

Hereford Man Drowns in County Lake

CARLOS TREVINO

A 20-year-old Hereford man drowned in a playa lake northwest of Hereford Saturday night when the rubber raft from which he was fishing apparently capsized in high winds.

Carlos Garcia Trevino was pronounced dead at the scene shortly after 8 a.m. Sunday by Justice of the Peace O.K. Neal after his body was pulled from a lake on the Gary McQuigg farm approximately 20 miles northwest of Hereford.

Emergency units from the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's office, Hereford

Volunteer Fire Department, Department of Public Safety, the Texas Parks & Wildlife Dept. and a rescue unit from the Canyon Fire Department were involved in efforts to recover the body until about 2 a.m. Sunday, when the search was suspended until daylight.

The body was recovered shortly after dragging operations resumed Sunday morning.

According to an investigating officer, Trevino was accompanied in the raft by Johnny Escamilla, 19, also of Hereford.

Escamilla told investigators that high winds evidently overturned the raft, and that Trevino went down in approximately 10 feet of water, failing to make the swim to shore.

Two other fishing companions, Jimmy Ruiz and Joe Alejandre, both of Hereford were standing on shore at the time of the accident, and were not injured.

Escamilla was taken to Deaf Smith General Hospital for treatment of shock and later released.

Neal has ruled death due to accidental drowning in the incident.

Rescuers at the scene reported that volunteers provided an ample number of boats for use in the search for the body.

Funeral services for Trevino are pending with Smith & Co. Funeral Home of Hereford, with rosary services to be conducted tonight at 7 in the Pioneer Chapel of Smith & Co.

Born Feb. 19, 1959, the accident victim was a 1978 graduate of Hereford High School and a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Trevino Sr. of 314 Ave. I; five sisters, Lilia Ruiz, Odella Garcia, and Ofelia Torres, all of Hereford, Delia Arroyos of Dallas and Belia Lafuente of Blackfoot, Idaho; and his grandmother, Isabel Trevino of Del Rio.

Services for Mr. Trevino will be at 10 a.m. Thursday in St. Joseph Catholic Church with father James O'Connor, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in St. Anthony's Catholic Cemetery.

Clements Concerned Over Gas

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements says government is trying to ease the gasoline shortage but warned Texas motorists - many of whom are planning summer vacations - "It won't be enough. I can guarantee you that."

Texas first will be asked to voluntarily reduce consumption. "We will start out on the basis of 'pretty please with sugar on it' - then they may be restricted to getting gas every other day," Clements said Monday.

He told a news conference "topping off" has got to stop, that Texans may be limited to filling up their tanks when the cars are at least half empty.

He also mentioned enlisting the aid of business to make carpooling "fashionable - develop friendships in a carpool, that sort of thing."

As a symbolic gesture, Clements said he might walk to work at the Capitol, only a couple of blocks from the governor's mansion. "It's not that far," he said.

Clements said his office would release a report on gasoline allocation this week.

He responded to reporters' questions after signing a bill extending the life of the State Bar of Texas, which would have gone out of existence under the Sunset process in September.

Clements said he signed the controversial bill into law for two reasons: Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court "doesn't want this hot potato on his plate," and Clements did not want to call a special legislative session before September to keep the bar alive.

The Legislature rejected the governor's proposals that the bar put its money in the state treasury and reduce the board of directors from 36 to nine, all appointed by the governor. Instead, the bill adds six non-lawyer members.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Eules, would require the bar to hold public hearings on its budget and would settle in the bar's favor the dispute over legality of the bar's debt to build its $8 million headquarters here.

"This is less than a good positive decision," Clements said of the signing. "It's a two-negative decision."

Firemen Receive Needed Cash

A donation by a local individual has helped boost the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department over the top in its drive to secure funds for a "jaws-of-life" rescue tool. The local VFD had managed to raise $4,300 toward the purchase of the $6,000 rescue device through various projects, including a recent country music show, and Fire Chief Ron Osborn was notified Sunday by Garth Merrick of Hereford Bi-Products that the balance toward paying for the rescue tool would be made good.

Merrick presented a check for $1,700 to the VFD Monday morning.

According to Osborn, the rescue equipment, designed to cut away portions of automobiles or other machinery from accident victims, is expected to arrive here the week of June 25.

The equipment will be placed on the Hereford VFD's rescue vehicle for use in all rescue calls.

Employees To Receive 7% Salary Increases

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Deaf Smith County commissioners slashed more than $15,000 from the funding requests of county department heads, passed a 7 percent pay raise for all employees and gave tentative approval to a $2,265,677 budget during an all-day public hearing Monday.

Commissioners met with each department head to discuss budget requests, which ranged from $2,400 for the mostly state-funded adult and misdemeanor probation office to $389,320 for the sheriff's office and county jail.

Sheriff Travis McPherson requested 12 percent salary increases for himself and six deputies and even larger raises for dispatchers and secretaries. He also asked for sizeable raises for county jailers and requested a full-time bailiff at a $12,500 salary.

Commissioners, who will not officially act on the budget until July, tentatively approved the bailiff, but set his salary at $10,180.

Concerning McPherson's request for 12 percent pay raises, Commissioner J.F. Martin said, "It's out of the question." Bruce Coleman, Austin Rose and James Voyles all agreed that if salary increases would be granted, they should be the same throughout the courthouse.

If the budget discussed Monday is approved next month, total expenditures would total $2,265,677, an increase of $153,536 over the current fiscal year's budget. That represents a 7.27 percent increase, well below the present inflation rate, and does not include a tax rate increase.

With that budget, the county will need a beginning balance (on Oct. 1) of $396,936 to break even in the fiscal year 1979-80. County Auditor Alex Schroeter projected a beginning balance of $291,919, however.

Tax collections for 1979-80 were estimated at $1,171,700. The present tax rate is $1.25, based on 24 percent of market value, and will not be raised unless commissioners decide in July that they will have a beginning balance of less than $396,936.

The only action taken by commissioners Monday was the approval of an across-the-board pay increase, which totals $65,133. The present county payroll is $904,898.

Commissioners also gave tentative approval to the proposed use of $191,837 in revenue-sharing money, allotting $125,000 to public transportation, $51,837 to general government, $5,000 to the county library (for book purchases),

$2,000 to the county law library and $3,000 to health services.

Appraiser Jim McMorris was at Amendment on Deaf Smith County.

"It's going to hurt you. You'll have to shift your load and increase your rate," McMorris said. "You're going to lose substantial land value. It will shift the tax load to the homeowner and the businessman."

"People were led to believe that it's tax relief, but that's not the way it's working. When you decrease your rates, you'll have to increase your rate to bring in the

United Way To Allow Product Sales

A survey taken by Deaf Smith County United Way directors showed that 81.2 percent of those who responded considered the United Way fund campaign as the "best and most economical way" of raising funds for local youth and adult programs. President Bud Eades reported at a UW board meeting this morning at the Fourway Crossing Restaurant.

Eades said that 137 surveys had been returned, with 18.8 percent favoring separate drives by the agencies over the United Way campaign.

Eades also said that 74.5 percent of those who responded stated that United Way agencies should be permitted to sell products, which were eliminated last year by the UW board as part of the single-drive concept.

After lengthy discussion this morning, directors voted to allow agencies to sell products to raise additional operating funds, but not from Sept. 1 to Oct. 31 - when the United Way campaign is in progress. Each product-sales request must be approved by the United Way board, directors stated.

The board also approved a proposal by Eades to allow the Amarillo United Way professional staff to assist in the local drive. A three-person team from Amarillo will spend one day in Hereford each month through November - a total of 168 hours - to train local United Way volunteers.

Eades said the total cost will be $4,200, or 3.36 percent of a United Way goal of $125,000 and 2.8 percent of $150,000.

United Way volunteers will begin planning next fall's campaign this month.

'Duke' Wayne Yields

LOS ANGELES — John Wayne, a Hollywood hero for nearly 50 years and 200 movies, built his image as a fearless, determined fighter. That was the way "The Duke" died - in a courageous fight with cancer.

As the disease began its final assault and as the pain became more severe, Wayne sometimes refused the drugs that could have eased the way. He wanted, a hospital official said, "to be with his children, his grandchildren... He would tolerate discomfort just to be near his family."

His seven children were at his side when Wayne, known to friends and fans as "The Duke," died at 5:30 p.m. Monday at the UCLA Medical Center. His 72nd birthday was celebrated May 26.

"He was... and is... an American institution," said actor Charlton Heston. "It's not surprising that, to the end, Duke gave an example of courage that made him more than an actor and friend."

Hospital administrator Bernard Strom, announcing the death at a news conference three hours later, said Wayne's family planned a private funeral.

Countless fans had been following Wayne's final battle since Jan. 12, when a routine gallbladder operation turned into an 8 1/2-hour ordeal as surgeons found cancer in his stomach and removed it.

The next five months brought small successes - release from the hospital, an ovation at the Academy Awards - and

Feds Try To Hold Price Hikes Down

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's economy appears to be slowing down, and government officials are taking steps to try to get price increases for some consumer goods to slow down, too.

The latest in a series of indicators on the state of the economy came Monday from the Commerce Department, which said retail sales nationwide fell 0.2 percent in May to $71.1 billion.

