Emory Brownlow, the new policy provides that the "Hereford High School senior prom shall have the privilege of any date.'

Nolen was directed to begin preparation of a grant request to the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife for the swimming pool. Informally, the consensus of the commissioners was that the pool should be replaced rather than repaired.

The grant request will be channeled through the Panhandle center Regional Planning Commission. TDP&W will provide up to half the expense, if the request is approved.

Nolen said an engineer's examination of the pool shows the city would have to spend $249,760 to repair the pool. The repairs would extend the pool's life by 5 to 10 years.

Anti-discrimination questions raised about mortgage lending

And the disparate pattern held up even when applicants were grouped to pay back a loan.' by income level. The rejection rate for high-income blacks, 21.4 percent, was only slightly less than the rate for low-income whites, 23.1 percent.

Other factors holding down lending to low-income people include a shortage of appraisers experienced in poor neighborhoods, the reluctance of government-sponsored mortgage companies to purchase loans of $50,000 or less, and lending standards imposed by title insurance companies and private mortgage insurers.

"I find it very troubling that we are seeing this kind of data despite the fact that we have had federal laws prohibiting mortgage discrimination on the books for many years," said Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee.

Federal Reserve Governor John LaWare, a former banker, cautioned reporters at a news conference not to conclude from Monday's figures that banks were discriminating against minorities.

Speaker anxious to have jury trial

AUSTIN (AP) - Indicted House Speaker Gib Lewis says he is anxious for a jury to hear his misdemeanor

"We want to go to court," Lewis said. "We are trying to get in the courtroom as soon as we can."

Lewis was indicted last December on two charges: that he accepted a gift from a powerful San Antonio law firm and did not report it on his public finance disclosure statements.

The indictments are the only charges from a Travis County grand jury investigation into ties between legislators and special-interest lobbyists at the Capitol. Lewis had asked that his case be moved from state District Judge Bob Perkins' court to a county court-at-law. Perkins denied that motion Monday and scheduled a pre-trial hearing for Nov. 13.

Lewis' lawyer, Tim Evans, appealed Perkins' ruling to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Because a trial date apparently can't be set immediately, Evans said the higher court should have time to consider the appeal without delaying

'We're looking forward to a jury examining this case. We don't want any more delays," said Evans, who took over the case earlier this month after Lewis was jailed for 3(hours after missing an Oct. 1 hearing.

Evans said the legal question was whether a district court should be considering a misdemeanor charge. But he said it made little difference

"There's going to be a jury in there, and (whether it is) a jury in one room or a jury in the other room, we're anxious for them to hear this case," he said.

Lewis, who has pleaded innocent, said he didn't consider the accusations weighty enough for district

"We're talking about a traffic ticket, a failure to pay a traffic ticket, something on that level," he said. "This thing has been blown out to where it's almost like I was in Killeen the other day" when a gunman killed 23 people.

The judge indicated that only a few weeks are available before January for jury trials and other cases are scheduled on those dates.

The deadline for filing for the 1992 elections is Jan. 2. But the five-term House speaker said a January trial date would have no bearing on whether he will seek re-election.

"I'll be making that decision in just time," Lewis said. "If it's a November trial, that makes it even better for me. If it's January, that's OK also.'

Once a year, the company provides a three-day weekend of fun at a nearby lake resort for their supervisors, salespeople and customer service employees. The employees, both men and women, are not allowed to bring their spouses, even though some have offered to pay their expenses. Approximately 30 people attend this annual outing. The weekend consists of hiking, picnicking in the woods, pontooning and speed-boating during the day and drinking, dancing and partying on the dock until 3 a.m.

Borger beats Hereford for tennis title

Borger claimed the 1991 District doubles matches. 1-4A team tennis title with a 12-6 win over Hereford Saturday at Whiteface Courts. The win gave the Bulldogs a perfect 5-0 district record, while Hereford finished second at 4-1.

