School Board Gives Approval To Tax District Contract

By CHERI WARD
Staff Writer

School board members approved a $110,000 contract with the county tax appraisal district and extended the superintendent's contract for another year at their monthly meeting on Tuesday.

Superintendent Harrell Holder told the board that Hereford schools were "in step with federal regulations," and the effect of a federal judge's ruling requiring equal education for all Mexican-American students would be "minimal."

Enrollment in Hereford schools has dropped by 64 students since January of 1980 and by 44 students since December of 1980.

Board members expressed concern that the average daily attendance could be low enough to cause loss of state funding, but Assistant Superintendent Larry Wartes dispelled that worry.

Wartes did report on a potential difficulty within the cafeteria program that provides free and reduced lunches to low-income families.

The state has reduced the reimbursement per meal by 2.5 cents, and the school system may need to raise the price of reduced meals from 10 to 20 cents.

This would affect the school's food program by about $1500 per month, and "it may be a struggle to finish the school year with current funds," Wartes said.

Proposed University Interscholastic League rule changes were discussed by board members, and Superintendent Holder will cast Hereford's designated vote on the basis of "what is best for our situation."

After discussion with Don Cumpston, athletic director, Holder decided to vote for elimination of the present transfer rule which is "litigated seven or eight times a year and is a waste of money."

The present rule prevents senior transfer students from participation in athletics at a new school, but the proposed rule will allow participation if a certificate of non-recruitment is sent by the student's former school.

Holder will also vote for sending two schools to district play-offs in football, baseball, basketball and volleyball.

He said that although he is against the proposal now because of Hereford's five-member district, he believes that re-districting will trust Hereford into a ten-team district, and the new rule would give the school an advantage.

The proposal would become effective in the 1982-83 school year.

The addition of gymnastics, soccer and wrestling to UIL programs will be voted against by Holder who said that there are enough sports in the program already.

Holder also supports changing the starting date of basketball season from October 15 to November 1 to allow athletes in football and basketball to participate in the two sports more easily and to shorten the "too lengthy" season.

General committee reports were heard by the board.

New buses are expected next month, and Jim Arney reported that Larry Wartes would compile more information on size and numbers of new buses still needed by the system.

Board members approved a proposal by the Kidney Foundation to test all elementary children for kidney disease.

Arney reported that school principals and medical doctors are in favor of the tests, but that a large margin of error exists in test results.

Arney said doctors should decide if a child needs further testing or treatment, and doc-

Irrigation Cost Focus of Meet

By JIM STEIERT
Managing Editor

AMARILLO - Cutting pumping costs and getting the most for every gallon of water brought to the surface were major points of emphasis during the High Plains Irrigation Conference conducted at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center here Tuesday.

A number of Extension specialists plus irrigation farmers from across the Panhandle and representatives of a Hereford-based well drilling firm exchanged ideas on production costs, efficiency and how to improve that elusive characteristic during the course of the meeting.

With the ever-rising cost of energy the prevailing concern on the minds of irrigation producers in this area, one spokesman at Tuesday's session quipped, "I have a solution to our farm problems. If you don't have an oil well, get one."

Wayne Keese, Extension agricultural engineer from College Station explained to the large gathering of agriculturalists on hand for the morning session that farmers must now concentrate on reducing the cost of water per unit and must also use the least amount of water practical.

He provided those in attendance with formulas for figuring acre inches of water application during an irrigation.

"We need to know what we've applied and we'll be in a better position to make intelligent decisions," said Keese.

Keese stunned the gathering by explaining the terrific water demands that were being placed on irrigation systems by the thirsty corn crop during the blistering summer of 1980.

"Many corn crops were using up to a half-inch of water per day and you need 1,523 gallons of water per minute flowing into a pivot to meet that rate. Since most of you aren't able to pump that kind of water I think this explains why you had a hard time keeping up in the summer of 1980. If you didn't have good subsoil moisture storage you had a terrible time keeping up," said Keese.

Jack Musick, research agricultural engineer at the USDA center at Bushland commented on managing row irrigation for maximum profit.