The department also revised its April sales figure downward by nearly $1 billion to $71.2 billion. The revised figure represents a drop of 1.1 percent from March.

Meanwhile, the Carter administration announced it would step up monitoring of wholesale and retail food processors to make sure lower farm prices are passed along to consumers. And it moved to increase the nation's lumber supply by allowing more cutting in national forests.

The government also began an appeal of a recent court ruling that eliminated the penalties from its voluntary wage and price program.

The retail sales figures represent a turnaround from modest sales gains in the first few months of the year and booming sales in the final months of 1978.

"It makes the important consumer sector look weaker than we had heretofore realized," said William Cox, a Commerce Department economist. "And it's a substantial part of the economy."

Added Douglas Rice, an economist with Data Resources Inc., a private forecasting firm in Lexington, Mass., "I think this is consistent with a falling economy."

Data Resources is among the forecasters anticipating a mild recession later this year. President Carter's advisers, however, have so far insisted there will be only a slowdown.

The declining retail sales figures, which both Cox and Rice blamed on slower growth in Americans' income, are but the latest of the government

The Branding Iron Ex-Texan Returns, Enjoys Hereford Life

"I'm just a small town boy and Hereford is the kind of town that makes my life enjoyable," Julius Bodner, manager of the local J.C. Penney store says.

Bodner, in Hereford since April, 1978 is high on Hereford and feels that the town is a great place to live and raise a family. He and his wife, Sharon, have a son Jason, 10.

With the Penney's organization since 1966, Bodner is originally from Indiana, but claims Texas as his homestate.

"I met my wife in San Antonio and that is where my boy was born," Bodner said. "It was in San Antonio that I first started with Penney's and so when the chance for me to come back to Texas, I was eager for the opportunity."

Bodner came to Texas after joining the Air Force and being assigned to Lackland Air Force Base. After getting out of the service, he went to work for Penney's starting in San Antonio, then moving to Waco and then to Hamilton, Mo. before coming to Hereford.

"I stayed in Hamilton for five years and although I really liked the town, I had asked my regional manager that if a opening came up in Texas, I would like to be considered," Bodner said. "So when they told me Hereford's store had the opening on a Friday, I was here by the following Monday."

Without even knowing where Hereford was at the time that the position came open, Bodner has not regretted his choice of coming here.

"This place is hunter's paradise, especially bird hunters," Bodner, an avid fisherman and bird hunter said. "When I got here and saw and heard how good the hunting was for pheasants, I couldn't believe how lucky I was."

"The only thing I miss is the quail hunting, but I can travel for a few hours and be in the thick of quail country."

Along with his outdoor activities, Bodner also enjoys tennis and football. He and a partner took second in the recent Hereford Tennis Tournament.

Bodner also coaches and plays for the First Methodist Church softball team.

As a member of the Methodist church, Bodner teaches the eighth grade Sunday School because he likes working with kids. Along with the church activities, he

Gramm To Fight

High Hospital Costs

WASHINGTON (AP) - Freshman Congressman Phil Gramm, D-Texas, says he will lead a committee fight later this month against President Carter's plan aimed at holding down hospital expenses.

Gramm, a member of a key House health subcommittee, took up the fight on the hospitals' side and said Monday that President Carter's plan would result only in the rationing of medical services to patients.

"I am as concerned about saving money on medical care as anyone," Gramm said in a joint news conference with U.S. Rep. Dave Stockman, R-Mich., another member of the health subcommittee.

"But I don't think money can be saved by taking health care away from the needy, and by putting the hospitals of this nation on a rationing program controlled by the Health, Education and Welfare secretary," said the Texas economist and former consultant to the U.S. Public Health Service.

Gramm said most of the increase in hospitals' costs are due to general inflation.

Mexican Oil Spill

May Hit Texas Coast

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) - An oil slick, which may become the biggest spill in history, could hit the coasts of Texas and Louisiana next month, petroleum experts are warning.

A ruptured, burning Mexican offshore well is unleashing about 1.25 million gallons of oil a day into the Gulf of Mexico off the Yucatan Peninsula, the director of the Center for Short-Lived Phenomena said Monday.

The exploratory well blew out on June 3, and the uncontrolled gush of oil is escaping through a flaming torch of natural gas, said Richard Golob, whose organization provides information to scientists about natural and manmade changes in the environment and produces a newsletter on oil spills.

"If the oil continues to escape at the current rate and if the well is not capped before the estimated time of control, this will become the biggest spill in history," Golob said.

So far, a slick estimated at 10 miles wide and 100 miles long stretches westward away from the oil well, Golob said. But the slick has already reached offshore shrimping grounds and threatens other important shrimping grounds, he added.

Houston Compared

To Dodge City

HOUSTON (AP) - Charges of police brutality in this, the nation's fifth largest city, will be studied by the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights during the next two days as a homicide lieutenant compares the shootouts in Houston to "Dodge City of the 1880s."

There, however, is no legendary federal marshal with a fast draw to send the rowdies, the robbers, the gunslingers biting the dust in a classic face-to-face showdown on a deserted street.

But, spokesmen for some minority groups claim Houston police are slaying, beating, and mistreating many blacks and Hispanics.

Police Lt. C.J. Lofland said Monday Houston is a modern-day Dodge City, with 12 homicides were reported during the weekend. That brings the murder total to 248 for the year, compared with 177 for the same period in 1978.

He said eight to 10 homicides in a weekend "is not unusual, it is a common occurrence."

Prospects Improve

For Wheat Harvest

WASHINGTON (AP) - Favorable weather in key production areas last month helped improve prospects for this year's winter wheat harvest, under way in southern areas.

According to the Agriculture Department, 1979 winter wheat production is estimated at 1.43 billion bushels, 3 percent larger than forecast last month.

Based on field conditions as of June 1, the latest estimate also is up 14 percent from the 1978 winter wheat harvest, the smallest in five years.

A month ago the crop was estimated at 1.39 billion bushels. The 1978 harvest was less than 1.25 billion bushels.

Officials said "generally cool temperatures plus adequate moisture contributed to the increased yield prospects in most of the wheat growing area" in May.

Overall, the crop was reported in "fair to mostly good" condition in early May and then was rated "good in most areas" by the end of the month, the department's Crop Reporting Board said.

Winter wheat is planted in the fall and harvested the following spring and summer. It accounts for about three-fourths of total U.S. wheat production.

Borger Deputy

Killed in Escape

BORGER, Texas (AP) - A deputy sheriff was slain during the escape of two prisoners Monday night from jail, the Hutchinson County sheriff's office said. His identity was not immediately released.

The fugitives were identified as Michael Clyde Jones and George Marshall Hall. They were said to be armed and considered dangerous after the 10:39 p.m. break.

The two were said to be in a cream-over-gold 1974 or 1975 automobile, but officers recovered it a short time later and said the two escapees were thought to be hitchhiking.

Committee Favors Stronger Oil Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Ways and Means Committee, in a decision that could ease the political pressure on Democrats, appears determined to write a stronger "windfall profits" tax on the oil industry than President Carter recommended.

As a starter, the panel agreed Monday that the tax should cost the oil companies at least 1 percent more than Carter proposed.

A tough tax making its way through Congress could cool some of the political heat being felt by Democrats who sense voters oppose Carter's decision to phase out federal price controls on domestic oil. Decontrol means more money for the oil industry; the tax would take away part of that windfall.

Several votes Monday indicated Carter may get the tax he wants - so long as he is willing to be tougher on the oil industry.

Awaiting action is an effort by Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, to substitute a far simpler tax than Carter proposed - and to make it far more costly to the oil industry. The Carter administration opposes this amendment on grounds it would deny oil companies the money they need to increase production.

As Congress sought answers to the nation's energy problems, there were these other developments Monday:

-Alfred Dougherty of the Federal Trade Commission's Bureau of Competition told a House Government Operations subcommittee the current gasoline shortage is traceable, in part, to a decision by the oil companies earlier this year to stockpile crude oil rather than refine it.

-In New York, an American Petroleum Institute spokesman who asked to remain anonymous said crude oil stocks fell to low levels last winter and the Energy Department asked oil companies to rebuild their inventories. The trade group spokesman added gasoline demand was unusually high in the first quarter of 1979.

-A group of 18 senators, led by Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, introduced a multi-billion-dollar package of energy-production bills intended to eventually slash U.S. reliance on foreign oil.

Standards Must Be Met

WASHINGTON (AP) - A unanimous Supreme Court ruled Monday that handicapped persons have no legal right to attend a school if they cannot meet the school's physical qualifications.

In a stunning defeat for handicapped persons nationwide, the justices ruled that a 1973 law designed to end bias against the handicapped does not force colleges and universities to offer "affirmative relief" for such persons.

Monday's decision reversed a lower court's ruling that Southeastern Community College in Whiteville, N.C., has violated federal law when it turned down Frances Davis for its nursing program.

"Nothing in the language or history of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 reflects an intention to limit the freedom of an educational institution to require reasonable physical qualifications for admission to a clinical training program," Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. said for the court.

"Now has there been any showing in this case that any action short of a substantial change in Southeastern's program would render unreasonable the qualifications it imposed," he said.

One section of the 1973 law prohibits programs or activities receiving federal aid from discriminating against any "otherwise qualified handicapped individual."

Monday's ruling found that Mrs. Davis, who suffers from a severe hearing loss, was not qualified for the nursing program solely because of her physical handicap.

