leone Buckley Baum, Darleen Carroll, Anna Conkin, Mildred Deyke, Linda Maeder, Ruth Morris, Terry Rhyne, Sadie Shaw, Vivian Williams, Valerie Artho and Marie Goheen. Men present were Bob Baum, Bob Morris and Tom Goheen.

The next meeting is set for Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m. with supper preceding at 6:30 p.m.

If the air conditioning were turned off in the Houston Astrodome, the entrance of warm humid air could cause it to rain in the stadium.

Fiesta Texas auditions Tuesday

Auditions will be held Tuesday from 1-4 p.m. at the Branding Iron Theater in Texas for potential performers for Fiesta Texas and Opryland.

Fiesta Texas is searching the state, and the country, for performers, musicians, stage managers and technicians for productions at the park which opens next spring in San Antonio.

The Canyon auditions are the first of seven to be held in Texas to help cast more than 750 performers for Fiesta Texas and Opryland. The diversity of shows at the two parks supports the need for a variety of performers. The jobs being sought run the gamut of careers available in the entertainment business, according to Fiesta Texas entertainment director Eddy Snell.

"We're looking for good, strong country singers, Broadway-type performers adept in every style of singing and dancing, instrumentalists, strolling musicians and qualified stage managers and technicians," said Snell.

The shows at Fiesta Texas will feature contemporary, gospel, bluegrass, '50s and '60s, Dixieland, mariachi, conjunto, Tejano, German and country music.

Appointments are not necessary for the auditions and interviews. Dancers should prepare a one-minute routine. Singers and instrumentalists should prepare two or three brief numbers that show versatility, and instrumentalists may be asked to sight read. While a cassette player will be provided for those who want to sing or dance to prerecorded music, an experienced accompanist will be on hand for auditions. All persons auditioning must be 16 years of age or older.

Women's division set meeting October 17

Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division will hold their quarterly meeting Oct. 17 at 7 p.m. in the east banquet room of Hereford Community Center.

The meeting will be a salad supper. Officers and directors for the 1991 will be elected.

Kim Buckley will bring a program on nutrition and physical fitness. Guests are welcome. Those wishing to attend should contact Ruth Newsom at 364-0420 or the Chamber office.

There will be a reception at the Senior Citizens Center on Thursday, October 17th at 7PM honoring all of our volunteers, outgoing board members and retiring staff. Service awards will be presented. We invite all or our members to be present to show appreciation to this group who have given so much of their time to the center.

October named breast cancer awareness month

October is National Breast Cancer Month and the Texas Department of Health (TDH) and the centers for Disease Control are joining together to educate women and their families about the importance of early detection of breast cancer. Early detection provides the best opportunity to treat breast cancer successfully.

"Breast cancer is the most common cancer among women--one out of every nine women in this country develops breast cancer," said Charlene Laramey, Director of the Chronic Disease Prevention Program at TDH. "Recently TDH received a $3 million federal grant from the Centers for Disease Control to screen low-income women over 40 years old for breast and cervical cancer. We expect to begin offering these services in October. This is one of the few times the federal government has awarded funds to test for cancer screening."

In 1989, 2,124 Texas women died from breast cancer; 1,663 were white, 218 were black and 243 were Hispanic. In proportion to the size of population, breast cancer mortality rates were highest (26 percent) among black women and lowest (16.8 percent) among Hispanics.

Risk factors for breast cancer include a family history of breast cancer, early menstruation, no children or first child after age 35, late menopause, obesity due to high fat intake and daily consumption of alcohol. As with most cancers, the earlier it is discovered, the more likely it can be treated and cured. Doctors suggest that women perform a breast self-exam each month, have a breast physical exam every three years between the ages of 20 and 40 and every year after age 40, and have a baseline mammogram done at age 35 to 39 with a mammogram done every one to two years for women ages 40 to 49 and every year for women ages 50 or older.

For more information, contact Donna Nichols, Chronic Disease Prevention Program, at 512/458-7534, or Margaret Wilson, Public Health Promotion Division, at 512/458-7405.

