

Judge Still Has Hope For Sewer System at SJ

There's still hope for landing a grant for sewer lines in the San Jose camp, declared County Judge Glen Nelson Wednesday.

Deaf Smith County commissioners had received word the middle of the month that the Department of Housing and Urban Development had rejected an application for a $93,000 grant for the sewer lines.

Judge Nelson, the commissioners and the San Jose Water District were disappointed after the announcement, and the judge sent an inquiry to HUD's region office in Dallas. A representative came to Hereford to check out the situation after reading Nelson's appeal for further consideration.

The Hereford City Commission had approved the connection of the camp sewage system to the city's treatment facility. This was accomplished after HUD told the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission that the grant could not be approved unless there was a plan to treat affluent from the camp.

Nelson said, after visiting with the HUD official last week, that there still appears to be hope on the pre-application. "We discussed some other steps to be taken, and I was assured we could continue under the same application procedure... we won't have to start from scratch again."

The county judge was also still hopeful that the grant application might be approved without the county seeking an "imminent-threat" grant, which pertains to health and safety situations.

The rejection earlier this month was a blow to camp residents, who received a $320,000 grant from HUD to construct a clean-water system at San Jose. The county had filed the sewage grant request on behalf of the San Jose Water District.

Formal Dedication Of Landmark Set

Formal dedication of the marker on the E. B. Black House, recognizing it as a Recorded Texas Historical Landmark entered in the National Register of Historic Places, will be held in a ceremony at 3 p.m. Sunday on the grounds of the house, 508 W. Third. The building has been so designated by the Texas Historical Commission.

The public is invited, and invitations have been mailed to member museums of the Northwest Texas Museum Association and to public officials in this and other Panhandle counties.

Hosts for the dedication will be the Deaf Smith County Historical Society, Mrs. George Turrentine president, and the DSC Historical Commission, A.J. Schroeter chairman.

Schroeter has announced that Glenda G. Morgan of Odessa, a member of the Texas Historical Commission, will present the DSC Commission with a certificate designating the building as a Recorded Landmark, as part of the ceremony.

William C. Griggs, director of Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon, will be the speaker.

The markers have already been placed on the house, which was given to the County by the late Prudis Black, who with her husband, Jim Black, a son of the E. B.

Blacks, occupied the house until 1977.

In deeding it to the county, she specified that it be preserved as "an historic site" given "in consideration of the gratitude, respect and love I have for the citizens of DSC."

She hoped that it would be used by the community in a way that would memorialize the contributions to the city by Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Black, who had the house built in 1909 and hospitably allowed it to be used for many community and church gatherings in the pioneer city which Hereford was at that time.

Since it was refurbished and furnished by the local Historical Society and opened to the public in March, 1978, 112 groups have held meetings there. Restoration of the house to its original appearance has been the goal of the Society and that work is continuing on the exterior now.

Mrs. Turrentine reports that brick work has been replaced around the foundation, and the brick piers, roof ornamentation and chimneys restored.

Lawn and flower beds are flourishing. The memorial rose garden now has 25 plants. Residents are encouraged to give rose bushes as memorials for this garden.

Ionic columns like those originally used around the porch are on order. Funds for this restoration were given by L'Allegria Study Club last year.

Optical Illusion

Is it a treetop landing, and a boy sitting on the water? Some of the aerobatics can fool you at the city pool. The swimming hole officially opens for the summer Saturday, but choir students from Stanton Jr. High got a sneak preview of some wet summer fun Wednesday afternoon. The pool will be open from 2-6 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday of each week for general admission, and will be available for night parties from 7:30-9:30 p.m. each day, with lifeguards on duty both during the day and at parties. Pool party reservations may be made by calling 364-2966 or 364-4370. [Brand photos by Jim Steiert]

Vacation is that glorious gypsy period when you are free to go anywhere your wife chooses.

FROM TIME TO time, we've made comments in this column on the benefits of shopping at home. We don't offer this advice just to please our home-town advertisers... we believe some citizens of this community overlook one of the major factors when they start comparing prices and shopping elsewhere.

The factor we're talking about is friendship with local merchants. That's the real beauty of shopping at home and getting to know your local merchants... it's one of the blessings of a small city.

And, if you're concerned about more things than a weekly salary, a place to live, and a home in which to retreat, then you turn to these merchants for help. They are the ones who help the agencies in United Way, your club's fund-raising projects, your children's youth programs, and other such programs. They also pay a big share of the taxes for the good things provided in the community.

They deserve a chance before you go elsewhere to shop.

IN READING the mail across our desk, we ran across some words of wisdom written by Gordon H. Taggart. We don't know the gentleman, but we'd like to share his thoughts with our readers:

I wish I were big enough honestly to admit all my shortcomings.

Brilliant enough to accept flattery without it making me arrogant.

Tall enough to tower above deceit.

Strong enough to treasure love.

Brave enough to welcome criticism.

Compassionate enough to understand human frailties.

Humble enough to appreciate greatness.

Wise enough to recognize my mistakes.

Staunch enough to stand by my friends.

Human enough to be thoughtful of my neighbor.

And, righteous enough to be devoted to the love of God.

AN IOWA NEWSPAPER recently ran a contest which enjoyed much local participation. Contestants had to complete this sentence: "You're in a small town when..."

The top five answers selected by the judges were as follows:

...you don't need to use your car's turn signal because everyone knows where you are going.

...you're born on June 13 and receive prizes from local merchants for being the second baby of the year born in the town.

...you can speak to each dog you meet by name and get a friendly wag in return.

...you dial a wrong number but end up talking 15 minutes anyway.

...during the harvest season, you get run off main street by a combine.

State Motorists Should Find Adequate Holiday Gas Supplies

HOUSTON (AP) - Texas motorists should find adequate gasoline supplies over the Memorial Day weekend, particularly during the daylight hours, the American Automobile Association reports.

More stations are closing earlier, and Texans should have better luck finding fuel along major highways in rural areas and in small cities, said AAA's Texas Division weekly Fuel Gauge Report, based on a survey of 391 service stations.

The supply situation appeared to have improved in the Dallas-Fort Worth area in the past week, but has worsened in San Antonio and Houston, the survey indicated.

While 80 percent of the surveyed stations in Houston and Fort Worth and nearly 90 percent in Austin plan to close Sunday, fewer than one-half in Waco, Midland-Odessa and Beaumont-Port Arthur say they will close.

Austin had the worst week-to-week decline in supply, AAA said, with only 20 percent of the city's stations operating after 8 p.m. this week, compared with 33 percent last week. Only 27 percent plan to pump gas after 6 p.m. Saturday, compared with 58 percent last week. Only 13 percent plan to be open Sunday, down from last week's 25 percent.

Statewide, 64 percent of the stations now are closing by 8 p.m. on weekdays, compared with 61 percent last week. About 44 percent plan to close by 6 p.m. Saturday, up from 40 percent.

About 64 percent will be closed Sunday, as opposed to last week's 68 percent, but 75 percent plan to operate Monday.

Only 3 percent of the stations are placing limits on sales but more stations are reporting depleted supplies of one or more grades, AAA said. About 6 percent of the stations reported being out of premium fuel, up from 2 percent. Depleted regular or unleaded grades were reported by 3 percent of the stations.

Prices reportedly increased about a cent a gallon during the week for self-service pumps, about one-half cent at full-service pumps.

Self-service averages were 74.8 cents a gallon for regular, up from 73.6, 78.9 cents for unleaded, up from 77.5 cents, and 80.7 cents for premium, up from 79.4 cents.

Full service averages were 77.3 cents for regular, up from 76.7 cents, 81.2 cents for unleaded, up from 80.5, and 83.1 cents for premium, up from 82.7 cents.

The diesel fuel average rose from 75.9 cents to 76.4 cents a gallon.

Midland-Odessa had the lowest percentages for stations closing by 8 p.m. weekdays, 33 percent, and by 6 p.m. on Saturday, 7 percent. Waco had the lowest for Sunday closings, 36 percent, and no surveyed stations there reported plans to be closed on Monday.

In Dallas, 85 percent of the stations are closing weekdays by 8 p.m. while 73 percent of the Austin stations plan to

Police Arrest Adult, Juvenile In Two Disturbance Incidents

Hereford police arrested an adult in a disturbance incident here last night, and also took a juvenile into custody on a disorderly conduct charge.

Police were called to Bluewater Gardens apartments at 9:25 p.m. concerning a disturbance, and upon arrival at the parking lot of the apartment structure, investigating officers witnessed a confrontation between two black males.

According to a police department spokesman, one of the individuals involved in the incident was seen brandishing a knife and threatening the other, and officers quickly moved in and made an arrest.

Names of the individuals involved were not released this morning, as the suspect in the incident was still awaiting arraignment, and charges were pending at Brand presstime.

In an unrelated incident last night, officers arrested an 11 year old juvenile in the 700 block of Avenue F.

The youth was charged with disorderly conduct relating to the use of profane language.

Earlier this week, police detective Vernon Hope made an arrest in connection with the embezzlement of $1,000 from the Allsup's convenience store at 111 East Park Avenue.

Dana Foster, 21, of Hereford, an employee of the store, was charged with theft over $200 in connection with the incident.

The theft was reported May 14, and the suspect was arrested Tuesday, following an investigation by police officers.

The suspect in the theft is currently free on $2,000 bond.

Police also investigated the report of a theft at Bluewater Gardens yesterday. Reuben Mary Sr. told officers he discovered that a storage building at the site had been broken into, and that a bicycle valued at $100 had been taken.

Officers issued a total of 10 traffic citations yesterday, including two for running stop signs, three for speeding, one for an expired vehicle inspection sticker, and four for illegal parking.

Tax Appraisal Bill Gets Tentative Approval

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - "Grandson of Peveto," a property tax appraisal bill that has endured more perils than Pauline, gained tentative House approval Wednesday, 72-66.

The bill would create a single office in each county to appraise property for cities and taxing districts. County governments could have their own separate appraisal offices if they wished.

A final House vote was scheduled today. Passage would return the bill to the Senate for a crucial decision whether to accept changes made by the House.

Rejection by senators would tie the bill, like the hapless maiden in old-time movie thrillers, to the railroad tracks with the locomotive of final adjournment bearing down.

"Your people are going to love this bill," grinned Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, at the outset of House debate.

The bill is nicknamed "Grandson of Peveto" because this is the third straight legislative session in which Peveto has crusaded for a single appraisal system.

In 1975 and 1977, the bill made it through one chamber of the Legislature but not the other.

Peveto abandoned several controversial provisions of his previous bills and concentrated on the single appraisal concept, which Gov. Bill Clements has endorsed.

"Taxpayers won't have to appear before three or four or five boards of equalization. They would only have to appear before one," Peveto told the House.

Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood, objected that the bill would replace long-accepted local assessing practices with new rules dictated by the state.

Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, said he would vote against the long, complex bill because Peveto had once advised him, "If you don't understand a bill, always vote no."

Although counties could have independent tax appraisal offices, Peveto predicted most would voluntarily join the new local appraisal districts his bill would create.

Some water districts also could have their own appraisers.

The bill includes the local tax rollback concept covered in a bill previously passed by the House. Any property tax increase could be held to 5 percent by local voters after petitioning for an election. A rollback election would be effective, however, only if 25 percent of all the voters participated.

Peveto's bill also tightens the "truth in taxation" law.

"If they increase taxes by even 51, the local entity will have to give notice and run a full-page newspaper ad listing the members that voted for it and against it," Peveto said.

With Peveto's blessing, the House voted to set the assessment ratio for the state property tax at .0001 percent of county-approved values - virtually zero.

The effect would be abolition of the tax, which Peveto has challenged in a lawsuit because the wide variations in county appraisals cause some Texans to pay more than others on property of equal market value.

Peveto received a setback when the House voted 68-65, for a 25-page amendment by Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, embodying terms of another bill carrying out the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

"This is an attempt by Mr. Davis to kill this bill," Peveto said.

Peveto said the amendment might cause senators to send his bill to a conference committee. With the legislative session adjourning at midnight, May 28, the bill could die in conference, he complained.

Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, the Senate co-sponsor, said he needed to read the amendment before deciding whether it would require a conference committee.

Davis, Master Wed As Wait Expires

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Karen Master and Cullen Davis were married at 12:50 a.m. today within an hour of the expiration of the 30-day waiting period after his divorce from Priscilla Childers Davis.

Shortly after midnight - as soon as the law allowed - the couple went to the home of Tarrant County Clerk Madrin Huffman and bought their marriage license, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram said in a copyright story in late morning editions today.

The wedding was at the home of Davis' longtime friends, Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Hudgins and was attended by about 25 friends and family members.