Both Hereford and Borger go on to the regional tournament to be played Thursday and Friday at the Lubbock Tennis Center. The Whitefaces will play at 8 a.m. Thursday, King said, but they won't know their opponent until Wednes-

Hereford coach Kim King said the surprise of the team match was that Hereford won only one of the six LeGate over Debbie Denny 3-6, 7-6

"In my worst nightmares, I didn't think it'd be 5-1," King said. Also, there were several close matches that Borger came away with. 'It seemed like we couldn't win a close match," she said.

Hereford got only one win from the boys--Jamie Kapka beat Stephen Moore 6-0, 6-3-- and got the rest from the girls. They were, in singles, Emily Fuston over Lyndee McNeese 2-6, 6-, 6-1; Sherry Fuston over Hailee Holt 6-0, 6-1; Michelle Berend over Kim Robbins 6-2, 6-1; and Jennifer got a win from Berend and Legate, who beat Holt and Debbie Denny 6-4,

Three of the closest matches of the team match ended in losses by Hereford boys. In the boys' singles No.1 match, Hereford's Torey Sellers fell to Barry Thrutchley 7-6 (10-8), 6-4. Also, Borger's Scott Barnes beat Chris Lyles 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, and Borger's Chris Whittington defeated Mario Martinez 3-6, 7-6 (7-1), 6-4.

Other Hereford losses were: (boys' singles) Nathan White def. Donnie Perales 7-5, 6-1; Shea Martin def.

(7-4) 6-1. In girls' doubles, Hereford Jarrit Edwards 6-1, 7-5; (boys' doubles) Thrutchley/Moore def. Kapka/Sellers 6-3, 6-0; Barnes/Martin def. Lyles/Perales-6-4, 1-6, 6-3; White/Whittington def. Edwards/ Martinez 6-4, 6-0; (girls' singles) Dannett Jordan def. Bri Reinauer 6-0, 6-0; Dawna Denny def. Robyn Sublett 6-3, 6-0; (girls' doubles) McNeese/Jordan def. Fuston/Fuston 7-5, 6-1; and Fraley/Denny def. Reinauer/Sublett 6-4, 6-4.

> One match was played which did not count toward the team scoring. Hereford's Brooke Weishaar beat Luisa Trirogoff 6-2, 6-2.

Hereford's ninth grade and junior high volleyball teams went to Dumas Monday, and only two came away with wins.

Both seventh grade teams were winners, keeping their undefeated records. The Maroon team won 15-11, 4-15, 16-14, getting five service points from Joni Beltran and four 15-13, 15-12. from Cassie Abney. The White team won 11-15, 15-10, 16-14, getting 14 points from Rachel Bezner, 11 from April Ford and eight from J.J. Hill.

Both teams played "superbly," said coach Jane Radford. "After a slow start, both teams came from behind. Teamwork and aggressiveness is what won the matches for them.'

The eighth grade teams weren't so lucky, with the White team falling 15-7, 15-6 and the Maroon team losing

"Our service receive was very poor, and we were slow to move to the ball," Radford said of both teams. "At the net, our attacks were not as aggressive as usual and our hesitation killed us."

Radford singled out Heather Hodges of the Maroon team. "Heather Hodges was our most consistent player, from the service line, on service receive and at the net. She did an outstanding job last night."

Hodges had nine service points, and Brittney Binder added eight. No girl had more than two points for the Both ninth grade teams fell to their Dumas counterparts. The "A" team lost 14-15, 15-4, 15-9, while the "B" team lost 15-8, 10-15, 15-7.

We played really well, especially in the first game. They hustled and worked hard," coach Brett Steagall said of the "A" team. "Dumas had a big home team advantage and that started to show in the later games."

The ninth grade teams also played Saturday, hosting Tascosa. They split, with Hereford's "B" team winning 15-1, 15-4 and the "A" team falling 15-11, 15-12.

Of the victorious Bs, Steagall said: We dominated with our serving game. Our serving game was really strong.

Of the As: "We didn't really play as well as we could have. Tascosa had a lot of tall hitters and they took advantage of our weaknesses. We didn't play our best game at all."

