Hightower blames Feds for Texan farm problems

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Policies in Washington have caused the state to lose 16,000 Texas farmers and ranchers last year, state of bad luck, but as a direct result of deliberate agriculture policies coming out of Washington, D.C. for about the last 30 years," Hightower said. A study by the Independent Bankers Association showed that of the 22 leading agriculture areas in Texas, only six are in break-even situations, Hightower said.

Hightower said that Texas needs to concentrate on marketing, helping farmers sell as directly as possible to the ultimate buyer at a price that allows them to make a profit. He said 34 farmers' markets have been established in the last three years, and 45 should be complete at the end of this year.

Hightower also pushed for longrange planning and diversification of crops, including establishing wine vineyards.

"There was one wine in 1975 in Breckenridge. Today, there's 18 wineries and another four are going on-line this year. We're going to be second to California in quantity and surpass them in quality," he said.

Texas' second concentration, said Hightower, should be on processing of Texas commodities in Texas. Currently raw goods are shipped out to be processed then shipped back in to be sold to Texans.

Hightower praised the efforts of wheat farmers from Dawn who, with (See HIGHTOWER, Page 2A)

Two local agencies will receive relief funds which were recently granted to the county by the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

The $8,347 in supplemental emergency food and shelter aid will go to the local chapter of the American Red Cross and the Hereford Senior Citizens Association. The two were chosen to receive the funds by a local board consisting of a cross-section of the community.

According to board chairman David Ruland, the Emergency Management Agency contacted the local chapter of the United Way, which then asked the county to set up a local board to determine who would get the money.

A total of $90 million was appropriated by Congress for this program, which is designed to help expand the capacity of food and shelter in the county. To have been eligible for the aid, organizations were to have met a list of guidlines outlined by the government.

"The requirements eleiminated quite a few local organizations," said Ruland. "Most of them did not conduct an annual audit, like the Good Shepherd Program and the Salvation Army. Other organizations just did

It's time to spring forward to daylight-saving time.

The change takes effect at 2 a.m. Sunday, although most people will set their clocks ahead before retiring Saturday night.

It was during the anxious years of World War I that Americans first took this step — only 35 years after agreeing to a national time

The summertime shift ahead, begun in 1918, was designed to save fuel by reducing the need for lights in the evening, allowing that energy to be turned to the war effort.

Daylight-saving continued in 1919 but then was dropped as a deluge of protests demanded that the system be abandoned in peacetime. The time shift caused major disruptions for rural residents in a nation then primarily farm-oriented.

During World War II, when energy again took paramount impor-tance, daylight-saving time was reinstituted from 1942 to 1945 — only it was done on a year-round basis under the title War Time.

After the war some states and localities retained the practice, but there was no national consensus until 1966, when the current system was adopted by Congress.

Dallas listed as divorce city

DALLAS (AP) — The "D" in Big D may stand for divorce, at least according to a new book dubbing the city tops in broken marriages. The Book of World City Rankings lists Dallas as the No. 1 city with 8.4 divorces per 1,000 people. Lowest of the 105 cities listed is Rio de Janeiro with .2 divorces per 1,000 people.

The top five divorce cities are Dallas, followed by Phoenix, Houston, Washington, and Leningrad, Soviet Union, according to the John Tepper Marlin, co-author of the book, said Wednesday that Dallas and other Southwest cities have nurtured a vibrant and businesslike image. But he said the image often contrasts with hopes of a smooth social life.

"If business there runs so smoothly, then some may also have a similarly high expectation of their private affairs. Often that isn't Marlin said the Dallas divorce ranking is drawn from 1980 U.S. Census figures and from 1979 totals from the National Center for Health Statistics. During that year, metropolitan Dallas, with a population of 1.5 million, accounted for 13,129 divorces, he said. These things tend to be consistent," he said.

In 1965, Dallas County granted 13,314 divorces, records show. Nationally, the average was about 5 divorces per 1,000 people, according to federal statistics.

$100,000 sought for homeowners

PHILLIPS, Texas (AP) - Homeowners in this Panhandle town who face eviction by the Phillips Petroleum Co. have amended a suit to ask for $100,000 in damages for each homeowner ordered to move, according to their lawyer.

The amended complaint, filed this week in Amarillo federal court, also asks for a preliminary injunction blocking Phillips from enforcing the eviction order until litigation in the class-action suit is con-

Phillips residents living in the southern part of town have been ordered by the Oklahoma-based oil company to relocate by Aug. 31 to make way for expansion of the company, which is the area's largest employer.

Those in the northern section have until Dec. 31 to give up their land, which has been leased from the company.

The original complaint, filed Sept. 4, asked the oil company to compensate homeowners $60,000, said Michael Mosher, a Dallas lawyer representing the homeowners.

National

Administration may take control

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration, in a move sure to arouse controversy, is considering legislation that would circumscribe the authority of state governors over their National Guard units.

The move is described as a direct response to the decision by a handful of governors to deny permission to their guardsmen to train in Central America. The legislative proposals have not been finalized nor have they been reviewed as yet by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, according to James H. Webb, the assistant secretary of defense for

But a decision on the matter could be made by Weinberger within the next week or so, Webb added. The goal, he said, would be to limit the authority of governors to block the deployment of guardsmen to foreign countries for active-duty training.

Barring Waldheim recommended

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Justice Department memo says former United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim should be prohibited from entering the United States because he "lacks credibility" about his World War II activities, according to news reports.

Neal Sher, chief of the Justice Department's Office of Special Investigations, wrote the memo urging that Waldheim be barred, the news accounts said.

Justice Department spokesman Patrick Korten confirmed that a recommendation had been made by Sher, but Korten refused to say

'With all due respect to the position and achievements attained by Waldheim after the war, it is clear that he lacks credibility with respect to his whereabouts and activities during the war," Sher was quoted as saying in today's Washington Post.

The Post and The New York Times reported that Sher said Waldheim's name should be placed on the Immigration and Naturalization Service's "watch list" of deportable aliens.

