Juvenile Board Fires Officer

By PAUL SIMS Managing Editor

Deaf Smith County Juvenile Probation Officer Roger Bowers, who was involved in a turmoil last year with city, county and school officials over his duties, has been asked to resign, The Brand has learned.

The county juvenile board, comprised of representatives of the City of Hereford, Deaf Smith County and Hereford Independent School District, voted unanimously last Thursday to ask for Bowers' resignation, effective by April 1. News of the board-action was not made public until Monday because Bowers, who was out of town on the day of the vote, had not been notified until Friday.

"Roger just didn't have a rapport with the groups we represented," juvenile board president Charlie Bell said Monday. "We had been used to have a juvenile officer and juvenile probation officer all rolled into one, and Roger failed to live up to that type of position.

"Also, there were instances where a call would be made by a police officer, or whoever, and Roger doesn't have too much finesse in telling someone no.

"We're using taxpayers' money for this position, and we felt like we weren't getting what we were paying for." Police officers, school principals and sheriff's deputies complained in public meetings last year that Bowers had refused to take referrals after his regular working hours and failed to consistently work with potential offenders, instead of juveniles only on probation.

The juvenile board Thursday voted to hire sheriff's deputy Randy Williams as a juvenile officer who will handle referrals from the city, county and school district and will recommend certain young offenders for probation.

The board decided to maintain the juvenile probation office and take applications to fill Bowers' position.

Bell said that after last year's controversy over Bowers' duties, "I wrote a job description, and he was trying to live up to it. But, he just had already made too many enemies, and his initial impact was such that he couldn't turn around."

Bell added that Williams will serve as a "johnny on the spot--he'll be on call all the time when kids get in trouble. The probation officer will continue to be an after-the-fact type of person."

Bowers told The Brand he was "not prepared" to comment (See BOARD, Page 2)

Commission Ups Water Rates

By PAUL SIMS Managing Editor

78th Year, No. 173

Hereford city commissioners Monday night formally approved increases in water and sewage rates for residences and businesses.

The action allows the city to pay for recent work done to expand its water and sewage systems. A revenue-bond election for water and sewer expansion is scheduled for "What we did tonight has nothing to do with the bond issue," City Manager Dudley Bayne told The Brand following Monday's regular semi - monthly commission meeting.

"Whether the bond issue passes or not, the rates are going to have to go up. We just have all these things to pay for. If we don't pay for them with a bond issue, we're going to have to piecemeal them out and catch up anyway," Bayne said.

Monday's vote increases the water rate by 20 cents per 1,000 gallon for residences and the sewage base charge by $1.

City residents currently pay a $1.50 sewage charge on their water bills. That will increase to $2.50 beginning in May.

For water usage, residents pay a minimum charge of $3 for 2,000 gallons and 40 cents. for each additional 1,000 gallons. The base charge will remain the same, but additional charges will increase to 60 cents beginning in May.

Businesses will pay the same water rates as residential customers. However, commercial customers, who now pay 30 percent of their water bill for sewage service, will be charged 50 percent.

The base water rate for users outside the city limits will increase from $3 to $4.50. Customers not in the city who use Hereford water will see an increase from 60 cents to 90 cents per 1,000 gallons in additional charges.

Commissioners Monday also adopted an ordinance calling for the bond election April 5 at the Hereford Community Center. The bond issue, if passed by voters, will result in a total of $800,000 in improvements to the city's water system and $425,000 in sewer expansion.

Commissioners Monday conducted a public hearing on a proposed tax-rate increase then scheduled a vote on the matter for their March 17 meeting.

The tax rate will increase from $1.10 to $1.30 and will generate an additional $164, 000 in operating revenue. Bayne had said on previous occasions that increases in the cost of energy and

Iran Militants Impose Conditions for Meeting

By The Associated Press

The militants holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran imposed new conditions today for the U.N. commission to see the American hostages, virtually eclipsing chances for a visit during the panel's current stay and setting the captors on another collision course with President Abolhassan Bani-

Spokesmen for the militants told the Foreign Ministry the commission should first submit its findings on the ousted shah's regime to the United Nations. They said if the United Nations accepted evidence of U.S. crimes in Iran and wrongdoing by the shah, then a visit to the approximately 50 hostages, who began their fifth month in captivity today, would be reconsidered.

In the meantime, the spokesmen said, they would be prepared to arrange a meeting with the commission and some of the hostages, perhaps only several, on condition they be heard as witnesses testifying about their role as spies for the U.S. government in Iran.

But Bani-Sadr and the ruling Revolutionary Council turned down the militants condition for the commission the captors they had promised the U.N. panel a meeting with all the hostages and that if their pledge did not materialize the government position would be weakened, the official Pars news agency said.

The militants already had poured cold water on a visit by announcing that three of them met for two hours Monday night with Bani-Sadr and four members of the Revolutionary Council and "exchanged views regarding a possible visit to the spy

But by disclosing they are now searching for ways to cut up to $20 billion from the

The push to cut the budget was launched after government cost of living figures released less than two weeks ago showed the largest monthly jump in more than six years. Those figures for January - show inflation running at an annual rate of about 18 percent.

