

Clayton: 66th Legislature Watched Its Spending

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - It was a Legislature that bit the bullet, according to Speaker Bill Clayton. The governor said it treated him pretty well for a rookie. But some lawmakers say they departed Austin in disgust.

As the mandatory adjournment hour of midnight Monday drew near, with all the 66th Legislature's "must" bills on the way to Gov. Bill Clements, Clayton felt called upon to make a speech.

There was no laundry list of accomplishments. And the speech, concluding a session that some say was more in tune with the business lobby than the public's needs, had a defensive ring.

"I want it recorded that in 1979, as Texas and America looked toward a new decade with the problems of yesterday clutching at us and more ominous threats looming ahead, this House did not shirk its duty. We faced the problems as our collective wisdom decreed," Clayton said.

As to whether the Legislature led and served the people well, each member "must check our individual scorecard. ... These are questions that the voting public of Texas will be called on to decide before another Legislature convenes," Clayton said.

Clements, who says he will call a special session later on what he regards as unfinished business, was upbeat at a post-adjournment news conference, despite the failure of much of his program.

He didn't get the $1 billion he wanted for extra tax relief - indeed, the Legislature used every penny that was available.

His anti-pornography program was virtually ignored.

His plans to make public schools more accountable and give greater stress to "basics" fell by the wayside. But he raised his grade of the Legislature from "F" to "B."

Of his 17 highest priority items, he said, 13 passed. "That's a batting average of .760 percent, and that ain't bad for a rookie!"

Clements said he was specially pleased that legislators placed in the general appropriation bill a statement of intent that state agencies reduce their staffs by 5 percent a year.

Lawmakers themselves gave the session a mixed assessment.

"The first thing you have to say is they took a dustpan and broom over to the vault in the state treasurer's office and used every last penny," said Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange.

Wilson, who has announced plans to try to unseat Clayton in 1981, called it a leaderless session, one that "failed on many occasions to balance the public interest with special interests. ... Many bills became known not by number but

Business Lobby Criticized

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A lack of direction and a business lobby blitz that one representative compared with a tank assault were the distinguishing traits of the 66th Legislature, according to some lawmakers.

It was a session that had some unpleasant and difficult chores to do and got them done, others said in end-of-session interviews.

"The thing that really provokes me is the lobby had so much control," said Sen. A. R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, mentioning passage of bills establishing "documentary fees" for car buyers and weakening the Deceptive Trade Practices Act.

"The lobby was bold. They moved in with the tanks," said Rep. Bob Bush, D-Sherman.

Lobby bills often were thwed up by the legislative process, Bush said, but "they kept us in a defensive posture rather than go forward with constructive things we might have done."

He said the fact that Gov. Bill Clements was new in town, and therefore, not predictable kept things off-balance and affected Speaker Bill Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

"The fact that the leadership was tentative, playing games with one another, gave the House the opportunity to accomplish something," Bush said.

But Rep. John Wilson, D-La Grange, who has announced as a candidate for Clayton's job next session, said the House accomplished nothing.

Wilson said Clayton ran the House like a "traffic cop," giving the green light to some bills and a red light to others. He said this kept legislators from performing to capacity.

"We failed on many occasions to balance the public interest and special interests. ... I find it hard to point to any significant accomplishment for the public benefit. That sums it up," Wilson said.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, said "special interest" is a matter of definition, and "there were no major issues that were special interest bills as I would define the term."

He said the biggest issue that was dealt with, raising home loan interest rates, was "a question of whether the political downside of voting for it offset the impact on the Texas economy if we refused to face up to it."

There were problems in the Senate between the leadership and moderate-to-liberal senators who felt rules and traditions were being trampled to make way for a presidential primary bill.

Good Day for a Dip

The city swimming pool reached close to capacity Tuesday as youngsters took advantage of the first hot temperatures since school was dismissed for the summer last week. The high Tuesday was 92, which tied this year's hottest temperature. The pool wasn't nearly so full today, though, with the high expected to be in the low 60's and the chance of rain at 60 percent, according to the National Weather Service in Amarillo. [Brand photo by Paul Sims]

Commissioners OK Camp Land Buy

Auditor: County Finances In Good Shape after April

By JIM STEIERT
 Brand Staff Writer

Deaf Smith County commissioners approved a financial report from April, agreed on payment for property in the San Jose labor camp area, and passed a resolution concerning the extended pheasant season during a regular session held Tuesday.

Commissioners met on Tuesday, instead of their regular Monday meeting date, due to the Memorial Day holiday.

In reviewing the financial report, commissioners called for a statement on the current financial status of Deaf Smith County from Alex Schroeter, county auditor.

"A good job is being done in conserving road and bridge funds, and at this time, it appears we have plenty of general funds, and will have a start on next year. Insurance, utility and prisoner board expenses are out of hand, as compared to expectations, but there are adequate funds in the overall budget," Schroeter commented.

Commissioner Bruce Coleman then commented that "most budget increases are due to inflation or state and federal mandates that force us to spend taxpayer funds."

Commissioners approved the financial report, following Schroeter's summation. In other action, the commissioners approved an expenditure of $10,000 to be paid to Domingo Pesina, a landowner in the San Jose community, to clear the way for a water system in that area.

A warranty deed on the property is to be turned over to the San Jose fresh water district.

Commissioner Austin Rose pointed out that the purchase is a step involved in applying a government grant to the labor camp water project.

A number of local residents appeared before the commission to offer comments on the pheasant season, recently extended in length to 30 days by the Texas Parks & Wildlife Commission.

Landowners indicated their opposition to the season extension, and along with other individuals, informed the commission.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter is joining leading congressional taxwriters in predicting the traditional election-year tax cut will go by the wayside in 1980 as federal officials concentrate on trying to balance the national budget.

"I doubt very seriously that we'll have any tax cut in 1980," Carter said Tuesday at a news conference.

"If we have the option between substantial reductions in the deficit and controlling inflation on the one hand, and having tax reductions for the American people in an election year on the other, I would forego the tax reduction and insist upon controlling inflation and cutting the deficit."

Similar sentiments have been expressed by the two most influential tax experts on Capitol Hill - Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"The top priority is to control expenditures and balance the budget," Ullman said last week. "That pre-empts any tax cut, unless the country is dropping into an obvious recession." Carter and administration economists insist no recession is on the horizon.

Long told a U.S. Chamber of Commerce seminar recently he also believes balancing the budget over the next two years should take priority over tax cuts. "I don't think a ... tax cut should keep us from balancing the budget," Long said.

The historic tendency is for Congress to approve tax cuts in election years, largely because it's a politically painless vote to cast. With inflation pushing taxpayers into ever-higher tax brackets, dollars flow into the federal treasury in ever-larger amounts. Legislators can thus vote to cut the tax rate every few years without reducing the funds available to pay for government programs.

That phenomenon, often called "taxflation" by government taxwriters, is working overtime now and could yet provide a way for Carter and Congress to balance the 1981 budget and approve a tax cut at the same time.

With federal tax receipts now pouring in in much greater amounts than previously estimated, some private and government economists have suggested a tax cut and balanced budget may both be possible by 1981.

Tax legislation applying to the 1981 fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1, 1980, would come next year - just in time for the fall elections.

On other matters Tuesday, Carter:

Signed an executive order delegating some of his authority over gasoline sales to the nation's governors. The action authorizes governors to do such things as order odd-even rationing plans, regulate gas station operating hours and set minimum purchases.

But the president warned that any plan making gasoline shortages less painful does nothing to solve "a long-term chronic problem in obtaining adequate energy supplies. ... It is necessary to stop aggravating the problem by blaming one another and by seeking out scapegoats," he said. "The fact is that the oil-producing countries are holding down supply while the rest of the world has increased demand."

Said the United States will give Egypt and Israel a chance to resolve questions dealing with the Palestinians and other Israeli neighbors before offering any U.S. suggestions.

Insisted that his anti-inflation program, including its wage and price guidelines, eventually will be successful in stemming inflation. But he acknowledged it probably will take a long time.

Said he will wait until a new bi-racial government takes office in Rhodesia to decide whether to lift the U.S. trade embargo against the African nation.

Reiterated his desire to eliminate nuclear weapons from the world and defended pending development of the new MX nuclear missile as necessary to maintain the military balance between the Soviet Union and the United States while negotiations aimed at reducing nuclear arms continue.

Expressed confidence that Congress eventually will approve legislation implementing treaties turning the Panama Canal over to Panama. Failure to do so, he said, would leave the United States powerless to protect its interests after the transfer takes place.

Clements Won't Use New Gas Authority

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gasoline rationing and restricted service station hours will not be necessary in Texas, Gov. Bill Clements said Tuesday.

Clements said he already had powers to control gas sales before President Carter issued an executive order granting the nation's governors that authority.

The governor said the Legislature that ended Monday granted him the same emergency authority Carter gave state chief executives.

"I don't feel the need for going into drastic plans of odd-even days or odd-even numbered license tags, closing on weekends or closing on Sundays," Clements said.

"I don't feel the crisis is that severe at this point and further we are not ready for complicated plans," he added. "We're trying to get our facts together."

Carter said Tuesday he has signed an order giving governors authority to make gasoline stations remain open on weekends, to get minimum purchases and to institute an odd-even selling system.