Mrs. Davis, now 46 and a licensed practical nurse for the past 12 years, sought in 1974 to join Southeastern's associate nursing program leading to licensing as a registered nurse.

Unlike a practical nurse, a registered nurse is allowed to perform some sophisticated medical tasks.

There was never any question that Mrs. Davis, a Fairmont N.C., resident who had been an undergraduate student at Southeastern during the 1973-1974 school year, was academically qualified for admission to the nursing program.

But because of a serious hearing impairment, she can communicate with others only when she wears a hearing aid and looks directly at the talker to read lips.

Southeastern officials submitted an audiologist's report to the executive director of the North Carolina Board of Nursing, who said Mrs. Davis should be advised "to alter her career goal."

The school was told that her handicap would make her incapable of performing various duties assigned to a registered nurse, such as aiding in operations when surgical masks are worn.

A federal trial judge dismissed Mrs. Davis' lawsuit, but the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that Southeastern had violated the law in rejecting Mrs. Davis' application.

The appeals court sent the case back to U.S. District Judge Robert Hemphill with orders to give "close attention" to Mrs. Davis' request for some form of "affirmative relief" by modifying its nursing program to accommodate her hearing disability.

Today's Supreme Court ruling struck down the appeals court order to Hemphill.

Powell's opinion was based chiefly on his interpretation of the "otherwise qualified" wording of the 1973 law.

"We think it clear that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare interprets the 'other' qualifications which a handicapped person may be required to meet as including necessary physical qualifications," Powell said.

Supreme Court Agrees To Study Obscenity Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court Monday agreed to review a ruling that struck down substantial parts of Texas' obscenity laws.

The justices said they will study a federal appeals court ruling last Dec. 18 that found some provisions in the laws to be unconstitutional.

Twenty consolidated cases were the basis of the 8-6 vote by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The lead case involved the King Arts Theatre adult movie house in San Angelo, Texas, which sued the state in 1973.

The building's landlord told King Arts its lease was to be dropped, because county attorney George McCrea had threatened to name the theater as a public nuisance.

Under Texas law as it then existed, prosecutors could attempt to get temporary injunctions to abate public nuisances - such as movie houses and book stores believed to be dealing in obscene material.

If the establishment were later found to be a public nuisance, the state could seek an injunction closing it down for a full year.

A three-judge federal trial court struck down both aspects of the Texas laws, calling them a prior restraint on material not yet judged to be obscene.

A three-judge circuit court panel reversed the trial court, however, and reinstated the injunction provisions. The full appeals court decided that the trial court had been right.

"An injunction that forbids the showing of any film portraying the particular acts enumerated in the obscenity statute suppresses future films because past films have been deemed offensive.... This is the essence of censorship," the appeals court ruled.

Application of the one-year closing provisions in obscenity statutes under the Texas nuisance statutes would constitute an impermissible prior restraint, since the future operation of a business which disseminated presumptively First Amendment protected materials solely on the basis of the nature of the materials which were sold," it said.

same money. The Tax Relief Amendment requires property taxation of land to be based on agricultural, not market value. McMorries said the county's losses through less taxes would be "extensive."

He suggested that commissioners put off local implementation of the amendment until the tax year 1980-81 - an option offered to counties by the state Legislature.

Wayne - who played the cowboy, the marine, the admiral, the football player - was granted scant expectation of progress, though he was taking short walks near his room, hospital officials said.

Cards and letters by the thousands poured into the Medical Center from around the country and the world. As a measure of Wayne's immense popularity and almost legendary stature, Congress last month voted to have a gold medal struck in his honor. Among the other 83 recipients of the congressional medal were George Washington and Andrew Jackson.

Death began approaching Saturday, Strohm said, when "Mr. Wayne stated doing rather poorly." His vital signs would not stabilize. "He slept for long periods and, when he woke, 'he would look around and ask for his children."

movies. He almost always portrayed a two-fisted and determined man from a simpler time, when right and wrong were clear and absolute.

He once mused that for his epitaph he would like simply a Mexican saying: "Feo, Fuerte y Formal" - ugly, strong and dignified.

Wayne's outspoken political views - usually conservative and always patriotic - made him an often-controversial figure during the unrest of the 1960s. He strongly supported America's role in Vietnam, proclaiming in 1969, "There's a lot of yella bastards in the country who would like to call patriotism old-fashioned." It was never old-fashioned to him.

But Wayne survived the tumult of the '60s just as he survived mediocre movies and frequent disdain from critics.

He once said he expected to be panned by the critics, but, "hell, I don't care. People like my pictures and that's all that counts."

At his death, he was near the top of the all-time list of box office draws. It's been estimated that his movies brought in $700 million.

Wayne was married three times, and was separated from his last wife, Pilar. In an interview almost two decades ago, Wayne said, "Hollywood had only one king - Clark Gable. And now that he and Gary Cooper are gone, I'm just a lonesome cowboy, nothing more."

Visit Brings Religion

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Pope John Paul II's triumphant visit to Poland unleashed an outpouring of religious and nationalist favor impossible for the communist government to ignore. But the long-range effects are difficult to forecast.

The extraordinary coverage given the pope in Poland's government-controlled media is certain to cause repercussions throughout Eastern Europe for some time to come.

The audience in Poland for the pope's words was far, far greater than that ever obtained before by a religious leader in a communist country. There were four reasons for this:

Nearly all religious meetings in communist countries must be held on church property. When Billy Graham was in Poland last October, all his meetings were held in churches, and his biggest crowd was about 6,000. The pope held outdoor Masses at virtually every stop, with the crowds ranging from 300,000 to a million.

Some Soviet Bloc countries, notably East Germany and Hungary, broadcast weekly church services; but generally religious leaders have little or no access to radio or television in communist countries. However, Polish TV gave the pope the prime spot on its evening newscasts and along with the national radio service carried some of his services live.

Religious leaders receive scant coverage in the communist-controlled press. But the pope was on the front page of Poland's papers every day, even in the Communist Party newspaper, Trybuna Ludu.

The pope is a chair of state, the head of the Vatican City State. The Polish government's communist leaders could accord him the same treatment they would give a president or prime minister. Because he also is a Pole, he was treated with special deference.

Catholic delegations from Czechoslovakia, Romania, Yugoslavia and Hungary took part in the celebrations, and the visit was reported in the official media of other Soviet Bloc countries. But the reports were much briefer than the coverage in Poland.

The Polish church has no illusions about sweeping away the communist system, but it clearly hopes the visit will pressure the government into granting such concessions as an end to censorship of religious publications, access to radio and television and an end to

Gas Can, Television Reported Stolen

Police investigated a house burglary and stolen gasoline can during a light Monday, according to reports.

Sylvia Barrientos, 201 Kibbe, reported that someone entered her house, probably through an unlocked front door, between 11 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Monday and stole a 12-inch black-and-white TV set valued at $104.

Jesse Cano, custodian at First Christian Church, told police that while he was mowing the church lawn Monday, three girls stole a five-gallon gasoline can. Police later recovered the can.

Officers Monday issued five tickets for expired inspection stickers, two for no driver's license and one for speeding.

Prenuptial Shower Fetes Miss Charest

Miss Joni Charest, bride-elect of Keith Kitchens, was honored Friday afternoon at a pre-nuptial shower in the home of Joan Hopper, 509 Westhaven.

Miss Charest and Kitchens are to be married June 23 in First Baptist Church.

Greeting guests with Mrs. Hopper were the honoree, her mother, Jo Charest, and her fiancé's mother, Bobbie Kitchens.

