Campaigning for Brother Raises Questions about Father

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Neil Bush, son of George Bush Sr., buddy of Gerald Ford and former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, and brother of George Bush Jr., a Midland businessman, didn't come to Hereford Tuesday to talk about his father.

Neil Bush actually came to talk about his brother, the first person to declare his candidacy for the United States House of Representatives 19th Congressional District spot to be vacated by George Mahon.

Still, the subject of Dad could not be avoided.

"It's George's race, not my dad's. My dad should not be stressed in this campaign. George is very concerned about establishing his own identity," said Bush, 22-years-old and a student at Tulane (La.) University.

"George hasn't asked him to campaign for him. If he asked him I'm sure he'd come. I think the fact George is his son could help him win but he's still going to campaign.

Bush George Jr. that is, is seeking the Republican nomination to the House. Mahon announced he will not seek another term after serving out his 44th year in Congress next year.

Other Republicans who are considering the nomination include Jim Reese, former Odessa mayor who lost to Mahon last year, Jim Granberry, former Lubbock mayor who ran for governor of Texas in 1974, Joe Robbins, state representative from Lubbock, Ernest Angelo, Midland mayor, and Tom Craddick, state representative from Midland.

"I think that since George threw his hat in the ring first is an advantage," Bush said. "It gives him more time to organize and get out and meet people."

"But he's starting at a disadvantage. People are not all that familiar with George."

Bush, 31, is an independent oil man, chairman of the board of Field Services, Inc., an Odessa based service company. In Midland, Bush is active in the Little League Baseball program, the First Presbyterian Church and the 1977-78 Cancer Crusade, in which he is local chairman.

George Bush Jr. was graduated from Harvard University with a masters degree in business administration. He received his bachelor's from Yale University in 1968. In 1969 he was commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant and piloted F-102s for the Texas Air National Guard in Houston.

In announcing his candidacy, Bush said, "I know this campaign will be an uphill battle, and I know that the job of a congressman requires full time dedication. I look forward to the challenge and am enthusiastic about my chances for victory."

Neil Bush said his brother is planning several trips to the Hereford area.

"Right now he's organizing. He's planning to come up here. George is very concerned about learning of the agricultural interests of Deaf Smith County."

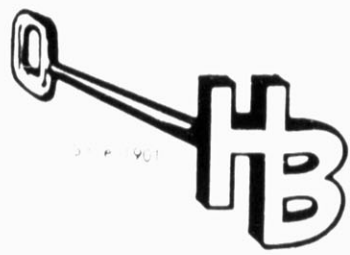

No previous political background, save that of the family association with his father, should not be a detriment to Bush's campaign his brother said.

"He believes strongly that this district will be better served by a businessman and not by a professional politician. I think the fact he's a businessman is going to be his biggest asset for too long Washington has been governed by professional politicians and not by people with common sense and a business background."

Neil Bush is impressed with his brother and he says it has nothing to do with prejudice.

"I saw him speak for the first time

Germans To Consider Housing of Bomb

Debate May Threaten US Deployment Plans

BONN, West Germany (AP) — A growing debate over the possible stationing of the neutron bomb in West Germany may threaten tentative American plans to deploy the weapon in Central Europe.

Key figures in the ruling Social Democratic party have denounced the new bomb, which is designed to kill while causing relatively little damage to property.

The defense committee of the Bundestag, West Germany's parliament, is scheduled to review the bomb when the Bundestag reconvenes in September. And Defense Minister George Leber has called for a public debate over deployment of the weapon in this country.

Chancellor Helmut Schmidt says more study is needed before his government can decide whether to accept the ultra-sophisticated weapon.

But Schmidt acknowledged to reporters that the neutron bomb could give the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "considerable psychological and strategic problems."

Discussion of the controversial weapon has dominated the West German press in recent weeks, and it has become the principal issue of debate in the West German capital.

President Carter says he has not made a final decision on whether to order production of the bomb. He considers the weapon to be in the United States' security interests. Supporters of the bomb in Congress insist it is needed to counter the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact's superiority in tanks and ground troops in Central Europe. They point out the bomb could kill thousands of Soviet soldiers in a future European war without the destruction of cities that would result from the use of conventional nuclear weapons.

The neutron warhead produces twice as much deadly radiation of a conventional nuclear bomb but less than a tenth as much blast power, heat and fallout. The deadly radiation emitted is relatively short-lived, lasting no more than a few hours.

U.S. defense officials want to deploy the warhead on Lance missiles and artillery shells. Many of the bombs presumably would be stationed in West Germany, where most NATO troops are stationed.

The debate here over the weapon was launched last week by Egon Bahr, the Social Democrats' federal secretary, who wrote in a magazine article that the bomb was "a symbol of perverted thinking."

Bahr, who negotiated treaties with Poland and East Germany as part of West Germany's detente with the East bloc, said development of a bomb that kills people while protecting property made him wonder "whether mankind has gone mad."

Alfonso Pawelczyk, Social Democratic chairman of the parliamentary subcommittee on disarmament, told a news conference the neutron bomb might block Western efforts to obtain an arms control treaty with the Soviets and an agreement with the Warsaw Pact to reduce forces in Central Europe.

But Manfred Woerner, defense spokesman for the conservative opposition party, the Christian Democratic Union, said the bomb "met German interests" and gave the West a good chance of countering Warsaw Pact ground forces in any future war.

Large Southern Cities Have Bigger Crime Rate

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Booming cities of the South and Southwest are suffering from a "Sunbelt crime syndrome" that far exceeds crime rates in the decaying cities of the North, says a criminologist.

Paul Brantingham, a professor at Florida State University, took the FBI Uniform Crime Reports for 1975 and ranked 250 U.S. cities according to their crime rates in seven categories.

The results, released Tuesday, are discouraging both to longtime residents of the new boom-towns and the many northerners who moved to the Sunbelt.

"The medium-sized cities of the industrialized Northeast and Midwest come off relatively good," he said in a telephone interview. "It's the Sunbelt that looks bad, with Florida, California and Arizona near the top."

Brantingham's top 10 crime cities are all in the South or Southwest. Sunbelt cities dominate the statistics for murder, rape, aggravated assault, burglary and theft, while Snowbelt cities rank high only in robbery and auto theft.

"It looks to me like a Sunbelt syndrome," he said. "The areas that are engaged in massive growth produce social and physical settings in which all kinds of crime can go on. Growth creates several important social opportunities for crime."

Four medium-sized Florida cities fall into this situation, ranking among the 10 cities with the highest per-capita theft rates in the nation. Daytona Beach and Fort Lauderdale rank No. 1 and No. 2 respectively. Only one Northern city, Kalamazoo, Mich., is among the top 10 in theft.

"Florida's suburbs, its mobile population and its tourism also serve as invitations to the criminal," Brantingham said.

Jones Includes Hereford On Interest-Determining Jaunt

Former Texas state representative Delwin Jones of Lubbock was in Hereford Tuesday near the end of a nine-city jaunt to determine public interest in his proposed candidacy for the United States House of Representatives.

Jones, a Democrat, has made no decisions on whether to run for the spot vacated by George Mahon of the 19th Congressional District but plans to make an announcement around Sept. 1.

Mahon, the only congressman District 19 has ever had, announced July 7 that he will not run for a 45th year in the House in 1978.

Jones said his Hereford stop was part of a "survey tour," adding that he plans to return to Lubbock County for an extended time to determine the amount of public interest in his candidacy.

"What I've been primarily trying to determine is my name identity based on my eight years in the legislature and my agricultural background," said Jones, who served eight years in the Texas House of Representatives.

Jones, a farmer for 31 years, was chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, chairman of the House Congressional and Legislative Redistricting Committee and a member of the appropriations committee.

He also served on the elections committee, the committee of Governmental Affairs and Efficiency and the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Committee. He was chairman of the Agriculture Committee of the Southern Council of State Governments, which affected 13 states, and an advisory member of the National Council of State Governments.

Jones was named Man of the Year in Texas Agriculture by the Progressive Farmer Board of Editors for his legislative leadership in the authoring of numerous agriculture bills.

Jones believes his farm background is an obvious asset.

"The farm vote will be the deciding vote in the election because you've got a very dominant Midland-Odessa influence and on the extreme south end of Lubbock

NM Judge Vindicates Record In Suit Filed By Girl's Parents

ROSOWELL, N.M. — District Judge Paul Snead ruled Tuesday that testimony given during an open trial is public information and newspapers cannot be restricted from using such information. Snead made the ruling in a suit involving a $1.42 million claim against the Roswell Daily Record over alleged "privacy violations."

Snead granted the judgement in favor of the Roswell Daily Record in a suit filed by Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Poteet of Mesquite. The Poteets are former residents of Roswell.

The Poteets had tried to seek damages because the newspaper published the name of their 14-year old daughter as "being the subject of a sexual crime." The girl's name was printed in a Jan. 6, 1976 news story after she testified at a magistrate court hearing.

Snead ruled Tuesday that since the girl

Welcome Rains Dampen County; 1.5 Inches Reported

By JIM STEIER
Brand Farm Editor

Widely scattered thundershowers dumped welcome moisture on portions of Deaf Smith County in the wee hours of the morning, with the far northwestern portion of the county receiving by far the greatest moisture accumulations.

SHOWERS IN most localities were little more than "teasers" as moisture accumulations weren't sufficient to be of much help to the area's thirsty corn crop.

Good rainfall gave dryland grain sorghum and hay crops a boost in the vicinity of the Clint Homfeld farm 47 miles northwest of Hereford, however.

Mrs. Homfeld reported that 1.50 inches of rain fell at her husband's farm shortly after midnight.