Golfers 2nd to Borger

The Hereford High School girls' golf team finished 14 strokes behind Borger, the team they were paired with at Pitman Municipal Golf Course Saturday.

The Hereford girls totaled 367 to Borger's 353. Paula Britten led Hereford with an 86, followed by Dusty Saul with 88, Cecelia Albracht with 95, Jennifer Prater with 98 and Brook Weatherly with 100.

Two Hereford girls played as singles: Kelly Kelso shot a 96 and Stephanie Walls had a 97.

Our girls hit the ball pretty well from tee to green but didn't putt the ball that well," coach Stacey Bixler said. He added that the air was around 30 degrees at the start of play.

The Borger team was led by Rebecca Holcomb, who shot a 84, followed by Leslie Reed with 86, Kelly Chester with 90, Kisaundra Nesbitt with 93 and Erica Brown 105.

Six other teams played in dual matches at Pitman, with Amarillo High beating Pampa 349-369; Plainview over Tascosa 382-465; and Caprock over Palo Duro 501-535. Hereford's boys played a dual match in Pampa Saturday, finishing six strokes behind Plainview 343-349. Mikel Walser led Hereford by shooting an 85. He was followed by Cory Newton at 86, Clay Cantrell at 87, and Jayson Mines and Santry Hacker each with a 91.

Bixler said the boys had a little problem with the tight boundaries on Country Club.

Leading the personal best parade was Ricka Williams, whose time of 12:33 was good for 16th. Two other varsity runners had their personal bests: Andrea Chapa, 22nd in 13:15, and Rita Soto, 28th in 13:29. The other girls who ran varsity were Belinda Murillo, 42nd in 14:19, and Nora Herrera 45th in 14:28.

Hereford coach Martha Emerson said the many personal bests were not because the Spearman course is shorter or easier.

Their times are comparable to the Lubbock Course, and that's an Olympic qualifying course. It's the exact distance," she said.

The junior varsity girls finished third with 80 points behind only Perryton with 67 and Amarillo High with 73.

Of the five JV runners, four recorded personal bests Saturday: Gina Haschke, 13:35, sixth; Karon Harder, 13:42, ninth; Linda Martinez, 14:01, 16th; and Isabel Chapa, 14:37, 29th. The other JV runner was Laura Rangel, who finished 55th in 15:36. Two junior high girls ran in the JV race: Bethany Townsend finished 20th in 14:19, and Cady Aukerman

For the boys, three ran in the varsity race and three ran in JV. In the varsity race, Jack Borden was 15th in 17:01, Chris Hart was 31st in 18:04, and Chancy Bainum was 42nd in 19:09. In the JV race, Aurelio San in Amarillo.

Braves face tough climb out of 2-0 hole ATLANTA (AP) - World Series Pittsburgh against Toronto in the history suggests the Atlanta Braves are in trouble. Then again, this hasn't exactly been an average season.

The Minnesota Twins take a 2-0 World Series lead into Game 3 tonight as play shifts from the Metrodome to the Georgia skies of Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

"This team has been optimistic all year," Braves catcher Greg Olson said. "But the history is when teams are down 2-0, they don't win."

Olson is quite right. Teams taking a 2-0 lead have gone on to win 31 times in 41 attempts (76 percent), including the last four years.

But the Braves and Twins did a lot of things that weren't supposed to happen this year. Most notably, they became the first teams in the modern era to move from last place one season to first place the next.

Atlanta wasn't expected to catch Los Angeles after falling 9 1/2 games back, and most thought Oakland would overtake Minnesota sooner or later. And wasn't it supposed to be World Series?

'We feel very confident coming home with Steve Avery and John Smoltz pitching," Olson said. "We were down 3-2 to the Pirates and came back to win two games there."

The Twins just might feel a little strange. Minnesota's last 10 games, including the regular season, have been inside, at either the Metrodome or Toronto's SkyDome.