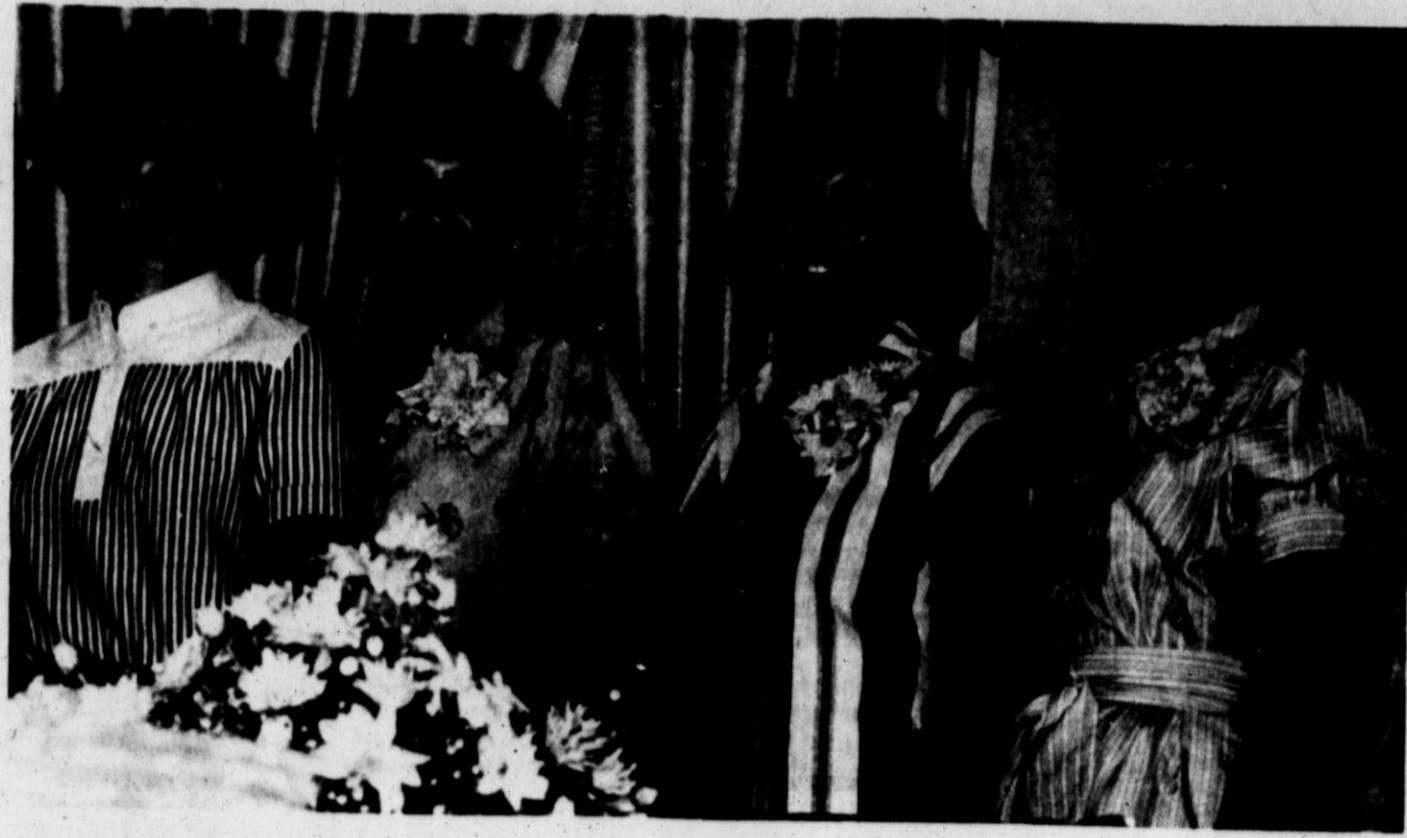

Karen Marsh and Sharon Charest served apricot punch from a crystal bowl and coffee from a silver service. An assortment of cookies, fruits and nuts were also offered to guests.

A bouquet of yellow and white daisies with babybreath centered the serving table, which was laid with pale yellow linen.

Inviting guests to sign the registry was Phyllis Cornelius.

Special guests attending were Miss Charest's grandmother, Esther Grimes, and her fiancé's grandmother, Mrs. Guy Ford of Canyon. Other out-of-town guests present including Suzanne Farris of Hart and Gay Mayhew of Dimmitt with her daughters, Shelly and Kelly.

Receiving Guests

Miss Joni Charest, bride-elect of Keith Kitchens, was the guest of honor Friday afternoon at a shower in the Dave Hopper home. Shown from left are members of the receiving line, including Mrs. Hopper, Jo Charest, Miss Charest and Bobbie Kitchens.

Shower Honors Mrs. Taylor

A post-nuptial wedding shower was held Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Jerry Taylor, the former Lynette Clearman. The party was in the home of Mrs. Gid Brown, 805 Baltimore.

Receiving guests were the honoree, her mother, Mrs. Hugh Clearman of Lawn, her mother-in-law, Mrs. Claude Taylor of Pampa, and Mrs. Brown. The honoree's parents are former residents of Hereford.

Debbie Swafford served finger sandwiches, assorted cookies and fruit punch from a table draped with white damask. Yellow peace roses, blue cornflowers and honeysuckle were arranged in a silver epergne as the centerpiece. Silver and crystal appointed the table.

Mrs. Gwynne Owen secured the signatures of guests, who included a number of Pampa residents, friends of the groom's family.

Hostesses assisting Mrs. Browns were Mmes. Art Stoy, George Olson, Buck Parsons, Elmer Kimball, Troy Mims, J.J. Durham, Armon Lauderback, Bill Walden and Gwynne Owen.

Auxiliary Delegates Review Convention

The recent State Hospital Auxiliary convention was recap-ed Monday for members of the local Hospital Auxiliary during their monthly business meeting at K-Bob's Steak House.

Olivia Denning, president, called the meeting to order. Jane White, a delegate to the recent convention, reviewed a legislative workshop which she attended. The National Health Insurance Plan was the main item of concern.

Lupe Cerda, who also attended the state meeting, presented a report from a gift shop clinic. Several suggestions were made for the local auxiliary's gift shop, which is located in the lobby of Deaf Smith General.

In other business, the Auxiliary voted to donate $25 to the Volunteer Fire Department's fund to buy a "Jaws" rescue device. Also, members agreed to present greeting cards to hospital patients celebrating a birthday. Helen Word was welcomed as a new member.

Members were reminded that the auxiliary's next meeting is slated July 2 at K-Bob's.

In attendance at yesterday's Dutch treat luncheon were Mrs. Denning, Grace Covington, Mrs. White, Mary Johnson, Alice Gilleland, Naomi Brisendine, Mrs. Cerda and Kay Long.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

Without a shred of modesty, I can tell you I'm an authority on excuses.

I have a collection of them that spans every occasion. There's one for what to say when you're the only "non-working" mother with a station wagon and the class trip to the meat packing plant is coming up, to what to say when your children want to know why you never wear the satin jogging shorts they bought you that show more than anyone wants to see.

But I have never known an excuse that has caught fire in this country like, "I have to watch my show." It has replaced "I think Dad has just set himself on fire" ... "I smell gas leaking" ... and the ever-popular "My long-distance phone call is coming in."

In a short span of time, these six little words have captured the imagination of everyone. I've seen high-level conferences dissolve when the chairman announced, "I have to watch my show." Intimate family dinners fall apart when someone shouts, "I have to watch my show." Little children leave play to do it. Kids skip class to do it. Grandmothers put down their grandchildren to do it. Babysitters go home early to do it and even priests leave the confessional to do it.

We all know that excuses go in cycles depending at what stage we are in our lives. When I was first married, I used "Something's burning" a lot. When the children came along, it was "I can't leave the children" and "I have nothing to wear." In recent years, it has been "Nothing fits" and "Redford might call."

Frankly, I never thought I'd see the day when a woman would plan the birth of her first child around the airing of Lillie Langtree.

The public acceptance of the excuse was really evident the other night when we stopped in at a friend's house. We were pulled into a darkened room illuminated only by a 21-inch TV screen. Shadows hailed us in pantomime as we were gently eased into chairs. Finally, above the dialogue of "Lou Grant" came a voice, "We have to watch our show." We accepted the explanation as if we had just witnessed it on Mr. Sinai.

Excuses do go in cycles and it's hard to know how long this one will last. I only know Marj was relating an intimate meeting with a new man in her life and as he nuzzled her ear she heard the dreaded words:

"He didn't!" I said.

She nodded. "The Cubs were playing Cincinnati."

Students Presented In Piano Recital

Mrs. Joe Hacker presented Kimberly Sims and Jill Paschel in a piano recital recently in her studio at 119 East 15th.

Kimberly is a sophomore at Hereford High School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Sims. She has earned superiors in the local Music Festival and National Guild auditions. She is the recipient of the Sonatina Medal and the Bach Medal.

Her compositions were "Toccata" by Bastien; "Sonata in G major" by Beethoven; "Old White Pine" by MacDowell; "Scherzo in E minor" by Mendelssohn; "Sonata in A major" by Scarlatti; "Sonata in G major" by Mozart; "Romanca" by Rubinstein; and "Malaguena" by Lecuona.

Jill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Paschel and is a junior at Hereford High School. She has received five consecutive superiors in the Music Festival and also in the guild auditions. She has received the Gold certificate and Gold cup for earning three consecutive superiors.

Both girls are honor students and members of the Hereford High School band. Jill's compositions were "Finale" by Haydn; "Polonaise" by Chopin; "Sonata Pathetique" by Beethoven; and "Sonata in C" by Mozart, which the girls played on two pianos.

Refreshments were served to families and invited guests of the girls.

Lyles' Book Foundation For Seminar

Fifteen art dealers and instructors from Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas were in Hereford over the weekend for an art seminar at Texas Gallery and Frame here.

The seminar was presented by Jean Lyles, owner of Texas Gallery, and her son, Charles Lyles, art instructor. Curriculum for the three-day course was based on the book "Landscapes to Draw and Paint" recently written and illustrated by Mrs. Lyles and her son. The seminar concerned oil painting.

Ann Landers

Things To Come

DEAR ANN: This problem may well be considered a "sign of things to come." My husband is a firefighter. These men work 24-hour shifts, from 8:00 a.m. one morning to 8:00 a.m. the next. I suspect in the near future, this department will employ female firefighters. The women will be required to work the same shifts, sleep in the same rooms with the men, use the same bathrooms, showers, etc.

How are we wives to cope? How are the men to deal with such temptation? I may be old-fashioned, but I don't feel any woman except me has the right to sleep in the same room with my husband. (He shares these views.)

Is there a way out, short of his quitting a job he loves and is extremely capable of performing? Please don't think this is a joke. This situation is causing a lot of mental and emotional stress in thousands of marriages across the nation. Perplexed in The Windy City.