The Rev. Dick McCreath, Fort Worth Presbyterian minister, officiated. He was assisted by the Rev. John H. Stanley Jr., rector of Trinity Episcopal Church.

Court To Decide

On Spenklink's Death

STARKE, Fla. (AP) - Florida Attorney General Jim Smith, leading a jet-age legal "strike force," today carries his fight to have murderer John A. Spenklink put to death to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"This is grim business at best," Smith said before leaving Tallahassee Wednesday. He flew to New Orleans and then to Washington, seeking to sidetrack stays sparing Spenklink from execution.

The Supreme Court was to consider the Spenklink case today at the request of Justice Thurgood Marshall, who stayed the execution shortly after midnight Wednesday.

Spenklink had been scheduled to die at 7 a.m. Wednesday for the 1973 murder of a traveling companion. The death warrant is valid through noon Friday and Smith said he hoped to have the stays lifted before it expires. However, Florida Gov. Bob Graham could sign a new death warrant.

Davis Divorce

Settlement Finalized

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A state district judge has signed an order finalizing the settlement of the long and bitter Cullen Davis divorce trial.

State District Judge Clyde Ashworth signed the order Wednesday after attorneys for Priscilla Davis notified the judge they would not appeal the $3.4 million property settlement in the five-year-old divorce case.

Associates of the Fort Worth industrialist said Davis, who will be re-tired on a murder-solicitation trial in July, immediately began making final arrangements in his plans to marry Karen Master.

Davis' friends said the millionaire and Mrs. Master wanted to obtain a marriage license before dawn, marry in a private ceremony and leave on a honeymoon.

Davis was acquitted in an August 1977 Amarillo murder trial of the slaying of his 12-year-old step-daughter, Andrea Wilborn.

He still faces capital murder and attempted murder in the death of Mrs. Davis' lover, Stan Farr, and the wounding of Mrs. Davis and Gus Gavrel Jr. during an August 1976 shooting spree at Davis' $6 million Fort Worth mansion.

Davis' trial in Houston on charges he solicited the murder of Judge Joe Eidsos, the presiding judge in his divorce trial, ended last January in a hung jury.

State of Siege

Imposed in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - President Carlos Humberto Romero imposed a state of siege to crush protests against El Salvador's military regime after leftist guerrillas assassinated his education minister.

The state of siege, a modified form of martial law, is to last 30 days and empowers the Defense Ministry to make arrests without charge, searches without warrants, restrict movement, establish a curfew, censor the press, open mail and tap telephones.

Education Minister Carlos Antonio Herrera Rebollo and his driver were killed by automatic weapons fire as they drove to the Education Ministry Wednesday morning.

The Farabundo Marti Popular Liberation Forces, believed the biggest of three leftist guerrilla groups operating in El Salvador, claimed responsibility.

The same group kidnapped and killed Foreign Minister Mauricio Borbono in 1977 when the government refused to release 37 political prisoners.

Bible Easier To Get

NEW YORK (AP) - Some doors have edged open lately to the shipment of Bibles into Communist eastern Europe, leading several Christian leaders to discount the usefulness of Bible smuggling.

In some cases, they say, it stiffens the barriers.

While more Bibles are needed in some areas, "this smuggling traffic does harm and creates difficulties" for churches in the Soviet orbit, says the Rev. Paul Hansen, Europe secretary of the Lutheran World Federation.

He says the breaking of customs laws provides "new ammunition" for anti-religious forces, generates hostility toward churches at a time when some Soviet officials are advocating more tolerance and may "in fact be hindering the extension" of Christian faith.

"It leads to discrimination against Christians."

Similar statements have come from other churchmen familiar with the situation, along with the recent officially approved sending of 25,000 Bibles to Baptists and others in the Soviet Union.

The Russian-language Bibles, plus 5,000 Bible concordances, were provided by the United Bible Societies under an import permit granted the All-Union Council of Evangelical Christians-Baptists, the main Soviet body of Protestants.

Some copies also went to other Protestant groups. Asked by the Bible Societies if further shipments might be allowed, the Rev. Alexei Bichkov, general secretary of the council, said, "The official channels seem to me to be both open and very sympathetic."

Altogether, the Bible societies report that since World War II, a total of 12 million copies of Scriptures have been legally distributed in east European Communist countries.

"Forget what you read about the necessity for underground evangelism," says the Rev. Robert S. Denny, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance. "We now have the opportunity for above-ground evangelism in eastern Europe."

He added in a report to a meeting of the alliance executive committee: "There is no need to smuggle Bibles into eastern Europe."

Lancy and the others were accused of making false statements and reports and deliberately overvaluing land, property and securities for the purpose of influencing bank transactions.

The four were charged with bank fraud involving efforts to deceive officers of the two banks, the controller of the currency and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The 33-count indictment also said the defendants deliberately misapplied bank funds and conspired in the violation of various banking laws.

The Justice Department did not indicate President Carter was involved in any of the alleged irregularities.

Demos Backing Edward Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Five

House Democrats said today they oppose a second term for President Carter and four said they will back Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination despite his insistence that he supports the president.

Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, D-N.Y., told a news conference that the five are searching for "someone committed to the programs for which the Democratic Party has traditionally stood."

"I and my colleagues believe the 'someone' who best fits this description is Sen. Edward Kennedy," said Ottinger.

"We will be devoting our efforts in the coming weeks and months to drafting him for our party's nomination," said the congressman, who added, "To those who say Sen. Kennedy will not run, we say let us develop a national mandate for his candidacy that is irresistible."

One member of the group, Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., said he would not support Carter, but he said he was not ready yet to commit himself to anyone else.

Also participating in the news conference were Reps. Edward Beard of Rhode Island, Fortney "Pete" Stark of California and Richard Nolan of Minnesota, who announced his own draft Kennedy movement a week ago.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said he discussed presidential politics last week with Kennedy and the senator repeated his intention to support Carter.

O'Neill also said he thought Kennedy, a fellow Massachusetts Democrat, could beat Carter.

"The truth of the matter is that if Kennedy were to run, Carter couldn't get the nomination in my opinion," said the speaker, who emphasized he still supports Carter.

Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan said Tuesday that he also thought Kennedy probably could take the nomination away from Carter if he wanted to.

Tax

He confronted Davis on the House floor after the amendment went on.

"I just asked what he was doing. ... He indicated a lack of overwhelming enthusiasm for the bill," Jones said.

Peveto told the House the bill would "save tax dollars at the local level" and would "provide local remedies for taxpayers."

Senators voted 14-10 for a proposed constitutional amendment repealing the state property tax outright, but the majority was seven votes shy of the required two-thirds.

They approved on voice vote and sent to the governor a House-passed bill extending the life of the Texas Good Neighbor Commission.

"Certainly now with discoveries of Mexican oil and gas, we need a commission to improve our relations," said Sen. Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg.

The House tentatively approved, 83-50, a bill allowing auto dealers to impose an additional charge of up to $25 to process the documents involved in buying a car.

"My bill saves consumers money because for the first time there is a $25 limit on what can be charged," said Rep. Jerry "Nub" Donaldson, D-Gatesville, the sponsor.

But opponents said the fee was unnecessary and would represent almost pure profit for auto dealers.

"This piece of legislation didn't arise out of need. It arose out of greed," said Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange.

In other action, the Senate accepted

House amendments and sent to the governor bills that would:

-Give deaf persons more authority on the Texas Commission for the Deaf.

-Establish the 39-square mile Franklin Mountains State Park near El Paso.

-Raise the maximum interest rate on commercial loans of $250,000 or more from 12 to 18 percent.

Senators passed and sent to the House a bill requiring developers to sell at least 5 percent of a subdivision to municipalities for park use.

The Senate rejected House changes in a bill that would extend the life of the State Bar of Texas. Gov. Bill Clements has threatened to veto the measure. Senators requested appointment of a conference committee.

"Split" Primary Dead Issue

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A "split" presidential primary - which many believe would help John Connally - is a "dead issue," says House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Clayton denied knowledge late Wednesday night of any "plot" to out-manuever the 12 "Killer Bee" senators by sending the Senate a split primary bill as an amendment to an otherwise unrelated bill.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, told a news conference that conservative Democrats had just such a plan in mind.

"There is no plan so far as I know to run out a presidential primary bill. ... I can't understand what is so important about a dead issue," Clayton, an advocate of the split primary, told reporters.

Gov. Bill Clements said Tuesday he had refused an offer by Bryant to deliver House votes for initiative and referendum in trade for Clements' propose to veto a split primary bill.

Clements, who badly wants the Legislature to submit an initiative-and referendum proposal to the voters, said he told Bryant "to go jump in the creek."

"I am still convinced that Gov. Clements can get initiative and referendum passed, without a special session, if he vows to veto a rigged primary bill that would throw $5 million in taxes down the drain," Bryant said.

Clayton contends a March presidential primary would force candidates to commit to "Texas issues." It also would let conservative Democrats vote for Connally in the GOP presidential primary, then support conservative candidates in the Democratic primary for state offices in May.

Rep. Susan McBee, D-Del Rio, chairman of the House Elections Committee, said she knows of no bill on the House calendar that could become a presidential primary vehicle.

"This is another example of the paranoia that seems to be rampant this session," she said.

Two "Killer Bee" senators who broke a Senate quorum for five days to thwart a separate-day primary bill expressed concern over reports of House efforts to keep the idea alive.

H-Bomb Secret Bad Declassification Act

WASHINGTON (AP) - A nuclear weapons expert says declassification of a secret H-bomb report may have been the "most serious breach of security" in the United States since World War II.

Obtaining the report "was easier than getting something out of the Library of Congress," a second expert told a Senate energy subcommittee Wednesday. "At the Library of Congress, they at least check your briefcase," Dimitri Rotow added.

The Senate hearing was called after Rotow, a researcher and nuclear expert, obtained a copy of the report "UCRI-4725" from the public section of the government's technical library at Los Alamos, N.M. The government acknowledges that the report contained sensitive information on nuclear bombs.

Dr. Theodore B. Taylor of Princeton University, a former nuclear weapons designer, told the committee the report

"We're trying to get the House members cranked up," said Sen. Ron Coker, D-Garland.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, said, "I think they want to pass that split primary bill so bad that they're looking at any bill that has 'election' on it."

Doggett said 80 House members oppose the measure and, "if all those people stand by their word on the presidential primary bill better than our Republican members did over here, we ought to be secure."

"contains design and performance data related to several past and planned tests of fission and thermonuclear explosives." "I would be astounded if any physicist who doesn't already know nuclear secrets who read this didn't say 'Yes, I now understand how these things work,'" Taylor said.

He called declassification of the report "the most serious breach of security I am aware of in this country's post-World War II period."

Rotow said obtaining the report was simple. He looked under "H-bomb" in the library's card catalog. "We found a little card that said 'See: Weapons,'" Rotow testified.

Rotow's search for the information wasn't accidental. He went to the Los Alamos library to test security of weapons information as a consultant for the American Civil Liberties Union.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) -

Mr. and Mrs. Carter Martin have gotten their marriage off to a flying start.

Last weekend, they climbed into a single-engine, four-seat Cessna along with the pilot, Robert Miller, and the Rev. Harry Gill. At about 12:30 p.m., somewhere above the city, Gill pronounced them husband and wife.

"The main reason we did it was just to be by ourselves," Martin said. "Up in the air was about as quiet a place as we could find."

"I think we all enjoyed it. I think I enjoyed it as much as anyone. So did the reverend. He said he's done weddings in rose gardens and other places, but never in the air," Martin said.

The groom said his only problem was finding a minister to perform the ceremony.

"I don't know whether they were afraid to fly or what," Martin said.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - For several years, Rita Martin suffered from gallbladder problems.

So when she experienced recent stomach discomfort, she simply thought it was her gallbladder acting up.

It wasn't. On Friday, Mrs. Martin, 28, and her husband, Patrick, became the proud parents of an 8-pound, 4-ounce boy.

She said she had no idea until Thursday that she was pregnant.

"I felt movement during the recent months of pregnancy but I felt I was having gas or stomach pains," the 5-foot, 6-inch, 240 pound new mother said Monday.

STONINGTON, Maine (AP) - Rocky Raccoon, an orphan and family pet, will have his day in court May 31, when a judge will consider whether Rocky can continue living in a private home.

Rocky, who is gentle, loves seafood and generally stays on a leash whenever he meanders outside, currently resides at the home of Elizabeth Nevells. But state law considers raccoons wild animals and requires them to be unrestrained except in special circumstances, such as injury.

Mrs. Nevells is petitioning the state Fish and Game Department for permission to keep him indefinitely. He cannot eat meat with out going into convulsions, she said, and he is under daily medication to control the convulsions.

When Rocky's mother was hit by a car in 1977, he was rescued by a Stonington man and later given to Mrs. Nevells. Things went smoothly until May 10.

