Despite a wave of near terror in the wake of the Tylenol scare and similiar incidents across the nation, children in the Hereford area are not being discouraged to trick-or-treat this coming Halloween night, Sunday.

Growing concern in the wake of several deaths in the Chicago area due to tampered-with Tylenol capsules, and publicized incidents of similiar contamination of products such as eyedrops and mouthwash, has prompted some communities across the nation to ban trick-or-treating or at least urge parents to keep their little ghosts and goblins at home this Halloween

City officials in Palmer, Mass. unanimously voted last week to ban the traditional trick-or-treating in that community, citing the deaths of seven persons in Chicago and isolated cases of acid or poison in mouthwash and eyedrops in several states, including California, Florida, Ohio, and Colorado.

Other Massachussetts communities which have banned trick-or-treating include Methuen, Dudley, Holland, and Fitchburg. In addition, officials in Hull ordered a 6 p.m. curfew on trickor-treaters, and Weymouth imposed a 5-8 limit on the activity.

According to an Associated Press survey late last week dozens of other communities are strongly suggesting that parents keep their children off

Locally, parents will get help in doing just that through the KPAN Halloween Party, a promotion staged by the local radio station through the cooperation of the city, school district, and the police department.

The promotion calls for local goblins to do their trick-or-treating

County will seek opinion of voters

BY O.G NIEMAN Publisher-Editor

Deaf Smith County Commissioners this morning suspended discussions on an architectural contract for the proposed Special Events Center until voters have an opportunity to express their views on the matter.

Commissioners yesterday were unsatisfied with several items of the contract, especially what they considered a "committment to call a bond election and actively support the passage of the issue," said commissioner Bill Bradly.

On a motion made by Bruce Coleman and seconded by James Voyles, commissioners voted unanimously to publish a questionnaire in the Hereford Brand, asking voters to indicate a "yes" or "no" opinion on the county pursuing its part in the SEC project and calling a bond election on the proposal.

Commissioners will state in the questionnaire survey that they neither support or oppose the project and the bond issue it would require, according to Austin Rose.

Voters will be asked to sign their name and voter registration number on the forms and mail them to the county judge's office within the next two weeks.

Previous to that motion, Bradly had made a motion that the commissioners court "terminate any and all negotiations and discussions on the SEC project." The motion died for the lack of a second.

County Judge Glen Nelson was out of town.

Economists see bigger deficit for '83

By ROBERT FURLOW Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) -Though it's a record, by far, the government's $110.7 billion deficit for fiscal 1982 is just a temporary stop on the way to an even greater budget shortfall, officials

Estimates vary widely on how high the deficit might rise in fiscal 1983, the year for. which President Reagan once promised a balanced budget. But none calls for a lessening of red ink, let alone an end to the deficit spending that now has reached 13 years in a row.

As expected, the Treasury Department said Tuesday the budget shortfall for fiscal 1982, which ended Sept. 30, far surpassed the old record of $66.4 billion set in 1976.

of $115 billion, the second record in as many years. Private economists are talking in even larger numbers, some in the range of $150 billion or more.

Two years ago, Reagan, then a presidential candidate, said his economic program "will give us a balanced budget by 1983, and possibly by 1982." And he said after taking office last year that "if we try for '83, we're sure to get it by '84."

However, such talk has not been heard since the recession began last year. The official administration estimate is that the deficit will still be as high as $93 billion in 1984, but virtually all budget experts - including the administration's own when speaking privately

Clements campaign spending $11 million

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Bill Clements has outspent Democratic challenger Mark White by a more than two-to-one margin, pouring a record-setting $11.4 million into an effort to keep his job as Texas' only Republican governor in over a century.

"The people of Texas are not going to sell Bill Clements the governorship," White said in a formal statement Tues-

A Clements backer said the governor attracted more than 52,000 individual contributions at a $191 per donor "No candidate in any race has ever received this degree of broad-based support from the people of Texas," said Jim Francis, Clements' campaign manager. The campaign financing reports filed Tuesday left no doubt that Clements, who spent about $8 million to get the job in 1978, is the champion fund-raiser. Clements has raised $11.8 million, including a $1.9 million loan he personally guaranteed.

White's report showed $5.2 million spent, compared to Clements' $11.4 million. The Democratic challenger has raised $6.4 million, including a $1.4 million loan during the reporting period that ended Saturday.

'Bill Clements has said all along that he'll spend whatever it takes to get re-elected, and the unprecedented amounts of money he has reported demonstrate that he intends to do exactly that," said White.

The Tuesday reports were the last glimpse at campaign money until after the Nov. 2 election.

In the lieutenant governor's race, incumbent Democrat Bill Hobby reported $4.1 million raised and about the same spent. Republican George Strake has raised $2.4

School board waiting, too

Like the city and county, the Hereford Independent School board shyed away from the hiring of architects for the proposed special events center after a two hour special meeting Tuesday afternoon and decided to consider the contract offered by Pierce, Goodwin and Alexander after attorneys had viewed the paper.

Allen Pierce and Steve Peters, from the firm, reviewed the contract and answered the board's questions, many which were also asked at city and county meetings.

School leaders were concerned with the consequences of one entity passing a bond issue and the school's liability to the company in that event, or if the other entities decided not to call an election.

Tom Simons said he was reticent for an immediate vote because a location for any or all of the proposed buildings had not been chosen. Peters told the board a location would be part of his firm's counsel.

The board questioned what a "best effort" would mean, as set in the contract as a requirement for each entity to promote the complex. Attorneys Ernest Langley

Chrysler workers vote down strike

DETROIT (AP) -Chrysler Corp. workers who voted overwhelmingly against striking for an immediate pay raise should "do better in January" at the bargaining table, says the head of the United Auto Workers.

"It was the correct decision given all the circumstances," said UAW President Douglas A. Fraser after rank-and-file workers voted Tuesday by more than a 2-1 margin against hitting picket lines during the holiday season.

Union leaders called the one-day referendum after

Chrysler workers overwhelmingly rejected a proposed contract, negotiated in September, that included no immediate wage increase, although it was the first contract in three years that did not ask workers for conces-

Official results of the referendum, which asked autoworkers to choose between striking and working under terms of a contract that expired Sept. 15, were 25,056 to 11,589 against a strike, or 68.4 percent to 31.6 percent, the UAW said.

separate government report that said consumer prices, held down by declining mortgage rates, inched ahead at an annual rate of just 2.1 percent in September. The Labor Department report said inflation was run- Treasury secretary, Donald ning at an annual rate of 4.8 percent in the first nine months of the year, leading Reagan to say he had reduced it "back to where it was in January of 1977, when Gerald Ford left office" and that the economy was braced for recovery from the recession.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., said simply, "Of course prices are not rising as fast as they were; no one is buying anything."

A separate Labor Department report Tuesday said that Americans' inflationadjusted average weekly earnings declined 0.3 percent in September, the same as in August. It said those earnings in September were 0.9 percent below September 1981.