DEAR PERPLEXED: I checked with Fire Commissioner Richard Albrecht. He said at this time there are no female firefighters in Chicago, but there are women paramedics who work 24-hour shifts. They have an officer's room with separate toilet facilities and showers. The doors have secure locks.

The Chicago Fire Department

plans to build twelve additional station houses. Each will have separate quarters to house future female firefighters. So -- relax, dear.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please -- this whole community needs your help. It's the new pastor.

He has an unpleasant voice -- lowers it and we can't hear, or raises it and speeds up and we can't understand. Sometimes he shouts which is quite unpleasant. We get no comfort or inspiration from his sermons.

He has made too many changes. Our new hymn books are more Catholic than Lutheran. The choir used to enter and exit singing which we all enjoyed. Now the pastor talks instead. People say he is long-winded.

In a recent church bulletin the pastor addressing the youth said, "We have an agenda that will blow your minds." He tries to be modern but it sounds common. When he visits in our homes he uses such phrases as, "Son of a gun."

I know the man is trying to be well liked and I feel sorry for him. What can a person do to help, short of coming right out and telling him how the people in his parish feel? Don't print the name of my town or even the state, but please reply. -- Need Your Wisdom

DEAR N.Y.W.: Do you really want to help the new pastor or

are you just letting off steam? If you want to help, you must either find the courage to tell him what you've told me -- or mail him this column.

DEAR ANN: What can we do about grandparents who teach kids cockeyed values? We don't want our children to get the idea love can be bought. My in-laws are doing just that.

Every time our two pre-school children give Grandpa or Grandma a kiss they get a quarter. A good hug may net them an extra dime. My husband and I have told them we don't like it, but they keep right on. What now? -- Mayefield, Ky.

DEAR MAY: It's your house and your kids. Take charge. Give the money back and tell them the game is over. If you show them you mean business your wishes will prevail.

A bake sale will be held Saturday in Sugarland Mall sponsored by Sweet 'n' Fancy and American GI Women's Forum Club. The sale will start at 9 a.m. and end that afternoon.

All sorts of decorated cakes and cupcakes will be for sale with proceeds going into St. Joseph Catholic Church building fund.

HOLLAND BEST PARIS (AP) — Holland is the best European country to live in, according to a recent survey by the French magazine Le Point.

Giving points for health, culture, stability and comfort, the survey placed Denmark in second place, followed by France. At the bottom of the list, ranked as the "least inviting countries to live in" were Britain and Ireland.

Emergency Homes Needed Locally

The Department of Human Resources has announced that there is a great need in the Hereford area for emergency homes providing shelter to displaced children from infant age to 18 years old.

Emergency homes are used for short-term placement, equalling 30 days or less.

Emergency home foster parents are screened by the Department of Human Resources. Interested persons are asked to visit this department at the County Courthouse. The phone number is 363-6641.

There are 135 million cars in the United States, at least one for every two Americans. Benjamin Franklin attended school for only two years, from the age of 8 to age 10.

Summer Schedule to be Determined

AAU Meet Important for Mays

By MARC HERRING
Brand Sports Editor

The one track meet that will determine what James Mays will be doing this summer is set for this weekend, according to the Texas Tech halfmiler.

Mays will be leaving for Los Angeles tonight to participate in the Amateur Athletic Union track meet that is scheduled to run at Mount San Antonio College in Walnut, Calif.

"If I do well in this meet, at least make it to the finals, then the chance of competing this summer in Europe with a running club is quite possible," Mays said. Right now I have talked with a few of the teams so my chances are pretty good."

Mays will be the only Red Rider at the meet in California, and although he is running under the Texas Tech name, he will be in effect running as an independent.

Along with running in Europe if he does well this weekend, selection to the team that competes in the Pan American Games also hinges on his success at the three day meet.

"This is the one meet that all amateur athletes key on because of its importance," Mays said. "The NCAA's were important, but at this one the runners are of the world class caliber, not just college athletes."

On the subject of the NCAA track meet, Mays was really disappointed by the way he ran his prelim heat in which he was eliminated.

"I just didn't run a smart race," Mays said. "I got myself boxed in, and then had to run way outside to break free, and those extra few steps cost me my chance to be in the finals."

Only the top three in each heat advanced to the semifinals and Mays was tabbed as fourth as 1:49.7.

"The pace was real slow the first lap, about :56 seconds," Mays said, "so when the second lap started, I tried to make a move, but I couldn't get outside until the last straight, and by that time it was too late."

If Mays is not selected by one of the clubs to run in Europe, he will spend the summer in Colorado Springs, Colo. at an Olympic Training Camp and also run some races at AAU meets in the U.S.

"I want to run in Europe because of the chance to compete against the international runners, but also for endurance sake. The halfmilers that run the summer circuit compete in two meets a week, so that could mean running up to six races a week, which would really help in my conditioning," Mays said.

Mays fastest time thus far is 1:47.14, but he still feels that he has yet to run his best race.

"I think I can run in the 1:46's or even better," Mays said.

"There have been a lot of times this year when I've finished a race and find that I'm not very tired so I know that I could have done better."

"The competition this summer will really help me in this respect also, because I can learn to run my kind of race and not have to run in a style that is not suited to me, just because that is what is being run in a particular race."

Mays will run his first heat in the AAU meet Thursday and if he qualifies, will run again on Friday and then Saturday in the finals.

Houston Excited As Astros Contend

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

It is a measure of the progress the Houston Astros are making this season that their contest with Philadelphia was chosen as one of ABC-TV's regional games Monday night, even though they were playing it on the road.

The Astros are a network favorite for the backup game when they're at home because the Astrodome roof, its occasional leaks notwithstanding, guarantees a game regardless of the weather's whims. But on the road, the Astros have been ignored pretty much by television, mostly on merit.

They were dullsville. A rerun of "I Love Lucy" would do better on the tube than this lifeless team.

This season, though, there is excitement in Houston, almost as much as if they had struck oil in the outfield. The Astros, you see, after 18 years of drifting through the National League, have become contenders.

It was no easy, overnight development to put together a representative baseball team in Houston. First the club had to fight off the Kamikaze-sized mosquitoes who delighted in dive-bombing the players and customers in the franchise's original home, Colt Stadium. Before they were the Astros, remember, this team was called the Colt 45s, one of baseball's all-time strangest nick-names.

Then early management made some dreadful trades which sent future stars such as Mike Cuellar, Joe Morgan, Cesar Geronimo, Rusty Staub, John Mayberry and Mike Marshall off to play on championship teams in other towns while Houston maintained a steady also-ran status.

The Astros began turning the corner in 1975 when they put together a new front office team headed by Tal Smith, who was no stranger to the organization.

Smith had been in on the ground floor when the franchise was granted in 1960 and stayed with the club until 1973 when he joined the New York Yankees. He thought he was going to be the Yankees' general manager, but with Gabe Paul around, that never happened, and less than two years later, Smith was back in Houston as GM.

There are only two teams in the National League West division over .500 and Houston is one of them. There is the suspicion that they may just be serious about this business of being contenders.

The Astros have gotten marvelous production from players who were shrugged off elsewhere. Craig Reynolds, who made stops in Pittsburgh and Seattle, has plugged the hole at shortstop and is batting .294. Rookie outfielder Jeff Leonard, who was a player to be named later in a deal with Los Angeles, has forced his way into the regular lineup with a .319 batting average. Outfielder Jose Cruz .282 and third baseman Enos Cabell .296, a couple of the game's most underrated players, are enjoying their usual productive years and journeyman pitcher Joe Niekro, with a 9-2 record, has won more games than any other National League hurler this season.

These are all ample reasons to let the Astros appear on television. And what's more, those sunburst uniforms look great in living color.

TWO STREAKS

MARYVILLE, Mo. (AP) — Northwest Missouri State University will begin the 1979-1980 basketball season with two unusual streaks. The Bearcats have a 19-game, home-court winning streak and a 16-game losing streak on the road.

In the 1978-79 campaign, they were 15-11, winning all home games and losing all away contests.

Watson Not Ready To Claim Top Spot

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Maybe Tom Watson is right. He insists he doesn't belong on the same golf plateau with Jack Nicklaus — at least for now.

"I need to win more major championships. That's how the press, the fans, young peers judge a player," said Watson, well-rested for a charge to his first United States Open title.

America's most prestigious golf tournament opens at Inverness Club Thursday. Watson and Nicklaus will rank in the forefront as favorites.

"You must win the Open to be considered a great player," said Watson. "With one exception — Sam Snead — no one has been a great player without winning the Open."

The year-by-year yardsticks of the game's two greats, at comparable points in their careers, support Watson.

At age 29, Nicklaus had won two Opens, three Masters and one PGA National in eight years. That was six major professional titles among his 30 tournament victories.

Watson is now the same age a decade later.

His comparable figures in 8½ tour seasons: no Open titles, one Masters, two British Opens and three majors among his 14 tour triumphs.

But this is 1979 and it's clearly Watson over Nicklaus in the first half of the tour.

The red-haired Missourian has needed just 14 starts to pile up a tour-leading $353,000. He's won four times. He's finished second four times. He's been in the top six on 10 occasions. Meanwhile, Nicklaus, 39, is fighting over-the-hill charges. And, by his own admission, he's played very well just one time in eight starts — finishing 1 stroke back in the Masters for fourth place.