W. Bowman Cutter, an associate director of the Office of Management and Budget, told the House Ways and Means Committee Monday that Carter will send a revised budget to Congress in about two weeks.

One of Carter's top advisers admitted Monday that the budget is being changed because the public doesn't believe the administration imposed sufficient restraints on government spending in the original. "However difficult it is, we

Farmers Discuss

Gaschol at Convention

DENVER (AP) - Gasohol is too expensive for the family farmer but is an "interesting idea," said several farmers at the National Farmers Union 78th annual convention in Denver.

The remarks followed a gasohol plant demonstration-Monday by Cindy Domenico, NFU Director of Youth Activities and "gasohol expert." according to NFU President Tony Dechant.

Gasohol is composed of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent ethyl alcohol. 'It's still a problem to make gasohol on the family farm," said Darrel Dahlke, who farms about 2,500 acres in Alamo, N.D. "And it's not going to get cheaper right away."

Delbert Rogers of Bedford, Iowa, said he has mixed emotions about the alternative fuel. "I just don't see how it's going to help the oil situation if we don't come up with a way to switch completely to alcohol. We've got to go for it completely for it to help."

"It's too expensive for me right now but I'm interested." Rogers added.

He said much the same thing a week ago in New Hampshire-and Reagan beat him there two-to-one. Reagan said he was cautiously optimistic about his prospects in Massachusetts, which he once had described as among his weakest states.

Fed Report Says Signup Unnecessary

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration, seeking congressional support for peacetime draft registration, is trying to cast doubt on the validity of a Selective Service report that says registration is unnecessary.

Rep. Martin Sabo, D-Minn., said Brown and Jones tried to play down the Selective Service's conclusion in

Guerrillas Refuse

To Reduce Demands

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) - The leftist guerrillas holding U.S. Ambassador Diego Asencio and some 26 other hostages in the Dominican Republic's embassy for a week vowed that they would not reduce their demands as they prepared for negotiations with the Colombian government today.

"We won't give in on anything," said the leader of the 30 guerrillas who invaded the embassy during a diplomatic reception last Wednesday. But "we have given no ultimatum." he added in a telephone interview.

One of the guerrillas was killed in the takeover, and the leftists have released 23 hostages, including 15 women. Those still held include at least 20 foreign diplomats, two protocol officers from the Colombian Foreign Ministry and at least four other persons.

The guerrillas, members of an organization called M-19, are demanding $50 million, freedom for 311 other M-19 members they claim are under arrest, worldwide publication of an anti-government manifesto and safe conduct out of Colombia.

Of course it's easy to see what tv doesn't really like a small town. It is too expensive to reach and film, and the news interest doesn't cover a wide enough area. The kind of bread-and-butter events carried by a local newspaper does not play well on the small screen.

From both news and entertainment shows on tv, we suspect they have all the small towns stereotyped as "Hicksville." There may have gbeen an element of truth to that in horse-and-buggy days, but the automobile changed all that.

And, it happened far too many years ago for script writers reared in the big cities to still be hanging a "hick" tag around smaller city residents.

The tv image of rural America might have something to do with the flight of the young people to the big metro areas to seek success, or the difficulty in getting doctors to settle in

Come to think of it. I don't really care whether tv'discovers that living is great in our smaller towns. We might have too many of them wanting to move, and then we'd have the disadvantages of living in a big city!

The decision to hire a juvenile officer who will work apart from the probation office apparently went over well with city. county and school district officials.

Police Chief Don Brush said he hoped the new position would take a load off police officers. "I think that if he's working out in the field, like police officers are, he can save my officers a lot of off-street time by working on certain juvenile cases," Brush said.

Sheriff Travis McPherson called Williams "very capable, very faithful to any job he is doing." McPherson added that the board made the "right" decision in setting up the new office.

"It's just something we need," the sheriff said. County Judge Glen Nelson, a member of the juvenile board, said the board can "better fulfill our purpose by having a juvenile officer working with young people--he'll have some time to devote to preventative work, which we weren't really getting before."

School Superintendent Harrell Holder agreed that the juvenile officer could serve an important function in the

to take," Gramley said. "I don't think we have any alternative."

One of the economists attending last week's conference, Allan H. Meltzer of Carnegie-Mellon University, critized Carter's advisers.

"I don't think there's anyone in the White House who pays any attention to substance," he said, arguing that administration decisions are made on the basis of public opinion alone.

In the original 1981 budget, which provided for federal spending of $616 billion in the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1, Carter and his advisers said a deficit of $15.8 billion was the best they could do without plunging the country into a serious recession.

Now the say it may be possible to balance the budget after all, although they have not yet publicly committed the administration to do this.

The administration is known to be considering heavy cuts in Labor Department jobs programs, which could raise questions about Carter's pledge in his original budget that "the unemployed should not bear the costs of our anti-inflation efforts."

Carter's budget-cutting exercise is being encouraged by Congress, with one after another of the Democratic leadership climbing on the bandwagon for spending cuts. Most Republicans were already there.

Among the latest to get on was Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. He said Monday the 1981 budget is "unacceptable" and called on Carter to submit a balanced budget. Speaking of inflation, he said, "This thing is virtually out of control."