Minnesota won the first two games against Atlanta by using a combination of muscle, momentum and Homer Hankies. The Twins also got great starting pitching from Jack Morris and Kevin Tapani.

Meanwhile, the Braves had only two extra-base hits in the two games - both doubles - and wasted several scoring opportunities.

On Monday, the Twins worked out under the sun and got used to hitting and taking fly balls outside again.

They seemed to enjoy it, too.
"I heard the ball carries well in left center," Twins manager Tom Kelly said while hitting grounders.

Now I can't believe I have the same thing. Will I have to have my colon removed? DEAR READER: Ulcerative colitis has many faces and may be a lot more frequent than commonly recognized. It may be mild, as in your case, and literally go unrecognized. This form of ulcerative colitis may never present any serious problems and may be easily managed. I hope that will be true in your case. When only the lower part of the colon and rectum is involved, only 15 percent progress to more severe diseas

DEAR DR. LAMB: I had the shock

years I have had frequent bowel movements - five or six a day - and they were soft. I really didn't think much of it as I was not in any discom-

The reason it was such a shock is,

I knew a person who had this dreadful disease and he had episodes of bleeding and was very ill. Eventually he had to have his colon removed.

Much more of the colon may be involved with what is called moderately severe ulcerative colitis. These individuals may have recurrent attacks of bloody stools, cramping abdominal pain, with fatigue and weight loss. This form requires much more aggressive treatment and may require the use of steroids to cause the attack to go into remission. Often there are other complications, including arthritis. Eventually many of these individuals do require surgery to remove the colon. One reason is the high incidence of colon cancer in such cases.

There is also a severe fulminating form of ulcerative colitis with sudden onset, profuse diarrhea and rectal bleeding, usually with a significant fever. The severe illness may be lifethreatening.

You will want to know more about ulcerative colitis, its complications and management so read my new Special Report 122, Is it Ulcerative Colitis or Crohn's Disease? which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send $3 with a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/38-08, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077.

You probably should avoid milk and all milk products because many patients with either ulcerative colitis or Crohn's disease also have lactose intolerance.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Nedra Robinson introduced the quest speaker, Gwen Kenmore, from Amarillo where she is the Director of Public Information for the Rape Crisis Domestic Violence Center.

Kenmore stated the agency was created in 1975 for the purpose of giving aid and lending support to victims of domestic violence. The agency acts as a liaison between the victim and other agencies.

Also, the center furnishes accompaniment of the victim, food, clothing and shelter for the victim and small children for a limited time when needed.

There is no charge for these services and therefore, the agency depends heavily on volunteers and donations, as the number of victims increase each year.

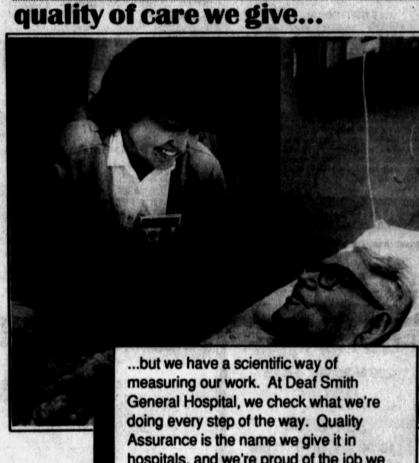

Other business included approving of the minutes and treasurer's report.

Eleven members and one guest were present at the meeting.

Second in a series

Roden shaped many laws

EDITOR'S NOTE--Pinkie Roden's legacy can be seen in more than just the liquor stores of his far-flung empire in West Texas. Roden helped form the laws that govern alcohol in Texas. He was active in many affairs, some civic-minded and some a little shady at best. This is the second in a series on the life and times of Pinkie Roden.

By MIKE COCHRAN Associated Press Writer

A princely renegade, Pinkie had the soul if not the style of a Robin Hood. He did in fact share the fruits of his often ill-gotten wealth and much of what he did was cemented in myth.