The man who has won an unprecedented $3.8 million on tour has paltry earnings of less than $35,000 this year.

"I haven't been satisfied with my final results this year," said the blond Ohioan, "but I've still got three majors left to put my game back in shape. I need a win under my belt to get untracked."

Even Nicklaus, the winner of an all-time record of 15 major professional championships, concedes he's no longer the man to beat every time he tees up.

Nicklaus says it's Watson now.

"Tom is playing so much better than anyone in the game," said Nicklaus. "He's going to have to play poorly for somebody to beat him."

Watson, however, can see problems with his game two days before the Open begins for a third time over Inverness, a relatively short but tight 6,182 yards.

"I'm still having trouble off the tee," he said after shooting "about par" of 71 in a tuneup Monday. Watson was headed for more driving work after his round, too.

But then Watson's confidence showed. Just over a two-week vacation, he grinned and added, "I'm putting well though and that's the name of the game."

Did Safety Pin Affect 'Bid' ?

NEW YORK (AP) - "For want of a nail, the shoe is lost," goes a line from the Jacula Prudentum classic poem which most of us had to memorize in high school.

From the shoe to the horse, to the battle, to the war and finally to loss of the nation itself, the story follows a tragic line that ends with:

"And all for the want of a ten-penny nail."

At Belmont Park over the week-end, there was a similar sequence of bizarre events that led to tragedy - certainly not as deep as the loss of a nation - but stemming, as the nail, from an insignificant, miniscule object.

The object: A safety pin. An ordinary household safety pin. The kind of pin you use on the baby's diapers or, in this case, to secure the bandage around the fragile leg of a champion race horse.

The race horse was Spectacular Bid, a big, iron-gray animal who had romped in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness and was favored at 1-5 to win the Belmont Stakes and become the 12th colt in 105 years of racing to capture the Triple Crown.

The Bid faded in the stretch, finishing third behind the winner, Coastal, and Golden Act.

Immediately after the race, Spectacular Bid's loquacious trainer, Bud Delp, said he had no excuses. The horse's jockey, 1-year-old Ron Franklin, said, "My horse choked - he couldn't breathe. He had nothing the last quarter."

Upon returning to his home in Baltimore, Delp made the stunning disclosure that his horse had accidentally stepped on a safety pin in his stall on the morning of the race and the pin had sunk an inch into the flesh.

That, he intimated, was the reason his runner failed to measure up to expectations.

Franklin immediately changed his story. "I lied about the horse choking," the young rider said. "I had to think of something and that was the first thing that popped into my mind."

Why didn't Delp disclose the injury immediately to track veterinarians? Why did he wait until he got to Baltimore to let the cat out of the bag?

Why should Franklin, a fuzzy-cheeked kid, be put in the position of deviousness to protect his bosses?

What about all those people who wagered close to $1 million on the Bid - $699,999 to win alone - believing they had been given sound information about the horse's health?

No matter how good Delp's motives, there is something ethically wrong with hiding the injury. It is an injustice to the millions who trust the industry to give them a fair shake when they put up their hard-earned dough.

In this case, bettors were duped - unintentionally perhaps, but duped nevertheless. That is, if Delp is correct and the sore foot actually did affect the outcome of the race.

It is much easier to believe that it did not. A more logical explanation is that Spectacular Bid, for all his past performances, either was worn out by hard spring of campaigning or not able to go the 1 1/2 mile distance - theories only future races can prove.

Spectacular Bid was not, as Delp boasted, a better horse than the great Secretariat. According to comparative times, Secretariat would have whipped him by 20 lengths.

It was a tragic day for the Bid, the kid and the lip. All three must redeem themselves.

Vet Says Pin Not Factor

BALTIMORE (AP) - Dr. Robert Vallence, attending veterinarian for Spectacular Bid, said a safety pin injury to the horse before last Saturday's Belmont Stakes probably was not a major factor in Bid's third-place finish.

"I can't see that the injury as a major factor in the horse getting beat," said Dr. Vallence.

"It's like a splinter taken out of a finger. There is no soreness immediately, but 24 to 48 hours later, dirt may get up in there and it may become sore," Vallence said.

Trainer Grover "Buddy" Delp said that the colt had stepped on a safety pin in his stall before the race, but that it was decided not to scratch him.

Delp said the pin was dropped on the floor of Bid's stall when a groom was removing protective bandages from the horse's legs early Saturday morning. Delp said the colt began pawing at the ground, and the pin became lodged in his hoof.

Meanwhile, Belmont steward Gerard A. Burke said that veterinarians approved Spectacular Bid to race in the Belmont, so that action against Delp for allowing the colt to run with a bad foot appeared unlikely.

Dr. Manny Gilman and Ted Hill of the New York Racing Association both said that they had examined the horse before the race, and that he appeared healthy.

"I'm not saying Dr. Delp is telling a story," Gilman said. "All I can tell you is what I saw. The horse came out for the race all right, and he came back all right. He also cooled out all right in the testing barn, and he looked perfectly sound when he stepped onto a van Sunday morning to leave Belmont."

Hill said he inspected each of the horse's feet and found no inflammation. But an infection could have started, he said, since the horse was not immediately given a tetanus shot.

After returning to Pimlico Sunday, hemorrhaging was discovered in Bid's right foot after his shoe was removed.

Vallence said that he had taken no X-rays, but that there was no apparent bone damage. The horse was given a tetanus shot, and shots of penicillin and bute to ease the soreness Sunday, Vallence said. Bid will continue to be given penicillin, he said.

Bowa's Bat Slows Hot Astros

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - If there is any doubt what shortstop Larry Bowa means to the Philadelphia Phillies, just look at the statistics since he returned to the lineup Saturday night.

Bowa is 6-14 for a .429 average, with three RBI, two game-winning hits and has been involved in four double plays defensively.

The 33-year-old Bowa broke a bone in the thumb of his throwing hand May 22. He was placed on the 15-day disabled list. The Phillies were in first place in the National League East.

Without Bowa, perhaps the best fielding shortstop in baseball, and a .300 hitter, the Phillies slid to fourth place. Monday night Bowa snapped a 2-2 tie with the Houston Astros with a seventh inning RBI single. Garry Maddox doubled home an insurance run and the Phillies won 4-2.

The 159-pound Bowa not only gives his team a solid physical performance, but he's one of the few firebrands on the three-time East Division champions. He's tough too.

In the fifth inning, Houston pitcher J.R. Richard, who could be the hardest thrower in the National League, tossed a fastball that almost took off one of Bowa's ears.

The little guy got up and then grounded out. But he didn't forget. Richard worked a two-strike, one-ball count on Bowa in the seventh, before the shortstop hit the game winning single.

While Richard told Bowa the pitch slipped, the 237-pound

Houston pitcher had a slightly different version after the game. Someone asked about the pitch.

"Did Randy Lerch's fastball get away from him that hit my man?" Richard asked.

Richard referred to the top of the inning, when a Lerch fastball hit Astros' shortstop Craig Reynolds.

"It was a good game to win, but we can't let down. We have to do it again tomorrow (Tuesday)," Bowa said.

The winning rally started with a walk to Bud Harrelson, who took second on an infield out. Pete Rose walked. Bowa then slashed his single and the Phillies were ahead. Then came Maddox's double which enabled Rose to score.

While Bowa, who had a first inning triple, was providing the key offense, Lerch did an excellent job of pitching his third victory against four losses.

The Astros, who lead the National League West and came here with 10 victories in their last 12 games, took a 1-0 lead in the second. Enos Cabell singled, stole second and scored on Jose Cruz' double.

The Phillies went ahead in the bottom of the inning. Mike Schmidt walked and advanced to third on a single by Bake McBride, hitting in his ninth straight game. McBride stole second, reached third from where he scored on Lerch's sacrifice fly.

Houston tied it in the third on a two out single by Reynolds, a walk, and Jeff Leonard's run scoring single. Then Bowa came through with the winning run

MONTREAL (AP) - Scotty Bowman, who guided the Montreal Canadiens to five National Hockey League titles in eight years, resigned as coach of the club to accept a multi-year contract as general manager of the Buffalo Sabres.

Also at the NHL's June meetings, three members each of the Montreal Canadiens and New York Islanders have been voted to the National Hockey League's All-Star team for 1978-79.

The Islanders named were defenseman Denis Potvin, center Bryan Trottier and left winger Clark Gillies, while the Canadiens selected by voting members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association were goaltender Ken Dryden, defenseman Larry Robinson and right winger Guy Lafleur.

NEW YORK (AP) - National League President Chub Feeny was reported as "resting comfortably and doing very well" after suffering a mild heart attack on Sunday.

The league office announced that Feeny is expected to be removed from intensive care by Wednesday, and should remain in the hospital another week to ten days.

NEW YORK (AP) - Ted Simmons of the St. Louis Cardinals, who hit .450 over the past week, was named the National League Player of the Week for the period of June 4-10.

Simmons went 9-for-20, including four homers and seven runs batted in, as the Cardinals took over first place in the NL East.

CHICAGO (AP) - Fred Martin, pitching coach for the Chicago White Sox, died of cancer at the age of 63.

Martin had been hospitalized off-and-on since spring training. He entered the hospital for the final time last week.

Martin served as pitching coach for the Chicago Cubs from 1961-64 and was a minor league instructor for the Cubs and Detroit Tigers for 14 years.