Some economists, meanwhile, say federal borrowing to finance the huge federal deficits could crowd private borrowers out of money markets, thereby pushing up interest rates. But Reagan's T. Regan, has said that won't happen because Reagan taxrate cuts will encourage Americans to put more money in savings accounts, thereby increasing lenders' pool of available money. Details of Tuesday's report on fiscal 1982 said:

-The government spent $728.42 billion, up $71.22 billion, or 10.8 percent from fiscal 1981.

-Revenue from taxes and fees, however, was only $617.77 billion, up $18.5

billion, or 3.1 percent. At the start of the fiscal year, the administration had estimated a deficit of $43.1 billion, down substantially from the $57.9 billion shortfall of 1981. However, as the year

Chinese population over billion mark

PEKING (AP) - China announced today that its mainland population is 1,008,175,288 - the result of a census count that took nearly four months and involved more workers than it took to build the Great Wall.

No other country on earth has anything approaching 1 billion inhabitants. India, the world's second most populous nation, has an estimated 700 million residents.

Initial results of the first national census since 1964, released by the official Xinhua news agency, said the population increased by more than 313 million, or 45.1 percent, in 18 years. But foreign population experts said the figures indicate China is making progress in controlling the birth rate, and population growth currently is 1.4 percent a year.

Reflecting the official policy of considering Taiwan. Hong Kong and the Portuguese-administered colony of Macao as parts of China, the census report included 23,707,223 people it said live in those places, for a total of 1,031,882,511 people. Xinhua said the figures were human-calculated and will be verified by computer for the first time in Chinese history. But it said the results were estimated to be accurate to within 1.5 million.

More than 5 million census takers and supervisers were involved in the count, some of them traveling by horse, donkey or camel in remote areas of Tibet, Xinjiang and Mongolia. The census staff was estimated at 12 times the number drafted by an emperor 2,000 years ago to build China's Great Wall.

The count started July 1 in most parts of China, but was launched a month earlier in remote areas.

The government has said it will use the data to plan for the future and help judge the (See CHINA, Page 2A) and the recession — wore on, the estimate was raised to $98.6 billion last January, then to $100.5 billion in April and finally to $108.9 billion in August.

Government and private economists generally agree that one big reason for the deficit jump was the recession. Economic downturns tend to mean lower government income with tax revenue falling as business activity slows down and people lose jobs. At the same time, spending for such categories as unemployment benefits rises. The administration has tried to blame the recession - as well as bad deficit numbers - on Democratic predecessors. Critics say the Reagan-

Former Texas Secretary of State George Strake, now a candidate for the office of lieutenant governor, will meet with supporters and friends at a coffee at the Hereford State Bank Community Room at 9:40 a.m. Friday.

Arraignment set for defendant

HOUSTON (AP) - A U.S. Magistrate has scheduled an arraignment today for a woman once promised immunity from prosecution on charges accusing her of conspiring to extort $15 million from Gulf Oil Chemical Co.

Jill Renee Bird, one of five persons indicted by grand jurors investigating a bomb-extortion scheme, will appear today before U.S. Magistrate Calvin Botley.

The magistrate also scheduled a Nov. 1 arraignment for Timothy K. Justice, 30, the man the FBI said admitted planting five bombs inside Gulf's Cedar Bayou plant about 30 miles east of here.

Also indicted last Friday were John Marvin McBride, 46, Theodore Duane McKinney, 45 and Michael Allen Worth, 34, all of Durango, Colo.

Ms. Bird, 34, originally was promised immunity by federal officials in exchange for McBride's cooperation in locating bombs inside the plant. The immunity was withdrawn, federal prosecutors said, because the agreement was made under duress and McBride did not fulfill his part of the bargain.

Ms. Bird remained jailed Tuesday under $200,000 bond. The other four defendants remained jailed under $1 million bonds each.

If convicted, the defendants could be sentenced to up to 100 years in

The FBI said Justice told authorities he planted the bombs inside the Gulf plant. One of the bombs exploded harmlessly as authorities tried to defuse it.

It took attorneys seven days to pick the eight men and four women who will decide if Brown acted in selfdefense when he said he drowned Warden Wallace M. Pack in a ditch at a prison farm on April 4, 1981.

Brown, whose first trial ended with a hung jury voting 10-2 for acquittal, also is charged with murder in the shooting death of Prison Farm Manager Billy Max Moore.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) -Flames reached as high as 50 feet before a fire near the north gate of the Texaco refinery was contained early today by company firefighters, a company spokesman said.

The blaze broke out in charging equipment connected to a catalytic processing unit that exploded and killed five workmen Oct. 13, officials said.

No injuries were reported in the latest fire, which broke out about 7 p.m. Tuesday, according to Texaco spokesman Charles Rentz.

"The fire is contained in one area of the unit," Rentz said. "Since the refinery has been operating at reduced capacity, it is unlikely that any Texaco customers will be affected."

The unit feeds three catalytic units around it, including the one that exploded earlier this month, the spokesman said.

Firefighters doused the flames with water, while workers shut off crude oil to starve the blaze, Rentz said.

Rentz said the unit had only a small crew, but added he could not determine the exact number of workers present when the fire broke out.

Eight other workers were injured in the Oct. 13 accident when a 48-inch pipeline spewed hot powder.

Family members of three of the workers killed in the accident have filed a $45 million wrongful death suit against Texaco.

Excedrin recall in Colorado

By The Associated Press

The makers of Excedrin ordered their capsules off store shelves in Colorado after one man was poisoned, and reports of product tampering - ranging from fruit to laxatives - spread across the nation in what a federal official called "a wave of 'me-too' crimes."

Consumers scrutinized containers of cold medicines and pain relievers for signs of foul play, and officials in three states warned Tuesday that any Halloween trick-ortreating should be done with caution.

'None has been found to be the result of problems or contamination at the manufacturers' plants, so we must conclude at this time that we are seeing a wave of 'me-too' crimes."

In Florida, a Juno Beach policeman was hospitalized

Tuesday after he began vomiting within seconds of drinking orange juice from a carton, police said. Officer Harry Browning, 27, was resting comfortably in Palm Beach Gardens Community Hospital today.

"He turned colors right before my eyes," said police Chief Robert DiSavino. The juice had been bought at a convenience store.

The county medical examiner's officer said the carton could have been injected with a product such as insecticide.

In Colorado, officials determined that another resident who became ill after taking Excedrin was not poisoned. Emily Jurick apparently just had the flu, said Dr. Barry Rumack of the Rocky Mountain Poison Control Center.

Also Tuesday, officials at Stanley Aviation Co. in Aurora discovered a bottle of mercuric chloride was missing from the company's plant, personnel manager Gordon Shaffer said. But the disappearance had no known link with the Sinkovic case. said Aurora police spokesman Mike Sellman. Mercuric chloride is used in fertilizers and insecticides.

The substance was found in 10 capsules turned in by Sinkovic.

In Florida's Highlands County, sheriff's officials advised area stores Tuesday to remove some fruit punch from their shelves after an Avon Park resident suffered minor mouth burns when she drank from a bottle of the beverage.