A rainfall total of one inch also was reported one mile west of Farmer's Corner, according to a spokesman for Pioneer Fertilizer, although the firm measured only .30 inches of moisture at its office some 15 miles north of the city.

KPAN RADIO logged a total of .65 inches of rainfall for Hereford while the Holly Sugar Corporation's Hereford plant measured only .13 inches.

To the south of the city, no rain was reported in the Easter Community, but .50 inches fell to the east of Hereford at the Dawn community, and there were some isolated one inch reports.

H.L. Hershey, who resides 13 miles northeast of the city reported that .30 inches of rainfall was received at his farm early this morning, while an additional .50 inches of rain fell there Tuesday.

The Raymond Schlabs farm five miles north of the city recorded only .30 inches of precipitation, while Mrs. Bill Page reported that no rain fell in the Bootleg Corner vicinity, west of Hereford.

THE FORECAST for West Texas calls for partly cloudy skies and mostly fair conditions through Thursday. Scattered thunderstorms are predicted for most sections tonight.

Lows tonight should range from 65 to 72 and the high tomorrow is expected to be in the middle 90's in the Panhandle.

testified in open court, her subsequent testimony was public information and could not be restricted.

The suit, filed May 27, was one of long duration. The Poteets, in the suit filed May 27, contended that the publication of their daughter's name had forced the family to leave Roswell because the parents and daughter "have been subjected to public disgrace and ridicule

Fires Destroys Homes In Santa Barbara

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—A brush fire fanned by gusty winds roared down from the Santa Ynez Mountains today, destroying expensive Spanish style homes and threatening businesses in this picturesque coastal city.

Hundreds were forced to flee, and as many as 200 homes were destroyed. Officials said the fire was man-caused, but would not speculate whether it was arson.

The blaze, which started shortly after 7 p.m. Tuesday night, raged out of control in the northeast section of the city, less than one mile from the city's courthouse area and about two miles from the Pacific Ocean.

Laetrile Dealer Miffed at 'Tactics'

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—"Gestapo tactics" were used by Food and Drug Administration agents in their seizure of a shipment of 5,000 Laetrile tablets, a dealer of the substance claims after a raid on his Parker County home.

James Haas said agents seized a shipment of Laetrile that had just arrived from U.S. Pharmaceutical in Mosinee, Wis., and was destined for a cancer patient at Fort Worth.

"What they're doing is what Hitler did. They're going door-to-door dealing in fear," Haas said.

"I knew it was coming. It was no secret it was going to happen; it was just a matter of when," he said, noting that the raid came only three days before a demonstration is being staged at the Dallas office of the FDA.

Teacher Says MIAs Still In Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Vietnamese teacher who was a member of the communist parliament is preparing to tell Congress about reports he heard in Hanoi of missing Americans who are living in jails in Vietnam.

Nguyen Cong Hoan, who fled from Vietnam to Japan in March and arrived in the United States as a refugee two days ago, told a House panel on Tuesday that he had "heard news" about Americans still listed as missing.

Hoan's information on the MIAs was not from any direct contact, he admitted, but were "rumors" from a "completely truthful" source. He said he could not publicly identify the source for fear of putting the source in danger.

"I can only say that I hear some rumors that there are still some Americans living in jail in Vietnam but cannot be more specific than that," he said.

Cambodians Die In Large Numbers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Draconian measures pursued by the communist government in Cambodia are responsible for the deaths by execution, hunger and disease of "tens if not hundreds of thousands" of people the Carter administration says.

Outsiders can't state precisely the number of Cambodians who have died since the communist takeover in 1975, said Charles H. Twining, the U.S. Foreign Service's expert on Cambodia, in testimony Tuesday before a House international relations subcommittee looking into human rights violations.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard C. Holbrooke testified, however, that some "journalists and scholars guess that between half a million and 1.2 million have died since 1975."

Police Report

Hereford police responded to a shooting incident shortly after midnight which left a local woman in Deaf Smith General Hospital with a gunshot wound.

The police department received a call at 12:33 a.m. today concerning a possible shooting near a trailer behind 210 Catalpa. When police arrived at the mobile home, they found a woman shot in the left arm. The bullet discharged into her left arm, through her left side, and exited through her back, according to police.

The woman, identified as Maria Garcia, was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital, where her condition is not known.

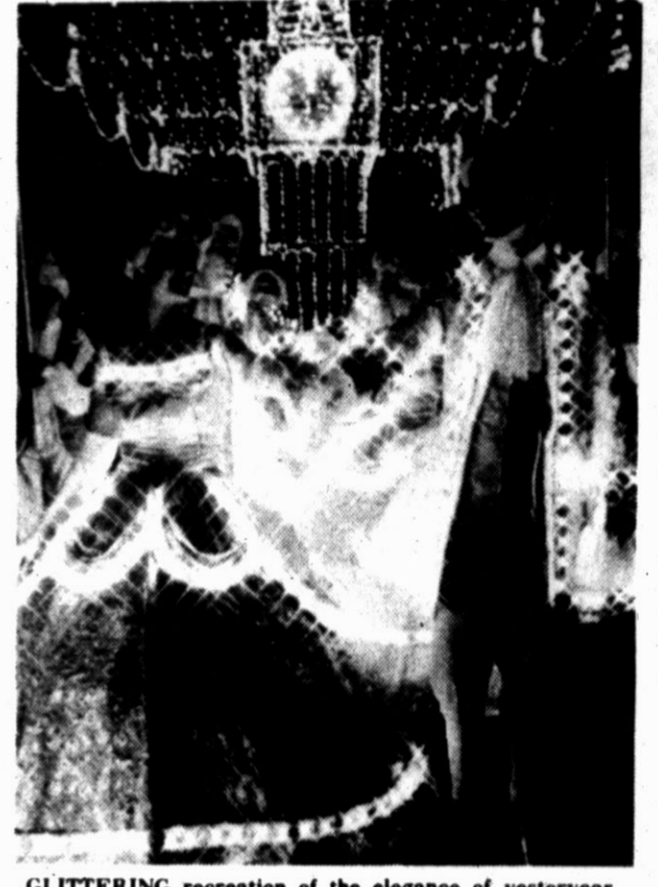

Hereford police said that a warrant concerning the incident would be issued sometime today.

Facts surrounding the incident are sketchy and police are continuing to check into all possible leads.

Jones said he opposes federal judicial tyranny and gave the example of Judge Sarah T. Hughes ordering the Dallas County Commission "to build a new jail and build one that's acceptable to her. I don't like the idea of lifetime appointed judges intervening in local matters by federal order."

He also said he is opposed to the growth of federal bureaucracy.

"The only way you can limit growth is to limit money and Congress has just continued to increase its expenditures," Jones said.

Crown Comes As Surprise

That old cliché, "they don't make 'em like that anymore," may be put to rest by America's Junior Miss 1977, blonde, blue-eyed Christina "Christy" Moller, 17, of Jonesboro, Ark.

In addition to being an unsophisticated beauty, Christy has a lot of nice qualities. She is considerate, too, commented her chaperone, Mildred Hodson of Lexington, Ky.

"On the way to New York, Christy said, 'Maybe I should call the dress shop and tell them I will not be at work tomorrow,' as if they wouldn't have figured that out," said Mrs. Hodson, laughing.

"I had promised to work for another girl who was going on vacation," Christy explained, "but I know they'll have understood." She has worked part-time at the shop, sometimes a 40-hour week, counting a few extra-school hours, nights, weekends, she said.

one of the four preliminary contests held before the finals," she said, trying to explain her good fortune. "Actually, it was just as well, because there was no pressure. And in the finals we had 45 seconds to make changes so there was no time to think about it."

More than 25,000 high school seniors had entered the 20th Junior Miss contest and finalists from 50 states were judged on scholarship, physical fitness, poise and appearance and creative talent, in a week-long competition at Mobile, Ala. Christy's talent presentation for the finals was a ballet, "Doll on a Toy Shelf."

Luckily, Christy's family — parents, grandparents, sister Andrea, 11, and her drama teacher, Kay Brogdan — had traveled to Mobile for the big event. Her father, Endre, emigrated from Hungary 20 years ago.

"It really wasn't one of those 'be there because I think I'm going to win' things," she said. "And Mrs. Brogdan really helped me win. She encouraged me to enter the contest — she had been a Junior Miss on the local level years before. A beautiful person, inside and out, she has the biggest capacity for love. She grew close to many students who were going down the rough road and she gave them a boost in the right direction."

"I have quite a Southern accent, and I used to mumble. She helped me to articulate and to walk properly. I've played a lot of sports (she was on the softball, basketball and volleyball teams), which tends to make you walk a little funny, peppier than you should on the stage."

Christy doesn't have a big wardrobe. She gets some clothes — red and yellow are favorites — at a discount from the dress shop. "Scarves help change the look of clothes so you seem to have more than you do," she said.

In traveling thousands of miles to meet her public, making personal appearances and attending special events, she'll be helped toward her goal — to be a radio and television personality. She'd like to have a talk show and hopes to study radio and television at Arkansas State University — the Junior Miss award provides a $15,000 scholarship — where her boy friend is majoring in political science.

She was "surprised" to find so many girls in her class planned to get married this summer, but she has no such plans. She hopes eventually to combine a career and family.

She and other students were active in community service projects, helping the poor and lonely. But some others live it up "as if having a good time in high school was all that mattered."

Williams Sings Laid-Back Country

In America, country fans know Don Williams and pop fans don't, by and large.

In May, his new single, "Some Broken Hearts Never Mend," was hitting No. 1 on the best-selling country charts as it was entering the pop charts at No. 100.

But in England, the BBC programs Don Williams a lot right along with the Eagles and other top pop groups and his records sell correspondingly better than they do in his home country.

In America, where there are a lot of radio stations each specializing in a certain category of music, most pop stations' programmers don't even listen to the records they receive by country artists.