He pointed to trials with reduced planting and irrigation patterns as well as with alternate-row irrigation patterns, explaining that the trials were being conducted to help identify production potential associated with reduced irrigation aimed at controlling irrigation costs and maintaining profit using furrow irrigation.

"I'm not sure we really want to reduce water on corn through alternate row irrigation because you can get into a stress situation and seriously reduce yields," said Musick.

Dr. Ray Sammons, Extension economist tackled the

'Woman of the Year'

Holding a bouquet of red roses and a silver engraved cup, "Woman of the Year" Georgia Sparks is seen at the conclusion of Tuesday evening's installation banquet, held by the Chamber Women's Division. Standing with her is her husband, Bub Sparks. Mrs. Sparks was presented this citation by Virginia Adams, last year's "Woman of the Year."

Georgia Sparks 'Woman of Year'

By DENISE SMITH
Staff Writer

Georgia Sparks, an active participant of the steering committee for the Miss Hereford Pageant in planning, selecting judges and the physical labor involved, was cited as "Woman of the Year" last night during the annual Chamber of Commerce Women's Division installation banquet at the Hereford Country Club.

Highlighting the dinner meeting, attended by approximately 60 Women's Division members and the Chamber board of directors, the special presentation was made by last year's recipient, Virginia Adams.

In making the announcement, Mrs. Adams cited Mrs. Sparks on her making the Bicentennial Celebration a few years ago "a real success."

Mrs. Sparks was the unanimous choice of a secret committee appointed by Women's Division president Frances Berry.

Since her arrival in Hereford and Deaf Smith County in 1944 from Central Texas, the recipient has married and raised a family of four boys.

Mrs. Sparks served the Women's Division as its president in 1976, has been on various committees, and has been working with the Cowgirl Hall of Fame.

Mrs. Sparks was cited for spending many hours working for her church in its Sunday School and Kindergarten. She is a charter member of La Madre Mia Study Club.

Tuesday evening's banquet was called to order by Frances Berry, acting in her final capacities as 1980 president of the Chamber Women. Carrell Ann Simmons offered the invocation.

Sherry Hoover, "Woman of the Year" in 1977, incorporated the theme of "Working Hands" in the installation of officers for 1981. Inducted were Betty Gilbert, president; Carolyn Canon, vice president; Shirley Wilson.

'Agri-Man of Year' To be Cited by Brand

The Hereford Brand will salute Deaf Smith County's "man of the Year in Agriculture" Saturday during the annual Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Growers Association banquet.

The banquet is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Bull Barn with tickets to be available at the door at a cost of $7.50 each.

Top growers for 1980 will also be recognized by the Grower's Association Saturday night.

The Ag Man of the Year is selected by a committee of local agriculture officials including John Fuston, Deaf Smith County ASCS executive director, Justice McBride, county agent, Jess Robinson, FFA and Hereford Young Farmer's advisor, Tom Cunningham, district conservationist with the Soil Conservation Service here, and Jim Steiert, Brand managing editor.

The award recognizes a local resident for achievement in farming and ranching enterprises, support and aid to the area's agribusiness industry and participation in community affairs.

Past winners of the award include Charles Schlabs, Jim Perrin and Carl Kleuskens.

Texas Commissioner of Agriculture Reagan Brown will be the featured speaker for Saturday night's banquet. The Bluegrass Band, headed by Dale Winders of Dimmitt, will also provide entertainment.

The annual business meeting of the T-NMSBGA will precede the banquet on Friday afternoon.

Activities are scheduled to get underway at 2 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

A director election will be held during the meeting and producers will hear a report concerning research on sugar beets from Dr. Steve Winter, researcher at the USDA facility at Bushland.

No School Friday

Hereford students will enjoy a three-day weekend beginning Friday as classes are dismissed for an in-service training day throughout the school system.

While students will not be required to attend classes Friday, it will be work as usual for teachers and administrators as they go through the in-service function.

Edelmon Victim Of Collision

FRIONA - W.L. "Preach" Edelmon, 75, a prominent Farmer County farmer and former Friona mayor and school superintendent, was killed Tuesday when his pickup collided with a truck five miles west of Friona on FM-3140.