Hints from Heloise

SMART CAT

Dear Heloise: I saw my cat do something that I could not believe. Some months ago the sliding-glass door was fogged up and she took her paw and cleaned off a round spot so she could sit and look out as she usually did. I saw her do this four times and wished I could have captured it on film.

I knew she was extremely intelligent but that took the cake. — Ann D. Parsons, Orange, Texas

HANDY PHONE BOOK

Dear Heloise: I saw the hint from a reader who got a new phone book ahead of time when moving to a new town. This is a great idea, but I would like to add another one — take the old phone book too. I've needed numbers and even address several months after moving from my former residence. — L.B., New Orleans, La.

THREAD SPOOLS

Dear Heloise: I keep empty thread spools and reuse them for embroidery thread. — Mrs. Myrtle Nance, New Albany, Miss.

Exquisite designs displayed

The Deaf Smith County Museum has displayed fashions from the 1800s. Pictured is a highly detailed black velvet dress worn by Hereford resident Frances Park's grandmother, Mrs. Nancy Howarth. The dress dates back to 1880 or 1885.

Bippus club hears program on celebrations

The Bippus Home Extension Club met recently at the Siroin Stockade. Extension Agent Beverly Harder presented a program on celebrations. It was announced that the club would sell pecans at $4.25 per pound. Recreation games were played by guests Chris Larsen, Alta Mae Higgins, Corda Glover and Harder. Members attending include Kate Bradley, Marielen Homfeld and Louise Hall. The next meeting will be held in the home of Elaine Pinnel.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Remember the letter from the man who swallowed a lot of air when he ate, his throat closed up, he couldn't breathe and the paid was excruciating? If he drank water to open his throat, the water got stuck "like a plugged-up sink."

The poor guy said he no longer eats with clients or friends and has no interest in food. He had seen two gastroenterologists who couldn't find anything. They said it was stress.

I suggested that he see an allergist. Nearly 20,000 readers had other suggestions. Take a look:

From Lake Forest, Ill.: The man who has trouble swallowing has a hiatal hernia. He should never eat when he is angry. He should chew his food thoroughly. He should belch whenever he feels like it, no matter who he's with, and just say, "excuse me."

Baltimore: Tell him to go to the Johns Hopkins Swallowing Clinic. It's well worth the trip from wherever he lives.

Washington, D.C.: I couldn't swallow for three months. I lost 40 pounds and thought I had cancer. An allergist discovered I was allergic to seafood. What a relief!

Castleberry, Ala.: My husband had exactly the same symptoms. He went to 12 doctors and nobody could help him. Finally a neurologist did a special kind of test and discovered he had myasthenia gravis, a muscle disease.

White Plains, N.Y.: A chiropractor did it for me. He also helped my sinuses, cleared up my complexion and improved my sex life.

Des Moines: I had trouble swallowing, plus choking attacks. After making the rounds and taking a zillion tests, I went to see a therapist who specializes in incest victims. My repressed anger was the culprit. Today I'm 100 percent OK.

Flint, Mich.: My problem was religion. It made me feel so guilty my throat closed. When I stopped going to church it opened up like magic.

Dallas: Doctors failed me for seven years. When I renewed my relationship with God I was miraculously cured.

West Palm Beach, Fla.: I had the same trouble. It was booze, especially margaritas. They are deadly. When I quit drinking I no longer had the problem. I also lost 40 pounds and my liver went back to normal.

Fresno, Calif.: If that fellow will start every meal with hot tea or coffee or hot soup, he won't have any more trouble.

Germany: I read you in Stars and Stripes. My father had the identical symptoms. He went to the Mayo Clinic. They diagnosed it as achalasia, an esophageal muscle condition. Medication didn't work but surgery did. he is now 81 and in perfect health.

Caracas, Venezuela: Forget about doctors. They don't know anything. The best way to get over any kind of throat problem is to stand on your head for 10 minutes every morning before breakfast.

Los Angeles: That man needs to have his esophagus stretched. It hurts like hell, but it will solve the problem.