On the complaint of a neighbor, a game warden issued Mrs. Nevells a court summons for harboring a wild animal without a permit. Mrs. Nevells said the warden was very kind and did not ask that she give up the raccoon on the spot.

She hopes the state will issue her a permanent license so Rocky can continue making his home with the Nevells.

Air Force Changes Policy, Recognizes Women Vets

WASHINGTON (AP) - After 34 years, Lillian Roberts has her Air Force discharge papers, but it means much more than that. It's the first official recognition by the Pentagon that America had 1,076 women military pilots during World War II.

Mrs. Roberts, 63, and eight other women were guests of honor Tuesday at Pentagon ceremonies as the Air Force acknowledged that members of the Women's Airforce Service Pilots, or WASPs, were part of the active armed forces. From 1942 through 1944, when the country needed every male pilot it could get on the battle front, the women ferried aircraft within the United States, trained rookie pilots, and towed targets at training centers.

Military records show 38 of the women died in aircraft accidents. Mrs. Roberts recalled that towing targets was especially dangerous: "The recruits' aim was not quite the best. The airplanes came back loaded with holes."

But the Army, and later the Air Force, never acknowledged the women as part of their own until last March when the Air Force announced a change in policy and decided the women, indeed, had been part of the active military service.

Tuesday's ceremony marked the first official recognition of the policy change.

"These WASPs pioneered the way for military women," declared Antonia H. Chayes, assistant secretary of the Air Force, as she presented the discharge certificate to Mrs. Roberts of Pasadena, Calif. Ms. Chayes noted that today there are 47,000 women in the Air Force, although the military still prohibits them from being combat pilots.

Mrs. Roberts would change that if she could. She says women should be allowed to be fighter pilots. A number of times during World War II, she tried to convince officers she could do the job, even offering to fly with the Soviets, who were then U.S. allies.

"He (the Soviet officer) said in so many words, 'Don't call us, we'll call you,'" she recalled.

Pentagon officials said efforts would be made to contact as many of the WASPs as possible to present them with discharge papers and, thereby, make them eligible for veterans benefits. Mrs. Roberts said her organization knows of about 800 of the women pilots still living.

Many of the women were in their 20s when they volunteered to become WASPs. During the war years they flew 77 types of aircraft from the famous P-40 Flying Tiger to the B-51

Mustang, which she described as a "flying gun platform that tended to fall out of the sky."

Asked why she joined the WASPs, Mrs. Roberts replied:

"There is no such thing as a dirty bird in Moody Garwood's neighborhood. Moody has in his backyard a birdbath big enough to accommodate an entire flock at one time. Not only that, the bird-

"I think all of us were probably motivated in an identical way - what could I do to serve the nation... and the joy of flying these wonderful, fast airplanes."

bath cleans and refills itself. The mechanism involves a three-inch piston, a cylinder and a metering tube that controls the rate of lift and return, and water pressure does the rest.

Al Oliver Smashes Twins

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The first clue that Al Oliver was in for an extraordinary night came in batting practice before Texas' game with Minnesota Wednesday night.

"I hit one out of the park that broke the bat. Another one broke the bat and hit the wall. I felt super strong," Oliver said in the Ranger clubhouse after hitting three home runs, driving in four runs in Texas' 7-2 victory over the Twins.

Mauch, asked what kind of "book" the Twins had on Oliver, replied:

"When he's swinging good, you can take the book and throw it away. That's why they pay him all that money. When he was with Pittsburgh, we used to eat him up belt high inside. The next series we'd pitch him that way and he'd knock down all the fences."

All of Texas' runs Wednesday came on homers. Oliver and Pat Putnam hit two-run homers in the first, Mike Jorgensen hit a one-run homer in the fourth, and Oliver made curtain calls for solo homers in the fifth and eighth.

All but Oliver's final homer came off Minnesota starter Dave Goltz, whose record fell to 4-5. He lasted five innings, yielding seven hits.

Ferguson Jenkins pitched his fifth complete game of the season and raised his record to 5-2. After opening the season with a 4-0 record, Wednesday night was his seventh straight start in search of the fifth win.

Hosken Powell doubled, after singles by Ken Landreaux and Glenn Adams, for one Minnesota run in the fourth. Powell walked and scored on John Castino's ground out in the eighth for the Twins' other run.

Fitch 8th Coach To Take Celtics

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics' rebuilding program has been handed to Bill Fitch, whose future roster remains a mystery.

The inauguration of Fitch as the eighth head coach of the once-dominant National Basketball Association team was viewed Wednesday as the first move in a prospective whirlwind of maneuvers by Celtics President Red Auerbach.

Fitch, released from his Cleveland Cavaliers contract on Monday, conceded he can't guarantee a return to glory by Boston because, "I don't know enough about who's going to be here."

Auerbach puffed his trademark "victory" cigar at a Boston Garden news conference and asserted, "We're not building a ball club to make the playoffs. We want to build a club to win the whole thing."

Fitch replaced player-coach Dave Cowens, the burly center, who is one of the few Celtic players certain to be back next season.

It was a break with tradition by Auerbach. Fitch is the first non-alumnus of the Celtics to coach the team since Auerbach himself retired in 1966 after winning nine NBA titles.

Celtics assistant coaches K.C. Jones and Bob MacKinnon will be retained. Fitch said he hasn't yet signed a reported five-year contract, but he has reached verbal agreement with Auerbach — now in full control of the front office since Harry Mangurian bought 100 percent ownership from partner John Y. Brown this spring.

Fitch, 46, rattled off a list of Celtics players who show promise, including center-forward Rick Robey and swingman Jeff Judkins, and veterans such as forward Bob McAdoo, who is expected to be traded.

"I'm concerned about assigning roles, and with the chemistry of people working together," said Fitch.

The Celtics gave up three first-round draft picks when Brown made the trade that brought McAdoo from the New York Knicks. The Celtics also are struggling to sign Indiana State star Larry Bird, whose agent, Bob Woolf, is feuding with Auerbach. If the stalemate continues until the NBA draft, June 25, Boston will lose rights to the college player-of-the-year.

Auerbach reiterated that Mangurian is letting him make all major decisions, saying, "Anything we want to do, we do." And Fitch said, "I didn't take this job with the idea that Bird would be here. He might not be playing in Boston."

Cowens had decided to relinquish his coaching role and Fitch agreed Wednesday, saying, "It's impossible for a superstar to be a coach."

UCLA, Trinity in NCAA Tennis Finals

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — If California doubles combinations can overcome Texas experience, UCLA can win the NCAA team tennis championship, according to Bruin Coach Glenn Bassett.

"As I see it, we have to get 3-3 out of singles to have any kind of chance of winning" over Trinity, Bassett said after his top-seeded squad knocked off defending champion Stanford 6-2 in Thursday's semi-finals.

The three doubles matches would capture the championship.

Second-seeded Trinity, of San Antonio, Texas, beat Southern Methodist 5-4 on Wednesday to win its spot in the finals.

Trinity lost two of its three doubles matches Wednesday, while UCLA won both matches played. The Bruins' No. 3 doubles match was canceled.

Trinity has "a great coach and they've been in the team championships for three years, so they have lots of experience," said Bassett. "A lot of our guys have never been there before."

Fritz Buchning and Blaine Willenborg combined to win the first of UCLA's two doubles matches Wednesday, taking a 2-6, 6-1, 6-2 decision from Stanford's Lloyd Bourne and Peter Rennert and clinching the contest for the Bruins.

Earlier in the day, Ben McKown and Erick Iskersky, each of whom won singles matches, combined for Trinity's only doubles victory.

UCLA took four of its six singles matches from Stanford. Bushing defeated Rennert 3-6, 6-3, 7-6; Dick Metz downed Scott Bondurant 7-5, 6-2; Marcel Freeman defeated Jeff Arons 6-3, 7-6, and Bruce Brescia defeated Jim Hoges 6-4, 6-2.

Stanford's Bourne defeated Mike Harrington 6-4, 6-4 in the No. 2 singles, and Tim Mayotte of Stanford defeated Willenborg 6-2, 1-6, 7-6 in the No. 3 singles match.

Holguin Named Top Bowler

Gilbert Holguin was named as the Bowler of the Year last night at the local bowling alley, after defeating 67 other contestants in an elimination series.

The men involved in the tournament were selected by being named as a bowler of the week during the season. The first round of "competition" involved a three game handicap set, with 29 individuals moving to the second round.

Another three game set eliminated the field to five bowlers. Earl Vaughn, Fidencio Cantu, Dennis Sargent, Joe Rusher, and Holguin, who went against each other in match play.

In the finals Vaughn defeated Cantu, 220 to 203, but lost to Sargent 213 to 143. Sargent then went on to beat Rusher in a close contest that went down to the last frame 189 to 179. The final game for the title saw Holguin defeat Sargent 187 to 179.

Garland Wins 4-3, Tossing First Nine Inning Game

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
The song says it's a long, long way from May to September, but it was the other way around and even longer between complete games for sore-shouldered Wayne Garland — from September 1977 to May 1979.

The 28-year-old right-hander, who made only six appearances last season before undergoing surgery for a torn rotator cuff in his shoulder, allowed four singles Wednesday night for his first complete game since 1977 as the Cleveland Indians nipped the Toronto Blue Jays 4-3 ... and two of the Toronto runs were unearned.

In other American League action, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Boston Red Sox 5-2 on Pat Kelly's three-run pinch homer in the 10th inning, the Texas Rangers whipped the Minnesota Twins 7-2 behind Al Oliver's three home runs, the Milwaukee Brewers shaded the California Angels 1-0, the Detroit Tigers edged the New York Yankees 4-3 and the Chicago White Sox beat the Oakland A's 6-1. Kansas City and Seattle were not scheduled.

Garland, 2-4, was a 20-game winner for Baltimore in 1976 and then signed a lucrative free agent contract with the Indians. But he dipped to a 13-19 record Octobers 5, Red Sox 2 Kelly's first home run of the season ruined a complete-game effort by Bob Stanley and came after Billy Smith's one-out infield hit and an error by third baseman Butch Hobson. Eddie Murray also homered for the Orioles, who won for the 20th time in the last 30 games.

Steve Stone, who shaved off his mustache and changed his uniform number from 21 to 32, held the Red Sox to eight hits over the first nine innings.

Brewers 1, Angels 0 Paul Molitor scored the game's only run on Don Aase's bases-loaded wild pitch with two out in the seventh inning and Billy Travers hurled a six-hitter for his second consecutive shutout. Molitor and Sal Bando singled with two out and Gorman Thomas walked. Aase's 1-2 pitch to pinch hitter Charlie Moore bounced in the dirt and was deflected about 10 feet down the third base line by catcher Jim Anderson, who then slipped trying to retrieve the ball.

Tigers 4, Yankees 3

Jim Kaat nicked Steve Kemp on the arm with a 1-2 pitch with two out in the bottom of the ninth to force home the winning run. The Tigers loaded the bases with one out against Ken Clay on two walks around a single by Mark Wagner before Kaat got Lou Whitaker to ground into a force at the plate.

White Sox 6, A's 1

Chet Lemon's tie-breaking three-run homer climaxed a four-run fifth inning that carried Ken Kravec to his fourth straight victory.

San Antonio's Moe Fined Record $3,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Doug Moe, fiery coach of the San Antonio Spurs, has been fined $3,000 — the largest cash fine ever levied against a National Basketball Association coach — for "conduct detrimental to the league," NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced Wednesday.

Moe, who guided the Spurs to their second straight Central Division title this season in the club's third year in the league, was fined for comments following San Antonio's 107-105 loss to the Washington Bullets in the seventh game of the Eastern Conference playoff series last Friday night at Landover, Md.

Moe was most incensed about the work of referee John Vanak. "Vanak gave them the game," Moe charged. "Those (personal foul) calls he made down the stretch against the Spurs stole the game from us. We had it and they took it away." The Bullets should get Vanak a uniform and send him to the final series against Seattle. "Moe continued after the game. It's sickening. It makes you wonder if the game is fixed. The Bullets are stealing their way to the championship."

"Some officials decide they don't like you and they put it to," added the Spurs' coach. "Tell me the officials can't control the games. You get ... guys who want to steal it and you have no hope ... They should be sent before a firing squad."

In a telegram to Moe, O'Brien said the coach's conduct was intolerable and required a severe penalty. The commissioner also said that thorough review of the video-tape of the game indicated that Moe's criticism of specific calls by the officials was unfounded.

"While you repeatedly and emphatically denied that you used the word 'fixed' in your comments, contrary to the recollection of at least two people who were present, your overall comments, nevertheless, were severely damaging to the image of the NBA," O'Brien said.

