Heat Making Life Miserable

By PAUL SIMS Managing Editor

Hereford folks are finding it hard to spell-relief from the early-summer heat wave which has taken up residence over Texas.

Record-setting temperatures, some well over 100, have made life miserable for Texans and have resulted in at least nine deaths.

Hereford has been one of the state's cooler spots, even though temperatures topped 100 every day last week, except Thursday, when the city recorded a sizzling 98.

"I'm really suffering," said Mrs. Clyde Brummett, 234 Ave. B. "Best I can do is just keep the air conditioner running.'

The heat is keeping most folks, including Mrs. Richard Wakely, 348 Elm, indoors.

"I'm going to stay inside as long as it's so hot and let my lawn grow and grow and take care of itself. I haven't mowed it in over a week. I just can't see myself going out there," Mrs. Wakely said.

Sid Turner, 112 Centre, is a little tougher. "I've been working in the yard as much as I can," he said. "I'll sit on the patio, cool off a little bit, then get back out and work some more. I've got to take lots of breaks. "Sure, the heat's bothering me, but I need to mow and irrigate. I'm gonna get tired of it if it lasts much longer." Those who work outside for a living may be the most-affected of all.

We get run down pretty quick, no energy to speak of, and tempers are a little shorter," said Lee Jones, a crew chief with Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative. "It's just plain miserable. Water and electrical usage are drastically up as Hereford residents fight to keep their grass green and bodies air-conditioned-cool. City Manager Dudley Bayne said Hereford used more than 8 million gallons of water daily last week. "It's a lot. It's more than we've ever used," Bayne said. The last time water consumption was in that vicinity was in July, 1978, when Texas suffered through its last prolonged hot spell. Bayne was forced to issue an ultimatum to city residents--cut water usage or go dry. "We have plenty of water this year since we've drilled three new wells since then. But we still ask people to be careful how they water .- don't waste it." Bayne said. Southwestern Public Service Co. reported Friday that electrical consumption in the area is at one of its highest levels ever. On Thursday, SPS generated more than 2.366 million kilowatt hours of electricity. In July, 1978, the area established its existing record of 2.441 million kilowatt

"We're close to setting a new record," said Frank Lee. SPS public relations director. "We're up systemwide about 19 percent for the first 23 days in June, compared to the first 23 days last year. It's all attributable to increased air-conditioning use.

Air-conditioner repairmen have been having field days during the hot spell.

"We're getting more calls than normal. People tell us their air conditioners just aren't cooling good enough. So we go out and find that most of the air conditioners are too undersized to handle the heat. We tell them there's nothing we can do." said Jim Clarke of Jim's Plumbing.

Robert Rhoten of R&R Refrigeration said that 90 percent of the air conditioners reported as not working properly

'just aren't big enough for the weather we've had lately.' Grocery stores and fast-food restaurants may be enjoying the heat as ice and soft-drink sales are rampant throughout the city.

"I'm selling a lot more ice than usual and we can't keep enough Cokes in the box." said Grand Ave. Grocery owner-Ralph Taylor. "Hove the heat. It's just pure great for us."

Larry Leon of Max's Big Burger loves it all; too. "Hot weather improves our business." Leon said. "Our Coke business has really grown here lately. We've sold lots of ice cream. In fact, we've sold anything cool. Limeades have been big.'

The weather has taken its toll on automobiles, too, according to Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Mike Thompson.

Bumper Corn Crop Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) - Corn farmers appear to be going all out to raise another bumper crop, according to the latest Agriculture Department surveys.

They planted 83.5 million acres of corn for harvest later this year, the largest planted acreage since 1976 when 84.4 million acres was planted, the department said Friday. Officials also said farmers have planted more land to wheat for the 1980 harvest than at any time since 1949. . Corn is the key ingredient for much of the nation's food supply. As feed, this year's harvet will provide much of the ra material for producing meat, milk and poultry through most of 1981 as well as a prime source of grain for export to other

The department's Crop Reporting Board said the indicated corn plantings also were up 4.3 percent from about 80 million acres planted a year ago when the crop led to a record harvest last fall of almost 7.8 billion bushels.

No production estimates of 1980 crops were included in the report. The first estimate of this year's corn harvest, along with estimates of some other crops will be issued by USDA a month from now. The report was based on surveys of about 125,000 farmers earlier this month. In April, based on similar surveys, farmers indicated they would plant about 82 million acres of corn, about 1.5 million fewer than the new report indicated.

The report also showed: -Sorghum plantings, 15.8 million acres, up 3 percent from 1979 but less than the 16.2 million indicated in April.

-Total feed grains, including corn, sorghum, oats and barley, 124 million acres, up 3 percent from last year and slightly more than the 120 million farmers indicated in April. -Total wheat, 80.9 million acres, 13 percent more than planted for the 1979 harvest. A spokesman said the 1980 planted wheat acreage is the largest since 83.9 million acres were, planted for the 1949 harvest.

Growers planted about 58 million acres of winter wheat last fall, up 12 percent from a year earlier. Winter wheat normally accounts for about 75 percent of the total U.S. production.

Durum wheat plantings this spring, at 5.48 million acres,

8 Persons Burned in Explosion

By PAUL SIMS Managing Editor

Eight persons, including a child and an infant, were burned when gas fumesexploded around 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Kerr-McGee service station, 701 W. 1st.

The fumes exploded while a mechanic inside the garage was blowing gas out a line in a van with compressed air. The fumes reportedly were blown into the front part of the station and exploded.

The victims reportedly were inside the garage when the explosion, called a "flash" by a fire department spokesman, occurred.

Most of the victims received second- and thirddegree burns to their faces. arms, legs and hair. All but one of the victims--18-yearold Lupe Del Toro, 615 Austin Rd .-- were taken by private vehicles to the Deaf Smith General Hospital emergency room. She was transported by ambulance.

Hereford Postmaster Nolan Grady pleaded no contest to misdemeanor assault Friday and was given a one-year probated sentence by 222nd District Judge

AAA Says Holiday

Gasoline Plentiful

HOUSTON (AP) - With more than 70 percent of the state's service stations expected to be open on the Fourth of July, holiday motorists should have no trouble finding gasoline, according to the American Automobile Association.

The latest AAA survey, released Friday, shows plenty of gas is on hand and that prices - with the exception of leaded premium - have remained stable for the past two months.

El Paso service stations continue to provide the lowest prices overall for the six categories of gasoline surveyed in 394 stations across the state.

Self-service regular sells for $1,128 a gallon in El Paso to a high of $1.22 for full service premium.

McAllen showed the highest overall prices, with full service regular going for $1.218 and full service premium selling for $1.27.

Diesel was cheapest in Houston where it sold for $1.02 and most expensive in the Dallas-Fort Worth area where a gallon cost $1.146.

President-Signs

Registration into Law

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter signed legislation Friday that will allow the Selective Service System to register roung men for the draft this summer.

Without fanfare, the president approved a congressional resolution providing $13,285,000 for the registration program that he had sought since January to demonstrate U.S. resolve in the aftermath of the Soviet Union's military intervention in Afghanistan.

The president's action, taken at Camp David, Md., where Carter is relaxing after his eight-day European trip, was announced in a one-sentence statement distributed at the White

Carter was given the bill after Congress, ending a long and heated fight over his proposal, finished work on the measure on Wednesday. The House voted 234-168 for the proposal. The Senate approved it on June 12.

Under the Carter plan, an estimated 4 million young men born in 1960 and 1961 will be required to register for the draft at local post offices over a two-week period later this summer.

Shah Reported

As Very Serious

CAIRO, Egypt (Ap) - The cancer-stricken deposed Shah of Iran, admitted to a Cairo-area military hospital after suffering a relapse, is in 'very serious condition," President Anwar Sadat said today.

"I am receiving hourly reports on his condition," the official Middle East News Agency quoted Sadat as saying in Alexandria. "I hope there will be an improvement or else I will leave Alexandria and go to Cairo."

An Egyptian presidential source in Cairo reported earlier that Mohammed Reza Pahlavi had been readmitted to the Maadi military hospital, where the former Iranian monarch underwent surgery for the removal of his cancerous spleen last March 28.

That source gave a relatively optimistic report, saying Pahlavi was being given a checkup after a two-week bout with fever, that his temperature had been returned to normal and that his condition "is not deteriorating. He is keeping well."

But later Sadat said he had received an urgent message "saying he was in very serious condition. Thus we should all pray for him."

Egypt, Libya May

Be Headed for War

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - Egypt and Libya are waging a heated war of words across their sun-scorched desert border, raising fears the two nations will once again come to blows as they did three years ago.

In a June 12 speech in Tripoli, Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy called on the "Egyptian people and the Egyptian army to bring down the treasonous regime in Egypt."

Officials in Cairo cited the speech as the straw that moved Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to impose martial law along Egypt's side of the 675-mile border last week.

Khadafy responded by molding hardline opponents of Sadat's peace moves toward Israel into an alliance to defend Libya in the event of war. At a meeting in Tripoli, the foreign ministers of Libya, Algeria, Syria, South Yemen and a Palestine Liberation Organization representative accused Egypt of "conspiring against the Arab nation."

The feud runs deep between Khadafy, a radical Moslem fundamentalist with leftist ties, and the urbane,

Governors Create Plans

By BILL GREER Associated Press Writer

"CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) - Governors meeting here from states along the U.S.-Mexico border didn't solve any problems, but they ended up with plans to attack the touchy international issues.

During their historic conference here Thursday and Friday, the governors decided to form a task force to look into sensitive problems of undocumented workers, drugs and pollution. The "master task force" also would work on issues involving border commerce, tourism, energy, ecology, agriculture and cultural exchange.

The governors agreed to meet again within a year.

At a private meeting Friday, nine governors spent most of the morning talking over a revised proposal involving illegal aliens.

All agreed in principle to Texas Gov. Bill Clements' plan to allow "visiting workers from Mexico" to obtain "guest passes" to work and live for specific periods of time in the United States.

"The plan has to be polished," according to New Mexico Finance Director David King, who attended the closed-door sessions. King said Clements and Co-Chairmen Gov. Bruce King of New Mexico and Gov. Manuel Bernardo Aguirre of Sonora asked fellor officials to send sugestions gamered at the meeting to federal offices in Washington, D.C. and Mexico City.

Aguirre called the first governors' meeting "a very important social event on the borders.

-Gov. Oscar Flores Tapia of Coahuila had problems crossing the border into the United States.

A spokesman for Juarez Mayor Manuel Quevedo said Friday U.S. Immigration and Naturalization officials apologized for the incident at the border bridge where an inspector reportedly told the Flores Tapia, "If you are the governor, I'm George Washington." The Mexican governor - in what many sources called a diplomatic gesture - denied the incident and said he turned around on the Rio Grande Bridge because of the heat and "a long line of cars."

Before the incident, Clements called for moves to improve the border crossing situation.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. was the only missing governor. His Chief of Staff Gray Davis, who took Brown's place in ecology and pollution sessions, said his boss was tied up on state business.

Anderson Optimistic About Collecting Enough Signatures

told

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Congressman John Anderson says he expects to gather all the signatures he needs to get on the Texas election ballot and jokingly suggested beating the July 14 deadline by 10 days.

'To have a safe and sane Fourth, a real Independence Day, let's get em in on the Fourth of Ju'y, Anderson told a friendly crowd of more than 1,000 at the University of Texas on Friday.

Volunteers were busy the student union ballroom collecting part of the 41,000 signatures Anderson needs to get a ballot position as an independent candidate for president.

The Illinois congressmen grew a little testy when a reporter asked if he seriously thought he could win the presidency. "Why should I be making

Anderson said at his news conference he did not know how many Texas signatures he had so far. He suggested he might not disclose the number if he knew it for fear the appearance of success might cause his volunteers to reduce their efforts.

The Chamber and You _

By F. MICHAEL CARR

This past week I had a call from a large out-of-town newspaper. They wanted some information about an event that is coming up in Hereford Thursday morning.

The newspaper had heard that we were going to make a presentation of the "Bull Chipper of the Decade" and they anned all the information on the event.

Now that out-of-towners are aware of this event, we especially want everyone of our local citizens to know what is going to occur

Buly 3 is the day for our next Fun Breakfast, which we are era proud to have sponsored by the First National Bank. This Fun Breakfast will be to honor the Bull Chipper of the Decade and to also give special recognition for the Fourth of July. The Bull Chipper of the Decade will be someone local who has worked hard to improve Hereford and Deaf Smith County through their loval dedication and time. The award they will nozeise will be extremly special just as the honor will be.