"Possibly the bottle was contaminated after it left the store," Sgt. John King said. The bottle, its contents smelling of acetone, was being sent to a state lab for testing, he said.

Also in Florida, as many as 60 containers of powdered laxative were found to have been tampered with. No illnesses were reported, but authorities were checking store shelves for suspect containers.

Since the Chicago deaths, reports of contaminated eye drops, nasal sprays or mouthwash have been reported in several states including California and Texas.

In Ephrata, Wash., store owners returned Dristan capsules to the shelves Tuesday after tests on a suspicious bottle - which contained a scratched, misaligned capsule - proved negative, police said.

In Cape Cod, Mass., painreliever bottles were taken from the shelves of one store and mixed nuts were taken from another after they appeared to have been tampered with.

In the pain-reliever bottle, one capsule appeared "pinched," police said. The mixednuts jar, which had an unbroken plastic lid, contained a pill similar in color to a peanut, "indicating it spent a lot of time in the peanut jar," Detective James Lino said.

Lino said a Falmouth, Mass., pharmacist identified the pill as a pain-reliever containing codeine. He said itwas being tested by the state health department.

In Minneapolis, 14-year-old Marlon Barrow drank from a carton of milk containing sodium hydroxide, a caustic chemical used in industrial cleaners, but was not seriously injured, said Dr. Gary Fifield of the Hennepin County Medical Center.

The pledge calls for the child to do their door-to-door canvassing early, and in their own neighborhood, do no vandalism or mischief, and to be off the streets by 8 p.m.

In addition to the distribution of the cards at the schools, preschoolers may get into the spirit of things by picking up a card at Caryn's.

Prizes are given away during a twohour show by the station calling phone numbers printed on the registration cards by the entrants. "If we get an answer from the person whose card we have drawn we feel that they have honored their pledge and they win the particular prize available at that time," Peeler explained. "If we don't get an answer we figure they haven't honored their pledge, and we draw another card."

In addition to supporting the on-theair promotion, the city police department urges certain precautions according to Lt. Paul Ramirez. "We do have a fine X-ray machine, but you have to develop film for each picture taken, and the cost would just be too prohibitive for us to do that," Bullard said.

He added that the portable machine to be used by High Plains displays an image on a screen for immediate viewing of the item being x-rayed.

Elsewhere, Pittsburgh police are expanding a Halloween candy check program that has been in existence three years. Youngsters are urged to take suspicious candy to their neighborhood precinct station where police and health department officials can inspect it.

Officials in Lexington, Ky. are asking that trick-or-treating be limited to the early evening hours of Saturday, Oct. 30. Police there have also advised children to check the wrappers of commercial treats for signs of tampering.

Closer to home, the Texas Safety Association (TSA) has issued the following safety tips for parents this Halloween:

1. When young children go "trick or treating," they should be accompanied by parents, older brothers or sisters, or other responsible adults. 2. Halloween visits for very small children should be confined to the neighborhood and should be made during afternoon and early evening

3. Costumes should be made of lightcolored or reflectorized, flameretardant material that is short enough to avoid tripping the child. 4. Make-up rather than commercial

In addition, the TSA recommends that motorists consider the following safety tips on this enchanted evening:

1. Motorists should drive slowly and with extreme caution through neighborhood streets. At any moment, a carefree youngster can dart out into the street.

2. Be careful when backing cars out of driveways or turning into streets in residential areas.

Texas Department of Public Safety, Region 5 Commander Maj. C.W. Bell adds that "motorists and parents need to take precautions to protect children and prevent disasters this Halloween."

Maj. Bell also suggests a small flashlight be carried by children to serve as a warning to motorists, and that parents should not permit youngsters to carry Jack-O-Lanterns with lighted candles.

. The veteran trooper added that a pedestrian's chance of getting killed or injured are increased by 800 percent at night.

"If parents and motorists join together and think of children's safety, Halloween 1982 can be a safe and enjoyable evening for everyone," he concluded.

DETROIT (AP) - When Santa Claus waves to children Thanksgiving Day from a balcony outside the J.L. Hudson Co. store in downtown Detroit, he'll be waving goodbye.

His appearance traditionally climaxes the nation's oldest Turkey Day parade, which annually attracts an estimated half-million people. And although it's likely Santa and the crowds will return for the 57th edition of the parade next year, Hudson's won't.

The "Big Store" - with floor space exceeded only by Macy's in New York - is closing in January, leaving the downtown area of the nation's sixth-largest city without a major department store.

Hudson's, a Detroit institution for more than 100 years, is blaming a 20-year sales decline at its downtown store for the decision. The firm has said it would concentrate on more profitable suburban stores.

"The size of the building ... and its age make it an expensive and inefficient arena to do business in," Hudson's Chairman P. Gerald Mills said when the closing was announced in July. "Consumers ... prefer a multi-faceted shopping environment with several major anchor stores, a variety of speciality shops and nearby free parking."

Since then, he has declined to be interviewed about the fate of the store.

Sales at the downtown store have been falling steadily since 1953, from a peak of $153 million to $45 million in 1981, according to a confidential company memo obtained by the Detroit Free Press.

Hudson's was the nation's first major retailer to invest in the expanding and more affluent suburbs. In 1954, the family-owned company built what then was America's largest regional shopping

"Hudson's moved aggressively to the suburbs because that's where their market went. ... It's basic economics," says Monroe Greenstein, senior analyst at Bear Stearns Co. in New Detroit had a predominantly white population of 1.8 million in 1950. Now the recession-wracked city has a population of 1.2 million, 63 percent black, according to the latest census, and an unemployment rate of more than 18 percent. The median income of a city resident stands at $17,033, "a significant decline" of $2,842 from 1969, says Gordon Lester of the U.S. Census Bureau.

Detroit city officials still are trying to reverse the decision by Hudson's, which merged in 1969 with Dayton Corp. to form Dayton Hudson Corp., a nationwide retailer based in Minneapolis.

But as Greenstein says, "In business, money comes first. Tradition second."

Tradition always was big at the family-owned Hudson's, "certainly one of the leading department stores in the U.S.," says author Robert Hendrickson, who wrote "The Grand Emporiums," a book about the nation's great department stores. "You won't see another like it," he

The main floor at Hudson's downtown is a throwback to another era. High ceilings. Marble floors. Chandeliers. Lush red carpets. Elegance - from the perfume counter to the brass drinking fountains. A browser's paradise.

The mezzanine is a maze of specialty stores in a nostalgic atmosphere: a flower shop, shoe repair, a counter for stamp and coin collectors and a card shop. Then there was the American flag — 104 feet by 205 feet of red, white and blue cloth unfurled outside the building on Flag Day.

McCabe's hopes lie in the now-dormant Cadillac Square Retail Project. The empty block-size parcel of land in the heart of downtown was the site of the old Kern's store and was envisioned years ago as a place where Hudson's eventually could relocate.

Mills, however, has said he sees little hope for the project "in the near future."