But a top congressional economist, who asked not to be identified, said deciding on a balanced budget and then deciding where the cuts should be made are two entirely different matters. He said it is unlikely Congress would be able to agree on where cuts should be made since a powerful interest group would rise to oppose each and every one.

For example, he cited talk in the administration of cutting back on the formula used to raise Social Security benefits to keep up with inflation. "Can you imagine Congress really cutting programs for the elderly in an election year?" he asked. By leaving the Defense Department out of the budget-cutting exercise. Carter is inviting repudiation of cutbacks in other programs, said a key member of an important congressional committee. "Will people sit still for from page l Social Security cuts while allowing for defense increases, in their present frame of mind? I can't imagine it."

The member asked to remain anonymous.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., indicated Monday he doubts the administration and Congress could balance the budget. "If we are going to make a balanced budget a national goal for 1981, we are going to have to do it with mirrors," he said.

Gramley said the major impact would be in reducing inflationary expectations. But he said there was no way of measuring how much of a reduction that would bring in the actual inflation

Nonetheless, he said, "We are dealing with important expectational problems. If we do what's necessary, that will have beneficial effects even in the short run."

Prior Monday's meeting, Strother had asked Barton and Kolar to leave the Lariat newsroom. Both refused, saying they were still in charge of the five-daya-week paper. Campus police were summoned, but the pair had left by the time officers arrived. Associate journalism professor Don Williams, who supported the editors, was told "to pack pack your bags and get out" when he arrived for classes Monday.

"I'm thoroughly insulted and revolted. I consider (the action) a slap in the face and a betraval of the students," he said.

Williams submitted his resignation last week, to be effective at the end of the spring semester. He said the editors had been "insulted" and treated "very insensitively."

David Butler, senior editor of The Rice Thresher, said he feared the Baylor dispute could spill over to other private universities.

"This goes beyond telling individual students what they can and cannot do, to a question that affect all private schools," Butler said. "Something possibly will have to be done, maybe in the courts, to define the rights of adult students at private schools, churchrelated or not, whether it's posing in the nude for a magazine or writing editorials cricizing the administration," he said.

A. If your car has a starter relay, your trouble probably is there. The relay likely will be located on the firewall. Find it by tracing the positive battery cable. Jump the relay with a heavy cable to check for bad relay. If you don't have an extra length of battery cable, disconnect a cable from one side of the relay and touch the end of the disconnected cable to the terminal on the other side of the relay. To Be Studied

It was your usual elevator crowd of women descending from a luncheon-style show on the mezzanine to the main floor.

They all faced the front of the elevator, their stomachs sucked in, their eyes glued on the lighted numbers. Out of the silence a voice said, "I've heard it from too many people for it to be a rumor, Margaret. Ironing boards are definitely coming Seconds later, the doors opened automatically, but no one moved to get off. We all just stood there numbed by what we had just heard.

Mayva was the first one to laugh. She said it was a stupid prank and someone was just trying to get attention. If it is untrue, it's the most vicious rumor to be circulated since the one a few years ago that long telephone calls caused cellulite.

The very mention of the words "ironing board" brought back all kinds of memories. The early mornings when the kids would drop off at the utility room just before they caught their bus for school and I'd iron anything that showed from under a sweater. (The short kids had to be lifted to the board and held

The stack of unironed clothes in a basket that grew every week and was such fun to rummage through at Halloween.

The time one of my children was visiting and got burnt on an iron. He had never seen one hot before. And who could forget the night when their grandmother babysat with them and laid ironed pajamas out on their beds and they were afraid and refused to touch them? Then one day I bought a dress made out of nylon that was

'drip dry." It was hot in the summer and cold in the winter, but it was a major drudge breakthrough. It got me out of the utility room and led me giddily into the 20th century. I never ironed again.

When I told my daughter that I had heard ironing boards were making a comeback because of the new perma-wrinkled linens, satins and silks, she was unmoved. "What's an ironing board?" she asked.

"I remember. Didn't you burn my leg once while you were pressing my skirt?"

"That's it. It's about waist-high and has a hot surface on top and you kids used to pile your coats and books on it." "I thought that was a stove."

I've always gotten the two mixed up...but if either comes back, I'm in trouble.

4-H Energy Programs Stress Conservation

By AGNES TAYLOR
Ass't County

Extension Agent
While people can't do much about the weather, they can do something about soaring energy costs. This is where the new 4-H energy program comes in.

People often forget about low or no-cost measures that could save energy in their homes. Although the new energy stresses more than just conservation, it is an integral part.

Parents don't have to be the only ones conserving energy -- youngsters can help too. Start practicing all those things you know you should do, but don't.

1. Turn out lights when you leave a room; they add unnecessary heat on hot days as well as use electricity.

2. Keep doors and windows closed securely to keep in air-conditioning in the summer and heat in the winter.

3. Take short showers (4 minutes) instead of tub baths.

4. Keep water heaters between 120-140 degrees F.
5. Match the pan size to burner size when cooking.

6. Use lids when boiling water or cooking food.

7. Fix leaky faucets; you can lose up to 60 gallons of hot water per week.

8. Be sure there is no extra space around vent pipes; seal with duct tape, boards or other insulative material.

9. Use plants to add moisture to air during the winter.

10. Wrap hot water pipes to prevent heat loss.11. Open and close doors quickly.

12. Keep filters clean.

13. Keep machinery welltuned and blades sharp.

tuned and blades sharp.