The commissioner also told Moe that a repetition of such conduct would result in more severe penalties.

The largest previous cash fine against an NBA coach was $2,500, assessed against Dick Motta in 1974. At the time, Motta was coaching the Chicago Bulls. He now coaches Washington.

THE HOT DOG VENDOR

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs.

He sold very good hot dogs.

He put up signs along the highway and advertised in the newspaper telling how good they were.

He stood on the side of the road and cried:

"Buy a hot dog, Mister?"

And people bought.

He increased his meat and bun orders.

He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade.

He finally got his son home from college to help him out.

But then something happened.

His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio and watching TV?"

There's a big depression.

The foreign situation is terrible.

The domestic situation is worse."

Whereupon the father thought,

"Well, my son's been to college, he listens to the radio and watches TV and he ought to know."

So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his signs and cancelled his newspaper ads and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs.

And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.

"You're right, son" the father said to the boy.

"We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (AP)—The young man scanned the space between the gold markers, chose a spot, bent over with the grace of an acrobat and pushed the tee in the green grass.

His shoulders were broad, his arms thick, his stomach flat. His skin was the color of copper and his 6-foot-3 frame as supple and lean as tanned leather. The clubhead fairly exploded against the ball: a blurred whoosh and a resounding thwack.

The ball disappeared in the morning sunlight, to be found, later, after a stroll of nearly 300 yards, in the exact center of the fairway.

"Mister," an awed witness said, "you can flat hit a golf ball."

"Thank you," Chip Pellerin replied. "But, unfortunately, that isn't quite good enough. All of us can do that."

Chip Pellerin is one of many hundred lean, sun-burnished young men whose ambition is to break into one of the most exclusive groups in the country, the professional golfers' tour.

"I don't believe most people who watch golf on television have any idea of what's involved in getting into a tournament. It's really tough. But, yes," he said, arctic blue eyes surveying the terrain ahead. "that's what I aim to do."

His second shot rose in a lovely arc, dropped just beyond a sand trap and rolled toward the cup. One putt. Plunk.

"I figure my chances are as good as anybody's."

Louis A. Pellerin IV "Chip" is a more manageable handle" was born 24 years ago in Baton Rouge, La., and has been swinging golf clubs since he was five.

At age eight he brought home the first of a cabinet full of trophies. At 17, he shot a hole-in-one. When he went off to college he picked Georgia Southern precisely because of its strong golf program. He won matches from coast to coast.

So have countless other ambitious golfers.

The Professional Golfers' Association Tour holds two tournaments a year to winnow a field of about 1,000 applicants with $300 entry fees down to about 100.

Those 100 survivors get the chance, the slim chance, to qualify at each of about 35 pro tournaments for a shot at the prize money. But unless they earn at least $8,000 in at least 15 tournaments, in one year, they must go back to square one and start over, $300 entry fee and all.

It takes skill, luck and money. The PGA Tour recommends that each aspirant find sponsors who will put up at least $25,000 to get him through that first, dicey year.

Chip Pellerin works as an assistant to the pro at a course on this lush resort island. He teed up for another drive. Whoosh. Thwack.

Picking up his tee, he said, "I know the risk. I can only promise I'll give them my best shot."

If his best shot resembles the one he just hit, it was last seen rising.

Grand Canyon Coolege Taken From Playoff Due To Champagne

PHOENIX (AP)—Southern Baptist-owned Grand Canyon College will not allow its No. 1-ranked baseball team to compete in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics world series this month because players celebrated their last victory with a champagne toast in the locker room.

"Because it's a Christian school, they (the administration) feel we made a disgrace of the school," said Ed Bonine, the Antelopes' top pitcher, told The Arizona Republic.

Grand Canyon defeated Sam

Houston State, 10-2, Friday to win the Area 2 tournament and earn a berth in the world series scheduled to begin Memorial Day in Nashville, Tenn.

The team violated school rules, however, with a champagne bash in the locker room after the victory and the school administration decided not to let the team compete in the nationals, the Republic said.

Grand Canyon Assistant Coach Kent Fulmer told the newspaper that veteran Head Coach Dave Brazell had called him to say, "We aren't going."

The school's athletic administrator, Bill Estes, admitted Tuesday that the administration had made a decision and said the NAIA would be notified Wednesday morning. He would not elaborate.

Brazell and school President Bill Williams could not be reached for comment.

Several Antelope players admitted there was champagne in the locker room after Friday's win, and an Associated Press photograph showing the jubilant players popping corks was transmitted across the country and appeared in a Phoenix newspaper Saturday.

A student handbook published by the college, which is owned and operated by the Arizona Southern Baptist Convention, says possession or use of alcoholic beverages on campus is prohibited.

Players claim the champagne was used symbolically in celebration, not to get drunk.

Fulmer said, "It's unfortunate that they pulled the rug from under the kids. They worked hard to get this far and they really wanted to go."

LaCoss Wins 5th For Red Machine In 5-0 Victory

By BRUCE LOWITT

AP Sports Writer
Mike LaCoss said Manager John McNamara waved his magic wand again - but the wands of Dave Collins & Co. had something to do with it, too.

LaCoss, unbeaten this year, chalked up his fifth victory by three-hitting San Francisco Wednesday night while Collins, Johnny Bench and Ray Knight were hitting home runs off Vida Blue in Cincinnati's 5-0 whitewashing of the Giants.

It washed away the bad taste of the Reds' 12-2 loss 24 hours earlier and widened their National League West lead to 2½ games over the Giants.

In the rest of the NL it was Atlanta 6, Houston 5; St. Louis 3, Philadelphia 1; Los Angeles

4, San Diego 2, and Montreal 3, Pittsburgh 0. Chicago at New York was rained out.

"We haven't lost a game I've started yet," said LaCoss, a 23-year-old right-hander. "It seems like Mac waves a magic wand when I pitch."

"Like tonight, he puts Dave Collins in left field and he hits a home run, his first as a National Leaguer. He's just a super manager."

LaCoss' first start this year came against the Giants after the Reds had lost their first three games. It was a disaster for him - four hits and five runs allowed in two-thirds of an inning, although none of them were earned because of an error he committed. Still, the Reds won that one 7-6 and haven't lost with him on the mound.

Blue, who has lost three in a row, has been getting shelled of late. Last year he allowed 12 home runs in 258 innings. This year he's given up a dozen in only 80.

Brewers 6, Astros 5

Jerry Royster's two-run single highlighted Atlanta's five-run eighth inning that enabled Tony Brizzolara to chalk up his first major league victory. Brizzolara allowed seven hits in eight innings but was virtually untouchable after Houston's four-run first.

Cardinals 3, Phillies 1

The St. Louis Cardinals literally stole their game from Philadelphia. Three stolen bases off Phils pitcher Dick Ruthven were followed by three run-scoring hits. In the third, Ken Oberkfell singled, stole second and came in on Gary Templeton's single. Templeton then stole second and came home on Keith Hernandez's single. The Cardinals made it 3-0 in the fourth when Tony Scott singled, stole second and came home on Ken Reitz's double.

Dodgers 4, Padres 2

Burt Hooton checked San Diego on six hits and Steve Garvey doubled home two runs in the Dodgers' victory. Los Angeles shelled Randy Jones and three relievers for 14 hits, four by Dusty Baker.

The Dodgers wiped out the Padres' 2-1 lead in the fifth when Gary Thomasson and Bill Russell singled, Garvey doubled them both home, then Garvey scored on Baker's single.

Expos 3, Pirates 0

Steve Rogers scattered eight hits and Tony Perez and Warren Vromartie knocked in runs to help the Expos beat Pittsburgh and win for the fifth time in six games.

Rodney Scott's bunt single preceded Perez's triple off loser John Candelaria in the fourth inning and Montreal added two runs, one on Cromartie's single, in the eighth off Kent Tekulve.

Tryouts for the American Legion baseball team will be Saturday May 26, according to coaches Joe Don Cummings and Tommy Weemes. The team is a chance for boys that want to play baseball in high school to get some valuable summer experience.

Players that were a part of the team last year as well as any boy that will not be 19 by the first day of August 1979 should try and make the session that will begin at 4 p.m. at the high school field, or call 364-0067 to let the coaches know that you are interested.

The team's first game is scheduled for June 2.

James Mays will be Hereford's first representative to take part in the NCAA Track and Field which will have this year's meet May 31-June 2.

Mays, of Texas Tech, will be participating in the 800 meters where he has the nation's third best time of 1:47.14. He will be joined in Champaign, Ill. by two other Red Raiders, Ricky McCormick and Greg Lautenslager, both who will be running the 1500 meters.

On their way to the meet, the three will stop in Wichita, Kansas to run in an invitational meet.

If Mays does well in the NCAA's there is the chance that he will be invited to the pre-Olympic Training Camp the following week. The opportunity to be in this camp will enable the athletes to possibly be selected to the national team that competes against other countries throughout the summer.

Fidrych Returns To Disabled List

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers have suffered through so many serious injuries with pitcher Mark "The Bird" Fidrych the past two years that they're treating his latest ailment almost with a sigh of relief.

The Tigers placed Fidrych on the 21-day disabled list Wednesday after the sore-armed pitcher was examined by doctors.

"One good thing about it is that it's not his shoulder," Detroit Manager Les Moss said Wednesday night, following the Tigers' 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees. "It's down in the back of his arm, the triceps. I think it's called."

Moss said Fidrych will remain with the Tigers and accompany the team on its 14-day road trip starting Monday.

Dr. Edwin R. Guise Jr., an orthopedic specialist, said that the tendinitis in Fidrych's right shoulder apparently is healed but that he needs rest and exercise to restore his pitching strength.

"Mark is free of pain in his shoulder and his old injury apparently is healed," Dr. Guise said. "But because of his long period of inactivity, he has a weakness of the muscles in his upper arm and shoulder."

"He will now go through a program of exercises with weights and resistance devices to restore his strength."

Fidrych has been injured off and on since his 19-9 season in 1976 when he was Rookie of the Year in the American League. He was on the disabled list from April 1 until April 30 this year.

Since then, he has started four games with little success. He failed to win in three decisions while compiling a 10.43 ERA in 14½ innings.

Fidrych, who hasn't won a major league baseball game since April 12, 1978, ducked out on reporters Wednesday without comment.

Following a 12-8 shelling by the Yanks on Tuesday, however, Fidrych was optimistic about his recovery. "My confidence will hold up," he said.

"He'll be throwing on the sidelines where we can match him closely," Moss said. "We intend to work with him the whole time we're on the road."

Meanwhile, Fidrych's removal from the 25-man roster opened the gate for an eight-player move of Tiger-owned players late Wednesday including four pitchers.

Pitchers Dave Tobik and Pat Underwood, plus outfielder Dan Gonzales were recalled from the Tigers' farm club at Evansville, Ind., while pitcher Fernando Arroyo was purchased from Evansville.

Detroit outfielder Tim Corcoran along with pitchers Sheldon Burnside and Bruce Taylor were sent to the minor leagues to make room for the players coming up.

"Our pitching hasn't been going too good and we figure those guys down there deserved a chance," Moss said. "We'll see how it goes" before deciding on other roster shakeups.

David Spriggs of New Mexico State gained 510 yards by rushing and passing in one game against Southern Illinois in 1978.

Protection System Opens New Branch

Security Protection Systems opened their branch office in Hereford in the latter part of 1978.

This is the first branch established by the Lubbock based firm.

Prior to establishing their local office they had been supplying Hereford area businesses and residences with alarms, guards, and patrol service.

The business growth was excellent and Don Gallager, President of Security Protection System, felt it was time to establish an office in Hereford and appoint a Branch Manager. Mr. Gallager stated that "Being part of a community with local people employed is the quickest way to establish a good working relationship with the community."

Paul Hangerford was recently appointed as Branch Manager. Mr. Hangerford started with the company as Supervisor over the MBPXL Account in Friona.

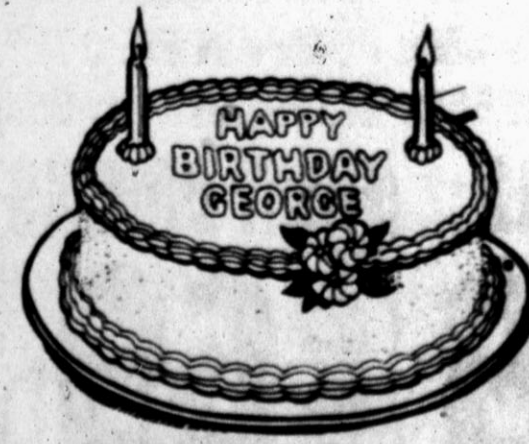

Hangerford retired from the Air Force after 22 years of service. Paul was appointed as Branch Manager on March 19, 1979. The Hereford office number for Security Protection Systems is 364-8614. Hangerford's home phone is 505-389-5398 in Clovis. Security Protection Systems in just four years has become the largest total security firm in this part of West Texas. Mr. Gallager commented, "The reason for the success that Security Protection Systems has had in such a short time is the result of the local people employed, the supervision per employee ratio and its modern digital computer central station located in Lubbock," Mr. Gallager stated. "The central station can monitor alarms anywhere in the country. In addition it uses existing telephone lines, with no monthly line charge fees required. Today a single system can monitor business, home owners, and up to six different devices such as burglary, hold ups, fire, water leaks, temperature, and opening and closing of a business. The information is displayed at the central station and then printed out in a hard copy card for a permanent record."

