Dentist Urges Fight over Water Standards

Fluoride Beneficial, Commissioners Told

BY PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor
Hereford's drinking water is beneficial to teeth and bones and government insinuations to the contrary are "a tremendous joke," a dentist told the Hereford City Commission Monday night.
Dentist H.A. "Hap" Cavness urged commissioners to fight the federal Environmental Protection Agency in its effort to reduce the fluoride content in Hereford water.

EPA has ordered the City of Hereford to warn its citizens in the local newspaper and on the radio that the amount of fluoride in drinking water exceeds federal standards, which permit 1.8 milligrams of the mineral per litre. Hereford's water contains 2.4 milligrams of fluoride.
"I've talked to practically all the local physicians and dentists in town, and we've found that only a very small percentage of people will have fluorosis because of the water," Cavness said.
"I believe the American Medical Association and American Dental Association would be very violently opposed to this sort of thing. I believe I can get some help from some very fine people other than just local folks."

Cavness said studies dating back to 1932 have proved that Hereford residents have healthier teeth and gums than people living in most other cities. He said the studies attributed that fact to the amount of fluoride in the water.

"These standards are all a tremendous joke," Cavness told the commission.
"For one thing, these darling people have different standards. Certain parts of the country are allowed 1.2 parts per litre, certain parts are allowed 1.6 and we're allowed 1.8"
City Manager Dudley Bayne said it might cost the city millions of dollars to reduce the fluoride.

"Once you remove your fluoride, you have what is now classified as hazardous waste. You'd have to spend a million dollars to set up equipment to remove and dispose of the waste," Bayne said.
He stated that the city would apply for a three-year variance which would postpone the fluoride removal.
"What happens if we don't get the variance?" Commissioners Emory Brownlow asked.
"They'll make us comply," Bayne said.

Connally, Brown Praise Growers As Growers Lambast Summit

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Former Texas Gov. John Connally and the state's agriculture commissioner had some kind words for a group of angry farmers who had some unkind words for a national seminar under way at Texas A&M University.
Connally, during a Monday speech, said the American Agriculture Movement had legitimate complaints and that he was glad to see the organization represented at the National Farm Summit.
The summit is a joint venture of Texas A&M and the Agriculture Council of America. A group of about 500 experts in various fields are attempting to come up with answers to some of the major problems facing the American farmer.
Reagan Brown, Texas agriculture commissioner, said he felt more ranchers and farmers "should be involved in this type of meeting. The people who run the family farms should have more input in the sessions of this type."

This was the same thing members of the American Agriculture Movement were saying during a rally at an open-air pavilion on the A&M campus.
The farmers brought about 75 vehicles onto the campus, including numerous tractors which have become a symbol of protest for them and 25 trucks loaded with grain.
The wheat is being hauled to the Port of Houston from points in Wyoming and Colorado for direct sale to overseas markets, bypassing middlemen whom farmers say "are killing us economically."
Tommy Kersey of Unadilla, Ga., told the gathering of about 200 AAM members, "I am sick and damn tired of pointed-headed intellectuals telling us what to do. All of that talk up there (farm summit) is the same bunch of hogwash we have heard for years."

"This is our fight and if we sit on our butts we're going to lose," he said.
Almost lost in the controversy between summit participants and the farmers were reports developed by special task forces and presented to this first seminar of its type.
A group headed by Dr. Tim Jostling of Stanford University's Food Research Institute called for a freer international trade system with prices based on demand.
The Jostling report said, "Bilateral trade agreements such as the United States has with Russia and Japan run counter to free trade objectives."

Bergland Says Farmers' Debts Not Bad Compared to Assets

WASHINGTON (AP) - As many other public officials have done over the years, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland sometimes mentions only partial statistics in talking about farmers.
A condensed version of a Bergland speech issued Monday by the Agriculture Department's Office of Governmental and Public Affairs included a remark about farm debt and how it is continuing to go up.
But the gist of Bergland's statement was that farm debt is not so bad when it is compared with the huge dollar assets that farmers have built up in land and other investments.

