HATAB considers feed abatement

A business introducing an innovative method for processing cattle feed is the latest firm to be considered by the Hereford Area Tax Abatement Board.

A.B. (Bill) Fly of Aero-Span Feeders, Ltd. met with the abatement board Tuesday to provide information about his business. Aero-Span is in the process of building a facility at the former A & A Pipe Coating plant on Santa Fe Railway property off Dairy Road.

Aero-Span is the second business to be considered for a break on local property taxes as part of a long-term project to encourage business development in the Hereford area. An expansion of Whiteface Ford Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. is the only other business to be considered (and approved) for abatement.

In the initial stages, Aero-Span plans to construct a smaller research and development facility as it perfects the process and proves marketability of its product. Improvements planned at the existing site are estimated at $345,000 for 1989. The business plans to continue a massive expansion over a five year period until eventual improvements would be valued at better than $3,000,000.

Before it can achieve this planned expansion, Aero-Span must initiate its research and development facility.

"We've got to get into production and prove we can produce a uniform feed in sufficient quantity," Fly said.

The plant would begin at a production of 200 tons of feed per day. Eventual plans include a daily production of 3,000 tons.

Since expansion of the plant would extend over several years, application of the abatement pro-

Gramm learns about cattle

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm received a crash course in the cattle business during a visit to Hereford on Tuesday night.

A crowd of over 50 persons greeted Gramm at Hereford Feedyards where Gramm learned about the impact of the cattle business locally and over Texas from Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher, Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce President Rocky Lee, Leo Vermedahl of Dalhart representing the Texas Cattle Feeders Association, and Bob Josserand, president of AzTx Cattle Company and president of the National Cattlemen's Association.

Gramm attacked the European Community's ban of U.S. beef containing growth hormones.

"We have let Europe cheat us out of their market," Gramm said. "We just got Japan to open theirs, and this year we're selling $500 million worth of beef to Japan, and in three years that will be $1 billion a year."

Gramm said that as tariffs in Japan are lowered, the retail price should drop about 60 percent.

"You'd be eating a lot of fish if beef cost you $20 a pound.

"We're not going to force the Japanese to eat beef, we just want to give them an opportunity to buy beef at the world price.

"We just can't afford to let happen in Japan what Europe has done to us."

Gramm also attacked agriculture commissioner Jim Hightower, who is pushing production of hormone-free beef to sell to the Europeans. "He's the only elected official in America that favors protectionism in Europe," Gramm said.

"I think 1989 will be a great year for the cattle business. The Texas economy needs it, and I look forward to it."

Lee explained that the cattle industry grosses about $500 million a year in Deaf Smith county and uses 1.4 billion pounds of grain a year, paying about $75 million dollars for it. Lee detailed the additional businesses which directly benefit from the cattle-feeding business.

Fisher, in his welcoming statement, also described the impact of the cattle industry on the local economy and how the entire agricultural industry would play a major role in future economic development.

Fisher pointed how Gramm had personally helped development efforts by helping obtain nuclear waste funds after the Department of Energy had announced it was pulling its project out of Deaf Smith County.

Fisher also asked that Gramm help with future development efforts.

Vermedahl outlined the impact of the cattle industry over the state, with over 5 million head marketed in Texas in 1988 with a value of over $4 billion.

He explained innovative marketing systems developed by TCFA and legislative issues TCFA is working on.

"Cattle make up the largest part of agriculture," Josserand said. "The senator has been very upfront in helping the cattle industry, and we appreciate what he has already done for us."

Josserand and feedyard manager Wade Lewis then led Gramm on a tour of the facility, explaining how the mill operates and other features of the operation.

Josserand: NCA will wear white hat

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Bob Josserand has been president of the National Cattlemen's Association "for what seems like a year, even though it's only been a little over a month."

Josserand, of Hereford, was in town Tuesday, and spoke to the Hereford CattleWomen at a luncheon at the Hereford Country Club.

Josserand told the crowd that the NCA "will wear a white hat" in its dealings in 1989.

"For too many years, cattlemen and the NCA have been seen as wearing a black hat," Josserand said. "We have been reactive instead of pro-active." Josserand said people don't want to be around someone who says "no, no, no" all of the time.

"We are going to change in 1989 and wear a white hat," Josserand said.

"We want to be the solution not part of the problem."

Josserand said he will focus on three major issues this year, including environment, food safety, and animal welfare.

The environmental issues cattlemen will face this year will include land and water. "If you haven't been faced with this yet, you will be," Josserand said.

Josserand said three good examples of food safety assurance have been seen in the past week: The Chilean grape worries; 400,000 chickens killed in Arkansas because of the possibility of feed contamination; and concerns over apples.

Josserand said that veal producers are already facing problems from animal welfare activists, and predicted that chicken raisers will be next.

"Hopefully, we won't face this in Hereford for a while," Josserand said.

"For those three areas, NCA is putting a white hat on and facing the issues. We will also face some work on taxes, but we don't know what direction the government will be going. They will probably come down hardest on estate taxes ... You don't feel the upcry there like increasing other taxes."

Josserand also related anecdotes from some of his visits across America that pointed out the differences in cattle feeding, and talked about visits with Manuel Lujan, the secretary of the interior, and ag secretary Clayton Yetter.

"Yetter will be one of the best we've ever had (as secretary of agriculture)," Josserand said. "He understands agriculture, and he's a no-nonsense guy."

Josserand said that President Bush's call for a kinder, gentler America is evident in his administration. He pointed out that his meetings with Lujan and Yetter went much longer than had been scheduled.

"I could even feel it with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen," Josserand said. "Usually the senators are so busy that you just say hi to them, have your picture taken, and tell them you want to work with them."

"I talked with Sen. Bentsen for about 10 minutes and said, 'I know you're busy,' and he said, 'Bob, sit down and tell me about the cattle business.' I spent another 30 minutes with him."

I think this is the start of a good situation for agriculture and the cattle business."

DSGH studies figures, plans

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

A review of operating figures and doctor recruitment, and the study of a retirement plan for employees highlighted a regular monthly meeting of Deaf Smith County Hospital District directors Tuesday night.