"It's interesting that Mr. Carter decided that instead of him retaining all this authority in Washington and handing down from the mouth, so to speak, daily bulletins of what we should be doing, that he is now delegating this authority to various governors of the states," Clements added.

The governor said he was not contacted directly by the White House about the president's order but learned about it on news reports.

Legislation consolidating all executive branch energy offices into one department also conferred broader emergency powers to the governor during energy shortages, he said.

"This is the first time we've ever had

Firemen Continue 'Jaws' Fund Drive, Schedule Concert

Hereford volunteer firemen are continuing their drive to raise money for a $6,000 "jaws of life" rescue tool, keying on ticket sales for a June 8 country music concert.

The concert, entitled "The Golden Years of Country Music," will be staged by musicians from South Plains College in Levelland. Tickets are available from firemen and at Hereford State Bank, First National Bank, Hereford Fire Station and Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce office for $3 (chair seats) and $2 (general admission).

Also, firemen have established funds at both local banks for the tool, which will be used to free persons trapped in wrecked vehicles and in other rescue situations. The jaws of life allows rescuers to pry away metal and other substances to free victims.

Feds Ground All DC-10 Jets

By The Associated Press

Thousands of passengers scrambled for new flights or cooled their heels in airport lounges and hotels as a U.S. government-ordered grounding of all DC-10 jumbo jets disrupted world air travel.

Some DC-10s were called back in mid-flight Tuesday, and on the ground passengers were bused hundreds of miles to catch substitute flights or lodged overnight until an available seat turned up.

Sir Freddie Laker's Skytrain was derailed. It uses six DC-10s for its cheap-fare flights between England and the United States.

Many took the inconvenience philosophically, mindful the inspections were prompted by the crash of an American Airlines DC-10 that killed at least 273 people in the nation's worst air disaster.

"It's better to be safe on the ground rather than go 'Oh! Oh!' in midair," said singer Pat Boone, who had a reservation for a DC-10 flight from New York to Los Angeles.

The Federal Aviation Administration's decision to ground the three-engine jets pending new checks of their engine assemblies left about 40,000 DC-10 seats empty on U.S. carriers alone - about 12 percent of domestic capacity, the industry estimated.

The order followed discovery of "grave and potentially dangerous deficiencies" in the engine assemblies. An engine fell off the ill-fated American plane on Friday.

Eight U.S. carriers have 134 DC-10s in operation. Foreign airlines have at least that many, and while they were not bound by the FAA order, many grounded their jets.

Joseph Scott, an American spokesman in Chicago, estimated about 17,000 persons nationwide were bumped from DC-10s. About 3,200 persons were bumped in Chicago, he said.

At O'Hare International Airport, the scene of Friday's tragedy, about 300 people were bused to Detroit or Indianapolis for other flights, Scott said.

In Los Angeles, frantic passengers dashed from counter to counter and argued with ticket clerks as airlines tried to juggle routes and planes to make up for the temporary loss of the wide-body planes.

Long lines were also reported in Miami and Philadelphia.

Across the Atlantic, about 1,000 people were held up in London's Gatwick Airport after Britain's Civil Aviation Authority grounded all nine American-built DC-10s flown by British carriers.

Laker Airlines, which offers the lowest-priced regularly scheduled flights between England and the United States, called back to London two U.S. bound DC-10s in midair - one en route to Los Angeles, the other to Detroit.

Along with American, United and Western, the U.S. airlines that fly DC-10s are: Continental, National, Northwest Orient, World, and Trans International. Most substituted other planes where possible, and urged travelers to check their flight schedules.

Other foreign airlines which reported voluntarily grounding their DC10 fleets for safety inspection were Swissair, Scandinavian Airlines Systems, The Royal Dutch Airline KLM, Venezuela's VIASA, Italy's Alitalia, Germany's Lufthansa, and Japan Air Lines.

Film Star Pickford Dies in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Mary Pickford, who reigned as America's Sweetheart during the colorful, formative period of American movies, is dead at 86 after 13 years of seclusion in her legendary home, Pickfair.

Her death Tuesday was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage suffered last Friday.

The journey to the hospital was one of the few times Miss Pickford, whose golden curls and spunky innocence won her the adulation of millions, had emerged from the mansion since she withdrew from public life in 1966.

In 1976, she appeared before cameras at Pickfair to accept an honorary award "in recognition of her unique contribution to the film industry and the development of film as an artistic medium" from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, which she helped fund.

Miss Pickford was perhaps the first great international screen idol. In an era of such stars as Greta Garbo and Gloria Swanson, she was the first to have her name in marquee lights and the first to command thousands of dollars a week. Some was box office gold for such movies as "Pollyanna" and "Poor Little Rich Girl."

Governors Won't

Use Gasoline Power

By The Associated Press
President Carter, hoping to ease the summer gasoline squeeze, is giving governors new power to allocate the fuel in their states. But many governors say they don't need the emergency power and don't plan to use it anytime soon.

An executive order announced by Carter at a news conference Tuesday gives the governors of 17 states powers they now lack to manage gas sales and relieve long lines caused by shortages or panic buying.

However, one of those governors, Otis Bowen of Indiana, complained: "The president gave us no teeth to enforce this."

And Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards, who already has special power to deal with fuel problems said: "What we need is not authority. What we need is fuel."

The executive order, which will expire Sept. 30 unless it is extended, applies to all states. But the White House said most legislatures already have empowered governors to act on gasoline problems.

Carter said the order would allow governors to regulate service station hours, impose minimum purchase requirements and assign motorists alternate days for gas purchases.

Siamese Twin Girls

Separated in Surgery

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Siamese twins Lisa and Elisa Hansen, joined at the tops of their heads since birth 19 months ago, were successfully separated today in pioneering surgery that lasted over 16 hours.

"It's done and it's a success. They're awake and crying," said John Dwan, spokesman for the University of Utah Medical Center. He said the twins were separated at 1:19 a.m. EDT.

He said the tops of the twins' heads were closed at 5:05 a.m. EDT. Two teams of surgeons, one for each twin, participated in the marathon operation.

Dwan said the twins were in "critical but stable condition and their prognosis is unknown."

The parents, David and Patricia Hansen of Ogden, were "very grateful and very tired," Dwan said. The Hansens and several close members of the family kept a vigil at the hospital during the surgery, which began at 12:40 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

Farm Workers' Salaries Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) - Although their pay varies widely, hired farm workers on the average are getting about 10 percent more in cash wages than they did a year ago, according to the Agriculture Department.

The latest quarterly survey, made in the week of April 8-14, showed that farm workers paid on the basis of hourly cash wages averaged $3.42 an hour, up 11 percent from $3.08 a year earlier.

Farm wage rates based on all types of payment arrangements averaged $3.39 when converted to an hourly basis, up 9.7 percent from $3.09 in the same period of last year, the report said.

Within that average, those who performed piecework earned the most when their earnings were converted to an hourly wage - an average of $4.29 an hour, up 8.4 percent from $3.93 a year ago.

The quarterly survey showed that 1.05 million hired workers were employed on the nation's farms, a decline of 7 percent from almost 1.1 million a year earlier.

Severe weather in some parts of the country was a factor in the decline from a year ago.

Approximately 46 percent of the hired farm workers received housing, room and board, meals or other perquisites in addition to cash wages, the survey found. That was up one percentage point from a year ago.

Couple Held For Abuse

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - A couple was held Tuesday on charges of abusing one of their four sets of twins - a 7-year-old boy and girl - who reportedly lived for two years in a room so filthy that attendants donned gas masks to take them to an ambulance.

East Baton Rouge Parish deputies said Leon Jolla, a 52-year-old carpenter, and his wife Anna Lee Jolla, 45, were booked Monday night with two counts each of cruelty to juveniles.

The twins, whose names were not revealed, were being treated for malnutrition today at Earl K. Long Hospital. An investigator said the children, neither of whom can talk, were no larger than 2- or 3-year olds.

Another of the Jollas' 15 children, age 3, also was taken Monday to Earl K. Long Hospital, where a spokesman said it apparently was in good health.

Le. Royal McCasle, a juvenile division officer, said the sheriff's office was told of the children by the hospital's child protection center, which received a tip from a relative of the Jollas. Some neighbors said they were unaware of the 7-year-olds' existence.

McCasle said he and Detective Larry Wright found the children sitting in their own excrement and other filth in an unlocked, empty room in the Jolla's 3-bedroom home in the industrialized, Scottslandville community north of Baton Rouge. He said the girl wore an undershirt and the boy was naked.

McCasle said attendants summoned to the home went back to their ambulance for gas masks before they would enter the room in which the children were found.

McCasle quoted Mrs. Jolla as saying the children were fed twice a day and their room was cleaned about twice a month.

"The mother said the children used to come out, but after while they (the parents) thought the children weren't developing right for their age and the children started keeping to themselves," McCasle said.

"She said she and her husband had discussed getting help for them, but they never did. They just let them stay by themselves. The children don't talk, but they can walk. "The mother said the children would come out late at night and go to the refrigerator to get water," McCasle said.

He said 13 of the Jolla's 15 children lived with their parents. He said a 15-year-old girl twin was placed in a foster home three years ago and a 20-year-old girl, also a twin, lives in her own apartment.

Chad Coming Home

BOSTON (AP) - The father of 3-year-old leukemia victim Chad Green will return to Massachusetts within two weeks to clear the way for Chad to come home, his lawyer said Tuesday.