The total debt of farmers will climb to around $135.9 billion on Jan. 1, Bergland said.
"While this is a $17 billion increase over last year, when debts are compared to farm assets, the ratio is only 1 percent higher than it was 10 years ago, and it is still less than half that of a small urban businessman," he said.
Bergland's remarks were for a meeting here of the Farm Credit Administration, an independent federal agency that oversees federal landbanks and other cooperative lending operations.
Not included in Bergland's prepared remarks, however, was the fact that by Jan. 1 the ratio of farm debt to assets will be the highest in 38 years, according to his department's own records.
Overall, prices of farm commodities are up 20 percent from a year ago, including a 50 percent boost in cattle prices and a 24 percent increase in hog prices, he said.

Partly as a result, the net incomes of farmers are expected to total around $26 billion this year, up about 30 percent from $20.1 billion in 1977.
Bergland's reference to farm debts and assets involves a formula or ratio used by the Agriculture Department to relate the two groups of indicators.
For example, the assets of farmers - including non-real estate property as well as real estate - at the beginning of 1979 are expected to total a record $774.3 billion, up about 9.3 percent from last Jan. 1.
Total farm debt, also a record at $135.9 billion - an increase of 14.3 percent from

Priscilla Davis Testifies In Murder-for-Hire Trial

HOUSTON (AP) - The nervous blonde wife of millionaire Cullen Davis returns today to answer defense questions about her role in an alleged conspiracy to frame her estranged husband.
It is a conspiracy, prosecutors contend, that exists only in the minds of attorneys defending Davis on murder-for-hire charges.
The Fort Worth industrialist, 45, is accused of masterminding a contract killing that backfired.
Houston lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes provided jurors a vague preview of defense strategy Monday and then summoned Priscilla Davis, 37, as his lead-off witness.
Haynes waded through a barrage of state objections in an attempt to link the bosomy witness to FBI informant David McCrory, karate expert Pat Burleson and others.
"We believe the evidence will show," Haynes said, "that Thomas Cullen Davis was a victim of conspiracy by and between David McCrory, Pat Burleson and others."

Haynes left no doubt that the "others" include Mrs. Davis and quite possibly her current boyfriend, Rich Sauer, a one-time Texas Christian University basketball

Decorating Mall's Trees

Clients at Hereford Satellite Work Training Center made and put on decorations for the two Christmas trees inside Sugarland Mall as a fund-raising project for their Mental Health-Mental Retardation workshop. The clients were paid by the mall association for the work. Also in the holiday spirit, the center's clients will be Christmas caroling on Dec. 13. Persons wanting the carolers to come by their homes should contact the center.

UW House Drive Lands $1,883

United Way volunteers raised $1,883 in their house-to-house drive Monday evening, bringing their total to $126,859 for this fall's campaign.
The total represents 63.5 percent of the United Way goal of $199,815, with two weeks remaining in the drive.
Slightly more than half of the city was covered by workers Monday night. The house-to-house drive will wind up sometime this week, according to UW officials.

"Again, we remind people that these are our local agencies and especially our youth programs that they are supporting when they give through United Way,"

UW president Paul Sims said.
United Way workers hope to conclude the business aspect of the fund drive by Friday, Dec. 15. Several businesses still have not been contacted, officials claim.
Big Brothers-Big Sisters executive director JoAn Dwyer is chairperson of the house-to-house campaign.

The Branding Iron Kids Are Reason for His United Way Involvement

BY PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor
Lynton Allred has supported and worked on the United Way campaign for years for the same reason he served on the Hereford school board-kids.
Allred this year has served as United Way campaign steering committee co-chairman.
"The agencies within a United Way make a community a much better place to live," said Allred, who owns Allred Oil Co. in Hereford.
"The agencies within a United Way each serve a unique function within a community. People have their favorite agencies in United Way, but fortunately, people will contribute to something like the United Way rather than specific agencies because they realize the need for those agencies that may not be their favorite agencies."

United Way this year has a goal of $199,815, more than three times what was collected in 1977. Money and pledges collected thus far have totaled nearly $127,000.
"I think we've seen a very positive attitude and a commonness of purpose," Allred said about this fall's campaign.
"I'd say we've achieved a lot this year, even though we may not achieve the goal. We've achieved a big commonness of objective, working together in the community more than we have in a long time."
"That is evidenced in the fact we've raised twice as much money and pledges as we've ever raised."
Allred, who served as both president and campaign chairman of United Way drives in the past, said he has put more footwork into this year's campaign than any of the others.

