Militants May Hand Captives to Council

Hereford, Texas, Thursday, March 6, 1980

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says if someone offers you the world on a silver platter...take the platter.

People are still willing to do an honest day's work. Trouble is, they want a week's pay for it.

THE DEAF SMITH COUNTY CHAMBER of Commerce launches its annual "Super Sports Weekend" Friday, but the event has now evolved into three weekends and will be called the C of C Sports Festival.

The chamber's sports committee, in cooperation with the school's arhletic department, started the event for boys' varsity teams in track, baseball, golf and tennis. It now includes girls' teams as well as junior high teams, and three weekends are necessary to conduct all the events. Varsity tennis teams and junior high boys' track teams will be in action this weekend.

The three-weekend festival will draw more than 2,000 athletes. This does not count the coaches, sponsors, parents and spectators who will be coming to town. Let's roll out the hustlin' Hereford welcome mats and make our visitors feel comfortable!

CENSUS DAY IS APRIL 1 and questionnaires are scheduled to arrive in the mail on Friday, March 28. It will mark the beginning of the decennial census of population, in which the U.S. Census Bureau will distribute and then digest the results of some 80 million questionnaires.

We attended a briefing session in Amarillo Wednesday where the emphasis was on plans to make certain that all heads are counted in the Panhandle. Amarillo has formed a Complete Count Committee to promote the return of the census forms by all citizens. Aside from the population figures and facts, there are other important reasons for cities and areas and states to count all the heads. The big reason, of course, is government money. Many federal and state programs use census statistics as a fair way to distribute funds. Examples include revenue sharing, community development, health and education, school lunch programs, highways, job training, and economic development. Another reason for getting your population right is Congressional representation. Seats in the House of Representatives are apportioned on the population of each state. Our state legislative districts are also dependent on census population totals. Some cities have a lot riding on the final count. New York City, for example, has an estimated 750,000 illegal immigrants and many of them receive grant assistance. The uncounted numbers deprive of the city of millions of dollars in federal and state one year each. Phillip Hudson, U.S. Commerce Department, stated at the Amarillo meeting that the 1970 census had an undercount of 2.5 percent. The bureau blames part of this on failure to reach minority groups. Despite the guarantee that personal answers are confidential by law, some citizens--and non-citizens--do not want to fill out the forms. The personal answers are protected for 72 years. Because of the confidential nature of the forms, it is sometimes difficult to reach people who do not read or speak English. For example, a Spanish questionnaire cannot be distributed to groups, because each form is linked to a dwelling number. If a person prefers a questionnaire in Spanish, he must call the telephone number which appears on the census questionnaire mailing label.

In an effort to do a better job, the Census Bureau will spend $1 billion--almost four times more than in the 1970 census!

Baker Removes Self from Race

By LEE BYRD Associated Press Writer

Howard H. Baker Jr., an also-ran in every Republican primary and at least $700,000 in debt, has settled for his job as Senate minority leader while former president Gerald R. Ford feels an ever-greater itch to try the perils of the White House course once again.

After finishing fourth in both the Vermont and Massachusetts primaries, Baker, of Tennessee, pulled out of the GOP race Wednesday, saying in Washington, "It's pretty clear the campaign isn't going anywhere.

Another Republican, Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, all but folded up his tent the same day, canceling television advertising in three key states and trimming his paid staff. "We're more or less winding things down," said Crane's

By The Associated Press The Moslem militants who have held some 50 Americans hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran for 124 days today asked the ruling Revolutionary Council to take over responsibility for the captives.

Asked whether the hostages would be removed from the embassy in the near future and what plans the militants had for the Americans, a spokesman for the captors said, "You will hear from us."

The dramatic development came as the U.N. investigating commission was reported preparing to leave Tehran without seeing the hostages. But after the announcement, the commission decided to stay on at least until Friday.

"We ask the Revolutionary Council to take over the hostages, that is, American spies, from us and deal with them in any way it seems appropriate," Tehran Radio quoted the militants' spokesman as saying.

"Our responsibility is over for the hostages and we are sure that the Iranian nation will rectify whatever deviation that might arise in the pursuance of (the Avatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's) line."

Khomeini's role in the decision of the militants was not immediately clear. But the 79-year-old religious leader met this morning with President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, who has been trying to assert control over the militants.

The militants' turnabout was confirmed in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Bonn, West Germany, in which a spokesman for the captors said they had agreed to give up responsibility for the Americans because the government was "pushing" them to do so.

Tehran Radio also quoted the spokesman for the militants as saying the decision was made because of the dispute with government authorities over whether the U.N. investigating commission should be allowed to meet with all of the hostages, seized Nov. 4.

The militants said they disagreed with the government stand approving the visit but that they did not want to be accused of weakening the revolutionary regime.

"As we have announced in our earlier statements, we believe that our dealing with America should be from a position of strength. And since the proposal for a meeting between the U.N. commission and the hostages had come from America, the grand satan, and not from the Iranian people, we rejected it," the militants said.

"But since the officials and those overseeing the matters regard our position as an infringment on the authority of the government, we therefore invite the Revolutionary Council to take over the hostages from us, because we do not want to be embroiled in a cause which is in the interest of our enemy and which will lead to no benefit for our people." Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said the meeting between the U.N. investigating commission and the American hostages in Tehran "has got to take place." He said he hoped to announce today, the Americans' 124th day of captivity, when it would take place.

"This meeting one way or the other has to be effectuated, it has got to take place, and this is a decision of the Revolutionary Council, and it's not going to be reversed," Ghotbzadeh said early today after meeting with the five U.N. representatives at their Tehran hotel.

The visit was refused Tuesday and Wednesday by the militants holding the (See IRAN, Page 2)

Pakistan Rejects U.S. Aid Offer

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) - Pakistan rejected an offer of $400 million in U.S. aid to strengthen its defenses against the Russians in neighboring Afghanistan. It said it would depend on its own "unity and strength" and the "time-tested friendship" of China.

Agha Shahi, President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq's foreign affairs adviser, told a meeting of municipal leaders Wednesday "Pakistan has specifically dissociated itself from any U.S. initiative to introduce the relevant (aid) legislation in the American Congress."