Gerald and Duana Green, who secretly whisked the child to Mexico last winter in violation of a court order barring them from treating him with Laetrile - face contempt of court charges in Massachusetts and risk arrest upon their return.

Attorney George Donovan said in an interview with radio station WBZ that Gerald Green feels the boy has received all the help he can get at the Tijuana Laetril clinic, where he has been treated since January.

"He feels that what could be accomplished in Mexico was accomplished," Donovan said. "He will return within the next two weeks."

Donovan said Gerald Green will appear before Plymouth Superior Court Judge Guy Volterra to ask that Volterra's earlier contempt citation to set aside. He said the father wants the boy to receive chemotherapy at Massachusetts General Hospital, where he was treated before the family fled.

Last week, a spokesman for Massachusetts General said tests show the boy may not have received enough chemotherapy at the Mexican clinic.

Also last week, Donovan asked the state Supreme Court to overturn Volterra's prohibition on Laetrile. The court did not immediately rule.

Volterra ordered the parents to cut off home treatments with Laetrile, vitamins and enzymes. He said the child was being poisoned by cyanide, one ingredient of Laetrile.

WBZ reported Tuesday that Donovan had talked to Chad's father at a meeting "out of state." The location was not disclosed.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,
Today I have listened to and read the news media account of the Florida execution - down to the singed hair and changing skin color.

Detroit - Mr. Spenkelink took a life because he chose to. Question - Where's the graphic account of the victim's death and the victim's family's pain and loss? I do not consider myself a supporter of capital punishment, but let's don't forget who the victims are - they are, not Spenkelink and Gilmore.

Thank you

Shamrock Moves Base to Dallas

CLEVELAND (AP) - Diamond Shamrock Corp. said Tuesday it will move its corporate headquarters from Cleveland to Dallas, partly because of what it characterized as a deteriorating image of the nation's 18th largest city.

William H. Bricker, president and chief executive officer of the energy, chemical and technology business, said that within five years, 1,100 jobs would be moved from Cleveland.

The initial move begins in August, with about 140 persons involved by the summer of 1980. Bricker said the main reason for the move was that Diamond Shamrock had outgrown its Cleveland offices, and that 90 percent of its assets are in Texas and surrounding states.

But, he said, "the political, economic and educational climate in Cleveland, and particularly the anti-business attitude on the part of our city administration, was also something we could not ignore."

Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich has frequently been at odds with the business community, claiming "greedy special interests" have been trying to take over the city. Bricker said he was having difficulty attracting employees to Cleveland and predicted other companies would move out.

Bricker said a decision has yet to be made on whether to move out of facilities in suburban Lake County now employing 800 persons.

Diamond Shamrock has major plants and operating facilities in Texas, as well as extensive oil, gas and coal leases in Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi and Wyoming.

The company closed a manufacturing plant in Painesville, Ohio, in 1978.

Bricker said the company's international and diversified technology unit will go ahead

Irrigation Program Tonight

Dr. Jim Jones, a former Hereford resident will present a special program for irrigation and dryland farmers at the Bull Barn tonight at 7:30.

The presentation concerns a fertilizer product, and will include soil scientists from experiment stations and county agents as speakers.

Also included will be a presentation by local producers.

with a move to Concord Township in Lake County, but that no further expansion is planned in the suburbs. Asked if the Lake County operations, including research and plastics applications facilities would remain, he said: "I would not hazard a guess."

Studies are now under way which may lead to the industrial chemicals and plastics unit and staff to the Southwest in the next two or three years, he said.

Bricker said that a company study selected Dallas as the best site for its headquarters two years ago, and that rejecting those findings at the time was a bad decision.

Permanent quarters have yet to be acquired in Dallas, but Bricker said the facilities would be downsized.

"It is kind of nice once in a while not to be looked on as a two-headed monster," he said. "I don't mind paying an income tax downturn in Cleveland. On the other hand, I don't like someone calling me a vampire or something like that."

Services will be at 2 p.m. today in Turkey Church of Christ, Jack Huston, minister, and the Rev. Melvin Clinton, pastor of First Baptist Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Dreamland Cemetery under direction of Seigler Funeral Home.

County

sioners that local testimony given in opposition to an extended pheasant season was never considered by the Texas Parks & Wildlife Commission.

After considering the statements of a number of local individuals, County Judge Glen Nelson commented on the continuing trend of removing authority from local government, and placing it at the state and national level.

"We need to try and maintain as much local control as we can," said Nelson.

Following a period of discussion, commissioners voted to join the commissioner's court of Parmer County in filing a protest to the extended pheasant season with the executive director of the Parks & Wildlife Service and the District P&W supervisor, in addition to state legislators.

Commissioner Coleman, in making the resolution, also proposed that the resolution to P&W should contain language protesting the lack of consideration of local input in the matter, and that consideration be given to obtaining local input on a split season to include the Christmas and New Year holiday period.

Coleman also suggested in his resolution that a two week season be maintained, but that the bag limit might be increased from two cockbirds to three.

The resolution was unanimously approved by commissioners in attendance.

Commissioners heard from retiring county welfare officer Jewel Smith concerning staffing the welfare office.

Mrs. Smith recommended Erlene Cook, who has worked as her assistant in the office as her replacement.

Commissioners questioned Ms. Cook concerning whether the office work could be handled alone, or if she would need an assistant.

"I'm willing to try it alone, and consult with the commission at a later date if I need assistance," she replied.

Members of the court then agreed that an extension to the county judge's office could be provided for taking calls to the welfare office when the county officer was out on a call.

Coleman then moved to employ Ms. Cook to fill the vacancy, and to initiate her employment at the salary and position of the retiring Mrs. Smith.

The motion was approved. A bid for the removal of the English house, its foundation and material from a site near the E.B. Black historical home was also opened.

Commissioners approved a bid of a $100 payment to the county for the house from Messer Construction Co. and negotiated to have the house and foundation moved and the lot cleaned and leveled within a 30 day period.

Tax officials Neil Miller and Fred Fox visited with commissioners concerning an on-line computer terminal with Western Data Service Inc. of Wazahachie, which Fox indicated would provide local officials rapid access to tax roll information and allow them to update and correct the tax roll without the six to eight week wait customary under the currently used manual computer entry system.

Fox indicated that several tax offices could be placed on a special direct line on a cost-share basis, and if the county and school district desired to share costs, expenses for the computer system would be about $200 per month.

The system would include a computer head with a display screen and keyboard, and according to Fox, information would be available concerning the tax rolls in eight seconds, as opposed to the current six to eight week delay.

Commissioners indicated their interest in the computer, and advised Mrs. Miller and Fox to investigate the system further during a June 8 session being sponsored by the Waxahachie firm.

In other action, commissioners: -Authorized Judge Nelson to negotiate with a contractor for some additional work to complete the repairing of stairs at the courthouse.

-Approved the return of a $200 deposit for use of the Bull Barn to Ray Cervantes.

-Approved the relocation of a gas line by Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

-Gave clearance for the installation of a water line in Precinct 2 on property owned by Ray Gerik.

-Discussed continuing participation in the CETA program on a local level. The county commissioners opted to remain with the program.

-Discussed the employment of a maintenance employee for the Bull Barn.

-Reviewed the sheriff's office purchasing policy and discussed the cost of TV monitoring units currently in use and possible alternatives that are less expensive.

Commissioners in attendance included Bruce Coleman, Austin Rose and J.F. Martin. Commissioner James Voyles of Precinct 4 was absent.

by the names of the special interests that pushed them - the Montgomery Ward bill, the savings and loan bill, the automobile dealers bill.

Whitcomb accused Clayton of "traffic cop leadership - red light to this bill, green light to that one" and said neither chamber had the kind of leadership that demands each legislator's best.

Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, remained bitter about the "Killer Bees" episode that prevented senators from voting on a bill creating a presidential primary separate from the regular primaries in 1980.

"I was shocked, frankly, that 12 persons would leave. I wasn't just being melodramatic about it. It just don't see the issue as being that important," Farabee said.

Clements is sure to feel pressure to include a presidential primary in a special session on initiative and referendum - direct lawmaking authority for the voters.

"Killer Bee" Sen. A.B. Schwartz, D-Galveston, said the episode was a healthy one for the tightly controlled Senate.

"People began to appreciate the fact that they had to deal with people," Schwartz said.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and pay of Clayton's high command, said the Legislature dealt in one way or another with all the "mess" items.

He said no major issues were "special interest bills as I would define the term," but also said the business lobby was "probably more active this time than ever before."

Davis praised Clayton's leadership for the absence of "hostility and anger" that marks so many legislative fights.

"One reason was that Clayton involved Rep. Ron Coleman of El Paso in the school finance process, which removed a major hurdle," Davis said.

Gold Rush Days Theme Of HHS Class Reunion

Contributed By SALLIE STRAIN

Prospectors from the Hereford High School Class of 1949 staked their claims at the Knights of Columbus Hall Saturday for their 30-year reunion.

The banquet and dance were held amidst decorations depicting gold rush days with class members recounting their "fortunes" in life. Vittles were served by K-Bob's and hoe-down music was provided by a juke box with records from the late 1940's and early 1950's.