"I wanted to make the goal. I wanted it to be successful, so I decided to work hard at it this year."
Mainly, he sees a need to help young folks.
"We all have a responsibility of contributing both personally and financially, especially where children are involved. That's why I was on the school board."
Allred has also served as a city councilman, president of the Hereford Lions Club and a chamber of commerce director. He presently is a deacon at First Baptist Church, a director of the

USDA Undersecretary To Be Appointed

WASHINGTON (AP) - A "new" old job title is coming back to the Agriculture Department, that of under secretary of agriculture.

President Carter announced Monday he will nominate Dale E. Hathaway, assistant secretary of agriculture, to the new position of under secretary for international and commodity programs.

Hathaway, an assistant secretary, has been in charge of those functions since early in the Carter administration.

But Congress, when it passed an agricultural trade expansion bill this year, included a provision that sets up the job of under secretary.

No one seems quite sure why there is such a chair game going on in USDA, but there has been speculation for some time that with Hathaway as under secretary it will give the department an open title of assistant secretary.

The oddsmakers say that once Hathaway is confirmed in his new post, the vacant title will go to Howard W. Hjort, who is the department's senior economist.

Meanwhile, the job of deputy secretary - the No. 2 post in USDA - has been vacant since John White resigned last January to become chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

If Hathaway is approved by the Senate as under secretary - which used to be the No. 2 post before the deputy title was used - he would have the No. 3 job in the department's hierarchy.

Widow Elected Mayor Of San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Dianne Feinstein, twice denied San Francisco's highest elective office at the polls, is mayor today - elected by fellow supervisors after leading the city through a week of tumult, violence and mourning.

The 45-year-old widow, the first woman to hold the city's highest office, was sworn in Monday to complete the 13 months remaining in the term of George Moscone, gunned down a week ago in his City Hall office.

Ms. Feinstein, acting mayor since Moscone's death, was elected 6-2 by members of the Board of Supervisors. She pledged to work for the "emotional reconstruction" of her city and respond to San Francisco's "many divergent lifestyles."

Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk were shot to death at City Hall Nov. 27. Former Supervisor Dan White, 32, is charged with their murders. The deaths followed by a week the cult suicide-murders of more than 900 Peoples Temple members in Guyana - many of whom were once San Francisco residents.

As president of the Board of Supervisors, Ms. Feinstein automatically assumed the mayor's powers after his death. Moscone had defeated her in her most recent bid for the mayoralty in 1975. She also sought the office in 1971.

Fire Kills Family In Houston Home

HOUSTON (AP) - A candle started Houston's second deadliest blaze ever in which nine persons, six of them children, lost their lives.

The fire swept through a small frame house in northwest Houston Monday morning after one of several candles being used for heat accidentally ignited a couch, arson investigator J.L. Scott said Monday.

Police said all of the dead were related. They were identified by officers as Gloria Boyd, 29; Carolyn Fay Boyd, 28; Carl Boyd, 22; Paula Boyd, 10; Charles Boyd, 9; Daniel Boyd, 7; Shante Boyd, 4; Kimberly Boyd, 3; and Willie Boyd, 2.

Five others who escaped were Ernest Ray Solomon, 19; Merelend Boyd 21; Linda Faye Byrd, 18; Matita Boyd, 10; and Earl Boyd, 10.

Miss Byrd said Paula, Kimberly and Shante were Gloria Boyd's daughters. Charles and Daniel were sons of Anne Boyd, who was not at the house at the time of the fire, she said.

She said Willie was Merelend's son. One Carolyn's sons, Daniel, died with her and the second, Earl, survived, as did Matita, Carolyn's daughter.

Earlier, investigators thought the fire was caused by a makeshift connection using an automobile radiator hose to link a natural gas line with the house.

But Scott, who made the follow-up investigation, said the first detectives on the scene saw the hose and found a burned spot behind the stove and "jumped to a conclusion."

Man To Be Tried For Cult Killings

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) - Prosecutor Carlton Withers says Charles Beikman of the Peoples Temple killed Sharon Amos, a woman official of the cult, at her request after holding her three children while she cut their throats.

"He at least assisted by holding the hair of the children as Mrs. Amos cut their throats, then he killed the woman herself," Withers told a reporter during a recess in a preliminary hearing to determine whether Beikman, 43, will be tried on murder charges. "The doctor will say the cut severed her jugular vein and windpipe and she couldn't have done it herself."