Services are pending with Parsons-Ellis Funeral Home here.

Investigating officers said the driver of the truck, Vernon Redwine of Brownfield, was not injured. Edelmon was pronounced dead at the scene.

Edelmon served as mayor of Friona from 1966 to 1970. He was named Friona's Man of the Year in 1967. He had served as superintendent of Springlake schools before moving to Friona and was superintendent in Friona from 1937 to 1941.

A charter member and first president of Friona Lions Club, Edelmon served as Lions International District Governor in 1966-67. He was elected to the Lions Hall of Fame in 1975.

Edelmon served as a director of Girlstown USA for 10 years. He served four years as chairman of the local soil and conservation committee and 12 years as trustee of the High Plains Research Foundation. He also served 12 years as a director of Plains Cotton Growers and was a director of the Texas Corn Growers Association.

He married Ruth Officer in 1929 at Lubbock. He was a 1929 graduate of Texas Tech. He was a member of the Sixth Street Church of Christ.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Von of Friona; a daughter, Jan Edelmon of McLean, Va.; a sister, Mrs. Mildred Williams of Mesa, Ariz.; two brothers, Grady Edelmon of Muleshoe and Claude Edelmon of Dumas; and four grandchildren.

The family requests that memorials be in the form of contributions to Girlstown.

Judge's Ruling Won't Affect Hereford Bilingual System

By CHERI WARD
Staff Writer

Hereford schools will not be affected by a federal judge's ruling that the state of Texas must provide equal education for all Spanish-speaking students within the next six years.

"We're already pretty much in compliance," Ophelia Echevarria, bilingual education director for Hereford schools, said Tuesday.

State law now requires classes for Mexican-American students not proficient in English through the third grade; Hereford schools extend this program to encompass all grade levels.

No total dollar estimate was available for the cost of the entire bilingual program, Echevarria said, but an estimate of $420,000 was compiled from different sources.

State funds provide $25 per year for supplies and materials for students up to third grade, and the federally funded Title VII program for grades four through six provides another $68,000.

The remainder of the $42 million figure is paid out as salaries to teachers, aides and directors of the program based on an average salary of $12,000 per year for each of 28 teachers.

Most bilingual educators and teacher's aides are Mexican-American-about five are non-Mexican-American, Echevarria said. Hereford's bilingual

Bilingual Education Strong

Ophelia Echevarria, bilingual education director of Hereford schools, said Hereford schools are far ahead of state requirements for bilingual education and meet new federal demands. Hereford's program extends from kindergarten through twelfth grade and is staffed by 28 bilingual teachers and classroom aides. (Brand photo by Cheri Ward.)

Congratulations to Georgia Sparks on being selected as Woman of the Year by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Georgia is one of our favorite people, and she has given much of her time and talents to community improvement and progress.

We attended a "roast" for Charles Duvall Monday night, and the Northwest Elementary principal is either a very nice fellow or his associates were afraid to say anything very bad. The "barbs" aimed at the Administrator of the Year were very mild.

About the worse thing that was said is that Duvall is a Bum Phillips look-alike. Well, some of his friends did tell some whoopers about Duvall's hunting and fishing trips!

We're not going to repeat the story about how many pheasant he shot on one hunting excursion!

Congratulations to Duvall...it's quite an honor to be selected as one of the top school administrators in the state.

The Whiteface Booster Club, under the leadership of Bob Josseland, is attempting to widen its scope of activities and take a more active interest in all sports. Football has traditionally been the primary interest of the club.

The boosters will name a Fan of the Week during district basketball season and recognize the individual at home games. This project gets underway next week when the Whiteface girls open district play here against Monterey.

Miss America 1980, Cheryl Prewitt, will be the guest speaker and entertainer for the annual chamber banquet here Feb. 5. We happened to catch an appearance by Miss Prewitt on the 700 club on television the other night, and it was very interesting.