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Police say the mother of Kansas City Royals catcher John Wathan was stabbed to death with a saber while she was having coffee with another son and two neighbors.

Mary E. Wathan, 65, died Sunday after being struck repeatedly with the saber at the home of the neighbors.

Shortly afterward, Mark Yavorsky, her 35-year-old son from a previous marriage, was arrested, with resistance and booked for investigation of murder.

NEW YORK (AP) - A four-judge panel of the Appellate Division at State Supreme Court unanimously upheld the conviction of Dr. Mark Gerard, the veterinarian found guilty of engineering a betting coup by switching horses in a race at Belmont Park.

Gerard was found guilty last Sept. 21 of substituting a South American stakes winner, Cinzano, for an undistinguished horse, Lebon, and, collecting $78,000 when Cinzano won at long odds.

He was sentenced to one year in prison and fined $1,000 by Judge Raymond Harrington in Nassau County Court.

A's Drop Game To Tigers, 3-1

Steve McCarty wore the green and gold of the Oakland 'A's. But he felt right at home in Detroit's Tiger Stadium.

"I was excited, sure I was excited," McCarty, a native of Troy, Mich., said after making his first major league appearance in Detroit. "It was nice having all the relatives here, but it didn't have any effect on me."

It was Detroit's Lou Whitaker who affected the rookie A's pitcher the most as Detroit trimmed the A's 3-1.

The Detroit second baseman, last year's American League rookie of the year, singled and scored the game's first run in the first inning. He also scored in the fourth when Detroit rallied twice to chase McCarty and hand the Oakland starter his first loss in five decisions.

In other AL games in an abbreviated schedule, Toronto stopped Seattle 2-0, California defeated Cleveland 9-4, Baltimore blanked the Chicago White Sox 6-0 and Boston needed 10 innings to down Kansas City 4-0.

Jack Morris, 4-2, went the distance for Detroit.

4-H Firsthand

By AGNES TAYLOR
VOLUNTEER LEADERS --
THE STRONG 4-H 'LINK'

In Texas, 4-H volunteer leaders "link" young people with program -- and efforts with success. Leaders are asked to do strong things -- to volunteer and to lead youth in learning. They are uniquely strong at both.

Before joining 4-H programs, volunteer leaders must pass two tests: they should like young people and they must be genuinely interested in them.

In Texas today, nearly 23,000 4-H volunteer leaders have passed those tests -- and more than 6,000 are youth themselves. Still, Texas 4-H programs need more volunteer leaders. Choices of programs to lead are limitless -- as are leader styles, schedules and situations.

Leaders tailor their own programs to a great extent. Today's 4-H clubs come in every size and arrangement -- with needs to fit any leader's talents, time and skills. Some larger clubs, require several leaders, and tasks are divided according to leader preferences. Other 4-H clubs have special-interest leaders, while some clubs need resource people who can share expertise in certain subject.

Generally, leaders start off choosing one of three types of jobs: organization, project work or activity work.

ORGANIZATIONAL LEADER -- This leader works with other leaders to coordinate a club's program, enroll members, assist in the overall club program, and counsel officers in their jobs.

PROJECT LEADER -- This leader works in a project area, guiding members in a project, such as foods, pet care, woodworking or some 70 other 4-H projects. Project leaders help members improve their skills and increase their knowledge and interests.

ACTIVITY LEADER -- This leader joins club members in tours, safety talks, games, demonstrations and other activities dictated by members' interests. Also, an activity leader can serve as a liaison person between the club and the community -- on safety campaigns, health programs, special-events window displays, fair exhibits and other community projects.

Resource persons are wanted -- and needed, too. For people who feel their special talents are centered in one area, serving as a resource person can make a great impact in a special way. Resource persons can share a special interest or a hobby with one club or many clubs in their county, or they can work on special events, such as parades or community-service projects.

For more information on becoming a volunteer leader, contact the County Extension Office.

THAT'S ONE WAY to commute to work. With towline in foot and newspaper in hand, champion barefoot waterskier Mike Botti enjoys his morning coffee while slicing at 30 mph across a lake at Ohio's Sea World.

CARBONDALE, Ill. -- Rosalynn Carter has asked delegates of the American Baptist Convention to help create "a more caring society."

Mrs. Carter spoke by telephone hookup from the White House on Thursday to 5,000 delegates attending the biennial conference on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Mrs. Carter accepted the Dahlberg Peace Award on behalf of her husband, who was given the award for his efforts to achieve peace in the Middle East.

NEW YORK (AP) -- A few days before he was named pope, a computer that analyzed the papal candidates reported that Polish Cardinal Karol Wojtyla was closest in thinking and style to the deceased Italian, Pope John Paul, says a noted Vatican observer.

The Rev. Andrew M. Greeley, a sociologist and prominent Roman Catholic commentator, told reporters Thursday that conclave observers, himself included, discounted the computer's findings, thinking the line of Italian succession could be maintained.

Hobbyist Big On Small Objects

AKRON, Ohio (AP) -- Marion Workman lives in a small world. She's big on little things. She makes and collects miniatures, a hobby that is attracting widespread interest in this area.

She got hooked on the miniature life a couple of years ago when she was looking for a change from her sewing and knitting. It wasn't long before her deft fingers and eye for beauty were being used on tiny models of furniture, dollhouse-like settings and accessories.

Her new hobby brought about changes in the Workman household. Her husband built her a workbench in the basement, bought her a jigsaw, lathe and jeweler's saw.

She read books on electrical wiring so she could wire the shadow boxes to give them depth. She uses transformers inserted in the backs of the cabinets. Light bulbs, made from a grain of wheat, end up about the size of a matchhead. She once created a chandelier from fishhooks.

"I learned a lot from reading books and following directions," she said.

She asked her brother, Louis Hubach, to teach her how to solder when she needed to know. He did.

Mrs. Workman said she might spend three months on one project and the cost could run to $200. She buys some of the little things but prefers to make most of the miniatures herself.

"Part of the fun of this hobby is building your own furniture and accessories," she said, pointing to a tiny piano stool.

"The legs are fine but you can see the seat is too large," she said of the stool's proportions. "I'll have to make another seat." She uses a scale of 1 inch to 1 foot but says when she is in doubt she makes the item small.

Then it won't look out of proportion as much as if it were on the large size," she explained. "The way to test a miniature's quality and accuracy is to take a photograph of the finished project. If the picture of it looks like a real room or a piece of furniture or a pair of wall sconces, you've hit it right."

Aside from the challenge, Mrs. Workman said it didn't take a lot of space to exhibit her hobby.

Although at times, when the kitchen table where I do a lot of gluing and painting jobs becomes such a mess, I could scream."

Budget Goals Can Be Short, Medium, Long

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass. (AP) -- If a brand-new stereo system, a trip to Hawaii or paying off the mortgage are your goals, Elizabeth Brothers, director of development at Mount Holyoke College, offers a few tips to help achieve those or other objectives.

Miss Brothers, chief fund-raiser at the women's college since 1973, has developed a financial-planning outreach program called "Mastering Your Money," which she takes to alumnae clubs and organizations across the country.

Her advice to listeners from all income levels: start a budget.

"Think about your budget as you would a business. In business the objective is to make profit. In a budget, the object is to have some money left over to invest," she says.

"Make choices and set priorities," Miss Brothers urges. "Very few people can have everything they want, so decide what's most important, and what you really want to assume responsibility for."

Emily Post, author of "Etiquette," wrote "The Personality of a House," a book on interior decoration, in 1930.

The Profit System

Some very loud voices, including that of the President of the United States, are blaming our country's inflation on "high profits."

The oil companies undo billions of dollars worth of annual advertising with quarterly "profits statements" left unexplained.

To hear only that such-and-such an oil company increased its profits by 87 percent does indeed sound like a rip-off.

Immediately, the reader or listener equates somebody else's profits with the reason he has to pay more for gasoline.

Corporate profits, which motivated our nation to become the powerhouse of this planet, are monies the corporation mostly uses to pay for new plants, new equipment, new research for new products to create more jobs and more dividends and ultimately more dollars in more pockets.

Former Treasury Secretary William Simon decries the prevalent practice of government officials in shifting the blame for inflation from where it belongs: the extravagance of government.

Just a few months ago White House economists predicted precisely the quarterly earnings now being announced, stating that this would be adequate to sustain ongoing business activity.

Yet as these corporate earnings are announced, the White House indignantly denounces them as evil.

President Carter, before the National Academy of Sciences, lambasted oil company profits as a "charade," a "kickback." He was quoted widely.

He was not applauded by the Ph.D.'s present. They are entirely aware that the word "profits" does not represent "gravy."

"Profits" are the monies oil companies must take in to keep up with inflation; to drill deeper holes costing more with labor costing more, and with equipment costing more dollars that are worth less—because of government extravagance.

The budget for our government's Department of Energy is larger than the incomes of all of our nation's major oil companies combined!

And the DOE produces nothing!

President Carter says the government will take away from oil companies what he calls their "excessive profits."

That will be just dandy! In the hands of bureaucrats that money will go nowhere.

But in the treasuries of American oil companies the money will finance increased exploration, discovery and production.

Mr. Simon says, "It is no happenstance that American industries, starved for profits, have been such an unattractive investment... that many Americans have been putting their money instead in gold and antiques and art and such... where their money does little or nothing to create new products, new factories, new jobs."