Betty Ruth Cawthon Ford welcomed the guests and James Hutson led the invocation. Sallie Womble Strain introduced the teachers in attendance, who included Dr. Pat Sullivan and Frank Jones of Canyon, Mrs. Pat Groom of Amarillo, and Mr. and Mrs. Don T. Martin and Eleanor Hudspeh of Hereford.

It was noted that all 67 members of the class of '49 are surviving despite the Korean War and Vietnam War which ensued in the years after their graduation.

Mary Kathryn Carroll Cheshire and Pat Longbottom Barrett entertained with a clever skit which revealed the whereabouts and important happenings in the lives of the class members present.

Dr. Pat Sullivan awarded the class "Humanitarian Award" to Betty Ruth Cawthon Ford for "giving above and beyond the call of duty in her work with the handicapped through Goodwill Industries." For the past 18 years, Mrs. Ford has helped in this endeavor and has also served as a foster parent to handicapped children when the need arose.

Ann Landers

Compliments Lovemaking

DEAR ANN: I have a very good suggestion for that woman whose husband cannot interest her in lovemaking -- so she pretends he is Cary Grant.

She should stop him in the middle of the preliminaries (no matter how brief they may be) and request gently but firmly that he give her two compliments. Example: "You have lovely eyes." or "That was a fine dinner you prepared tonight." There should be no coaching. Be patient and wait for him to think of something. And remember, don't allow any irritation, past or present, to interfere. In time, the desired agree of intimacy will result from the most important ingredient in any relationship. It is called communication. The suggestion I offer here saved my disintegrating marriage. Please sign me -- Mrs. Ontario

DEAR MRS.: Your suggestion has some built-in problems, for example: Halting preliminaries to demand two compliments would be a complete turn-off for most men. If it worked for you -- congratulations. But I'm not recommending it, dear.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a question I've never seen answered in your column. For personal reasons it has become important to me. This may not be up your alley but you seem to have pipelines everywhere. Why do people walk in their sleep? At first when I was told I did this I didn't believe it. But after I awakened in odd places (out of bed) a few times I took it seriously. Once I was awakened by the sound of my own voice. I was also talking in my sleep.

I would like very much to know why I do it -- or why does anybody do it? What can you tell me about sleep-walking? -- Baffled in Boston

DEAR BAFF: Not much. So I consulted "The Ann Landers Encyclopedia" and read the piece on sleepwalking by Dr. William Keller, former chairman, Department of Psychiatry, University of Louisville, Ky. He wrote:

"Sleepwalking has been going on for centuries and it's still anyone's guess as to why people walk in their sleep and others do not. It's been attributed to many causes -- from being possessed by demons to eating too much for dinner.

"If a member of the family is a sleepwalker, simple safety precautions should be taken, such as locking windows and screens, keeping the furniture in the same place, and the use of uncomplicated devices -- such as installing a child's gate at the top of the stairs.

"One bit of superstition persists -- that something serious will happen to a sleepwalker if he is awakened suddenly. This bit of folklore probably originated when someone startled a sleepwalker on a bridge and he fell off."

DEAR ANN: I'm 16, a high school sophomore who enjoys knitting. I've made myself some pretty sweaters. A teacher complimented me on one of my creations and asked if I'd make one for her. She offered to pay me.

I was thrilled, bought the yarn the next day and had her sweater ready within a week. When I handed it to her she said, "Thank you. It's lovely" -- not one word about being paid. What should I do? -- D.P.T.'d

DEAR D.: Send her a bill for the cost of the yarn and add $20 for labor. Next time someone says, "I'll pay you," discuss the price openly, settle on a figure, write it down and behave in a business-like manner.

Future Agenda Reviewed By Westway Homemakers

Three items on the fall winter calendar were briefly discussed Thursday morning by members of Westway Extension Homemakers Club during a meeting in the Bicentennial Room of the County Library.

It was announced that the County Fair is to be staged in September of this year and the club's own Country Christmas Bazaar is slated in December. The Extension Homemakers Tasting Bee will be held Nov. 26. Also, members were reminded of the officer work and play day, which was conducted Tuesday at the Community Center.

In other business, members nominated Terry Johnson as delegate for the future state TEHA meeting Mrs. Johnson is also the club's candidate for state TEHA representatives.

Members answered roll call by listing their favorite garment. This served as an introduction to the program on clothing lines, presented by assistant county extension agent Agnes Taylor.

Letta Kaul was hostess during the social hour. Others present were Debbie Keys, Mrs. Johnson, Joan Bookout, Grace Covington and Dixie Williamson.

Traditional Roles Difficult for Wife

COLLEGE STATION -- Traditional marriage roles may damage some women's self-concepts, says a family life education specialist.

New research shows that traditional marriage roles may be slipping away at some women's feelings of competence, says Patricia Lamson.

Ms. Lamson is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Although marriage can increase a woman's general happiness and its role can give her identity, those same roles also may produce stress and eventually damage her image of herself, Ms. Lamson notes.

In the past, women traditionally were limited to homemaking roles.

Because of that, they did not have access to many of society's other rewards, so some remedied this deficiency by viewing their husbands' successes as their own.

They gave their husbands support, interest and attention, so they felt part of their husbands' achievements.

Past research has shown that women who viewed their husbands as successful also felt that they had successful marriages. The more successful wives were at maintaining a marriage, the better they felt about themselves.

However, new research reveals that the success of a husband may harm the self-concept of his wife, if the wife has little successes of her own.

Latest findings show that women may feel guilty and think less of themselves when they cannot contribute money to the family.

They also may feel slighted when they cannot acquire social success.

Guilford Miller of Amarillo was salutatorian. Ezelle Patterson, Amarillo, was third ranking student and Leatrus (Walsler) Clark was highest scholastically ranking girl.

WT Alumni Assoc. Name Kirby As New Director

CANYON - West Texas State University's Alumni Association has named James Kirby Sunderman the new executive director of the association.

Sunderman, 32, will join the organization as director on June 1. He is currently working as director of recreation for Estacado Estates in Amarillo, and as ad salesman for the WTSU Athletic Department.

"We were looking for a WTSU graduate who was familiar with WT," said David Wilder, chairman of the Association's search committee. "Kirby's personality lends itself to this nature. His infectious attitude toward WT and his ability to sell will be an asset to the Alumni Association. He has been involved with WTSU since graduation, working with the Athletic Department."

Sunderman said his immediate goals for the association would "include the establishing of a strong alumni membership with active community organizations throughout the state and nation; and a reaffirmation that this association is capable of standing on its own feet apart from the University structure and yet will continue to work for the benefit of the University. To attain those goals, I would begin at home with a strong Panhandle network, but only with a futuristic goal of making the association a national group that is capable of financially supporting the University the way it should be supported," he said.

"I think that my enthusiasm for WTSU can and will be contagious," Sunderman said. "We feel his enthusiasm will add a lot to our organization," Wilder said.

Sunderman has also worked as a football and basketball official, part owner and operator of Sunderman's Texaco in Amarillo, as a car salesman and, as summer manager of Thompson Park and North Heights Pools in Amarillo.

Judge Assassinated In San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., involved in cases dealing with drug investigations across West Texas, was assassinated Tuesday as he left his apartment.

Wood was the second federal official involved in the case to be attacked in the past seven months. An assistant U.S. Attorney escaped death when his car was riddled by bullets last November.

Local and federal law enforcement officers searched for a man driving a small red car. Eyewitnesses told police the assailant was in his early 20s and had curly hair.

Wood, 63, apparently had tried to start his car and had gotten out when he was shot once in the lower back, police said. He was pronounced dead on arrival at 9:30 a.m. at Northeast Baptist Hospital.

Some investigators theorized Wood was struck by a high powered rifle, possibly from a sniper a block or two away. But there was no exit wound.

tending to discount the rifle theory.

Several witnesses reported seeing different cars leaving the scene about the time the shot rang out. Many thought it was an automobile backfiring, police said.

One witness was Jim Spears, son of U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears of San Antonio. Young Spears was visiting his mother and sister at a condominium across the street. Judge Spears said his son told him he heard the shot, which caused an open window in the apartment to drop.

Young Spears then rushed to the window and saw Wood lying on the ground. He said he called an emergency medical team and police before running to the scene. He said he arrived at the same time Wood's wife, Kathryn, drove up in the couple's other car, which had been parked elsewhere in the complex.

The FBI assumed control of the case and immediately threw a mantle of secrecy over it.

Attorney General Griffin Bell was in touch at one point with Judge Spears.

Wood, appointed to the bench in 1971, had been assigned protection by federal marshals since an assistant U.S. attorney was shot at in November. But the judge recently called off his protectors, saying they were not needed.

However, his landlady at the Chateau Dijon apartments, Pauline Clark, said Wood told her recently that he felt his life might be in danger.

Wood had been presiding over El Paso-centered drug cases developed by the U.S. attorney's office in San Antonio. A Midland grand jury also was investigating.

One of the most publicized cases was that of Jimmy Chagra of El Paso, a professional gambler charged with conspiracy to possess, import and distribute cocaine and marijuana.

Wood was to preside over Chagra's trial in Austin, originally to have begun Tuesday, but earlier rescheduled to July 23.

Chagra's lawyers, in a pre-trial hearing in Midland in April, asked that Wood remove himself from the case. Wood refused, saying he would be unbiased.

The defendant's brother, Lee Chagra, was a lawyer who often defended clients charged with drug crimes. Lee Chagra was shot to death in his office Dec. 23. Three persons were charged in that case.