Miss Prewitt was in an auto accident when she was 11 years old, and it resulted in facial lacerations and a crushed leg. She had more than 100 stitches in her face, but has never had plastic surgery.

On the television program, Miss Prewitt gave a Christian testimony of her miraculous recovery from the accident. One leg was shorter than the other after the accident, and she credited the healing power of God for her recovery. The former Miss America also sang several songs, and we look forward to hearing her in Hereford!

update wednesday State Building Claims Victim

NEW YORK (AP) — A 33-year-old man plunged to his death from the 86th story observation deck of the Empire State Building and crashed through the roof of a parked van.

Passerby Fred Bacardi said he heard a loud "whizzing" sound Tuesday followed by "a loud crash. I just ran."

Stewart Coppelman of Staten Island was the first person since 1977 to commit suicide by jumping from the famous 102-story skyscraper, police said.

Witnesses said Coppelman calmly removed his topcoat in 16-degree weather, silently climbed over the seven-foot retaining wall and railing, looked back at a dozen people on the observation deck, squatted and jumped.

Twenty-four people have leaped to their deaths since the building was opened 50 years ago, but only six have fallen all the way to the street.

Police said the force with which Coppelman thrust himself outward enabled him to avoid hitting setbacks on the 72nd, 21st and sixth floors of the building.

In Chicago, a 36-year-old man survived an apparent suicide attempt when he plunged from a 19th-floor fire escape and crashed through the roof of a parked car, police said.

Super-Cold Leaves 44 Dead

By C. W. MIRANKER
Associated Press Writer

A wave of super-cold air that has claimed at least 44 lives since Christmas continued its frosty assault on the East today, icing harbors from Maine to Chesapeake Bay, freezing Florida oranges by the millions and forcing up the prices of some shellfish.

The mercury dipped to 22 below zero in Massena, N.Y., early today after falling to record lows Tuesday in many Southeastern cities. Temperatures hit 7 in Wilmington, N.C., and 8 in Tallahassee, Fla. New England continued to register temperatures from the teens to below zero.

At least 44 deaths — most from exposure and over-exertion while shoveling snow — have been reported in 14 states since Christmas.

The cold meant trouble to people trying to travel in sluggish cars or buses and to people staying at homes affected by sporadic power outages and heating fuel shortages.

There were rotating power blackouts for some 250,000 homes in dozens of Florida communities as cold-weather demand strained generating plants.

Abscam Money

Found in Closet

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than a dozen of the $100 bills the wife of former Rep. John Jenrette said she found in Jenrette's closet last week were part of the Abscam bribery money the South Carolina Democrat was convicted of accepting. The Washington Post today quoted sources as saying.

Jenrette, who has denied taking money from FBI undercover agents, could not be reached for comment on the Post report. But he told the Post on Monday, "I can assure you if the money came from Abscam I'll walk into jail right now."

Jenrette said the $25,000 found by his wife, Rita, was from a variety of sources, including his law office, legal funds donated by friends and "money my mother gave me before she died."

Rita Jenrette has said she is seeking a divorce from the ex-congressman. The Post quoted its sources as saying that a complete check of the $100 bills by FBI agents on Tuesday showed some serial numbers matched those of money used in the Abscam investigation. A spot check on Monday had not found any matches.

Man Pleads Guilty To Shooting Boy

HOUSTON (AP) — Allan Dunbar is 15. He once was a gifted student and a good athlete.

Today he is legally blind, partially paralyzed and in a wheelchair.

He was the victim of gunshot wounds in the neck, head, shoulder, hand and arm.

Herman Vestal Sharpe is 80. He has little money. Some of what he once had was taken from him by a robber. He is still frightened.

Sharpe is the man who shot young Dunbar.

The elderly man pleaded no contest Tuesday to a charge of attempted murder. He will be sentenced in late February.

Assistant District Attorney Paul Coselli said the judge will be "faced with an awful dilemma when the sentencing day comes."

"What do you do with an 80-year-old man who has just been robbed and does something like this. He can't even help with the medical bills."

"On the one hand what good does it do to put this elderly man who has never been in trouble before in jail? But on the other hand can you let someone who shoots a young boy go free?" Coselli asked.