He said President Carter's offer of $200 million in military aid and $200 million in economic aid over a twoyear period was too small to improve Pakistan's defense capability. Zia called the offer "peanuts" when Carter first made it in January.

"It is our considered view that for its security, Pakistan must depend primarily on its national unity and strength ... as well as the time-tested friendship of China," said

Shahi. "It will not be prudent on our part to be dependent for our security on any single power." He also said Pakistan

"could not ignore the fact that U.S. sensitivity to the Indian reaction appeared to determine the size and nature of the aid package, denuding it of relevance to our defensive capacity."

Pakistan reportedly sought about a $1 billion worth of U.S. weapons for its armed forces, ravaged by three lost wars with India over the past three decades. India had protested any major U.S. rearmament of its traditional enemy, fearing the weapons might be used against it.

C-C Schedules Pheasant Hunt

By JIM STEIERT Outdoor Editor

Pronouncing Deaf Smith County as "Pheasant Capital of the World" members of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce Tourism Committee announced plans Wednesday afternoon for a large-scale fund-raising pheasant hunt in the local area for the 1980 season.

According to committee chairman Lynn Arnold, the project will involve obtaining mass hunting rights within the county, with the chamber to be in charge of lining up hunters and establishing a fee to be charged for hunting rights. All hunt proceeds would go to the chamber.

Tom Burdett, who has worked on the pheasant hunt project reported that the chamber will solicit free use of local land for its project, with the chamber relieving the landowner of any liability while hunts are conducted on his property.

Hunters would be insured, and each tract of land would be registered as a game preserve and properly licensed. The size of hunting groups would be limited and a record would be kept of hunting license numbers and hunter success.

"We want to use the land for any time period local farmers would allow us. Farmers could retain their own hunting privileges for whatever days they desire. I think we can obtain the enthusiastic support of local landowners by helping them exert better control over the hunting pressure that comes with pheasant season," stated Burdett.

According to Burdett, some 30 reservations have already been received for the 1980 hunt.

Hunting fees being tentatively considered by the project committee are $75 per-man-per day on opening weekend, with a $25 per-man-per-day fee for the remainder of the season.

"We want to emphasize that we're not trying to compete with hunts already being conducted by other organizations in the area. We feel the volume of hunters coming in is sufficient to allow these projects to continue with success, and we think we can book our hunt full too," commented Mike Carr, executive vice president of the chamber.

Arnold explained that hunter pressure can be spread out over a longer period of time during pheasant season here, thus proving of greater benefit to area merchants.

"Anyone with land who would be interested in participating in the project is encouraged to contact the chamber office." commented Arnold.

Members of the tourism committee will continue working on details of the pheasant hunt project with another meeting set for March 19 at the chamber

Ag Heads: Embargo Effective, but Could Hurt

DENVER (AP) - The United States could be rushing headlong into a disastrous economic trap if it continues an embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union that was prompted by the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, say two international farmers' leaders.

But the embargo is an extremely effective stop-gap measure for expressing American anger over the occupation, said Michael Cracknell of Paris, secretary-general of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers.

"The action of your government has to be a response of today." Cracknell said Wednesday at a news conference during the annual convention of the 300,000-member National Farmers Union "I cannot imagine that if there is a market for you in the USSR in two years' time that your country would refuse to sell," Cracknell said. "You simply cannot afford that ... They need the grain and you need the markets."

If the grain embargo continued more than one year, other countries likely would move in to fill the Soviet Union's needs and leave the United States in the cold, said Dobson Lea, president o of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Canada has agreed not to enter into new contracts for grain sales with the Soviets and not to supply them with grain to replace what has been cut off by America. Unlike the United States, however, Canada is continuing to ship grain promised to the USSR under existing contracts.

That position is supported by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Lea said. "Farmers have a responsibility to use whatever tools they have available to help out," he said.

On other issues, both Lea and Cracknell lent tentative support to the concept of a "farmer's common market" in North America that could end trade restrictions among the United States, Canada and Mexico. Tony Dechant, outgoing president of the National Farmers Union, has strongly backed

But Lea and Cracknell said care must be taken to avoid conflicts between national treasuries, as they said have occurred since the creation of the well known Common Market, known formally as the European Economic Community.

Cracknell said his organization, which claims members from . 45 countries, has made significant progress bringing the plight of farmers to the attention of world leaders.

4 Children Die In Apparent Arson

HOUSTON (AP) -Four children died early today in a house fire arson investigators said was set deliberately after an argument between a man and his girlfriend.

Four adults received serious burns. Five others were said to have escaped without injury.

Investigators were seeking an 18-year-old woman for questioning. The blaze destroyed the two-story frame structure near the downtown area in which 18 persons were said to have been living. Arson Investigator Sterling Jones said residents had decided against calling police after a woman and a man had argued earlier in the evening and the woman had threatened to set the house on fire "She evidently came back." Jones said. "The fire started in the front on the outside and went through the entire house." The dead were identified as Frankie Wells, 6; Gwendolyn Wells, 14; Bridgette Gray, 1, and Teresa Williams, 5.

GUYMON, Okla. (AP) - Two ranch hands were sentenced to life terms in the beating death of a Texas millionaire rancher who had freed the men from jail by posting their bond and had given them jobs.

The six-man, six-woman Texas County jury deliberated for two hours Wednesday afternoon before rejecting the death penalty sought by the prosecution against Michael Wayne Taylor, 19, and Rex Bryan McCubbin,

The two men were convicted Tuesday of the first-degree murder of Ben H. Stokes of Borger, Texas.

Taylor and McCubbin, who has been bailed out of a Borger jail in August 1979 and employed on Stokes' farm southeast of Hardesty, were found guilty of clubbing the bail bondsman-rancher to death with an ax handle and robbing him.

Stokes, 73, had driven to his Oklahoma holdings to pay bills and check on his property near the Palo Duro Creek on Sept. 21.

District Judge Frank Ogden set formal sentencing for March 19.

Officials Surprised

At Iranian Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) - Carter administration officials appeared taken by surprise today by the announcement in Tehran that Moslem militants were turning American hostages over to the Iranian revolutionary council.

They reacted cautiously, mindful of the zigs and zags that have marked the 124-day hostage crisis.

"It was not a pre-arranged signal." said one official, who declined to be identified.