"Stefany Jones, 9, a niece of Mrs. Amos, entered the bathroom while the murders were being carried out and Beikman tried to cut her throat. He managed to inflict a cut but failed to sever any vital vein, and the girl escaped screaming."

Weither said testimony from residents of the Peoples Temple headquarters in Georgetown indicated that Beikman went into the second-floor bedroom with Mrs. Amos, the cult's 42-year-old public relations director, and her three children, Martin, 8, Christa, 11, and Leanne, 22.

The bodies of the four Amoses were found in a pool of blood on Nov. 18 not long after Jones and more than 900 members of the cult died in a murder-suicide ritual at Jonestown, their religious commune 50 miles northwest of Georgetown.

forecast for Jan. 1, the indicator would be the highest since it was 19.1 percent on Jan. 1, 1941, the records also show.

Department experts said in explaining the ratio recently that "although it is not the only measure, the debt-to-asset ratio is a useful yardstick of the financial health" of farmers.

At "the relatively low ratios of under 20 percent," the report said, farmers in general are in "sound financial condition."

Comparatively, it said, the ratio of debt to assets for manufacturing corporations earlier this year was more than 45 percent.

Community involvement, though it is important to Allred, isn't as crucial as his dedication to God and family.

"I think our first responsibility is to our creator. Second, to our family. And, as a businessman in a small town, you'd nearly have to put business and community involvement together. They are the same to me—I make my living in a community and the community in turn needs me to put something back into it."

Allred calls Hereford a town with a positive attitude. "This accounts for Hereford being what Hereford is—an excellent place to live and work."

Allred and his wife, who also is a member of the Chamber Singers, have two sons—Mike, 12, and Brad, 9.

Joe Kerr, one of 21 private cart owners in Hereford who play regularly on the Hereford course, said the 400 percent increase is "injuring those of us who bought a cart because the city rules allowed us to buy a cart."

Mayor Bartley Dowell told the seven protestors that Horton is a good professional "and we need to help him out all we can."

The golfers suggested that the city give Horton a raise.

Instead, the commission agreed to increase the fees for using private carts from $1 per nine holes and $2 for 18 and made it mandatory that all private carts be phased out within three years.

"I think you ought to make it shorter than three years," Horton told the commission.

"Like five?" one of the golfers asked.

"Like one," Horton answered.

Commissioner John Matthews said that a one-year limit would be unfair to cart owners.

The commission also voted to charge persons age 62 or older either $75 a year or $1 a day to play golf.

But she insisted she did so to discuss the prospect of hiring security guards at the $6 million mansion she shared with Davis before their separation in 1974.

She said Burleson was a longtime friend who had loaned her $1,000 to $1,500" after the separation and presuming before a bloody 1976 shooting spree at the hilltop Fort Worth mansion.

Mrs. Davis testified in Amarillo last year her husband was the "man in black" who fired a bullet through her chest and killed her lover and her 12-year-old daughter Andrea.

The jury acquitted Davis in the slaying of Andrea.

Attorneys suggested Monday that it was ironic and not at all coincidental that Mrs. Davis appeared in a black dress with a black fox fur covering her shoulders.

Haynes spent much of the day prodding her memory about her contacts and financial dealings with Burleson, Sauer, McCrory, McCrory's ex-wife Judy and others.

The Serpent That Hugs

Religion-related school administrators are in shock.

They have been told that the government suspects them of discrimination and they must prove themselves innocent or they will be hanged by the neck with additional taxes.

Our tax system has become such a conglomeration of accumulated complexities that all of us are confused, frustrated, intimidated and frightened by our own government.

And that, of course, is the way Big Government, doing for us, does us in.

The big-enough serpent does not have to bite; he hugs you to death.

Public education is a comparatively recent innovation in our nation. Originally, all of our schools were "church schools."

In the years since, private education has phased out in favor of tax-supported public education. Yet many parents—while continuing to pay taxes for the support of public schools—elect to pay extra to keep their own children in private or "church" schools.

Today, public education versus Christian education is a conspicuous mismatch.

Academically, Stanford achievement test scores show Christian students seven to 13 months ahead in reading; eighth graders in Christian schools are reading at tenth-grade level.

More than 50 percent of public school students divorce within the first five years of marriage. Christian school students 9 percent.