The youth was selling newspaper subscriptions to earn spending money on a hot August night.

It was about 8:30 p.m. when he walked to Sharpe's home.

The elderly man, still frightened from the robbery, opened fire with a .22 caliber rifle.

Barbara Dunbar, Allan's mother, said she no longer is bitter but "I will resent it if he (Sharpe) is let out on the street again. He could hurt someone else and it could be someone even younger than my son."

educators are distributed throughout the school system.

Twenty-one teachers work with kindergarten through third graders to prepare them for mainstreaming as soon as possible.

New students and students having difficulty making the transition to English classes continue the program at Shirley, Bluebonnet and West Central intermediate schools with an additional four teachers.

Three more teachers work with students in the two junior high schools and the high school.

Most of the students above sixth grade are new to the HISD system, but some students remain with the program for a number of years, Echevarria said.

There are several reasons for a lengthy stay in the program, she said. "Their main problem is scoring a certain percentage on achievement tests, but there are other difficulties involved."

"A lot of students that we have in higher grades are students that have been tested since 1978 when bilingual testing on all students was begun. These are students that have been in English classes and need the bilingual education to better their performance," Echevarria said.

Hereford's bilingual program began in 1974, and the number of students has increased to about 700 now, about 7.5 percent of total HISD enrollment.

Echevarria said the increase is due to an influx of Mexican-American families to the Hereford area.

The recent controversy about education of children of illegal aliens failed to affect Hereford schools because, "it is a policy of the HISD never to ask for documents of citizenship," said Echevarria.

She said the bilingual program does include quite a few illegal alien children, but they are not a major reason for the large Hereford program.

The goal of bilingual education is to get students integrated English classes as soon as possible. Most children accomplish this by second grade if they begin the bilingual program in kindergarten.

Bilingual education involves an intensive ESL program. ESL represents English-Spanish language. Students in bilingual classes receive instruction in the English language as well as Spanish instruction of other studies.

Children have no problem with switching to all English classes, Echevarria said, because although Spanish may be the predominant language at home, the children hear English on television and at school.

Echevarria began working in Hereford schools as a kindergarten aide in 1970. She returned to college and received her Bachelor of Arts with an elementary education major and Spanish minor from West Texas State in 1974.

She is now attending graduate school at West Texas and hopes to get her Master's degree in administration this summer.

Working as a classroom aide brought about Echevarria's interest in bilingual education, and she began her bilingual career in 1974.

As a bilingual teacher, she attended many meetings and conferences through the state pertaining to bilingual aid education.

These meetings are geared toward training teachers for effectiveness in the classroom, and the conferences also provide training for directors.

"I find bilingual education

very rewarding, Echevarria said. "I really enjoyed working with the students while teaching, but now I can use some of my experience as a teacher in my present position."

While Echevarria has no specific goal in regard to the bilingual program, she would like to improve the program overall. "The way the program is set up meets the needs of students, but we need to work on some things to better the program," she said.

Echevarria is married and has two sons; Eddie, 19, is at college in Dallas, and Ronnie, 17, is a senior at Hereford High School.

secretary: Frances Berry, parliamentarian, and Leatrice Clark, Mary Thomas and Jane White, directors.

Plaques of appreciation were presented to the three retiring board members, Mary Herring, Marcia Snyder and Olivia Denning.

After accepting the position of president, Mrs. Gilbert expressed her gratitude by stating, "I view 1981 with mixed emotions."

Presiding over a 203-member organization, Mrs. Gilbert stated that she hoped the year 1981 in the Women's Division will be "participating fully."

Following her acceptance speech, Mrs. Gilbert made announcements concerning the upcoming Chamber Banquet, and stated that Olivia Denning will serve as chairman of the decorations committee for this event.

A plaque in appreciation of the efforts of the retiring president, Frances Berry, was presented by Mrs. Gilbert.

Before adjourning the meeting, Mrs. Berry announced the winners of the door prizes, Carrell Ann Simons and Jane White.