Federal officials said Wood had been threatened about the time of the Kerr shooting.

Mrs. Wood arrived at the hospital a few minutes after her husband was taken to the emergency room.

"I know you did everything you could," she replied when informed by a staff physician that her husband was dead. She then was taken to a private room where she was joined by other family members.

"Isn't it terrible that someone should take another's life like that," Mrs. Wood told a hospital staff chaplain as she left the room later.

"He was such a fine man. He was only trying to do good."

Federal agents returned the family to their apartment.

Reaction to Wood's death was quick and angry.

State District Judge Ted Butler, a former district attorney here, called it "an unspeakable tragedy."

"He was a very, very good friend of mine and was a very courageous judge," Butler said. "It's just unthinkable that our society should come to this. Our families were friends for many years. I had the greatest respect for him."

U.S. Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez told the San Antonio News from Washington that the murder of Wood was "an out-and-out challenge of the federal government's capacity to control crime."

He said that "down the line" there is a danger that the narcotics underworld might seek to assassinate U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd "if he persists in prosecutions which are dangerous to a $1 billion activity."

Gonzalez said he had sounded continued warnings to the White House and Justice Department that the assassination attempt against Kerr was a "brazen defiance of the authority of the government and an attempt to intimidate prosecutors."

He said Kerr visited him last week in Washington and that he warned Kerr he remained in danger and that Wood was in "extreme danger."

U.S. marshals beefed up security around all federal judges in the Western District of Texas.

In El Paso, U.S. District Judge William Sessions he did not "personally feel any danger."

"But the marshal has asked that I allow them to afford me what they call protection and I have every confidence in it and I will submit to that. I feel no threat from the community or otherwise to my family and I do not think we can approach it any other way than to say assassinations are pointed toward all of us. The devastation in the path of an assassination is just almost incomprehensible."

"I do not believe it reflects a bad community attitude. I think there are several persons who wish Judge Wood dead, and that is what they have accomplished."

Teen-ager Suicide Attempts Show Common Factor

CHICAGO (AP) - A study of a group of teen-agers who attempted suicide revealed a pattern of depression, drug abuse and unstable personality disorders, a Texas researcher reports.

Dr. Frank Crumley of Dallas studied 40 patients selected from a review of his private psychiatric practice from 1972 to 1978.

The combination of personality traits, including "intense reactions to loss, poorly controlled rage, impulsivity coupled with depression and drug abuse, seemed to be the most common pattern among these teen-agers," he wrote in the June 1 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

However, Crumley, a psychiatrist at the University of Texas and Baylor University, said it was not known to what extent his findings might apply to the growing number of adolescents in the country who attempt suicide.

Crumley cited earlier studies which showed the rate of suicides among 15- to 19-year-olds increased by 124 percent between 1962 and 1975. A report last year in another medical journal indicated that suicides in this age group moved from being the fourth-ranking cause of death in 1919 to third in 1974.

Half of the patients he studied were drug abusers, Crumley said, and an additional five from time to time drank alcohol excessively.

The most common drugs, he said, were marijuana, amphetamines, and in earlier years, LSD and other psychedelic drugs.

However, he said, "in no case was the polydrug abuse or alcoholism considered the primary or the only clinical syndrome diagnosed."

Drug abuse, Crumley said, "appeared to be an attempt by the adolescent to relieve depression with its accompanying sense of emptiness and boredom."

Personality disorders were diagnosed in 65 percent of the 40 teen-agers studied, he said, and most of these were unstable in dealing with other persons and with developing a healthy self-image.

"Often, Crumley said, 'the suicide attempt was made during an angry outburst following the breakup with a boyfriend or girlfriend.'"

He said that while drug abuse was not the underlying cause of the suicide attempts, it may be an important factor and needs further study.

Court Asks Views

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court Tuesday asked the federal government for its views in a dispute between New Mexico and Texas over electric power service.

The justices asked Solicitor General Wade McCree, the government's highest ranking courtroom lawyer, for his opinion of New Mexico's request to sue Texas in the Supreme Court.

The state of Arkansas has asked the court's permission to intervene on New Mexico's side.

The justices are authorized by the Constitution to resolve certain disputes between states before they are heard in lower courts. To do so, the justices must invoke the high court's "original jurisdiction."

The court will decide whether to do that after it hears from McCree.

In the New Mexico-Texas controversy, New Mexico Attorney General Toney Anaya asked the court to rule that a Texas Public Utilities Commission order issued two years ago impermissibly interferes with interstate commerce.

The order prohibits any Texas electric utility that is a member of the Electric Reliability Council of Texas to transmit power to electric companies outside Texas without first obtaining permission.

The order, Anaya argued in asking the court to take the case, "constitutes a burden on interstate commerce and violates the Commerce Clause of the U.S. Constitution."

He added: "Electric utilities which operate in both New Mexico and Texas, or are connected to utilities which operate in both states, cannot utilize economies of scale and diversity to maximize the economic benefits to the ratepayers of utilities in both New Mexico and Texas."

Such losses of economy could exceed $1 billion over the next 20 years for New Mexico citizens and businesses, Anaya said, and could exceed $5 billion over the same period for the entire Southwest.

In urging the justices to reject the request, Texas Attorney General Mark White argued that New Mexico "has not alleged a sufficient interest or present harm to justify invoking this court's original jurisdiction in such a complex technical field."

He charged that at the root of the controversy is an attempt by Central and Southwestern Co. to protect its status as a utilities holding company.

CBC owns West Texas Utilities Co., Oklahoma Public Service Co., Southwestern Electric Power Co. and Central Power and Light Co.

White also noted that the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission currently is studying the interstate connections dispute and that the issue is the subject of suits in state and federal courts.

New Home Built For 75 Year Old Woman Through People's Donations

CLOVIS, Calif. (AP) - When Darrel Dietrich saw the elderly woman's crumbling home, he was shocked. So he started a drive to get it repaired.

Before the utility company official was done, 145 people had donated their time and materials to build 75-year-old Emma Traylor a new home valued at $25,000.

"I didn't know what to say," Mrs. Traylor recalled Monday. "I didn't believe it."

But this past weekend Mrs. Traylor moved from her 240-square-foot cottage with its leaky roof into the new 600-square foot cottage complete with indoor bathroom.

"It's beyond words," said Mrs. Traylor as she surveyed her new home.

Dietrich, Pacific Gas &

Electric Co. manager in this central California city, said he happened on Mrs. Traylor's home while checking a broken utility pole. He found shingles on the roof crumbling and aluminum foil tacked to the ceiling to keep out the rain. The one-room home was heated by a propane oven; the bathroom was outside - a converted chicken coop.

Dietrich said he first got $100 in donations from fellow Rotary Club members to fix Mrs. Traylor's electrical service, but an electrician in the group volunteered to do the work for free.

Then, Dietrich suggested the Rotarians pay to have a new roof and siding built on the old house. He found that was impractical because the structure was riddled with termites and dry rot. So, he suggested building a new house and began organizing volunteers.

Members of the local carpenter's union local built the structure on weekends. Sheet metal workers donated a natural gas wall heater.

The move also was handled by volunteers with Mrs. Traylor doing only the supervising because of her age and high blood pressure.

Next weekend, the volunteers will tear down Mrs. Traylor's old cottage. In the meantime, she wants to get used to her new surroundings.

"I just want to get settled, that's the main thing," she said. "I don't remember the last time I moved, but this time's the last, that's for sure."

Truck Driver To Face Charges, Suits

ROBY, Texas (AP) - The driver of a truck that struck a school bus last December, killing five students, went to trial Tuesday on charges of involuntary manslaughter.

William Clarence Dixon, 22, of Snyder also faces numerous civil suits arising from the accident.

Jury selection began Tuesday morning before State District Judge Weldon Kirk, who ruled against a change of venue for Dixon earlier this month.

The Dec. 8 accident occurred when Dixon's truck struck the bus broadside 11 miles west of Roby, northwest of Abilene.

The bus was carrying the McCauley High School boys' and girls' basketball teams. Twenty persons were injured.

Dixon still suffers from injuries he suffered in the crash.

At least six damage suits have been filed against Dixon and his employer, Cardinal Survey Co. of Odessa, which owned the truck.

Records show Dixon had been convicted of 13 traffic violations in a four-year period preceding the accident.

Gov't botches it again

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The federal government's inherent inability to proceed with either discretion or delicacy when confronted with sensitive civil liberties matters is once again on display, in a highly publicized legal case.

The arrogant, heavy-handed behavior of both the Justice Department and the Energy Department could prove to be the undoing of federal efforts to ban the publication of a controversial magazine article on the hydrogen bomb.

There was surprising popular support for the government's position in March, when its attorneys went into federal court in Wisconsin to win a pair of judicial orders prohibiting the feisty Progressive magazine from printing the disputed story.

Although freedom of the press was a central issue in the court case, many of the nation's leading newspapers were publicly critical of the Progressive's position.

Indeed, the affidavit submitted to the court by the article's author, Howard Morland, suggests that he is in possession of a consuming curiosity, if not an unnatural fixation, about precisely how fusion is triggered in a hydrogen weapon — a process that hardly can be classified as a matter of compelling public interest.

But the Project for Open Government, a Washington-based public interest organization directed by attorney Theodore J. Jacobs, has just learned that the Justice Department has summoned the Federal Bureau of Investigation into the case.