The board also got an update on the May 6 hospital board election. Incumbents Ralph Detten and Raymond Schroeder indicated they would file for reelection, while Dr. Gerald Payne had already announced he would not seek reelection. Candidates have until April 5 to file for a seat on the board.

Gary Moore, Deaf Smith General Hospital administrator, reported that an orthopedic surgeon will be joining the staff as soon as his state license is approved. The hospital has already secured a general surgeon and last week interviewed two family practitioners. DSGH is also seeking an internal specialist.

The hospital had a net income of $21,946 for February, said Moore, which he termed "good" for the short month. Except for high contractals by Medicare, the financial picture would have been even better.

Total patients admitted for February was listed at 211, compared to 246 a year ago. The average daily census was 25, compared to 29.8 for the same month last year. Newborn infants totalled 30 for the month, of which 7 were listed as drop-ins--unscheduled and no pre-natal care. Moore said DSGH ranked second in the state in percentage of drop-ins.

The hospital board held a lengthy discussion on starting a retirement system for employees. Moore showed the board figures on two commercial plans and a state plan. Directors agreed that the state plan appeared to be more beneficial for the majority of employees. A big incentive in the state plan is that it takes into account the prior years of service of employees. The board took no action but directors will study a booklet explaining the state plan and probably make a decision at the next board meeting.

All directors were present for the monthly meeting--Ralph Detten, Raymond Schroeder, Margie Ford, Frank Zinsler, Dr. Gerald Payne and Craig Smith.

Air Force deal calls for $229 washers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Air Force's deal for $68 million in crash damage kits for its giant C-5 cargo aircraft was marked by a conflict-of-interest violation and vastly overpriced parts, including $229 washers the size of nickels, according to a congressional report.

The General Accounting Office, Congress' investigative arm, found that Lockheed Aeronautical Systems Co. hired a retired U.S. Air Force colonel shortly after he negotiated a Pentagon contract with the defense contractor to buy the crash damage kits.

Retired Air Force Col. Anthony Diferdinando "did not comply with provisions in a conflict of interest law requiring that he report his employment contracts and disqualify himself from procurement functions involving Lockheed," the GAO said.

Abatement

gram is somewhat complicated. Abatement board guidelines call for up to a 100 percent abatement to be applied for as many as two years during construction. A 50 percent abatement is provided for up to three years thereafter, and a 25 percent abatement is provided for up to five years thereafter.

Aero-Span's construction will not be contained in a two-year period, complicating application of the abatement program.

After some discussion of the individual case needs, the abatement board developed a possible plan. They instructed Tax Appraiser Fred Fox to compile written recommendations which can be considered by the taxing entities and the taxpayers at large.

A public hearing will be called before any decision is made.

Potential economic benefit to the community and the county from the Aero-Span project is extensive. Five to ten workers will be employed during the plant's early stages of production with the eventual number of employees predicted at 30.

Although new jobs will be a boost to the community, the effect will be minor compared to the potential impact on local agriculture.

The review also found that among the prices Lockheed Aeronautical Systems Co. proposed for items in the 6,600-part kit were $229.94 for a nickel-size washer and $211.13 for an inch-long shim, a metal wedge, that was an excess part from production of the C-5B and originally valued at $22.09.

The House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations, which requested the inquiry last year, holds hearings on the matter today. A copy of the GAO testimony was obtained Monday by The Associated Press.

The subcommittee, chaired by Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., asked the GAO to look into the San Antonio Air Logistics Center's purchase of the kits and an allegation that Diferdinando violated conflict of interest laws during the procurement process.

According to a GAO chronology,

"We prefer to use farmer's grain," Fly said.

Aero-Span's representative said that his business could buy grain directly from the farmer at a savings and still pay the farmer a premium.

"Every time you handle grain, you lose money," Fly said.

After asking about the quantity of milo to be used by the plant, board members began figuring the number of acres needed to produce the plant's needs. Officials estimated that approximately 400,000 acres would be needed to supply Aero-Span in grain.

"That would be nearly a third of the county," one board member said.

"Yes, we're talking about a big project," Fly answered.

The Aero-Span feed processing system utilizes the less expensive milo in such a way that it overcomes some of the problems associated with that grain. Fly said that milo, in its natural form, is not very digestible. Aero-Span's process germinates the grain until it is at its most digestible.

Fly estimated that his company's method could produce feed at approximately $15 to $18 per ton less than the traditional "steam flake" method frequently utilized with corn.

Agriculture decision won't be 'partisan'

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements says he won't consider partisan or political factors in deciding whether to veto Sunset legislation continuing the elective post of Texas agriculture commissioner.

Clements, whose veto would make the post appointive, said the issue "must not be cast simply as a question over an elective or an appointive commissioner."

"The only questions we must answer are: What's in the best interest of Texas agriculture? What's in the best interest of our farmers and ranchers? What's absolutely best for our state?" Clements said.

The Republican governor said he wanted to avoid partisan and political fights over the issue, which centers on elected Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, a Democrat.

"I will not allow this topic to digress into a political fight," Clements said Tuesday in a speech to the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association.

"Well, that's certainly good news," Hightower responded when told of Clements' comments. "I hope it won't be a partisan issue ... We do hope for and expect to have Republican support."

"Ultimately, I hope to have the support of the chief Republican in the state of Texas, Mr. Bill Clements," Hightower said.

In his speech Clements also said he wants advice from farmers and ranchers before deciding.

"I'd like to hear what your thoughts are on this ... So, grassroots Texas must be heard and believe me, I'm all ears," Clements said.

The Senate on Monday passed to the House a Sunset bill that would continue operations of the Texas Department of Agriculture the next 12 years and would continue the commissioner's job as elective.

The House has not voted on the legislation.

After his speech, Clements told reporters he was undecided about action on the legislation, but was "listening very carefully" to farmers and ranchers on the subject.

"Just like the cattlemen's association right here ... they're on record that they unanimously want" an appointed commissioner, Clements said.

"I'm listening to Lt. Gov. (Bill) Hobby, I'm listening to (House) Speaker (Gib) Lewis, and I'm listening to the committee members and the committee chairmen, and we'll see what comes out of the House and then I'll make my decision," Clements said.