Graham holding Washington crusade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Billy Graham says he won't make a big deal out of any government big shots who might show up at his first Washington crusade in a quarter-century.

We know of some who are probably going to come, and we welcome them," the nation's best-known evangelist said Thursday at a news conference.

"I hope they're going to sit there not as political leaders but as individuals," he said. "Political leaders sometimes need the Lord more than anybody else."

"I'm hoping that some will find the Lord, but I certainly would not ... call their names or anything like that to embarrass them."

Graham, 67, has met every president since Harry Truman and has been friends with most in those four decades. But his eight-day visit to the nation's capital, beginning Sunday, will mark only the third Washington trip for the major crusades that have made him famous

New price breaks planned

WASHINGTON (AP) - AT&T, MCI and GTE-Sprint are planning dramatic reductions in long-distance rates June 1.

For people making out-of-state calls from home, AT&T calculated its average long-distance bill will go down 8.9 percent.

The $1.5 billion AT&T cut, which must be approved by the Federal Communications Commission, triggered plans for the new round of price restructuring in the hotly competitive long-distance arena.

AT&T's competitors were studying the plan but said they would keep their prices competitive. ecause of its size — the government estimates AT&T still has about 80 percent of the interstate long-distance business — the phone giant must submit its price structure for government approval. The under the AT&T proposal, the cost of daytime state-to-state calls would drop by 11.4 percent. The price of weeknight calls before 11 p.m. local time would drop by the same percentage. Smaller reductions — 2.7 percent — are planned for calls after 11 p.m. and on reckends until 5 p.m. Sunday.

Trial ends in ASCS whistleblower lawsuit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Either a U.S. Department of Agriculture employee suing the government or the boss he charged with sexually harassing female employees "has to go" from the Texas office where they both worked, according to the judge who heard the case. Attorneys finished presenting testimony on Thursday. U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt will rule later.

J.P. Jones, 63, contends he was abruptly transferred late in 1984 as a reprisal for reporting sexual harassment. The government counters that Jones was an "incompetent rumormonger" who had a grudge against his boss for getting the job Jones had wanted.

Charles Mayfield, director of the Texas office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, was suspended for 30 days after Jones complained and USDA investigators interviewed women employees who said they were offered promotions in return for sexual favors. Mayfield denied the charges.

Jones said he had never been given an unsatisfactory rating in 16 years with USDA, until he reported the allegations against Mayfield and another ASCS official who has since left.

Jones said the transfer forced him to leave his wife, her aged mother and the couple's 35-year-old invalid son behind in College

He contends the transfer was an effort to force him to quit. He is seeking reinstatement to his job in Texas.

Jones had served as acting state ASCS director between the time the Carter appointee left and the Reagan administration named a replacement. Jones had applied for the job, having originally come to work at USDA in 1969 as a Republican appointee.

Pratt asked the final witness, a Texas ASCS employee who had worked with Jones, if he thought Jones and Mayfield could both be removed from the office. He said no.

"One of them has to go," Pratt said. Pratt gave attorneys until May 23 to file briefs.

Separists wave flag

CAGAYAN DE ORO, Philippines (AP) - Separatists hoisted the flag of what they call the Federal Republic of Mindanao today, but averted arrest by not declaring the island independent from the rest of the Philippines.

About 200 separatists attended a convention in this Mindanao city 500 miles south of Manila, where organizers had said the island's independence would be proclaimed.

The military had said it would consider a declaration of independence a seditious act.

But the delegates signed only a "proclamation of our sovereign desire to establish an independent state" and approved a 31-page constitution for their proposed independent state.

The proclamation said Mindanao and other southern areas have been given second-class treatment by the government.

Reuben Canoy, head of the Mindanao People's Democratic Movement and a former presidential candidate, told reporters Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile phoned him during the convention and asked him not to go through with the secession. However, the convention leader declined to say whether he had made any changes in his plans because of the government's threat to arrest him and other organizers.

Khadafy says Americans subhuman

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) - Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy told Soviet journalists that Americans and their NATO allies are uncivilized and subhuman.

In an interview shown late Thursday on Libyan television, Khadafy said, "It seems they are a species in between pigs and humans. They have not developed to the level of normal humans."

There was no indication when the 20-minute interview was filmed but the official Soviet news agency Tass reported parts of it Wednesday from Moscow. The Tass report did not mention Khadafy's opinion of Khadafy, seated at a desk with a picture of him in military uniform in the background, also said the United States intended to kill him when it attacked the Libyan ports of Tripoli and Benghazi on April 15.

The Reagan administration denies that and says the raid was on military targets and terrorist training centers.

"It is impossible to balance the budget without cutting defense, without cutting entitlements, without raising taxes," he said. "We need to cut spending as deep as we can everywhere we can find 218 votes (a majority in the House of Representatives)."

One of my professional magazines, Washington Journalism Review, had an article about Herb Caen who writes a fluffy, chitchat column in the San Francisco Chronicle.

Caen, the article says, writes a thousand words a day, six days a week. Although some scorn his writing of trivial matters in staccato form, the readers enjoy his salty remarks and notations about clever bumper stickers in ellipsis form.

His salary is about $120,000 a year to daily toast or roast the city. Who says gossip is cheap?.

If all gossips were paid that much in Hereford, perhaps the economy would pick up. They could probablyadd $2 and $2 and get $5. Hereford is full of people who swear to be in the know, but who refuse to be quoted as a source.

They are the ones who have circulated that there is going to be an Air Force Base built in Hereford. Maybe that's so the F-111 jets can get from here to Clovis -flying at 1700 mph- quicker. Of course, when I called Cannon AFB the information officer hadn't been notified about it yet. Probably because the Pentagon doesn't want Clovis to be jealous.

Soviet official. The basic differences exist, despite huge grain sales to Moscow over the years and a series of long-term agreements committing the Soviet Union to minimum annual purchases of U.S. wheat and corn. Albert Melnikov, deputy trade counselor at the Soviet Embassy, raised old complaints that the United States discriminates against the Soviet Union by withholding mostfavored-nation recognition, by periodically imposing embargoes and by generally treating his country like a second-rate trading partner.