While departmental attorneys are pursuing a civil case, FBI agents are conducting a criminal investigation, repeatedly interviewing everyone suspected of having received a copy of Morland's manuscript.

The FBI's criminal probe undoubtedly will have a "chilling effect" on those inclined to aid the Progressive and Morland in their defense yet unwilling to risk the antagonism, if not harassment, of federal law enforcement officers.

There is the high probability that material gathered by the FBI in its criminal investigation will wind up in the hands of the government lawyers conducting the still-pending civil case — a clear abuse of FBI resources.

There's also the matter of the Energy Department's ex post facto classification of a report on the hydrogen bomb triggering mechanism, publicly available for almost four years on the shelves of the library at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico.

The 29-page document was declassified in July 1975. But when a researcher assisting in the preparation of a defense for the Progressive displayed an interest in the report in May of this year, it was suddenly seized and reclassified.

The government displayed its total insensitivity to the concept of a free press by proposing that a federal bureaucrat rewrite the magazine story to conform to the government's vague "national security" criteria.

When specificity was required, the government displayed its passion for secrecy by telling the court on March 9 that it objected to 2,190 words in the proposed article.

But on March 14 — only five days later — federal lawyers called for the excision of only 1,322 words. The prosecutors now are informally indicating that they're happy with the censorship of a mere 100 to 150 words.

The Progressive's editors still don't know which sections of the article are involved, however, because the Justice Department has classified the censored manuscript, its secret affidavits and legal briefs submitted to the court, and even major portions of Morland's own affidavit.

Government officials have graciously agreed to grant security clearances to the Progressive's lawyers so they can prepare an appeal of the Wisconsin judge's decisions.

Proceeding true to form, the government is well on its way to dissipating the benefit of doubt given to it by those initially bothered by the troublesome aspects of publicity discussing the technical aspects of nuclear weaponry.

Seattle Commands NBA Finals With 3-1 Edge

SEATTLE (AP) - Dennis Johnson says the Seattle Super-Sonics only have to remember last year to keep from squandering their lead in the National Basketball Association championship playoffs against the Washington Bullets.

The next game in this series will be played Friday in Landover, Md., with Game Six, if necessary, here on Sunday and Game Seven in Landover next Wednesday.

"Everybody on this team is remembering last year," said Johnson after the Sonics defeated the Bullets 114-112 in overtime Tuesday night to go ahead 3-1 in the best-of-seven finals. "We had the lead then and relaxed. The next thing we knew, we were being blown out."

Last year, the Sonics led in the final series 3-2, but got past in Game Six in Washington, 117-83, and the Bullets went on to win the championship.

Dennis Johnson also said it doesn't mean a thing that the Bullets were down 3-1 against San Antonio in the Eastern Conference finals and came back to win the series, only the third time in NBA history such a comeback was made in the playoffs. It has never been done in the championship round.

Johnson, who tipped the last Bullets shot into the hands of teammate Jack Sikma with three seconds remaining in the overtime. "We don't get all the publicity that the Spurs do, but they don't play defense like us. We aren't your average team. We're not going to lose the 3-1 lead."

Dennis Johnson and Gus Williams, the two Sonics guards, once again paced Seattle. They got 32 and 36 points, respectively. They got lots of help inside from Sikma, who had 20 points, 17 rebounds, five blocked shots and aided in getting Washington's three big men - Elvin Hayes, Bobby Dandridge and Wes Unseld - to foul out of the game.

Washington Coach Dick Motta was angered about those foul calls, claiming San Antonio Coach Doug Moe set the stage for them when he criticized the referees after the final game of the Eastern Conference playoffs.

"In that last game, the referees were accused of favoring the champion Bullets," said Motta. "I honestly feel we are the victims of Doug Moe's outburst. Seattle played the last 14 minutes and did not have a foul called against them. I am very upset."

"I don't believe you can play an NBA game and not have a foul called on a team in the last 14 minutes," said Motta.

Actually, the Sonics had two fouls called against them in the last 16:28, but none in the last 8:47.

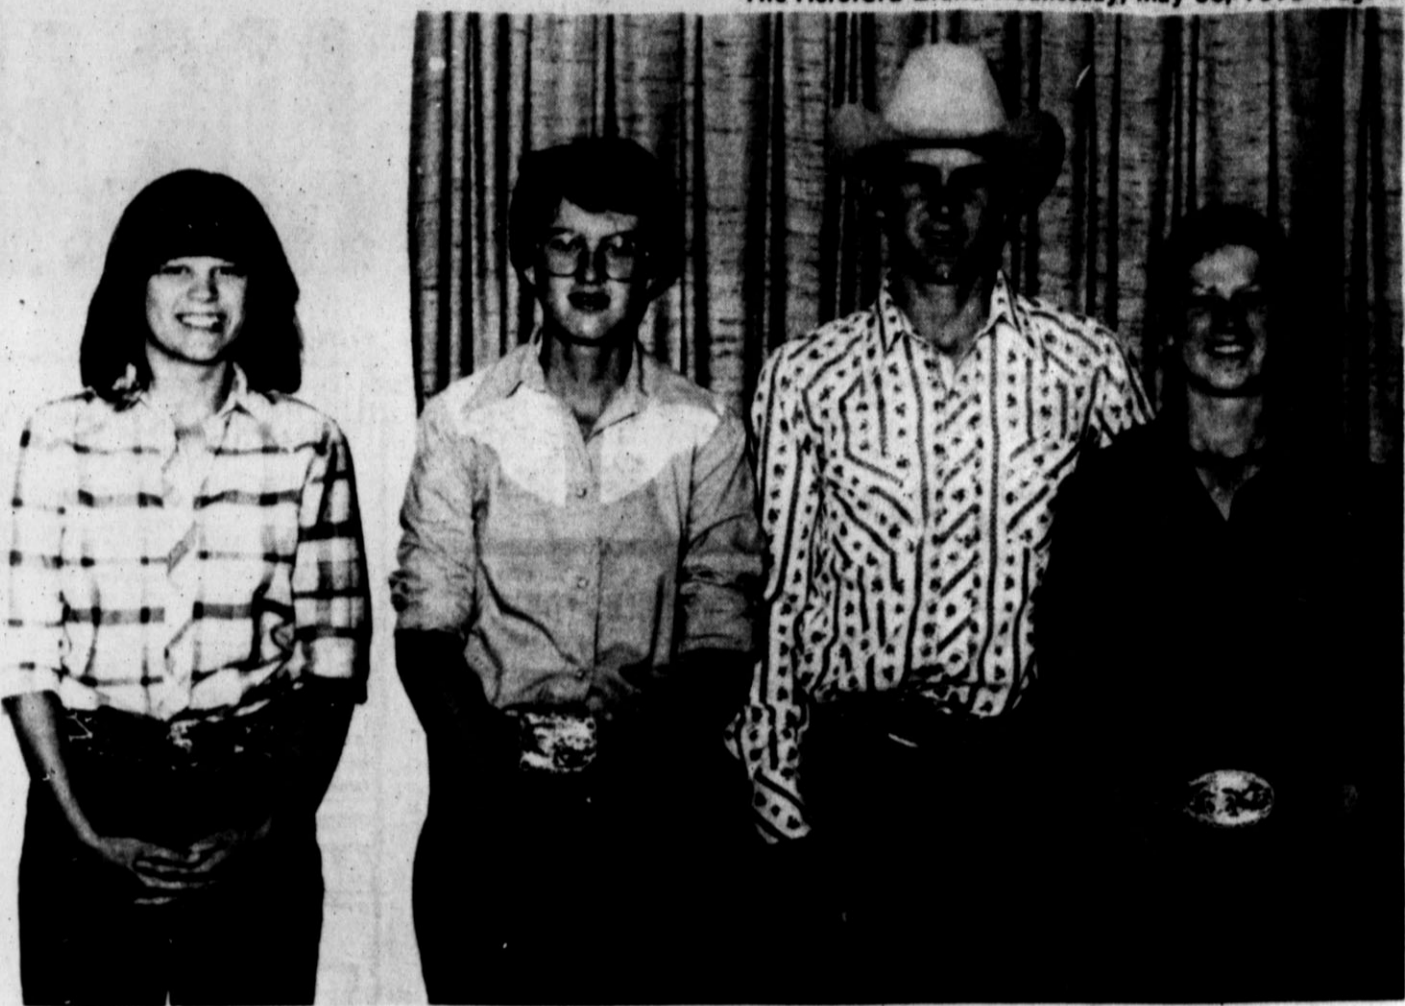

Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens said his team knew it had to win. "It was a must game for both teams and we knew they were going to go all out. There was a lot of tension, so our team was tight in the beginning."

The Bullets finally had their guards break out of their shooting slump with Kevin Grevey and Charlie Johnson hitting for 18 points apiece. Hayes also scored 18, while Dandridge and Unseld had 16 each.

"We can still win this thing," contended Grevey. "We have come back from being down 3-1 before. But it will be tougher this time. Seattle was not San Antonio; they're a much better team, especially defensively." Sonics forward John Johnson, referring to his team's 26-of-39 foul shooting, said: "If we had hit our free throws, we wouldn't have had to go into overtime. We maintained five and six-point leads in the second half, but then we passed up and gave them the opportunity to come back."