Security Protection is in the process of expanding in the Hereford area. Mr. Hangerford commented, "Hereford is a very nice friendly community, the people here are some of the nicest I've met. I just hope that my company and I can be of service to them; business and homeowners alike." [adv.]

For as little as $7.28 you can let everyone know you're sending special greetings to that certain loved one or friend.

The Hereford Brand Display Advertising Department will be very happy to help you, whether it be a Birthday, Anniversary, Birth Announcement, Promotion, Graduation, or other greeting.

Ann Landers

Noby's Perfect

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Twenty years ago my husband had a child out of wedlock. We never spoke of the incident after we married. When our son was born, it was very painful for me to accept the fact that he had a brother or sister somewhere in the world he would never know.

Our son is now an adult. Should he be told? Only one relative knows about the out-of-wedlock child. It would be a tremendous shock to the others if they should learn of it.

My wish is to bury the past forever. I think it would save a lot of grief. What are your thoughts on the subject? -- Heavy On My Mind

DEAR H.: I believe the only way to rid yourself of this burden is for you and your husband to tell your son together. Ask the boy to keep it to himself. If one relative knows, there's always the chance that the secret will leak. Your son might resent the fact that you kept it from him.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to say a word about a subject. I have never seen discussed in your column -- computers.

Computers are fast and almost always accurate. They are excellent tools but unfortunately they are only as good as the humans who operate them. People frequently make mistakes which show up in computerized bills and statements. Here's some advice: If a computerized bill is wrong and you point it out to the business establishment and they say, "We're sorry. We'll take care of it right away" -- fine. If you are told, "It's the computer's fault and these things take time" -- close your account and let them know why.

I'm a programmer who works with computers every day. When I hear someone say, "It's the computer's fault," I burn. Humans operate computers and humans can correct them -- if they want to. -- Nobody's

Perfect
DEAR N.B.: Your letter couldn't have come at a better time. I am having a hassle with a computer "error" at this very moment. I'm going to send them YOUR letter. Bless you!

DEAR ANN: I am terribly ashamed of my problem. I am 57 years old and have been married to my husband for 29 years. We have four grown children.

My husband was always a compulsive worker -- never felt the need for vacations. In recent years he has become disagreeable and impossible to please. He fusses about everything -- our son's occupation, the men our daughters married, his office help, my playing duplicate bridge once a week, etc.

"Frank" had a major heart attack in 1970. Is it possible that this has something to do with his grumpiness? The man is really making me sick.

I've always had a happy disposition, but lately I cry a lot and have trouble sleeping. He has driven our children away from us. When they visit, "Frank" finds fault constantly and picks fights.

I have gone for counseling and was told to get involved in outside activities -- take a trip, do needlework, develop my own interests. When I do volunteer work "Frank" fusses. Last night I mentioned taking an art class and he hit the ceiling. As for a trip, I could not enjoy going off and leaving him alone. I need help. -- Sedalia, Mo.

DEAR SEDALIA: "Frank" should return to his doctor. His behavior suggests that he may have had a series of small strokes. Regardless of the reason for his behavior, the counselor gave you good advice. I hope you take it.

Art Guild Members Recess For Summer

Members of the Hereford Art Guild met at the Black House Tuesday evening for their annual installation of officers. After a salad supper, the outgoing president, Eunice Petersen, presented her officers with gifts, and commended them on their work and support during the year. The following were placed in office: Ruby Lee Hickman, president; Ina Mae Gilbreath, vice president; Cordease Wilson, second vice president; Opal Elliston, secretary; Hilda Haven, treasurer; Audrey Rusher, publicity chairman; Eunice Petersen, parliamentarian.

The duties of the officers were compared to the flowers in a bouquet, and the members as "fillers", or greenery to make the arrangement complete and beautiful.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

It's not the first time it's happened and it won't be the last. An elderly woman went shopping with her sister in one of those city-sized shopping centers. They became separated from one another and she was lost for three days before finding her way out.

Lucky she was a strong woman. A weaker one would have panicked and they would have found her unconscious body thrown over a waist-high glass map that looks like a pigeon relief station with her fingers pointing to "YOU ARE HERE!"

It's going to get worse before it gets better. Every day shopping centers get larger and larger, with each one vying for the "biggest in the world" status. After awhile, when someone is missing the standard procedure will be to "check all the hospitals, morgues and the shopping centers."

There's a shopping center near me that has reached three-exit proportions and is in the process of applying for statehood. There are glass elevators, sub-lower-upper-and mid-upper levels, skating rinks, malls, special corridors and parking for several thousand cars. (Unfortunately, the cars were parked the day the building was completed and haven't moved since.)

I went there once with Mother, who jumped out of the car and said, "Meet you in the shoe store." I never saw her again.

I have to admit, I have always found my way out of shopping centers but never at the same door in which I entered... or at the same age. I am never fully prepared for the next Shopping Center Game, which is "FIND YOUR CAR!"

I have a theory about cars parked in a shopping center parking lot. Unknown to the shoppers, the shopping center revolves slowly... perhaps an inch an hour... so slowly that you cannot see the difference with the naked eye. However, when you come out after five or six hours your car is never in the same place in which you parked it.

All I know is shopping centers can't get too big for my mother. She loves 'em big. The bigger, the better. Recently, she saw a maze of shops and lights and trees and concrete and yelled, "Stop the car! What do they call this shopping center?"

"Los Angeles, Mother."

Q. Our house is very old, but we want to put some solar collectors on the roof to catch the sun's rays. How do we go about it?

A. Many books have been written to answer that single question, so it would be impossible in this space to give you even an idea of everything that is involved. You should get your hands on some books on the subject, of which there are about 200, either from a bookstore or your local library. You can also call the National Solar Heating and Cooling Information Center, Rockville, Md., whose toll-free number is 800 523-1919, for specific data. Solar collectors work best when installed on the south side of the house, but remember that they are only part of the system. Besides being collected, the sun's energy must be distributed and stored. There are actually thousands of companies manufacturing such equipment, some of which make rather exaggerated claims. The government and industry are engaged in programs designed to determine which of the systems are living up to the claims made for them. If you are having a solar energy system installed, it is vital that it be done by experts.

COMMENTARY

Martha Angle and Robert Walters
Uncommon election

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Voters in the nine Common Market countries head to the polls next month for an election that represents a major step forward in the political integration of western Europe.

For the first time, members of the European Parliament will be elected directly by the voters in member nations instead of being appointed from their national parliaments as is now the case.

Even though the 410-member European Parliament will have only limited powers, some of the continent's leading political figures are campaigning for seats. Among them are former Chancellor Willy Brandt in West Germany and former Prime Minister Leo Tindemans in Belgium.

Turnout for the elections, which will be held June 7-10, may put voters in America to shame. Advance estimates range from a low of 34 percent in Germany to almost 70 percent in the Netherlands — pretty spectacular considering that barely one-third of the eligible voters in the United States bothered to cast ballots in last year's elections for Congress.

The European Parliament is organized by political parties, not national groupings, and the major parties across Europe have linked up for this campaign to present unified platforms. Thus, all Christian Democrats — regardless of nationality — are running on a common platform, and likewise Socialists and Liberal-Democrats.

A "United States of Europe" still remains a distant dream, but the direct election of a common Parliament is likely to bring it one step closer to reality. Europeans, at any rate, seem to be taking the election seriously.

Unlawful conflict?

Sen. S. I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., is trying to get Congress to repeal provisions of the federal Voting Rights Act that require bilingual ballots to be made available in counties in 30 states.

It's not just the cost of compliance that bothers the Japanese-American senator, although election officials across the country have complained that such costs greatly outweigh any benefits involved.

Hayakawa says the requirement for bilingual ballots directly conflicts with U.S. naturalization laws, which require applicants for American citizenship to demonstrate knowledge of written and spoken English.

"I firmly believe that all U.S. citizens, regardless of their heritage, need to learn to use English well enough to vote in this English-speaking country," the senator said.

Learning to work together

Job sharing, a small but growing phenomenon in the private employment sector, has gained a foothold in the political world as well — at least in the state of Washington, where the House membership this year was evenly divided (49-49) between Democrats and Republicans.

To avert the paralysis that could have resulted from this partisan deadlock, the Washington House simply appointed one Democrat and one Republican each to the offices of speaker, floor leader, chief clerk, sergeant-at-arms and committee chairmanships.

Amazingly enough, the job-sharing worked relatively smoothly throughout the legislative session. The two speakers, luckily indeed, were close personal friends and managed to cooperate nicely in the top leadership post.

Committee co-chairmen and other forcibly paired leaders learned to work together amicably, and political bickering was greatly reduced. Republicans and Democrats alike pronounced the experiment a success.

The Minnesota House, the only other legislature in the nation with a similar partisan deadlock (67-67), didn't attempt the job-sharing approach used in Washington but instead tried to parcel out leadership posts and committee majorities more or less equitably between the two parties.

Top Rodeo Prize

This tandem axle trailer, donated by local feedyards, will be the top prize in the 1979 Hall of Fame Rodeo to be conducted here August 16, 17 and 18 at the Hereford Riders Club Arena. The trailer will be awarded to the all-around cowgirl in the rodeo, who must be entered in at least three events, and who must place high enough to be in the money in at least two events.

Local Jeweler Completes Quartz Crystal Watch Repair Class

Charles Skinner of Cowan's Jewelers has completed a professional course in quartz-based timekeeping conducted by Bulova Watch Company, with classes held in Amarillo. The intensive program is designed for the watch technician who handles quartz-based wristwatches that use a tiny bar of quartz crystal. The course for jewelers and watchmakers is conducted at locations throughout the country by terms of Bulova instructors, and involves intensive classroom instruction on various models of quartz watches with dials and solid-state watches with digital readouts. "These are the finest type of quartz watches," said Skinner, "that offer the consumer an in-use accuracy to within 60 seconds a year."

He added that most watches were being sold last year by personnel who did not even know how to set a digital watch correctly, and who did not know how to change batteries. Bulova reports a tremendous need for properly trained professionals to serve those who buy electronic watches.

Trailer Top Prize In Rodeo

The All-Around Cowgirl for the 1979 Hereford Hall of Fame Rodeo will receive a two horse, tandem axle trailer, valued at $2,000.00 as the top prize. The trailer was donated to the Hall of Fame Rodeo committee by five Hereford feedyards including, Pitman Industries, Hereford Feedyards, Champion Feeders, Tri-State Cattle Company and Sugarland Feedyards. Jack Conrad headed up the efforts to secure the trailer. To be eligible for the All-Around honors a contestant must be entered in three events, and place high enough in two to be in the top money. This year's rodeo is set for August 16, 17, & 18 at the Riders Club arena, with performances each evening at 7:30.

Flying "J" rodeo company from Wrenn Texas will again furnish the stock for the rodeo. Clown-Bull fighter Bill Thorpe and his trained bull Cajun will be on hand for each performance. On Friday night, recording artist Kenny Dale will provide music for a dance in the Bull Barn, and on Saturday night Red Steagall and the Coleman County Cowboys will be here. Saturday afternoon there will be a parade through downtown Hereford, under the direction of the Hereford Kiwanis Club. Gene Campbell is chairman for that event.

County Judge Glen Nelson is heading up an old fiddlers contest on that date with top fiddlers from the state here to compete for prize money totaling $600.00.

Again this year the American Legion Post will handle the selling of advertising for the program. Garth Thomas is heading up that project which is currently underway. Merchants wishing to place ads in the 1979 rodeo program may contact Thomas at his home, or call Bob Hillerby at Lighthographics.

The Thursday night performance of this year's rodeo has been designated kid's night, and all youngsters 12 and under will be admitted free with a Dairy Queen wrapper or cup. This made possible by Lynn Arnolds Dairy Queen.

The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame weekend will be highlighted with an Art Show and the Hall of Fame, and the induction of five women in the Hall during the Saturday night performance.

Television Use For Computer Data Bank Not Far In Future

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Bill Jones, ready to go out to dinner, punches a few buttons on a hand-held keyboard and looks at his television set.