"In England, they like the simple lines of Don's music," says his wife, Joy, "rather than a big band behind a country singer. They like the softness."

Williams' records are laid back and economical rather than overblown. He appears on stage wearing nonsplangled denim jacket and jeans and a hat, the same kind of clothes he feels comfortable in all day.

His face and manner appear rural, not show business. He plays guitar and travels with two backup musicians; his records generally use the same five studio musicians.

Williams says, "I get letters from people that are 80 years old or so and they say mine is one of the first really country sounds they've enjoyed for years. And I'll turn around and somebody that doesn't like country at all will come up and say they're a rock fan but they like what I do because it's not country. I don't understand how everybody arrives at these decisions they make."

could happen from me recording them was we would come out with some good demos. As it turned out, we started releasing some of them as singles and they started catching on. That was the last part of 1971, first part of 1972."

Williams made a second album on JMI also, all his albums are on the ABC-Dot label.

But he had been in music before and that time, on a pop not a country road. "Lofton Kline and I had gotten together and were working around Corpus Christi doing little things, under the name of the Strangers Two. We were invited to a hootenanny in 1964 at Del Mar College in Corpus Christi. We met Susan Taylor and just from warming up and singing a little harmony in the dressing room, I called her for the next rehearsal and we kind of put it together."

"The three of us went to Houston, as the Pozo Seco Singers, and cut a record for an independent label. It did well all over Texas and Columbia Records picked it up and signed the group to a contract."

"The music was supposed to be folk country but our first record, 'Time,' pushed us more in a folk pop direction."

The group broke up in 1970. Williams says, "We just kind of felt like we'd done it long enough." He didn't like pop music so much anyway. "Going in a studio to try to imitate what somebody else has done was what we were doing. That never has made any sense to me."

Williams thought he could be freer and more original in country music. "I liked the songs. The form is very basic, which I like. Probably the reason I like it and understand it as much as I do is that I grew up listening to it."

"I felt that if I was going to have any success, I was going to do it the way I felt it and wanted it."

DON WILLIAMS

for long; the family, including Gary, now 10, and Timmy, now 14, moved to Nashville, and the start at JMI.

Williams' best-known record is "Amanda," written by Bob McDill. He also has been in a movie, "W.W. and the Dixie Dance Kings," in which he was a bass player in a country band. It was an acting job; the soundtrack didn't use any of his music.

The picture's wardrobe man, whose hobby is making hats to suit a person's features, made a hat for Williams. At first he wore it off and on and now wears it all the time, including indoors. "I've come awful close to wearing it into the shower," he says.

"Hopefully, I can keep what I'm doing getting better. And stay loose enough that if something really interesting comes along I'll be able to do it," Williams says, "and just stay happy." If he does another movie, he thinks he'd most like it to be a Disney Western.

Would he like to be a giant star? He doesn't know. He likes his family life, 15 miles outside a small town 35 miles from Nashville. It's a community centered around school, church and baseball games, where the kids don't date until they're 16.

"The times I have thought about it, I have wondered whether I wanted or not to be so popular that everybody knows you," Williams says. "It really takes a lot away from your privacy. I'm very protective with my privacy. I just try not to think about it a whole lot."

The original European population of Manhattan Island consisted of eight men landed by the Dutch ship "New Netherland" in May of 1624.

Ann Landers Unchanged Responses

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Usually you are fair but a recent response to a 19-year-old male who was concerned about the widespread practice of bisexuality on his campus offended me—and I'm sure it offended thousands of others.

I agree with you that one should not go in for anything that violates his sense of decency. But I feel you were being very narrow and unsympathetic when you labeled all gays and bisexuals "weird" and suggested they were either "bombed, stoned, kinky, or a little cuckoo."

I am well aware of your feelings about alternate lifestyles, but of all people, Ann, you should be willing to accept people for what they are totally and not just sexually. You owe an awful lot of people an apology after that blanket insult.—Open-Minded In Salt Lake City

DEAR OPEN: Too bad you don't read as well as you write. The 19-year-old male who wrote to me stated very clearly that he was appalled at the number of straight students—both male and female—who were going in for bisexuality strictly for kicks.

You quoted me correctly but in the wrong context. I view homosexuals as individuals who have a severe personality disorder. My adjectives "weird, bombed, stoned, kinky or a little cuckoo" described HETEROSEXUAL students who would go in for bisexual shenanigans just for the heck of it. These people are not gay, they are college students with normal and natural sexual preferences who are simply looking for a new kind of trip.

I thought a long time before I wrote that response and I wouldn't take back a word of it. DEAR ANN LANDERS: Today I hired a physically handicapped young woman. She will be a typist in our legal department.

If you could have heard the excitement in her voice after being told she had the job! I made my heart jump for joy! Please, Ann, appeal to the employers in your reading audience to give the handicapped a chance. They are so

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell me what is the correct way to blow one's nose dining with friends in a public place?

When I used a paper napkin during dinner recently, my wife gave me a very dirty look. She said I should have left the table. Is she right or wrong?—N. Carolina

DEAR N.: It is permissible to wipe one's nose at the table, but use a handkerchief, please, not a paper napkin. Blowing a (loud honk) attracts attention and it's rude. It is always best to leave the table if an unobtrusive wipe will not suffice.

Stamp Program Slated Tomorrow

A program for persons who are beginning or experienced in stamp collecting will be given Thursday by Postmaster Nolan Grady at the County Library. There will be two different sessions which will begin at 4 and 8 p.m.

Grady will cover the basics of beginning stamp collecting and terminology. Postal headquarters in Washington are sending a film strip about stamp collecting which is to be released in September for schools. It will be shown at the local library for Grady's program. Hereford residents will be the first in the nation to see the film.

According to Grady, stamp collecting has been proven to be educational by studies that have been made. Those who start the hobby when young often graduate in the top five per cent of their class.

"Children that strive to better the collection, also strive to better their school work, and they learn many things about their country and its history that many people don't learn in schools," Grady said.

Schools in Long Beach, Calif. have turned the hobby into a classroom subject offered to students. It is used as a teaching aid. History and geography are involved in the educational hobby.

PEACH COBBLER A LA MODE

Base:
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup water
5 cups sliced fresh or canned and well drained peaches
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/8 teaspoon almond extract

Biscuits:
1 1/3 cups packaged buttermilk biscuit mix
2 tablespoons sugar
1/3 cup light cream or half and half
Slivered almonds
Vanilla ice cream

Heat oven to 400°F. and butter a 1½-quart shallow baking dish. For base, combine sugar, cornstarch and nutmeg. Stir in water until smooth. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Add peaches; return to a boil. Remove from heat. Stir in butter, lemon juice and almond extract. Pour into buttered baking dish.

For biscuits, combine biscuit mix and sugar. Add cream and stir just until a soft dough forms. Drop by tablespoons over hot base to make 8 biscuits. Sprinkle with almonds. Bake about 15 minutes. Serve warm with scoops of vanilla ice cream.

Begin Upset at Criticism Of West Bank Settlement

JERUSALEM (AP) - Prime Minister Menahem Begin today expressed "deep sorrow and disappointment" in U.S. criticism of Israel's policy of settling Jews in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

From the floor of the Knesset, the Israeli parliament, Begin also announced that the cabinet had empowered its committee on settlement "to decide on establishing new settlements" in the West Bank.

"Its decisions will be as if taken by the full government," Begin said. But there was no indication in his 90-minute speech that new Jewish villages would be built immediately.

A State Department spokesman in Washington Tuesday had called the establishment of Jewish settlements in occupied territory "an obstacle in the peacemaking process."

In their White House talks last week, President Carter reportedly asked Begin to refrain from building new settlements in occupied Arab territories until after the opening of a resumed Geneva peace conference on the Middle East, probably in October.

The cabinet's settlement committee Tuesday approved the granting of full legal status to three Jewish settlements in the West Bank established by Jewish nationalists in defiance of the previous Israeli government.

The committee's decision required the endorsement of the full cabinet. Begin's statement that the committee could act alone indicated it had that endorsement.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter III said Tuesday the administration was "deeply disappointed" by the committee action. But Begin said of the committee's stand: "It was a very fine decision...I approve completely."

State Department spokesman Carter said he was uncertain whether the Israeli action legitimizing the settlements violated any understanding reached during Begin's visit.

His statement, which he said was approved by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, said: "We have consistently made clear, including in our recent talks in Washington, our view that the establishment of settlements in occupied territories is not only contrary to the fourth Geneva convention but also constituted an obstacle to the peacemaking process."

The fourth Geneva convention on the conduct of war prohibits the establishment of settlements in occupied territories. The West Bank, almost totally populated by Arabs, was seized from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast war.

Highway Delays Mean More Deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) - More than 20 years after the interstate highway system was begun, delays in its completion are contributing to the nation's highway death toll, Congress was told Tuesday.

West Virginia Gov. John D. Rockefeller IV, testifying before the Senate transportation subcommittee, said motorists driving north and south through his state are funneled from completed stretches of interstate 77 onto a 58-mile tow-lane turnpike.

"As a result, there are many fatal, head-on accidents because sleepy or inattentive drivers stray into the wrong lane," Rockefeller told the subcommittee.

He said as many as 100 lives could be saved if contracts for completion of that stretch of the interstate could be let by 1980 instead of 1985 as scheduled.

Sen. Richard Sone, D-Fla., said that in "alligator alley," between Naples and Fort Lauderdale on the west coast of Florida, delays in completing interstate 75 have also required traffic to use overcrowded two-lane highways.

"No one knows how many lives are lost needlessly on these narrow roads," Stone said.

At the present rate, he added, the interstate system in Florida could not be completed until after the year 2001.