If you have someone to nominate for this honor, please call as write the Chamber office. It can be a past recipient of a Bull Chapper Award or anyone else. We want you to make the

In addition to this award we will have other very special finings planned. Throughout the week of the Fourth, the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce will be giving our red. white, and blue lapel buttons with the Words "I Care," which will be the theme of this month's Fun Breakfast.

We will also have these for everyone attending the burnidgest. The Chamber would like to encourage everyone to wear these pins all week long in observance of the Fourth of light. The format of the breakfast will be much the same as these in the past with the addition of some very enjoyable and special music. It is going to be fun, and lively, but more important it will help serve as our way to honor our city, state and country this Fourth of July.

Everyone is invited. We want to share this day with each of one so please make plans for 6:30 a.m. Thursday at the Heneford Community Center: Call the Chamber of Commerce office at 364-3333 to make your reservation or to make your momination for Bull Chipper of the Decade.

I'd like to take a little time to say a word about the purpose. our Deaf Smith Counts Chamber of Commerce Fun Elizaktasi and its sponsors. ## NCI Will Test Laetrile ssociated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - The much-debated question of whether Laetrile cures cancer finally will be put to the test next month by the National Cancer Institute.

By TIM AHERN

Institute officials announced Friday that four cancer research centers across the nation will use the apricot pit derivative to treat 200 to 300 cancer patients whose cancers have not responded to other treatments.

§The cancer institute first announced almost two years ago that it would test Laetrile in an effort to settle the question. Laetrile proponents claim it is effective in treating cancer although the medical community generally disagrees. Doctors say there has been no accepted research showing the treatment to be effective.

Laetrile has long been banned been banned by the federal government. although a federal judge in Oklahoma ruled two years ago that cancer patients can use it under controlled conditions. Meanwhile, 20 states have legalized its use under certain conditions.

The biggest Laetrile treatment centers are in Tijuana, Mexico, just south of the United States border. where the treatment is legal. A number of clinics are operated in Tijuana and

Where do you start when you have to start all over again?

If you've lost your husband or wife through death or divorce, or if your life is changing because of marriage or retirement, it may seem like too much to straighten out by yourself. Sometimes you don't even know the right questions, let alone the answers. And finding the right person to help with a particular problem can often be frustrating.

We Can Help

Here at Hereford State Bank, we offer a free counseling service for members of the It's called Special community. Organizational Services(SOS) and its sole purpose is to help you in troubled times. There's no charge and no obligation.

How We Can Help

We'll provide direction on gathering important papers, insurance information, birth and marriage records. We'll help you contact governmental agencies about taxes or possible social security benefits. And we'll point you to other professionals if you need insurance, accounting or legal advice.

We don't promise that we'll have answers to all your questions. But if our S.O S. advisors, Irene McKinster and Vera Threewit, don't have an answer, they'll find out who does.

Hello, Mars?

Suppose there was a message from space that nobody on Earth bothered to answer?

Something like that is a distinct possibility, although it involves not communication from little green aliens out Orion. way but man's own automated emissary to neighboring Mars, Viking I.

There is no problem with the operation of the spacecraft. Viking has been radioing back information from the Martian surface for four years and, by the best current estimates, could continue to do so for another decade.

There is, however, with the receipt of the information streaming back. Most of it is being stored raw, unstudied and unevaluated for what it may reveal about one of the closest worlds to our own.

It is not due to lack of interest but of funds.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which spent a billion public dollars getting Viking to Mars, doesn't have enough left in the teapot to process the craft's reports. So most of them are going straight into storage in the computer

The situation is somewhat like having invited calls at any time, and then being unable to take them because the phone

An appalling situation in the view of some members of the public, who have decided that if public funds can't be found to pay the bill, they'll raise them privately.

For this purpose, a Viking Fund has been set up to receive contributions, receipts to be forwarded to NASA for continuing analysis of the messages from Mars. The project is under the direction of the San Francisco branch of the American Astronautical Society and contributions may be addressed to the society at P.O. Box 7205, Menlo Park, Calif. 94025. Checks should be made out to the Viking Fund.

By mid-June, some $40,000 had been received, a long way from the initial goal of $1 million (to place that in perspective, it is one-tenth of one percent of what was spent in putting Viking on Mars) but that doesn't discourage/the sponsors, who say they are in this for the long run.

After an initially cool response to the project, NASA, whose charter makes provision for private as well as government funding, is warming up to the prospects. There are hopes for a ceremony later this summer, possibly at the Smithsonian Institution's Air and Space Museum in Washington, formaliz-ing the relationship. It could be only the start of greater things, according to one articulate backer of the drive, science fiction writer-editor Ben Bova. Bova, who has observed that Americans annually spend more on pizza — $7.5 billion — than on the entire space program, sees the Viking Fund as potentially launching a new phase of collaborative projects leading to private operations

Well, possibly. We'll see what the future holds - in addition to pizza. Meanwhile, right here and now the relatively modest Viking campaign holds promise that at least the phone will be answered for the messages coming from Mars.

$100 Billion Story Networks Don't Tell

WASHINGTON - Donald Lambro, a reporter for United Press International, has just written a book that is must reading for every American taxpaver. It's called Fat City: How Washington Waytes Your Taxes." and Lambro spent more than three years researching in digging up information about wasteful. mismanaged federal programs, and countless others that are either totally ineffective or outdated. I recently had the pleasure of speaking with him on the Chamber's weekly radio program. What's the Lambro says no taxpuser can wander through the maze that is official Washington without concluding that we have more government than we need, more than we can want. Nevertheless, as he researched this problem and discovered its staggering proportions he estimates that through waste alone, the federal government squanders $100 billion in tax money each year-he was shocked to see the news media virtually. ignoring it. Indeed, one of the questions he asks is this: When was the last time you can remember a network press program doing a documentary or a special on unnecessary and wasteful federal spending. When was the last time an American news magazine devoted its cover to the story?" To those who say are cut in · federal spending would take food out of the mouths of the poor and throw old ladies out in the snow, Lambro replied;

"What we're talking about are tens of billions of dollars as in unnecessary programs which I detail in this book. everywhere from $100,000 a year we spend on the masseurs in the Capit gymnusiums, to 58 million to a U.S. travel agency, to three-quarters of a billion dollars a year we spend to provide cut-rate groceries for retired military men who are in second career jobs.

This is the kind of waste we're talking about. And if we get rid of that, neither the national welfare or the national security would be harmed. There would be more money left in the pocketbooks of the American wage earner, and we'd have a little bit more money to put in those programs that are truly necessary."

Why is this waste not being eliminated? Lambro cites two specific reasons. proper job of oversight. He notes that the subcommittee hearings, where the overin the form of tough

WHO SHOT J.R.?

J.R. has been shot - the whole nation is waiting with bated breath to see who done it. So far, there has not been a single poll taken to see who the people want the guilty party to be. I find that to be amazing.

There are polls about everything else, I can almost stand an election year, but I have had it Polls determine the t.v. shows we watch. If they are accurate, the American people are ready for the funny farm. How come every show I like is drop ? I am afraid to watch Dallas. If 1 like the show, it is doomed!

Polls probably run this country. They tell us who is going to win, and we tend to jump on the band

If the polls were accurate, Dewey would have been Presdent, and Truman would have gone back to selling suits in Kansas City.

Polls say 46 percent of the people are for a certain candidate. 46 percent of what people?? Where do they poll?? I have never been asked! I do not know anyone who has ever been asked. I think they walk out on the street and poll the first three winos they meet. Who else is on the street and has time to talk?

I called a national polling company and suggested they take a poll to see who should be guilty in the J.R. case. Everyone knows this is a bigger issue than the Presidential race!

The Poller thought the idea was great. He called his sources (both of them) and reported: 26 percent wanted it to be J.R.'s wife;

52 percent wanted it to be his brother-in-law;

75 percent wanted it to be his wife's lover; 22 percent wanted it to be his mother;

15 percent were undecided;

I said, "That comes to 190 percent!" He said, "No one is perfect."

Warm fuzzies,

I would like to publicly thank Faye Cockrum and Barbara Cockrum for their concern and help when I became ill and fainted at Edwards Laundry Wednesday afternoon.

Since they didn't know meor anything about me, they took no chances and were alert enough to quickly call an ambulance. It is great to know that our local ambulance service is so prompt and efficient. My thanks to that crew and to Dr. Payne and nurse Sylvia who immediately examined me and monitored my condition until they were sure I was all right.

I am told that a city policeman also came to the scene, as well as one of the people from the blood bank. I had contributed blood that afternoon and appreciate their concern, too.

Defeat of EMB Termed Victory for Common Sense

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) Environmentalists say the surprisingly easy defeat of President Carter's proposal to create an Energy Mobilization Board was a victory for common sense.

. "The legislation just grew into a Frankenstein, really," said Jonathan Gibson of the Sierra Club. "(It was) a piece of legislation that was so bad, from so many points of view. that the force of good sense just came down on it."

In a lopsided 232-131 vote, the House rejected a complex compromise bill Friday that would have created a threemember board intended to cut through the red tape that sometimes impedes construction of important energy projects.

Opposition to the Energy Mobilization Board came from both environmentalists and conservatives worried about the bill's impact on states' rights. Supporters of the measure said the vote effectively killed the bill for this session of Congress. A White House official, who asked not to be identified by idea, to cut red tape, has in reality become a monster," said Rep. Toby Moffett, D-Conn. "It has the very real potential for wiping out important regulations and important laws."

Supporters had argued that a ... strong board would help the United States shed its dependence on foreign oil. House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, urged support for the measure by citing the decision by the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) to abandon plans to build a new oil pipeline to speed the flow of Alaska oil.

"It failed because there were some .700 permits required by the State of California," Wright said. "It would have saved us 400,000 barrels of oil a day, and the bureaucracy killed it. Do we want that to happen indefinitely?"

The so-called "fast track" bill would have authorized the board to waive federal, state and local regulations enacted after a designated high-priority project is under The FDA's outside advisers on cancer drugs voted Thursday to endorse the program, which could begin in the fall. The National Institute on Drug Abuse already has made 500,000 of the pills containing delta-9tetrahydrocannabinol, the main mind-altering ingredient in marijuana.

Dr. Leon Hellman of the Einstein College of Medicine in the Bronx, N.Y., one of the dissenters, warned the FDA panel before the vote, "Abuse of this material in this wide distribution is virtually guaranteed."

Court Says Spills Must be Reported

By RICHARD CARELLI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court, boosting efforts to clean up the nation's waters, ruled Friday that polluters must report oil spills even though those reports subject them to fines. By an 8-1 vote, the justices upheld the Federal Water Pollution Control Act's oil spill report requirement. A federal appeals court had ruled that the requirement violated constitutional

"Thus, we have no doubt that Congress intended to allow imposition of penalties under (the anti-pollution law) without regard to the procedural protections and restrictions available in criminal prosecutions." The law imposes a criminal penalty only for those polluters who fail to report the discharge of oil into navigable waters. But the law states that polluters, who report their spills are subject to automatic "civil" fines.

§Friday's decision reversed a 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling in a case from Oklahoma.

On March 23, 1975, oil escaped from a drilling facility owned and operated by L.O. Ward near Enid, Okla. When the spill reached Boggie Creek, a navigable tributary of the Arkansas -

River, Ward notified the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The EPA forwarded Ward's report to the Coast Guard, which in turn fined him $500. Ward could have been fined up to $5,000. Ward challenged his fine,

James, James The Running Machine

THE SPORTSWRITER waited patiently for the persistent ringing to termin the with a voice on the Lubbock, Texas end of the line. The clanging never ended, the voice never answered and that was no great surprise considering he had pursued this guy's trail for a month-each time coming up with only a faint sniff of a would-be interview.

It was no great big deal, other than the fact he had been scooped by a couple of area newspapers already and the resulting embarrassment was somewhat hard to live with.

No. he'd keep trying. It was a matter of pride now. THE SPORTSWRITER, in one last futile attempt, gave another number a try-one that had been given to him by a shady source.

By now he had become expert at devoting his attention to other things while waiting for the seemingly non-existent voice to answer. He wasn't bragging or anything, but somebody would be hard-pressed to beat him in a battle of paper clip tiddly wink competition. "Hello?"