In fact, he said, the State Department had expected the United Nations fact-finding commission to leave Iran without the estimated 50 American hostages released to the

Dues Checkoff System Planned

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Calling state employees "the forgotten people" in need of help from labor unions, State Comptroller Bob Bullock told Texas AFL-CIO political leaders he will institute a dues checkoff system by June 1. .

The checkoff system. which automatically deducts union dues from a member's paycheck, is considered by many labor leaders as vital to union survival.

The process was approved by State Attorney General Mark White last March. But Gov. Bill Clements, a selfmade millionaire businessman, has vowed he will "put a stop to this nonsense" of dues checkoff, no matter what White says.

Bullock surprised state officials last summer when he urged state employees to organize in labor unions, a first for this state.

"The state employees are the forgotten people and they need help," Bullock told the Texas AFL-CIO political convention Wednesday.

"I told this convention last summer that state employees need a real friend, that the people who build your roads and care for the sick and disabled and teach your children need the help of organized labor.

"I said I would be the first to recognize a state employees union if labor made the effort to organize," the outspoken comptroller said. "For that, I have been condemned and cussed from one end of the state to the

Eastern ConferenceNBA Teams Lose Battles In Playoffs

By The Associated Press

It seems as though everyone makes the National Basketball Association playoffs but no one really wants to.

Three of the five teams battling for the final three Eastern Conference playoff berths were in action Wednesday night - the Houston Rockets, New York Knicks and Indiana Pacers and all of them lost.

Houston fell to the Boston Celtics 103-99 in overtime. New York stumbled to the lowly Detroit Pistons 120-113 and Indiana bowed to the Philadelphia 76ers by the same 120-113 count.

In other games, the Los Angeles Lakers trounced the Kansas City Kings 117-101, the Phoenix Suns trimmed the Seattle SuperSonics 127-111, the Denver Nuggets edged the Milwaukee Bucks 112-109 and the Chicago Bulls nipped the Golden State Warriors 106-105.

Nate Archibald and Gerald Henderson scored in the last 35 seconds of overtime to give Boston its winning margin and its eighth victory in a row.

Pistons 120, Knicks 113

John Long scored 34 points, Terry Tyler and Eric Money 23 each and Greg Kelser 21 for the injuryriddled Pistons. Detroit without many regulars. Nonetheless, they pulled away after the Knicks chopped a 21-point deficit down to 101-99, with Long contributing five baskets and a free throw down the 76ers 120, Pacers 113 Julius Erving led the way with 36 points as Philadelphia posted its sixth straight victory while handing Indiana its sixth loss in a row. The Pacers led 105-104 with 3:52 remaining but the 76ers scored 10 straight points - two each by Steve Mix, Bobby Jones, Darryl Dawkins, Doug Collins and Erving.

Lakers 117, Kings 101 Magic Johnson, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Jamaal Wilkes combined for 72 points as Los Angeles won in Kansas City for the first time in three seasons. Johnson scored 28 points while Abdul-Jabbar and Wilkes contributed 22 apiece as the Lakers moved past Seattle into first place in the Pacific

Crown Favorite Wins

By DAN SEWELL AP Sports Writer

MIAMI (AP) - By this time last year, trainer Bud Delp had already conceded the Triple Crown to his Spectacular Bid.

This year's 3-year-old crop has "no such clear-cut favorite, but after a convincing six-length victory in Wednesday's $179,750 Flamingo Stakes, cocky talk about Superbity seemed justified.

"In this same company, this horse won't have any problems." said jockey Jacinto Vasquez. "All the 3-year-olds look alike this year," he said.

Superbity had won its first four races of the year, including the Tropical Park Derby, before the Everglades Stakes at Hialeah Feb. 20, then the chestnut son of Groshawk got into an early speed duel with Irish Tower and faded away to fourth at the finish.

But in the Flamingo, Vasquez, starting from the outside of the 10-horse field, patiently let Colonel Moran take the lead from the inside before pushing Superbity on the far turn.

Trainer Melvin Calvert said he plans to enter Superbity in the March 29 Florida Derby at Gulfstream. He wouldn't elaborate on his horse's chances

Largest Field In NCAA Playoff History Bid for Basketball Title

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The largest field in NCAA playoff history, including a record five teams from the Atlantic Coast Conference and four from the Big Ten. begins shooting tonight for the coveted — and lucrative - basketball title.

At the end of the rainbow in Indianapolis on March 22 and 24 will be a pot of gold worth $320,000 to each of the Final Four teams.

That's roughly $50,000 more than last year's figure and a far cry from the first tournament played in 1939, when $2,531 was lost by the National Association of Basketball Coaches, which ran the first event.

There will be no repeat champion this year, with Michigan State sitting on the sidelines after last year's title. Last season's runnerup. Indiana State, is out of the picture as well.

Sports Awards Tabbed Dubious

NEW YORK (AP) - The validity of the National Sports Emmy Awards handed out Tuesday night is highly dubious. The best people and programs may or may not have won, but the ridiculous voting set-up robbed the awards of real legitimacy and credibility.

The awards were for sports shows aired between July, 1978 and July, 1979. The voting panels voted late last month. That means the panels were judging some events they may or may not have seen over a year and a half before.

ABC broadcast the World Series between Baltimore and Pittsburgh in 1979, but nominated in the category of Outstanding Live Sports Special was NBC's telecast of the 1978 Series between Los Angeles and New York, That Series is hard to remember now, so how are the voters supposed ro recall how well it was put on the air?

The long period between air dates and awards was one of the reasons ABC gave for not participating in the Sports Emmy Awards last year. But ABC was back in the fold Tuesday night because the network was promised by the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, among other things, that the next awards show would probably be this September, relatively close to the July, 1980 deadline

But the most ludicrous part of the voting was how the winners were selected. The chance for voter bias and abuse was blatant.

One of the "blue-ribbon" panelists participating in the Feb. 23 voting works for one of the major networks. The other two networks were not represented on that 11-man panel. This voter, who asked not to be identified, said he was picked because the "Academy said everybody else we wanted was up at Lake Placid."

Wade Joins Goolagong In Tennis Tournament Finals

DALLAS (AP) - Virginia Wade said her game was only "adequate," but it was enough to allow her to join Evonne Goolagong Cawley in the quarterfinals of a $150.000 women's professional tennis tour-

Wade trounced Kim Sands 6-3, 6-2, and Cawley had little trouble in beating Terry Holladay 6-1, 6-2, Wednesday.