Previous "Women of the Year" include Irene McKinster, 1971; Katherine Kester, 1972; Peaches Reinauer, 1973; Wynelle Robinson, 1974; Lavon Nieman, 1975; Inez Albright, 1976; Sherry Hoover, 1977; Susie McGee, 1978; and Mrs. Adams, 1979.

question of whether sprinklers will replace row irrigation in the High Plains and quickly pointed out that the whole question depends on a particular producer's situation.

Depending on soil type, management ability and labor problems, a sprinkler might work for an individual producer. Producers must be sure the savings on their particular soil and in their labor situation measure up, however," said Sammons.

Leon New, Extension agricultural engineer, presented a summary on pumping unit efficiency tests that have been conducted throughout the Panhandle. He explained why low engine and pump performance causes fuel costs for an individual irrigation well to be higher and pointed out that additional fuel cost caused by low equipment performance can pay the cost of repair, sometimes within a year.

Ken Glenn and Rob Marshall of Big T Pump Co. of Hereford commented on information required by pump repair firms as they begin attempting to improve efficiency of units.

"Perhaps a grower is entitled to know the anticipated level of efficiency to help warrant the expenditure. The grower can provide information to ensure maximum efficiency, and there are equipment limitations too," said Glenn.

tors feel the program is worthwhile even if only one child is discovered to have kidney disease.

The proposed sale of property near the bus barn received a negative report from David Hutchins who reported the sale would be of no benefit due to possible expansions of the school system.

The board unanimously passed a resolution commending Charles Duvall, principal of Northwest Elementary School, for being named "Administrator of the Year" by the Classroom Teacher's Association.

Superintendent Holder reported that a slab had been poured in the old Central School renovation, project and that total cost of the project is still expected to be about $40,000.

Holder also reported that roofing at several schools is continuing to keep maintenance on the buildings up to date.

Wartes reported on the evaluation of an energy audit, and he questioned the beneficial aspects of federal grants.

The board discussed ways to improve efficiency at Tierra Blanca and West Central schools, and Wartes suggested time clocks to regulate electrical heating and cooling to prevent the misuse of thermostats.

Ceiling fans purchased by the school district are being checked for their effectiveness in providing circulation of both cool and hot air in several different locations, Wartes said.

In the board's evaluation of the superintendent's performance, Mack Tubb, chairman of the personnel committee, recommended that the superintendent's contract be extended another year.

Tubb said that although the superintendent is doing an outstanding job and merits a salary increase, the board needs to wait for the legislature to discuss school financing.

The board will discuss a salary increase at a later date.

The board received four resignations and four recommendations for employment from superintendent Holder.

Jean Ruther, Rondall Tidmore, Mary Lou Ward and Galileo Wells resigned from the system.

Louisa Boyce, Joe Crockett, Patricia Hickman and Terry Summers were recommended for employment.

Mrs. Billie Young, cosmetology instructor, presented the curriculum report to the board.

Bullock Warns Of Income Tax

AUSTIN, Tex. — State Comptroller Bob Bullock Friday warned any increase in local sales taxes would lead to an income tax in Texas.

He said the cities, counties, a few hospital districts and some school boards are now on record wanting the Legislature to give them additional sales tax authority.

Texas has accepted the sales tax in its present form but it would cease to be painless if every level of government tried to get a slice of the sales tax pie.

"We now have a four percent state sales tax and more than a thousand cities have adopted an additional one percent tax and two cities have a mass transit sales tax," he said.

"That adds up to five, five and a-half or six percent depending where you live. If every level of government that wants a sales tax gets one, I wouldn't be surprised to see the sales tax reach 10 percent," Bullock said, "and that would be two percent over New York's—the nation's highest."

The rate would be so high that state government would lose forever the ability to turn to the sales tax for revenue and would be forced into an income tax just like 45 other states have done.

Bullock said when the Legislature starts next week it should dump legislative proposals for new sales taxes into the trash can where they belong.

He said government was already paying for most of the roads and highways in the state and a lion's share of public education and public health.