"So long as these obstacles exist, there will be no normal development of Soviet-U.S. trade and economic ties on a large scale," Melnikov told a meeting of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America on Tuesday.

"This is regrettable, but we are not

WASHINGTON (AP) Agriculture Department researchers say they may have found a way to make hash of the dreaded Colorado potato beetle. Robert F.W. Schroder, an entomologist with the department's Agricultural Research Service, said in a report issued Thursday that the answer may lie with a tiny South American wasp, smaller than a pinhead.

Schroder said the potato beetle is becoming resistant to most chemical insecticides. It causes an estimated $150 million loss each year to crops of potatoes, tomatoes and eggplants.

"Scientists from overseas are contacting us for quantities of the wasp to protect potato and eggplant fields," he said. "The wasp has potential to control the Colorado potato beetle worldwide."

The parasitic wasp has drawn attention from Canada, Italy, the Soviet Union and the Netherlands, which are raising colonies to see if the insects can be used in the biological control of pests.

Schroder got the wasp from an agency colleague, Benjamin Puttler, who discovered the insect in 1980 in South America with the help of Colombian entomologists. The wasp was named and described by Eric. E. Grissell of the agency's Systematic Entomology Laboratory in Beltsville, Md.

exceed 55 percent," he said. "The mule deer population averages about one deer per 50 acres."

Mule deer require two kinds of cover to thrive. The first is a thermal cover that provides shade during the summer and protection from cold during winter storms.

The deer also require hiding cover throughout the year, Bryant said. The best hiding cover is scattered patches of reltively dense vegetation covering 10 to 30 acres and being at least 200 yards to 400 yards wide.

While cattle and mule deer typically do not compete for the same forage, cattle can be manipulated to reduce whatever impact they may have on the deer, Bryant said. Based on an assumption that mule deer are of primary, rather than secondary importance to the rancher, Bryant suggests light to moderate stocking of cattle along with the use of a rota-tional grazing pattern.

Irrigation loan forms need quick attention

Applications for irrigation loans are available and copies of all the forms can be examined at the local Soil Conservation Office.

Jaime Neeper, soil conservationist with the SCS, said farmers who want to apply need to do so as soon as possible, according to recommendations by the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District and the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District.

To qualify, land must have been irrigated two of the last six years. Farmers who get the state loans cannot get federal cost sharing funds to assist in the installation through the Agriculture Conservation Program, though.

Loans are limited to a maximum of 75 percent of purchase of capital items and a maximum of 50 percent of labor costs. Also, the limit is 50 percent of purchase of nonrecoverable equipment - such as underground pipe. Total loans are Neeper noted tha a separate application in required for each piece of equipment. Used equipment may be purchased if it has been appraised and inspected, at the farmer's expense, and documented for the application. Interest rates on the loans are to be approximately 6.75 percent.

Items which may be purchased inlcude in line flow meters, underground and above ground pipe, low energy precision applicators to repolace high pressure sprinklers of furrow irrigation, surge flow equipment, low pressure sprinkler systems. soil moisture measuring devices, computer software used to schedule irrigation application, and furrow dikers to hold water on irrigated land.

Further information on the applications is available by calling Wayne Wyatt, Becca Williams or Kim Carver at 1-762-0181.

About team's poor shooting in playoffs

Mavericks coach concerned

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Though they've won two of the three games so far in their best-of-five NBA series with Utah, the Dallas Mavericks have been shooting 44 percent, averaging 104 points a game - 11 below their season total.

And that has Dallas Coach Dick Motta concerned as the teams go into tonight's game at the Salt Palace. A Utah victory would have the teams travel to Dallas for a deciding contest Sunday, while a Dallas win would put the Mays into the next. round against the Los Angeles Lakers.

"We're just not hitting shots," Motta said Thursday. "We're getting pretty good ones. That's the last thing that I really should have to worry about. We're the second leading offensive team in the league during the regular season. We're missing shots now."

The Jazz managed to hold Mark Aguirre and Rolando Blackman to 26 points in defeating the Mavs 100-98 Wednesday. The pair combined in the regular season for 44.1 points per game.

Utah put the physical Karl Malone on Aguirre and Aguirre wound up 5-for-16 from the field Wednesday.

"I think that'a good matchup for us. Maybe we should have done it a little bit sooner," said Jerry Sloan, Jazz assistant coach. "The big thing is, if Mark goes outside and starts taking a lot of bad shots, we're all right. But if he goes out there and starts hitting them, that keeps Karl away from the boards and that hurts us a little, too."

Motta said he was not encouraged about losing Wednesday night, but, "I don't feel there's been a breakdewn in any other phase except for the shooting. And this is a good shooting team."

He was, however, unhappy about seeing the Mavericks whistled for traveling six times in the Salt Palace game - so much so that for the first time in five years he's asked the NBA office to review the game film.

"I think the two officials got into a game among themselves that was the most disappointing thing," Motta said of officials Earl Strom and Hue Hollins. "The two teams were subjected to a game of the officials playing against each other."

The Mavericks, who have led the NBA with the fewest turnovers for four years, committed 17 to Utah's six, led by Sam Perkins' four miscues, three of them traveling

"We had a lot of whistle turnovers and we're not a turnover team." Motta said. He said prominence given in the Utah media to Dallas' 73-38 advantage in free throw attempts in the first two games in Texas may have had an effect on Wednesday's game.

"I think the media blitz from Utah's side on the refereeing really worked," he said. "We don't travel six times."

Utah Coach Frank Layden, told that Motta wasn't pleased with the officiating, said, "He shot 12 more free throws again." Dallas made 28 of 33 free throws to 17-21 shooting for Utah.

Motta believes Dallas still has the edge, even if the series goes five

"I like our chances better than theirs. Maybe not for (tonight's game), but for the series. I expected the series when it started to go more than three games," he said.