John Johnson also said he did not think the team would let up in Friday's game: "We've been there before and know what it takes. We're not going to relax until we get the fourth one."

Dennis Johnson just kept repeating: "We're on top, 3-1. We're on top, 3-1."

CHICAGO (AP) - The Chicago White Sox optioned catcher Marv Foley to Iowa of the American Association Tuesday to make room on the team's roster for Milt May, whose contract was purchased from the Detroit Tigers last Sunday.

In 22 games, Foley had a .235 batting average for the White Sox.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Dave Preston, a University of Oklahoma graduate with more than 10 years of news writing experience, was named sports information director Tuesday at the University of San Francisco. He succeeds Bill Fusco, recently promoted to another position in the USF Athletic Department.

ATLANTA (AP) - Atlanta Chiefs goalkeeper Tad Delorm won't start in tonight's North American Soccer League match against Seattle because of a month-old rib injury.

Delorm, who says he didn't play well against Los Angeles last weekend, says he doesn't agree with Coach Dan Wood's decision to keep him out of the game but added, "I respect Dan's decision."

"I'd rather have Tad rest," Wood said. The rib injury isn't very serious, but it does hamper him in practice.

Backup goalie Bob Robson will make his first start for the Chiefs tonight.

First stringer Delorm said, "I'm confident in my ability and in a matter of time I'll be back."

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP) - Veteran Washington, Redskins linebacker Chris Hanburger, who was cut from the team earlier this month in a move toward younger players, says he is bitter about his experience and he has lost respect for the Washington organization.

Hanburger, speaking to the Handley High School Athletes and Athletic Association here Tuesday night, said it would not bother him if the Redskins compile a 0-16 record next season.

"Anybody can pick up a phone and say 'you're fired,'" the 14-year veteran said. "But it takes a man with guts to tell you to your face that you're not needed anymore."

"I have yet to have anyone in that organization do that after 14 years. There's no guts in that building at Redskins Park as far as I'm concerned," he said.

Hanburger said he doesn't care what happens to the team from now on. He said the Redskins will have to struggle for two or three years, but if they get the quality players they are looking for, they will get back on the winning track.

HOUSTON (AP) - Although Randy Niemann turned in a strong pitching performance to record his first major league victory, it was a lucky "break" that set up the game-winning hit.

The hit came in the bottom of the ninth inning off the bat of pinch-hitter Dennis Walling, who sliced a bases-loaded single to score shortstop Craig Reynolds and give the Houston Astros a 2-1 win over the Cincinnati Reds Tuesday night.

The game was tied 1-1 when Reynolds singled to open the Astros' half of the ninth inning. With first baseman Cesar Cedeno at the plate, Reynolds broke for second on the pitch, then stopped in his tracks.

Murray Brown of Florida State scored field goals at a percentage of .691 in the 1978-79 basketball season to lead the NCAA.

The Hereford Rodeo team will be sending seven individuals to the Tri State Finals to be held this weekend in Amarillo. Sid Howard, Brett Cunningham, Blake Johnson, Mike Ferguson, Tania Willson and Cathy and Felinda Trolinder will be representing the team in the finals which will be conducted over a three day period, May 31-June 2.

The top 20 qualifiers from the Tri-State region are eligible to compete in the prestigious event, although individuals with lower finishes will be eligible if higher finishes decline to enter.

Howard was the top Hereford finisher with a fourth place in calf roping. Cunningham will compete in calf roping after ending the season in 12th and will also be participating in ribbon roping with a 13th place entry and team roping with a 15th place.

Johnson will also be in the team roping after being tabbed 17th in the regular season. Ferguson will be riding the bareback bronc in 14th place.

Willson will be entered in three events, barrels, break-away roping, and goatting with finishes of 14th, ninth and seventh.

The Trolinder sisters will have Cathy in goat tying, placing 10th, and Felinda in poles with a 25th place standing.

Places were awarded on the number of points accumulated throughout the year's competition.

Other local rodeo performers that accumulated points but at this time are not eligible for the finals are Scott Wilcox with a 23rd ranking in barebacks, and brother Tony was 22nd, also in the bronc riding. Hereford's other bareback rider, Rocky Nichols was listed in 30th after the regular year had been completed.

Team roping had three boys fail to make the initial listing of finals. Lee Washington finished the season in 23rd place, and Joe Smith was in 37th and Steve McConnell was 48th.

Washington was also listed in 25th in ribbon roping, with a chance to qualify in the events if others decide not to compete.

In the last three rodeos for the year, the Hereford riders took two firsts at Dumas, Cathy Trolinder in goat tying with a time of 13.598 and Cunningham in calf roping with a time of 11.695.

At Canadian, Willson placed fifth in barrels, sixth in goat tying and sixth in break away roping.

The final week of competition at Guymon, Ok. had Cunningham and Johnson sixth in team roping, and Willson was sixth in barrels with a time of 21.074.

The win moved the Astros to within one game of the Reds, who lead the Central Division of the National League. They have a chance to tie Cincinnati tonight as the Reds' Tom Seaver goes against Joe Niekro for Houston.

Houston Within One Game Of Reds

"I threw a lot more breaking and off-speed pitches than I usually do because they're a fast-ball hitting club," said Niemann. "And the guys behind me were playing great defense. I just tried to get it over and depend on the rest of the team to get the outs."

Asked if pitching to the hardhitting Reds made him nervous, Niemann said, "Last week was my first major league start, and I was really nervous then. Meeting the Reds didn't make any difference, because I was as nervous as I could be, anyway."

His teammates gave him a calming advantage in the first inning when Cedeno lashed a single to left center, stole second and went to third after Reds catcher Johnny Bench threw the ball into centerfield.

Cruz blasted a triple to left-center off loser Paul Moskau, 4-2, driving Cedeno home with the go-ahead run.

The Reds came right back, however, with Bench singling in the top of the second inning and going to second base when Niemann balked. A fielder's choice moved him to third, and Danny Driessen singled him home.

HEALTH Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D. Enjoy your honey

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you said that diet doesn't affect acne. I've found that it does in my case. I'm 65 and have had acne most of my life. I minimize it by taking tetracycline. A few years ago I found out that sugar caused acne in some people. I avoided refined sugar and had immediate and marked improvement. We use honey as a sweetener when needed but it doesn't seem to affect me. On the other hand, if I happen to eat a cake, ice cream or other things that are highly sweetened with refined sugar, I develop pimples. Excessive amounts of nuts and peanut butter also seem to affect me.

DEAR READER — There have been good experimental studies that indicate that diet is not a significant factor in developing acne. Sometimes it's a good idea, however, not to be too scientific. If a person finds a definite correlation between a food product and acne in his individual case, the prudent thing to do is to avoid that food item, science or no science.

I do think, however, that in most people the idea that foods contribute to acne has been overemphasized.

Your case exemplifies the point that acne can be a life long problem. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, to give you more information on current thinking about acne. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Now as far as using honey is concerned, there really shouldn't be any reason why you could use honey and not use sugar. Honey contains exactly the same basic sugars that are in ordinary table sugar. Specifically, glucose and fructose. The only difference is that in table sugar the glucose and fructose molecules are hooked together. That's why it's called a disaccharide or double sugar.

This disaccharide is broken down to glucose and fructose by enzymes that are in your intestines before the glucose and fructose can be absorbed into your body. Double sugars can't get through the intestinal wall into your blood. That means that the glucose and fructose from table sugar are totally and completely indistinguishable inside your blood from the glucose and fructose from honey. I'm afraid if you used very much honey, you'd be doing the same thing as you do with sugar.

The other possibility is that you're providing a very clear cut demonstration of the influence of mind over matter. You may do well with honey in regards to acne because you think you will and because you've heard that honey is a health food.

You wouldn't be the first person who had improvement of a medical condition because of psychological factors. We see it all the time and often it's better to work with it instead of against it so enjoy your honey if that's what you want to do.

Tetracyclines are useful in treating some cases of acne. They eliminate the tiny bacteria in the pore of the skin that breaks down the fat into irritating chemical substances.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 35-year-old female. About seven months ago I went to a gastroenterologist because I was having trouble with my stomach and bowels. I had several tests which included an upper GI, gallbladder examination and gastroscopic examination, ultra sound, a barium enema and a sigmoidoscopy. All of these were normal so my doctor said I had a spastic colon. He put me on Librax three times a day.

This lasted about three months before I started feeling better. Now I have the problem again. I feel so sick, I thought maybe there was a special diet or foods I should not eat. My symptoms are frequent bowel movements which are loose, nausea, pain in the back and sometimes a hollow feeling in my stomach. I had a very sour taste in my mouth. Otherwise, I'm a very healthy person — very energetic and not used to feeling like this so I'm pretty disgusted. I don't know where to go from here and I thought maybe you could help give me some answers on spastic colon.

DEAR READER — Many people who write to me now talk about their medical examinations and refer to having an upper or lower GI. For some of my readers who may not be familiar with that terminology, that means an X-ray examination of the upper gastrointestinal tract which includes the esophagus, stomach and duodenum. A lower GI refers to an X-ray examination with a barium enema of the lower gastrointestinal tract, which usually means the colon and perhaps the very end of the small bowel.