14. Check out-of-the-way places like attics, garages, closets and storage rooms to make sure lights are turned off

15. Tape cracks in window panes.

16. Keep throw rugs against door thresholds if they leak air.

17. Thaw frozen food in the refrigerator, not on the kitchen counter; cold from thawing meat will help keep air cool in the refrigerator.

These simple low or no-cost steps can produce substantial energy savings.

Youth interested in learning more about how they can combat high energy costs should contact the county Extension office for details on the 4-H energy program.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, or national origin.

Man Finds For Living

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Where can you find a pair of Howdy Doody earmuffs? A recording of humpback whales at play? A hundred thousand ladybugs?

Ask Jim Tice, professional finder.

He's found those items and 1,000 other elusive treasures in nine years of hunting.

Ten to 20 letters arrive at Tice's office each week from as far away as Hong Kong, Ireland and Australia. They seek Tice's help in finding everything from fat ladies to scarce construction materials.

Tice, 43, who works full-time as a communications consultant, takes on only five new searches a week. The more intriguing the challenge, the more likely Tice will accept it.

He began by finding hardto-locate items for friends.
The avocation grew into a part-time business he calls
Finders Keepers Worldwide
Search Service. Tice declined to reveal his income from the search service, but he said it accounts for about half of his total income.

"There's a knack for taking the most narrow path to the item you're looking for," Tice says. "You can tread water a long time and waste a lot of money if you don't know how to approach the search."

He attributes his success contacts and persistence.

"Sometimes I'll write 20 letters in search of an item," he says. "Out of that I might get one good lead. The secret is to keep plugging away."

He found the Howdy Doody earmuffs at a traveling antique show. Sounds of cavorting whales he tracked down through a whale preservation society and contacts in the recording industry.

For the ladybugs, which a firm needed for a large landscaping project, he located a ladybug breeding farm.

These days Tice is on the track of three antique Tiffany postal scales. The man who wants them already has six of the nine in existence.

Tice also is looking for a gas-fired A&P store model coffee roaster, antique ice-fishing decoys, words and music to "Methodist Pie, Sugar in the Gourd," and a pre-1890 wooden water

A film studio once asked him to find a fat lady willing to do a nude dance on a trampoline for a film on the study of motion. Tice contacted acquaintances in the entertainment field and rounded up three women willing to do the part.

Tice first realized he could turn his knack into a business nine years ago while living in Oklahoma.

An Oklahoma City oil executive who had heard of Tice's ability asked him to find a particular clock that gave the hour in cities around the world. The executive had promised the clock as a Christmas gift; and he contacted Tice on Christmas Eve.

Tice tracked down a distributor in Tulsa who had one of the clocks in an attic storeroom, and Tice arranged for a courier.

The next day Tice told his wife: "There's got to be a place in the business world for a guy who does this."

Finders Keepers was born.

Tice does most of his work out of his home. His wife, Lynda, and their three teenage children help.

He keeps track of ongoing searches in three books. One includes requests for information on such things as the origin of an item. He charges $15 for that.

The second book is for one-

The second book is for oneof-a-kind items that "I'm constantly on the lookout for." For a $35 retainer fee, Tice keeps the item listed in his book for a year. If he finds it, he collects an additional fee of 10 percent of the item's value.

Tice's most important book includes items he has agreed to find quickly. Such a search runs $85, plus the 10 percent finders fee when the item is located.

The demand for finders services has increased dramatically in the past year, Tice says.

"Human beings have always accumulated things," Tice says. "The reward used to be the accomplishment of collecting — now there's monetary value in collectibles."

But some misunderstand Tice's s service. One woman asked him to find a purse she lost. Others have asked him to find missing persons.

Tice was intrigued, but said no to a man looking for the family fortune he said his mother had buried on the 40-acre family farm.

"That man needed a treasure hunter," Tice says, "not a finder."

Herd Loses Baseball Opener

By MAURI MONTGOMERY Brand Sports Editor

The Hereford Whiteface varsity baseball team made a mountain out of a molehill here Monday when they dropped their opening game of the season 15-7 to the Caprock Longhorns.

The squad had unleashed an awesome 6-0 run lead in the second inning for what seemed like an easy downhill run at its first victory of the year, but after a fourth inning slump by No. 1 pitcher Ernie Suarez, the Herd hit an eight run Caprock mountain without a pulling gear.

"Our inexperience really showed today because we could had the win and maybe that was it," said head coach David Ashby. "Maybe it was the fact that we pulled out to such a big lead early because I think we all relaxed a little bit after that second inning--I even was looking for a win then and that's probably what killed us later on."

"We just slacked off when we shouldn't have let up and then our lack of experience wouldn't allow us to make up the deficit," he said. "But the sheer fact that we did get that early big lead shows that this team is a capable one and one to reckon with. All in all, I was proud of the way we played in this our first game.'