A FIGHT OVER FEES

There are AUSTIN prices in this state that have not gone up since 1935. They are fees for liquor licenses, and we think it's high time they caught up with inflation and with the problems liquor causes.

These problems - alcoholism, broken homes, crime - cost all of us. The people who make alcohol, sell it and buy it need to pick up their part of the tab. Of course, they won't want to, and they'll fight to keep from having to give up their privileged

A few examples: a package store permit for a small town costs $5 a year, the same as it cost 47 years ago. In a large city, the permit costs a whopping $12.50. A winery permit costs $50 and a wine and beer retailer's permit costs $30 a year. Contrast these with other professions. A master plumber pays $50 a year.

Bar dues for lawyers start out at $35 for new lawyers and go up to $120 a year. Liquor license fees generate about $10 million a year. If we simply adjusted these license fees to reflect inflation, without a real raise at all, we could raise an extra $21 million. Best of all, this money would be paid entirely by those who choose to buy

These days, we are all beginning to realize the costs involved with the alcohol

What do you, buy that costs the same as it cost in 1935? Can't think of any-trade. There are more than 664,650 Texans who have a drinking problem. Their problem is our problem, too. It results in loss of productivity on the job, more absenteeism from work plus health care and insurance costs. Half of all murders and one-third of all suicides are related to alcohol. None of this includes the mental and spiritual pain of watching a loved one suffer from alcohol addiction.

Despite all the problems alcohol causes, the liquor industry is firm against a bill we drafted to adjust their fees for inflation. We plan to use the revenue the adjustment would generate to help alcoholics, but the liquor industry seems to be more interested in profit than in undoing damage caused by their products.

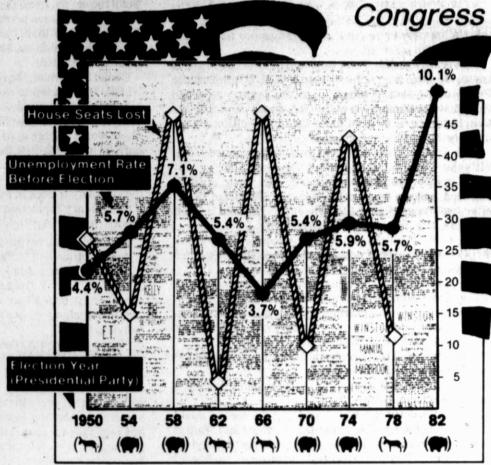

If we could adjust these fees for inflation, we would put the money in a dedicated fund for 24-hour alcoholism treatment and rehabilitation centers, in the Panhandle and elsewhere in Texas. The centers would be open all the time, not only for the alcoholics, but for the wives and children of alcoholics to have a safe place to go. While $21 million would only be a drop in the bucket, it would

The latest unemployment figures — 10.1 percent of the labor force out of work, the peak rate since the Depression - have been taken as bad news for the administration and worse for Republican congressional candidates forced to run on its record But the history of mid-term elections shows no direct correlation between unemployment rates (marked on the graph) and House seats lost by an administration party (indicated by scale to right of graph). When the rate immediately before the election was lowest (3.7 percent) in 1966, the Democrats lost 47 seats, tying the Republicans of 1958, when the rate was almost double. With the rates almost the same in 1974 and 1978, the Republicans dropped 43 seats in the first year and the Democrats only 12 in the second.

Garvey still feels season will be played in entirety

NEW YORK (AP) - With more than one-third of the season wiped out, the National Football League is contemplating playing fewer than 12 games per team if the players strike is settled:

"Several owners feel that we would have to have 13 or 12 games to have a credible season," NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Tuesday. "I'm not saying we would close down the season if we were faced with playing fewer than 12 games. But I don't make the final decision. That's up to the Management Council."

Jack Donlan, executive director of the council, said,

"It's clear we're not going to play 16 games." The league announced that for the sixth straight weekend, games would not be played. The strike began after two weeks of play and only eight weekends are left under the original regular-season schedule.

But, in Washington, Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said he feels the season will be played in its entirety.

"No games have been canceled," Garvey said. "No season ticket money has been returned and every indication we have from the management people we have contacted is that they fully expect to play all the games, and that includes delaying the Super Bowl."

The Super Bowl is scheduled to be held Jan. 30, 1983, at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif.

'We might have to play less," Rozelle said. "It's not a matter of backing down. "I am not saying, nor have I said that the season would be canceled if we got past that point (12 games). But at that point it becomes important as to who you're playing. You've got to have a reasonable number of divisional

"If you go below that, it could be pretty chaotic. The fans will say you haven't got true divisional champions." Jim Miller, the council's public relations director, said,

'We're getting very, very close to the deadline for a competitive season. We don't want to cancel, we want to play.

But if the season trickles away, it's beyond our control." Garvey and union president Gene Upshaw spent part of Tuesday with William Lubbers, general council of the National Labor Relations Board, discussing the status of the stalled negotiations.

Daniel Silverman, the New York regional director of the NLRB, is expected to decide today whether to act on a recommendation made last week by Lubbers to issue a complaint against the Management Council. The complaint would charge in part that the league has refused to bargain in good faith with the union.

Lubbers had not announced late Tuesday if he will pursue a parallel action: to ask the full five-member board for authority to seek in federal district court in New York a preliminary injunction that would require the Management Council to negotiate wages with the union.

Meanwhile, Garvey said he expects management to put a "take-it-or-leave-it" offer on the table Friday. The new plan actually was advanced by Al Davis, general partner of the Los Angeles Raiders, two weeks ago. It calls for a 20 percent across-the-board salary increase and allows players to negotiate with teams on an individual basis.

"There is a growing feeling among our people the NFL is trying to back into the United States Football League's season to make it difficult if not impossible for them to get off the ground," Garvey said. "They can kill two birds with one stone: scare the union and maybe get a long term agreement, play the games into January and February, and then make it impossible for the USFL to pick up any free agents: NFL veterans who otherwise who would have become free agents on Feb. 1."

Rozelle joked about playing at the same time as the new league, which will begin its initial season in March.

"If we play games in January and February, then we don't play the Super Bowl until March, and that's when the USFL season starts, and then we've got another lawsuit on our hands," he said with a laugh

MILWAUKEE (AP) -When Harry Dalton called Harvey Kuenn in Stockton, Calif., last June, he had no idea he was about to hire the 1982 American League Manager of the Year.

"I think it's a great thrill. It's another thing I never expected to happen to me," Kuenn said of the award, announced Tuesday by The Associated Press.

The Milwaukee Brewers were 23-24, seven games out of first place and sinking in the AL East, when Dalton, the general manager, fired Manager Buck Rodgers and tabbed Kuenn to succeed him June 2.

The Brewers, tense and grumbling under Rodgers, relaxed under Kuenn, the club's long-time batting coach, and promptly when on a hitting tear that earned them the tag of "Harvey's Wallbangers."

Herd, Plainview favored

It's down to the nitty gritty in District 3-5A, and if this week's Harris Rating System poll is correct there'll be a three-way tie for first place after the dust settles Friday.