Tom B. Webb Jr., secretary of the Florida Department of Transportation, said he believes a 1990 completion date for the system throughout the country "is realistic and possible."

"I have been with the Florida Department of Highways for 21 years and the first project I ever worked on was an interstate," he told the Senators. "I hope we can complete it before I get ready to leave."

B.L. DeBerry, engineer-director for the Texas State Department of Highways, urged that states desiring to speed up completion of their portions of the system be allowed to use federal highway funds which other states are not yet in a position to spend.

William M. Cox, federal highway administration, said the administration hopes to recommend changes in the interstate program this fall.

Today In History

By The Associated Press Today is Wednesday, July 27, the 208th day of 1977. There are 157 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1953, an armistice was signed at Panmunjom, ending the Korean War after more than three years of fighting.

One this date: In 1789, the U.S. Congress established the forerunner of the State Department, the Department of Foreign Affairs.

In 1922, the United States formally recognized the countries of Albania, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

In 1941, during World War II, Japanese forces landed in French Indochina.

In 1954, Britain and Egypt agreed on terms ending British control of the Suez Canal.

In 1955, Austria regained sovereignty after 17 years of occupation by foreign troops.

In 1960, a Republican National Convention in Chicago nominated Richard M. Nixon for president.

Ten years ago: President Charles de Gaulle returned to France after causing a big stir in Canada by espousing independence for Quebec and canceling a meeting with Prime Minister Lester Pearson.

Five years ago: Britain sent 4,000 more troops to Northern Ireland to oppose the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

One year ago: A powerful earthquake shook a wide area in Northern China, including the capital of Peking. The extent of damage and casualties was not disclosed.

Today's birthdays: Former big league baseball manager Leo Durocher is 71. Former World Bank President George Woods is 76.

Thought for today: Fishing is the chance to wash one's soul with pure air. It brings meekness and inspiration, reduces our egotism, soothes our troubles and shames our wickedness. -President Herbert Hoover, 1874-1964.

Miner Held Following Sabotage

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) - A 26-year-old miner has been arrested and charged with setting the explosions that state officials have branded "an amateurish attempt at sabotage" along the Alaska pipeline.

Larry Wertz was arrested Tuesday night as he walked along the Elliott Highway, about 10 miles north of Fairbanks and only two miles from the explosion site.

State troopers said Wertz was carrying a rifle and a pistol in a shoulder holster when he was arrested. Wertz, who works a claim in an old historic gold mining area, has never worked on the pipeline "as far as we know," said Lt. George Pollitt of the state police.

"Information from citizens who had some knowledge of his activities led to his arrest," said Pollitt.

Wertz was charged with malicious destruction of property and held on $100,000 bail. Pollitt said officers had obtained a search warrant to check Wertz's home, near where he was arrested.

Police suspected that commercial dynamite had been used in the explosions, which caused minor damage to the $7.7 billion pipeline, but they had no idea how much was used, Pollitt said.

The transmission of oil was not interrupted, pipeline officials said. The first crude oil from the Prudhoe Bay oil fields was expected to reach the ice-free port of Valdez late this afternoon, completing an 800-mile journey that began June 20.

Pollitt said officials didn't know when the series of at least five explosions took place in a wooded area north of Fairbanks. They were reported Monday night.

He said, however, that a trooper on patrol in the same general area early last Wednesday reported hearing a series of explosions.

The trooper reported that he investigated but said he could not find the source of the explosions. He did not go onto the pipeline right-of-way, however, Pollitt said.

"We can't conclude that those explosions at 3 a.m. were the same explosions involved in the pipeline, but we are checking that possibility," Pollitt said.

Deputy Commissioner Larry Talbert of the state Department of Public Safety said that wires, batteries and what appeared to be detonators had been found at the blast site.

"It was an amateurish attempt at sabotage or some professionals trying to look like amateurs," Talbert said.

Pollitt said the explosions caused "noticeable dents" in two vertical support columns on an elevated section of the pipeline and tore some 60 feet of insulation from the 48-inch line.

Most People Charge 'Too Many Loopholes'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Most Americans think there are too many loopholes in the income tax law yet they approve most provisions that cut taxes, Congress was told Tuesday.

A public opinion survey that came to this conclusion also found that low and moderate income people tend to overestimate the amount wealthier people pay.

The public generally, it said, believes that most of the very wealthy pay no income taxes at all.

Tax reform is heavily favored, it found, but is taken to mean changes that would reduce the load on almost everyone.

The survey by the Roper Organization Inc. was cited by Henry W. Bloch, president of the tax return preparing firm H & H Block Inc., in testimony to a House Ways and Means subcommittee. The Block firm commissioned the study.

"A majority of the public condemns the income tax system as unfair to most people..." the Roper report said.

"Over half of all taxpayers characterize their own income taxes as 'excessively high....'"

"Over one-third believe that, in conducting tax audits, the Internal Revenue Service is more lenient with some than with others, and mostly that they are more lenient with high income people."

Fewer than one-fourth of the taxpayers questioned said they made out their own income tax returns this year, while the others turned to professionals or knowledgeable friends or relatives.

But when they were asked

"the direct question of which is more important, tax reform or simplification, tax reform was called for by 2-1 ratio."

Proposal Says Wage Cuts Might Provide Jobs For Some

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Should American workers accept pay cuts or forego wage increases if it would create jobs for others and help to control inflation?
Henry C. Wallich, a member of the Federal Reserve Board, thinks it is worth a try. Some other leading economists have suggested a similar approach, but they don't know how to get labor unions to go along.
Labor leaders, for their part, oppose any such proposal on grounds that it puts the burden of solving the nation's economic problems squarely on the shoulders of workers, letting government and business off the hook.
Proposals such as Wallich's often go under the label of a social contract. Great Britain had a social contract under which labor unions agreed to annual wage increases of a fixed percentage, but the compact collapsed earlier this month.

The consensus in Britain seemed to be that the contract did work in helping reduce inflation while it lasted. Consumer prices increased 17 per cent in Britain during the 12 months ended in May, but that was an improvement over the 20 per cent-plus rates of previous months.
Wallich believes, as do most other economists Democrat as well as Republicans, that rising wages are the chief cause of higher prices, since wages account for the bulk of the costs of production.

Wage increases averaged 8 per cent in 1976 and may be about the same this year, while the nation's underlying inflation rate is about 6 per cent.
As long as wages keep rising at a rate of about 8 per cent there is little hope of ever reducing inflation below 6 per cent, Wallich argues. A 2 per cent, increase had long been considered about right because that has been the average increase in working productivity in recent decades.
Wallich, who was appointed to the Federal Reserve Board by former President Richard M. Nixon in 1974, said if workers would agree to, say a 2 per cent to 3 per cent annual increase in wages, or even no increase at all, the inflation rate should be reduced to near zero, and everybody would gain in the long run.

He acknowledged there would be a temporary loss in buying power for workers as the adjustment process took place, but he said this happens anyway, because inflation erodes wage increase as fast as workers get them.
Should the reduced wages not restrain price increases, with the result that business profits would increase, Wallich said the government could tax away corporate profits above a certain level.
Wallich's idea is unlikely to be put into effect, if for no other reason than labor unions wouldn't trust the government to tax away higher corporate profits.

Retirement Pensions Might Be Shifted from Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP)—There's an easy, almost painless way for President Carter to chop $9.7 billion out of the defense budget. He could shift the costs of retirement checks for current military pensioners out of the Pentagon budget.
But the cut would not decrease overall federal spending by one single penny. The annual tab would be moved into the government's income security account, which includes Social Security, welfare, food stamps, unemployment insurance, civil service retirement and pensions paid by the Veterans Administration.
This accounting change is one of the steps now under consideration in the Carter administration's effort to make sense of the tangled way the government accounts for federal workers' pension.

Taken together, the changes under consideration at the Defense Department and the Office of Management and Budget would make the rapidly rising costs of pensions more obvious in the budget. And they would, for the first time, make the true future costs of pensions visible by putting them into the federal spending plan.
"Our grandchildren are going to have to shoulder a pretty heavy burden," said one official of the pension costs. "We have to start writing down what our debts are."
Carter promised during his campaign to cut billions from the defense budget, a pledge he has not thus far fulfilled. By shifting current pension costs, Carter could, after a fashion, fulfill his promise.
However, if all the changes were enacted, the Pentagon budget would increase. Estimates of the increase range from $500 million to $4.2 billion, depending on economic conditions.

Administration sources say an initial decision on most of the changes is expected within a month by Defense Secretary Harold Brown for the fiscal 1979 budget.
No worker's current or future pension would be increased or decreased by these changes.
"These are really accounting and bookkeeping arrangements that have little direct effect on spending," said one source.
Shifting current retirement costs out of the defense budget is the simplest of the possible changes.
Those who favor the change say paying retirement checks for former military personnel is not related to maintaining national security and should not be paid from the defense budget. Pension costs have eaten up a larger and larger chunk of the Pentagon budget, rising to 8.2 per cent in 1978 from only 1 1/2 per cent in 1962.

Organizations of retired military personnel are against any change.
"Military retirement is unique. We consider it a relevant part of the career package," said Col George Henrikus of the Retired Officers Association.
A Congressional Budget Office report said such groups "may oppose transferring the... appropriation from defense to income security because the switch makes military retirement appear to some as a form of welfare to which a social stigma may seem to be attached."

Tenants' Payments May Be Less

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sources say HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. is drafting a plan that would reduce welfare payments to tenants of federally subsidized housing, despite his public assurance this would not be considered for President Carter's welfare reform package.
A high government official told The Associated Press on Monday that the idea is one of three options the HEW secretary will send Carter this week for possible inclusion in the welfare package to be unveiled Aug. 4.

percentage reduction of welfare payments to residents of subsidized housing; application of a so-called "fiscal dividend" toward welfare rather than toward rent; or a combination of those options.
The first option is similar to the earlier proposal which raised a storm. It would give a family living in subsidized housing a smaller welfare check than recipients in private housing.