Onto the screen flashes a list of restaurants by type, from Armenian to vegetarian. Jones then taps out the number opposite the "Chinese" listing, this time on his regular touchtone telephone.

Immediately, his screen displays a list of Chinese restaurants, with addresses, phone numbers, and special code numbers. Jones picks a new place he's heard of, punches its code number and the menu appears on the screen.

Jones heads out the door, but not before punching more buttons to check a bus schedule and the weather forecast. He takes his umbrella.

Though Jones is not a real person, his actions are not necessarily those in a science-fiction movie.

Using your TV as a data bank with almost unlimited capacity may be only a few years away, says William Loveless, chief engineer for Bonneville International, a broadcast group based here.

Bonneville's KSL-TV in Salt Lake City and KMOX-TV in St. Louis, owned by CBS, have been testing a signal capable of giving viewers access to 120 pages of information. By linking the system to the telephone, access would be opened to millions more pages.

Now, only a station engineer sees the information. But KSL is actually broadcasting the signal, and home viewers whose TV sets were properly equipped could see it also.

The information includes the latest weather report, a TV schedule, news stories, lists of entertainment in the area, and information about advertised

Q - Our cedar closet doesn't seem to be working any more. It used to have a definite cedar smell, but doesn't ever since I painted the inside walls a year ago. Should I have left them unfinished? Is that why the pleasant odor is gone?

A - That's precisely why. You should not have put any finish on it. What you did was to seal in the odor that protects your clothes. You'll have to get the paint off, either with a remover of the non-flammable type or by intensive sanding or steel wooling. When the paint is off and the pores can breathe, the aroma will return.

products.

A version of the system, called teletext, is already in use in England and France, but no sets capable of receiving the signal are sold in the United States because the Federal Communications Commission has not set regulations governing its use.

The test transmissions, authorized by the FCC, involve an unused portion of the signal carrying the regular TV picture and sound. Stations won't have to add anything to their transmitting equipment to broadcast it.

The signal doesn't affect regular television picture or sound because it's transmitted on a portion of the signal above the regular TV screen. It can be flashed over a program going on or onto a blank screen on an unused channel.

Existing sets could be converted to receive teletext for about $100, Loveless said, but they could be manufactured with that capability for as little as $25 extra.

The entire system could be available in some markets within 2 1/2 years, he predicted. KSL has tested the system for nearly a year, hooking up a specially equipped set at distant points in its viewing area.

KMOX began tests in March. Loveless said teletext is not designed to replace current media but to be a "third medium," different from television or newspapers.

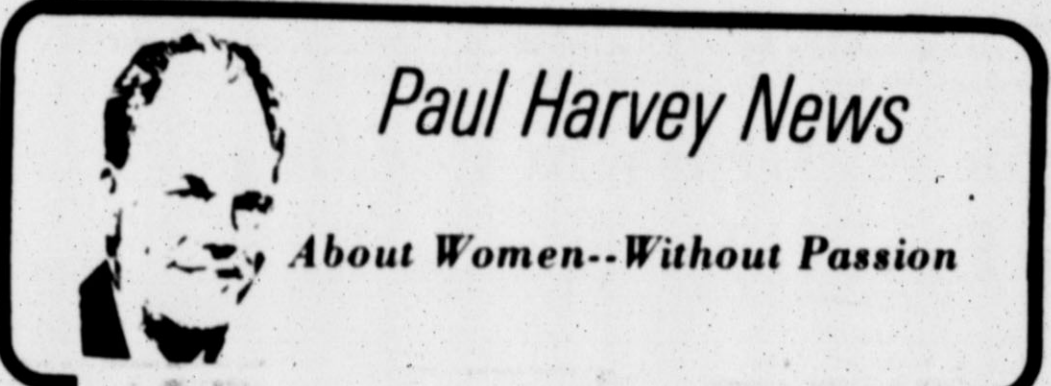

"People will always want to tear out articles, swat flies and line bird cages," he said.

Viewers could see any of the information being transmitted by punching a series of buttons on a hand-held calculator.

A newscaster on the regular TV channel could end a report by saying, "For more information, refer to teletext page 200."

Bonneville proposes hooking the system into a regular touchtone telephone to give access to several trillion pages. Technically, telephone books, encyclopedias, a whole library of information could be programmed into teletext computers.

A viewer could even get his television screen to carry on a kind of conversation with him, said Loveless. In the restaurant search, the screen, in effect, asks the viewer what he feels like eating, what location would be most convenient, and finally which specific restaurant menu he wants to see. An industry committee is to

About Women--Without Passion

I am calling this essay "About Women--Without Passion."

That is a sneaky device to solicit your undivided attention. What it means is that we are going to try to talk about a sensitive subject -- dispassionately.

We are going to try to discuss the Equal Rights Amendment--without rancor.

For the Equal Rights Amendment to be ratified, requires the concurrence of three more states. They now have until June of 1982 to make up their minds.

So the subject is "on the back burner," so to speak.

With no state voting right now, there will not likely be a better time to consider the subject objectively.

Those opposed to ERA have predicted dire consequences: "It will merge toilets, it will legalize prostitution and homosexual marriages, it will destroy the family."

In 15 states where women are already guaranteed equal rights, none of these dire predictions has come to pass.

On the other side of the ledger, however, ERA would beget important institutional changes--in marriage, government, education and employment.

There are only 23 words in the proposed amendment: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any state on account of sex."

Simple as it sounds, legal authorities are in agreement that it would end sex discrimination in employment, in public education and in the military.

Under ERA a married woman would be free to use her own surname rather than her husband's.

In divorce settlements, wives could expect an equitable division of property and husbands could expect equal consideration in child custody.

ERA would immediately cancel thousands of federal, state and local laws which treat women and men differently.

In Massachusetts only men are prohibited from making obscene phone calls.

In North Carolina only men are prohibited from peeping through windows.

In Mississippi women are limited to 10-hour working days.

men are not.

The United States Civil Rights Commission has identified some 800 sections of the United States code which contain substantive sex bias or sex-based terminology.

Should ERA be ratified, there will remain for all a constitutional "right of privacy" enunciated by the Supreme Court in 1965. That means that laws dealing with unique physical characteristics would prevail--such as laws relating to abortion.

And unisex toilets.

To avert eventual disillusionment, this needs to be understood: The law can guarantee "equal legal rights," it cannot guarantee "equality." Indeed, no two individuals of whatever sex are "equal."

As some men are suited to heavy work and to military combat and some are not--so it will be with women.

I guess what I'm saying is "Don't expect too much."

If I were a woman I think I would resent most the disproportionate pay scale for similar employment. For 15 years we have had a law specifically designed to correct that. It hasn't yet.

Government Regulations Major Cause Of Oil And Gas Shortage

(WASHINGTON) - Congress and the federal government are the major causes of the energy shortage in America today, Congressman Jim Collins of Texas said. "The energy shortage is real and it is government-caused," he said.

"When the government decided to regulate the oil industry in 1973 and put price controls on domestically produced oil, that is when the energy shortage began. Price controls are only on one commodity--oil and gas."

"Government price controls placed a limit on domestic oil at $5.50 a barrel. Arab OPEC oil then increased to $14.50 a barrel. As price controls took effect, domestic production decreased and our imports of oil increased," Collins said.

The Texas congressman noted that since 1973, when Congress placed price controls on the oil industry in the U.S., domestic production dropped from 9.2 million barrels a day (mbd) in 1973 to 7.6 mbd in 1978. In 1973, the U.S. imported $3 billion of oil and in 1978 we imported $42 billion of oil.

"The way to solve the energy shortage in America is to completely deregulate oil and gas now. We need to get the politicians and bureaucrats out of the energy business because the way government approaches a problem is to create a new agency."

"In 1977, President Carter asked for and Congress created the Department of Energy with a $5 billion budget. In two years DOE's budget has more than doubled in size to $11 billion, and they have not produced one drop of oil."

"As a matter of fact, this bureaucratic nightmare's budget is more than what the entire oil and gas industry in the U.S. spent for producing our energy," Collins said.

High Plains Wheat Crop May Be Best In Decade

AMARILLO — The wheat crop on the Texas High Plains has gotten off to its best start in years, and should easily produce more than half of the state's estimated 105-million-bushel yield this year, reports an agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Wheat fields across the Texas Panhandle and South Plains look better at this stage than they have in the past 10 years, said Dr. Frank Petr, Extension area agronomist at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center here. His statement followed a tour of wheat fields of the Panhandle and in Oklahoma and Kansas.

"Dryland and irrigated wheat in the Panhandle is looking quite good," Petr said. Stands are good and there is no sign of disease or insects, he reported.

Freezing temperatures in early May, ranging down to 26 degrees at the higher elevations in the Panhandle, have damaged some wheat, Petr said. These isolated instances of damage will not have much effect on the state's total production, but will have serious detrimental effect on the income potential of individual producers, he said.

"In some fields where pockets of cold air lingered, the yield reduction due to frost damage may be as much as one third," the Extension agronomist said. Some fields that were damaged by hail seemed to suffer more freeze damage. This reduction in seed set may be due to the increased cooling effect of the hail plus the shock to the plant from physical damage.

The trapping of wheat heads due to bruising or breaking over the boot and flag leaf should not seriously affect seed set, as the wheat plant is normally self-pollinated, Petr said.

The Sherman County area has not received the beneficial rainfall that occurred in most of the Panhandle, the agronomist noted.

Due to a dry fall season, some dryland wheat did not emerge until some rain was received in March. "Such late wheat has low production potential; consequently, most of the dryland wheat in the Stratford area is being grazed out or has been abandoned. Irrigated fields in the county are average or better," Petr said.

"Some of the irrigated wheat will probably not yield as much as it might have in other years because, generally, the farmers were a little bit inclined to omit some of the irrigations" this year, he said. This reduction was due to the rapidly increasing cost of pumping irrigation water, he noted.

"Probably most of our irrigated fields will yield in the 40-50 bushel range, whereas with the type of stands that we have, we might have expected probably 50-60 bushels an acre on some of this wheat," Petr said.

The annual tri-state tour of wheat fields is sponsored by the Wheat Improvement Association. Groups originated at points across the three states, toured selected routes and met in Liberal, Kan., where each group reported what had been seen. Participants included researchers Extension specialists, producers, representatives of governmental agencies and agribusiness firms, and news reporters.

Tour participants projected that production in all three states should be above last year. Reports from Kansas indicated some winter damage and poor stands in some areas, with moisture reaching the critical stage.

In Oklahoma, the four top wheat producing counties—Kay, Nobel, Garfield and Major—are expected to produce less than usual due to poor stands, some soil-borne mosaic disease and poor root development. But western Oklahoma wheat was reported above average and is expected to offset the losses if good weather prevails.

Ag School Honors Schlabs

CANYON — Tom Schlabs, a West Texas State University senior from Hereford, was among the more than 30 students honored recently in WTSU School of Agriculture ceremonies on campus.

The 1978-79 Agriculture Banquet and barbecue was held at the WTSU Nance Ranch, and recognized the outstanding seniors in each major, the members of the prize-winning judging teams as well as the scholarship recipients and outstanding club members.

Schlabs, son of Raymond Schlabs of Rt. 4, was recognized as a member of the WTSU crops judging team, which made a clean sweep of the regional and national competition first place awards this year.

Belgian farmers number only 3.5 percent of the Belgium work force, but they produce some 85 percent of that nation's food.

During an average Moscow winter, the snow cleared from the streets would cover 25 acres and be piled 750 feet high.

Oswalt Announces New Ensilmixer

A new Ensilmixer line has been introduced by Oswalt Division of Butler Manufacturing Co., Hereford, it was announced this week.

The units provide feedlot and dairy operators a faster, more uniform ration mix all the way down the bunk line, according to the manufacturer. The units feature a new drive design, heavier bearings, larger auger shafts and a new shear pin assembly.

Oswalt reports the mixers have 20 percent more capacity and include counter-rotating top augers for smoother material flow. The units retain many of the features found in previous Ensilmixer models, also.

Boost grain harvest productivity with a new 165-hp John Deere 7720 and 4-way adjustable rigid-bar platform

You can expect as much as 20 percent more productivity out of the 7720 over the 7700 it replaces. Team the new 165-hp engine option with our 4-way-adjustable rigid-bar platform and you'll outperform all others in any type of grain harvesting conditions.

Platform adjustability is outstanding. You can tilt the cutterbar so the platform bottom is parallel to the ground with any size tires. For efficient cutting in short or tall crops, green or dry, you can set cutterbar-to-auger distance in any one of three settings. For good pinch-and-pull crop movement, you can adjust the big-diameter cross auger forward, back, up or down. Platform sizes for the 7720 range from 13 to 30 feet.