Asked if he felt Hightower was qualified, Clements said, "I wouldn't comment on that ... I think all you have to do is look at the resolution that comes from this kind of an organization ... and they say not."

Hightower said he hoped to gain support from Clements "through common sense and through an appeal to his desire to be a governor of good government."

"There's no need to try to destroy a major agency, an essential agency, of state government just to make a political attack on a Democrat," Hightower said. "They have their shot at me in 1990. Pay the filing fee, and come on ahead."

Hightower said he thought farmers and ranchers supported him "overwhelmingly."

Diferdinando initiated acquisition of the crash damage kits, requesting funding for 147 kits. Less than a month later, the colonel requested an application for employment at Lockheed.

Diferdinando retired from the Air Force on July 1, 1986, and on Dec. 2, 1986, the Air Logistics Center issued its first order for the kits at an estimated value of $44.6 million.

Less than three weeks later, Lockheed offered Diferdinando a job, and on Feb. 2, 1987, the colonel reported for work in Lockheed's International Marketing Division responsible for marketing the C-130 aircraft in Middle Eastern countries.

The GAO concluded that Diferdinando failed to comply with a Pentagon requirement that an individual promptly report contracts with a contractor or "disqualify himself or herself if required to do so."

"However, we did not find any evidence to indicate that his actions regarding the purchase of the kits were influenced by employment," the GAO said.

The investigative arm said it will refer the matter to the defense secretary, who could impose a penalty of up to $10,000.

A spokesman for Lockheed, Hugh Burns, declined to comment on the GAO findings until after the subcommittee's hearings today.

The GAO review found that C-5 system managers based their request for the kits on two crashes and one lightning strike, which did not provide sufficient data for a decision. In fact, the GAO found that the kits cannot be used to repair a C-5A that was damaged in a fire at Travis Air Force Base on Dec. 30, 1988.

Air Force officials questioned the type of parts procured and the prices proposed by Lockheed, including shims priced at $211.33 and $160.97. In response to the Air Force plant representative office's concerns about transfers of excess parts, Lockheed proposed about a $1 million reduction.

The Air Force's reservations about the contract were evident in an internal memo written by Eric M. Thorson, acting assistant secretary of the Air Force.

"Thirty-nine percent of all items reviewed have failed the intrinsic value test," Thorson said. "If that model holds, approximately 6,000 parts will be potential 'toilet pans' for Mr. Dingell to hold up in a hearing."

During his report, Thomas A. Hyer, the cooperative's manager, informed the membership that the business had made a net margin of $673,789 for the year ending Dec. 31.

Total operating revenues for the cooperative in 1988 were $2,811,360, and total operating expenses were $1,924,437. This left an operating income of $886,923.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, March 22, the 81st day of 1989. There are 284 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On March 22, 1765, Britain enacted the Stamp Act to raise money from the American colonies. The Act set off such a strong protest that it was repealed the following year.

On this date:

In 1638, religious dissident Anne Hutchinson was expelled from the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

In 1794, Congress passed a law prohibiting American vessels from supplying slaves to other countries.

In 1820, U.S. naval hero Stephen Decatur was killed in a duel with Commodore James Barron near Washington D.C.

In 1882, Congress outlawed polygamy.

In 1894, hockey's first Stanley Cup game was played. Montreal, the home team, defeated Ottawa, 3-1.

In 1929, a U.S. Coast Guard vessel sank a Canadian-registered schooner, the "I'm Alone," in the Gulf of Mexico. (The schooner was suspected of carrying bootleg liquor.)

In 1933, during Prohibition, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a measure to make wine and beer containing up to 3.2 percent alcohol legal.

In 1941, the Grand Coulee Dam in Washington state went into operation.

In 1972, Congress sent the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution to the states for ratification. (It would fall short of the two-thirds approval needed.)

In 1978, Karl Wallenda, patriarch of "The Flying Wallendas" high-wire act, fell to his death while attempting to walk a cable strung between two hotels in San Juan, Puerto Rico. He was 73.

In 1982, the space shuttle "Columbia," carrying astronauts Col. Jack R. Lousma and Col. C. Gordon Fullerton, lifted off on a week-long mission from Cape Canaveral, Florida.

Bride honored

Shelley Heinrich was feted with a post-nuptial shower March 18 in the home of Carmen Flood. The bride, the former Shelley Gerk, and Bert Heinrich were wed Feb. 14. Welcoming guests with the honoree were (from left) hostess, Carmen Flood; the bride's mother, Carol Gerk; and the bridegroom's mother, Theresa Heinrich of Slaton.

Mrs. Burt Heinrich, the former Shelley Gerk, was honored with a bridal shower Saturday, March 18, in the home of Carmen Flood. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Roy Lee Heinrich of Slaton; and the bridegroom's grandmother, Milada Heinrich, also of Slaton.

Decorating the refreshment table was a silk arrangement of red roses, white lilies and peonies and red candles. Crystal and silver appointments further enhanced the table setting.

The hostess gift was a set of stainless steel cookware. Serving as hostesses were Elaine Clarke, Judy Detten, Sammie Lytal, Carmen Flood, Beverly Ward, Kee Ruland, Gayle Worthan, Tina Langehenig, Opal Walterscheid, Judy Neumayer, Teena Reinauer, Marilyn Kahlich, Betty Martin and Robertia Last.

Robinson home site of Bud to Blossom Club meeting

Mrs. Jess Robinson was hostess for the Bud to Blossom Garden Club meeting held Thursday in her home north of Hereford.

Eight members answered roll call stating how they conserve water in their homes, and each reported on the "Adopt An Alley" project.

Joanne Blackwell gave the conservation series, "Botanically Speaking."

Those who attended the District I annual meeting of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc. on March 6-7 in Lubbock were Ursalee Jacobsen, Wilma Bryan, Robinson, Phyllis Brown, Naomi Hare, and Mildred Fuhrmann.

Delegates reported on the Lubbock meeting where Jacobsen installed officers for 1989-91, including Robinson as director for District I and Fuhrmann as corresponding secretary. The Bud to Blossom Garden Club received six awards.

Following this report, the program was given by Robinson on "Peonies and Their Culture." Spring planting is not advised, she noted, since autumn is the best time to plant peonies. Sept. 19 is the recommended date for this area.