HEW's original proposal would have reduced cash welfare payments by $900 million. The current option was said to call for a reduction in total welfare payments of between $400 million and $900 million.
This would help Califano meet Carter's order that the new system not cost any more than the old one. Califano also has said it is unfair for some welfare recipients to receive the benefit of housing subsidies while others do not.

Opponents argue that the reductions in tenants' welfare checks might be so large that they would be forced to move from subsidized housing to cheap, slum housing in order to have enough cash to live on.

Complaints Numerous On White House Tours

A lobbyist familiar with the subject also said two high administration officials had confirmed Califano's intentions.
The disclosure on July 14 that Califano was considering the welfare reduction for subsidized housing residents resulted in a storm of protest from home builders, civil rights groups, mayors, governors, labor groups and officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Califano was considering the alternative in an effort to meet cost limitations set by Carter for welfare reform and to remedy an inequity he saw.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House is receiving so many complaints from members of Congress about the difficulty of getting constituents on "VIP tours" of the White House that a new method of distributing tour tickets is being adopted.
Rejected, at least for the present, is a suggestion from the office of Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., that the early morning tours-not to be confused with regular public tours-be abolished.
Instead, tour office director Nancy Willing met Monday with Frank Moore, President of Carter's assistant for congressional liaison, and decided to try a new system of ticket distribution that hopefully will make it easier for senators and House members to claim their weekly allotment of tickets.
Roy Greenaway, Granston's administrative assistant, said the old system was inequitable and required time-wasting letter writing and phone calling between Capitol Hill and the White House.
Instead of soliciting individual ticket requests, Moore and Miss Willing said, each congressional office now will fill out request forms once a day, which will be picked up daily by White House messengers. On the following day the messenger will return with names of constituents being given tickets, along with a notation of the day and time they will be expected at the White House.
This should sharply reduce the flow of letters and phone calls, Moore said, and give Miss Willing's staff more time to deal with special requests over and above each Congress member's weekly allotment.

House members routinely get 10 tickets a week, senators 10 to 20. They are coveted because they convey an element of status. Moreover, ticket holders do not have to stand in long lines and, once inside the White House, receive better guide service than regular visitors. They also see the China Room, named for its display of dishes from many administrations, which is not included on regular tours.
Miss Willing said an average of 1,300 visitors a day take the VIP tours, Tuesday through Saturday. The tours were initiated during the presidency of Dwight D. Eisenhower.
The Moor-Willing solution may not eliminate one problem of which Greenaway complained. He said there is such ticket demand from Californians that July tickets were parceled out in March.
Rep. Elwood Hillis, R-Ind., wrote Carter about his own ticket problems, saying his constituents, "indicate there has been a vast curtailment in the number of visitors" admitted for both VIP and regular tours.

Miss Willing said there has been no cutback, and reported that on some days the number of visitors has exceeded the year-earlier figure.

But last Wednesday, Califano met with a group of mayors, governors and county officials who were at his office protesting that move and other parts of the welfare reform package. Califano said at the meeting and at a subsequent news conference he had given up the idea of counting the housing subsidies toward welfare payments.
He said the issue "will not be part of the welfare reform proposal," but would be discussed for possible inclusion in the fiscal 1979 budget.
Eileen Shanahan, assistant secretary of Health, Education and Welfare for public affairs, said Monday night that "some very complicated stuff involving housing and welfare is under consideration. The total door slam, on this last Wednesday may not have been accurate. The impression left then was incorrect."
She refused to provide details of the proposal because "it is still being discussed and nothing has been finally decided."
A government source said HEW's three options were: a

Four Seasons Take Off Without Valli

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newfeatures

Once, only the Four Seasons and the Beach Boys of American rock groups could compete successfully against the British pop music invasion led by the Beatles.

Now, the Four Seasons and the Beach Boys still are going strong. But while Brian Wilson has rejoined his brothers who always stayed in the Beach Boys, the Four Seasons, is launching itself without any original member.

Frankie Valli, 43, distinctive falsetto voice lead singer of the Four Seasons and last remaining original member, has been touring with the Four Seasons, now four besides him, all spring to give the new-old group a sendoff. There are dates lined up through the summer, then in September the Four Seasons goes on without him and he devotes full time to a solo career which really began when he started making solo records in 1965.

When the Four Seasons signed with Warner Brothers Records in 1975, Valli says, the plan was "that I would be the featured singer on the first album, then on the second record I would not sing lead all the way through and on the third I would not sing lead at all."

He has planned to separate himself from the Four Seasons for six and a half years, he says. "I listened to scores of people sing. Some I tried even. I put them in the group with the understanding that if it didn't happen, they had to leave. It had to be what I was looking for." What he has are Gerry Polci, John Paiva, Lee Shapiro and Don Ciccone.

None sounds just like Frankie Valli. "There are a couple of real high voices," he says. "They're capable of singing falsetto. But that is not their main voice."

The Four Seasons two LPs so far on their new label are "Who Loves You" and "Heli-con." From the first, there were two hit singles, "Who Loves You" and "December 1963."

Valli signed as a solo artist with Private Stock Records in 1974, and he also has had two hit singles for his new label, "My Eyes Adored You" and "Swearing to God."

But in the beginning there were four Italian fellows from New Jersey, Francis Castelluccio, later Valli, Bob Gaudio, Tommy De Vito and Nick Massi. Producer Bob Crewe and Gaudio wrote the songs and the Four Seasons' second single, "Sherry," became a No. 1 record in America in 1962. "Big Girls Don't Cry" and "Walk Like a Man" made it three No. 1 records straight.

"Dawn (Go Away)" was a hit in 1964 and there were four top 10 singles in a row in 1966. Either "Rag Doll" in 1964 or the recent "December 1963," its first No. 1 record since "Rag Doll," is the group's all-time biggest, Valli says, "We were making hit records in the early 1960s when there were no certifications of sales figures."

The late 1960s were lean years. Valli and Gaudio bought everybody else out, got rights to publishing and masters and the obligation to pay off a debt, and signed with Motown in 1971. They had broken off with Crewe. Gaudio still wrote; all the songs on "Who Loves You" are by Gaudio and Judy Parker. He stopped touring with the group in 1970.

Valli and Gaudio are still partners. Members of the Four Seasons are their employees. However, with signings with Warner Brothers and Private Stock, they gave up ownership of future masters. They do, however, tell both record companies exactly what they want released and when, so the solo and group records won't conflict.

The years with Motown were lean, too. At the parting there, in 1973, Valli bought back the master to his unreleased "My Eyes Adored You." Private Stock released it in 1974. No. 1.

Valli, at 5 feet 7, three-and-a-half octave range, and getting an attractive weathered look as he got older, got a personal shock in 1967. He began going deaf, his problem diagnosed as otosclerosis, calcium deposits in the middle ear.

He kept performing and recording, using highly amplified playback. He says, "A little over a year ago I had an operation done on my left ear which improved my hearing from 25 per cent of normal to 97 per cent. In December I had my right ear operated on. So far there's about a 20 per cent improvement. It's going to take time to get better."

"My hearing is fine. It had nothing to do with my reason for wanting a solo career." Years of one nighters had a lot to do with that. In the fall, Valli says, he may get a backup group of two men and two women who sing and dance. He'll gear his show to theaters in the round and places such as Las Vegas — places that are known as locations, where you stay a week or more.

"Also I want to produce and develop new people. I'll have time to do that. I think more successful performers should get into finding and helping talent." Maybe there'll even be time at home. Valli and his second wife have homes in Southern California and in New Jersey.

And how will the Four Seasons fare without him? Valli says, "I certainly hope people

'Henry and Cato' Can Work on Two Levels

HENRY AND CATO. By Iris Murdoch. Viking, 375 Pages, $8.95.

To say that Iris Murdoch's new novel deals with a group of human beings wrestling with their various destinies makes it sound much more pompous than it is. In fact, it has Miss Murdoch's familiar verve, the lightly tripping plot that seems at times unashamedly contrived, the cast of odd, erratic characters.

But through what seems at first just an entertaining succession of melodramatic events and random ideas gradually emerge traces of structure, of underlying pattern, of overall design. The novel eventually establishes its own consistency. By its own terms it's even plausible.

The reader, seduced, concludes the author is hinting provocatively at an interpretation, or several, of how life works, no less. And a little reflection brings one to the further conclusion that the characters are really not more eccentric than most people. It's just that they are shown with an unusually sharp light picking out their idiosyncrasies.

Henry and Cato are boyhood friends who come into contact again in their early 30s. Each had fled from his family background, Cato into the priesthood and mission work in London, Henry to teach art in a small Midwestern town in the U.S. The death of Henry's brother brings him back to England as the heir to the family estates, and his return coincides with Cato's loss of faith. A young protegee of Cato's, Beautiful Joe, half-angel, half-demon, has already contributed to Cato's spiritual chaos and now acts as a powerful agent for change in Henry's life, too.

The two title characters, with their very different temperaments, seem to be locked into two different modes of existence. Henry skips through life with a kind of fey innocence, a pagan on whom the gods bend an indulgent eye. Cato, his religious consciousness fully awakened, finds life a heavier challenge and he takes heavy punishment for his sins — when he falls from grace he knows it and agonizes over it. Cato is a particularly well drawn character, take them for the value I think is there. This is not closing the book on the Four Seasons. It's starting a new chapter.

"I have good feelings about it. It's like having children. You watch them grow to a certain age and you let them go out into the world. I'll always be there if they need me."

"I'll probably be their biggest fan."