"People would tell all kinds of stories about him and he would never confirm or deny them," says brother Ted Roden, an Odessa beer distributor. "If he said no, they'd think he was lying. If he said yes, they'd think he was bragging."

Mobster Mickey Cohen once took a purported interest in West Texas and flew into the Odessa-Midland airport, where he was met by Pinkie and a welcoming party of Texas Rangers.

According to the story, Cohen climbed back on the plane, flew off and never returned.

For Pinkie, life was a game. Like politics, he played it to the hilt, but by his own unique rules.
When a golf hustler beat one of his

Lubbock bootleggers out of several thousand dollars, Pinkie paid a visit to brother Bill, then a scratch golfer. "Get your golf clubs, Skeet's in trouble," Pinkie said. He bankrolled a game in which Bill strung along the hustler for a couple of rounds. When the bet reached the proper level, Pinkie told Bill to bear down. "I shot four or five under par and beat the guy and got Skeet's money back," Bill grinned. "Pinkie and I didn't make a dime." Ted got a speeding ticket once and told Pinkie, "I know you gave old so-and-so some whiskey. I'm going et this lixed. Don't do it, Pinkie told him. "Never ask your friends for anything," he explained. "If they want to do it, they'll do it." No one ever accused Pinkie of offering a bribe, but as his business and his reputation grew, so did his

On occasion, he lebbied state liquor officials to replace troublesome agents with more compliant colleagues. But he probably used less subtle methods of persuasion, too. In at least one instance, Pinkie was suspected of sending an aide to fire a warning shot through the window of an uncommonly aggressive investigator. No one was hurt, but the bullet narrowly missed the agent's wife and the infant child she was holding.

A devout Democrat, Pinkie worked tirelessly behind the scenes to elect political cronies or oust political enemies, and associates claim the latter seldom knew he or she was on his hit list.

Pinkie's political credo was simple and sensible: Never ever put a politician on the spot. If something goes wrong, take the blame. If it goes well, surrender the credit.

Pinkie's political expenditures were not so clear cut.

"You'd hear stories about some outlandish political contributions," Ted said. "He'd just grin but never deny it. He probably got credit for some things he didn't do."

The brothers Roden maintained that Waggoner Carr, a Texas House speaker and attorney general, waged a vendetta against Pinkie, who just shrugged it off.

"Aw, he's all right," Pinkie insisted. "That's just politics."

At Pinkie's suggestion, a friend sent Carr a $500 check for his attorney general race. But the friend included this note:

your ways. If you have, you can cash it. If not, send it back."

It would be difficult to fault Pinkie's choice of political cronies, since one, Bob Bullock, is arguably the most powerful person now in state government. And another, state Sen. John Montford, is headed that way.

Bullock was the state comptroll until his election as lieut governor, a job that rivals the Texas governor in influence. He liked to say he opened every campaign in Odessa with his friend Pinkie at his side.

Shortly before his death, Pinkie contacted Bullock on behalf of a friend, a bright, locally popular, black ex-convict named Willie Hammond. Willie needed a job.

"Bullock caught hell but he brought Willie to Austin," said Gene Garrison.

Another of Pinkie's Austin contacts was Montford, a widely respected Democrat from Lubbock. Montford knew Pinkie favored parimutuel horse race betting, but the legislator also knew supporting it could be political suicide.

"The Avalanche-Journal would crucify me," Montford reportedly told Pinkie, referring to his hometown newspaper. "What can I do? They'll eat me alive in Lubbock.'

The two hit on a grand idea: an amendment to the bill setting aside a percentage of the revenues for water construction projects in West Texas.

"That was a typical Pinkie solution," Bill Roden said. And the next day Montford was a hero. Montford delights in recounting his first meeting with Pinkie, who was supporting an opponent in Montford's first primary campaign.

"This old redfaced man in a fuchsia shirt, green slacks and two-tone shoes is waiting at the airport," Montford said. "He picks me up in a beat-up Ford that looked like it had been stolen and shipped back and forth across the border three or four times. And it missed about every third cylinder."