The club agreed to furnish the wildflower seeds to be planted at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center by Billee Johnson.

The next meeting will be held April 6 at the Garden Center and each member is to bring a creative design. A plant sale is planned for April 22 at the Garden Center.

The hostess served refreshments to Blackwell, Kathleen Brockman, Bryan, Marie Escamilla, Johnson, Hare, and Fuhrmann.

Until 1752, the British and their American colonies celebrates New Years on March 24th. That is, March 24, 1750 was followed by March 25, 1751.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 23-year-old college graduate (business major). I don't presume to speak for my generation, but I know what I feel.

People wonder about us. They say we are materialistic, just out for ourselves. They say we are apathetic. It must go deeper than that. Teens are committing suicide in record numbers. What is wrong with us? Just look around.

The media reach far and wide, bringing stories from all over the world. We have overpopulation, the environment is being destroyed, our natural resources are dwindling. People are oppressed, starving and killing each other. There are enough weapons to blow up the world we live in 40 times! AIDS continues to spread and there is no vaccine and no cure.

On the home front, the United States is faltering. The national debt is at an incomprehensible level. Homeless people freeze to death on the streets. Gang violence, alcoholism and drug abuse are rampant. Teens are having babies out of wedlock and many will never get off welfare.

Not many people my age will be able to own a house, no matter what their educational level or whom they work for. Takeovers and mergers ruin the hopes of job security. Most of us expect to have a lower standard of living than our parents. The U.S. is losing its edge in the world market.

It sounds hopeless. But I love this country, and I think there is hope. I don't believe that my generation is apathetic. We just don't know where to start.--Waiting for Guidance in California

DEAR WAITING IN CALIFORNIA: I see no sign of apathy or resignation in your letter. In fact, I sense that you are deeply concerned. I, too, refuse to accept the fact that we are doomed. But what is going to save us? Any answers out there?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing from behind bars. The charge? A felony--child molesting. Not a pleasant subject, I realize, but this letter is not being written to be pleasant or to gain sympathy.

You've never seen me in the parks or near playgrounds looking for victims. I don't play ball and I don't give out candy. I don't leer at children or stare at them, yet I've never lacked for victims. I've held several positions of responsibility working with the public. You've probably met me and liked me. Your children have learned that I can fix a bike and will talk to them when no one else has time to listen. When Mom was too busy or Dad was too tired, they came to me. I know more about your children's teachers and their school problems than you because they knew I was interested.

The two little girls I molested can never regain what was taken away from them and I will spend five years in prison. I was molested as a child and feel certain that at least two of my victims will grow up to be molesters. I am sick at heart, but the damage is done and I can't undo it.

The next time your child has something to tell you, don't be too busy to listen. Ask yourself, if I won't listen, who will? --Guilty and Ashamed in Monon, Ind.

DEAR MONON: You've made some valid points. Are you listening, parents?

Prison won't solve your problem. When you are released, you'll still have it. I hope you are aware that there is medication that could help you. Please, please look into it.

How much do you know about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? Think you can handle them? For up-to-the minute information on drugs, write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Rose charges may include baseball

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer

Pete Rose's reputation is in tatters, his place in the game he loves in doubt.

In two days since major league baseball announced he's under investigation, the Cincinnati Reds' manager has become the eye of a storm of allegations about his gambling, his finances and his parenting.

Rose took refuge behind an armed guard in the team's clubhouse on Tuesday before a spring training game in Florida, declining comment on an array of reports.

The most serious allegations, contained in this week's Sports Illustrated, could drive Rose from the game if proven accurate. The magazine reported in this week's issue that Rose is accused of betting on baseball and could be banned from the game if the charge is proven during an investigation being conducted by the office of baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

The Dayton Daily News reported today that Rose is selling off his baseball memorabilia, and is under investigation by federal authorities in Cincinnati looking into his gambling and taxes.

And Gentlemen's Quarterly printed an article in which Rose's children say he was a poor parent, and his former wife is quoted as saying Rose didn't pay his gambling debts - a statement she later denied.

Although Rose was ducking the allegations, his players and team owner

Marge Schott were publicly hoping the storm would die out before Opening Day.

"I don't know what's going on," third baseman Chris Sabo said. "We just go and play and hope it all works out very soon."

Schott, in Washington for a luncheon, indicated she could fire Rose if he's found guilty of the allegations.

How serious is something being weighed by Ueberroth and Commissioner-elect A. Bartlett Giamatti, who issued the statement Monday saying Rose was the subject of "serious allegations." The nature of the allegations hasn't been confirmed.

The allegations dogging Rose revolve around gambling. Rose's affinity for horse and dog tracks is no secret; he has denied a report that he places bets on college basketball.

Sports Illustrated quoted an unidentified source as saying that Rose allegedly "exchanged signals somehow relating to baseball betting" from the dugout at Riverfront Stadium. SI also reported allegations that baseball's all-time hits leader placed bets on baseball through friends.

Under Major League Rule 21-d, if Rose bet on games in which his team was not involved, he would be suspended for one year. If Rose bet on games involving the Reds, he would be banned for life.

Sports Illustrated said Ron Peters, a restaurant owner in southwest Ohio, has been linked to possible baseball betting involving Rose. The magazine said Peters' lawyer, Alan Statman, described his client as Rose's "principle bookmaker" and approached the magazine in hopes of selling Peters' story. The magazine said it declined to pay. The Cincinnati Enquirer said it, too, declined an overture from Statman to buy the story.

Statman told the Daily News in a copyright story today that Peters filed for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. bankruptcy code on Jan. 19. He said the financial problems stem from a divorce and other personal and business affairs, and were not related to any alleged gambling.

Sports Illustrated said Statman told two of its reporters that he and his client had been asked by Kevin Hallinan, baseball's security chief, "if we had information on Pete Rose betting on baseball. We said we can supply that information."

Rose was quoted in the magazine as saying, "I'd be willing to bet you, if I was a betting man, that I have never bet on baseball."