A man with a shovel was grateful once for a dollar a day. A man with a Caterpillar tractor can justify $15 an hour.

The difference between the shovel and the "cat" requires that somebody invest money.

That money comes from two sources: corporate profits which we have already seen fit to tax twice and private savings on which we tax the interest.

Profit is the seed we need to plant to produce tractors and automobiles and jet planes and penicillin.

Teacher of Elderly Finds Eager Pupils

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — As a teacher, Jim Walter couldn't have it any better.

The students dress up for his lectures, seldom question his statements, provide him with between-class snacks and often compliment him.

At the end of the class comes the most startling gesture — applause.

"Can you believe it? Applause! It really threw me the first time it happened," Walter said.

But it happens at Trinity Retirement Home where Walter teaches an introductory course in humanities once a week.

Walter, 33, is less than half the age of his youngest student. His oldest student is 95.

The class is part of Sinclair Community College's effort to serve older citizens who can attend state institutions tuition-free after they reach 60.

There are 28 students in Walter's class and attendance is high despite some of the ailments that afflict the elderly residents.

It doesn't bother Edna von Bargen that her eyesight is failing. Nor does it bother her that she is beginning college at the age of 95. What matters to her is that she's learning.

Miss von Bargen, who graduated from high school in 1902 and taught school for 36 years with no college training, said: "People come to visit me from my hometown and wonder why I'm going to college now."

"I'm basically a nosy person so I want to know more. I'm learning a lot in this course."

"They ask me, 'How can you go to school if you can't see?' I tell them, 'I can see through my ears.' I'm enjoying everything I've heard."

For some students, such as Elnora Dunlap, the course is a trip down memory lane. She and her husband visited Rome and Florence some years ago and saw the Renaissance paintings being talked about in her class.

"I just eat this stuff up," Mrs. Dunlap said. "It's like I'm in Italy all over again."

Lawmakers Left RN's In Legal Jeopardy

Possible illegal practices of nursing are now going on in about 2,000 private and public clinics in Texas because of a 1978 attorney general's opinion, said Ouida J. Weaver, TNA president.

The Legislature was asked to correct the situation, by giving registered nurses certain authority in treating patients and administering medicines. However, Mrs. Weaver said, there was strong opposition from the Texas Medical Association, and the measure failed in the Senate.

"This resolution is very good, but long range," Mrs. Weaver said. "It does not address the immediate problem of availability of health services for consumers nor does it provide registered nurses any measure of direction nor protection for the next two years."

Mrs. Weaver said the TNA is asking its members:

- To examine nursing under a physician's standing orders and determine if the medical tasks being delegated are legal or illegal within the attorney general's opinion.
- To make sure standing orders were signed by a licensed physician recently and "if medications are involved, that the order is for the individual patients."

Mrs. Weaver said the order particularly will affect nurses in public health, baby clinics, family planning clinics, industrial clinics and other private clinics.

"A registered nurse who performs without these safeguards may well jeopardize his or her professional license, personal liability and be charged with practicing medicine," Mrs. Weaver said.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN—State Capitol halls that were crowded just one week ago are quiet now that the 66th Texas Legislature has packed up and gone home, but speculation continues as to just when Governor Bill Clements will call lawmakers back for a special session.

His timing will depend heavily upon the subjects he wants included in the special session. To date he has already told legislators he may want them to consider the topics of initiative and referendum, a regional presidential primary and wiretapping. More may be added.

Although one guess is as good as another, many old-timers think that if Clements decides to call a session strictly for initiative and referendum and wiretapping, he may wait until sometime just before the 1980 primaries so that voters will have the results of that session fresh on their minds as they go to the polls.

However, Clements last week expressed strong interest in a proposed multi-state presidential primary and said he might be persuaded to include the proposal in the upcoming special session, whenever it may be.

The regional primary concept is also being advanced by Speaker of the House Bill Clayton, who said it would give Texas and neighboring states a collective regional voice through simultaneous presidential preference primaries, possibly in March.

Clayton appeared with Clements at a press conference last week to say he has been working with legislators from Oklahoma, Arkansas, New Mexico and Georgia, but that the concept "depends on a lot of legwork" to install it in time.

Should the states agree to hold a regional primary, Clements may move to call a special session as early as late summer or early fall in order to set up the primary.

The regional primary would have the effect of spotlighting Southern and Southwestern issues early in the presidential race, rather than the traditionally first-in-the-nation New Hampshire primary.

Whatever the outcome of Clayton's efforts, Clements has further clouded the special session crystal ball by stating there is no doubt in his mind that Texas Republicans will hold a presidential primary and called on Democrats to do the same.

Meanwhile, with lawmakers out of town for awhile, the attention turned to Clements as he began to sign bills into law.

One of his first actions last week was sign into effect the "Tax Relief Amendment" approved by voters in November 1978.

One immediate provision is that each residence homestead will be exempt from $5,000 in school district taxes. Because the act is retroactive to January, 1979, the exemption will be on the 1979 tax notices most taxpayers will receive in October.

Persons older than 65 and disabled taxpayers will be eligible for another $10,000 exemption on homestead property. School taxes on a home will be frozen for a person's lifetime once he or she qualifies for a senior citizen exemption.

Also effective immediately are all non-business vehicles owned by a family from state, county, city and school district property taxes.

Something farmers and ranchers have been waiting for is a new system to appraise farm, ranch, and timber land. Such land will be taxed on its ability to produce cash crops, rather than market value, beginning this year, unless local taxing agencies vote before July 15 to postpone the start of the new evaluation methods until the 1980 tax year.

Clements also signed into law a bill making Texas Eastern University at Tyler part of the University of Texas system and a bill expanding the troubled State Commission on the Blind from six to nine members with a gubernatorially-appointed chairman. At the same time, he indicated he may use new powers under another law to put that agency into temporary conservatorship because of its money management problems.

drilling and mass transit.

The governor, a driller himself, said he has no evidence that major oil companies are holding back supplies of gasoline.

Other Texas officials who commented in Washington, DC or in Austin on the energy situation were Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Attorney General Mark White, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, Railroad Commission chairman John H. Poerner and his fellow commissioner Mack Wallace.

Both Hobby and Armstrong criticized President Carter's proposed windfall profits tax on oil companies, Hobby testifying before a U.S. House of Representatives energy subcommittee. Hobby called the tax "misguided" and said it would "create the worst of both worlds" by driving up fuel prices and stifling exploration. Wallace, who accompanied Hobby, generally supported the lieutenant governor's views.

In Austin, Armstrong said the windfall profits tax, if implemented, would deprive Texas schools and universities of some $245 million in oil royalties during the next five years unless states were exempted. "It simply does not make sense to equate a state performing governmental service with a corporation. Every dollar we get from oil royalties will go to education, not into someone's pocket," Armstrong said.

Attorney General White, testifying before a Senate subcommittee considering deregulation of railroad rate-making procedures, said deregulation would drive up the cost of transporting coal into Texas from Western states and effect the rest of the nation as well. White said "Railroads use their monopoly power to claim the right to make captive Texas electricity consumers finance other traffic and generate a bonanza for their stockholders."

But on an energy up-beat note, Poerner told a meeting of the Texas Gas Association that the state's natural gas industry is the strongest it's ever been, because of a decision to keep prime fuel in Texas rather than sending it to other states. "As Texans, it's ours. We paid to develop it. Our needs must come before the needs of other states."

Marine Lance Corporal Roy Rolha, son of Hortence C. Trevino of Route 1, Ave. G., has been promoted to his present rank while serving with the 2nd Marine Division, Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

He joined the Marine Corps in March, 1976.

LILLIAN J. MARTIN
SAN ANTONIO — The daughter of a Hereford resident has been selected to receive specialized instruction after completing Air Force basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Airman Lillian J. Martin, daughter of Mrs. Barbara J.

Martin of 105 Ave. F, studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations. Completion of this training earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman now goes to Keesler AFB, Miss., to attend the Air Training Command's communications systems operator course.

Airman Martin is a 1975 graduate of Hereford High School. Her father, Charlie C. Martin, resides in New Smyrna Beach, Fla.

DAVID SOBER
Marine Private David L. Sober, foster son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Draper of Route 3, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

During the nine-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

He joined the Marine Corps in September 1978.

GILBERT ALANIZ
KAPAUN, Germany — Sergeant Gilbert Alaniz Jr., son of Gilbert Alaniz Sr. of 601 Austin St., recently participated in a Central Treaty organization (CENTO) maritime exercise dubbed "Midlink."

Sergeant Alaniz is a telephone switching equipment specialist at Kapaun Air Station, Germany, with the European Communications Area, a part of the Air Force Communications Service.

According to CENTO officials, the exercise was designed to test the organization's maritime defense position, including air operations.

The sergeant is a 1969 graduate of Hereford High School.

FLOYD BROWN
Marine Private First Class Floyd E. Brown, son of Lester and Alice Brown of 330 Miller St., has been meritoriously promoted to his present rank upon graduation from recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

He received the early promotion for his superior performance during all phases of the ten and one-half-week training cycle, which emphasized physical conditioning, self-discipline and teamwork.

A 1978 graduate of Hereford High School, he joined the Marine corps in August 1978.