Wilkes Barre, Pa.: My father had the same problem. Finally my mother, who had always been afraid of him, got up the courage to say, "If you'd take a minute to say grace instead of attacking your food like an animal, your throat wouldn't close on you." For once in his life, he took her advice and it worked.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know you believe children have a right to privacy concerning their personal mail, diaries, and such. I agree. But what about yearbooks? Do the same rules hold true?

My children claim no one should read the personal notes between those covers. Well, I did read them and was horrified at the filthy language and sexual references.

I thought yearbooks belonged in the family bookcase, but I wouldn't dream of leaving this one where anyone might see it.

Am I square? I have already informed my younger children that I am not paying for any more yearbooks. Please comment—Rio Rancho, N.M.

DEAR RIO: If you kids don't want you to look in their yearbooks, don't look. Too bad about the filthy comments. Twenty years from now they'll be ashamed of what's written inside and the people who wrote the smutty comments will have grown up and settled down and they won't be especially proud of them either.

Gem of the Day (Sent in by Louis Safian): When you get to heaven you'll discover that most of the seats in the front row are occupied by people who weren't such big shots down here.

Is life passing you by? Want to improve your social skills? Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely."

Garden club discusses bulb planting

The Bud to Blossom Garden Club met recently at the Hereford Garden Center. The groups learned about bulb planting.

Ursalee Jacobsen talked with the groups on spring flowering and bulb planting. She gave many tips on the depth of planting, fertilizer and positioning.

Members were urged to attend the zone meeting Nov. 6 at the Amarillo Garden Center. Plans were made to plant spring bulbs in the planter box at the Hereford Community Center.

Members present included Phyllis Brown, Jacobsen, Mildred Fuhrman, Joann Blackwell and Pauline Mandina.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

LAYING TRACKS FOR PROFITS

When I was a boy, we lived near a railroad. I vividly remember seeing the steam engines pulling long strings of cars up and down the tracks. I loved watching those big engines billowing clouds of gray smoke. I thrilled at the noise of the drivers and jumped when the whistles blew near the crossing.

I knew very little of the operations involved in running a railroad. I just loved the trains. Today, I know a little more about railroads, and a good analogy can be drawn between railroading and marketing.

Marketing is one of the most misunderstood and underutilized areas of small business management. If you mention marketing to most businessmen and men, you will likely start a discussion of advertising or selling.

No experienced business owner would deny the importance of advertising and personal salesmanship. However, there is more to marketing than those aspects. Marketing is not just a business function, like advertising or selling, but rather is a series of activities.

This series of activities takes in all the steps involved in satisfying customer needs at a profit. It encompasses the delicate mix of getting the right product to the right place at the right price at the right time. It is not as easy as it sounds.

Like Running a Railroad

For the sake of simplicity, permit me the liberty of comparing marketing to operating an old-time railroad. Market research and planning survey the roadbed and lay the tracks. Consumer demand writes the orders and determines what goods are carried. The quality of our products and service is the coal in the tender, and price controls the throttle. Promotion blows the whistle and distribution makes sure all the right switches are open. The boxcars carry loads of innovation, satisfaction and solutions to problems.

If we were to build a marketing railroad, we might call it the B & O for Business and Opportunities. We would begin with research to tell us where the tracks need to go to meet consumer needs and wants. Additional planning would determine what obstacles to tunnel through, trestle over or travel around.

Planning should also determine if we have adequate resources to complete the road. Many small businesses buy the locomotive and cars, and contract to haul the freight. Then they discover that the roadbed isn't complete and there are many obstacles to conquer before the load reaches its destination.

Once the planning is complete, we must pay attention to every aspect of the marketing mix. First, we must offer prices that reflect true value to the consumer. Remember that, even though price has the throttle, it takes good value to make every trip a downhill run.

Products and services provided must have real benefits to the consumers. Many businesses jump the tracks at this junction. Their products simply don't have broad enough appeal to justify their weight. The term is, I believe, dead freight.

Many elements make up the promotion mix. This mix includes advertising, publicity, personal selling, point-of-purchase materials and first impressions. Like the old steam whistle, promotion should draw attention.