Pick the size of platform that suits your crops and conditions. Then team it with the big-capacity 7720 for more grain harvesting productivity than you ever had before from John Deere. See us today for all the details.

Grain vs. Grass In Feeding With Favorable Spring Rain

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the ironies of the cattle business is that a farmer or feedlot operator who has the grain to fatten cattle for the slaughter market is in hot competition with other farmers and ranchers who have the grass.

Steady moisture the past few months, including heavy rains that have bogged down spring field work and triggered floods in many areas, has produced lush pasture growth in many parts of the country.

The Agriculture Department said in a newsletter being sent to subscribers that cattle feeders — those who use grain-based rations to "finish" cattle for slaughter — represent only one group at the moment that is "bidding for a limited number of feeder calves selling for record prices."

"They must compete this spring against 'stocker' operators buying calves to go back on grass and against farmers and ranchers who've decided to defer calf sales until fall," the report said.

"If you're a stocker operator with abundant pasture, you're in a good position to buy expensive calves and probably still turn a good profit. But you'll want to watch the market closely and guard against holding them too long."

The basic reason for all this is the reduction by 16 percent in the U.S. cattle herd, from a peak of 132 million at the start of 1975 to around 111 million last January.

"This reduction has made additional grazing land available in most areas," the report said. "Also, because the 1979 grazing season is beginning with excellent moisture conditions around the country, there is the likelihood of a good grazing year and abundant hay supplies if these conditions continue."

Many cattle breeders — the cow-calf operators — are holding back some of their feeder calves, including some who are buying additional calves to put in pastures this spring.

When grass is abundant, it is the cheapest feed of all to "grow" a calf to a heavier weight. Thus, top prices are being paid for these lightweight animals.

Sudden drought and a deterioration in grazing could force a surge in marketings this summer, meaning more steers could be available for feedlots. But cow-calf operators will have to think more than twice about selling off heifers, if they are serious about herd expansions.

Another factor confronting feeders, the report said, is the possibility of a slump this fall in prices of slaughter cattle. Many are simply balking at "paying the higher prices required to outbid stocker operators."

The stocker operator, however, also must be careful, remembering that supplies of feeder cattle generally peak in the fall.

"That's when calves from the spring calf crops, stocker cattle held over on grass, and heifers not retained for the cow herd typically enter the feedlot," the report said.

WTSU Ag School Names Dean

CANYON — Dr. James T. Thompson, chairman of the Murray State University, Murray, Kentucky Department of Agriculture, has been named new dean of the West Texas State University School of Agriculture.

Thompson, 38, will assume his duties on or before July 1, according to WTSU Executive Vice President Gail Shannon.

He is replacing Dr. Charles Smallwood who resigned last July 1 to be agriculture dean at California State University in Fresno.

The year-long vacancy was filled on a temporary basis by Dr. Ron Thomason, head of the WTSU Department of Plant Science.

Thompson has been chairman at Murray State since 1975. Before joining the Murray faculty, he held assistant and associate professor positions in the Illinois State University Department of Agriculture.

His bachelor of science in agriculture was obtained from Murray State, and his master's and doctoral degrees in animal science from the University of Kentucky at Lexington.

Thomson was selected from a field of four main candidates, according to Shannon.

"We felt that Dr. Thompson had the combination of qualities and experience needed to meet the challenges of our dear-ship," Shannon said.

"Dr. Thompson made a most favorable impression during his interview on campus as a person with both energy and enthusiasm and as one who could adapt readily to the needs of West Texas State University. President Sherman and I are both genuinely pleased at Dr. Thompson's decision to join the academic administration group here at WTSU," Shannon said.

Thompson is married and has two daughters.

TSCRA Smashes Major Cattle Theft Operations

FORT WORTH — Investigators for the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, working with other law enforcement officers, recently solved two major theft cases involving 113 head of cattle with an estimated market value of $61,543.

Don C. King, secretary-general manager of the Fort Worth-based organization, said, "One case involved the theft by check of 83 head from a San Angelo auction market and the other involved 30 head stolen from a Hereford feedyard. Suspects have been arrested in both cases and all cattle have been recovered or accounted for."

King, who oversees 32 field inspectors, all certified peace officers, in Texas and Oklahoma, attributed the successful conclusion of the two cases to the brand inspection program TSCRA administers at all Texas auction markets and the investigative ability of the officers. Key leads in both cases were developed through brand inspection records.

"These cases show how very important it is for cattle raisers to brand their cattle," King said.

The two cases dramatically illustrate the broad spectrum of criminal involvement in the cattle business in recent months, he added. Suspects in the San Angelo incident are professional people, while one of the two suspects in the Panhandle theft is a convicted cattle thief and jail escapee.

The sequence of events in the large cases resembles a television mystery plot. In mid-April, a professional order buyer in San Angelo was telephoned by a man impersonating a prominent Dallas businessman and cattleman. The man told the buyer to purchase 80 to 100 head of choice steers for him and gave him an account number on a Dallas bank. The order buyer bought 71 choice steers and 11 choice heifers at San Angelo on April 19. That night, a truck sent by the suspect arrived at the auction market and the cattle were loaded. The driver gave a fictitious name and license number.

The draft in payment of the cattle as rejected by the Dallasite's company, and auction market owners called in TSCRA field inspectors to find the cattle.

The ensuing investigation revealed that 21 head had been sold through the auction market at Pilot Point in Northeast Texas April 21, and two more at the same place April 28. Six of these cattle have been recovered by TSCRA inspectors.

Eleven head were sold on the Oklahoma City stockyards and 49 head were traced to a pasture near Warner, Okla., in the eastern part of the state. All of the pasture cattle were recovered.

On May 16, TSCRA Field Inspector A.L. (Butch) Davis Jr. of Fort Worth arrested Glen Dale Yeatts, 40, of Grapevine, Texas, for theft over $10,000, a second-degree felony. Bond was set at $20,000, and Yeatts was released May 17. He and another suspect gave voluntary statements to Davis and TSCRA Special Assistant Cullen Robinson in regard to the incident. The other suspect remains free.

Investigating officers in this case were Texas Rangers Arthur Sikes and Tom Arnold, TSCRA Field Inspectors Hatton M. Moore Jr., Joe Ramer, Paul Wade and Davis and Special Assistant Robinson.

In the other case, a red and white 1968 Chevrolet truck tractor and 42-foot cattle trailer were stolen May 6 from Elmo Hall of Hereford, Texas. Thirty head of crossbred and native cattle were "shoplifted" from Western Feedyards, east of Hereford. The losses were reported to the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's office and to TSCRA Field Inspector Kenneth Chambers. Suspecting that the cattle might be sold at a large auction market, Chambers notified brand inspectors at Fort Worth, San Antonio and Oklahoma City.

TSCRA Market Inspector Oscar R. Leissner in San Antonio confirmed that cattle matching the description arrived at Union Stockyards early Tuesday morning, May 8. The 30 head were put in a special pen and TSCRA Field Inspector Jim DeLesdernier notified TSCRA headquarters and, in turn, Chambers.

The cattle were consigned to Union Livestock Commission Co. and David Fluit, one of the owners, played an instrumental role in the case. He convinced one of the suspects that the cattle could not be sold until Wednesday, May 8, because the health of the cattle had to be checked by Texas Animal Health Commission inspectors. He arranged to meet the suspects at the yards on sale day.

DeLesdernier and market inspector Edmond Talk went undercover to learn more about the two suspects while King coordinated the investigation from Fort Worth. The inspectors learned that the "leader" of the two was using a fictitious name, L.W. Bowman, and in reality was Lyman Wayne Bassett, 26, a convicted cattle thief who had broken out of the Upshur County jail in East Texas April 28.

Bassett and another subject, Guadalupe S. Ramirez, 34, of Tyler, Texas, were arrested for theft over $10,000. Both men gave authorities voluntary statements and on May 10, Chambers and Deputy Sheriff Dean Butcher, Deaf Smith County Sheriff's department transported the two men to Hereford. Ramirez was released on $7,500 bond. Bassett was denied bond and remains in custody in Hereford.

More Land Treatment Needed To Prevent Erosion

WASHINGTON — More than half of the nation's cropland, forests, pastures and rangeland need increased conservation treatment to reduce soil erosion and improve water quality, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture M. Rupert Cutler said.

Announcing the first results of a 1977 national inventory of land resources by the department's Soil Conservation Service (SCS), Cutler said nearly 900 million acres of non-federal land need conservation work, about the same as a decade ago.

But there have been significant changes in the kinds of land needing treatment," he said.

Cropland acres that need conservation treatment declined from 64 percent in 1967 to 58 percent in 1977, he said. But forest lands needing treatment climbed from 62 to 67 percent in the same period, and the pasture and range land needing treatment rose from 71 to 75 percent, Cutler said.

The SCS National Resource Inventories, which cover all non-federal land in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the United States except Alaska, are being conducted in three phases. Phase 1 is now complete; phase 2 will be completed later this year, and phase 3, in 1980.

Data were collected by SCS field employees at more than 200,000 sample points.

Other highlights of phase 1: --The amount of rural land available for farming, ranching, and forestry declined nearly 37 million acres between 1967 and 1977, while the proportion of good, fair and poor agricultural land remained about the same. Of the total rural nonfederal land, 414 million acres are fairly level, while 1 billion acres have gentle to very steep slopes. Nearly 270 million acres are wet, while about 402 million acres are droughty or lack enough water to grow agricultural crops or trees. Many of these conditions, singly or in combination, limit the use of land.

--Land available for grazing has increased sharply since 1967, rising to 541 million acres in 1977. Today more than half the non-federal agricultural land is used for native pasture, pastureland or rangeland. There has been a corresponding decline in non-federal forestland.

--Homes, businesses, roads and ponds are swallowing rural land at the rate of about 3 million acres a year. Most of this irreversible change is related to urban expansion. Nearly one-third of the rural land lost to development is cropland. Small water areas increased by more than 1 million acres in the 1967-77 decade.

--Flood prone areas in the non-federal land area of the United States total 175 million acres. Nearly half this land is farmland of good quality for crops.

--There are 42 million acres of wetlands in the United States, of which 97 percent are in uses other than cropland. Forested wetlands account for half the total acreage.

--Average rates of soil erosion on cropland range from less than one ton per acre per year in some states to more than 41 tons per acre in the Caribbean area. Twenty-two states, mainly in the midwest and east, have average annual cropland erosion of 4 tons or more per acre.

Dairy Subcommittee Endorses 80 Percent Parity Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dairy subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee has endorsed keeping the minimum dairy price support rate at 80 percent of parity through September 1981.

Unless Congress acts, the legal minimum will drop to 75 percent on Oct. 1. The subcommittee approved the extension bill by unanimous voice vote Tuesday and the full committee may act this week.

Prices generally have been above the support rate since last year. A Congressional Budget Office study last month said that dropping the level or raising it sharply would disrupt either the retail or farm markets or both.

At 100 percent of parity, farmers theoretically would have the same buying power farmers had in 1910-14. Since the 80 percent minimum was enacted in 1977, the Agriculture Department has set the dairy supports as high as almost 83 percent.

"Allowing dairy supporters to decline could discourage decisions by producers to maintain adequate milk supplies for consumers," said subcommittee Chairman Alvin Baldus, D-Wis.

Some members of Congress want to put dairy farmers on a formula that reflects just their costs rather than a parity formula that includes all farming expenses and prices.

'Shopping Around' Can Cut Farm Costs

COLLEGE STATION — When buying farm supplies, "shopping around" could save on production expenses.

Many farm supplies are similar in physical properties, they merely have different brand names, says Dr. Ashley Lovell, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Prices for these expendables (such as feed, fertilizer and other supplies) are not fixed, he explains. Lovell says the price of an item may include management advice, soil testing or similar services, resulting in different packages offered by competitors at different prices.

The objective of shopping around, then, is to obtain the most favorable price after adjusting for any accompanying services, says the economist.

Time and expense needed to conduct the search must be considered, points out Lovell.

The amount of savings from finding the least expensive supply source is determined by the purchase size and the price dispersion within the market.

Due to increasing transportation costs, the telephone offers a low cost "shopping around" method, even with long distance charges, says Lovell.

Price shopping promotes competition, cuts production costs and fights inflation as well as facilities manufacturers' pricing decisions, according to the economist. If a supplier continually receives price inquiries, he will tell the manufacturer who uses this feedback in pricing decisions.

Another aspect of "shopping around" is that most of us receive a certain satisfaction from getting a "better deal," says Lovell.

Corn Planting Rate Doubles As 67 Percent of Crop is In WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers last week almost doubled their corn plantings and overtook last year's sowing pace, thanks to five or six good days for fieldwork in most states, the Agriculture Department says.