Holladay admitted she was awed by the stellar shotmaking of the second-seeded Cawley and appeared nervous and was burned repeatedly going to the net.

Cawley said she played well, but was not aggressive enough.

"I should have been more aggressive. I felt I played a lot better than in my first match against Rosie Casales," the Australian Asked if she might have been looking ahead to a possible title match with defending champion Martina Navratilova, Cawley said, "I don't think that far ahead. I like to feel tense about each match, but I always seem to to 5-2 in the first set, then lost a third point after going deuce three times. Wade, seeded-fifth, went in the second set. After Sands steadied to take a point with a fine baseline return, Wade closed out the match with a sharp placement, although her younger opponent went to deuce with a nice volley.

> "My game was adequate, but no more," said Wade, a Londoner who now lives in New York. It was her sixth time in seven Dallas appearances that she has made the quarterfinals.

Williams hauled down 18 rebounds, however, and Morrow, 6-5, added 10. Their total of 28 rebounds was one more than the entire Texas team could get.

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) - A new rule being put into effect could open the door for Seve Ballesteros to play an expanded schedule on the American Professional Golfers Association tour.

"It is interesting. It could allow me to play more. We'll see," Ballesteros said before teeing off today in the first round of the $300,000 Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic. The rule, which needs

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) -Major league baseball and its players still were poles apart today in their negotiations for a new labor contract as the owners went to bat under the leadership of Ray Grebey, their chief negotiator.

Grebey met with the owners' Player Relations Committee and American League President Lee Mc-Phail Wednesday to answer Tuesday's strike threat by the Executive Board of the Players Association.

Before a : 1/2 hour negotiating session in Clearwater, Fla.. Wednesday, Grebey said he would comment today on the players' strike threat.

"We're evaluating that," Grebey said. "We'll have some comment after my meeting with the owners."

Grebey said he first would meet with club general managers, and then with the owners. He said his statement probably would be late this afternoon.

Earlier Wednesday. Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, made his first stop on a tour to obtain players' ratification of the executive board's strike threat. He obtained a 40-0 approval from Philadelphia Phillies.

The executive board has threatened to strike on or after April 1 if a collective barganing agreement with the owners has not been concluded.

Shortstop Larry Bowa, Phillies' player representative, acknowledged that there was a definate possibility of a strike that would delay the April 9 opening of the baseball

Bowa, however, said he couldn't believe the owners would be "foolish enough to let us go through spring training and then strike. It would be like biting off their nose to spite their face.

"We would have to have spring training all over again while playing league games. We have to support the board or everything we've gained goes out the window. We might as well forget the union."

Pete Rose, one of baseball's highest paid superstars, described the meeting with Miller as good and bad. Rose said it was good in the respect that the player found out what negotiations were all about, and bad because the situation was more serious than people think.

> "We have to put our faith in what Marvin Miller has done in the last 14 years," Rose said. "There is no question that what the owners are negotiating for will help the younger players and hurt guys making a lot of money. But we have to stick together."

Rose noted that the players banded together in the baseball player disputes of 1972 and 1976, one producing an eight-game strike and the other a spring camp lockout. He said the players stuck together and MIAMI (AP) - "Oh,

Cutback In Technology Would Hurt Agriculture

COLLEGE STATION -"Limiting federal research funds for discovering laborsaving technology would cause agricultural production to suffer," believes Dr. Ron Knutson, economist for agricultural policy and marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Knutson was responding to recent statements by Secretary of Agriculture Bergland indicating no further federal money would go into any research project that results in saving farm labor.

Bergland suggested that such research should be done in the private sector and by state universities. To implement his new research policy. Bergland has set up a special USDA task force to set guidelines and procedures for evaluating on a case-by- logy is the major factor case basis current and future agricultural research projects involving federal expendi-

"U.S. farmers and consumers would be the major losers from such a policy change," contends Knutson. "The willingness of the American public to invest tax dollars in agricultural research and extension programs has been the major factor releasing farm labor to produce other goods and services enjoyced by all Americans. This, more than anything else, is why the average American consumer spends only 17 percent of

"Ironically, a recent USDA study indicates that technobehind productivity growth in agriculture," notes Knutson. "If teaching is constant, productivity will reach its limit in six to seven years. Our standards of living will, subsequently decline. In addition, declining productivity in the nation as a whole has aggravated inflation. A policy restricting agricultural research will simply contribute to the nation's inflation problem."

While Bergland makes a distinction between laborsaving and other types of agricultural research, such a distinction has little meaning in reality, says the economist. "The fact is that farm labor inputs into agriculture . .. have persistently declined since the mid-1920's. Substitution of other inputs for farm labor, including machinery, chemicals, and new crop varieties and animal breeds, has been the major factor making American agriculture more efficient."

Suggesting that state universities and private firms be responsible for labor-saving research does not solve the problem, says Knutson. About 30 percent of state university researh funds has come from the federal govenment without designa-tion as to its specific use. Separating such funding from state funds supporting research would be virtually impossible.

Beyond this, publically supported research; and extension activities are available to anyone who desires to use them, points out the economist. In contract, results of private research are private properties. Benefits of private research are captured by business firms as a return on investments made in research discoveries.

"Eqfally, important, university research is also used to train future scientists. Limiting research thus reduces total scientific manpower available for future technological breakthroughs, emphasizes Knutson.

Parents Seek Sterilization For Daughter

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The father of a 22year-old mentally retarded woman says he didn't want to have his daughter sterilized until someone apparently "tried to take advantage of her" two years ago.

Abelardo Gonzales and his wife, Helen, are seeking court permission to have Sylvia Jean Gonzales sterilized in what is a landmark case in Texas. County Court-at-law Judge T. Armour Ball would set a legal precedent in Texas if he authorizes the tubal ligation sterilization the parents have requested for their adopted daughter. Gonzales testified Wednesday that his daughter had hinted about the incident two years ago.

"I think somebody tried to take advantage of her," he said, adding that he and his wife immediately consulted with a doctor and a Catholic priest.

Gonzales said both agreed the young woman should be sterilized for her own protection.