The final element of the marketing mix is distribution. Distribution allows us to switch the cars so we get the right products to the right place at the right time. It's a real problem when the boxcar full of surfboards ends up in St. Paul in December or the load of down parkas rolls into Los Angeles in June.

Good marketing is like a well-run railroad. Marketing delivers exactly what people need and want, when they want it and at the price they can afford. Examine successful companies such as Wal-Mart, McDonalds, IBM, Disney and Federal Express. They are constantly laying new tracks for profits.

Don Taylor is the director of West Texas State University's Panhandle Small Business Development Center.

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND PARTIES:

You are hereby notified of the opportunity for written public comment concerning the Permit No. 20847 by HI-Plains Partners or HI-Plains Dairy, by Vega on Highway 385. This facility proposes to emit the following air contaminants: odor, particulate matter-dust and feed mixtures. Before a permit can be issued for this facility, all emission sources must demonstrate compliance with all Rules and Regulations of the Texas Air Control Board (TACB) and all applicable Federal Regulations. This includes the application of "best available control technology" to each emission source and compliance with all ambient air quality standards.
A copy of all materials submitted by the applicant is available of public inspection at the TACB Lubbock Regional Office at 5302 South Avenue Q, Briercrest South #1, Lubbock, Texas 79412, telephone (806) 744-0090 or 744-6055, and the TCCB 12124 Park 35 Circle, Austin, Texas 78753. All interested persons may inspect these materials and submit written comments to the Executive Director of the TACB. Any person who may be affected by emissions of the air contaminants from the proposed facility may request a contested case hearing from the Board on the permit application pursuant to Section 382.056 (d) of the Texas Health and Safety Code. All comments and hearing requests must be received in writing by November 20th. All written comments submitted to the Executive Director shall be considered in determining whether to issue or not issue the permit. All comments will be made available for public inspection at the TACB office in Austin.

Lowe tackling difficult 'Life' role

Actor hopes episodes will educate, entertain

By Steven Alan McGaw

Actor Chad Lowe has joined the cast of ABC's highly regarded drama Life Goes On. In the series, which airs on Sundays, Lowe will play Jesse McKenna, a transfer student at Marshall High School, also attended by Becca and Corky Thacher (series regulars Kellie Martin and Christopher Burke).

Attracted to the enigmatic loner, Becca makes friendly overtures to Jesse, but finds it tough to break through his aloof demeanor. "He seems to be a rebel without a cause," says Lowe.

There is, however, a "cause" for Jesse's off-putting behavior, one that comes to light a few episodes after his first appearance. The "revelation episode," as Lowe terms it, is scheduled to air Sunday, Nov. 3.

"By then, I trust (Becca) enough to share with her what I'm dealing with," Lowe explains, speaking from Jesse's viewpoint, "though I'm not dealing with it very well."

The difficulty is understandable, for the young man's burden is the knowledge of his testing HIV-positive; Jesse will, almost certainly, develop AIDS.

Although Jesse's condition will not be known at first, Lowe was unconcerned with preserving the mystery. "It's not a 'Who shot J.R.?' thing," he asserts. "The bottom line is to educate."

The actor feels strongly that the presentation of accurate information is vital, "so as not to create a paranoid society, but an educated society." He believes the writers of Life Goes On have taken care in developing this story line to offer the facts responsibly.

One example is the handling of Jesse's contraction of the virus, through heterosexual activity. "It's not a gay disease," Lowe emphasizes, but "an equal-opportunity killer." Lowe acknowledges some of his passion for this part comes from personal events.

"I lost my manager (to AIDS) last year ... He'd been with me since I was 15," he says softly. "I never really understood the personal side, the loss ... I knew it was killing many, many people and it was tragic, but, until you're affected personally, you never really understand the human toll."

ABC and the producers of Life Goes On are, of course, to be commended for tackling this controversial issue and adding to the body of AIDS-related programming. Lowe admits many earlier AIDS programs have been very good (An Early Frost, Andre's Mother), but says, "I don't know how many shows have dealt with HIV status and just living with that... getting up in the morning and trying to make it through another day." He also acknowledges some viewers may find the story line unappealing or depressing. Lowe advises those offended to change the channel. "And sure, it gets heavy," he continues, "but it would be irresponsible not to confront the severity of it."