The startled sportswriter lost all concentration and missed his first paper clip shot of the afternoon.

"Ugh. Ugh! May I please speak with James Mays," the sportswriter asked sheepishly.

"YOU'RE RAPPING with the one and only." And incredulous as it sounds, the media guy forgot all about his heated clip-wink contest and finally got his long anticipated inter iew with an exceptional Hereford athletic by-product, a running machine named Mays. Mays showed carly signs of becoming a potential hazard to ongoing competitors in the track ranks during his high school running career. He methodically thumped out faster times in his specialty (the 800 meters dash), and those blatantly diminishing seconds off HIS race eventually granted the harrier a state c: ampionship title in the event as a senior in 1977 with a 1:58. 8. At the time, that run was recorded as the nation's fastest clocking, and as a result he earned All-America and All-State Mention status.

BUT THAT feat was a mere needle in the haystack of things he would accomplish as a collegiate runner.

Most recently, the junior Texas Tech trackster became the first Red Raider to win a Southwest Conference individual running title in over 15 years, he's notched his name on the three best 800 meter marks ever run in the Southwest Conference, he placed second in one of five prelim heats on the opening day of the NCAA meet with the fourth fastest time of a 37 competitor field and eventually took fourth in the finals with a career best time of 1:46.67, he became the first Tech athlete to ever score (top six in an NCAA Track and Field Championship and was alter ranked third on the NCAA list in 1980--two time NCAA champ Don Paige of Villanova and Agberto Guimaraes of Brigham Young.

MAYS THEN competed in the United States Olympic Track and Field Trials in Eugene, Oregon, the ult mate as far as his goals were concerned, but the race that eventually knocked him out of his saddle.

The Tech and Southwest Conference 800 meters champion. running for the Athletic Attic running club based in Florida, took a fifth place finish in the competition which didn't allow him to continue his quest for a berth on the U.S. Olympic Yet the race Mays ran, was marred by controversey, and one that he later protested to officials.

"It was really disappointing to me because I thought I had come so far-too far up the ladder for something like that to happen to me," said Mays of the race. We were coming down the final straightaway and Jerry West of UCLA just swung over into me while making his move and bumped me pretty good.

I didn't fall or even falter very long, but it was enough of a bump that it threw me off my timing and stride.

"I STILL have another chance next year at Tech since this is only my junior year, but it was dishearting to have worked so hard only for it to end that way. It (the race) was so important to me and that's why I decided to go ahead and file a protest of the race, but that didn't do any good-they didn't even consider it for very long.

"You see, they had already had quite a few protests already and I don't really think they wanted to belabor the point, or they didn't want to get an Olympic trial protest fad started for fear that it might get out of hand and become uncontrollable. So I don't think they really looked into it very much as a result of that, and I think they should have

"STILL, STUFF like that happens all the time in track-it's to be expected, and I've accepted the fact that it's all said and done with."

Even though Mays' highest expectations fell by the wayside with that bump, he still won't deny that he isn't going to make it to the very top because he has, as he puts it, put in too many long hours of preparation to give up and not

"The way I look at it. I've worked too hard-too long to let my running career just end because of something like that."

"I think the Lord gave me the talent I have and it would be a mockery not to try and develop that talent to its fullest potential. I'm not finished by a long shot. Of course, the way things are going, there might not be any Olympic games to strive for in the future since the boycott of the games has come about, but I know I won't be running all my life--so why a not make the best of it while I can:

REALISTICALLY, THERE are four more years until the next Olympics and depending on whether the Olympics still exist by that point, I can set my goals to get into those games. One thing is for sure. I enjoyed getting as far as I did this

"I had a great time at the Trials because I really had a more relaxed attitude about the competition than I had had in the past. Part of that was that there weren't any Kenyans competing this year-those Kenyans are tough runners and pretty much dreaded in the longer distance events. But for the most part, I felt more confident about my running. I had accepted the fact that I had to be pretty good or I wouldn't be there competing, and so the big name runners didn't psyche me out at all. They had their strategies of running the race and I had mine, I just had to mess up their plans a little bit."

MAYS CONTINUES to look at his track career with a little amazement and with good reason. It almost never came about because of a sport called basketball.

"I-still think back to my freshman year and then look at where I'm at today and can't help but think life works in funny ways. I signed up with the Tech basketball program that year, and even though I wasn't the greatest thing they had ever

"I still think back to my freshman year and then look at where I'm at today and can't help but think life works in funny ways. I signed up with the Tech basketball program that year. and even though I wasn't the greatest thing they had ever seen. I intended to make a go of it right up to the end. But then I met the guy who influenced me the most in thy track career. His name was Jesse Owens, and even though he's gone now. I can still envision him just as vividly as the day he picked me out of a crowd of athletes, and told me to quit basketball and run track. I've told this story to a thousand people it seems, but it's a very important one to me and one that turned my life around.

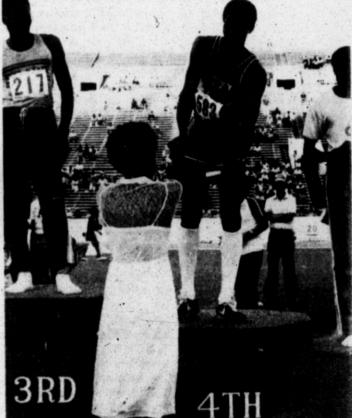

"He had come to Tech to talk to the student body, and he told me. "James, You've got a God given talent and it's not in basketball." So I then became a Tech trackster and have been ever since. I saw him one more time in the Drake Relays before he died and he still remembered me. He saw me there in the crowd at a parade and called me by my nickname "Jim.

And whether Owens (a former world champion Olympic contender) knew it at the time, he had just built an Olympic sized fire in a Hereford small town boy's heart, a fire that could only be snuffed out with an accomplishment in track equal to his own.

THE SPORTSWRITER thanked the talented trackster earnestly for the interview and concluded the conversation by sheepishly asking for an exclusive story the next time he made it into the big time.

"Sure, I'll give you a ring at about this same time in four years and it won't be because I got bumped next time!" Mays

By JIM COUR AP Sports Writer

EUGENE. Ore. (AP) - With only two days left in the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials, there still hasn't been a world record. But local boy Tom Hintmans tried his best Friday

Hintnaus thrilled the Hayward Field crowd of 16,029 on the sixth day of competition by taking three cracks at a world record pole vault height. He thought he was close on three of his bids at 18 feet, 111/2 inches. ...

Hintnaus, runnerup in the national milegiate championship meet for the University of Oregon this month, said he thought he had the world mark "on my last two attempts."

"I really think I can do 19 feet in Europe this summer,"

Hintnaus said. "It's something I'm really going to shoot for now. This really gave my confidence a shot in the arm." Hintnaus was born in Brazil and has dual U.S.-Brazilian ## Nastase in Trouble Again.

After Clash with Reporter

WIMBLEDON. England (AP) - Times may have changed for John McEnroe, but trouble still follows llie Nastase.

McEnroe. dubbed 'Superbrat" and booed by the spectators last year, is the new hero of Wimbledon's teenybopper fans. Nastase, perennial bad boy of tennis, is in trouble again.

The 1980 version of John McEnroe is a far cry from the brash, arrogant youth who used to alienate crowds and officials on both sides of the Atlantic and was regularly vilified by his hometown crowds in New York.

No more scowls, no angry outbursts at umpires. McEnroe is a changed man

But Nastase, bane of many an official, got himself into crouble with the police Friday after being involved in a brush with reporters that ended with one newsman's glasses being smashed.

Ironically, Nastase's oncourt behavior had beenimpeccable as he carved out a 4-6, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2 second-round victory over American Dick Stockton.

Nastase, however, is realistic enough to agree that his chances of winning here are minimal.

Not so with McEnroe, the 21-year-old left-hander and second seed, who battled back from the brink of defeat to edge little-known Australian Terry Rocavert 4-6, 7-5, 6-7, 7-6, 6-3.

Top-seeded Bjorn Borg had things a lot easier and scored a straight-set victory over Israeli Shlomo Glickstein 6-3. 6-1.7-5.

Seven other men's seeds saw action and all advanced. Americans Vitas Gerulaitis (No. 4), Roscoe Tanner (No. 5), Gene Mayer (No. 6), Peter Fleming (No. 7) and Stan Smith (No. 15) were successful, as were No. 8 Victor Pecci of Paraguay, No. 13 Wojtek Fibak of Poland and No. 16 Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina.

Gerulaitis beat Sashi Menon of India 6-7, 6-4, 7-5, 6-2; Tanner topped John Fitzgerald of Australia 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6; Mayer downed Andrew Jarrett of Britain 6-4, 6-4, 6-2; Fleming defeated Czech Stanislav Birner 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, and Smith won over Peter Feigl of Austria 4-6, 6-1, 7-6, 6-1.

All the men's seeds won. but four seeded women were defeated.

Reuss Gets No-Hitter Against San Francisco

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

It was a perfect game for Jerry Reuss - but not for the rest of the Los Angeles Dodgers, which is why it'll go into the books as just another no-hitter.

Reuss, a 31-year-old lefthander who came within three outs of a no-hitter eight years ago, when he was with Pittsburgh, got it Friday night as the Dodgers blasted Vida Blue and the San Francisco Giants 8-0.

In the rest of the National League, New York edged Philadelphia 3-2, Pittsburgh beat Montreal 6-4, Atlanta topped San Diego 5-3, Houston trimmed Cincinnati 5-4 and St. Louis defeated Chicago 3-2 in 12 innings.

But for a wild throw by shortstop Bill Russell on Jack Clark's routine grounder in the first inning, Reuss would have had a perfect game instead of the season's first no-hitter and the Dodgers' first since Bill Singer turned the trick in 1970.

Was he disappointed at missing out on perfection? Reuss was incredulous. "I just got a no-hitter!" he exclaimed. "What could be a bigger thrill?"

But Russell clearly was disappointed. "I threw it away," he said. "It was as simple as that. I thought there was nothing I could do about it. 'The perfect game's gone, so let's go after the nohitter."

And go after it Reuss did almost from the opening pitch. "I started thinking about it in the first inning,

His catcher, Steve Yeager, insisted he blocked the nohitter out of his mind, in effect admitting to being a victim of one of baseball's oldest superstitions. "I didn't think about it until he fielded the ball for the last out," he said. "I didn't want to jinx him."

"I felt the pressure," Reuss said. "I knew what was going on. I didn't want to make a mistake. When you're just trying to get someone out, you have a little leeway. But this was a no-hitter. I came close once or twice before and I didn't want to make a mistake.

"I've been in total control before but never with these results," he added.

Jim Lefebvre, the former Dodger now the batting coach of the Giants, was similarly impressed. "This was one of the most overpowering games I ever saw." Lefebvre, a Dodger when Singer worked his magic, said of Reuss' effort. "He literally knocked the bat out of our hitters' hands."

The Dodgers got a run in the first inning and made it 2-0 in the third, then blasted Blue from the mound in the fifth, getting seven hits and five runs with two outs.

Three of the runs came on Dusty Baker's homer. Steve Garvey homered in the seventh.

Pate Shooting Grass Off Memphis Course

AP Golf Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) - Miller Barber fears they may have to play the last two rounds of the $300,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic on a course that has no grass.

"Might not be any grass left," the 49-year-old Barber said in his fast-paced speaking delivery and, as he usually does, partially repeated himself.

"Yessir, might not be any left. Jerry Pate's shooting the grass off it, just shooting the grass off.'

Pate fired a 5-under-par 67 in the sweltering heat of Friday's second round and took a 2-shot lead into the last 36 holes of the chase for a $54,000 first prize. He's played the first two rounds in 133, 11 shots under par on the 7,249-yard Colonial Country Club course.

The 49-year-old Barber was tied for second with Lee Trevino and hard-hitting Tom Purtzer. They were at 135, nine under and two back.

That's very much within striking range. Only a couple of small lapses on Pate's part let them get that close, however. He failed to hold the green with a sand wedge shot from 80 vards and bogeved his final hole. And on his ninth hole, a par five, he went for the green in two, caught the water and made bogey six.

"That was a 2-stroke swing right there," said Pate, who, nevertheless, said he played "basically a solid round. I feel like my putting is certainly a strong point. - otherwise I wouldn't be 11 under. And I'm driving it better than I have in Barber finished with a 7-under-par 65 that matched the best round of the tournament. Trevino had a solid 68 despite an aching back. And Purtzer birdied all the par-5 holes on the way to a 68 in the muggy heat that sent the temperatures into

"You could really feel it," he said. "You bend over to mark the ball, then you straighten up and you have to wait just a minute to get your bearings.'