As they lurched along an Odessa thoroughfare, Montford spoke.

"Do you work for Mr. Roden?" "That's me," Pinkie replied.

Although difficult to pinpoint exactly why and when, Pinkie's lifestyle took a dramatic change in the late Fifties and Sixties. That's when, among other things, he married and divorced his first wife Jackie.

And for some reason, he apparently decided it might be more fun to make, change or solidify Texas liquor laws than to break them. "Pinkie wrote an awful lot of liquor law in Texas," says his friend Gene Garrison. "I'm a buyer, not a seller, and I don't understand it all."

Package Stores Association and for three decades was a major force in the organization although, by choice, he never served as president.

In another pricing episode, at Post,

He and fellow liquor kingpins Sidney Siegel of Dallas and James Leggett Jr. of Fort Worth comprised the group's legislative committee and soon became known as "The Three Musketeers" of the industry.

Texas Beverage News, a trade once for a story on a legislative controversy involving the package store association and another retail group. The reporter asked the lobbyist for the opposition to assess his chances.

Whiskey, I told thy husband, nice of them.'

"Well, they priced our whiskey like they wanted it priced. Pinkie was cutthroat to do business with. Tough.

But I really did like him." publication, sent a reporter to Austin

"Well, I tell you," he replied.
'Sometimes when Mr. Roden and Mr. Sigel and Mr. Leggett are prowling the halls of the Capitol, it's just mighty hard to move a liquor bill."
Fred Niemann Sr. of Austin, the store owner's legal counsel, called the

"Pinkie told me you have changed trio "my three lawyers" because of their working knowledge of Texas liquor laws.

Austin associates said Pinkie spent as much or more time resisting challenges to old laws he liked as he did creating new ones he wanted, and he was unaccustomed to defeat.

"You just didn't cross him on liquor law," said Bill Cox of Abilene, a former employee.

Associates say Pinkie played a leading role in shaping package store legislation, including hours of operation, and a less visible but pivotal role in a Texas mixed drink law that could mean more business for him and fellow store owners. The liquor-by-the-drink legislation allowed local option elections, which in turn set the stage for wet-dry skirmishes across the state. Liquor-wise, Lubbock was, is and may always be peculiar, thanks in part to Pinkie.

Historically bone dry except for private clubs, Lubbock was probably the bootlegging capital of the world until the mid-Sixties. That's when a precinct on the southern tip of town approved the sale of beer and liquor for off-premises consumption.

Pinkie was probably the first liquor baron to open a store on the mile-long "Strip," so-named for its similarity to the neon glitter of Las Vegas.

Owners paid handsomely for the lucrative leases, and to protect their investments they vigorously resisted efforts to legalize liquor in Lubbock, either by the drink or the bottle.

Hotels, restaurants and others obviously wanted to sell mixed Eventually, insiders say, Pinkie realized that a compromise might be the best bet. He joined forces with liquor-by-the-drink advocates in exchange for preserving the off-premises sanctity of the Strip.

To this day, Lubbock's 185,000 residents can drink freely in clubs or restaurants but must drive to the Strip to buy liquor by the bottle or six-packs of beer.

And they sometimes pay the highest prices in Texas.

Off and on, Pinkie and other Strip owners were accused of conspiring to rig prices, and a federal grand jury did in fact indict several of them.

Eight defendants entered pleas of no contest to the criminal price-fixing charges and paid fines. Three persons received jail sentences, but Pinkie was not among them.

"It was pretty rough out there for awhile," says a longtime Lubbock resident. "Several stores burned down. They used to say, 'If you have a sale, you have a fire."

Bill Cox insists to this day that Pinkie got a bum rap.
"I don't believe Pinkie ever did

Pumpkins: inexpensive decorating tools

By BARBARA MAYER For AP Special Features

It's time to decorate for Halloween, so Beverly Simons is planning a trip with the kids to the you-pick-em pumpkin patch not far from her weekend house near Pawling, N.Y.