Gambling also was mentioned in the GQ story contained in the magazine's April edition. The magazine said Rose once received a dead fish in the mail as a warning to pay a gambling debt. The magazine also quoted Rose's former wife, Karolyn, as saying, "He said he was Pete Rose, and he didn't have to pay no gambling debts."

Karolyn Rose, in a telephone interview Tuesday night, denied making that statement.

NCAA tourney: a wonderful awakening

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

For folks who spend the regular season mesmerized by the basketball heavyweights and the high profile conferences in which they live, the NCAA tournament offers a wonderful awakening.

Watch a couple of sub-regional rounds and you realize that there is an awful lot of other talent out there, slam dunking its way through the winter, hidden away in map-dot conferences that you don't hear about until tournament time.

If you're not careful, you can be consumed by the Big East, ACC, Big Ten, Big Eight and Pac-10, where the big shots strut their stuff. You can get swept away by the Sean Elliotts and Danny Ferrys and forget the little guys with no trouble at all.

Then the tournament starts and Ivy League champion Princeton scares the gym shorts off Big East boss Georgetown. And for a while, East Tennessee State, the pride of the Southern Conference, has Oklahoma absolutely terrified.

The two No. 1 seeds survived, just barely, each a one-point winner.

Siena, playing in the ECAC North Atlantic Conference, was shrouded in obscurity even before the measles quarantine eliminated fans at its games. Thrust in the spotlight of the NCAAs, it introduced pint-sized guard Marc Brown, who could post up Spud Webb but not many other people. He looks like a ball boy, spindly-legged and just about swimming in his uniform. Then he scores 32 points and beats the intellectuals from Stanford.

When you talk basketball in Indiana, the coach you talk about is Bobby Knight and the team you talk about comes from Bloomington and plays in the Big Ten. So in the tournament, Ball State shows up from Muncie with coach Rick Majeras who looks like he'd be more comfortable in a living room recliner than on a basketball sideline, and together they knock off Big East representative Pittsburgh.

Big Ten basketball usually focuses on Michigan and Indiana, Illinois and Iowa, maybe Michigan State and Ohio State. And, oh yes, Minnesota.

Then in the NCAAs, the Gophers send out Willie Burton looking like the man in the iron mask behind the face guard protecting his broken nose, and he throws in shots from all over the place. And just like that, Minnesota is in the Sweet Sixteen, along with the conference heavyweights from Champaign, Bloomington, and Ann Arbor.

And then there is peanut butter and jelly.

This is not some elementary school luncheon menu. It is instead the lightning quick backcourt at South Alabama.

Peanut Butter is Junie Lewis. His partner - Jelly, of course - is Jeff Hodge. In the first round, they kayaked high falutin' intrastate rival Alabama, which had the good sense to avoid any confrontation with them until forced into it by the tournament. Then, South Alabama scared the daylight out of Michigan before succumbing in the second round.

Lewis gave them the intriguing nicknames. "One night, I was sitting up in my room and I thought them up," he said. "I call Jeff Jelly because he's so silky smooth. I'm Peanut Butter because I stick to other players' minds."

Now, thanks to the spotlight of the tournament, the legend of Peanut Butter and Jelly has spread beyond the boundaries of the Sun Belt Conference, where South Alabama plays. Even the pros are in on the secret.

"Hey," said Marty Blake, director of the NBA's scouting service, "if I could find Scottie Pippen in Conway, Arkansas, I can find Peanut Butter and Jelly."

And not only on the grocery shelf.

A's have Giants' number

By The Associated Press

The Oakland Athletics seem to have the San Francisco Giants' number - and that number is the ninth inning.

On March 12, the A's scored 14 runs in the ninth inning and crushed the Giants 20-7. On Tuesday, they were at it again with a seven-run ninth and a 9-7 exhibition victory.

Rookie Felix Jose, whose two-run single in the sixth began Oakland's comeback from a 7-0 deficit, hit a three-run double to cap the big ninth.

The Giants took a 7-0 lead against Bob Welch, starting with five runs in the first inning.

Meanwhile, Texas won its ninth straight game, blanking the Chicago White Sox 8-0, and the New York Yankees dropped a double-header, losing to the New York Mets 8-6 and to Baltimore 8-5. Boston also dropped a pair, bowing to Pittsburgh 8-5 and Detroit 6-3.

Elsewhere, it was Los Angeles 7, Montreal 2; Pittsburgh 8, Boston 5; Cincinnati 7, St. Louis 2; San Diego 7, Milwaukee 4; Minnesota 7, Toronto 6 in 12 innings; California 7, Cleveland 6; Seattle 9, Chicago Cubs 2; Philadelphia 7, Atlanta 2, and Kansas City 9, Houston 1.

Rangers 8, White Sox 0
Pete Incaviglia hit a two-run homer and four Texas pitchers combined on a four-hitter.

Mets 8, Yankees (ss) 6

Two fielding errors by third baseman Jamie Quirk keyed a six-run seventh inning against Jimmy Jones, which included Len Dykstra's two-run single and Darryl Strawberry's two-run triple.

Orioles 8, Yankees (ss) 5

Cal Ripken and Randy Milligan hit consecutive homers in Baltimore's four-run first inning and Phil Bradley added a two-run shot in the second as the Orioles pounded sore-kneed John Candelaria.

Pirates 8, Red Sox (ss) 5

Sid Bream had four consecutive singles and drove in two runs, including one in a five-run ninth inning.

Royals 9, Astros 1

Pat Tabler and Bob Boone drove in two runs each.

Lombardozi joins Astros; Kerfeld sent down

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) - Second baseman Steve Lombardozi, the Minnesota Twins' leading hitter in the 1987 World Series but a disgruntled substitute ever since, was traded to the Houston Astros for a player to be named later.

The Astros also sent 10 players to the minor leagues Tuesday, including pitcher Charley Kerfeld.

"Anytime somebody's part of team that wins the World Series for you, you're grateful for their contribution," said Twins' General Manager Andy MacPhail. "The parting was amiable and we wish him well in Houston."

MacPhail said the Astros agreed on "the parameters of the type of player" the Twins will obtain. Astros General Manager Bill Wood said Lombardozi will back up starting second baseman Bill Doran, who is recovering from knee surgery.