'Henry and Cato' Can Work on Two Levels

ter, a man of real dimensions, victim of the conflict between his emotions and his belief.

"Henry and Cato" is another of the novel-experiments Miss Murdoch conducts in her unique research laboratory to show how, according to some basic laws or principles, certain ingredients produce inexorable chains of reactions. These laws may be expressed obscurely, indirectly, in terms of classical mythology, Christian religion or modern psychology, but they're an exact science of some kind. This novel-experiment may be enjoyed at face value — or as the starting point for thought leading to conclusions at a different level about exactly quod erat demonstrandum.

New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin is a man who recognizes an understatement when he hears one.

rethorically, then answered: "That's the understatement of the year."
"But I don't want to talk about the situation any more," he added after the Yankees moved to within two games of the American League East Division-leading Orioles. "I just want to concentrate on winning the pennant."
Ironically, it was Reggie Jackson, the team member with whom Martin has most openly fueded, and pinch-hitter Cliff Johnson who won the game for the defending AL champion Yankees.

Jackson, after singling home a run in the fourth, led off the bottom of the 10th with his 17th home run of the season. Johnson's two-run belt in the ninth tied the game. Johnson was batting for shortstop Bucky Dent, who got the Yankees' other run with a solo homer in the sixth.

In other American League games, Boston nipped Milwaukee 4-3, Texas clouted Toronto 14-0, Chicago beat Detroit 8-3, Seattle downed Minnesota 9-7 and Oakland edged California 2-1.

Sparky Lyle, 8-3, got the victory after relieving in the ninth. Former Yankee Scott McGregor, 1-2, the fourth Orioles pitcher, got the loss.

Nets Win Dispute, Will Move Team

NEW YORK (AP) - The New York Nets won just 22 games during the 1976-77 National Basketball Association season. But they scored a significant off-the-court triumph Tuesday when they received permission to move to New Jersey.

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien stepped into the dispute between the Nets and the New York Knicks, who - citing terms of the NBA-ABA merger agreement - claimed their territorial rights would be violated by the move and asked the courts to provide a solution.

in addition to the $4 million, in addition to the $3.2 million owed the Knicks from a $4 million indemnity provision of the merger.

The Nets may also be required to deliver a first-line player.

Judge Carter approved the agreement late Tuesday.

Nets owner Roy Boe scheduled a news conference today to announce the team's move to New Jersey. But Boe, who also owns the New York Islanders of the National Hockey League, will face legal opposition from Nassau county.

Pittsburgh's National League East hopes have taken a twist in two directions.

Francisco 8-3, Los Angeles and Philadelphia split a double header, Los Angeles winning the opener 5-2 and Philadelphia the nightcap 5-1, and San Diego defeated Montreal in the opener 4-3 while Montreal took the 15-inning nightcap 5-2.

Cubs 3, Reds 0
Rick Reuschel hurled a five-hitter and Jose Cardenal provided the power as Chicago blanked slumping Cincinnati.

In the nightcap, Luzinski slugged his 22nd home run, McBride poked his seventh and Harmon his second. Both McBride's and Harmon's homers were two-run shots.

Mets 8, Giants 3
Three hits each by Len Randle and Felix Millan paced New York to its victory over San Francisco. Winner Pat Zachry, 5-10, collected two hits of his own and gave up 10 hits, including Willia McCovey's 481st career homer, before he was relieved in the eighth.

And gain yardage he did, picking up 5,875 yards in his seven-year career, twice leading the National Football League in rushing and being named player of the year in 1972. Most of the yardage, 5,467, came in his first five years, before he was slowed by a knee injury.

In 1972, Brown rushed for 1,216 yards to lead the Redskins to the Super Bowl. But he took a tremendous battering from his 285 carries in his slambang, slashing running style. In his first six seasons he averaged 236 attempts.

On Tuesday, the Redskins announced that Brown, the team's first 1,000-yard rusher, would retire as an active player and would join the front office to assist in public relations, working with youth groups, charities and hospitals and making speaking engagements. His contract would be honored, the team said.

Pitcher John Candelaria scattered four hits before being literally knocked out of the game in the eighth inning Tuesday night as the Pirates beat the Houston Astros, 3-2. Candelaria, 11-3, was hit in the left forearm when Wilbur Howard smashed a line shot back to the mound.

"I thought something was broken, the way he went down," said Rich Gossage, who replaced Candelaria on the mound. "He didn't even go after the ball when he was hit. Usually your first instinct is to look around for the ball and try to make a play. Then you fall down or crawl to the dugout."

Cardenal smashed a home run and a double and scored two runs as Reuschel became the first NL pitcher this season to win 14 games. It was the second straight shutout for Reuschel, 14-3, who stretched his string of shutout innings at home to 34 2-3.

The defending world champion Reds lost their eighth straight game and are just one game above .500 at 48-47.

Cardinals 4, Braves 2
An inside-the-park home run by Keith Hernandez sparked a three-run rally in the first inning as St. Louis defeated Atlanta. Three Cards pitchers combined for an nine-hitter with Bob Forsch, 13-4, picking up the victory before leaving with a sore back.

Foreman Inks Pact

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) - Chuck Foreman has agreed to a two-year extension of his contract with the Minnesota Vikings, ending more than a year of bitter dispute between the star running back and the National Football League team.

Foreman had been under contract with the Vikings through 1978 for an estimated $100,000 per year. The new contract, which includes an option year in 1981, ties him to Minnesota for a total of five years.

And gain yardage he did, picking up 5,875 yards in his seven-year career, twice leading the National Football League in rushing and being named player of the year in 1972. Most of the yardage, 5,467, came in his first five years, before he was slowed by a knee injury.

In 1972, Brown rushed for 1,216 yards to lead the Redskins to the Super Bowl. But he took a tremendous battering from his 285 carries in his slambang, slashing running style. In his first six seasons he averaged 236 attempts.

But time and injury have taken their toll.

The Pittsburgh native underwent surgery on his knee in 1974 and hasn't been the same since. He rushed for only 56 yards last year, averaging 2.8 yards per carry.

Brown, who will be 30 in September came to the Redskins training camp this week determined to fulfill the last year of a three-year contract calling for about $130,000. He hoped outwardly, however, that some kind of arrangement could be worked out so that he would not have to go through the pain and agony he suffered a year ago.

A team spokesman said X-rays taken following the game were negative. The left-hander had wanted to wait until today, but was directed to seek immediate medical attention by General Manger Pete Peterson.

But if the Pirates were upset by Candelaria's accident, they were lifted by Gossage's relief performance.

Catcher Ed Ott, whose seventh-inning home run proved to be the game-winner, was impressed by the reliever, who had been sidelined for a week with a pulled muscle in the rib cage.

Dodgers 5-1, Phillies 1-5
Home runs by Greg Luzinski, Bake McBride and Terry Harmon backed Jim Lonborg's two-hitter to give Philadelphia a 5-1 victory over Los Angeles after the Dodgers had won the opener by an identical score.

Glenn Burke snapped a 1-1 tie with a run-scoring double in the seventh inning of the first game. Two more scored in the inning on a wild pitch and a passed ball.

Texas Club Not Really For Sale?

DALLAS (AP) - It was a weary, discouraged and exasperated Brad Corbett who shocked Texas Ranger fans last month when he said he had decided to sell the slumping club.

But that was last month. "I just don't think he really wants to sell the ballclub," Billy Seay, one of the two businessmen interested in buying the team from Corbett, said Tuesday.

Foreman had been under contract with the Vikings through 1978 for an estimated $100,000 per year. The new contract, which includes an option year in 1981, ties him to Minnesota for a total of five years.

Vikings General Manager Mike Lynn said Tuesday that secret negotiations had been underway for about two weeks between Foreman and Vikings officials. A breakthrough in the talks was achieved last Sunday, he said.

But time and injury have taken their toll.

The Pittsburgh native underwent surgery on his knee in 1974 and hasn't been the same since. He rushed for only 56 yards last year, averaging 2.8 yards per carry.

Cowboys Await Word On Wright's Knee

THOUSANDS OAKS, Calif. (AP) - While the Dallas Cowboys practiced in sweltering 100-degree heat, team officials awaited the outcome of examinations in Dallas on the right knee of veteran offensive tackle Rayfield Wright.

Wright returned to Dallas Tuesday to be examined by the team physician. A spokesman said they will attempt to determine Wright's status as soon as possible.

Second-year man Jim Edison replaced the four-time All-Pro, 11-year veteran Wright at right tackle.

Veteran linebacker D.D. Lewis came to terms with the team. Lewis, a nine-year veteran, signed a series of one-year contracts late Monday, but the terms were not released.

Tony Dorsett, the Heisman Trophy winner and top draft choice, was able to move freely in a scrimmage Tuesday and showed no effects from the knee sprain he suffered last week.

The offense, however, failed to score during the scrimmage against a defense highlighted by performances by second-year man Beasley Reece and Aaron Kyle at cornerback.

Tailback Doug Dennison, fullback Scott Laidlaw and veteran cornerback Mel Renfro all remain sidelined with pulled hamstring muscles. A trainer said they should be able to return to action soon.

Bronco Stars Win

Hereford's Bronco All-Stars romped to a 20-7 triumph over Seminole, Okla., Tuesday night in the Bronco Sectional Tournament at Seminole.

Raymond Martinez Jr. and Rick McCracken clouted home runs to lead the Hereford attack against the host team.

The victory advanced the Hereford team into the winner's bracket of the six-team tourney, with the second game scheduled Thursday night in the double elimination meet.

The winner of the Sectional tourney will advance to Altus, Okla., for championship play on Aug. 1. Hereford had advanced to the sectional competition by downing El Paso Ysleta in area play.

Bill Simon and Jimmy Collier are coaches for the All-Star team.