"Pumpkins are so cheap, and they make a great decoration," says Simons, a public relations director in

New York City. She and her husband, Gordon Conley, like to go all-out at Halloween for family and friends. When they give parties, costumes are optional but decorations are a must. Guests sometimes carve and carry home their own jack- o'-lantern.

At their last party - an indoor-outdoor affair for 35 with carving on the deck - a family of paper ghosts swayed in the breeze in the entryway, and pumpkins consorted with gourds, autumn leaves, Indian corn and bittersweet on tables and mantelpiece. Other times, they bundled corn shucks, 8 feet tall, in ribbons and ringed them with pots of chrysanthemums outdoors.

"It's not expensive and adds so much to a party when the guests see you've gone all out," Simons says.

Professional party planners, floral designers and interior decorators agree. By combining the bounty of autumn's harvests with candy corn and candles in traditional colors, they say, decorating for Halloween can be both quick and relatively inexpensive.

Beverly Church, a New Orleans party consultant and co-author of "The Joys of Entertaining" (Abbeville, 1987), says you should decorate to excess for the best effect. "The entrance sets the tone and, of course, decorate the table where you are serving."

in various sizes and shapes. You can also pile them in the fireplace - if you're not planning to use it.

Make a wreath with a base of moss and attach miniature pumpkins, fresh flowers and autumn leaves.

Bales of hay can be used for extra party seats. For added decor, tie the bales with big ribbons, plaid perhaps. To make cleanup easier, carry each bale indoors in a large plastic garbage bag. Once the bale is in place, roll the bag down and tuck it underneath. Before removing the bale, pull the bag up to cover.

If you're using placecards for dinner, Church suggests: Write names in silver on autumn leaves. Slit miniature pumpkins across the top and insert a leaf in each. Silver (and gold) marking pens are available at art supply stores.

For easy entertaining, Church combines the menu with the decor. She orders a 6-foot hero with sandwich fillings only in the four feet in the middle. She then uses each end of the bread for a floral arrangement. From the top of the loaf she scoops out enough bread to insert a small bouquet set in a plastic bowl and florist's foam.

New York decorator Sam Botero likes to take the familiar elements of Halloween and use them in a slightly different way. For example, cut a big jack o'lantern out of orange paper and use the cutout as a base for a table arrangement of gourds, candy corn and black and orange tapers.

Another idea for a tablescape: Arrange corn husks radiating in a circle from the center of the table. Fill small clear glass bowls with candy corn and intersperse them on the husks with orange and black votive candles and tiny gourds.

For a more sophisticated look, steer clear of the true black and "Soften them by using natural tones in an orange cast," says Renny Reynolds, a floral designer whose book, "The Art of The Party," will be published by Viking Penguin next year, "Hydrangeas and pyracantha, which has bright orange-red berries, can be cut from the yard. And peach-tone flowers such as roses go beautifully with these."

Even if you're a sophisticate, you don't have to forgo fantasy. Reynolds dresses old mannequin parts and arranges them on a table as if the rest of the figure were under it.

"There are wonderful inflatables around now," he says. "Dinosaurs and pterodactyls are available and more interesting than the obvious Mylar balloons. Look for them at a natural history museum or toy store."

"The phrase that identifies Halloween is 'trick or treat," says R. Scott Bromley, a New York architect who often decorates night clubs. "Make the decor so bizarre that people know you are tricking them, and it will be

For a table centerpiece, he suggests creating illusions such as an upside down fruit compote, using wax or wooden fruit, glue and skewers.

"Turn your pictures upside down," he says. "If you're serving dinner, use mismatched cutlery and plates."

In dance clubs, lighting and reflective surfaces are used to create mysterious spaces, and Bromley was a master of the big effect in his decoration of New York's Studio 54 in its prime. He says you can change the dimensions of a room by tacking up mosquito netting or creating a forest of "trees" from slim strips of Mylar that run ceiling to floor.
"Once," he recalls, "we filled a vestibule halfway up with plastic packing pellets and people had to walk through the pellets to get to the party."