The Harris poll rates Plainview at three-point pick over Monterey, in a game slated for Lubbock Thursday, and Hereford a 14-point pick over Amarillo High, in a game set for Hereford Friday.

If those picks are correct, Plainview, Monterey and Hereford will boast identical 6-1 district records after this weekend.

Elsewhere, the Harris poll picks Tascosa by two over Caprock and Palo Duro by six over winless Lubbock High.

In the up-and-down world of the Harris poll, Hereford was ranked 26th this week. That's a drop of seven places, following last week's 30-8 win over Palo Duro.

Still, the Herd is the highest ranked team in the district.

Plainview, despite beating Lubbock by a 33-13 margin, dropped 17 spots to 44th in this week's poll. Monterey, a 14-12 winner over Tascosa last week, dropped from 62nd to 79th.

One thing did remain constant among Class 5A circles, however, was Odessa Permian - solidly ranked No. 1.

Harris, in fact, made the following statement about the Panthers:

"Odessa Permian has the strongest football team this state has ever had. They are superb in every aspect of the game. If you are thinking about the Houston Stratford team that went 15-0 and won a title in the late 70s, you can forget it. Old Mojo is better than that group."

He also says: "It'll take a Philadelphia lawyer to figure out who will go to the playoffs this year.

Rookie leads bowling meet

DALLAS (AP) - Sue Schellhardt, a 27-year-old rookie from Nashville, Tenn., held the lead going into the final day of the $25,000 Ladies Pro Bowlers Tour Dallas-Fort Worth Classic.

Schellhardt, a left-hander whose best finish was seventh place earlier this year in Florida, won seven of her eight matches Tuesday. She rolled a 278 game in her final match to take a 59-pin lead over previous leader Karen Ellingsworth of Des Plains, Ill.

Neither Schellhart nor Ellingsworth had ever led or won a women's professional bowling event.

Schellhart's total for 24 games, including bonus pins, was 5,501. Ellingsworth's total was 5,442.

Third was Aleta Rzepecki, 20, of Detroit, Mich., who rolled a 290 game to open match play Tuesday night, with 5,379. Nikki Gianulias of Vallejo, Calif., was fourth at 5,349, followed by Betty Morris of Stockton, Calif., at 5,334 and Pat Mercatanti of Newtown, Pa., at 5,321.

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports

Under the new NCAA television plan, which is in limbo pending the outcome of a court appeal next month, a team can be on TV up to six times over the 1982-83 seasons and up to four times in either year.

Ergo, the networks are making the most of John Elway, Stanford's senior quarter-

Elway will be on the tube Saturday for the fourth and last time time this season. unless Stanford (4-3) makes it to a bowl game. The Cardinal entertains No. 2-ranked Washington, with ABC putting it on national TV.

The pro scouts are drooling over Elway, but they will have to outbid George Steinbrenner, whose New York Yankees own his baseball rights. He played six weeks last summer for their Oneonta, N.Y., farm club in the Class A New York-Penn League, batting .318 after a slow start.

"Elway," says Southern Cal Coach John Robinson, "could throw a guy out at third with a football."

 Columbia and Army meet Saturday for the first time since 1956 and the renewal of the rivalry recalls the 1947 contest, one of the greatest games in college football history. Columbia, led by the passing duo of quarterback Gene Rossides and end Bill Swiacki and the running of Lou Kesserow, pulled off a 21-20 upset that snapped Army's 32-game winning streak.

Army built a 20-7 halftime lead, but Swiacki scored early in the fourth quarter on a spectacular diving catch of a Rossides pass and Ventan Yablonski's conversion made it 20-14.

Later in the period, Swiacki made another circus catch on the Army 3. Two plays later, Kusserow went over from the 1 and Yablonski converted to seal one of the biggest upsets in history.

Doctors develop controversial test tube baby procedure application

Science Writer

CARMEL, Calif. (AP) - In a potentially controversial application of "test-tube" baby procedures, donated eggs are being fertilized outside the womb and then implanted in sterile women, an Australian scientist says.

Dr. Alan Trounson told delegates at an international symposium Tuesday on "in vitro" fertilization that the eggs are fertilized with sperm from husbands of the would-be mothers, amounting to a female version of artificial insemination.

"We have been transferring to recipient patients ... oocytes (eggs) which are donated by women in the normal (test-tube baby) program," said Trounson, who works at Monash University's long-running fertilization program in Melbourne.

In a subsequent interview, Trounson said 10 to 15 such egg transfers have been attempted in patients with no ovaries, ovaries from which eggs could not be obtained or those with a genetic disease

> "This looks like a technique which will work. I think it is another aspect of infertility to which we can probably take this (technology) - if it is considered reasonable and ethical in the country where it is considered," he said.

Test-tube baby research was pioneered during the past decade to treat women who could not have children because their Fallopian tubes were blocked.

Normally, eggs travel from the ovary through the Fallopian tubes to the uterus, where they are fertilized by male sperm. During the conventional test-tube process, scientists extract one or more eggs from the ovary, fertilize them with the father's sperm in a test tube or beaker, then return the fertilized egg to the

Formula for prisoner limits sought

By JACK KEEVER

Associated Press Writer AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A committee looking at prison overcrowding wants the Legislature to adopt a formula restricting how many people Texas' most populous 23 counties can send to state

A blue ribbon commission on crime was told Tuesday this would be an alternative to shutting prison doors "across the board" when it appears the inmate population will exceed federal limitations.

Another committee suggested giving inmates $500 within 90 days of their release, including $200 as an incentive" to get a job, and allowing certain white collartype inmates to be paroled directly from federal prison.

The commission scheduled public testimony on the proposals for Nov. 12, with a final commission vote Nov. 23.

Sen. Ray Farabee said the proposed allocation formula is a response to projections that the state prison population will surpass 100,000 within 10 years. His committee recommended that beginning Sept. 1, 1984 or 1985, 23 Texas counties with populations over 100,000 be restricted by formula as to how many people they can send to state prison. The formula would include county populations and crime rates.

However, if at the time the formula goes into effect a county already had more people in prison than their allocation, the Texas Department of Corrections would "absorb" those inmates.

The other 231 counties would be lumped together in considering how much prison space they would be allocated.

At no time, the committee said, would the TDC refuse to accept people convicted of first-degree or aggravated Farabee said based on Aug. 31 crime statistics only seven counties - Bell, Dallas, Ector, Harris, Jefferson, Taylor and McLennan - would be adversely affected by the proposed formula.

Dallas County, for example, has 10-11 percent of the state's population, but 30.7 percent of the felony crimes in Texas are committed in that county, Farabee said.

Tarrant County Judge Mike Moncrief said his committee split 3-2 on raising the amount of money an inmate should receive on leaving prison. The payment was last increased in 1975, from $100 to

The committee proposed a two-year experimental program to pay inmates $100 when they are released, another $200 when they register for a job with the Texas Employment Commission and an additional $200 when they prove to a parole officer that they have worked for 30 days within a 90-day period.