"We felt it was important to have someone to cover us there," Wood said. "Our plan was to take a look at what we had in camp. We just felt more comfortable with what Lombardozi can do."

Lombardozi, 27, hit .209 in 103 games for the Twins last season and drove in 27 runs. He hit .412 average in the 1987 World Series, well above his .233 career average in three seasons with the Twins.

His disenchantment began shortly after the championship season, when the Twins obtained second baseman Tommy Herr from the St. Louis Cardinals and Lombardozi moved to a backup role.

Kerfeld, an ace reliever for the 1986 division champion Astros, will be sent to Class AAA Tucson to work on his mechanics, Wood said.

"We were happy with his arm speed and velocity," Wood said. "He has a habit of when he throws good to a couple of guys he relaxes and his mechanics go crazy."

Kerfeld underwent shoulder and ankle surgery in the off season.

Kerfeld pitched six and two-thirds innings in four spring appearances. He struck out three, walked five and gave up seven earned runs for a 9.45 earned run average.

"My last outing was the worst I've ever pitched in baseball," Kerfeld said. "My mechanics are all messed up."

The Astros optioned the contracts of pitchers Fred Costello and Sam August, catcher Tony Eusebio and outfielders Karl Rhodes and Eric Anthony to the club's Class AA Columbus team.

Sent outright to Tucson with Kerfeld were pitchers Brian Meyer, Jeff Heathcock, Rocky Childress and Mark Portugal.

Clancy could be strong Houston staff addition

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) - Jim Clancy isn't worried about the speed of his fast ball or the end of his 12-year association with the Toronto Blue Jays.

Until he signed with Houston last December, Clancy was the only player who had been a part of each of Toronto's first 12 seasons.

But when free agency came, Clancy jumped at the Astros' three-year, $3.4 million offer.

"It was up to me, the Astros gave me a three-year deal so I decided to make the move," Clancy said.

The timing of Clancy's arrival made it appear that he was replacing Nolan Ryan, who left the Astros after nine season to play for the Texas Rangers.

Clancy can't match Ryan for strikeouts, but he has pitched more innings than Ryan over the past three years and he's been effective in his own way.

While Ryan has relied on speed to become the all-time strikeout leader, Clancy depends on mixing speeds for success.

"The speed of my fast ball doesn't really mean anything to me," Clancy said. "For me, it's just a matter of mixing the speed of my pitches."

Clancy's slider has been effective in his first spring with the Astros and he's also toying with a split finger fast ball.

"The slider is probably my best pitch right now," he said. "If I'm able to spot my fast ball, then the slider complements the fast ball."

Clancy hasn't used the split finger in a game.

"I'm just trying to get control of it on the side," he said. "I haven't tried to use it in a game yet."

Manager Art Howe is pleased with Clancy's addition to the staff.

Clancy has pitched 657 innings the past three seasons compared to a 607 for Ryan. Clancy has 424 strikeouts the past three years compared to 692 for Ryan.

Moon, Oilers may reach agreement soon

HOUSTON - Houston Oilers general manager Mike Holovak and the agent representing Warren Moon said after a two-hour meeting that an agreement to resign the Pro Bowl quarterback could be reached this week.

Moon's five-year, $5.5 million contract expired Feb. 1.

Attorney Leigh Steinberg, who represents Moon, said the 31-year-old quarterback has generated interest among other NFL teams, but wants to stay with the Oilers.

"The change in management allowed us to reevaluate the free-agent route," Steinberg said after a Monday meeting with Holovak, who was named general manager after Ladd Herzog resigned Feb. 1.

The meeting took place during a break in the National Football League owners meeting in Palm Desert, Calif.

"But given my past relationship with Mike Holovak - upbeat and positive - we've altered that plan. Warren wants to stay in Houston. He's very excited about the prospects of the Oilers for the future."

A veteran free agent such as Moon usually can look forward to limited movement because of the NFL's hefty compensation rule.

But, Steinberg said, "if ever there was a player deserving of two first-round picks it would be a Pro Bowl-starting quarterback."

Holovak termed Monday's meeting with Steinberg as "very positive," adding that any agreement reached this week "would be quite an accomplishment."

Steinberg would not disclose details of his proposal except to say, "It's a long-term contract. Warren wants to finish his career with the Houston Oilers."

Moon's contract now ranks ninth-best among NFL quarterbacks. Denver's John Elway leads the pack with a deal worth $2.1 million per year. Buffalo's Jim Kelly and Miami's Dan Marino rank second and third at $1.6 million and $1.5 million, respectively.

Both Kelly and Marino have "escalator clauses" in their contracts and must always be kept among the third highest-paid QBs in the league. Joe Montana of the Super Bowl champion 49ers will earn $2.55 million in 1990.

"So, what we're looking at for Warren is how he will be compensated both next season and several seasons to come," Steinberg said.

Moon is one of only four NFL quarterbacks to take his team to the playoffs each of the last two years. The others are Montana, Wade Wilson of the Vikings and Mike Tomczak of the Bears.

St. Mary's celebrates NAIA championship

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Holding a trophy and a red banner declaring them the NAIA National Champions, the St. Mary's Rattlers returned home with the title they said they wanted as much for their coach as for themselves.

The Rattlers defeated East Central Oklahoma 61-58 Monday to claim the national championship and on Tuesday were greeted by more than 300 cheering students and alumni at a blue-and-gold-decorated terminal at San Antonio International Airport.

Coach Buddy Meyer, a St. Mary's alumnae who had played in the national tournament in 1964, and who has taken the Rattlers to the tournament six times in his 11 years as head coach, held back tears while talking to fans Tuesday.

"This was an emotional high for me," Meyer said, holding back tears. "It's sinking in. It's a tremendous accomplishment for these kids."

"I was really proud for these kids. They have done a tremendous job all week and they carried themselves so well," Meyer said to shouts of "Buddy, Buddy, Buddy."

The Rattlers had traveled to the national tournament 10 times in the past 25 years, twice reaching the semifinals before being defeated.

Team members said they played their heart out for Meyer, who desperately wanted to bring home a title.

"He was real emotional and we wanted to win it for him, as well as for ourselves," said Zachary Lawson, who was holding the trophy Tuesday.