Do you think the long rise in housing costs will continue in the eighties?

Probably, though it may begin to taper off. People's incomes determine what they can spend for a home. In recent years, wives going to work have made it possible for families to give over a higher percentage of their income for housing. Where in the past, it was a rule of thumb that families spent no more than abbut 25% of their income for housing, that figure has risen to 30%, and in some instances, even higher. The increasing number of women available to enter the work force is not likely to be as great in the next decade. Additionally, few families will find it comfortable to let more than 40% of their income be pledged for housing. So, it is reasonable to think future price increases will be more nearly in line with income increases.

[EDITOR'S NOTE: The following introduces a series of feature articles on local kidney patients as a reminder that a fund-raising drive is to be conducted here March 16-31 for the Kidney Foundation of the Texas Panhandle. Individuals wishing to support this effort may contact Clara Reinart, drive chairman at 276-5561.]

At midnight on August 12. 1979, Allan Brockman received a phone call that would radically change his life and would unleash him from survival on a kidney machine.

From that significant phone message, Brockman learned that he was to be in Dallas within seven hours for kidney transplant surgery, made possible through the National Organ Donor program. The kidney, taken from a cadaver in Florida, was a 4-to-4 match, the best possible odds in tissue typing.

Although the prospect of a normal, functioning kidney would mean independence from dialysis, Brockman was facing a rough seven months of serious illness, repeated hospitalization and the constant possibility that his body would reject the transplanted organ.

Although the transplant have been times when I've surgery at Dallas was successful, Brockman contracted serum hepatitis which was introduced to his weakened system in a blood transfusion. Serum hepatitis is not contagious as is the infectious variety, although both illnesses attack the liver.

Because the diseasefighting organisms in a person's blood system are designed to counteract foreign bodies, these antibodies must be broken down through special drugs in order to ward off rejection of a transplanted kidney. This leaves the body vulnerable to infections and diseases which would normally be thrown off by a person's natural fortress of antibodies. This can send the transplant patient in a vicious circle wherein the body's lowered resistance to disease can open the door to lifethreatening illnesses. If the disease is to be conquered through a build-up of antibodies, rejection of the new kidney is a renewed threat.

Brockman, who suffered from kidney failure for more than three years prior to his transplant, has had moments when he wondered if the surgery has been worth the suffering and poor health he has since endured. "There wondered if I made a bad mistake," he recounted.

Brockman was entirely bedridden by hepatitis for two months and doctors were finally forced to induce the necessary antibodies in order to save his liver. "You can live without a kidney by going back on dialysis, but there's no hope for survival without a liver," Brockman explained. Brockman has had only one incidence of kidney rejection since the transplant. He feels that if the transplanted organ had been anything less than a 4-to-4 match, he would have lost it during efforts to conquer the hepatitis. Rejection is spotted when a rise is noted in the creatne. which indicates the level of poison in the bloodstream.

Complications following a kidney transplant vary with individual patients, according to Brockman. "Some have more problems afterwards than others and there are kidney recipients who have virtually no difficulties."

The majority of transplant surgeries in Texas are performed at Dallas, where approximately ten transplants were done during the month Brockman was hospitalized there. He explained that although hopes continue for a transplant program at Texas Tech Medical School. this procedure has been temporarily stalled. Only one kidney transplant has been performed at the Lubbock facility to date.

ALLAN BROCKMAN ...back at work after six months' leave

The first year following transplant surgery is the most crucial, although patients have been known to reject a kidney as late as four years afterwards. Because kidney transplants are a relatively new procedure, the longest successful acceptance of a transplant to date is 21 years.

Although Brockman still continues to suffer from hepatitis, he has the disease checked to a level where he has been able to return on a part-time basis to his position as manager of Big Tex Cattle & Grain. He will have to undergo kidney surgery later this year for the correction of a tube, which kinked shortly

In addition to the health complications occurring during the past seven months, Brockman has met obvious medical and travel expenses. He has been hospitalized in Dallas seven times since his surgery, in addition to frequent medical check-ups which have necessitated almost weekly trips to Dallas. Texas Health Care, a state agency, defrays transportation expenses with a monthly stipend of $150. Between 60 and 70 percent of the hospital costs for transplant surgery are paid by Medicare. Brockman is indebted to the Kidney Foundation of the Panhandle for assistance during the past years. The Foundation was particularly helpful with emergency transportation, providing a private chartered plane which took Brockman to Dallas in time for the transplant soperation. They also assisted in securing ambulance service for Brockman on three different occasions since his surgery.

Brockman is currently serving as third vice president of the Kidney Foundation's board of been recently inactive due to health reasons. Another local board member is Leander

Despite the expense and illhealth incurred by the transplant, Brockman feels that it will have been worth the struggle if he can pass the one-year mark with the kidney intact. "If I can make it past this first year, I'll feel better about the whole thing," he remarked.

Through the Kidney Foundation's work, research continues constantly for improving the kidney patient's length and quality of life. According to Brockman, there are two new developments on the kidney treatment horizon. One involves an implant in the stomach which can be connected to a dialysis (blood cleansing) machine. The other possibility, still in very experimental stages, relies on a medication which will allow the bowels to process many of the impurities usually collected by the kidneys.

Ann Landers She Didn't Cop Out

DEAR ANN LANDERS: 1 know you take a lot of guff because you frequently advise readers to "get professional help." Some people think it's a cop-out.

Well, I want to thank you. The hardest thing I ever did in my life was pick up the phone and call the mental health agency for an appointment. If you hadn't repeated the advice so often. I never would have done it. 'It took three years of searching for the right therapist, and at last I've found her. I can honestly say

I have never been happier or more hopeful about the future. It's hard to believe that at one time I considered suicide.

But at the moment they are not as bad as, for example, in Israel, where a new unit of the national currency is being

The shekel is replacing, and will be worth 10 of, the former Israeli pound, a victim of inflation compared to which the dollar appears almost disgustingly robust.

The pound has been devalued 400 percent in the last two years alone, and with the Israeli inflation rate hitting a feverish 111 percent last year, more of the same has been in prospect. The government, however, hopes to avoid going this route again by introducing the new name and eliminating a decimal place in a restructuring that is as much psychological as technical in purpose.