Finally, Lowe says, the instructive nature of the story can, in fact, be uplifting, just as difficult events in real life often are.

"I learned so much about living from my manager's passing away," he explains. "We are really blessed with every breath we take." © TV Listing Inc.

Stewart's PI has status

Rob Stewart plays Nick Slaughter, a sexy, reckless private eye in sunny Key Mariah, Fla. While others play, he's often Sweating Bullets, late-night Mondays on CBS.

In real life Rob's 'painfully single'

By Amy Schmidt

Some guys have all the luck, but Rob Stewart isn't one of them. Yes, that's Rob Stewart, the devil-may-care, chest-bare stud of CBS' late-night whodunit series Sweating Bullets.

"I'm lucky in bizarre ways, but I'm pretty unlucky when it comes to everyday-life things," says Stewart, whose character is known as — yikes, here's a name — Nick Slaughter. "I'm really clumsy and stupid in real life," says the actor only half-joking.

How clumsy is he? Stewart's so clumsy he was fired from seven jobs in a row. At one point, his mother landed him a job with a construction firm that lasted only as long as it took to run over a water main and wreck a $60,000 backhoe.

As a maintenance man at a department store, Stewart caught a cat nap or two overhead in the building's rafters — until one day when he lost his balance, fell off a beam and through the ceiling.

He also tried working as a riding instructor, but fell off a horse and injured a shoulder. A blow to the stomach ruptured a kidney and ended his college hockey scholarship.

With that kind of track record, you would think the sexy, private-eye-playing actor incapable of performing his own Sweating Bullets stunts. Not so, says Stewart. It's only life's tinier tasks that give him trouble: "If you want me to leap from a car to a building, I can do it."

Nearly as quick with the one-liners as slick Nick, Stewart isn't just another pretty face, but a versatile talent. He's directed and written three Canadian features and three episodes for the tortuously plotted Bullets.

Backing Stewart up in the steamy island Sweating setting are Carolyn Dunn as his down-to-earth secretary, and John David Bland, dive-shop owner and all-around cool dude. Oh, and don't forget Vanity, who did a love scene with Stewart this season on the show. "She wasn't very shy," he confesses.

He is, however. In real life, the young actor admits, he's "painfully single."

Unreleased 'Cruisers' tape found; hits record outlets

Eddie and the Cruisers' Michael Pare

What ever happened to those lost tapes of Eddie and the Cruisers? They're now being released, that's what. A new album, Eddie and the Cruisers: The Unreleased Tapes, includes songs written and recorded for the Eddie and the Cruisers films that never appeared on any LP. Performed by John Cafferty and the Beaver Brown Band, the first two movie soundtracks sold well over 3 million copies.

Rock 'n' roll fans can look forward to new tracks on the album titled "Fool and His Money," "Heat of the Night" and "When the World Was Young."

Time is running out to get your Sprint Foncard by subscribing to HBO or Cinemax. The HBO-Sprint promotion offers new subscribers to the pay channels 100 free minutes of long-distance calling; existing Sprint customers will receive 1,000 bonus points in the long-distance company's frequent-caller program if they sign up for either HBO or Cinemax. The offer expires Oct. 23.

ABC was the big winner at the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences' annual awards ceremony in September. The network captured 15 national news and documentary Emmy Awards — more than than any other broadcaster.

20th Century Fox's Alien 3, starring Sigourney Weaver, will open nationwide starting Memorial Day weekend, 1992. In Alien 3, Weaver reprises her role as Warrant Officer Ripley, who, in the new film, finds herself stranded on a remote penal colony that lacks the high-tech weaponry needed to combat the rampaging parasitic monster. The supporting cast includes Charles Dutton, Charles Dance and Lance Henriksen.

Weaver received an Academy Award nomination in 1986 for the second film in the sci-fi series, Aliens.