Since you've already had gallbladder studies and your stomach has been examined and all the other procedures, your doctor can be fairly confident that you don't have any anatomical illness or something that would show up in that manner. That's why he decided you had a spastic colon.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-1, Irritable Or Spastic Colon And Constipation. It will give you a great deal of information about diet and methods of training your colon so you will have less difficulties. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

People who have irritable or spastic colon do not necessarily have constipation. An overactive bowel or one that's in spasm can produce frequent small movements, not to mention the pain, distention and the other problems, some of which you have described.

You probably should increase the bulk in your diet by adding whole grain cereals and bran. This may be a little bit of a problem during the first three weeks but if you get through that phase of it and get off the white bread, sugars and refined flours and foods made with them, it might improve your digestive functions a great deal.

The coffee habit is particularly troublesome for some people with overactive bowels. I think you probably should stop coffee entirely, including the decaffeinated variety. The caffeine is irritating to the colon and in some people the oils that produce the flavor in the coffee are irritating. Another frequent problem for adults is intolerance to milk.

DEAR DR. LAMB — When Bob Cready turned 40 recently, his family didn't forget his birthday. And they didn't let him forget it, either.

His children Mikki and Travis wore T-shirts that read, "My Dad is Really Old," and his wife, Bonnie, wore one saying, "I Prefer Older Men."

What really hurt, though, Cready said, were the bumper stickers that read, "Life Begins at 40 — When Your Wife is in the 20s."

Mrs. Cready explained that within a month she'd be in her 30s and wanted to make the most of her youth while she could.

OUR FASCINATING EARTH
THE WORLD OF PYRAMIDS
MOST PEOPLE ASSOCIATE PYRAMIDS WITH EGYPT AND NUBIA WHERE THERE ARE ALMOST 300 OF THEM, BUT PYRAMIDS WERE WIDELY DISTRIBUTED AMONG ANCIENT PEOPLES.
THE NEW WORLD HAS MORE AND BIGGER PYRAMIDS THAN EGYPT, THERE BEING THOUSANDS IN MEXICO AND CENTRAL AMERICA ALONE. THE EGYPTIAN PYRAMIDS, HOWEVER, WERE ALREADY ANCIENT HISTORY BEFORE THE FIRST WERE BUILT IN THE AMERICAS.

The Lighter Side

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Armadillos are just "horny, humpy-backed animals" that have no business being the official Texas mammal, says state Sen. John Traeger.

Traeger persuaded colleagues on Monday not to accept a resolution naming the nine-banded armadillo the official state mammal.

Sen. Walter Mengden said he was sponsoring the resolution after school children from his Houston district suggested it.

"School children are one of the most wonderful things in the world but not to write the laws for the state of Texas," Traeger replied.

"They (armadillos) take up the flower bed, tear up the roses. They're completely worthless, and we shouldn't have a horny animal representing the great state of Texas."

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — For 27 years, Robert Gillham had a dream. Now his dream has come true — he's received a patent for what he says will make a better hot dog.

The patent, classified by the U.S. Patent Office as a "basic pioneer patent," is for a coring device that allows you to stuff your hot dogs with your favorite cheese or filling, explained the 70-year-old former cheese salesman turned inventor.

The hole in the frank, says Gillham, 70, solves a problem that has long bedeviled cheese-dog lovers — how to keep the cheese from burning while you heat up the hotdog.

Gillham says his invention will fix that, since it allows cheese to be added just before a hot dog is packed. And since it's inside the dog, the cheese won't burn.

The possibilities don't stop with cheese. Once a hot dog is neatly bored-out, it can be filled with chili, meat spreads or about 50 other fillings, Gillham said.

What about all those cores that are bored out? They'll be recycled, of course.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q — There is no prescribed number of glazier's points that should be used. Even if there were, the number would have to be changed for windows of different sizes. Place the points into the frame about 3 or 4 inches apart. There is no need to measure, since it makes no difference if they are not precisely the same distance apart. Of course, the points go into the frame before the glazing compound or putty is applied. If done the other way around, it would be difficult to place them properly. Incidentally, some glazier's points come with a special small tool that makes it easy to insert them.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - The House that Jack Built - and household names like Kareem, Magic and Marcel are being bought by Los Angeles real estate man Dr. Jerry Buss.

The purchase for about $67 million of the 16,000-seat Forum, pro basketball's Lakers and the pro hockey Kings from Jack Kent Cooke gives Los Angeles a homegrown sports entrepreneur.

Until now the baseball O'Malleys from New York, former Canadian Cooke and football franchise owners moving from the East have controlled the pro sports market in the Los Angeles area. One exception was formation of baseball's Angels by former movie cowboy Gene Autry.

The 46-year-old Buss, who holds a doctoral degree in physical chemistry from the University of Southern California, showed the necessary financial muscle when he bankrolled a great deal of the struggles of World Team Tennis for five years.

He owned the Los Angeles Strings, putting Ilie Nastase and Chris Evert together to win a WTT title last year. Buss also was a part owner of the San Diego, Anaheim and Indiana franchise before the 10-team WTT folded last fall.

Winning the WTT trophy only cost him "a couple of million," he joked. He has estimated his fortune in 20 years of real estate has grown to $350 million. He quit a research job with an aircraft company in 1958 and sunk his entire savings into one apartment building - the first of very many with 5,000 units in Los Angeles and another 5,000 in other cities.

The 66-year-old Cooke and Buss made separate announcements Tuesday that they are finalizing the package deal, the largest transaction in sports history. In addition to the Lakers, the Kings and the 13,000-acre ranch in the California Sierra.

"I am elated," said Buss in a statement released by spokesman Bob Steiner. "It is something I have wanted for a long period of time. It is like a dream come true. It's very exciting for me to work with people like Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Marcel Dionne. And I'm excited about the arrival of Dale McCourt."

includes Cooke's Raljon, a National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle had urged Cooke to divert himself of other sports interests if he desired to stay affiliated with that league's Washington Redskins.

Cooke was given time to settle a divorce suit. Two months ago an agreement was reached giving his former wife, Barbara, one-half of his holdings which are estimated at $100 million.

bounced from the playoffs in early rounds in recent years. Nothing has been said about whether he wants Jerry West to continue as Lakers' coach.

West, well before the sale was reported, said he did not expect to be coaching again next year.

"I am presuming that everyone is competent. Otherwise they could not have been working for Jack Kent Cooke," Buss said. "The blend between the coach, the general manager and the owner is a sensitive situation. And until I've had a chance to talk with everyone, I can't judge whether our personalities will or won't mesh."

Cooke, who built the base of his fortune in cable television systems, bought the Lakers from Minnesota businessman Bob Short for a reported $5 million in 1967 and he paid $2 million to the NHL for the Kings as an expansion franchise the same year.

"Let's remove the final contingencies and get this done with," Cooke was quoted as telling Buss Tuesday morning. Contingencies still not complete include NBA approval of sale of the Lakers and NHL approval of sale of the Kings.

Foster, Nehemiah To Duel For NCAA Crown

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) - Greg Foster is the defending champion and will have the homestade crowd behind him, but Renaldo Nehemiah has momentum and the world record going into their next confrontation in the 110-meter hurdles at the NCAA Track and Field Championships.

Foster, a 20-year-old junior at UCLA from Maywood, Ill., and the 19-year-old Nehemiah, a University of Maryland sophomore from Scotch Plains, N.J., have met a total of 13 times over the past two years both indoors and outdoors. The renewal of their rivalry begins with the trials Thursday.

Nehemiah has 11 victories including a world record clocking of 13.00 seconds May 6 at Los Angeles in a dual against Foster and the previous world-record holder Alejandro Casanas of Cuba.

He also ran the fastest hand-timed 110-meter hurdles race in history May 11 at Kingston, Jamaica, clocking 12.8. But hand-timed events are not recognized for world records by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, the governing body of track and field.

The sleek, supple and strong Nehemiah credits a weight program with improving his performances this year and helping him maintain the ranking as the world's number one hurdler. He has worked on weights to develop his upper body strength and bench-presses about 300 pounds.

"It's not the power in the legs that counts," said Nehemiah. "I have more power in my upper body. That's where you need it. The legs go where the arms take them."

"Yes, I'm stronger than last year, two times stronger. A lot of it is age. I can finish 110-meters now and be hardly puffing. Last year, I was tired."

And he added, "Under 13 seconds definitely is within reach."

Friday. The Foster-Nehemiah duel is expected to be another classic match-up enroute to their biggest showdown of all - the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

Foster is one of nine individual defending champions back from last year. The others are hammer thrower Scott Neilson of Washington; 3,000-meter steeple chaser Henry Reno of Washington State; high-jumper Franklin Jacobs of Fairleigh Dickinson; 5,000-meter runner Rudy Chapa of Oregon; 400-meter hurdler James Walker of Auburn; 400-meter sprinter Billy Mullins of the University of Southern California; shot putter Dave Laut of UCLA; and 10,000-meter runner Michael Musyoki of Texas-El Paso.

In addition, Auburn's Harvey Glance, the 1976 champion at 100 and 200 meters and the 100 winner in 1977, is competing again along with 1977 title holders Kyle Arney of Arizona State (high jump), Svein Walvik of Texas-El Paso (discus) and Tito Steiner of Brigham Young University (decathlon).

Last year's team champion was Southern California for the 27th time in meet history. But the Trojans are not expected to repeat. This year's co-favorites in the meet that ends Saturday are Oregon and Texas-El Paso.