Since the old pound is going out at a rate of 39 to the U.S. dollar, the new shekel will be worth about a quarter. A much more respectable value for an international currency, about on par with the French franc.

The new name is a conscious invoking of national pride, reaching deep into the biblical past to what was originally a measure of weight - shekel comes from Hebrew "to weigh." In Old Testament times, a shekel was defined for purposes of value as the equivalent of eight grams of silver. It was not until the first century of the Christian era that it made its appearance as a coin.

The introduction of the contemporary shekel superficially recalls the French currency reform pushed through by Charles de Gaulle in the late '50s. He lopped two decimal places off the badly inflated franc to produce the "new franc." But this was accompanied by comprehensive fiscal reforms that have succeeded in keeping the revitalized franc relatively. stable for the past two decades.

The Israeli authorities are contemplating nothing of the same. And since this means nothing is being done about the country's underlying inflationary pressures, there are doubts even in Israel as to what realistically can be expected of a new name and pride.

Under these Israeli circumstances, even the 18 percent projected annual inflation rate that the United States hit in the January statistics tends to look good. Which may be cause for some relief, since reaching back into the past for a new unit of currency might not work out so conveniently for Americans. Wampum, anyone?

Stafford Trial Winds Down

By DAVID EGNER Associated Press Writer

PURCELL, Okla. (AP) -The triple-murder trial of convicted mass killer Roger Dale Stafford was winding to a close today. Defense attorney J.

Malone Brewer and McClain County District Attorney Kay Huff said the case could go to the seven-man, five-woman jury late this afternoon or tonight.

Testimony by rebuttal witnesses, jury instructions and closing arguments were expected today, in the 10th day of the trial.

Stafford, a 28-year-old Alabama drifter, is currently appealing six death sentences he received in October for the July 16, 1978, murders of six Oklahoma City steakhouse workers in the worst robbery-murder in Oklahoma history. He could be given three more death sentences if convicted here of murdering the Melvin Lorenz family of San Antonio, Texas.

Stafford's wife, Verna the star prosecution witness - testified last week that she watched Stafford gun down Lorenz, 38, his wife Linda, 31, and son Richard, 12, in a robbery along Interstate 35 near this central Oklahoma town on June 22, 1978.

Testimony Wednesday by Calvin Mendenhall, the final defense witness, sharply contradicted a portion of Mrs. Stafford's testimony.

Mrs.Stafford testified last week that she, her husband and his late brother, Harold, drove from Tulsa to Oklahoma City and Pauls Valley on the night of June 21, 1978, searching for a place to rob.

She testified they wound up stopping along I-35 near here early on June 22, 1978. Mrs. Stafford said her husband then shot and killed the Lorenz family at about 2 a.m. when Lorenz refused to turn over all his money during a robbery.

Mendenhall testified he saw Roger Stafford in the Tulsa County Emergency Shelter shortly after midnight on the morning of June 22, 1978, at a time when Mrs. Stafford testified she and the Stafford brothers were about 150 miles away in Pauls Valley.

"I don't see how he could be in Tulsa and in Pauls Valley at 12 midnight," Mendenhall testified.

Mendenhall, who was counselor at the housing unit where Stafford lived in June, 1978, testified he believes he informed the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation in about February of 1979 that he had s seen Stafford late June 21 and early June 22, 1978 in the Tulsa shelter.

But a prosecution rebuttal witness, OSBI agent Phil Stinnett, testified that when he interviewed Mendenhall in March, 1979, Mendenhall "never advised me that he had seen Mr. Stafford at midnight."

Stinnett testified that Mendenhall never mentioned the alleged incident until Tuesday, when he was interviewed by another OSBI agent.

Five other defense witnesses who took the stand Wednesday were executives and employees of Baird Manufacturing Co. in Tulsa, where Stafford worked at the time of the Lorenz murders.

They testified that a card from a time clock showed Stafford reported for work shortly after 6 a.m. on June 22, 1978. Prosecution witnesses have testified that Stafford, his wife and brother were in Stillwater — 65 miles from Tulsa - at that hour, riding in a pickup truck stolen from the Lorenz family. None of the Baird witnesses could remember seeing Stafford on June 22, 1978, but they said they would have been made aware of his absence because someone would have been the other witnesses from his firm.

the Baird witnesses acknowledged that it would have been possible for another person to insert Stafford's card in the time clock when Stafford was absent or for Stafford to falsify a time card.

"I've heard the rumor that on occasion...it has happened," Leonard said of the practice of having employees insert cards of other employees into time clocks. "We keep the clock key right at the clock all the time," Leonard said, making it possible to change the reading on a time card. "We have no security guard, we have no alarm system either," so an employee could enter the plant at night through a window that might have been left open during the summer, Leonard said.

From Rags to Riches

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - William E. Walkup is retiring as chairman of the board. The kids in the mail room have a special reason to sing "Auld Lang Syne."

Walkup is one of those Americans who writers of boys' novels years ago liked to picture as typical but who actually were a rare species. and in today's business world, are even rarer.

The mail room was where he started; the board room, where he finished. Even Horatio Alger would be impressed.

"I never set out to become chairman of the board," he said. "In fact, I never set out to go to work for this company. A job was open and I took it. I had intended to become a writer."

That was 1939, the tag end of the Depression, when a 21year-old man with a wife and baby and two years of college took what work he could find. The pay was $75 a month, lowest on the company scale.

The work was 10 hours a day. The company he joined, Signal Oil & Gas, had been founded 16 years earlier by a man named Sam Most with $4,000 in borrowed money and a truckload of scrounged pipe. Those were swinging times in California. Oil seemed to flow endlessly from a coastal knoll called Signal Hill. Big deals were concluded with a handshake, big money made overnight. When Walkup hired on, the company was struggling up the back slope of the Depression to regain that lost bounty. For nine years, Walkup sorted mail, clerked, worked the switchboard, loaded cement sacks. Then, out of the blue. Mosher summoned him to try out as his administrative assistant.

Largely through his efforts and ideas, the company became The Signal Companies Inc. - companies, plural, a conglomerate no longer in the oil business but with a raft of other subsidiaries.

Nowhere along the way had the young Bill Walkup rescued the boss's wife, or found any other dime-novel shortcut to the top, but, looking back on 41 years, he does have some thoughts for today's boys in the mail room.