After a scoreless first frame for both squads, the Whitefaces mounted what later became its only potentially hazardous scoring threat of the ball game.

Delozier then capped a single of his own and advanced to second on errors provided by the Horn's second baseman Raymond Boynton and rightfilder Greg HHS's Dickie Torrez followed and drove in a Collier run for the Herd's second score, with a basehit he ripped off into centerfield while All-District centerfielder Edward Dominguez and second baseman Randy Ellis connected on basehits of their own to load the bases. Those hits set up a three run scoring spree after Hereford hurler Ernie Suarez blasted a double to centerfield, and the Whitefaces took an early 6-0 run mark over Caprock.

But it was the last advantage the squad would see, because the Longhorns utilized a few guns own in the Suarez, who had 'given up only four hits in the first two innings, got rattled in that frame and was later relieved by Norman Hill after he had been riddled for four singles on double, a triple, and a homer for eight runs.

And the Herd went through Hill and hurler Mike Mason in the bottom of the sixth in an effort to stop the Longhorn onslaught, but CHS still managed to drive in six more (three unearned) before the final inning "I don't really know what happened to Ernie there in the fourth, other than he just got rattled by a couple of good hits and lost his confidence," said Ashby. "We just lost our concentration at that point and couldn't seem to get back on the right track. Norman and Mike came in and did a good job for us, but neither of them have seen enough experience then." "It was the first game and we just need some work to get all the kinks ironed out. but I was generally very pleased with these guys performance--especially for their first effort of the

DePaul, which saw its quest for an undefeated regular season stopped by

DePaul closed out a 26-1 regular season with a 97-81 victory over intrastate rival Illinois State

Dickie Torrez blasts a base hit out to centerfield in the bottom of the second inning during the Herd's season opener with the Caprock Longhorns. The Whitefaces jotted down six runs in that inning to the Horn's 0, but later lost the ball game 15-7 after CHS drove in 8 runs in the 4th and capped three in each of the last two innings. The Whitefaces will pair off against the Canyon Eagles Thursday in their next scheduled game.

Moe's Firing No Surprise, But Timing Questioned

By ALEX SACHARE AP Sports Writer

The firing of San Antonio Coach Doug Moe last weekend was no surprise. but the timing was.

Moe, one of the game's free spirits, has had his differences with Spurs owner Angelo Drossos for a couple of years. He saved his job by winning the Central Division the last two years, and by beating Philadelphia and taking Washington to seven games in the playoffs, last

But he was never really on firm footing, and his departure was only a matter of time. Moe said so himself.

"To be perfectly honest, being fired really doesn't bother me," he said. "I was leaving anyway, and I think they sensed that. After I hung up the phone Friday night when Angelo told me, Big Jane (Moe's wife) got out a bottle of champagne. We celebrated the good years and the future.

Moe is hopeful of landing another NBA job. Right now the only other post available is with the expansion Dallas team, but others will likely open up over the summer.

As a coach Moe believed in sending the players on the floor and letting them do their thing. He was blessed with three brilliant offensive performers in George Gervin, Larry Kenon and James Silas, and the result was a run-and-gun team that annually scored the most points in the league - and gave up the most.

The Spurs rarely played effective defense, but this was as much the players' fault as Moe's. He tried putting in a switching zonetype defense, but with a player like Gervin who is so weak on defensive fundamentals, this effort was Moe always was outspoken about the deficiencies of those around him. He was fined for his comments about the officiating in last year's playoffs, and recently he was brutally honest about his team's weak defense and lack of intensity.

While a coaching change was inevitable, the question remains, why do it now? The Spurs seemed a safe bet to make the playoffs, despite their lack of defense and the center, and isn't that the goal during the regular season?

"It was obvious we weren't going anywhere the way we were playing," replied Drossos. "You can't necessarily blame the coaches or the players. Doug is not the scapegoat, but a change had to be made."

NFL Owners Eye Oakland's Move

DALLAS (AP) committee of five National Football League owners has been told to study the Oakland Raiders' planned move to the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, said NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

George Halas of Chicago, Art Modell of Cleveland, Wellington Mara of New York, Bill Bidwill of St. Louis and Seattle's Herman Sarkowski were asked to report next week at a regularly scheduled NFL meeting in Palm Springs, Calif, Rozelle said Monday, after an emergency NFL owners meeting.

"The basic concern of the owners is the protection of the bylaws of the NFL constitution," Rozelle said after the lengthy meeting that featured a presentation from Oakland's Managing General Partner Al Davis.

"I talked to the other owners about our reception in the city in 1963 and brought them up to date through 1979 on how we built the stadium there," Davis said. Rozelle said, "I deeply regret that he didn't come to the League earlier about it. My concern is for the future of the NFL." According to the NFL constitution, 21 of the 28

move. In addition, the city of Oakland has filed suit to keep the team at Oakland's Alameda County Coliseum, and Rozelle said there were several steps the NFL could take if Oakland were to move

"Obviously, strong steps could be taken, if the League chooses to do so, for conduct detrimental to the League," said Rozelle.

One of those steps could be dropping the Raiders from the 1980 NFL schedule, Rozelle said.