Morris Hatalsky finished his round of 68 birdie-birdie-eagle and was tied a 136 with Scott Simpson, who had a 67. Terry Mauney was alone at 137 after a 68.

Bruce Lietzke matched Barber's 65 and was tied at 138 with Leonard Thompson and Jim Simons. Thompson, who tied Pate for second in last week's Canadian Open, shot a 70 in the heat he said "really got to me; got me to feeling kind of weak late in the round."

Gil Morgan, the defending champion, shot another 73 and failed to qualify for the final two rounds with a 146 total. Trevino, who has played well most of the year, said he "was really hurting" from a chronic back problem, but was looking forward to the next two rounds. "When you're playing good, nothing hurts too bad," he said. "When you're playing bad, you can find all kinds of aches and pains. "I've been playing pretty good for the last few weeks. I've just come up with one bad round a tournament. That's why I haven't won."

preciate what Reuss did," said Blue, who hurled one of his own when he was with the Oakland A's. "Personally, I'm glad for him." Then, laughing, Blue added: "As as far as the Giants, go, though, I hate his guts."

· Left-handers have been driving New York slightly nuts this year. But when they everything was just fine.

"These guys always seem to rise to the occasion. They beat teams and guys they're not supposed to beat," Manager Joe Torre said after his Mets handed Philadelphia's 13-game winner, Steve Carlton, his third loss and second to New York this season. Carlton is 24-27 against the Mets in his career. The Mets have won only three of their last 13 games against lefties.

Lee Mazzilli hit a looping fly ball down which bounced over hard-charging left fielder Bake McBride and wound up as an inside-thepark homer to open the Mets' three-run sixth inning. Singles by Frank Taveras, John Stearns and Joel Youngblood made it 2-0, then Alex Trevino hit a sacrifice fly. The Phillies runs came on a single by Garry Maddox and Bob Boone's homer.

Pirates 6, Expos 4 The Mets' triumph could have helped Montreal widen its 21/4-game lead over the second-place Phillies in the East Division. Instead, that spread remained the same and third-place Pittsburgh, rising a four-run sixth inning against the Expos, pulled within 31/4 games of the front-runners. John Milner's two-run pinch-single was the big blow met the NL's best southpaw, win the sixth for the Pirates, who won for only the second time in their last 11 games.

Braves 5, Padres 3 "The team looks to me for defense. It's good when I can contribute, hitting-wise," shortstop Luis Gomez said after capping a four-run eighth with a two-run single that helped the Braves beat San Diego and halt a threegame slide. Gene Tenace had a homer for the Padres.

Astros 5, Reds 4 A double by Rafael Landestoy and a walk to Denny Walling preceded Jose Cruz's triple in the eighth inning as Houston wiped out the last vestiges of Cincinnati's four-run first-inning lead and beat the Reds.

Cards 3, Cubs 2

Keith Hernandez followed Garry Templeton's triple with a line single to right, snapping a 12th-inning tie with the Cubs and giving St. Louis its fifth successive victory. "I've got the feeling we're putting it all together," Hernandez said.

Costly New Orleans Plaza Proves Bomb With Tourists

NEW ORLEANS (AP) -Not even pigeons go to the Piazza d'Italia anymore.

The $2.3 million plaza complex - conceived as the architectural centerpiece of a center city revival - has been neglected by the city and ignored by tourist and resident alike.

Back in 1972, the piazza was the darling of then-Mayor Moon Landrieu's administration and the federal grant givers, who saw it as a city-owned "people place" - a magnet for commercial redevelopment of the decaying warehouse district along the Mississippi River. The piazza was jointly designed by acclaimed Los Angeles architect Charles W. Moore and local architect August Perez.

When the publicly funded part of the piazza was dedicated in 1978, the critics loved it, especially Moore's affectionate and irreverent pastiche of classicism. He gave the city pergolas, campaniles and neon-lit Corinthian columns.

One section of the piazza's intricate founțain system featured streams of water spritzing from a pair of grinning, satyric heads self-portraits of Moore

The long-range plan was to sign a developer to a $5.8 million deal to complete the commercial development. Ten months later, only one developer had responded, and the city rejected the bid. Anthony Mumphrey, Morial's man for city planning, said the piazza was built in the right place at the

No Sign of Panic Seen at TMI

By JILL LAWRENCE Associated Press Writer

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) There were no visible signs of panic around the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear power plant as officials prepared today to release radioactive gas that was trapped in the plant more than a year ago.

Many of the residents of the small towns around the plant said they would follow their normal routines during the emission of krypton gas from the containment building of the reactor, where the nation's worst commercial nuclear power accident occurred 15 months ago.

"I've heard of four families that are leaving, from my group of friends, but the majority are staying," said Anne Trunk of Middletown, who was on the President's Commission on Three Mile

"It's really pretty calm, which surprises 'me,' added.

Police reported only two or three families asked for checks on their homes over the weekend, which dispatcher Dane Kleinfelter called a normal number. A state police spokesman in Harrisburg said Friday "traffic was no heavier than normal on the way to work."

A volunteer at TMI Alert said the anti-nuclear group had received calls that thousands of people planned to leave. Kay Pickering said residents were also canceling outdoor activities.

The TMI Legal Fund, an anti-nuclear coalition based in Harrisburg, filed, a lastminute court appeal Friday to halt the process. The group petitioned the U.S. Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia to overturn its Thursday decision allowing the venting to proceed. At least six of the 10 judges on the court would have to agree to reverse the earlier decision, in order for a stay to be granted. The order denying the initial petition, signed by two judges, set a September hearing date for the case.

The purging of 57,000 curies of trapped krypton, the first step toward decontaminating the plant and allowing cleanup to begin, is expected to take two to four weeks. "I know of nothing that remains from a regulatory or operations standpoint' to stop the process, Met Ed vice president Robert Arnold said, adding, "It's still possible that some type of legal action could intervene. But all systems have been checked out and they are performing well."

The venting plan has drawn vehement opposition, although the NRC and most scientific groups said it poses no health hazard. The NRC said krypton emissions during the purge will result in radiation exposures far below federal safety limits.

King's Manor Residents Give Card Shower To Chaplain Kirby

By RUBY STEVENSON

Our Chaplain Rev. Wallace Kirby had a birthday. Folk of the Manor surprised him with a card shower. We appreciate his humor, the cheerful attitude he brings each day, as well as his presence in time of need. with genuine concern.

for folk of King's Manor. Seldom a day passes without some loved ones visiting. Everyone shares in the joy of anticipation of these visits. How wonderful for those unable to maintain a home to have this pleasure of sharing with the Manor family their families and friends. ## Alternative to Nursing Homes Offered by Ex-Green Thumber

For the past year Dimmitt resident Myrtle Behrends sought jobs for older workers' in six counties as an area leader for the Texas Farmers Union Green Thumb employment program. Now she is ready to take on a new project helping other senior citizens by sharing her home.

Mrs. Behrends is the first local resident to receive certification from the Department of Human Resources to care for older mildly-handicapped people in her home as an alternative to nursing home care.

"There are many older panionship and some assistance in obtaining medical care and nutritious meals,"

"However, they don't need the confinement or expensive medical care of a nursing home. This new alternative allows older persons to stay more active and involved in their community and at the same time, receive the minimal care they need."

Gary Ferguson from the DHR Alternate Care division pointed out that Mrs. Behrends is the first person to be certified in a four county area including Deaf Smith, Parmer, Castro, and Oldham counties. "She has her home ready to accept two elderly persons eligible for the foster program," he said. "I will permit them to use everything in my house." said Mrs. Behrends. "After all; this will be their home too. It will be my job to encourage them to be active. to take them to church if pointments and to community activities as desired. think each day we should get out in the car some."

Mrs. Behrends anticipate daily routines to include conversation times, television viewing and meals together. She wants her clients to be as independent as possible. Goals will be to meet social, personal and physical needs.

JoAn Mahaffey, Green Thumb area supervisor, said, "We are proud that Mrs. Behrends has taken this step and hope that other Green Thumb workers will consider this type of employment." Green-Thumb hires older Americans and places them in community jobs. Mrs. Behrends worked for the library one year as a Green Thumb worker, then moved into an area leader position

Don't Expect Too Much From Child

By LOUISE WALKER County Extension Agent Parental expectations may dictate success or failure in a

Parents have different expectations from their children. Some parents tend to be very rigid and set. parental expectations too high. As a result, the child is never able to experience success. The child always seems to fail.

When a child is faced with failure after failure, he becomes more disappointed in himself. Gradually, this disappointment gnaws away at the child and the way he feels about himself. His value or his worth in his own eyes goes down resulting in a low self-concept.

Other parents have more realistic expectations for their child. Hence, the child can achieve, can taste success and can receive praise. The child builds up good feelings about himself. He feels and knows he is worth a great deal and that other people see him as valuable -- resulting in a high self-concept.

The child with a high self-concept will feel more confident and see life in a more positive manner. He will want to try new things but will not be shattered if something doesn't work out. He will be friendly and able to mix with other children. In school, he will achieve and will not have to seek the attention of the teacher in a disruptive manner.

Parents must base expectations of children on the fundamental facts of child development. In other words, the parent should know what the child is able to do at a particular age. For instance, parents can't expect an 18-month-old to keep all his food on the high-chair tray or expect a three-year-old to

Extension Club Convenes For Small Coffee

North Hereford Extension Homemakers Club, though not in session, held a small coffee in the home of Roberta Campbell recently.

Mrs. Campbell had on display for the club members to view a pineapple she had set out five years ago and which had a small pineapple growing out of the top of it.

Those present at the coffee were Louise Walker, Argen Draper, Brenda Campbell with daughters, Martha Lueb, Elvelyn Crofford, Peg Hogg, Lilah Grubb, Bell Reed, and Edith Higgins.

always do everything he is told to do. It is equally absurd 'to expect a 6- or 8-year-old to keep a spotless, well-ordered bedroom. Some children might, but the "average" child will not.

There are many ways to find out the basic facts. Many parents get together in small groups on a regular schedule to discuss their concerns and to learn from one another the various aspects of child development.

After considering the basic or general facts of child development, check your own expectations against these

One way to accomplish this task is to catch yourself when you yell at or otherwise correct your child. -Keep a small notepad handy and make a note about the incident. -At the end of the day, survey your list and notice those things the child did that should have a clear idea of your expectations. Now check them against the basic facts of child development and your own child's development. With some creative thinking, you should be able to adjust, if necessary, your parental expectations.

HOW ARE YOUR SHOPPING SKILLS?

I plan weekly menus. I plan meals to include weekly newspaper specials. I compare brands for the best buys. I compile a grocery list based on my menus. I am flexible and include unadvertised specials. I read food labels. I check expiration dates on food products. I go shopping alone if possible.

I organize my shopping list to go with the order of the store aisles. I buy only what I can store and use before spoilage. I occasionally buy in quantity for the freezer when I find specials.

I store food properly as soon as I return from the market. .I watch the checkout cashier to see actual amounts charged. I examine produce carefully for damage. I do not go to the grocery store with an empty stomach. . There are many more shopping tips than the 15 listed above, but each statement should have received a "yes" answer. If you have less than 12 "yes" answers, you can be sure you are not using your time, energy or money efficiently. Study the statements and map out a different and better strategy for your trips to the market. Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion, or-national origin.

BACK FROM THE DEAD AND FRYING FISH Later Jesus appeared again to the disciples beside the lake of Galilee. This is how it happened:

A group of us were there - Simon Peter, Thomas, "The Twin," Nathanael from Cana in Galilee, my brother James and I and two other disciples.

Simon Peter said, "I'm going fishing." "We'll come too," we all said. We did, but caught nothing all night:

At dawn we saw a man standing on the beach but couldn't see who he was.

He called, "Any fish, boys?"

"No," we replied.

Then He said, "Throw out your net on the right-hand side of the boat, and you'll get plenty of them!" So we did, and couldn't draw in the net because of the weight of the fish, there were so many!

Then I said to Peter, "It is the Lord!" At that, Simon Peter put on his tunic (for he was stripped to the waist) and jumped into the water (and swam ashore).

The rest of us stayed in the boat and pulled the loaded net to the beach, about 300 feet away.