Amarillo Splits Twinbill

By The Associated Press
Home runs by Jim Anderson, Lloyd Rayford and Jay Peters boosted El Paso to a 14-7 Texas League victory over Jackson Tuesday night although Jackson managed to outthit the Diablos 13-12.

In other games, San Antonio edged Arkansas, 4-2, Tulsa shut out Midland 6-0, and Shreveport and Amarillo split a double-header with Shreveport taking the opener 5-2 and dropping the nightcap 4-3.

Anderson socked his 13th homer, Rayford his seventh and Peters his 18th to lead El Paso to the victory. Butch Benton had his second and Mario Ramirez hit his third for Jackson in a real slugfest.

Dan Smith gave up only one run and three hits in seven innings as San Antonio edged Arkansas. His record is now 5-1. Victor Ruz, who pitched eight innings for Arkansas and gave up all four runs, took the loss to drop his record to 1-5.

PUBLIC NOTICES
"BECAUSE THE PEOPLE MUST KNOW"

NOTICE TO PUBLIC
The Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court advises that it is a violation of the Penal Code of Texas to obstruct or injure a county road, and the operation of any equipment which cuts into the road bed is prohibited; and that any structure of any kind placed in the barrow ditch of country roads which obstructs or tends to obstruct such road is prohibited; and further that the plowing of ditches constitutes an injury to the road; and also that the public be advised that the disposing of refuse, trash, junk, garbage, dead animals or unsightly matter is a violation of county and state law. Violators are guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $15 nor more than $200. Every law enforcement officer of this state and its subdivisions have authority to enforce the provisions of this Act.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights
by Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN—The legislature's brief special session is now history. In the nine-day meeting, lawmakers logged these accomplishments in response to subject matter submitted by Gov. Dolph Briscoe. Passed a $945.4 million public school finance bill, which provides more aid to local districts and raises teachers' pay. —Provided tougher controls over nursing homes and ordered prison sentences for employees who deliberately mistreat and injure patients. —Voted standby authority for the state to finance an offshore oil unloading terminal through revenue bonds if a privately-financed superport plan folds. —Amended the law to permit coastal counties to participate in a federal flood-plan insurance program, though they hadn't agreed to join before June, 1970. —Guarantees that bonds and other debts of state agencies will be paid in full. The special session was called by Briscoe after lawmakers failed to agree on a school finance plan in regular session. The governor later expanded the agenda to include the other subjects but firmly turned down a long list of requests to broaden the special session assignments further.

Insurance Rates Studied
Insurance companies want to raise auto increase rates on private passenger cars 11.3 per cent, but an actuary said there is a chance the hike can be held below the 7.3 per cent level recommended by the Insurance Board staff. The actuary said actual company expenses are below the figures used in a staff formula. Rates were raised 7.1 per cent in October and 15.5 per cent 10 months earlier. The Insurance Board will hear testimony at an August 2 hearing and will set new rates effective with policies written or renewed about November 1.

Courts Speak
A federal judge in Austin found unconstitutional Texas' reliance on real property taxation alone to finance its public schools. However, he did not halt distribution of school funds under the present system. The State Supreme Court has taken under study an Austin Court of Civil Appeals ruling invalidating a contract made by a widow before her marriage waiving the customary homestead rights. Heirs of a 72-year-old man sought to oust the widow from the couple's home. The high court rejected a $600,000 damage suit brought by a Kountze publisher and county employee against a county commissioner who injured him in anger at a news story. A former Safeway employee won permission through the supreme court to obtain documents she needed in a workmen's compensation suit claiming fumes from plastic wrappings caused her to get lung cancer.

AG Opinions
Records of the Department of Public Welfare relating to mistreatment of a nursing home resident who is a medical assistance recipient are exempt from public disclosure, Atty. John Hill said. In other recent opinions, Hill concluded: Commissioners of counties bordering on the Gulf of Mexico or its tidewaters are authorized to enact land use regulations applicable to areas subject to Gulf flooding, including lakes, bays, inlets and lagoons. Limits may be established by resolution. Removal of judges by address may be considered in a special legislative session even if the subject is not included in the governor's proclamation summoning lawmakers to work.

Appointments Announced
Gov. Dolph Briscoe named Fourth Court of Civil Appeals Chief Justice Charles W. Barrow of San Antonio to the State Supreme Court, succeeding Don Yarbrough who resigned in the face of removal by the legislature. The Senate promptly confirmed Barrow, who was defeated by Yarbrough in the Democratic primary last year. James L. Nelson of Houston was picked as general counsel in the Texas secretary of state's office. Bob R. Harris is acting chief engineer of the State Railroad Commission's oil and gas division, succeeding Arthur Barbeck who retired. Billy Thomas became commission acting director of technical hearings.

Short Snorts
Sen. Max Sherman of Amarillo is resigning to take over the presidency of West Texas State University in Canyon. Republican County chairman elected W. C. Lust of Tyler their president at an organizational meeting here. The chairmen adopted a resolution calling for GOP candidates in all ballot positions next year. Treasurer Jesse James reported $1.8 billion in state funds are deposited in Texas banks at six per cent interest.

The Right Light Is Important
By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures
Cramped in a dark house or apartment all winter? Why not go outdoors and absorb some light now that the long, warm days are here?
"If you can't get outdoors, throw open a window and sit in front of it," advises Dr. H.L. Newbold, 56, of New York City, a medical nutritionist who says "Light is a vital nutrient to our bodies." He has served internships in obstetrics and gynecology, and residences in internal medicine and in psychiatry, which he has also taught. His interest in nutrition began ten years ago when he had a coronary.

"Our ancestors spent millions of years outdoors and our bodies have come to depend on the full-spectrum light stimulation we can get outdoors even in the shade," he explained. Such light, all the way from infrared to ultraviolet, provides vitamin D which regulates our use of calcium, magnesium and phosphorus, especially important in infancy, childhood and old age because of its role in the formation and function of teeth and bones. In tests with the elderly, an MIT professor, who also has made experiments on light for NASA, learned that full-spectrum light stimulated a marked increase in absorption of calcium from food intake, Newbold points out.

"Elderly people and shut-ins, even those in wheelchairs, should spend as much time as possible at an open window, bundled up on cold days. A low placed at the bottom of the closed door can keep the rest of the house warm," he advises. Newbold had "at least some nutrition" at Duke University where he went to medical school — only 24 per cent of medical schools in the United States "have any courses on nutrition," — but there was much for him to learn when he began to study it a decade ago. His book, "Mega-Nutrients for Your Nerves," reflects his research and his experience with patients. It concentrates on vitamins and minerals in controlling nerves, their importance in psychiatry, and full-spectrum light, among many things. Light sources that cut out parts of the spectrum diminish body stimulation, Newbold asserts. Incandescent is better than ordinary fluorescent light, but 18-inch, full-spectrum lights in tubes are obtainable. Vital light can be provided by using two tubes of light wherever concentrated work is done — sewing room, kitchen, den, wherever.

He spends a lot of time reassuring people that he has no commercial interest in objects that help provide full-spectrum light, he says, laughing. Most of it is available now only in limited outlets.

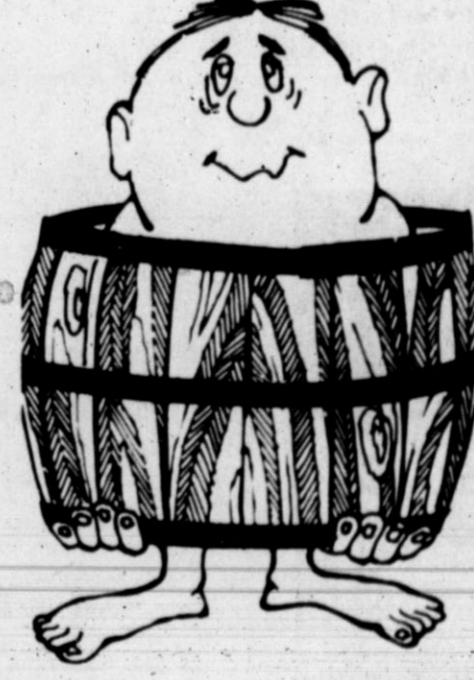

"Profound effects in mammals show how important light is in the biological system."

Port Failure Blamed On Regulations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Oppressive government regulations have been blamed for the failure of the Seadock deepwater oil port project.

The opinion was expressed Tuesday by major oil company executives who gave Congress little reason to hope that the project can be revived.

The testimony came before the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, which is looking into the reasons for the collapse of the consortium of oil companies that was to build the $700 million facility 26 miles off the coast of Texas.

Hugh Scott, president of the Seadock Corp. said Gulf, Mobil and Exxon, which together represented 52 per cent of Seadock's financial backing, pulled out this year because the government "apparently concluded that the members of Seadock were a bunch of scoundrels."

Protesting that they were trying to faithfully carry out the Deepwater Port of the 1974, representatives of the Department of Transportation noted that negotiations are proceeding satisfactorily with another consortium that plans to build a deepwater port off the coast of Louisiana. And they said they would be willing to resume negotiations.

Democratic Congressman Jack Brooks of Texas blamed the greed of the oil companies. Brooks said the oil company plan for operating Seadock was "an unconscionable abuse of the American consumer" that the government "fortunately recognized for what it was."

Brooks, however, would prefer to see federal aid for improving the harbor at Galveston, in his district, so it can handle the new generation of supertankers.

President G.E. Uthlaut of the Exxon Pipeline Co. said in an interview after his testimony that his company is making no efforts to get back into the Seadock project, in which it had already invested more than $3 million.

He said the government would have to make a "substantial change in its position" to rekindle Exxon's interest. In addition, he said, Exxon would like to see more companies sharing the financial burden of the project. But Uthlaut said Exxon still believes the deepwater port is needed.