SOAP TALK

Commissioner's hairdo won't do, says 'GH' viewer

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I almost stopped watching General Hospital when Frisco came back on with greasy, stringy hair that hung in his eyes. Now, Robert comes on with a pony tail!

I'm sick of the writers making the police commissioner look and act like an adolescent. If they are trying to appeal to the younger set, the younger set can have it. It certainly doesn't appeal to older people. I would think setting a good example for the young viewers would be more appropriate. Thanks for letting me sound off. Goodbye, General Hospital! —Verba Schwab, Cookeville, Tenn.

Dear Verba: While I have nothing against longer hair on men, I do have to agree that Tristan Rogers' hair looks terrible. You are right; it really is inappropriate for the character. I don't know about you, but I've never seen a police commissioner with a ponytail, and Rogers is one of those who just looks better in a more traditional style. I've noticed lately he isn't wearing the ponytail as often, but he still needs a good cut.

Dear Candace: I just love Scott Thompson Baker. In fact, I stopped watching General Hospital when he left the show. I just found out he is on All My Children, and I'm so excited. I wondered if you could tell me about him — is he married, does he have any children, his birthday and anything else you might know about him. Thanks. —Clara, Providence, R.I.

Dear Clara: Baker married Leilani Soares in January 1990. They have a son named Thane and live in Connecticut. Born the baby of the family in Golden Valley, Minn., Baker's interest in acting began when he was attending Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla. In 1985 he was discovered in Dallas by a talent scout for Star Search. He won the competition and went on to work in several commercials before getting the role of Colton Shore on General Hospital. He now plays Craig Lawson on All My Children.

I want to hear from you if you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009.

STAR NOTES

Superboy strives for real strength

by Lisa Otoupal

Most people know Superman came from Krypton, was adopted by the Kents and after college moved to Metropolis. The years between had never really been examined until The Adventures of Superboy followed young Clark Kent through a work/study program at the Bureau for Extraneous Matters in Central City, Fla.

Playing the title role in the series is Gerard Christopher. Born in New York City in the Bronx, Christopher is the ninth of 12 children. He studied at Juilliard and then moved to Los Angeles to attend UCLA, where he majored in economics and business.

In order to finance his education, Christopher did some modeling and appeared in more than 60 television commercials. Keeping his model looks is no easy task — the actor works out and runs every day. He has participated in triathlons and other sporting events and maintains a strict diet.

Christopher was featured in the films Dangerously Close and Tomboy. He appeared in the television series Murphy's Law and True Confessions and in the pilot Welcome to Paradise. The Adventures of Superboy is his first regular television series.

In addition to his acting duties, Christopher co-produces the series. He has also written two scripts for the show, one that received critical acclaim last season, and one that will air this season.

Washington, not Broderick, won Oscar

By Taylor Michaels

Q: Tell me about Matthew Broderick, one of my favorite actors. Did he win an Oscar for his performance in Glory? I've noticed that in most of his movies he talks to his audience. Is there any reason for this, do you think?—Cynthia Rizk, Portland, Ore.

A: Broderick was born Aug. 21, 1962, in New York City. His movies include Max Dugan Returns, War Games, Ladyhawke, 1918, Ferris Bueller's Day Off, Biloxi Blues, The Freshman, Family Business and Glory. A few years back he was involved with Jennifer Grey (the star of Dirty Dancing and Broadway-star Joel Grey's daughter), but now he is involved with actress Helen Hunt, whom he met while filming Project X four years ago.

As for talking to his audience, Broderick used that device in Ferris Bueller's Day Off and Biloxi Blues, and he talked to himself in Ladyhawke. In all cases it was probably because the scripts called for it.

Broderick did not win an Oscar for Glory, but his co-star, Denzel Washington, did win the award for best supporting actor.

Q: I'm a big fan of the adult-film star Marilyn Chambers. I would like to know her history and how she got her start in adult films.—Mark Tscholski, Kihel, Hawaii.

A: Ironically, Chambers was once the Ivory Snow baby. Years later she met the Mitchell brothers, producers of pornographic movies, who felt having the Ivory Snow girl in one of their movies would be fantastic.