Utah has played all three games without star forward Adrian Dantley, the NBA's second-leading scorer at nearly 30 points a game.

Although Dantley was released from the hospital in time to watch Wednesday's game, the back spasms that have kept him idle for nearly two weeks made him doubtful for tonight's game, Jazz officials said.

SMU's Dupard awaits NFL draft

By MARK BLAUDSCHUN The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS (AP) - The noon crowd is slowly filling the patio area of Cardinal Puff's, a Greenville Avenue eatery known for its yuppie clientele.

There are secretaries, Highland Park housewives, and executives in three-piece suits and razor-cuts. They sip iced teas and Bloody Marys while lunching on salads and soup du

The table talk is of Libya and declining oil prices, and the smell is of money - old money, young money, big money.

Sitting at a corner table is Reggie Dupard. Dressed in shorts and a T-shirt emblazoned with "Cotton Bowl '86," Dupard is certainly more casual than corporate, and he appears nothing if not out of place.

For now. That will soon change. Dupard, after all, represents new money - the kind he will receive as a projected high first-round pick in the NFL draft, the kind that will transform him from a 22-year-old college dropout into a million-dollar commodity.

Dupard's major at SMU had been psychology, but to prepare for the April 29 draft, the senior running back left school this semester to concentrate on business. And the business at hand is finding an agent, staying in shape, and working out for the various NFL scouts who want to clock his speed, test his agility, gauge his strength and assess his attitude.

So far, he has gone through drills for the Detroit Lions, Kansas City Chiefs, and Green Bay Packers.

"I've spent one weekend in Dallas in the past month," the 5-11. 202-pound Dupard explains as he slowly works his way through a bacon burger and an order of fries.

"I've been traveling, talking to agents, and working out for various teams. It's not easy, because if you don't want to do it, they say you have an attitude problem," Dupard said. "I'm going to come back (to SMU) next spring and get my degree. But now, I just want to concentrate on getting ready to play ball."

The NFL draft process is cyclical in nature: some years produce bumper crops in quarterbacks, other yield wide receivers or linemen. In the past two seasons, only five running backs have been selected in the first round. This year, there could be as many as six.

Auburn's Bo Jackson is the runaway leader of the group, the obvious No. 1 pick in the entire draft.

After Tampa Bay selects Jackson, Ohio State's Keith Byars should be the second running back selected. But Byars is coming off foot surgery and is an uncertain product.

"In my mind," Dupard said, "I can see myself going 11th (Philadelphia) or 12th (Cincinnati). But you never know. Strange things can happen. I'm not letting myself get overly worked up about it."

Nor is Dupard, the third-leading rusher in Southwest Conference history, getting worked up about the money. He says he will be "conservative" with his windfall, which could be as much as $1.5 million spread over three or four years if he is selected as one of the top dozen

"I realize I might have more money than I've ever seen before," he says, with more than a trace of a smile, "but right now it still hasn't sunk in."

Running backs are judged largely by numbers - yards, touchdowns, passes caught, how fast they can run 40 yards. The better the numbers, the better known a running back

Reggie Dupard seems to be the exception to that rule because, for the past three years, he arguably has been the most consistent and durable back in college football.

In 36 games at SMU, Dupard, mostly alternating at tailback with Jeff Atkins, gained 3,772 yards.He gaine more than 1,000 yards each season, including 1,278 as a senior.

He led the SWC in rushing as a sophomore and as a senior; he finished second as a junior. He ran for more than 100 yards 18 times and averaged 6.2 yards each time he carried the ball.

He trails only Eric Dickerson and Earl Campbell in the SWC record books in yards gained rushing. He was a three-time All-SWC selection in a conference that, for various reasons, has had a high national profile in the past few seasons. Yet for most people outside the SWC. Dupard is an unfamiliar name, one that evokes no lasting images.

Dupard has lived with that since he was a scrawny 5-4, 110-pound seventh-grader at J.T. Curtis Christian School in New Orleans.

"Reggie never got the notoriety he deserved coming out of high school,' said J.T. Curtis, Dupard's high school coach and the son of the founder of the small, private institution Dupard attended.

"He came out of high school at the same time as Dalton Hilliard and Garry James (both of whom attended LSU). The other guys got more attention, but I thought Reggie was the best back coming out of Louisiana that year. The only difference was that he was playing on a team where he was not singled out as the star. Instead of carrying the ball 30 times a game, he was carrying it 11 or 12," Curtis said.

"But he still gained more than 1,100 yards. And I thought that was just as impressive as some of those guys with higher numbers."

Most of the attention from recruiters came from LSU and Tulane, who encouraged Dupard to stay in Louisiana.

"But I wanted to get away," Dupard said. "When coach Collins came to SMU, I decided I wanted to go there. I liked Dallas, and I liked the idea of the freedom they gave me. I was pretty much on my own from the start."

After sitting behind James and Dickerson during his freshman year, Dupard and Atkins debuted as Pony Express II in 1983. All Dupard did was lead the conference in rushing as an alternating tailback.

It is that system that may have contributed to Dupard's lack of Dupard said that doesn't bother him. "I know I can play. I think they about me. I don't think the public knows about me."

But more than a few people in the NFL think Dupard's name will become more familiar in the next fe months.

"I think he can be a very good player," said Cowboys vice president Gil Brandt, who said he thinks Dupard could be one of the first three backs selected.

"I don't see him as a Payton or a Dorsett, but he's a solid guy. He does a lot of things well and is very durable. He hasn't had any serious injuries."

Dupard, who says he has no preference as to which team selects him in the draft in spite of the fact he has been a Cowboy fan since he was a youngster, believes he can contribute quickly.

"I think I'm a good runner," he says. "In the past few years, I've become more of a straight-ahead runner. I can pick up yardage, especially in one-on-one situations. Put me one-on-one, and I should beat most people."

And an NFL career, he says, is the ultimate step in the progression that began at J.T. Curtis. Each year has brought him closer to his goal.