"Many times I took on jobs that I was ostensibly not equipped to do simply because I felt I could nonetheless get them done. I believe it was Shakespeare who said, 'If you don't have a virtue assume one.' In a sense, that's what I have done," he said.

"We have all heard of instances of people performing incredible feats of physical strength in an emergency.

"Cerebrally, maybe a similar condition prevails. Under the stress of the emergency, use of our brain capacity expands, since under normal conditions we fraction of our potential. So don't be afraid to jump in over your head."

Considering that Bill Walkup abandoned his dream of becoming a writer. has he really been successful, been true to himself? "I am working on a novel," he said. "I have been working on it for several years. It is a business novel. about companies raiding other companies, pretty

I'll have the time to finish

The betting around Signal is that, in his new career, Bill Walkup is not jumping in over his head.

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) -Anita Bryant campaigned against them, but now gay rights activists Bob Kunst and Alan Rockway are "supporting" her, after a fashion.

They paraded in front of the Florida Department of Citrus on Wednesday to urge the Florida Citrus Commission not to terminate Miss Bryant's contract. because she has a right to her "bigoted point of view," a spokesman said.

Miss Bryant, singer and national spokeswoman for Florida citrus, was the leader of a campaign to defeat a 1978 "full equality ordinance" in Dade County that would have prohibited job discrimination against homosexuals in a number of fields. Bob Green, Miss Bryant's husband and manager, said in Miami, "this particular cast of characters is out for publicity purposes - it is this group who started the blacklisting and boycotting of Anita's career in 1977." Citrus industry officials recently indicated Miss Bryant's contract may not be renewed when it expires in August because some industry leaders say Miss Bryant has become too controversial.

French RR Strong

By JEFFREY ULBRICH Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) - From the moment the first train pulled out of Paris, bearing Queen Marie-Amelie on the 13-mile trip to St. Germain on Aug. 27. 1837, the French knew they were on to something.

The intervening 142 years have done little to change that view, and France now possesses one of the finest rail systems in the world.

"The railroad is, and must remain, an essential factor in our system of transportation." says Transport Minister Joel le Theule. "The government, for its part, believes in the future of the railroad and shows it by its enormous subsidies."

The state-run railroad, the Societe Nationale des Chemins de Fer Français, commonly known as the SNCF, had total operating expenses in 1978 of $8.35

The government picked up the tab for some fare reductions and to continue service on some unprofitable lines. It also pays for the railroad's huge retirement program. That comes to an additional $3.75 billion in

In fact, France spends as much on the railroads as it does on building and maintaining its highways. "When a Frenchman thinks of going somewhere, particularly if it is more than 300 kilometers, it is sure he will think of the train," said Jean Albertini, an SNCF official. "In each town there is a station, and the railroad. is something that is always there, with precise schedules."

Apart from a reputation for serving the worst food to be had in this land of gastronomes, French trains are comfortable and nearly always on time and offer a wide range of services and fare reductions.

The trains have a computerized ticket and reservation system hooked

Britain, West Germany and Sweden, all of which report ridership increases. Officials of the West German federal railway estimate that 10 percent of their ridership increase was due to people leaving their cars at home in favor of taking the train.

Railroads throughout Europe can haul more passengers than they do now, particularly in non-peak hours and during the week. These are the periods officials are trying to fill by using fare reduction schemes.

In spite of the fare increases, British rail has launched a huge advertising campaign, urging people to "Let the Train Take the Strain."

SNCF officials say oil problems so far have played a relatively small role in the growth of passenger service. With 17 million cars on French roads, there's still no evidence the crunch has reached crisis proportions.

"People are still attached to their cars," said Albertini. "The cost of gasoline (now $3.10 per gallon for premium) is still not dissuasive. It's beginning to be....If rationing ever comes, we'll certainly benefit from it. But we are not there yet."

Golf pro needed a loan

Sports enthusiasts who look at Tom Watson's $500,000 winnings may think of playing on the pro golf tour as the nearest thing to stealing. And then there's PGA touring pro Rick Meissner who took that comparison literally: He robbed banks.

Meissner revealed to a writer for Esquire magazine that he thought of his 19 bank jobs (more than $100,000 total) as "a loan" until he found his bearing on the tour. By the time the FBI arrested him, on June 7, 1978, one day short of a year after his first holdup, Meissner had netted over $100,000 and achieved a measure of fame he never had on the tour.

Today Meissner practices his swing with a whittleddown broom handle on the rolling lawns of the Federal Correctional Institution at Danbury, Conn. Now 35, Meissner, the son of a Silver Spring, Md., police sergeant, doesn't come up for parole until November 1983.

Then his wife, who had attended school through the ninth grade, began taking adult-education classes to get her high-school diploma.

Ernie was finally persuaded to take a reading test. He was then teamed up with Carolyn Cummings of the Saginaw Intermediate School District.

"We hit it off just swell because she didn't downgrade me," recalls Ernie. "Like she told me, 'What you know and the knowledge you have, you're as good as I am or better. I don't know anything except teaching."

He soon found himself eagerly reading everything he could find - cereal boxes, menus, magazines, newspapers, encyclopedias. Once he nearly crashed the car reading traffic signs.

The man who used to spend all his spare time tinkering in the garage now sits around reading. "I'm lazier," he reading.

Throughout their marriage, Ernie's wife had bought him cards on special occasions and read him their messages. Shortly after he started his reading classes, she bought him a Valentine and prepared to read it to him.

He Credits Success to 150 Dummies

LUCEDALE, Miss. (NEA) Danny Kenmar may be a smart cookie, but it took 150 dummies to get him established in business

Kenmar is owner of the T&T (for Trash and Trea sures) Co., located on High way 98 west of this smal town near the Gulf Coast.

The dummies - most of them gone now - stood on the curvy Mississippi roadside, luring prospective flea-market goers to his splintered makeshift sales stand.

Kenmar operates on a poli-cy of laid-back laissez faire. He works when he wants, travels and buys when he wants, keeps half a watch over his sales items when he wants.

"You'd be surprised at the trash that sells," the proprietor says, laughing at himself.