When we got there, we saw that a fire was kindled and fish were frying over it, and there was bread.

"Bring some of the fish you've just caught," Jesus said. So Simon Peter went out and dragged the net ashore. By his count there were 153 large fish; and yet the net hadn't "Now come and have some breakfast!" Jesus said; and none of us dared ask Him if He really was the Lord, for we were quite sure of it. Then Jesus went around serving us the bread and fish.

This was the third time Jesus had appeared to us since His return from the dead.

hits, "Golden Years" is a spectacle of music, lighting. costumes, skits and staging. In its debut last summer, "Golden Years" was seen by more than 10,000 people as it toured 20 cities throughout West Texas and parts of New Mexico. The two summers before that, SPC put on its first road show, Texas Craddle of Giants."

In this year's show the first half will focus on the early years of country music, from the 30's through the prime of Johnny Cash. Music will include a fiddle medley,

"Devil's Dream," "Arkansas Traveler," "Old Joe Clark." "Turkey in the Straw" and "Sally Good'n;"

"Faded Love," "San Antonio Rose" and "Take Me Back to Tulsa'; made famous by Bob Wills; "Jambalaya" by Hank Williams and medlies by Flatt & Scruggs. Elvis Presley and Buddy Holly.

The second half will being country music up to date with music made famous by Eddie Rabbitt, "Suspicions;" "Have You Left the One You Left Me For" by Crystal Gayle; Tom T. Hall's "Old Dogs and Children" and the Gatlin Brothers "All the Gold in California," plus many Eight veteren performers are returning to this year's show. Two are originals who've been with SPC's road show since they were begun in the summer of 1977. John Hartin, director of SPC's country/bluegrass program, is back on guitar and Scott Yarbrough, an SPC' student from Levelland returns asvocalist and dancer.

This year's production is highlighted by a basic rhythm section, which will be a mainstay of the show, a full string section and full vocal section as well. "Its patterned more after the modern country sound," says steel guitarist Tim McCasland. "The whole second act is going to be contemporary music, more of a Nashville based sound," he explained. - Elegant costuming, multi levels of staging and multi-colored lighting also will add to the effect of a polished, professional country music show, says the show's writer, Helen Roberts, SPC assistant professor of speech and drams. She also is handling choreography, costumes, lighting and special effects with help from the crew. The female vocalists in the show, Jona Valentine of Tahoka and Natalie Berryhill of Wellman, will be featured this year on more tunes made popular by their sex.

Natalie does a Carter Family medley, "Wildwood Flower." "Keep on the Sunnyside." and "Will the Cirble Be Unbroken;" and 'The Coat of Many Colors" by Delly Parton; Jona does a

Lessons From History In New Book

By SHARON CHAMPION Deaf Smith County

Librarian Two non-fiction best sellers are among the new books available at the Deaf Smith County Library this week. In his book. THE REAL WAR. Richard, Nixon says, "We must face up to the stark reality. World War III has begun and we are losing it." It is a war we can win, he declares, and, from his unique perspective as the former chief executive of the nation, he tells us how we can use our political, economic, and military strengths to turn the tide. Ranging the world, he utilizes the lessons of history from the Mongolian invasion of Russia to the revolution in Iran. Surveying the economic scene, he analyzes the interdependence of the nations of the earth. Drawing on his insider's knowledge as former commander-in-chief of our armed forces, he assesses the relative military capabilities of the nations of the world. Richard Nixon presents an Anteresting view of the present and the future of the world in THE REAL WAR.

HEARTSOUNDS by Martha Weinman Lear is a love story and a medical drama. Harold Lear, a prominent- surgeon, was stricken at age 53 by a massive heart attack. Then came more heart attacks. open-heart surgey and postsurgical complications which defied diagnosis. Martha Lear was a journalist. Suddenly the doctor was a powerless patient, viewing all of medicine from the other side. What he saw astonished and outraged him. Suddenly the journalist was both reporter and participant in a terrifying medical drama. This is a powerful, moving book in which the reader learns something more about about oneself. STRICTLY MURDER is the story of Scotland Yard's Murder Squad, told through over thirty of its most celebrated cases. It is written by Tom Tullett, one of Britain's top crime reporters, who was himself covered many of the cases he describes and known many of the detectives whose work he This book provides a fascinating insight into police methods of work and the enormous patience and skill that are often needed to bring a murderer to justice.

Also on the new book shelf will be THE CRUELEST NIGHT by Christopher Dobson, John Miller, and Ronald Payne. THE CRUELEST NIGHT reveals, for the first time, the full story of the worst of all sea tragedies, the sinking by a Russian submarine of the German ocean line "Wilhelm Gustloff' in the Baltic Sea in 1945. #### At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

A lot of women sitting out there today contemplating marriage are saying to themselves, "Could I make a serious commitment to a man who doesn't dance?'

Dancing in a marriage is important. It's one of the few things you do together in public that makes you remember why you got married.

. A few naive little fools say, "I'll get him to dance after we're married." Oh, sure. And you're going to grow hair on his bald spot and put a volume button on his snoring. My husband's feet have been under the table so long, they wilt

We were out the other night when the orchestra began to play and the three other couples at the table got up to dance. He looked over at me. "You don't have to look like you just became eligible for the orphan's picnic. What possible kick can you get out there on a crowded floor dancing backwards? I tell you dancing is a fad. In another ten years it'll be out!' "You said that about sirloin and electricity."

"Look at them." he said. "Do you think they're having a good time? That fella is shoving that woman back and forth like he's moving a piano.'

"It wouldn't hurt you to dance one dance with me." He got out his watch, looked at it, and then said, "Okay,

Do not be misled. He had no intention of dancing. He was setting me up for the old modern-equation-for-non-dancers trick. This is the way it works. First, he calculates the distance from the table to the dance floor. This is divided by how many seconds are left for the song to be finished. If the first number is larger than the second, he can fill in by helping you out of your chair, buttoning his coat, stopping by a table to say hello to someone he thought he knew, or getting lost on the way to Whatever, he made it to the dance floor just in time to strike a pose and her the music stop. When the music started again, he looked at me and said, "If you think I'm going to be the only one on the floor dancing to the theme from Star Wars, you're crazy.'

"How do you do that?" I asked.

Dowhat?" Figure out just the precise moment the music will stop." 'The same way you know the bases are loaded with two outs and the batter has a count of three and two, and you turn off the TV set and announce, 'DINNER!" Marriage. It all comes down to timing.

The two fold purpose of the event (now becoming an (annual affair) is to give people a first hand opportunity to see King's Manor, visit with residents and staff, ask questions, and through their purchase of a barbecue ticket, make a contribution toward the continued care of some 48 residents who on a fixed income need help.

The manor provides approximately $60,000 a year subsidy (free eare) for those residents who cannot afford their full cost of care.

A part of this money has been provided in the past by concerned individuals and an organization called the Founders Association. Due to and a good workbench.

After pinpointing the space for a shop, the most important consideration is lighting. If you try to work with inadequate lighting you'll do a poor job. Begin by painting the walls and ceiling white. This is the least expensive and most least expensive and most satisfactory way to increase light level. Fluorescent fixtures are best for overall

The size of your work-bench will depend on the space you have, but its height should be even with your hipbone so that you don't have to stoop over it. Child Killer

For children, cancer is responsible for more deaths in the 3- to 14-year-old group than any other disease. In 1977, cancer accounted for the deaths of about 3,000 children, roughly half of them from acute lymphocytic leukemia, a cancer of blood-forming tissues. $************

Thinking about the possi-. bility of spending the rest of her life in the U.S., Miss Walker said she "might become a citizen,"

In the prime of her life, Miss Walker wants to have all opportunities open to her. In her current status, the girl is able to work either in the U.S. or Canada. If she were to become a citizen of the U.S., she would lose all privileges of home.

'People probably don't understand my situation. A lot of them consider that if' this country, you owe it to making money off the American's or I'm not abusing any of the American rights. I like the U.S.," the resident pleadingly stated hoping people would understand her.

Born in London, Ontario, in 1954; Miss Walker was graduated from Strathroy District High School in Ontario in 1972. . The local resident would like someday to work for a bigger hospital due to the advancement of specialized test and techniques used by larger hospitals. She intends to further her education to update her knowledge in the medical field.

The waiting period for Miss Laing consisted of gathering and providing proof of her high school and college education, and prov ing that the local hospital couldn't get help from area cities or towns, determining. whether Miss Laing would have taken a position at the hospital that an American citizen should have.

The perkiness of the young girl was overwhelming as she explained her transition into the United States.

"I flew down with my four suitcases and mother!" she stated with a smile, adding that she brought her mother along to help her get settled into her new home, .

After her mother's stay of one week, the adventurous girl felt she was ready to handle the ups and downs of adjusting to not only a new town, but new country. "I can't say Hereford was pretty, but it was, different and that made it real interesting. The people were extremely friendly and I feel that if it hadn't been for the friends I had made here I probably wouldn't have staved this long," the attractive brown-eved. brown-hair girl said with a sense of belonging in her

She was quick to add, "It smelled bad."

A perception of loneliness was evident when the Canadian described her home country.

"It was so weird coming from a place where you can walk out your front door and see miles of water (referring to Lake Erie). The vast trees and folling hills are so beautiful back home," she

Only planning to stay in the U.S. for a year, Miss Laing recalls thinking that if someone had told her she would marry a Téxan, she would have told them they were crazy. She went further to explain this statement with the announcement of her planned marriage to local resident Pat Brinkman, born and raised Texas!

The couple plans to marry Sent. 6 in Amherstburg. Ontario, then make residence lic Church.

Bull-Sitting to China Provides Colorful Tale

BY JIM TEEL

Associated Press Writer HOUSTON (AP) - West Texas 'country boy Wes Johnson is back from his bull-sitting trip to China and has some pretty tall tales about the unexpected exercise in international diplomacy.

The Houston radio newscaster accompanied the 1,600-pound Brahman that was Texas cattleman John Joyce's gift to Chinese vice premier Deng Xiaoping.

"I'm a pretty humble human being, but this really got to me," said Johnson. whose "aw, shucks" attitude. helped earn him a berth on board a freighter to Shanghai.

The saga began when 34year-old Johnson, assistant news director of countrywestern station KIKK, called, Joyce to find out who would accompany the taurine gift named Mr. Sugarata.

The bull gained national attention after Chinese officials took more than a year to acknowledge the gift and make arrangements for 'its transportation to China.

Joyce had announced he was looking for a bull-sitter to take the expense-paid boat trip and his office was immediately flooded with 500 hopeful callers.

"I thought I'd give whoever it was a call and see what the trip would be like," Johnson said.

Joyce told Johnson over the phone that the bull-sitter hadn't been chosen and the radioman jokingly volunteered his services.

"The furthest thing from my mind was going to China," he said.

But within five days the self-confessed landlubber and his wife boarded ship.

Joyce explained that he chose Johnson because he was one of the few local applicants and because he had some experience handling cattle on his family's. farm while growing up.

"He wasn't just interested in a free trip," Joyce said. The other applicants ranged from a retired banker in California to a registered nurse in New York and included a half dozen veterinarians.

Johnson paid the extra $1,200 fare for his wife and the two set sail with Mr. Sugarata on March 26.

The newscaster recalls the journey through the Panama Canal with a mixture of humor and wide-eyed excitement of an innocent

The country boy soon decided a boat was no place for bulls and bull-sitters.

"I swore that I would never again step on anything that floats," Johnson said after the ship plunged through the choppy Pacific. "I was the sickest I've ever been."

The bull, enclosed in a pen on deck, appeared to reflect the same attitude, Johnson

Johnson remembers the next eight days of sightseeing as a "schedule so hectic, I barely had time to breathe.'

"They told me they would take care of everything," Johnson said. "Boy, did they."

Johnson was taken to the resort town of Hangzhou and then to Peking. His tour included full days of concerts, banquets, parks and historical sights.

"It was sometimes real interesting and sometimes extremely boring," said whose only Johnson, previous trips outside the United States were quick visits to Mexican border towns. The 6-foot-4 Texan who stepped off the boat with cowboy boots and hat soon discovered he was more of a sight than a sightseer.

"All I had to do to attract a crowd was slow down," he said. "And, the longer I stayed still, the bigger the crowd grew."

Johnson returned to Houston in late May, almost . 16 months after Joyce first gave the bull to Deng during the vice premier's visit to Texas in 1979.