Moncrief's committee also recommended allowing certain federal prisoners who are under federal-state sentences to be paroled without being routed through the TDC.

Gerald "Jim" Mayer Jr., an inmate in the Federal Corrections Institution in Fort Worth, testified Tuesday that Texas could save up to $4 million a year, and relieve overcrowded prisons, by approving "parole in absentia."

Mayer said he was convicted of falsifying financial reports of his auto rental and leasing firm and received a two-year federal sentence and seven years in state prison. He said he had served one year and would be eligible for parole in seven or eight months, but would still have to be transferred to the TDC for five to six months before he could be released.

Changing this requirement could "help reduce the serious prison overcrowding problem" by diverting up to 1,000 prisoners a year from

Chairman Ruben Torres of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles said the board had gone on record as supporting the proposal, which apparently has never before been recommended in Texas.

A few weeks later packages addressed to him began to arrive at the house. I asked about them and he said he liked the feel of rubber underwear and that I shouldn't be concerned about it. Then I ran into a whole slew of this other junk. There were pictures of men and women tying each other up, all sorts of equipment for "bondage" - whips and leather strips, black net stockings and pornographic photos.

A few days ago our sevenyear-old son told me that Daddy goes into the bedroom when I am not at home (Thursday nights I play cards) and locks the door and won't open it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an amateur photographer (recently out of college), another of the thousands of well-educated unemployed.

Several months ago I was strolling in the park and saw a burn sleeping on a bench. He had a wonderfully blissful expression on his face, his cap cocked over to one side, and the sun was just right for a perfect shot. I snapped several pictures of him.

As I was walking away, he woke up, saw that I had photographed him and started to yell at me. He said I had invaded his privacy. I explained I was not a professional, that the photographs weren't for a newspaper or magazine and, besides, I didn't even know his name. His last words were, "You'll probably enter my picture in a contest and win. If you do, I am entitled to half the money."

I gave his comments no thought until a week ago. I did, indeed, submit his picture in a contest and the darned picture won second prize.

Juror changes decision about alien

HOUSTON (AP) - A juror says a courtroom decision influenced her decision and she no longer believes the illegal Mexican alien she helped sentence to die by injection was the gunman who killed a Houston policeman.

Donna Monroe, 30, was among the 12 jurors who convicted Ricardo Guerra, 20, of capital murder on Oct. 12 and sentenced him to die for the shooting death of officer James D. Harris.

Defense attorneys argued Guerra's companion, Roberto C. Flores, shot the officer when the stopped the pair for a routine traffic violation July 13. Flores, 26, was killed several hours later in a shootout with police.

Five witnesses testified they saw Guerra shoot Harris. And prosecutors tried to bolster their argument that Guerra and Flores did not look alike, dressed two mannequins in Guerra's and Flores' clothes and sat them in the courtroom.

"It was like a dead man staring back at me," said Ms.

"Those two mannequins affected me tremendously, especially the bloodstained one, which was the mannequin of Flores. They were eerie mannequins which were positioned right at the jury. They remained in our presence staring straight at me during the whole time," she said.

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—As the 1982 campaign season moved into the final stretch last week, the statewide races began to get even hotter than they have been.

Gov. Bill Clements and his Republican colleague Sen. Bill Meier, candidate for attorney general, have already dredged up old charges of drunk driving and obstruction of justice against their Democratic opponents. Now, agriculture commissioner candidate Fred Thornberry has leveled what could become criminal charges against his Democratic opponent Jim Hightower.

Thornberry, who was hand picked by the State Republican Party to replace original GOP agriculture commissioner candidate Donald Hebert, has alleged "gross irregularities" in the campaign contributions and expense reports filed by Hightower.

Thornberry campaign staff members say Hightower reported no contributions or expenses during the period from May 2 to Aug. 4. They also contend that nearly $10,000 collected at a Washington, D.C., fundraiser also were not listed in the report filed by Hightower in late September.

Hightower campaign manager Kristin Ozmun says the discrepancy was caused by the sudden resignation of Hightower's campaign treasurer in May. A new treasurer did not take over until early August.

Ozmun says all expenses and contributions from the May-August period were reported in the September statement but, at the direction of the Secretary of State's Office, were listed from the date the new treasurer was hired.

As for the fundraiser proceeds, Ozmun says those funds were not turned over to the Hightower campaign until last week and, therefore, were not in hand at the time the report was filed.

Thornberry's staff has filed a complaint against Hightower with the secretary of state and has threatened to take the matter to Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle.

Attorney General's Race

Meanwhile, Democratic attorney general nominee Jim Mattox got some help, but not an endorsement, in his race against GOP nominee Meier.

The Texas Consumer Association blasted Meier for his "anti-consumer" attitudes.

"Bill Meier will protect the loan sharks, the phony land developers, the utility companies and the lemon car dealers," charged TCA president Rebecca Lightsey.

Lightsey also contended that Meier has spent his legislative career trying to destroy the consumer protection laws he would be charged with enforcing as attorney general.

While Meier was criticized by the consumers group, however, he did collect the endorsement of an anti-crime organization. Meier has stressed his support for anti-crime laws during the campaign.

Even though the consumers criticized Meier, they stopped short of endorsing Mattox or Libertarian Katherine Youngblood who also is in the race.

Teacher Survey

Some 37 percent of Texas' classroom teachers are thinking of quitting, according to the results of a survey released recently.

The survey, conducted in cooperation with the Texas State Teachers Association, showed that one in three Texas teachers are close to quitting because of low pay, stress and frustration

The survey was based on responses from 319 class-room teachers selected randomly from the membership rolls of TSTA. It was designed by three college professors.

The results also showed that some 29 percent of the teachers hold second jobs during the school year.

Even though the teachers said they were contemplating leaving the profession, the current economic conditions are expected to delay many from doing so, at least until the economy gets better.

Researchers who conducted the survey—and a similar one in 1980—say the average teacher salary has risen in the past two years from $14,113 to $17,351.

Anti-Crime Proposals

Gov. Clements has unveiled the new anti-crime package he will push in the Legislature next year, if he gets re-elected.

Clements was very successful pushing his War on Drugs package through the Legislature in 1981.

The new proposals include even tougher laws to control drugs and a crackdown on drunk drivers.

Clements also has proposed closing loopholes that permit criminal defendants to abuse the insanity defense, allowing the introduction of evidence discovered by police officers in the course of actions taken in the good faith and reasonable belief that their action was legitimate and requiring defendants to allege defects in indictments before trial or else waive the right to appeal a conviction because of faulty indictment.

Clements' proposals were released just a day before a special traffic safety task force appointed by the governor handed down recommendations for strengthening the state laws on driving while intoxicated.

Several leaders of the anti-drunk driving group Mothers Against Drunk Drivers have endorsed Clements for re-election because of his pledge to support their efforts to crackdown on DWI suspects.

MADD has proposed mandatory prison time for drunk drivers, raising the legal minimum drinking age to 21 and tightening loopholes that allow DWI suspects to plead guilty to the lesser charge of public intoxication or be granted deferred adjudication to keep the DWI conviction off of their records.