Percentage-wise, more public school students kill themselves in one day than do Christian school students in a year.

An Ohio congressman, Bill Ayers, said it: "We educate without religion; we graduate clever devils."

And now these private-donation-supported educational institutions are threatened with economic suffocation and extinction because the IRS commissioner suspects that they are designed to discriminate.

If they can tax away your dollars for religious education, the next turn of the screw is to take away your dollars for evangelization; then comes religious strangulation.

So whether or not you are directly interested in Christian education, you do have a stake in this.

Perhaps you don't have any school-age children or grandchildren, but you have a car and a house that you don't dare leave unlocked any more and beautiful streets you don't dare walk any more—because we have been educating intellectuals while letting emotions run wild!

If you do not want religion-related schools to die of taxation, then communicate with your congressman and say it succinctly.

There will be a lot of new members of Congress incoming. They will be hearing many demands, will have many distractions, so sloganize your sentiments if you can.

If you can't, help yourself to this one: "If the church school is starved out, we have a tired team of the field and nobody on the bench."

Donations Sought By Doctors Wives

Local citizens must make their donations to Project Christmas Card prior to Dec. 18 in order to have their names signed to a special page appearing in The Brand's Christmas issue.

Canisters are located throughout the city for the convenience of individuals who wish to contribute to Project Christmas Card, which is a benefit for Hereford medical facilities. The campaign to raise money through one giant Christmas page in The Hereford Brand had been conducted by the Medical and Dental Auxiliary here for 21 years.

Project Christmas Card works on the following basis: instead of sending Christmas greetings to one's friends and neighbors in Hereford, an individual or family contributes to Project Christmas Card. The name of every donor to Project Christmas Card will appear in a special yuletide greeting in The Brand's Dec. 25th edition.

Directing this year's campaign are Mrs. Jesse Perales and Mrs. David Carruth. The entire Medical Auxiliary is composed of the wives of the city's physicians and dentists, who determine how the proceeds of Project Christmas Card are spent annually.

In its lengthy history of improving local health care, Project Christmas Card has raised more than $64,887, all of which has been spent to meet the needs of this community.

Youth's Fasting

Ted Taylor, minister of youth at Hereford Nazarene Church and approximately 35 youth of the church fasted for 30 hours Friday and Saturday. The youth earned money during this famine to help support

"Meals on Wheels" and "World Vision." Shown above is Ted Taylor and some of the youth visiting Mrs. Billie Whitehorn who is on the program of "Meals On Wheels."

Receiving Guest

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I saw my first aid for an "After Christmas Sale" last week and realized the pressure is on. Usually, the first "After Christmas Sale" occurs two weeks before Christmas, but with the big push to get people to shop, the incentives come earlier every year.

For some reason which I cannot explain, my husband will not see the ads touting perfume, lounging clothes, matched luggage, jeweled caftans, music boxes, tinkling the theme from Dr. Zhivago, dinner rings or a slim volume of love poems.

Instead, he will be drawn like a magnet to items and services that have nothing whatsoever to do with Christmas. You've seen them. Santa Claus wearing a truss and exclaiming, "No more feeling like I was kicked by a reindeer."

A man in a redjumpsuit holding a gift certificate for a free pest control inspection.

A plumber with a 95-cent can of cleanser in his hand with a red ribbon around it saying, "The gift that keeps giving...an unclogged sink."

Tweezers for getting rid of unwanted facial hair in a see-through gift box with a plastic poinsettia on top.

Thirty-five percent of the husbands in this country do their Christmas shopping in a hardware store, another 15 percent make all their gift selections in a drugstore, and another 7 1/2 percent buy for everyone on their list in a car wash.

I saw my husband reading ads the other morning at breakfast and said, "I don't know how to tell you this, but I don't want a smoke alarm for Christmas."

"Why in the world would I buy you a smoke alarm?"

"I know how your mind works. Five years ago it was a crock pot, four years ago, a car defroster gun, three years ago, a doormat with my last name, two years ago, an exercise ball that released steam around my waist, and last year a grease shield for my bacon."

"You said you like the unusual."

"Dracula is unusual. I wouldn't want him in my Christmas stocking."

"Then give me hints."

"What about something in fragrance? Fur? Or just something to make me feel more like a woman?"