The bull will remain in quarantine for 60 days before being introduced in China's cattle breeding program as the first full-blooded Brah-

University's Soap Opera Course Proves Popular

MADISON, Wis. (AP) Jessie's trials of murder and marriage, Tara's treachery and Faith's faith are favorite topics among fans of TV soap operas, whether they meet in daytime kaffee klatsches or on midnight shifts at the

But Snapper and Chris and Tara and Chuck are also subjects of serious lectures and discussions in Suzanne Pingree's popular course, "Soap Operas and Social Change," at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Ms. Pingree says social scientists have overlooked the considerable influence wielded by all those characters who are young and restless, who search for tomorrow or who have days in their lives.

"There's potential for soap operas to say relevant things to women about changing society. And men, too," said Ms. Pingree, who has a Ph .-D. in communications from Stanford and lectures in the women's studies program

"There's an analogy between soaps and the women's or lifestyle pages of newspapers," she said. "They both provide a forum for presentation of women's rarely treated elsewhere in the media."

Although the popularity of the evening series "Dallas" points toward more soapy prime-time programming, Ms. Pingree said daytime drama remains much more realistic than prime time in both content and form.

She said soap operas, unlike prime time, concentrate on interpersonal relationships rather than action and adventure. Soaps feature more verbal than physical violence. And soaps have stories that never end, rather than the neatly tied-up prime-time packages.

Perhaps even more important, Ms. Pingree said, daytime TV shows have equal numbers of men and women rather than the maledominated casts of evening programming.

"There are many strong role models on soaps, strong competent women who don't need to rely on men," she said.

She added that daytime male figures generally provide more sensitive portrayals of men than the action-geared heroes of prime time.

Ms. Pingree said the three hours of college credit earned 120 students after 30 were marries. turned away - are perfectly legitimate because of the importance of soap operas in modern society.

The daily soap opera audience consists of about 26 million households, about 20 percent male, and Ms. Pingree says the audience is growing rapidly among men. of all ages and women in the 18-24 and 50-plus age

Ms. Pingree said the soap opera fan is unfairly sterotyped as a dingy housewife who throws a wedding reception when her

In fact, she says, soaps are seen by more than half the women in the United States, although very few watch even one daytime drama as often as three days a week.

Crew Chiefs Say Workers Get Fair Pay

By JIM STEIERT

Brand Farm Editor The steady snick of shears clipping away the most clumps and gren tops of omions was more audible than the urgings of madside strikers, and for two cnews working acreage owned by Griffin & Brand here late in the week, the immediate concern was to get narvest ready omions in field sacks to are before the oppressive June heat trews had their first encounter with a Texas Farm Workers Union-hacked strike here on Wednesday when TFW organizers and. supporters, along with attorneys from the Texas Rural Legal Aid office approached a field in which nearly 200 individuals were working and called for the laborers to leave the field.

Over an hour of demonstrating virtually emptied the field. Some of those that had been working the onions joined the protesters. Others simply went home to avoid any problems concerning the issue.

A day later, however, many of the members of those same two work crews were back in the field.

For many, the attitude concerning the clamor over the strike and the attention that has been focused on the area because of it was simply, "The onions are ready, the work is here, and I want to work."

When the strike came Wednesday workers for Griffin & Brand were receiving 45 cents per bushel for gathering onions, and that piecework wage had been hiked to 50 cents when workers returned on Thursday.

Crew bosses supervising the labor in the onion field late in the week maintained that the 50 cent per bushel rate was adequate for the work being done, and one estimated his workers were making as much as $4.50 per hour for their labor, contrary to claims by TFW strikers and TRLA attorneys that the rate being paid for piecework in the onion fields was below the $3.10 minimum wage.

Ciro Casarez, one of the crew bosses for Griffin & Brand reported that Wednesday's strike activity cost him about 40 members of his crew, but another 50 crew members were back in the fields Thursday morning. clipping and sacking onions.

According to Casarez, his workers were averaging eight sacks of onions per hour as they resumed working for Griffin & Brand.

"The people who are out here want to work." Casarez stated flatly. DomingoCortez, a second crew boss in the Griffin & Brand field reported he has worked with the local vegetable packer and shipper for approximately 15 years as a labor leader.

"If the onions are poor, Griffin & Brand will give us more money for gathering them. They have been fair to us," stated Cortez.

"The people out here are willing to work for the 50 cent per bushel rate. If the strikers paid our bills we might strike, but we don't see them paying anyone's bills," he added.

According to Cortez, his crew members were averaging over $3.50 per hour prior to the arrival of TFW pickets on Wednesday, with some making as much as $4.

In a similar field on Thursday, Cortez reported some workers would be making as much as $4.50 an hour, * and he pointed out that one worker who bagged 32 bushels in three hours was making $5 per hour.

Cortez reported that his loss of laborers to the union pickets was minimal following Wednesday's work interruption. He had 80 workers in the field when pickets arrived Wednesday, and late in the week he estimated his crew at 65-70.

Strike Shocks Shed Managers

Brand Farm Editor

Rumors that a Texas Farm Workers Union-led strike was coming circulated among the vegetable production industry of the area for nearly three years before it came to pass, but when it finally did happen on Tuesday of the past week the secourrence still shocked and surprised many local vegetable packing firm officials.

TFW picketing began at a field owned by the Howard Gault Co. west of Hereford on Tuesday morning, spread to onion acreage owned by Griffin & Brand here on Wednesday, and reached a stalemate of kinds at Griffin & Brand fields an Thursday and Friday as workers ignored pickets and gathered in the onion crop.

The labor dispute comes at a time when the High Plains aspects of high production costs and low returns on Growers here put in their most expensive onion crop ever this year and the cost of the numerous enemicals and the matural gas used to pump the irrigation water to nurture the crop reached staggering proportions.

Now, with the prospects for any return on the crop hinging on getting produce out of the fields and to market in a critically short time period, local packers and producers are not happy about the spectre of delays which loomed large during the past week.

Packers and shippers are also taken aback by claims that they are paying below the minimum wage for work in the omion fields here, maintaining that the piecework rate they setten gives laborers more than the $3.10 per hour m wage TFW proponents have argued laborers are

To top it all off, local packers are unhappy about the less than inconspicuous posture taken by attorneys for the Texas Rural Legal Aid office here during strike activities of the past

Cameron Gault, part owner of the Howard Gault Co. shed here reached a settlement with TFW spokesmen for a hike from 45 to 60 cents in the per bushel piecework rate for harvesting onions Thursday, but Gault maintains that agreement is for a "special situation" involving a limited acreage of exceptionally small onions.

He says he'll go back to the going rate being paid by other the pasters when the small onions are harvested. "I don't think the strike activity of the past week has changed the picture all that much for the local produce industry." stated Gault. We we lost some of our product and the proceedings have increased our cost. I hope we can go on now and get the onion crop harvested. ( 100 prohibitive, we'll anve no thouse but to leave the crop in the field," said Gault. Questioned about the role of TRLA attorneys in the fields during the past week, Gault commented, "I had no idea-TRIA attorneys were that close to being a part of it. I'was surprised to see their presence."

When asked if TFW pickets raised valid points in their field demonstrations. Gault responded, "If workers are not making the minimum wage, certainly they're raising valid points. Certainly we in the produce industry expect workers should receive the minimum wage. But definitely, their arguments were anyalid for the fields in which the piecework rate allows them to make the minimum wage." Gast added. "I'd say also that this onion clipping and harvesting cost has never been a hard and fast rule as to what is going to be paid. A field has always had to stand on its own merit. Every year we have price variation in what's going to be paid depending on the size and quality of the onions.

Jack Griffin of Griffin & Brand here vowed "I don't intend to meet with the TFW or its representative Jesus Moya." Griffin & Brand fields were being picketed late in the week, however harvesting was progressing. They are using the same tactics as tho. used in the Walley. They're apparently not having that much affect on our people though, because the crews are at work," said Griffin:

"I don't expect this to change our industry. Whatever sales we can get in the onion industry we need. It is one of our better crops, yet there are very few people who will even break even in them this year. All I plan to do is just go on with business the best we can." he continued.

Griffin reported that Wednesday's strike activity at Griffin & Brand fields here may have cost that firm as many as 1,000

"They were big onions and may have netted $1.50 per bag or so, stated Griffin. Wes Fisher of Barret-Fisher Co. here professed particular unhappiness with TRLA activities in conjunction with field (See STRIKE Page 3-C)

While local packers and other critics of the Texas Rural Legal Aid office here were chagrined over activities of TRLA attorneys in relation to the farm strike which surfaced in Hereford Tuesday a spokesman for the local office emphasized to The Brand during the past week that attorneys were fulfilling their role of providing "legal advice and assistance" during the cour-se of the demonstrations. Particularly galling to local packers were TRLA attorney activities on Tuesday of last week when members of the Texas Farm Workers. Union. led by Jesus Moya of the Rio Grande Valley began picketing a field west of town owned by the Howard Gault TRLA attorney Edward Tuddenham was present at that field and during the course of picketing activities Tuddenham became engaged in a conversation with Allejo. Aguillon, crew boss for the Gault Co. at the field.

Aguillon told Tuddenham,

"Mr. Gault is a good man and he really cares about the people and the way they are treated.

Tuddenham snapped, "If Mr. Gault is so concerned about the people working for him and how they are treated, then why in he hell doesn't he get off his butt and negotiate?" Tuddenham was later observed with Moya when pickets were up in the street south of the Gault shed, advising Moya about the name of the producer he was picketing.

Fast-Paced Wheat Harvest Moves Ahead Locally

By JIM STEIERT - Brand Farm Editor

Searing 100-degree plus temperatures continue to stress the local corn crop and have further hastened the ripening of the local wheat crop as harvesting of that commodity is underway here.

Ultra-rapid ripening of the wheat has proven detrimental to test weights in many instances.

The bulk of wheat harvesting operations should close our here this week according to-spokesmen for local elevators.

There have been some bright spots in a generally lackluster harvest, with some isolated dryland wheat yields of 50 bushels, per acre reported

The fact that irrigated wheat in the same area produced only 55 bushels per acre points out the poor overall wheat yields that are more common here this summer however.

Joe Artho of Dereford Grain Corporation stimated that wheat harvesting will continue for roughly another week.

Wheat was a little light as harvesting began but test weights are improving now. We haven't heard much from farmers coming in here about their yields," stated Artho.

who reported that test this year and should close out weights range from 54 to 62 pounds per bushel.

To the south of Hereford, Gene King at Easter Grain termed wheat yields "disappointing." reporting that yields in that area are ranging from 45 to 59 bushels per acre on irrigated land.

"The wheat isn't nearly so good as we had hoped for. We should finish early this week, except for some isolated fields," said King.

Lewis Fanning of Dawn Co-Op reported that wheat is 'lighter than usual' in the area to the east of Hereford and yields "are" not what they've been in the past,",

Irrigated wheat vields were listed in the 50 bushel per acre range in that area.

Harold Dillehay, manager of Farmer's Elevator, five miles north of Dawn indicated that wheat test weights in that area vary from 51-64 pounds per bushel.

"Seems like the dryland wheat around here is awfully good, but not the irrigated wheat. Dryland yields have gone as high as 50 bushels per acre, but about the best irrigated wheat yield I've heard of is 55 bushels. The best wheat in this area is yet to come though. Wheat harvest is later in this area five to seven days into July."

Those directly involved know the score. If folks aren't getting the wage to which they are entitled correction needs to be made, and those in the packing industry here will be among the first to admit that, I think.

I noted a disturbing trend in the picketing of local sheds as the strike got underway here during , the past week, however.

To those who spoke vehemently on the bullhorns, I say this:

Final Hopper Spraying Preparations are Made

By JIM STEIERT Brand Farm Editor

Final preparations for a grasshopper .cooperative . spraying) program in the western portion of Deaf' Smith County are underway with spraying expected to begin possibly as soon as this week.

According to Eldred Brown, county grasshopper control committee chairman, flags were being erected to mark the area to be sprayed late last week.

Contracts have been let for spraying the 152.154 acres of rangeland in Deaf Smith County to be involved in the program.

First spraying of grasshoppers under the USDA's cooperative control program began Tuesday on about 771.000 acres of Panhandle rangeland.