Some concern had been raised about the planting delays despite their ultimate irrelevance last season. The current update on spring planting might calm those uncertainties.

By Sunday, about 67 percent of the crop was planted, compared to only 34 percent a week earlier and 13 percent two weeks before, the report said.

Higher temperatures and only light rainfall in most areas gave the farmers a chance to catch up after weeks of cool, wet weather, the bulletin said.

Spring wheat seedlings jumped from 20 percent to 43 percent, but that's still well behind last year's 68 percent and the 71 percent average, the department said. Oats and barley plantings also were short of the 1978 mark and the averages.

Cotton plantings advanced to an average 66 percent, ahead of last year's 60 percent, however, while rice sowing stood at 83 percent, lagging behind last year's 90 and the 94 percent average, the report said.

About 23 percent of the soybean acreage was planted, up from 1978's 15 percent but below the 33 percent average.

Last year at the same time, 57 percent of what became an unexpectedly huge corn crop of 7.1 billion bushels had been planted. Nearly ideal weather in the critical summer and early fall months more than offset the delays.

Seventy-five percent planted is average for this point.

The report said the fuel supplies for fieldwork "generally rated adequate, although supplies were tightened from the previous week. Only a few localities reported fuel short enough to interfere."

It didn't mention another problem some Midwest corn growers are facing — an almost certain repeat of 1978's hassle with cutworms, which can destroy a crop in days if not checked.

Donald Kuhlman, an extension entomologist at the University of Illinois, said, "As the planting season is pushed back, the chance for severe infestation increases. This looks like a carbon copy of last year because it is wet, the crop is late, and many fields were weedy early in the spring."

The western Corn Belt was still lagging behind last year's pace and longterm average at 61 percent.

But that's a 38 percentage-point gain in a week and more than double the previous week's rate. The Great Lakes states also were generally still behind.

Planting surged ahead in the eastern parts of the belt, with 66 percent planted, and in the Southeast, where 95 percent of the crop was in the ground.

The 17 states included in the weekly report accounted for 93 percent of U.S. corn production in 1978. Planting progress in them, as of May 20 and compared to a year ago, was given as:

Colorado, 69 percent by May 20 and 78 percent a year before; Georgia, 100 and 100; Illinois, 72 and 37; Indiana, 60 and 20; Iowa, 82 and 71; Kansas, 60 and 55; Kentucky, 60 and 38; Michigan, 55 and 80; Minnesota 37 and 73; Missouri, 59 and 21; Nebraska, 60 and 75; North Carolina, 95 and 88; Ohio, 90 and 45; Pennsylvania, 68 and 32; South Dakota, 28 and 30; Virginia, 82 and 64; and Wisconsin, 42 and 50.

Ulcerative colitis

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am one of the thousands of people who suffer from ulcerative colitis. I've had it for the past 10 months. I was in the hospital and had all the tests made and I am taking Milpath after meals and Metamucil at bedtime.

I am on a very restrictive diet. I am 55, am 5 feet 3 inches tall and weigh 115 pounds. I never smoked or drank alcoholic beverages. Will you please suggest some other treatment or medicine I can suggest to my doctor so I can get rid of this problem soon? My doctor said I will probably feel better within a few months. My diet which I'm enclosing is so bad that you can see that I'm not living, I'm just existing. Thank you very much for any advice you can give.

DEAR READER - Ulcerative colitis is a very complex disease and its exact cause is not understood. I must assume that you're correct in telling me that is your diagnosis. This is not at all the same thing as a spastic or irritable colon and the treatment is entirely different.

Patients with ulcerative colitis usually have episodes of severe diarrhea, sometimes they have bleeding and they have abdominal pain with the episodes of diarrhea. Because of the heavy diarrhea, they frequently lose weight and they may develop nutritional deficiencies because of it.

The salt and water metabolism may be disturbed and, in general, the patients are pretty uncomfortable. The attacks may subside spontaneously and not occur again for some time.

The usual treatment is to try to stop the attack as quickly as possible. There are several medicines used for this. A common one is Azulfidine. Most antibiotics, however, don't help at all. They're used only if you have a complication such as a perforation or an abscess where there is an actual infection. Corticosterone or other steroid hormones are frequently used and are often useful in aborting the attack. The prolonged use of steroid hormones, however, may lead to other problems.

I looked over your diet. Many doctors do not think a special diet is particularly important. In fact, it's dangerous sometimes to have a diet that's too restricted because the patient's nutrition is already marginal.

There is such a thing as an elemental diet that provides essential amino acids, vitamins, minerals and glucose and safflower oil as a mixture. This is almost entirely absorbed in the small intestine so there's very little residue left to enter the inflamed and ulcerated colon.

Among your lists of foods I would question the inclusion of milk and milk products. Ulcerative colitis patients usually do not tolerate milk and milk products well.

Apple sauce and apple juice are not necessarily soothing to the digestive system. The flavor oils in decaffeinated coffee are sometimes very irritating to people with a sensitive colon.

Patients have recurrent attacks so don't expect any sudden miracle cure or permanent relief.

DEAR DR. LAMB - My 62-year-old sister has told me repeatedly that a doctor diagnosed her as having abdominal epilepsy. Over many years she has had a great variety of ailments and has been to see many doctors, most of whom she eventually distrusts.

We are both registered nurses but abdominal epilepsy is something I have never heard of. Any information you can supply about this condition will be much appreciated. Is it known by any other name and does it have any relationship to grand mal or petit mal epilepsy and is Dilantin used in treating it? As far as I know there's never been any epilepsy in our family.

DEAR READER - Yes, there is such a thing as abdominal epilepsy. Its chief characteristic is attacks of abdominal pain. They're associated with abnormalities in the EEG (brain wave) and they do respond to the same medications used to treat epilepsy.

Some of these cases have associated disturbances of consciousness or awareness during the times the attacks of abdominal pain occur. Since you're a registered nurse, I presume you have access to the medical literature and there were reports of several cases of abdominal epilepsy in the November 24, 1978 issue of The Journal of the American Medical Association. I'm also sending you The Health Letter number 10-8, Epilepsy: You Can Have It Too.

Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

As the JAMA report points out, the causes for abdominal epilepsy really aren't known and they may be numerous.

I can understand why your sister may have grown to distrust physicians if she has had recurrent attacks of abdominal pain that weren't diagnosed. Abdominal epilepsy is not something that walks into your office every day. The end result is that doctors may not think of it as a possible cause for recurrent attacks of abdominal pain that remain unexplained.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm a 27-year-old female vegetarian. I do eat dairy products and some fish. Our concern is our 26-month-old son. I nursed him for one year and since then we have been feeding him as I feed myself - the foods I feel most nutritious excluding meat products. He is a very healthy, rosy-cheeked young boy. I also give him a daily vitamin pill. Am I depriving him of any vitamins or minerals he might obtain in meat? My husband is an avid meat eater. Neither of us influence our son either way and he has eaten meat on occasion. Since meat is very high in protein, my husband feels our son must be lacking in protein. Please ease our minds for our son is our main concern.

DEAR READER - Meat is a good source of protein and other substances the body needs. You can get most of these same substances from an adequate amount of fish in the diet as I note you use for yourself.

Your son does need a source of complete protein, meaning one that contains all of the 10 essential amino acids for children. Fish does contain complete protein and so does milk. If he gets an adequate amount of fish and milk in his diet, with his daily vitamin medication, he shouldn't have any nutritional deficiency.

Killer Bees Lauded

By The Associated Press

Texas "Killer Bees" caught the fancy of the state and nation this week, and one newspaper said the 12 state senators "deserve applause" for the imaginative way they killed a piece of legislation they didn't care for.

The Corpus Christi Caller-Times, one of many which editorialized on the issue in its editions this week, said the senators fought their fight "with good humor, imagination and with serious intent underlying it all."

They drew reviews from other newspapers, also, but the praise was matched by editorial comment in other newspapers blasting the senators as being irresponsible by hiding out for four days, denying the Texas Senate a quorum and preventing it from meeting.

The 12 senators drew nationwide exposure after they fled the Capitol in protest of Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's method of trying to push through a bill that would split Texas' presidential primary.

Hobby, for want of a quorum, ordered Texas Rangers and Department of Public Safety officers to track down and arrest the itinerant senators. None was ever found, although one barely escaped out the back door of his home while officers were mistakenly arresting his brother at the front of the house.

The San Antonio News, noting the nationwide publicity, said: "The Killer Bees and the pursuit thereof has been good for Texas."

Hobby is "acting like a spoiled child," the Fort Worth Star-Telegram said in its Wednesday editions.

The 12 who fled to make their point in the battle over separate primaries may have gone to an extreme but sometimes an extreme action is needed to prevent another extreme."

The Beaumont Enterprise-Journal said trying to explain the senatorial disappearance is "frustrating and there's no way you can do it without feeling embarrassed and disgusted - but also a little bit proud. ... Perhaps this extreme action was necessary to uncover Austin's back room politics."

The San Antonio Express, calling the play "an amusing tactic," said "a complex political evolution in Texas" of Democratic crossover voting was behind the move.

The Austin American-Statesman condemned both the Killer Bees and the Worker Bees - those senators who stayed in the crippled Senate. The ones who stayed behind retaliated by killing a number of bills sponsored by the Killer Bees, so named because of their work in killing legislation.

The Legislature is setting "a historically bad example in conduct and behavior," the American-Statesman said in its Tuesday editions. "The legislators look like children rolling in the dirt during a recess fight. They should break clean, dust themselves off, shake hands and go about their business."

The dozen senators, most of whom said they had been hiding out in a house about five miles from the capitol, returned to the Senate chambers Tuesday after Hobby agreed to return to a requirement that legislation receive two-thirds approval, not a simple majority, to go before the Senate for debate and final passage.

The Dallas Times Herald Tuesday said the missing senators "deserve to be remembered as heroes."

The editorial said the senators are "sincere, independent men of considerable integrity who exposed an ignoble play by Hobby to pass a split-presidential primary bill through the Senate under the guise of an innocent-appearing election bill."

"The senators are 12 good men who exposed Hobby's naked assertion of political power to change the Senate's rules in order to achieve his own selfish goals," the paper said.

The Dallas Morning News, however, said the absence of the Killer Bees cannot be condoned. "By denying the upper house a quorum, they are only intensifying the chaos that normally develops during the closing days of a session. A great deal of important state business is left in limbo, and a special session is becoming more of a probability because of their absence." The Tuesday editorial said.

The Abilene Reporter-News, warned that the Killer Bees "are playing a dangerous game - dangerous to themselves and to the public interest and mood."

Appliques must go

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - Can you or one of the readers tell me what will remove plastic floral appliques from the bottom of a bathtub? - M.K.

DEAR M.K. - Put an inch or two of hot water in the tub and let the appliques soak for quite a time. With a spatula or putty knife loosen one corner and then pull hard and they should come off. Warm vinegar or rubbing alcohol should remove any remaining sticky substance. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - The other morning as we fixed breakfast the plastic bread wrapper touched the hot waffle grill and melted all over it. I did not want to scratch the grill and did not know what to do. When it cooled my husband pulled off all he could. Then he put some rubbing alcohol on a damp cloth and rubbed the grill until it looks good as new. - CHARLOTTE

DEAR POLLY - My husband loves carrot cake but I always hated the mess made when the carrots were put in the blender. I had the idea of using the same amount of junior baby carrots in the recipe. The cake was terrific and no more messy blender. I feel that any woman who has a husband who likes carrot cake but dreads the thought of cleaning that messy blender will benefit by my discovery. - MARYLYN

DEAR POLLY - The instructions said I needed a pair of rubber gloves to wear while applying a color rinse to my hair. I had none so I just slipped my hand into a plastic bag with no holes, fastened it around the wrist with a rubber band and it worked very well. - MRS. G.B.

DEAR POLLY - My daughter gave me the following good idea. I had some old fish net stockings (not panty hose) so I sewed a pair together at the top, knotted the ends and have one of those new skinny scarfs. The black net looks nice on a white blouse. Don't you think this is a good way to recycle old-fashioned stockings? - LILLYAN

Q. - In two of the rooms in our house, there is a draft coming from under the baseboards. Both these rooms are at the rear of the house and share a common wall. I know there is insulation in this wall. What can be causing the drafts?
A. - There is probably a break in the insulation somewhere accompanied by one or more openings in the actual exterior wall. To stop the air from entering the house, you must inspect the outside wall carefully, especially around window frames and where dissimilar materials meet. A quick glance is not enough. You will need a ladder and possibly a flashlight, looking for tiny openings. When you find them, caulk them well. Go back inside the house and check the baseboards. Obviously, they are not flush against the wall or against the floor. If necessary, you may have to remove the baseboards, and re nail them to eliminate any openings.