Whatya wanta bet I get a new bowl cleanser...a hamster...or tablets for my iron deficiency?

ZAP CLUTTER-GET ORGANIZED

Lost recipes. Missing music scores. Bulging closets. A sea of newspaper clippings. Vanishing warranty books. Clutter everywhere! Sound familiar? If so, you may be suffering from a common malady - disorganization. Don't let it control your life. Be your own expert organizer and make clutter disappear.

Disorganization can strike anyone - advanced symptoms include absolute chaos and growing despair. If you are spending more time searching for things than using them, it's time to put life in order - and cope more effectively with everyday living. Anyone can become organized if they are willing to spend enough time to study and solve their problems. Only four things need organizing if they are willing to spend enough time to study and solve their problems. Only four things need organizing: space, things, time and tasks. Try a few ideas for starters:

SPACE
Organize storage space. Kitchens and closets need periodic reviews. To make storage space usable, keep often-used items close to the area of use. Make items easy-to-see and reach.

THINGS
Assess clutter realistically. Just how much of it is really

Ann Landers Hates Bras

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hate wearing bras, mainly because they are so... uncomfortable. I worked in an office (alone) for several weeks and then a few others were added to the "staff" - mostly women. I have always dressed conservatively, no tight or see-through stuff, no plunging necklines or any of that jazz. I am a 38-D cup.

Not a day went by that a woman in that office didn't make some remark about my bra-lessness. I decided my independence and comfort was worth more to me than their opinions, so I ignored the catty remarks and continued in my own lifestyle. (Incidentally, I am not working there anymore. My assignment was finished - I wasn't fired.)

Now my family and a few friends are hassling me about the same subject. Can you throw me a witty line to get these people off my back? - Comfy

DEAR COMFY: Sorry, dearie, you rattled the wrong cage. Any woman who would fit into a 38-D cup IF she wore a bra - and doesn't - gets no support from me.

What you need is a competent salesperson in a bra department to fit you with a garment that is NOT uncomfortable. I assure you, it can be done. Or would you rather bounce around town and create undesirable comment for two very obvious reasons?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Four years ago, my husband and I took a weekend trip with his sister and her husband. A drunk driver hit us broadside. Through some miracle Curtis and I walked away from the accident without a scratch. His sister and her husband were killed instantly. My husband was driving.

A precious two-year-old boy was orphaned as a result of that accident. We adopted him. Six months later I became pregnant. We now have two beautiful sons who look very much alike.

It is apparent to me (and others) that Curtis is extremely partial to our adopted son. Everything our own little boy does irritates him, yet he has infinite patience with the other child.

Doesn't it seem strange that a father would show marked favoritism toward an adopted child? I see serious trouble ahead and I don't know how to deal with it. I need guidance - Blue Skies.

DEAR BLUE: The obvious reason for your husband's partiality is that he feels guilty about the death of his sister and brother-in-law and is trying to compensate by being excessively attentive to their child.

Your natural resentment against your husband for his lack of patience with own son is creating additional tension.

This problem is deep-seated and can never be resolved between the two of you. Outside counseling is needed promptly. Urge your husband to get it.

DEAR ANN: My husband sits in the sunroom wearing nothing but shorts every night after supper as he watches TV. When people come in he doesn't apologize. He feels every man has a right to be comfortable in his own home.

What can I do about this? I am - Humiliated

DEAR HUM: A well-cut Japanese kimono is comfortable and good-looking as well. Surprise him with one. It could solve the problem - especially if you tell him how sexy he looks in the new garment.

Planning a wedding? What's right? What's wrong? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" will relieve your anxiety. To receive a copy, send a dollar, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (15 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1195, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Two Sophs, Seven Juniors Selected

All-American Team Selections Young

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Jerry Robinson, UCLA's brilliant linebacker, was named to The Associated Press All-America college football team today for the third year in a row.

Robinson, the only repeater from last year, was joined on the All-America team by running back Billy Sims, the Heisman Trophy winner, and offensive guard Greg Roberts, the Outland Trophy winner, both from Oklahoma.

Penn State, the nation's No. 1-ranked team, placed three players on the elite squad, including quarterback Chuck Fusina, the Heisman Trophy runnerup.