"I first started thinking seriously about it last summer," says Dupard, who took out a $500,000 insurance policy with Lloyds of London as a protection against a career-ending injury. "Now it's almost here."

Ball said to be livelier

Cincinnati's Dave Parker believes that baseballs are traveling farther this season, and the Reds are behind many of them.

"I think the ball is livelier this eason. I've heard a lot of pitchers say that too," Parker said after the Reds defeated the Houston Astros 3-0 Thursday night with the aid of their 17th homerun of the season.

Nick Esasky's fourth-inning solo homerun off loser Mike Madden, 1-1. gives the Reds a homer in each of their first 12 games of the season. Thursday's homer pulls them within one of the national league record held by the 1984 Chicago Cubs - for consecutive homeruns at the beginning of the season.

"We've got some guys who can hit the long balls," Cincinnati playermanager Pete Rose explained. "They've all been legitimate homeruns."

Mario Soto, 2-1, chalked up the Reds win, pitching a three-hit shutout and snapping a four-game Cincinnati losing streak.

"He had a soft balance all night," said Houston's second baseman Bill Doran of Soto. "He dominated the game. Sometimes you run into guys like that and when they're on you're in trouble. He's a class pitcher."

Soto's teammate Parker and coach also praised his performance.

"I look for Soto to win over 20 games this year. I've said that from the start of spring training," Parker said.

Said Rose, "We won a big game because of good pitching."

Doran said his team was "popping up and grounding out. We were making no contact at all."

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the third inning after Eric Davis doubled with one out and stole third. Davis scored on Doran's throwing error

after fielding Parker's lazy ground ball near second base.

After Esasky's fourth-inning homerun, the Reds added a run in the eighth. Dave Concepcion started things up with a single to center and then stole second. After a walk to Buddy Bell, Ron Oester lined a pitch off reliever Julio Solano into right field, scoring Concepcion.

The Cincinnati win avenges a three-game sweep by Houston last weekend in Cincinnati.

"We didn't like the idea of them beating us three straight in Cincinnati so we felt like we had to win this game," Parker said.

In other National League games, New York edged St. Louis 5-4 in 10 innings, Chicago beat Montreal 7-5, Philadelphia downed Pittsburgh 4-2, and Los Angeles defeated Atlanta

Mets 5, Cardinals 4

George Foster's up-and-down season continued with another rollercoaster ride against the St. Louis Cardinals. This time, Foster and the New York Mets wound up on top.

Foster, who dropped a fly ball in left field that allowed St. Louis to score earlier, sparked a ninth-inning rally with a double and then singled home the winning run with two outs in the 10th Thursday night for a 5-4 victory over the Cardinals.

"The important thing is not to let what happened before bother you," Foster said.

So far this season, the 37-year-old Foster has been benched for a couple of games because of a lack of production, even though he is currently batting .314 after going 3-for-5 against St. Louis. But Foster, 40th on the alltime major-league home run list with 334, has not connected this season and has driven home just four runs. Phillies 4, Pirates 2

Mike Schmidt hit two homers and a sacrifice fly, driving in all of Philadelphia's runs in Pittsburgh.

Schmidt's two-run homer in the first inning caromed off the left-field foul pole. He hit a sacrifice fly in the sixth and hit his fourth home run of the season in the ninth.

Shane Rawley, 2-1, held the Pirates to five hits.

Cubs 7, Expos 5
Rick Sutcliffe won his first game of the season, and helped himself by hitting a three-run homer.

Sutcliffe, 1-3, pitched 6 1-3 innings and gave up four runs on seven hits. He connected for the third regularseason home run of his career in the sixth inning, capping a four-run outburst.

Dodgers 6, Braves 3

Greg Brock and Mike Marshall hit home runs, and Mariano Duncan broke out of a 2-for-21 slump with a two-run double to lead Los Angeles past Atlanta.

Marshall's fifth home run of the season tied it 1-1 in the second inning. Brock hit his second homer in the fourth, and Duncan added his tworun double later in the inning.

The host Dodgers played their first errorless game of the season. They made 29 errors in their first 16

The greatest number of points for both teams in a Super Bowl Game was in 1969 when the Pittsburgh Steelers defeated Dallas, 35-31, for a combined total of 66.

The 1969 jets and the 1984 Raiders each had only one kickoff return in the Super Bowl. They share the record for that game.

A's rookie records 30 strikeouts in 2 games

By The Associated Press

With 30 strikeouts in his last two games, it is evident that 20-year-old Jose Rijo of the Oakland A's has come of age as a major league pit-

"He's incredible," says Seattle manager Chuck Cottier, whose Mariners faced the right-hander from the Dominican Republic in the two games and feel very fortunate to have earned a split.

'There's no one in baseball throwing better than him right now," said Alvin Davis, who had one of Seattle's two hits, both homers, in a 3-1 victory Thursday night.

Davis hit his fourth homer of the season, a two-run shot, in the fourth inning and Ken Phelps homered in the eighth off Rijo, 1-1, who struck out 14 in 8 1-3 innings. Five nights earlier in Seattle, the young pitcher beat the Mariners with a five-hit, 16-strikeout performance over eight innings. "Tonight I felt better. I'm happy with the way I pitched. You've got to expect some games like this. You can't win all the time," said Rijo, who has a major-league high 39 strikeouts and has allowed 19 hits and 12 walks in 28 innings this Mark Langston, 1-2, was the lessspectacular pitcher, but the winner Thursday night. He went into the game with an 11.45 earned run average and lowered it considerably with six-hit shutout work for 7 2-3 innings before turning the ball over to Karl Best, who gave up three hits and a run in the ninth.

In the only other American League game, New York beat Cleveland 2-1.