Chambers' first adult film, Behind the Green Door, was such a popular success that its producers tried to get it nominated for an Academy Award.

In 1977, Chambers made her first mainstream film, Rabid, with director David Cronenberg (Dead Ringers, The Fly).

Q: I'm writing about something that has bothered me for a long time. As a Christian, I'm aware certain things must be fulfilled and times change. Fornication is accepted in this day and age, and cursing is commonplace. However, what are we telling our young people? How can they grow up with a good sense of what's right and wrong with all the mixed messages out there? Do all television shows have to show unmarried couples living together as though it's accepted and moral? Nudity and profanity are so common in movies that a lot of people are used to it and are no longer shocked by it.—Connie Nolen, a grandmother, Morristown, Tenn.

A: Fornication, profanity and nudity existed long before television. Children learn what's right and wrong from their families, not from network executives. And by the way, a nude body can be the basis of great art, as in the case of Michelangelo's David. Maybe it's time to turn off the television and take your grandchildren to the museum where they can learn to appreciate the beautiful things in life.

Q: About two years ago, Martin Mull published a humorous book titled The History of White People in America. I have tried a number of bookstores in Ohio, and none of them has a copy. I would appreciate an address for Martin Mull so I can inquire about his book.—James Hargus, Norwalk, Ohio.

A: I called a local bookstore on this one. The History of White People in America is published by Putnam Press.

Go back to your bookstore with this information and ask them to order it for you.

Q: Since Julia Roberts has been on the big screen, I have enjoyed her freshness. I have written to a few production companies for an address so I might be able to let Miss Roberts know this, but have had no luck. Please help!—M. Wilhelm, Red Wing, Minn.

Roll over Voltaire: 'Candide's' tuned up

By Dan Rice

If Voltaire were alive today, his decrepit fingers would fumble to program his VCR, for the definitive musical version of the French satirist's novel Candide will premiere on A&E Tuesday, Oct. 15. Leonard Bernstein and playwright Lillian Hellman composed the musical in the mid-'50s, but it was widely misunderstood at the time. After many unsuccessful revivals and abridged versions, Bernstein restaged it in 1989, hand-picking the cast and conducting the brilliant score in its entirety. It was to be the last recording ever of the maestro conducting his own work.

The multimillionaire singer of "Silly Love Songs," whose last concert tour was appropriately sponsored by Visa, shares some green with The Disney Channel when Paul McCartney: Going Home premieres Sunday, Oct. 13. Interviews with the Fab One and his entourage alternate with concert footage from 1990 shows in Philadelphia, Brazil, Scotland and England.

Time and desperation, unfortunately, march on. Set in the foreseeable near future, the drama The March depicts Africa as a barren desert with over 100 million people living in refugee camps. In The March, Gandhi-esque Isa El-Mahdi vows to lead his followers into Europe, assuring them either a better future or certain martyrdom. Malick Bowens and Juliet Stevenson star in this A&E premiere, also on Sunday. © TV Listing Inc.

FAMILY FARE

'Childhood' salutes nature and nurture

By Suzanne Gill

The age-old question of whether children are molded by heredity or environment is explored in Childhood, a seven-part series debuting Monday, Oct. 14, on most PBS affiliates. Its conclusion is that the combination of nature and nurture gives children the necessary experience to develop into mature adults while preserving the uniqueness of each individual.

The series studies 12 families over a period of years as the children grow and change. There is a family of African hunter-gatherers; a Brazilian couple struggling to raise a family in the city; Japanese families balancing tradition with modern culture; and Muscovite couples rearing children in a society of limited choices.

While they come from a variety of cultures, each of the families has two parents and is what the producers define as "middle class." (It is difficult for the viewer to assess whether these families are indeed typical: All five of the U.S. families studied, for instance, live within the New York metropolitan area.)

Such limitations may help professionals focus on a so-called normal childhood, but the series loses as much as it gains by ignoring the development of millions of children living in other circumstances.

Nevertheless, many parents will find Childhood an informative and comforting portrait of family life.