"I'm sick and tired of politicians crying for local control and then standing in the shadow of the Capitol asking for a handout. The state has a pay-as-you-go law that keeps its budget in balance and local governments can do the same."

He said cities and counties should look in their own backyards for the answers before they come running to Austin.

"There's nothing stopping these governments from charging user fees or even adopting their own income tax if their citizens sincerely want more services," he said.

Two Arrested On Theft Charges

Two Hereford men were arrested yesterday for theft and public intoxication in the former Safeway parking lot on West Park.

Esteban Gonzales, 21, 223 Kibbe, and Joe Valdez, 18, 207 Knight St., were arrested and charged with the theft of copper tubing valued at $285 from the old grocery freezers at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

A witness reported the incident to police and investigation by police revealed the theft.

A 56-year-old male arrested on a capias warrant yesterday was judged by a municipal court for failure to pay fines.

Police answered five non-offense calls and issued two traffic citations Tuesday.

A formal ribbon-cutting ceremony was held Tuesday morning for the Paul Hubbard Exxon Service Station, located at 403 N. 25 Mile Ave. The Hereford Hustlers, a C of C goodwill ambassador group, conducted the ceremony to

Club Celebrates Founder's Day

Members of the Hereford Music Club were honored at the Founder's Day program when members met at the home of Mrs. Joe Reinauer Jr. Monday afternoon.

Mrs. W.E. Dameron, Mrs. C.J. Mountz, Mrs. S.O. Wilson and Mrs. R.P. Coneway each gave a brief history of the founding of the music club. Mrs. Mountz told club members the organization grew from a quartet organized in 1912 by Mrs. G.A.F. Parker. The purpose was to fill the need of both private and public entertainment.

Mrs. H.H. Hawkins, Mrs. Ezra Norton, Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Mountz were members of the quartet.

A chorus class was later organized under the direction of Emil F. Myers. In 1915, twelve more members were added to the class. The music club was organized in 1916.

"Endless appreciation should be given to Mrs. H.L. Broadwell and Mrs. Parker. They had a personal interest in every member of the club and kept us inspired," Mrs. Dameron, charter member, said.

"The club did much more entertaining for the town and for our own pleasure than we do now," she said.

The club has celebrated its golden anniversary and will celebrate its diamond anniversary in 10 years.

Mrs. Coneway who came to Texas from Indiana, became a member in 1922. She too stressed the importance of giving honor to Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Broadwell.

"The most important thing I did for the club," Mrs. Wilson, charter member, said, "was to bring Dessie Mae (McCracken) to her first meeting. It was very important to her to have courses of study. It was really a study club."

Also included in the meeting was a brief history of the founding of the National Federation of Music Clubs and Texas Federation of Music Clubs presented by Mrs. W.T. Carmichael.

Mrs. Mountz sang, "Beside Still Waters, and was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ken Walser.

A.W. Noll's "Doan Ye Cry, Ma Honey," was performed by a group of charter members including Mesdames Walser, Reinauer Sr., J.D. Neill, Tom Burdett, Lyle Homes and Ed Line. They were accompanied by Mrs. A.J. Schroeter.

Mrs. J.C. McCracken performed a piano solo, "A la Bien Aime," by Schuett.

During a brief business meeting, club members decided to sponsor a concert for Blake Allen, Jan. 30 at 7:30 p.m. at the Kinsey Parlor of the First Baptist Church.

Feb. 10, the club will have guest day at the First Baptist Church.

Members voted to move the election of officers to March and change the meeting time to 1:30 p.m. for the next year on a trial basis.

Mrs. Sid Shaw, Mrs. Bob Sims and Mrs. Walser served as co-hostesses.

The club will meet again Feb. 9 at the First Baptist Church Sanctuary.

Members present at the meeting were Mmes. J.R. Allison, Lynton Allred, Thomas Betzen, Tom Burdett, Allen Cansler, W.T. Carmichael, W.E. Dameron, Lyle Holmes, Ed Line, J.C. McCracken, J.D. Neill, Joe Reinauer Sr., and Joe Reinauer Jr.