Yankees 2, Indians 1 Ron Guidry scattered 10 singles. and Bobby Meacham scored the tiebreaking run in the fifth inning on Cleveland first baseman Pat Tabler's error as New York won its fifth straight game. Guidry, 3-0, struck out four and walked none as he became the first Yankee starter to pitch more than 7 1-3 innings this season. He moved into second place on New York's alltime strikeout list with 1,529, three

Pirates claim Parker violated agreements

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Just when baseball seemed to be getting some small handle in its continuing war against the devil of drugs, the Pittsburgh Pirates have shoved a rather large adversarial wedge into the picture.

As usual, it has to do with money. The Pirates' new owners decided this week to sue Dave Parker, seeking relief from deferred payments on a five-year, $7.4 million contract the team's previous administration signed with the right fielder in 1979. The team owes Parker more than $5 million on that deal, with the money scheduled to be paid beginning in 1988. The payouts — almost $1 million in 1988 and then about $235,000 annually until the year 2007 - would make a rather substantial impact on the ledger sheets of the company.

If the Pirates prevail in the case, however, it won't be a problem because there will be no payments to Parker. Their argument is that he breached the contract by taking cocaine, diminishing his productivity over the life of the contract.

In 1979, the first year of the agreement with Parker, the Pirates won the National League pennant and the World Series, contributing considerable revenue to the coffers of the team. Their right fielder, batting fourth in the lineup, hit .310 with 25 home runs and 94 runs batted in and was responsible in no small measure for the success of a world championship team.

The next year, he batted .295 with 17 homers and 79 RBI, significant if not superstar numbers. After that, however, his statistics dwindled Injuries limited him to 67 games less than half of truncated 1981 strike season — and he played in just 73 games the next year. What's more, he was a shell of the player who won consecutive batting titles in 1977 and 1978 with marks of .338 and .334.

Parker had been the National League's most valuable player in 1978, a giant talent who dominated the game. That, say the Pirates, is the player they were signing to that fancy, deferred payment contract. What they got, they claim, was a fat, disinterested, drug-addicted player. And because of that, they now are saying, "No deal."

Last September, at the Pittsburgh drug trial of caterer Curtis Strong,

Parker testified that after dabbling in cocaine for three years, he began regular use of the drug in 1979 - the year the Pirates were world cham-

What was the club doing while he was dabbling? Obviously, not paying much attention. Otherwise, why award that kind of huge contract to a player treading the thin edge of obli-

Pittsburgh management has insisted it never suspected anything untoward was going on, despite the parade of nefarious characters wandering through the clubhouse. That seems the height of naivete, especially in light of testimony linking clubhouse use of drugs to a long list of Pirates besides Parker.

Teams signing long-term contracts are best advised to follow that old consumer adage: Let the buyer beware. Don't complain about the goods when you didn't bother examining them very carefully before you purchased them.

There is another, interesting side to all of this.

Parker, one of baseball's nottest hitters this young season, figures to still be working for the Cincinnati Reds in two years. His deferred Pittsburgh contract presents an incongruous condition in which he would be cashing rather substantial checks from one team, while playing for another one. This, obviously, is not the most desirable circumstance.

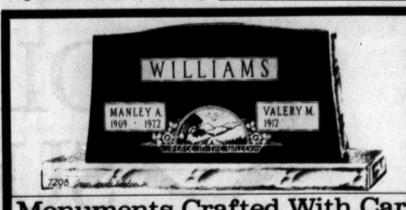

Other players are in similiar situations, the result of contract procrastrination - writing fat deals now to be paid at some other time, perhaps by some other owners.

Recognizing Texas' volunteer workers President Reagan has set aside April as "National Volunteer

Let's

Month" to honor people from all walks of life who make our country a better place to live through volunteer work.

Therefore, it seems only appropriate for me to take this opportunity to salute the thousands of virtually anonymous volunteers across our state, including our 34,000 Texas

In these times of federal and state budget cutbacks, it has never been more important for all of us to devote time and money to those who need our help. It's not surprising to me that so many Texans have responded to the call. We have a legacy of reaching out to our neighbors in times of need.

This same spirit of service is deeply imbedded in Southwestern Bell Telephone's history. Community involvement has been a way of life for our employees for more than a century in Texas. Often their work goes unnoticed, which is the case with most volunteer efforts.

Frankly, our volunteers would not have it any other way. Unfortunately, surveys show most people see big companies like ours as impersonal, even cold. While it's true we are one of the largest Texas companies, we are still made up of individuals who care about their neighbors. It shows in the volunteer work and our concern for customer service.

SWBT receives Governor's Award

That's why it was gratifying to learn recently that Southwestern Bell Telephone employees have been named recipients of the 1986 Governor's Award for Outstanding Volunteer Service. The award was presented to the company by Texas First Lady Linda Gale White at an Austin ceremony.

In making the presentation, the awards committee cited employee participation in a wide variety of areas, including the important field of education.

For example, our employees are involved in programs such as Communities in Schools, which encourages students to stay in

LaRouche network taps on an old millionaire's money

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) - Charles R. Zimmerman, Carl Swanson and Ordel E. Bradley are retirees who should be forgiven if they don't seem eager to take a phone call these days.

At different ends of the country, each has been the object of intense telephone campaigns to open up their pocketbooks and their savings to the mysterious network of organizations surrounding political extremist Lyndon H. LaRouche.

And each has agreed to loans, gifts or even investments they now regret:

-"I'm mad at myself now," says Zimmerman, 79, of Sarasota, who has sent hundreds of thousands of dollars to LaRouche-linked groups. "I said I was making gifts to my family only. They said gifts to them would help my family more ... because they were changing the world situation."

-"I'd be on the phone for hours at a time," said Mrs. Bradley, a 75-year-old Modesto, Calif., widow who lent a LaRouche corporation $30,950, and who found the calls from a LaRouche fundraiser irresistible. "I told my friends I hated to answer the phone because I'd be talked into something." She says she has not been repaid.

-"It wasn't unusual for the phone to ring every five or 10 minutes for four hours or more," Swanson, a Baltimore resident who was disabled by a stroke at 61, said in describing how he was persuaded to lend up to the limits on his credit cards. "They always wanted me to write a check for $25,000 because they 'knew' I could." About $2,000 of his $5,000 in loans has been repaid, Swanson said.