No vote was taken Monday, but there was a chance ballots would be passed out in Palm Spings. Davis said, after Monday's meeting, "When I get back (to Oakland), we're going to start to get our move organized to L.A." He said the Raiders would be moving in mid March. adding "I've committed to move to L.A. and I hope the NFL owners will ... allow us to move. I believe they are reasonable people."

Rozelle, asked to describe the mood of the owners' meeting, said: "It was not an emotional one. They were just getting the facts to learn what was going on."

"I think there were a 3 lot more kids off our team this year that should have gained some recognition, not only because I'm prejudice. but because of their enthusiasm, hustle, and outstanding play," said head coach Bob Decker.

"I don't have any power on who's nominated from my team because I'm not allowed to vote for any of my players, but I simply think there were some individuals that should have received some credit that didn't."

"I'm extremely proud of Darrell and Norman though, and I think they are both very deserving of the honor. It makes them look good and

Long Beach Is Miffed, Happy

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) -Long Beach State, happy to be included in the National Invitation Tournament but disappointed by an NCAA snub, takes on Pepperdine tonight in a first-round NIT game at the Anaheim Convention Center.

'We've beaten four teams who are going to the NCAA - Marquette, BYU, Lamar and San Jose," said Long Beach Coach Tex Winter. "UCLA (invited to the NCAA tournament) has beaten only two...it's an injustice."

Still, Winter doesn't want to take anything away from the NIT. "We are happy to be going to a postseason tournament," he said. "I think we are very well matched with Pepperdine.

"We played early in the season and lost by one point, 95-94. The NIT provides all the teams with a real opportunity and should be quite a motivating factor for all the athletes involved.

Winter is unhappy that only two clubs from the Pacific Coast Athletic Association - San Jose State and Utah State for the NCAA chosen tournament. Long Beach had finished second in both the regular PCAA season and in the league tournament.

Ali to Return For Title Bout

By ED SCHUYLER JR. AP Sports Writer

"What do you think would happen if I came back," Muhammad Ali asked an interviewer after being named The Associated Press' Athlete of the Decade for the 1970s.

Unfortunately, it looks like we're going to find out. The former champion says he'll fight again. Promoter Bob Arum is talking about Ali fighting John Tate for the World Boxing Association heavyweight champion at New Orleans in June.

The interviewer's answer to Ali's question had been: "It'd be tough, and you don't have anything to prove."

"That's right," retorted Ali. "You said the word. I have nothing else to prove." So now, he's going to prove something.

He can make the impossible possible again, but he's already proved he is one of history's most incredible athletes. He's more likely to prove that he is no longer that greatest and prettiest heavyweight in the world, just the oldest.

Ali has always said he wouldn't end up like Joe Louis, and he won't ... financially.

But Ali's announced intention of returning to the ring brought to mind a picture often seen in magazines and books about boxing. It shows a Louis, the devastating Brown Bomber who, defended the heavyweight title 25 times, lying on the ring apron after being knocked through the ropes by Rocky Marciano and Granted, neither John Tate nor Larry Holmes, the World Boxing Council champ, is in the class of Rocky Marciano. The point is, though, that the 38-year-old Ali now IS in the same class as the 37-year-old Louis, who was knocked out by Marciano in 1951. Ali has had four fights in 41 months - a dull decision over Alfredo Evangelista and a decision after a hard 15 rounds o over Earnie Shavers in 1977; a loss to inexperienced Leon Spinks and an historic but not especially impressive win over Spinks that made him an unprecedented three-time heavyweight champion Sept. 15, 1978.

Before regaining the title from Spinks, Ali said, "It's my biggest fight because I'm older and I realize it's my last fight. I can't go on much longer even if I wanted to."

Ali's reflexes now are those of a 38-year-old who once was a great fighter. better than that of your average 38-year-old man but no longer those of a worldclass fighter.

The legs won't let him float like a butterfly and the weight doesn't come off as easily as it used to. Ali certainly can get into the kind of physical condition needed to pass a fight physical maybe not by June, however - but there could be a hidden danger there.

Ali has had to shoot the knuckles of his right hand with cortisone for several years before fighting. He also reportedly has calcium deposits in his neck and there have long been whispers of potential kidney trouble.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Could you send me some information that I could pass on to two friends who have hus-bands with drinking prob-lems? Both of the wives insist that their husbands are not alcoholics but having had experience with one, I'm inclined to disagree. One man is in his 30s and the other in his 50s. Both work at jobs where they can have a can of beer at hand at all times.

Neither one consumes much hard liquor but each one drinks at least 12 cans of beer every day, week in and week out. Food is secondary to the beer. Neither one seems to get intoxicated and can carry on a normal conversation. Both men apparently do their jobs satisfactorily.

At the end of the day, it's not unusual for either one to fall asleep the minute he relaxes in a chair and it's almost impossible to arouse him. Knowing what can happen to them, I'm concerned for both of the families.