The program is a cooperative effort between the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. the Texas Department of Agriculture, and private landowners, with each group picking up one third of the tab for the cost of the control

Panhandle rangeland in Deaf Smith, Parmer, Randall. Oldham. Hartley. Donley, Armstrong and Briscoe counties is included in the program which involves spraying grassland with the pesticide malathion.

According to Bill Stagner of APHIS, more than 900,000 acres of Texas rangeland will be sprayed under the cooperative program before the end of the summer.

Spraying is timed to kill hoppers after they have hatched and before they begin egg laying.

Cooperative programs for treating rangeland grasshoppers are already underway in Oklahoma, Nebraska, Wyoming and Arizona.

According to APHIS officials, three conditions were required to be met to qualify areas for the cooperative hopper control program.

A population of at least eight adult grasshoppers per square yard was necessary. and treatment blocks were required to contain no more than 10 percent cropland, with the blocks to be in 10,000 acre units; or in a configuration to completely encompass an infestation.

During heavy outbreaks, grasshoppers may strip rangeland down to the soil. As few as eight per square yard can consume as much grass as a cow on ten acres.

The largest tracts of rangeland to be treated here are located in the far western portion of the county.

Additional rangeland in the eastern portion of the county which is also to be sprayed is included in a Randall County program.

available for farmers to borrow, the greatest concern is the cost of that money and the income that it might generate, says Anderson. With the current cost-price squeeze, farmers and ranchers will be hard-pressed to repay high-cost loans.

All this is putting a growing number of agricultural operators in financial stress, particularly young farmers and those depending heavily on credit capital to run their farming business.

It's also changing the financial potential of operators using a lot of credit compared with more conservative farmers that depend less on credit and more on debt-free capital. When the Inflation boosts the net worth of assets which helps support weak cash flow statements. But interest While money is generally • rates higher than inflation shifts the financial situation in favor of the operator with a large proportion of equity in his business and little debt.

> The cost-price squeeze places a premium on financial management skills of farmers, contends the economist. Some operators will reduce their dependence upon credit capital to minimize financial risk by reducing replacement livestock and machinery purchases. Farm expansion will also slow down and marginal cropland may revert to grassland for grazing livestock.

However, prolonged inflation strongly favors landowners relative to tenant operators. Farming systems using the least amount of inputs for maximum returns and minimum tillage practices gain more rapid acceptance.

Pressures from the costprice squeeze also encourage forward pricing. More producers decide to contract for an agreed price upon delivery. Hedging in the futures market is an alternative for some individuals who understand this forward pricing strategy. It is easier to finance an operation when assured a reasonable price for at least a part of the expected crop or livestock production. High money costs also encourage farmers to sell at harvest time to avoid storage and interest

Will production efficiency be enough to keep today's farm business competitive? Investments are climbing, inflation keeps pushing input prices higher and margins keep strinking. We all need that few extra cents per bushel or few dollars per head of livestock to stay competitive and the way modern farmers are doing that is by doing a better job of market-

This summer FGL-Hereford will conduct marketing clinics at our offices to help you and other farmers sharpen those marketing skills. These workshops will cover the following topics and much more:

How to time sales on cash markets; when and when not to use the futures markets

How to use the futures market in a hedging program for grains and livestock

How to read commodity price charts in forecasting future price direction

How to spot fundamental facts and what they mean to prices

What is the current outlook? Where do you go from here in developing a 1980-81 marketing strategy?

Historic Artificats Given Ranch Heritage Center

LUBBOCK - A landmark barn from the 6666 Ranch, articles once the personal possessions of the famed Indian Chief Quanah Parker, and furniture once, used by the legendary Burk Burnett have been given for display at the Ranching Heritage Center in Lubbock.

Jim Humphreys, chairman of the Board of Overseers of the Ranching Heritage Association, made the announce-. ment. Humphreys said that Mrs. B.F. Phillips of the 6666 made the gift to the association, memorializing the contributions made to the ranching industry by Samuel Burk Burnett, his son, Thomas Lovd, and Tom Burnett's daughter, Anne Burnett Tandy

Mrs. Phillips, the daughter of Mrs. Tandy, now operates the Burnett ranches -- the Four Sixes Ranch at Guthrie, the Dixon Creek Ranch in the Panhandle, and the Triangle Ranches.

Humphreys said that Mrs. Phillips' gifts included about $250,000 for restoration of the barn and establishment of the exhibits. He said he anticipated completion of the project in about one year.

The 3.512-square foot barn, built about 1908, had become a landmark on Highway 82 with the brand prominently displayed. Willard B. Robinson, professor of architecture at Texas Tech University, said it will be restored and used as a small theater at the Ranching Heritage Center.

The center is a 12-acre outdoor exhibit at The Museum of Texas Tech University, and it depicts the history of ranching in America.

'I am personally very pleased that the Four Sixes barn is to become a part of The Museum," the president said.

Burk Burnett was a man who earned the trust of all who knew him--other men in the cattle industry, the Indians with whom he dealt. and the president whobecame his friend." Dr. Cavazos said. "It is indeed fitting that the Burnett traditions become a part of the Ranching Heritage Center to instruct future generations of their western

"Mrs. Phillips' generous gifts will be used by the university to help those traditions live on.'

In addition to the barn, Mrs. Phillips is giving items presented to her great grandfather, Burk Burnett, by his friend, Chief Quanah Parker, and these are to be on display at the center.

The furnishings are from Burk Burnett's bedroom and include a bedside table and chest which were in the original Four Sixes ranch house when he bought what was then known as the Eight Ranch property from the Louisville Land and Cattle Co. of Louisville, Ky.

It was in 1870 that he bought his own herd of cattle and the famous 6666 brand from a man named Frank Crawley. It was in this year also, when he was about 21 years old, that he married Ruth Loyd, daughter of Capt. M.B. Loyd of Fort Worth. The L brand, acquired by Burnett from his father-inlaw is the Sixes' horse brand.

The barn given to be restored at the Ranching Heritage center was used primarily in later years for the famous Burnett Estates' quarter

> Another of the furnishings given for display is a brass bed brought to Texas from Mssouri when Jerry and Mary Turner Burnett moved, with their 10 children, to Denton County in 1860. Other items are a chandelier and rug which came from the Burnetts' Fort Worth home.

The Burnett story is told in multi-projection slide presentation commissioned by Anne Phillips. A copy of this production also has been given to the Ranching Heritage Association for showing at the center. The date for the first showing has not been set.

Narrated by Rex Allen, the presentation chronicles the Burnett family history, including Burk Burnett's first trip up the Chisholm trail in the spring of 1868 when he was 19.

It was in 1881 that Burnett began negotiations with Quanah Parker, the Comanche chief, and other tribal leaders to obtain grazing rights. In 1898 the federal government ordered the removal of livestock from the Kiowa - Comanche open lands.

Burnett went to Washington and met with President Theodore Roosevelt, and stockmen were granted a deferral until 1902. Later, in 1905, the Burnetts were hosts for a 10-day wolf hunt with President Roosevelt as the honored guest.

Considered always a good judge of men, Burk Burnett remained the lifelong friend of Chief Parker and of Roosevelt, at the same time. acquiring the devoted loyalty of his foremen and cowboys. At the marketplace his word was considered as good as a contract.

One stockbuyer has been quoted as saying that his word was as good as gold, and a lot of business was done with less formality than a handshake. One tradition he established early, that of family management of the Burnett operations. Tom Burnett at the age of 4 was riding with his father, learning the business from his childhood on. Mrs. Tandy also took a personal interest in ranching operations, and Mrs. Phillips is following in the same

Fiber Processing Lab Keeps Cotton Competitive

RALEIGH--A modern facility here that can convert a bale of cotton into yarn is helping show textile mills that cotton growers service what they sell,

The facility is a fiber processing laboratory, and it is part of Cotton Incorporated's research center here. Inthe center is equipment that is used to help mills profit by using cotton, explains Hal E. Brockmann, vice president of textile research and development for Cotton Incorporated.

Cotton Incorporated is the fiber company of American cotton producers. Using producers' per-bale assessments, it conducts research and promotion programs' to 'expand cotton's markets and · cut growers' costs.

One person who is impressed with Cotton Incorporated's fiber processing center is Paul Baker Jr., vice president of Hadley Peeples Manufacturing, a mill in Siler City. N.C. that makes industrial yarn.

"We weren't getting the best performance out of our equipment, so we went to them for help. The data they provided us on various weights and draft settings for our type of cotton were very valuable," says Baker.

"Without the kind of technical services Cotton Incorporated provided for us through their fiber processing center, cotton would have fared much worse in the competition against synthetic fibers." says Baker.

"In providing this kind of help for mills. Cotton Incorporated is operating as the synthetic fiber producers have always done Cotton Incorporated's effort is very important since cotton is harder to work with from a mills' standpoint than synthetic fiber products," he comments.

Baker adds that the service is especially important for small textile mills. "because we can't afford to fund our own research and develop-

In addition to helping mills with technical solutions, the fiber processing center is used for applied research in fiber processing and as ashowplace for modern spinning technology for American upland cotton, says Brock-

varying degrees of complexity have been carried out in the center, says Brockmann. including one project on clean cotton that had over 200 different steps to it-equipment that can take raw cotton, card it, comb it, and convert it into either open-end or ring-spun yarn. Other equipment at the research center can then be used to make fabric from the yarn and apply chemical finishes and dves, just as it would be done in a mill.

The whole idea is that this is a true pilot plant." says Brockmann. "It is representative of a broad range of fiber processing technologies in the industry. The processing center has. That way we are better able to provide technical services

> Any mill that runs all-cotton or predominantly cotton "Natural Blend" fabrics using U.S. cotton, or any garment or home furnishings manufacturer that makes products from these fabrics is eligible to call Brockmann.

The center is equipped to provide four hasic services according to Brockmann:

-to develop improved varns using mechanically determined fiber properties: --to analyze new . or improved strains of U.S. cotton to determine their conventional ring or open-end spinning performance, the potential for nep creation at carding, and other performance characteristics: · -- to analyze new machinery to determine its potential for processing cotton and highcotton blends; and

-to investigate the effect of chemical treatments on cotton fiber processing.

Brockmann explains that a mill can come to Cotton Incorporated with a processing problem, "and we will try to work out that problem on our equipment using small batches of cotton, say 50 to 100 pounds.

"Once we think we are on the right track solving that particular problem, we go back to the mill and scale up mann says.

In some cases, technical services specialists will take the varn and have it knitted into fabric that can be tested in Cotton Incorporated's textile services lab. "That gives us the ultimate answer , customers of U.S. cotton to whatever we are probing."

Helping the mills achieve helps build cotton markets. emphasizes Brockmann.

"When you help a mill utilize cotton efficiently, you are helping them make a profit, off cotton, and that makes them better producers.

You are also creating a ripple effect by providing technical services. When our marketing people approach a mill about adopting a newcotton or mostly-cotton fabric, a mill is much more likely to adopt that fabric if its production-level people have confidence in cotton. Our technical services help them build confidence in cotton." explains Brock?

USDA Official Stresses Resource Conservation Page 8C--The Hereford Brand-Sunday, June 29, 1980

WASHINGTON - "There is an overriding need to conserve and improve in rural areas those basic resources on which life depends--our soil and water and forests. The continued availability of ample agricultural resources is basic to maintaining our current standard of living." Anson R. Bertrand, director of science and education for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. said today.

Speaking at the Conference on Rural Conservation sponsored by the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the National Association of Conservation Districts in Washington. Bertrand said. "We have come to see that there are limits to good farmland and water even in the United States. Most people now realize that we can no longer squander either land or water as if we had an unlimited drawing account in these two resources.

Bertrand said many people are attracted to rural areas today because of certain traditional advantages that persist there, such as the lack of congestion and the strains that go along with it. opportunities for nearby recreation, and a more instructive environment for bringing up children.

"The trick, as our population increases, will be to keep rural America a pleasant and fulfilling place to work and live, while improving its capacity to grow the food, fiber and timber on which we depend," he said: "Rural America is a place to live, but it is also where our agricultural plant is located." Bertrand said the conservation of rural resources and communities is not going to be easy. However, we now recognize that much worth saving in rural America is threatened and that something needs to be done about

He said recent studies by the USDA make clear, that demand on rural resources will continue to grow rapidly in the years ahead. "If current trends persist, demand for timber will more than double by 2030, water consumption will increase by 60 percent, and demand for range grazing will rise by 40 percent," he said.