"We never thought about losing. He told us before we played the game, 'Don't be afraid of winning.' So we never thought about losing," he said.

On Tuesday, as the Rattlers emerged from the plane, they were greeted by the song, "We Are the Champions," blaring from a cassette player, while a jazz band played "When the Saints Come Marching

In."

One team member held up the trophy while the rest of the team held up a red banner that read "NAIA Champions."

The celebration after the victory began shortly after Monday night's game and continued throughout the night at Fatso's, a barbecue restaurant near the St. Mary's campus.

Students and alumni began arriving at the airport shortly before noon Tuesday to greet the team, whose flight plans changed and who were delayed more than two hours.

"This is great," said St. Mary's freshman Ed Arimendez, 19, of San Antonio, as he waited for the team.

"I think the national publicity will help increase the enrollment and the public image of the school," he said.

While the St. Mary's fans were celebrating Monday night, the team was taking it easy in Kansas City, sitting around their hotel lounge, enjoying their victory.

Anthony Houston, a Milwaukee, Wis., native who was named to the NAIA first-team All America, said the team was elated about the title.

"I don't know if this will put more pressure on the guys next year, but they know what it's all about," said Houston, who led the team in scoring for the year with 18.4 points per game.

Meyer said the team's inexperience showed early in the season, but that he believed the team would peak in late January or early February. There were only four seniors on the championship team, so the majority of the team will return next year.

"It's going to be a nice feeling for all of them. Next year, we'll start all over," Meyer said. "We're just going to enjoy this for a while and we'll work out the back-to-back (titles) later," he said.

Garden, yard care topic of program

Marcella McLain of McLain's Garden Center presented a program on year-round care for the yard and garden when members of Toujours Amis Study Club met recently in the home of Judy Barrett.

During the brief business meeting, members voted to increase the ceiling number for membership and the project committee discussed several areas to be considered for donations.

Hostesses, Barrett, Brenda Koenig and Marsha Winget, served refreshments from the garden: fresh vegetables, dip, cucumber sandwiches and ice cream potted plants.

Those present included Nanette Ashley, Kim Bigham, Cindy Black, Kathy Carthel, Debbie Donaldson, Shannon Hagar, Lori Hall, Ange Lauderback, Sarah Lawson, Leisa Lewis, Elaine McNutt, Donna Tidmore, Nena Veazey and Becky Reinart.

The next regular meeting of the club was held in the home of Ange Lauderback following a tour of the Hereford Tortilla Factory.

Hostesses, Lauderback, Lori Hall and Karen Keeling, served appetizers, Mexican soup and ice cream pie.

New members, Melinda Bridge, Kim Buckley, Cheryl Davison, Shelley Moss and Kyla McDowell, were welcomed into the club.

New books were distributed and by-laws were reviewed. Also, donations were discussed with the project committee to make the final decision. Thank yous were extended and diapers and congratulations were given to Kim and Steve Bigham on the arrival of their new baby, Brooke.

Members present were Nanette Ashley, Judy Barrett, Patti Brown, Cindy Black, Debbie Donaldson, Shannon Hagar, Brenda Koenig, Sarah Lawson, Marilyn Leasure, Leisa Lewis, Donna Tidmore, Becky Reinart, Marsha Winget, Tricia Brown and Tonja Horrell.

Accent on Health

Decorating tips this spring include brighter and more vivid colors than ever. Red, black, classic white and slate blue are some of the more trendy accents in kitchen decor.

However, even though consumer research experts agree that colors are important, they find time and again that a common-sense approach is most successful in using color.

Hefty Designs took this approach when creating its new wastebasket line. The Hefty Designs team interviewed color experts to confirm the trendy and the traditional, and asked more than 2,000 consumers what problems they had with their waste containers.

Here are a few of the features that Hefty Designs—as a result—incorporated into its new product line:

- Lids in bright, trendy colors—red, yellow, mauve, federal blue and black;
- Lids in traditional colors—slate blue, chocolate, yellow, white and beige;
- Baskets in three harmonious base colors—slate blue, white and beige;

The Moon is one million times drier than the Gobi Desert, and the only floods on the planet have been ones of molten hot lava.

-Lids that stay open for easier use, then close when the user decides to close them;

-A ring that locks the trash bag to the rim of the can, so even heavy trash won't pull the bag into the can; it also prevents ugly bag overhang;

-A bag-storage shelf on the can that keeps packages of trash bags handy. Each wastebasket is made of durable plastic for easy cleaning, and every can has a glossy finish to keep the kitchen looking neat and clean.

Each model carries a full, five-year warranty against breaking during normal household use.

The Hefty Designs line consists of five models: Two Step 'N' Stay models—a tall and medium size—have an extra-wide foot pedal. The Tall Swing 'N' Stay model has a lid that swings away from the trash. The Tall Lift 'N' Stay has an easily operated lift lid, and the smaller Open Basket model is perfect for tight spaces.

Each wastebasket in the Hefty Designs line was designed to accommodate standard trash bags sold in stores. The tall wastebasket models fit perfectly with tall 13-gal bags, and the medium Hefty Designs models fit 8-gal. medium bags.

Discussing upcoming event

Career Decisions, a program sponsored by the Yima Wa Shiko Horizon Camp Fire Group, is slated at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Camp Fire Lodge. The public is invited to attend the event which will feature several speakers including Dr. Mary Birdsong, second from left. Planning the evening's agenda are Horizon members (from left) Melissa Davis, Gloria Perez and Brandy Messer.

Book reviewed for organization

St. Patrick's decorations and foods set the scene for the recent monthly meeting of St. Anthony's Women's Organization. Mass was first celebrated in St. Anthony's Catholic Church.

The program for the evening was a book review given by Margaret Diller, owner of Diller-Dollar Book Store. She reviewed "City of Joy".

The business meeting was conducted by President Reta Reinart. Ann Lueb on the family affairs committee reported that she would like a replacement to organize St. Anthony's Day and Janie Banner with the community committee reported that three new people have been added to the staff at the Problem Pregnancy Center.

Members of the ways and means committee reported that a bean supper will be held Friday evening with proceeds to be used for the Antonian Room.

Ann Meyer gave a progress report on the work underway on the Antonian Room and requested that additional volunteers are needed.