DEAR READER — You're

a good and true friend and you have adequate reason to be concerned. If the situation is as you describe it, both men are alcoholics. A standard can of beer contains about the same amount of alcohol as a standard cocktail mixed with one jigger of hard liquor. Individuals who drink considerable amounts of alcohol over long periods of time develop a tolerance to it. That, in itself, is a warning sign that addiction to alcohol has occurred.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-6, Alcohol Can Be Hazardous To Your Health. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The Health Letter I'm send-The Health Letter I'm sending you describes the effects of alcohol on the body and may be useful to your friends. And as it suggests, both of the wives might get some help by consulting the yellow pages of their telephone directory under alcoholism. Various centers are available in each community to deal with this community to deal with this problem and are usually listed

There may also be an Al-Anon organization which is for relatives of alcoholics. Both wives should consult this organization for further information and help. The organization can certainly help the women understand that their husbands are alcoholics and have a problem, and can best guide them as to what they might do.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm wondering if you could put my mind at ease. My daughter will be 16 in a few months but she has never had a period. She is developing normally in all other areas and is healthy and has no ailments. I'm won-dering if I should take her to a doctor now or wait a few more months.

DEAR READER - If your observation is correct and she's developing normally in all other ways, I think you can safely wait a while. Figures show that approximately 5 percent of girls have their first menstrual period between 16 and 18 and 1 percent don't have their period until between age 18 and 20. A normal late onset of menstrual periods does not indicate any disease and it's just one of years old and have had my last period 10 weeks ago. Can something be wrong? My sisters didn't have any troubles with their periods when they first got theirs. I'm not pregnant

DEAR READER - It's not particularly uncommon for a young girl to be irregular when she first starts having when she first starts having menstrual periods. The whole system is so complex that the amazing thing is the degree of regularity that does occur.

There are many factors that affect regularity, one heing recurrent unwise fad diets. Young girls often do this to lose weight and it can affect their normal endocrine system and cause irregularity system and cause irregularity or even total absence of menstrual periods.

Why don't you relax about it and if you don't return to normal cycles within a few months, you might want to talk to your doctor about it.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Is it true that if a woman gets pregnant by a drug addict or junkie that her baby will suffer a withdrawal or will the baby have this problem even if the mother is not a junkie? DEAR READER — No, the baby will not have the prob-lem of drug addiction if the father is a junkie. There may be some drugs that affect the chromosomes in the sperm cells but I don't believe enough studies really have been done on this. If the mother uses drugs or alcohol, the baby may develop an addiction to these drugs and will have withdrawal symptoms and perhaps other prob-

Mondale Seeks Cuban Support in Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Vice President Walter Mondale seeks Texas labor support for himself and President Carter today as the state AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE) gathers to interview and endorse statewide candidates.

About 1,200 delegates also planned to hear Railroad Commission and statewide judicial candidates during the two-day COPE gathering.

First up today were candidates for the Railroad Commission seat now held by John Poerner, who is seeking re-election. Also after the post are Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, and Republicans Henry Grover and John Thomas Henderson.

Mondale was expected to announce officially the names of those who will run the Carter-Mondale campaign in Texas.

Sources at state Democratic Party headquarters said the three, co-directors of the campaign will be Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, Austin businessman Lowell Lebermann and Calvin Guest of Bryan, former party chairman.

Armstrong, Guest and former Agriculture Commissioner John White - now head of the Democratic National Committee - ran the Carter-Mondale campaign in Texas in 1976.

The campaign director. overseeing day-to-day operations, will be Bob Beckel, 31, former White House aide and deputy assistant secretary of state.

News that Armstrong, Lebermann and Guest would run the presidential reelection effort in Texas drew an angry blast from Marc Campos, chairman of Mexican-American "Frankly, I'm fed up and tired with white boy first politics. ... And although the three individuals selected to serve as co-campaign chairmen have at times dealt fairly with the minority community of this state, they don't even come close to understanding the problems and issues that affect us," Campos said.

Texas delegates to the Democratic national convention this summer will be chosen in a state convention on the basis of candidate strength shown in the precincts.

An AFL-CIO source said Mondale's visit to the COPE convention could make a difference in Carter's delegate strength from Texas.

"Just Mondale walking down the aisle can make a difference in the delegate votes. He will definitely get some delegate votes for them (Carter-Mondale) at the state convention," the source said.

After Mondale's speech, COPE delegates will hear candidates for Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent's job. Like Poerner, Nugent is opposed by both Democrat and Republican candidates. Jim Hightower, former Texas Observer editor, said Monday he expects to get the COPE endorsement and already has been endorsed by the United Steelworkers and United Farmworkers.

Harry Hubbard, state AFL-CIO president, said he would propose to COPE delegates a plan to put a corporate profits tax before the voters if initiative and referendum comes to Texas.

The AFL-CIO is on record against initiative and referendum, but Hubbard said if legislators and voters put it in the Texas Constitution, "a corporate profits tax tied to substantial property tax relief for homeowners would be a popular and equitable measure for consideration by Then when Wallace proved a vote-getter in Pennsylvania and Wisconsin -- where he beat Humphrey -- that did it! Hubert Humphrey made a phone call. In essence it said, 'With Wallace's help J can get the nomination; let's establish contact." That call was to a friend and political confidant in Columbus, Ga., who promptly established contact with Wallace's friend and political adviser, Jimmy Faulkner of Bay Minette, Ala. During lunch at Faulkner's home, Humphrey was quoted as saying that he could not win the election without the active support of Wallace. "He could be a kingmaker." Faulkner replied bluntly.