Clements has not given any specifics of how his proposals should be implemented.

 Texas Democrats have 19 seats in the House of Representatives and the GOP has five, but Republicans believe that redistricting, retirement, and plain old hard politicking could give them at least two — and maybe even four — more slots in the Nov. 2 election, in which only one race is uncontested.

The Libertarian Party has mounted its most ambitious congressional campaign ever, nominating candidates for 25 of 27 seats; the Citizens Party is running two people; the Conservative Party has one nominee, and one person is running as an independent.

All five seats currently held by Republicans are thought to be safe, and 17 Democrats are expected to win easily. The remaining five contests are up for grabs.

Three congressmen are retiring — Republican Jim Collins of the 3rd District, to run for the U.S. Senate; Democrat Jim Mattox of the 5th District, to be his party's nominee for state attorney general, and Democrat Richard White of El Paso of the 16th District, to return to private life.

In the new North Texas District 26, which includes Fort Worth suburbs, Arlington and Denton, former Arlington Mayor Tom Vandergriff, 55, a Democrat, faces Republican Jim Bradshaw, 42, of Fort Worth in a race that has drawn national attention because it is widely seen as a referendum on Reaganomics. His campaign slogan is, "Let's give President Reagan more than a chance; let's give him a hand."

The district is strongly Republican — two-thirds voted for Reagan in 1980, and 60 percent went for Republican Gov. Bill Clements. Republican strategists thought this their best chance to gain strength in the Texas delegation, but Vandergriff has run a strongrace, mainly emphasizing local issues.

During Vandergriff's 26 years as mayor from 1951 to 1977, Arlington grew from a small town to the third-largest city in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Vandergriff asks voters to "Send a voice from home to Washington."

In the new south Houston District 25, which includes such southeastern suburbs as predominantly blue-collar Pasadena, Democrat Mike Andrews, 38, and Republican Mike Faubion, 34, both Houston lawyers, face similar problems of party rifts left over from a verging-on-vicious May primary.

Andrews' opponent in the runoff characterized him as a far-out leftist, and although Andrews won handily, he lost the blue-collar vote by a three-to-two margin.

In the GOP runoff, Faubion portrayed himself as a homegrown and -educated family man and his opponent, developer J.C. Helms, as an "outsider" — a Harvard product who had never married.

Faubion, a conservative who opposed the Equal Rights Amendment and supports constitutional amendments to ban abortion and allow school prayer, is looking for blue-collar support. But Andrews, who disagrees with Faubion on those questions, might be better-known. He ran a highly visible, if unsuccessful, 1980 campaign in adjacent District 22 against Republican U.S. Rep. Ron Paul, the only candidate unopposed this year.

Republicans see El Paso's District 16 as their best chance to take over a seat long held by Democrats. White has been a member of the Conservative Democratic Forum, better known as the "Boll Weevils," and the district has gone for the GOP candidates in the last three presidential elections.

Democrat state Rep. Ron Coleman, 40, faces El Paso Alderman Pat Haggerty, 38, in a contest that has split Democrats and united Republicans. After a bitter primary, Coleman's conservative opponent, El Paso County Judge T. Udell Moore, endorsed Haggerty and was thrown out of the Democratic Party.

Haggerty has had nationally known GOP conservatives like U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp, R-New York, campaigning for him, and he is wooing the Mexican-American vote. But in the majority Hispanic district, Coleman's support is strong from his near-decade of activism in the statehouse, and he also has White's endorsement.

Redistricting has given Democratic incumbent Abraham "Chick" Kazen, 63, of Laredo some trouble in his South Texas District 23, where he has faced Republican opposition only once before in his 16-year House career. The Republican National Committee has targeted Kazen's seat as their best shot to upset an incumbent.

The newly drawn district includes large numbers of Republicans in San Antonio's affluent northern suburbs, and omits South Texas rural areas where Kazen had strong support.

A parade of national GOP leaders — including Vice President George Bush, former President Gerald Ford, and White House Chief of Staff Jim Baker — has come through for Republican challenger Jeff Wentworth, 41, a Bexar County Commissioner.

In South Texas District 14, which includes Victoria, former U.S. Rep. Joe Wyatt, 40, is trying to make a comeback after retiring from the House in 1981 during a struggle with alcoholism and accusations that he homosexually attacked a man he met in a Washington bar in 1979.

Wyatt, now a Republican, once served on the state Senate staff of his opponent, first-term incumbent Democrat Bill Patman, 55, of Ganado. Wyatt has raised more money than Patman, and has gotten support from the ultra-conservative, Virginia-based National Conservative Political Action Committee.

Patman recently has hammered on Wyatt's personal problems, giving reporters copies of Washington police records that say Wyatt admitted to having sex with the man, but denied that force was involved. Patman, who called Wyatt a "creep" in one interview, emphasizes his own character, telling voters his "conduct will never embarrass you."

Republican Ron Slover, 45, an Amarillo salesman, is challenging four-term incumbent U.S. Rep. Jack Hightower, 56, a "Boll Weevil" Democrat from Vernon. Hightower seems secure in the Panhandle's District 13, emphasizing his independent conservatism, and criticizing Reagan for farm policy and high unemployment.

Slover has no paid campaign staff and only 20 volunteers, but says that Hightower is "the only 'Boll Weevil' on the White House hit list" because of his votes against some Reagan budget proposals.

Lucy Patterson, 51, a social worker and the first black woman on the Dallas City Council, switched to the Republican Party this year after a lifetime in Democratic politics. She is after U.S. Rep. Martin Frost, 40, in south Dallas District 24, whom she blames for torpedoing efforts to re-draw the district to make it majority black. Frost has been endorsed by all 34 black precinct chairman in the district. Democrats with no

Republican opposition expect to defeat Libertarians easily. They are: District 1 thirdterm incumbent Sam Hall Jr., 58, of Marshall; District 2 fifth-term incumbent Charles Wilson, 49, of Lufkin; District 6 second-term "Boll Weevil" incumbent Phil Gramm, 40, of College Station: District 10 ninth-term incumbent J.J. "Jake" Pickle, 68, of Austin; District 11 second-term incumbent Marvin Leath, 51, of Marlin; District 15 ninthterm incumbent E. "Kika" de la Garza, 55, of Mission; District 17 second-term incumbent Charles W. Stenholm, 43, of Stamford, chairman of the Conservative Democratic Forum; and District 20 tenth-term incumbent Henry B. Gonzalez, 66, of San Antonio.

These races are contested with the Democrats expecting to win:

District 4 incumbent Ralph M. Hall, 59, of Rockwall facing Republican Peter J. Collumb, 40, a McKinney labor relations consultant; District 5, state Rep. John Bryant, 35, of Dallas running against

ARE YOU LISTENING?

The law of Moses says, 'If anyone wants to be rid of his wife, he can divorce her merely by giving her a letter of dismissal.' But I say that a man who divorces his wife, except for unfaithfulness, causes her to commit adultery. And he who marries her commits adultery.