Hodge overcame hospital horror for 'Nurses'

By JERRY BUCK

AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Stephanie Hodge had to overcome her terror of hospitals to get ready for her role in the new NBC comedy "Nurses."

"I was a candy striper in my hometown, but I fainted a lot," she says. "Put me in the emergency room, and I'd pass out again and again. I had to get over my fear of hospitals."

As a stand-up, the twice-married, twice-divorced Hodge is noted for her smoky voice, blue material and shoot-from-the-hip zingers on the battle of the sexes.

Hodge, an actress and stand-up comedian, stars in the hospital comedy created by writer Susan Harris. Like two of Harris' other creations, "The Golden Girls" and "Empty Nest," it's set in Miami and characters from the three shows will visit each other. She plays Sandy, who apparently has no last name.

"Nurses" also stars Arnetia Walker, Mary Jo Keenen, Ada Maris, Kenneth David Gilman, Carlos LaCamara and Jeff Altman.

"The show was created for me in a way," says Hodge, who previously starred in six episodes of "Sugar and Spice." "I had a deal with the producers, and when this came in they put me together with the concept. Susan gets to the truth with her characters."

"Sandy's dealing with a lot of hurt and pain and bitterness, but she has a will to survive. Listen, without pain and bitterness I wouldn't have a stand-up act. Bitterness and hostility are the key to my success. It makes me so happy to be bitter. It's so much fun."

Hodge says in the beginning her stand-up act relied on props. "Louie Anderson was very blunt and sweet," she says. "He said I was too cute. That I should get out and relate to people. Jay Leno saw me in Minneapolis and said I had to talk more about myself and to get rid of the props."

"There's a difference between me and other comics who are bold. I think the most shocking thing about me is that people say I hit it right on the money. Joan Blondell, Bette Midler and Carole Lombard all had an influence on me."

She compares her character on "Nurses" with the persona she projects in her comedy act. Sandy is partly based on her own experiences, yet humorously exaggerated. She spent time with nurses at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center to get some insight.

"Sandy's been dumped by her husband," she says. "I know all about that, but I did the dumping. She's a nurse because she wants to help people and care for people. But nurses are the most dumped-on people in a hospital. Nurses are always expected to be there with the bedpan."

Hodge was in the movies "Big Top Pee Wee" and "Almost An Angel," the series "Sugar and Spice" and the pilot "Morton's By the Bay." She's also starred in several television comedy specials and a syndicated series called "My Talk Show." She received an ACE nomination for her appearance last year on the Showtime special "Just For Laughs: Montreal International Comedy Festival."

Hodge was raised a Quaker in Ohio, the daughter of a college professor and school teacher. Although they encouraged her acting, she was also persuaded to get a teaching degree. After college she and her first husband moved to Minneapolis, where she stayed for the next nine years.

"I studied acting, did stand-up comedy, worked in a regional theater with experienced actors, did industrial films and commercials," she says. "It was a phenomenal experience. I got a lot of encouragement in Minneapolis and I learned a lot from people like Paul Reubens, Morey Amsterdam and Jay Leno. I never thought those people would talk to me, but they really leveled with me."

"Finally, I felt I had done everything I could there. There's really a point when you have to challenge yourself. The only thing I didn't do was act at the Guthrie Theater. I moved to Los Angeles 4 years ago. I spent the first year on the road to pay for an apartment I couldn't afford."

Her stand-up appearances are on temporary hold while she works on the sitcom.

For the first time, she says, no one asked her to change her hair color, which is light brown, for her role in "Nurses."

"For 'My Talk Show' I had to bleach my hair blonde," she says. "I was a blonde for eight years. By the time I stopped bleaching it I had a bald spot. My hair stylist said if I bleached it again it wouldn't grow back. For 'Sugar and Spice' I had to wear a fake rear end. I played the Southern neighbor."

"I found it funny. I'd sit down and then realize. The other cast members pinched me a lot and I never knew it."

David Keith and Lisa Darr play a mismatched brother and sister in NBC's "Nurses," Fridays.