They are among other elderly or infirm people who have been the object of fundraising activities by organizations linked to LaRouche, including corporations and his presidential campaigns. Mrs. Bradley's and Swanson's comp are on file with the Federal Election Commission.

Zimmerman, a retired Bethlehem Steel executive and investor, said he was persuaded to invest $200,000 in a partnership with other LaRouche associates for the purchase of a small AM radio station, WTRI of Brunswick, Md. He has lost track of how many other loans and gifts he gave, but one estimate puts the total at more than $1 million.

INSURANCE/ REAL ESTATE

Lawyers for Zimmerman and his bank are considering legal action seeking return of the money on grounds that undue influence was exerted over the man, a widower with no children and few relatives.

Edward Spannaus, treasurer of the LaRouche campaign, declined to comment when asked about allegations by individuals that they were talked into making loans they now regret and for which they have not been repaid. Spannaus said, "I'm not going to comment on matters that are in litigation right now."

IN THOTESA THROUGHOUSE DE CE ENGON NEW

Asked if LaRouche-related organizations encourage supporters or members to turn over personal savings, Spannaus attributed the allegation to "the drug lobby."

In a series of interviews over several days this week and last week, Zimmerman recalled the campaign for his contributions, most of which were made to the LaRouchelinked Fusion Energy Foundation.

Receipts show that Zimmerman sent at least 24 overnight letters by Federal Express between last Christmas and late February, some on successive days. Zimmerman said he was sending them checks.

Each was addressed to Fusion

Energy or to Caucus Distributors Inc., another LaRouche-related group, in Baltimore.

He signed two form letters late last year agreeing to convert $20,000 in loans to gifts. Asked why, Zimmerman said, "They asked me to."

Zimmerman last month agreed to turn over control of his assets to his bank, NCNB National Bank of Florida: "That was at my urging, said one of his lawyers, Rhoderick B. MacLeod, who refused to comment

"I trust the bank more than I trust my own judgment on investments now," Zimmerman said. Zimmerman said most of his dealings were with a LaRouche organization fundraiser identified in letters as Rochelle J. Ascher. Ms. Ascher, cons tacted Thursday in Baltimore, refused to comment about her dealings with Zimmerman. "No, I really would not like to talk to you," she told a reporter.

A frequent fringe candidate for president, LaRouche espouses bizarre views involving global conspiracies. Organizations related to him have become the object of several investigations, including one by a federal grand jury in Bostonthat is looking into allegations of credit card abuse.

Only four officers can eat at restaurant at a time

HOUSTON (AP) - According to a new policy, others apparently have new policy in the Houston Police Department, only four uniformed officers can eat at a restaurant at one

But some night duty officers are finding the rule hard to swallow.

Police Chief Lee P. Brown, in reponse to citizens' complaints, created the policy to help improve the public perception of the department and its officers, said police spokesman Sgt. J.C. Mosier.

The policy, effective since early April, sets a limit of four officers in a restaurant at one time, regardless of whether they are on duty. Likewise, no more than two marked police vehicles can be parked at a restaurant at one time while the officers are eating.

"It doesn't look good for us to have a large number of officers eating at one time. We get a lot of complaints on this," Mosier said.

"Does it look good to have seven or eight officers eating in a restaurant? It is our belief that the public thinks it is bad," Mosier said.

When more than four officers bump into each other during mealtime, Brown advises the offending parties to leave immediately.

While some officers said they understand the reasons behind the problems complying with it.

"It's completely ignored," an unidentified night shift officer told the Houston Chronicle. "Everybody realizes it's totally impractical. I don't think anyone wants to go out of their way to yiolate the policy, but they force you to do that."

The policy creates problems for night shift officers who generally eat dinner at 4 a.m., some officers said.

The singers radiate a conviction that they've heard good news, and none is more convincing than Willie Mae Ford Smith, a St. Louis woman who has been singing gospel for more

"It's a feeling within you. I feel like I could fly away," says Mother Smith, as she is known to all. "I forget I'm in the world sometimes. I just want to take off."

As an excited listener says to her in the film: "Somebody touched you one day - praise the Lord! - and you haven't been the same since."

Something has touched Willie Mae, all right. It shines in her eyes, in her smile, in her booming, bluesinflected voice. It shows in the tears her children dab from their eyes as she sings.

George T. Nierenberg's powerful film captures a fast-fading moment in American music and religion. It's a rocking hour and a half of music, and a penetrating look at the people who sing it.

Dorsey was once known as "Georgia Tom," a blues pianist who toured the country with the singer

"I was doing all right for myself," he says, "but the voice of God whispered, 'You need to change'."

Dorsey combined religious fervor with blues and ragtime, to make gospel. Then he hit the road with his songs and his partner Sallie Martin, making a living by selling sheet music to the choirs that they formed.

Dorsey, 86, lives in Chicago and Mother Smith, 80, still lives in St. Dorsey's enduring contribution to American song is the hymn, "Precious Lord," which he composed after the death of his wife and new-born baby in 1932. As he tells it in the film, he couldn't be consoled, couldn't even pray.

"I just tried to make my little talk to the Lord, but it was wasted, I think," he says. "I called the Lord some one thing, and someone said, 'No! That's not his name. Say

"I said, that does sound good. Got several 'amens' on it. Precious Lord."

Then and there, he said, he began to sing. In one of the many profoundly moving moments in the film, he sings it again, in a voice that's thin and cracked by age:

"Precious Lord take my hand

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Five years ago I married a 37-year-old physician. (I was 32.) It was the first marriage for us both and we received many beautiful gifts, among them, sterling silver flatware (service for 12) from my husband's mother. It was not an heirloom. She purchased it for us.

Ten months ago my husband and our young son were killed in an automobile accident. (The drunk who hit us is in jail.) It was a horrible nightmare and I am just getting my life together. Yesterday's visit from my mother-in-law threw me into a spin. She came to ask that I return the silver service she had given us for a wedding gift.