A younger-than-usual All-America team includes two sophomores - defensive end Hugh Green of Pittsburgh and defensive back Kenny Easley of UCLA - along with seven juniors and 13 seniors. Penn State led the way with three representatives, while Oklahoma, Southern California, UCLA and North Carolina State had two apiece.

The AP All-America team will be featured on the Bob Hope Christmas Special on NBC-TV Dec. 22 at 8 p.m. EST.

Besides Fusina, Penn State is represented by offensive tackle Keith Dorney and defensive tackle Bruce Clark. Southern Cal's pair is running back Charles White, the school's all-time leading ground-gainer, and offensive guard Pat Howell, while North Carolina State has running back Ted Brown, the leading rusher in Atlantic Coast Conference history, and center Jim Ritcher.

The rest of the team consists of wide receivers Jerry Butler of Clemson and Emanuel Tolbert of Southern Methodist, tackle Kelvin Clark of Nebraska, defensive end Al Harris of Arizona State, defensive tackle Marty Lyons of Alabama, linebackers John Coker of Oklahoma State, Tom Cousineau of Ohio State and Bob Golic of Notre Dame and defensive backs Johnnie Johnson of Texas and Jeff Nixon of Richmond. Sims, Bruce Clark, White, Ritcher, Tolbert, Coker and Johnson are juniors.

Sims, only the sixth junior to win the Heisman, was the nation's leading runner with an average of 160.2 yards a game. He rushed for 1,762 yards - setting Oklahoma and Big Eight records - on 231 carries and averaged a whopping 7.6 yards per rush. He also was the nation's leading scorer with 20 touchdowns.

White averaged 146.1 yards a game and led the nation in all-purpose rushing while Brown finished at 122.7 and became the fourth leading rusher in major college history. Fusina guided Penn State to an 11-0 regular season by completing 137 of 242 passes for 1,859 yards and 11 touchdowns in the Nittany Lions' balanced attack.

Tolbert and Butler were among the country's leading receivers. Tolbert caught 62 for 1,040 yards and 11 touchdowns, while Butler grabbed 54 for 864 yards as Clemson rolled to the ACC championship and its best record in 30 years.

Because of the brilliance of Tolbert and Butler, the first team includes two wide receivers and no tight end.

Albuquerque Man Wins Record Tied in City Meet

James Stanley of Albuquerque, N.M., took the first-place trophy and $1,500 cash in the Professional Bowlers Association regional tournament here Saturday at Bowling's Bowl, but a rash of five perfect games - including one that tied a PBA record - really stole the show.

Runner-up Bill Bauman of Aurora, Col., was in the record-tying game in the match play finals, but on the losing end. He bowled a 290 game, only to lose to a perfect 300 recorded by Joe Light of Dallas. The two scores in a PBA match play finals tied a national record. Bauman did pocket $1,000 for second place, however.

Jack Kannady of Ruidoso, N.M., bowled two perfect 300 games in the match play finals and wound up in third place. Light finished fourth, while Jerry Schleich of Amarillo posted the best area finish with a fifth place.

Recording the other 300 games were Johnnie Short of Albuquerque and amateur B.J. Davis of Amarillo. Another Amarillo bowler, James Petty, was the high-ranking amateur in the tourney.

The PBA regional tourney drew 64 entrants. Stanley, the champion, averaged 249 a game while bowling 24 games Saturday and Sunday in the match play. Bowlers were awarded bonus points for each victory in the match play.

The field was cut to 12 bowlers Sunday afternoon and the final 12-game block decided the champion. Stanley had a 10-2 record in the finals.

Rounding out the top 12 in the finals were Casey Berry of Albuquerque, John Brandt of Lubbock, Johnnie Short of Albuquerque, John Bolejack of Fort Worth, Steve Rufsvoold of Dallas, Lionel Jordan of Carlsbad, and James Petty of Amarillo.

Cummings Wins Grid Contest

In the last football contest of the year, Joe Don Cummings captured the first place prize by missing only two games. Second place went to Dana Rush who missed three games and Natividad Torres collected the $10 third award. Both Rush and Torres missed three games but Rush took second by correctly guessing the tie breaker of 43 points.

Along with the two that missed three games there were five others that also missed three but due to the tiebreaker process were eliminated from the winnings. The contest was close all the way down as 17 people missed only four games, 11 missed five and 12 missed six games in a contest that ended the season for the forecasters of the area.