"George Wallace is no kingmaker; he is a king!

"The only way to get Wallace to be an active campaigner for a Humphrey ticket." said Faulkner, "would be for Wallace to be on that ticket."

Humphrey's emissary responded that the important thing was to keep open a "line of communication for negotiation." Faulkner, in turn, promised to report the conversation to Gov. Wal-

Wallace was campaigning in the Midwest. A meeting was scheduled for the following Friday -- May 29. 1972.

But on May 15 in Laurel, Md., Gov. Wallace was shot. The next day, while hospitalized, he won primaries in both Maryland and Michigan, received an outright majority in Michigan. He outpolled Humphrey in both states. On Wednesday following the attempted assassination.

Faulkner was contacted urgently. Humphrey now wanted to include Wallace on the ticket "on crutches, in a wheelchair or any way I can get him."

Faulkner promised to relay the offer promptly.

Wallace, hospitalized in Silver Springs, Md., 10 days following the attempt on his life, even though gravely ill, listened to Humphrey's offer of the Vice Presidency, was delighted.

Philosophically, a Humphrey - Wallace ticket appeared incompatible.

But, agreed Wallace, 'Humphrey is the best of the bad guys -- and we've got to stop McGovern!"

The Democratic National Convention was in Miami in July. On Sunday night, Jimmy Faulkner was invited to Sen. Humphrey's suite. Humphrey said, "Gov. Wallace will be good for me. I think I will be good for him. In my opinion, we will be an unbeatable team." There was pragmatic political evidence to support that prediction.

The appeal of George Wallace, in a wheelchair, was greater than ever.

A dozen governors were demanding Wallace be included on the Democratic ticket.

Humphrey was confident of his own following in the North. Wallace could deliver the West and South.

The then-governor of Georgia, Jimmy Carter, agreed: "A Humphrey -Wallace ticket would be unbeatable."

Wallace, though not even on the primary ballot in California, had received three hundred thousand write-in votes there.

However, at the July convention in Miami, it was the "outlaw delegation" from California which was seated. The California delegate vote was split.

And when the roll was called -- out of 3,200 votes --McGovern won by 12.

McGovern was nominated -- subsequently, resoundingly defeated.

Now to project what would have happened had seven California votes tipped the balance instead to a Humphrey - Wallace ticket. Assuming the combination would have been in-fact "unbeatable," Humphrey would have been elected and reelected, would have died of cancer in the first year of his second term -- and George

Wallace would have been

'Iron Lady' A Novelty

LONDON (AP) - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is becoming something of a cult figure - the target of cartoonists, the butt of impressionists and even the model of an "Iron Lady"

The paraphernalia that has sprung up since Mrs. Thatcher took office shows how eager British stores and showbiz people are to cash in on the fame surrounding Europe's first female prime minister.

A British toy company is manufacturing an eight-inch Thatcher Doll faithfully reproducing her full-figured body, laquered hairstyle and schoolteacher-ish clothes.

It even comes with the outfit she wore the day of her electoral triumph last year a blue suit, black pocketbook and pumps.

Lest you dare forget, the date of Mrs. Thatcher's Conservative Party win -May 3 — is stamped on the back of her neck. And the doll's wrist bears a tag giving extracts from her victory speech.

Already the Thatcher dolls are crossing the Atlantic. Peggy Nisbet, whose Avonbased firm is marketing the doll, says it has been a huge success among U.S. toy firms.

"The Americans really admire Mrs. Thatcher," said Mrs. Nisbet, 71, who just happens to be an ardent Conservative Party supporter.

"When I took the prototype over there recently, the idea sold straight away."

The doll retails for about

One has already been sent to No. 10 Downing Street, though no one knows just how the prime minister likes her new, if unsolicited, gift.

Just as Richard M. Nixon had his series of comic lookalikes, Mrs. Thatcher's marbles-in-the-mouth speech and parlor-perfect looks have given birth to a pair of female impersonators.

One of them, Janet Brown, can pass as the real McCoy when she puts on the prim and proper clothes that Mrs. Thatcher wears. Her immitation is so good, it once fooled a House of Commons guard.

Not only does Miss Brown include Mrs. Thatcher's likeness in a cabaret act, but she has just come out with a record album that is a takeoff from one of the prime minister's famous speeches.

The original compared the roots of the Conservative Party to "early man's search for God." Miss Brown's version aims for laughs with Mrs. Thatcher allegedly talking about Noah's construction of the Arc as the first case of free enterprise boat-building.

One British newspaper arranged for Miss Brown dressed in her prime ministerial role - to come face-to-face with Mrs. Thatcher.

Admonished Miss Brown: "Now don't you change toc much."

"No," replied Mrs Thatcher with a careful smile, "I mustn't deprive you of your livelihood." The other mimic, Faith Brown, has her own Saturday night television show or Britain's commercial station this season.

She also looks convincingly like Mrs. Thatcher - but with a difference. Her skit that gets the best laugh has Mrs. Thatcher turning into a bosomy, scantily dressed Wonder Woman in times of