Shall I report this to my father-inlaw, whom I like a great deal? Or to my sister and brother-in-law, who are my good friends? I'm sure they would come down on her hard. Please advice.-SAN JUAN

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

Modern doctors — and their patients, too — tend to take a lot for granted. Antibiotics, anesthetics, insulin and a wide variety of new treat-ments seem quite ordinary to us today. However, not long ago, physicians' methods of curing disease were incon-sistent, limited, primitive — even

For instance, the first "modern" treatment of venereal disease, in the 1600s, consisted of a sound thrashing for those patients unlucky enough to require hospitalization. As far as I can determine, thrashing was not used as determine, thrashing was not used as outpatient therapy.

Well into the 1800s, "common sense" dictated that the physician's role was to assist Nature; that is, to amplify the symptoms of disease. This point of view was reflected in rather extraordinary ways. Illness was believed to be the result of a buildup of lieved to be the result of a buildup of cannot be answered. Questions of genlieved to be the result of a buildup of foreign material. Therefore, bleeding (to relieve thickness of the blood) was widely adopted. Patients who had diarrhea were given strong laxatives. In general, sick people were purged; this was accomplished through the use of emetics, laxatives and sweating. The logic seemed irresistible.

Quicksilver, cinnamon, Peruvian hast students increase castor oil and bark, rhubarb, ipecac, castor oil and gum acacia were standard therapy for gum acacia were standard therapy for many ailments. Once the patient had been purged, tincture of opium was given to counteract the effects of purgation. Consequently, in addition to being poisoned by toxic compounds like mercury, patients ran the very real risk of becoming addicted to opium. Brandy, wine and whiskey were also popular antidotes.

One of the most universally prescribed medicines in the 1800s was sarsaparilla. It was one of many drugs used to treat syphilis. Today's pharscribed medicines in the 1800s was sarsaparilla. It was one of many drugs used to treat syphilis. Today's pharmacologists view it as nothing more than a harmless, then-fashionable placebo. You can still buy a bottle of it for a couple of dollars at your neighborhood drugstore, and it will probably make you feel better in about a week.

Nineteenth-century doctors had four compounds that were effective: citrus fruit combated scurvy, opium helped ease diarrhea and pain, Peruvian bark aided malaria victims and foxglove (digitalis) was useful for "dropsy" (heart failure).

The other drugs used by our medical forebears were either ghastly or ineffective. For example, mercury poisoning caused copious diarrhea, abdominal cramps, excessive salivation, uncontrollable tremors and kidney failure. In oral form, it probably never helped a single patient. However, until about 15 years ago, mercury — marketed as Mercuhydrin, a diuretic — was a widely prescribed compound. The hazards of opium derivatives and alcohol need no further comment.

In the 19th century, "blistering" was fundamental therapy for many diseases. Poultices of Spanish fly, lead oxide or juniper oil were placed on the patient's skin. After several hours, a blister would form. The blister was then opened to release "badness" — a type of dermal purgation, I suppose. Blistering is a practice that has persisted until recently in the form of mustard plasters. Some veterinarians sisted until recently in the form of mustard plasters. Some veterinarians still blister horses and claim that, although painful, the technique is useful — at least in equine medicine.

Even in the 1800s, tobacco was considered harmful and aboriginal. Smoking was frowned upon. Nonetheless, doctors treated hernias by blowing tobacco smoke up the other end. I doubt that this method cured ruptures, but it might hold promise for those 1980s cigarette smokers who have tried every other way to kick the habit. Stramonium, the active ingredient in the Old 'cures' had drawbacks

We marvel today at the amount of medical punishment absorbed by our ancestors. They must have had robust constitutions to have survived the efforts of the healing profession. However, in some ways, the modern physician may have come full circle. There is now convincing evidence that cer-tain forms of infectious diarrhea may get better more quickly if no treat-ment is given; some doctors have even suggested that laxatives may shorten the course of diarrheal illness. Panhandle Association to meet this weekend

Panhandle Association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will meet in Hereford Saturday and Sunday to observe the 167th anniversary of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in America. It is also the 84th anniversray of the Panhandle Association.

Theme of this year's meeting is in observance of the Texas sesquicentennial and much historical data has surfaced.

The first Odd Fellow Lodge, Lone Star No. 1, was chartered in 1838. Anson Jones, who was president of The Republic of Texas, was a charter member of Lone Star No. 1 and later served as Grand Master of The Grand Lodge of Texas which was organized in 1841.

On Sept. 30, 1899 the Hereford Odd Fellow Lodge No. 476 was organized with Job Vanduren, G. A. Sachse, R.J. Kibbee, E.F. Connell, F.B. Fuller and George L. Muse as charter members.

members. The Panhandle Association was organized in April of 1902.

At the regular meeting of Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228, all committees reported that everything is ready for the coming event this weekend. Meetings will be open and prospective members are welcome to attend.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday. David and Karrol Rettman, presidents of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, will be presiding.

DEAR POLLY - When I wash my double bed sheets, they twist in the washer. I've tried washing one double sheet with other small articles and washing two double sheets alone. I have a large tub washer.

When I open the lid after washing a while, the sheets are all in a tight twist. I have to pull them apart severin the dryer, too. What causes this twist and can it be prevented? -

DEAR M.A.K. - The natural action of the agitator and spin cycle causes large items such as sheets to twist. However, it's really not a problem. Sheets usually wash and rinse adequately without having to untwist them mid-cycle. The sheets seldom become twisted before the wash cycle has cleaned them and rinsing is usually not a problem.

Sometimes in the dryer if a sheet becomes twisted and wrapped around smaller articles, the items trapped inside don't dry completely, but they can always be put back for a few ex-tra minutes drying time after removing the sheet.

I find that the best results are obtained by washing large sheets to-gether without smaller articles. However, I often mix loads with good results, too. So, in other words, I wouldn't worry about this situation. It's a "problem" that is not really a problem. - POLLY