Michelle Brisendine was welcomed as a new member and it was announced that Linda Dominguez will be running for vice president during the DCCW meeting to be held April 6 at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umbarger.

Refreshments were served by hostesses: Olga Harris, Laurie Paetzold, Jane Matthews, Gwen Betzen and Betty Connally.

Linda Dominguez won the door prize.

Before the conclusion of the meeting, an additional program was given by Romilda Friemel on the RESPITE program. RESPITE is rest/spiritual/temporal and was formed to provide spiritual and temporal breaks to people caring for invalids. A film was shown and literature distributed to those present.

The oldest man to win an Olympic boxing gold medal was Richard K. Gunn of England who won the featherweight title in 1908 at the age of 38.

Nutrition subject of Bay View Club program

Bay View Study Club members met in the parish hall of St. Thomas Episcopal Church March 16 with Betty Rudder serving as hostess.

The hall was decorated with Easter baskets, and the serving table was centered with pink, white and orchid hyacinths in a basket, bronze rabbits and ceramic Easter appointments on a white linen appliqued table cloth.

Thirteen members and four guests listened to an informative program given by former Hereford resident, Cynthia Leasure Allison, on the subject of "Vitamin B and MeDIt."

Oudia Halbert opened the meeting by asking members to read the club collect. Members were reminded of the club's Guest Day set April 6 in the home of Elizabeth Witherspoon. Helen Langley asked members to report to Halbert by April 3 the number of guests they expect to bring.

Allison is a graduate of Hereford High School where she was active in student organizations including serving as editor of the yearbook. She graduated from Texas Tech University with a bachelor of science degree in home economics.

The speaker married Jim Allison, also formerly of Hereford, and they reside in Amarillo where he is engaged in banking and is now executive director of the Amarillo Area Foundation. The couple has two children, Amy who is a high school sophomore, and Ashton who is in the fourth grade. They attend First Baptist Church.

Cynthia Allison is active in the Amarillo Junior League and is a member of its board of directors. She is a member of the Amarillo Symphony Board and was listed in the directory of Outstanding Young Women in America in 1983. She has served as president of the Amarillo Bankers Wives and is active in the High Plains Food Bank, the Amarillo Art Alliance and P.T.A.

While attending Tech, Allison became interested in the subject of nutrition. She studied under Dr. Mina Lamb who gave her the inspiration to pursue that subject in raising her family and as an avocation.

In beginning her talk, Allison expressed her appreciation for having grown-up in Hereford, the opportunities she had in her formative years and the rich heritage given to her by the Hereford people who had an important influence on the direction she has pursued in her adult life.

The speaker reminded the group that Adele Davis was the earliest modern-day nutritionist and recommended her book, "Let's Eat Right To Keep Fit", published in 1970. The subject of nutrition was not popular in those days, but today everyone is hearing about and is concerned in some way about nutrition.

The speaker explained, "the rewards of good nutrition are that we are able to maintain good posture, eyes that are clear, hair is healthy and you feel good all day. Your body metabolizes good food better than bad food. We need food to run our bodies more efficiently. We are able to think better and it is the best weapon against senility and disease."

Allison gave a brief history about why nutritionist discovered that whole grains are so important. "The whole wheat kernel contains the essential nutrients such as Vitamin B,E, protein and other minerals and it is the best source of fiber. During the days when our country was moving westward, the people discovered that wheat made into white flour kept longer than whole wheat so that is why it became popular. Then they discovered that our bodies need the nutrients that are manufactured out of the grains."

After giving much more specific information, with hand-outs and tests as well as recipes, the speaker concluded her presentation with ten tips:

- Learn to read labels.
- Eat whole grains.
- Eat more fruits and vegetables.
- Reduce sugar and salt in your diet.
- Eat leaner meat.
- Reduce or eliminate caffeine.
- Exercise.
- Don't forget to include fiber in your diet.
- Drink eight glasses of water a day.
- Go slowly. Don't get discouraged. Your tongue will develop a taste for better nutrition.

Following the program, Betty Rudder invited the group to go on a mini Easter egg hunt on the patio after which she served refreshments of strawberry soup and oatmeal cookies.

Welcomed as guests were Ruth Ann Cansler of Austin, Julia McNancy, Louise Leasure and Margaret Young.

Members present included Virginia Garner, Pat Fisher, Elizabeth Holt, Virginia Bayne, Kathryn Ruga, Helen Eades, Nancy Hays, Ruth Allison, Ruth McBride, Ruth Kerr, Rudder, Halbert and Langley.

Tom Draper speaks to local DAR chapter

Los Ciboleros Chapter, NSDAR, was called to order March 16 by Regent Violet Reinauer at the home of Mrs. Stanford Knox, 341 Stadium Drive. Serving as co-hostesses were Ruth Fish and Pat Faulkner.

Regent Violet Reinauer led the opening ritual assisted by Nell Norvell, chaplain pro tem. Pat Robinson led the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag and Reinauer led the singing of the National Anthem. The American's Creed was recited in unison led by Mildred Drake and Robinson led the group in the Preamble to the Constitution.

Kathryn Ruga read the President General's message.

Ruth Newsom reviewed the article "Arm's Control-Games Soviets Play" in March 1989 Reader's Digest for the National Defense report.

Ruth Knox introduced guest speaker, Tom Draper, who spoke on the first Secretary of Agriculture. He took the basis of his speech from the book of Genesis, the recount of Jacob and Joseph and Joseph's role as overseer for the seven years of plenty and seven years of famine in ancient Egypt. Draper recounted this account of conservation with wit and humor.

During the business session, minutes of the February meeting were read and approved.

Members present included Ruth Knox, Mary Williamson, Ruth Fish, Patricia Robinson, Ruth Newsom, Mildred Drake, Juanita Brown, Kathryn Ruga, Nell Norvell, Mildred Sheffy, Pat Faulkner, Violet Reinauer, Charlotte Clark, Argen Draper and guest, Tom Draper.

The next regular meeting is set for 3:30 p.m. April 13 in the home of Mrs. Authur Clark. Dr. and Mrs. A.T. Mims will present the program, "Our Visit To Australia."