Allen E. Murray of Mobile said his company already has begun planning for the 1980s without a deepwater port. It will expand its onshore wharf at Beaumont, Tex., he said, to take care of its imported crude oil needs for the next few years.

There were several key problems in their negotiations with the government over the deepwater project, the executives said.

One was the government's insistence that the liability for oil spill damage extend beyond the Seadock Corp. to its parent companies. Limiting the liability to Seadock would limit the amount that each company could lose in the event of a disastrous spill.

The extent to which the Department of Transportation would assume control of pipelines belonging to Seadock's owners is another problem, they said. The department was insisting on certain rules involving those pipelines to make sure that the port was available to all oil shippers, not just the owners.

Government failure to insist on those provisions would have allowed the companies to "hide behind a veil of limited corporate liability" and keep the profits from the deepwater port to themselves, Brooks said.

The project can save $1 per barrel on the cost of imported oil. It would allow importation of oil in supertankers that cannot use most onshore ports, according to boosters of the project. They would discharge the oil at buoy-like terminals, and it would be pumped ashore in underwater pipelines. Seadock was supposed to handle 2.5 million barrels per day.

The remaining companies in the Seadock Corp. would try to keep the company alive for as long as possible, Scott said. But he said he had no reason to hope that new investors would be found. Unless they are, the project is dead, he said.

A law that would allow the state government to issue revenue bonds to finance the deepwater port if private investors will not was recently passed by the Texas Legislature. John Wofford, the Department of Transportation spokesman at the hearing, said his department would have to study that idea before commenting.

Transportation Secretary Brock Adams held two meetings Tuesday regarding deepwater ports, one with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., and the oil company representatives, the other at the White House with President Carter's energy adviser, James Schlesinger, and a group of Texas mayors.

There was a discussion of the negotiations and problems that have arisen with Seadock over licensing requirements at both meetings, Adams said.

"LOOP Louisiana Offshore Oil Port submitted documents which we requested as necessary to comply with the license and we have accepted them," Adams said. "We hope LOOP's board will accept the documents and license."

"Seadock has discussed similar conditions and the major oil companies for reasons of their own refused to go any further in the discussions and pulled out," he said.

Adams added, "I hope there will not be an attempt on the part of those who pulled out of Seadock to upset the hard-won compromise agreement that is going forward with LOOP."

The Lighter Side

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—State Sen. Jack Gordon has confounded just about everyone by disclosing a $105 gift from "The Beer Fairy," an unidentified lobbyist.

Gordon's gift disclosure form on file with the state Elections Division shows only two entries for the 1976 calendar year: $75 from Disneyworld and $105 from "The Beer Fairy."

The Miami Beach Democrat says the gift was from someone he never found out who kept leaving cases of beer at his Tallahassee apartment during the 1976 session, when Gordon was chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

"I don't know why he singled me out," Gordon said. "...I felt it ought to be reported so I decided to make up a name."

Under Florida law, elected state officials are required to report annually every gift they receive worth more than $25, as well as the giver's name and address. For the Beer Fairy's address, Gordon typed in: "Your Guess Is As Good As Mine."

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—"I just got into the car. The dog didn't bark or anything. I petted him, told him he was a nice dog and how pretty he was. He even licked my hand."

That, Billy Wayne Farley says, is how he drove away in a K-9 police cruiser that had an attack dog in the back seat.

Farley, 29, says he wanted to demonstrate that policemen need to lock their station house and squad cars. He says he took the car after taking a small electric fan from the station.

Police didn't say much. They charged him with auto burglary and petty larceny for the fan. He was released on his own recognizance.

Police say officer Marty Hart went into the station house Tuesday to check out a man seen wandering around the lobby. The car motor was left running to keep the air conditioner going for the sake of Gavalin, the attack dog.

As Hart entered in the front, Farley apparently walked through the basement, unlocked because of construction, and left with the fan.

Farley drove to the police parking lot annex about a block away and was getting out when he was seen, according to investigators.

PORT LAVACA, Tex. (AP)—James Tagert decided his sore throat was worth a quick trip to the hospital. So he simply set his helicopter down in the hospital's front lawn near the emergency room.

Tagert, a drilling engineer on an offshore oil rig, was flying to work with another man Monday when they spotted the hospital. Astonished emergency room personnel said Tagert's common cold symptoms didn't warrant immediate treatment, so they hailed a cab and went to a nearby clinic.

They returned later, climbed into their helicopter and flew to work.

The hospital has no landing pad.

Cookbooks, along with Bibles, were among the earliest books printed, and they still outsell any other kind of book.

Prince Stopped Wedding

LONDON (AP)—Prince Philip, motivated by both personal dislike and concern for the royal family, was instrumental in blocking the marriage of his sister-in-law, Princess Margaret, and war hero Peter Townsend 22 years ago, according to a new biography of the princess.

Philip bore a grievance against Townsend because the Royal Air Force fighter pilot, as an adviser to King George VI, had counseled the king to prolong the courtship and delay the marriage of Philip and Elizabeth, the future queen, the book says.

Austrian author Willi Frischauer's "Margaret-Princess without a Cause" paints a vivid picture of the love affairs of the two princesses and of an electrifying clash of temperaments behind the scenes at Buckingham Palace.

Margaret's abortive romance with the divorced Townsend was headline news around the world in 1955, when she finally announced she would not marry him.

The princess' eventual marriage five years later to photographer Anthony Armstrong Jones broke down last year and the couple, who have two children, live separately. Townsend is now married and lives in France.

Frischauer writes that after World War II Philip, a naval officer courting Elizabeth, and Townsend, a military member of the royal household, were "incompatible and jousting in a narrow space big enough for only one."

King George, who had no son, admired the handsome and dashing air force officer and soon promoted him to deputy master of the household. "I'd have liked a boy like Townsend," the author says the king once told Margaret.

According to palace insiders, Townsend, as the king's closest adviser, inspired a plan in 1946 to keep Elizabeth and Philip from a quick marriage so that he could "observe Philip over a time at close quarters before deciding whether he could become a member of the royal family," Frischauer writes.

Philip was furious when he found out about Townsend's intervention. The king followed Townsend's advice, the author says, but in November 1947, Philip and Elizabeth married, with the king's blessing.

Margaret then became the center of attention. Though linked by gossip to every available young man of birth and rank, the only man in her life was Townsend, Frischauer writes.

But the 12-year friendship and romance of Margaret and Townsend was doomed. The king's death in February 1952 "robbed the lovers of a supporter who loved them both as much as they loved each other," Frischauer says, and a group of courtiers headed by Philip began applying pressure on Margaret to drop Townsend.

The queen, though sympathetic with her sister, told her that the affair was "undermining the dignity of the throne."

Court Ruling Fixes Weights

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—A U.S. Supreme Court decision on weights and measures could result in Texans getting less than they pay for, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Tuesday.

Brown said the federal cabinet officers or Congress should take action to undo the effects of the supreme court decision.

The court ruled in a California case that a state cannot establish more stringent weight labeling requirements than those created by the federal government.

Federal standards allow for "reasonable" weight changes due to loss of moisture content in food products.

Texas standards, however, require packagers to make sure that enough additional product is contained to compensate for moisture losses that will occur before retail purchase.

"I just don't think our consumers want to buy a product with a label that says: Net weight, one pound-or less," Brown said.

He said the U.S. secretaries of agriculture and health, education and welfare have authority to tighten federal weight requirements. Brown said the National Weights and Measures Conference, with delegates from 47 states, was on record for continuation of standards that assure accurate net weight at time of sale.

"If these new guidelines are not enacted by federal officials, we must encourage Congress to pass new legislation that will bring federal standards up to the level of the states' weights and measures laws," Brown said.

Dry Weather Hurts Vegetables

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Hot, dry weather has reduced vegetable production considerably in North and East Texas, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Tuesday.

Average temperatures were a few degrees above normal last week in the Cross-Timbers, Blacklands, upper East Texas and the Edwards Plateau and near normal in the rest of the state.

Average rainfall for the week was less than 1/4 inch in the northern and southern High Plains, Trans-Pecos, Edwards Plateau, South Texas and the lower coast; about one inch in northern High Plains and southern Low Plains; and round 1/2 inch in the rest of the state.

"Pastures and ranges continue to dry," the reporting service said, "with only a few scattered thunder showers being received. Grazing is generally adequate in most areas."

"Ranchers in the drier areas are feeding hay and protein supplements. Stock water is low in some areas. Livestock remain in fair to good condition, although some shrinkage is occurring on short pastures. Regrowth in hay fields has been slow due to lack of moisture."

Fiat Executive Kidnapers Charged

MADRID, Spain (AP)—The suspected kidnapers of Fiat executive Luchino Revelli-Beaumont have been arrested in Spain and a $2 million ransom has been recovered in Switzerland, official sources here and in Paris said Tuesday.

Madrid police sources said the suspects, six Latin Americans, including a woman, were arrested here and in the southern city of Malaga. The French sources identified them as Argentinians.

Revelli-Beaumont, who headed French operations of the giant Italian automotive firm, was kidnapped by four armed assailants April 13 in front of his home in a wealthy section of Paris. He was released, in good health, July 11 after 89 days of captivity and the payment of the ransom.

The Paris sources said French authorities had already asked for extradition of the alleged kidnap team. The six were to be turned over to Spanish judicial authorities later today, the sources here said.

Madrid police said an official statement on the arrests might be made later today.

A group calling itself "Committee for Socialist Revolutionary Unity" had claimed responsibility for the abduction of the 58-year-old businessman. It said in a communique that the kidnaping was a victory for "all the exploited" workers of Fiat companies worldwide.

There was no immediate word whether those arrested belonged to a revolutionary movement.