Again, the law of Moses says, 'You shall not break your vows to God, but must fulfill them all.' But I say: Don't make any vows! And even to say, 'By heavens!' is a sacred vow to God, for the heavens are God's throne. And if you say, 'By the earth!' it is a sacred vow, for the earth is His footstool. And don't swear 'By Jerusalem!' for Jerusalem is the capital of the great King. Don't even swear 'By my head!' for you can't turn one hair white or black. Say just a simple 'Yes, I will' or 'No, I won't.' Your word is enough. To strengthen your promise with a vow shows that something is wrong.

The law of Moses says, 'If a man gouges out another's eye, he must pay with his own eye. If a tooth gets knocked out, knock out the tooth The Hereford Brand-Wednesday, Oct. 27, 1982-Page 5B of the one who did it.' But I say: Don't resist violence! If you are slapped on one cheek, turn the other too. If you are ordered to court, and your shirt is taken from you, give your coat too. If the military demand that you carry their gear for a mile, carry it two. Give to those who ask, and don't turn away from those who want to borrow. [Motthew 5:31-42]

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am

25 years old and am breastfeeding a six-month-old baby. I know I should be taking some kind of supplement but don't know what or how much. Is there a vitamin I can take to increase my appetite? Eating doesn't appeal to me, normally. I can't afford a doctor. My baby, my fifth, was deliv-

DEAR READER - When

a woman is breastfeeding

she needs additional vitamins and minerals of all types. Particularly she needs additional calcium and phosphorous and additional protein. To meet these requirements I suggest you use at least a quart of milk a day, along with a well-bal-anced diet.

I would prefer that you have your doctor tell you what you need but if you are unable to see a doctor, at least take one of the regular daily vitamin preparations with minerals each day.

Vitamins won't stimulate your appetite but you do need to consume sufficient calories to maintain your weight level, which you tell me is only 118 pounds. If you don't get enough calories your protein will not be available for your body functions necessary to your

Stretched muscles

DEAR DR. LAMB About two weeks ago my gynecologist told me I have an enlarged rectocele. I asked what to expect and he said it would not require surgery. The only problem I will have is constipation, probably. He said I should take Metamucil for that.

What happens if this rectocele becomes larger? How will it affect my bowels or other parts involved? Incidentally, I'm 57 and have five children.

I've already had three major operations. One was for removal of my gallbladder, another for a complete hysterectomy and the last one for a bladder operation, the Marshall-Marchetti procedure.

Can you explain my problem a little more in detail for me?

DEAR READER - A woman who has had several children is more likely to have some of the problems you have had. A rectocele is a hernia. Basically, the muscles around your vaginal vault have been weakened and stretched.

The muscular wall at the back side is a partition between the vagina and the rectum. When the muscles are stretched and weakened, the rectal tube herniates through into the vagina. This is most likely to happen when there is increased pressure as during a bowel movement.

You need to avoid constipation to avoid straining. And if the rectum herniates too much it may be mechanically difficult for you. If the condition becomes too much trouble, a surgical repair of partition strengthens the muscle wall can be done. It is done frequently.

Your bladder operation, too, was required because of stretched muscles and structures that hold the urethra and bladder in the proper position. In that case a woman may have difficulty holding her urine, particularly when laughing or during CLIFTON CATTLE COMPANY

DEAR MILLIE - This is a natural chemical reaction that is not at all uncommon with pickled cauliflower and does not mean the cauliflower is spoiling. It's perfectly all right, so long as there are no other indications of spoilage, such as a poor seal on the jar, bubbling or gasiness when you open the jar, bad odor, etc. I've been unable to find a remedy for the pink coloring, however. If any of our readers have successfully solved this problem, let's hear about it. However, I bet your cauliflower tastes so lovely that no one's in the least put off by the color! - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - I've always hated baking cakes since I hated to grease and flour the pan. Whenever I emptied the excess flour from the pan, I ended up shaking it all over the counter and floor. Now I have an easy method for greasing and flouring pans. I mix together one and one-fourth cups white vegetable shortening, one-fourth cup vegetable oil, and one-fourth cup white flour. Whip together until creamy. Store in a tightly covered container in the refrigerator. When you want to grease a pan, just spread on this mixture. No messing around with flour. And it keeps indefinitely. —

DEAR MRS. L.F. - A clever Pointer, indeed. This makes greasing and flouring pans with ridges or designs in them (like Bundt pans) especially easy. Many thanks. — POLLY

LOS ANGELES (AP) -Even rain delays proved winners on the nation's television sets, as NBC stayed atop the Nielsen ratings for the second straight week with its coverage of the World Series baseball games.

Last Wednesday's seventh game - where the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Milwaukee Brewers for the championship - was the highest rated program of the week and of the series.

The sixth game Tuesday night made the Top 10 ratings in three different places because of two rain delays, all counted separately in the ratings. The game itself finished in fifth place, but the first rain delay was in second place and the second rain delay finished in ninth place. The delays had special fill-in coverage during the time players were off the field.

The pre-game show for game seven was in seventh place in the ratings.

NBC finished first for the week ended Oct. 24 with a rating of 19.5 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings. The networks say this means in an average prime-time minute, 19.5 percent of the nation's homes with TV were tuned to NBC. NBC also won the previous week, when five games of the World Series were played, the network's first ratings victory since Sept. 13, 1981.

CBS was in second place for the past week with a rating of 18.1 and ABC was third with WASHINGTON (AP) Starting next week, the Internal Revenue Service will no longer answer telephoned questions from taxpayers on how to fill out their tax returns.

In an effort to cut costs, the IRS will restrict its nationwide toll-free "hot line" to answering clerical questions, such as when a tax refund check might be mailed.

The change will come Nov. 1 over objections of the House and Senate appropriations committees. The panels, in writing the IRS budget, urged that the telephone service be continued, but Congress adjourned for the election campaign before acting on the recommendation.

Committee aides say the IRS budget will be given priority consideration when lawmakers reconvene Nov. 29. Aubrey A. Gunnels of the House committee staff said Tuesday he would not be surprised to see the telephone service program reinstated.

More than 36 million tax questions were answered on the telephone hot line last year. The IRS estimates that restricting the line to clerical questions will reduce that to about 12.6 million calls during the budget year that began

The House Appropriations Committee has estimated that restricting the calls would save about $50 million a year.

The IRS says most of the calls seeking tax-return help with such questions as whether a certain deduction is allowed or whether money made at a garage sale is taxable - were from lowerincome and elderly taxpayers.

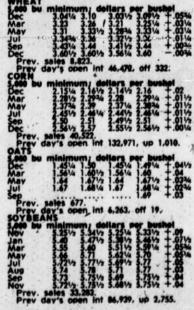

The reduction in telephone service follows a cut in other IRS taxpayer-assistance programs. The agency has stopped filling out returns, except for the handicapped, and has closed more than 200 walk-in offices where taxpayers could find answers to their questions and pick up tax forms and instructions.