Soil erosion will continue to be a problem, with adverse impacts on crop yields and water quality, he said. "We are currently losing some 4 billion tons of soil a year to all types of erosion, despite 47 years of federal soil conservation programs." he said.

Bertrand cited problems such as prime farmland being converted to nonfarm purposes, the diminishing supply of irrigation water, and the vanishing wetlands.

"We are not facing a crisis today, nor do I believe we will face one tomorrow." Bertrand said. "I am saying that if we go on as we have, there is certain trouble down the road. If we take more good land out of farming, if our vields level off, if soil erosion . continues, unabated, if demand continues to increasesomeday we will run short of food and fiber. It may first come in a drought year, or when unexpected crop disease takes its toll. Secretary of Agriculture Bergland has called current trends a 'collision course with disaster." But trends don't have to come true. These projections are nothing more than warning signals, and a wise nation can heed those warnings and take steps to turn things around."

useful to emphasize a few basic principles in developing a national strategy for rural conservation. He recommended providing rural people with more information about resource management; more attractive incentives for land users to apply soil and water conservation techniques; betTer management of private forest lands; adequate research and extension help and conservation assistance directed to the needs of the small farm; and coordination of federal, state and local efforts to serve rural people.

Texas Crops Report

Crops Need Rainfall Over Much of Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Texas. (AP) - Lack of moisture and temperatures soaring to the 100-degree mark have put most Central Texas crop areas into severe stress, said Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel. director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University. Corn and sorghum in central areas are particularly in need of moisture right away or there will be severe vields reductions. Some young pecans are also shedding due to moisture

In addition to needing moisture, cottton is being plagued by boll weevils in Central Texas. The first bale of 1980 cotton was picked June 19 in the Harlingen

Cotton is also maturing rapidly in southern sections but could still benfit from rain in the Coastal Bend and Upper Coast. The crop 'is making excellent progress in the High Plains where it is grown under irrigation; however, hot weather is Jones Construction resulting in heavy irrigation, noted Pfannstiel.

Rain is also needed over central, eastern and coastal sections for young peanuts and in coastal sections for young soybeans. In addition. moisture is needed to boost hav crops. First cuttings have been good, but rain is needed for regrowth.

Range conditions are still generally average over the state although a few more weeks of hot weather will put pressure on livestock producers, noted Pfannstiel. Stockmen in some parts of Southwest Texas have started culling lambs and ewes due to dry conditions.

Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions.

PANHANDLE: Cotton and sorghum planting is virtually complete, with stands making good progress. Corn is. making excellent growth. Wheat harvesting is getting into full swing. Range and livestock conditions are good but grasshooppers are hatching in large numbers and are causing concern,

SOUTH PLAINS: 'Hot conditions are causing full irrigation of corn and other crops. A record 107 degrees was recorded in Lubbock on damaged by recent hail is being replanted. Early onions, are being harvested, and the wheat harvest is getting under way. Ranges are average but grasshoppers are building up rapidly. ROLLING PLAINS: Wheat harvesting is in the final stages, with generally good. yields. Most cotton has been planted and early fields are making execellent growth. Sorghum planting is also about complete. Some early peaches are being harvested, and haymaking is active. Livestock have average

NORTH CENTRAL: Cotton, corn and sorghum along with hay crops all need moisture. Harvesting of wheat and oats is in full swing, with generally good yields. Hay harvesting active. Peaches and plums are ripening. Grasshoppers are building up in ranges.

NORTHEAST: All crops need rain, including hay meadows for additional cuttings. The wheat harvest is about 60 percent complete. with generally good yields. Some vegetables, including beans, peas, squash, sweet cron and tomatoes are being harvested. Grazing and livestock conditions are average, with cattle prices down slightly.

FAR WEST: Most crops are making good progress despite hot dry conditions. Early peaches and apricots are ripening. Ranges are in poor to excellent, shape depending on where recent

WEST CENTRAL: Rain is needed for young crops, pastures and ranges. Cotton, sorghum and peanut planting. is virtually complete. Wheat harvesting is under way; yield will generally be down. The peach crop is short due to late spring cold weather. Hay making is active.

CENTRAL: Hot, dry conditions are putting most crops in stress. Sorghum, in particular, needs moisture for developing, the grain head; about 75 percent of the crop is headed. Most cotton has squared but boll weevils are causing heavy damage. A good wheat harvest has been complete. Hay making continues, with moisture needed for regrowth. Young peanuts also need rain.

EAST: All crops need rain along with pasture and ranges. Some soybean planting continues. Hay making is active, with rain needed for additional cuttings. The last peach crop looks good but needs moisture as does the pecan crop. Cattle prices are down

UPPER COAST: All crops need r rain, including pastures for additional hay cuttings. Hay making continues in full swing, with good yields from first cuttings. Some pecan trees are suffering from dry conditions and casebearer damage. Grazing conditions are declining in some counties due to lack of moisture.

SOUTH CENTRAL: Hot, dry conditions are starting to stunt crops in some counties. Pastures and ranges are also in dire need moisture although livestock continues to look good. Home gardens are suffering from the hot, dry weather, which is also causing some shedding of young pecans..

SOUTHWEST: Hot, dry conditions have caused corn to speed through the roasting ear stage. Hay baling and harvesting of onions, beets and pickling cucumbers remains in full swing. Sheep shearing is nearly complete, and some ranchers are starting to sell lambs and ewes to reduce their herds. Livestock conditions will being to decline if rains don't come COASTL BEND: The sorghum harvest is under way, with average yields. Most cotton has set bolls and rices is starting to head. Corn is in dire need of moisture. Pearut planting continues, with rain needed to get the crop up. Hay crops and pastures and ranges also need rain.

SOUTH: The first bale of cotton for 1980 season was picked in the Harlingen area on June 19. Hot, dry weather is causing cotton bolls to pop open. Sorghum harvesting is about to start, and corn is maturing rapidly. Cantaloupes, tomatoes and watermelons remain in light supply. Citrus irrigation remains heavy, with fruit developing well. Pastures and ranges are below average.

End of Mike Discount Means Much to Plains

No firm figure can be placed on the additional dollar income that may accrue to High Plains producers from the recently successful efforts of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, and others to cut back the announced micronaire discounts in the 1980 Commodity Credit Corporation cotton loan schedule.

To arrive at such a figure would require advance knowledge of the 1980 crop size, micronaire distribution, how much of the crop will enter the loan, and what effect, psychological or otherwise, the lower loan discounts will have on discounts that will prevail in the

On a per-bale basis; calculations are simple. The loan discount on cotton in the 2.6 and below "mike" range was lowered from 830 points (8.3 cents per pound) to 720 points, meaning each 480-pound bale of that description will be valued $5.28 higher for CCC loan

Strictly in terms of loan value, the revisions in mike discounts pushed the price for 2.7 to 2.9 cotton up 90 points, $4.32 per bale; for 3.0 to 3.2 up 70 points, $3.36 a bale; and 30 points, $2.44 per bale, on 3.3 and 3.4.

The 1974 through 1979 crops in the 25-county PCG area averaged 11.7 percent in the 2.6 and below mike range, 20.7 percent 2.7 to 2.9, 19.5 percent 3.0 to 3.2 and 8.2 percent 3.3 to 3.4.

Using these averages and assuming a 1980 crop of 3,175,000 bales, if the entire crop went into the loan this year or was sold in the market at the identical loan discounts, the mike discount changes would add something over $7.25 million to the value of this year's

The Sportsman's Den

By Jim Steiert

We appreciate your calls and comments concerning coverage of the great outdoor sports, and it seems the closer we look around here, the more talented outdoorsmen and women we find. Mrs. W.P. Dutton called Fridy to tell us about an article in the July issue of Sports Afield magazine on pheasant hunting in the Hereford

Dave Harbour wrote the article. He hunted on land operated by Bill Dutton after reading about the availability of that hunting in an advertisement in the Amarillo paper.

Since the appearance of the article, Mrs. Dutton reports her son has received several queries from sportsmen from as far away as Philadelphia, seeking more information about Panhandle pheasant hunting.

The earliest recorded ban on indiscriminate hunting of the bald-headed ibis was issued in 1504 by Archbishop Leonhead of Salzburg.

you will at long last get to make a trip, it does present somewhat of a delightful dilemma.

What better way to heighten the delight than to squint at the red and black tracings across the face of a map, the dark green blotches that represent verdant forests, and those snaking blue lines that weave appealingly into the dark green and brownish-gray areas that are mountains and woodlands, knowing those markings represent the lair of summer trout.

Somebody ought to have put a road in there, you find yourself thinking as you eye a stretch of sparse country-looking to save a couple of hundred extra miles, gasoline and precious fishing time.

Plotting out the course and setting up the navigational charts are part of the preliminaries that help to convince you the trip is actually real/ They prompt you to remember you ought to pick up an aluminum fly box, some new leader material and fly dressing, and probably a few more No. 12 and No. 14 hooks.

There's still some time left to decide just where to go this year, (provided I can get away at the last minute) and in the span of nearly two months that lies ahead the charts of topography on New-Mexico and Colorado should become well worn as one mountain range and its forests and watersheds are compared to another in eforts to pinpoint the most "trouty" water.

Even on these rough summer days like we've had the last week or so, you can look at the map and contemplate a trip to the high Rockies and almost feel 10 degrees cooler just thinking about the snow on top turning itself into the rolling troutstreams of the mountain meadows.

AUSTIN - Hunters who Mexico have mandatory

Comment Invited On Steel ShotArea

AUSTIN -- Texas waterfowl hunters will have the opportunity to comment on a proposal by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to expand the nontoxic shot zones for the 1980-81 and 1981-82 hunting season.

The department's recommendation for 1980-81 would establish nontoxic shot zones for the J.D. Murphree Wildlife Management Area and Sea Rim State Park, both of which had a nontoxic shot requirement for 12-gauge guns only last year, and the newly 'opened McFaddin' Marsh and Sea Rim National Wildlife Refuges. Approximately 33,000 acres of these Jefferson County marshes in Southeast Texas are expected to be opened to public waterfowl hunting this fall, acording to Bill Brownlee, TP&WD migratory bird program director.

Smallest Planet

Mercury, nearest planet to the sun, is the smallest of the nine planets known to be in the solar system. It moves with great speed in its journey around the sun, averaging about 30 miles a second to complete its circuit in 88 of our days. Mercury rotates on its axis over a period of nearly 59 days, thus exposing all of its surface periodically to the sun.

The oldest living trees in the world are reputed to be the bristlecone pines, the majority of which are found growing on the arid crags of California's White Mountains. Some of them are estimated to be more than 4,600 years

Another change in the nontoxic shot zone proposals would be that only nontoxic shot could be used in those designated zones to take waterfowl. During the 1979-80 season, nontoxic shot was required only for 12 gauge guns.

Investigations have shown that waterfowl ingest toxic lead shot. An estimated two to three percent of the annual fall population of waterfowl is lost to this form of lead poisoning, according to the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service.

Ammunition ' manufacturers have indicated that nontoxic shot loads will be available for the 1980-81 season in 12 gauge, with a limited quantity available in 20 and 10 gauge. This effectively eliminates the use of 16, 28 and 410 gauge guns in non-toxic zones for

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission will act on the proposal at its July 23 hearing, and the public will be invited to comment. Written comments may be directed to Bill Brownlee. Wildlife Division, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road. Austin, Tx 78744.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department Regional Supervisor John Caudle of San Antonio said, 16,500 feet of nets were picked up on the. Texas side of the border reservoir in two separate operations.

In an early morning raid. wardens confiscated 9,900 feet of nets containing about 3.000 pounds of fish. including more than 50 striped bass ranging in size from three to 15 pounds.

The second raid, conducts ed in the evening shortly

All the illegal netting activity currently is being done by Mexican citizens who cross over from the Mexican side after dark. Caudle said. He added that except for a brief period in the spring, use of gill nets is legal on the Mexican side of the reservoir.

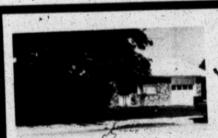

Caudle said the nets usually are 11/2 to three-inch mesh, and they are effective mostly on striped bass, white bass, tilapia, drum, carp and sometimes catfish.

Caudle said 12 game wardens coordinated their efforts in confiscating the nets, with some operating as spotters from the shoreline for boat crews.

"We've seen a significant increase in this activity lately." Caudle said, "but those nets cost 60 cents a foot and I think the loss of this much netting may discourage a lot of the illegal netters.