Like the dummies? I wouldn't have bought one of them," he confides. Kenmar spent about $500 two years ago for the department-store manikins that had been put out to pasture. He says he figured "some nut" would buy them. He doesn't really know what motivated him to strategically position the dum-mies on land adjacent to the highway. But doing so apparently succeeded in nabbing curious - even startled -

They came out in droves, purchasing the manikins at prices from $10 to $50. "One person bought one to Kenmar reckons it was worth the cost for the farmer to enjoy briefly the hilarity of pulling into the barnyard with the nude quadruple amputee in the cab of his pickup. A more inhibited woman, obviously wealthy and familiar with the social graces, purchased a manikin to be used as a model for her custom-tailored dresses.

Kenmar's dummies sold quickly. But he managed to save some of the choicest to be permanent roadside orna-

CBS Bounces Back In Week's Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) - After struggling for two weeks in the face of ABC's Winter Olympics coverage, CBS surged back in the week ending March 2, and renewed its challenge to the front-runner for season-long supremacy. With eight of the week's 10 top-rated programs, CBS finished No. 1 in the primetime ratings race by more than four ratings points over ABC, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

CBS finished behind both ABC and NBC the previous week, making the rebound that much more significant. It was CBS' widest winning margin over ABC this season.

For the season, ABC's edge over CBS is two-tenths of a ratings point — though there is some disagreement among the networks over the averages for that competition.

The differnce in the week for CBS was the three-part miniseries, "Scruples," and

The week's No. 1 show was CBS' "Alice," with "60 Minutes" second, but "Scruples," based on Judith Krantz's best-seller, was stronger each evening in its three-part run. Part III was fourth in the ratings, with Part II in 10th place and Part I ranked 16th.

CBS' rating for the week was 22.4, to 18.3 for ABC and 17 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 22.4 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to CBS.

The rating for "Alice," meanwhile, was 30.8. Nielsen says that means of all the TV-equipped homes in the country, 30.8 percent saw at least part of the program.

A good part of CBS' ratings strength for the week was concentrated on a single evening - Sunday night. Of the six CBS shows that night, five were in the Top 10 for the blood is regularly reju-venated in the bone marrow, I would like to know which bones are the most significant in that activity and how arthritis might affect them.

Arthritis and blood cells

I understand that dead cells are wasted through the pores and in the "sleep" of the eyes. Does this mean that excess perspiration indicates a healthy bone marrow? I'm a carpenter, active at 63, 192 pounds, 5 feet 11 and I sweat and ache a lot.

DEAR READER - Yes, for adults most of the new blood cells come from the bone marrow. In fact, your body produces three million new red blood cells every second. The sternum or breastbone is a good source for blood cell formation. Other bones, including the long bones in the legs, where there is bone marrow are capable of producing blood

Arthritis itself will not affect blood cell formation. Arthritis involves joints or the surfaces of the bones where they meet. These end areas are not the areas that are rich in bone marrow and produce red blood cells.

In some people the medi-cines they take for arthritis can depress bone marrow function. This is true of some medicines used for other conditions as well. That's why many doctors like to have blood tests and other examinations to see how their patients are getting along with the medicines that produces and destroys red blood cells every day, I am sending you The Health Letter rumber. A.2 Understanding sending you The Health Letter number 4-3, Understanding The Anemias. Dead cells from the surface

Dead cells from the surface of the body just simply flake off. They're so small usually that you don't see them. The classic example is dandruff, which is simply the flaking off of skin cells from the scalp. We all have this except in many people the little dead many people the little dead cells are so small that they're not visible to the naked eye. In certain individuals these cells clump together, then they're seen and we call it dandruff.

You don't really lose cells through the pores of the skin or through perspiration. That's an entirely different mechanism. Many of the old cells inside the body that die are simply reused. One of the best examples of this is the best examples of this is the lining of the small intestine. It's completely replaced every three days.

Those old cells that are shed from the lining of the intestine every day are bro-ken down and digested just the same as the meat that you eat. In fact, there are enough of those cells each day to provide a major portion of the turnover of protein in the body. Our body is a very good recycling machine and it tends to use over and over many of its component parts,

DEAR POLLY - I would like to know how some of the other readers take that brown off aluminum skillets

DEAR CHLOE - I am sure we will be hearing from the readers, but in the meantime I will tell you how I remove that brown look from my aluminum pots and pans. For the inside of such pans boil water with a teaspoon or two of cream of tartar added or cook tomatoes or some other acid food in them. I clean the outside with tomato eatsup and a fine steel wool pad. Believe it or not this does a great job. Will clean the inside, too. —

DEAR POLLY — For years I have been having my husband cut each of my new soap pads into four pieces. Each one lasts a week. He either cuts them with scissors or puts them on the chopping block and chops them to make the four pieces. — MRS, J.W.H.

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for those readers who sew and consequently cut out dresses, etc. I bought a 3-by-5 piece of wall paneling and place this on my bed to make a firm cutting "table." Place the smooth side up and find this is very

After raking leaves into piles I have learned that it is easier to put them on a large sheet of plastic (like a paint drop cloth) than to pick them up and put in tubs. Place the plastic sheet close to the pile of leaves and rake the leaves onto it. Be sure you keep a foot on the plastic as you do this. When all the

My wife passed away and I had no sexual desire thereafter. However, last spring I met and married a lovely lady who was cognizant of my con-dition but the problem is still with me. I have no idea when I can have an erection and I still cannot have an orgasm.

I'm 62 and my wife is 60.
There's quite a bit of patience and understanding by both parties. I seem to be incapable of producing general since ble of producing semen since the accident and I want to know if there's anything that can be done to start the pro-ess again.

DEAR READER — You should not conclude that your problem is psychological. Even men who are impotent on a psychological basis can still have orgasms and do form semen. The same is true of men who are impotent on of men who are impotent on the basis of diabetes. Part of the explanation here is that the nerve mechanisms that control erection are somewhat different from the same nerve mechanisms that are responsible for an orgasm.

As I've said many times before in this column, impotence is a symptom. It's really not something to be grossly ashamed about, any more than you'd be ashamed of hav-ing a broken arm.

It's true that impotence can -Aluminum comes cleanbe caused by psychological factors. I would like for you to see a good urologist. Let him evaluate you for your combined problem of impotence and ability to have an orgasm. Finally, you should know that there are implantable devices today that can be used in selected cases to relieve the problem of impotence.