No Censoring on Radio

DEAR ANN LANDERS: During the recent political season many of our readers were subjected to a radio commercial in which the word "bull—" was used twice. This offended a great number of people. The radio station where I work was flooded with calls.

We tried to explain to an outraged public that the FCC (Federal Communications Commission) has decreed that there will be no censoring, no editing and no rejection of commercials from politicians—regardless of content. This means if some kook wants to yell the filthiest words he can think of over and over for 30 seconds, the FCC says he must be permitted to do it. TV is also to this ruling, so if some nut wants to show 30 seconds of the wildest pornography, the law is on his side.

Your business readers might like to know that politicians get the lowest rates possible, whether they buy time for one commercial or a thousand. Commercial customers, on the other hand, must buy a thousand to get the same rate.

If your readers are interested in keeping filth off the airwaves in the next election, they should write to their congressperson and protest. Otherwise, they should keep quiet if someone decides to flash a picture of genitals on TV during a future campaign.—Disgusted in Bay City, Mich.

DEAR BAY CITY: I checked with Newton Minow, a Chicago attorney and former head of the FCC. He said, "Yes, it is true. The law forbids any censorship of a political broadcast. Congress passed this law a year ago."

On balance, I believe it is a good law. To edit political messages would be a violation of the First Amendment. In exchange for freedom of speech I am willing to listen to a little barnyard language. Did you notice that the candidate who used the offensive word twice in his commercial didn't get many votes? The shock treatment, or whatever he was after, didn't work. In fact, it distracted the listener from the message and was self-defeating.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'd like to comment on the letter from the woman who signed herself, "One Less Scandal." She was feeling pretty good about being a "tested marketable item."

First, she said the proposition came from her husband's best friend. Best friend, huh? Second, she said some wives remain faithful because they have never had an appealing offer. Appealing offer? Huh? Then she went on to say she knows scandal can tear families apart. True. Now it is time she took a good look at the rat who asked her to have an affair. Why feel complimented when a man like that wants to go to bed with you? He is nobody's friend and couldn't care less about a scandal. That kind never does. He just wants what he wants.

There is no way to keep low-down skunks from asking, but how a sensible woman can consider a cheap pitch like that a compliment is beyond me.—20-20.

DEAR 20-20: Thank you for shaking the molars of that dumbbell who was flattered out of her gourd because her husband's best friend invited her to go horizontal. A proposition like that doesn't mean the woman is considered desirable—it just means he thinks she is available.

Haig bruises some egos

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In his haste to take control of transition operations at the State Department, Alexander Haig has reportedly angered some Senate conservatives whose support he may need if Democratic liberals keep their vow to fight his confirmation as secretary of state.

Soon after his nomination was announced, Haig met with the Reagan transition team at the State Department to receive its final report and to ask for its members' brief assessments of the problems they had encountered in their investigations. He then thanked the transition aides for their efforts but made it clear that he would have no further need for them.

This abrupt dismissal apparently bruised some egos. The disgruntled team members vented their feelings to reporters, which resulted in several newspaper stories that were quickly denied by high transition officials.

Transition spokesman James Brady insisted that there was nothing unusual in Haig's action. "The transition-team members knew that their final reports were due on Dec. 22 and that their jobs terminated at that point," said Brady. "Their jobs were never intended to go beyond Christmas."

Meanwhile, other transition officials attributed the seeming abruptness of the State Department team's dismissal to nothing more than Haig's "military nature and manner."

These officials were correct — up to a point. In fact, all transition teams were supposed to have completed their final written reports before the holidays.

However, the transition was designed to take place in several stages, of which the written reports were only the first. The second was the implementation of recommendations in those reports with special emphasis on the replacement of personnel targeted by the teams.

It was expected that most team members would return after the holidays to work with the incoming secretaries and their top aides in initiating new programs. Many hoped that their work would eventually land them high-level jobs in the departments or agencies that they had evaluated.

What is angering at least part of the State Department transition team — and its influential sponsors — is that Haig singled out three of its members to continue working with him. They were Robert Neumann, the team leader and a former ambassador; Robert McFarlane, a retired army colonel who most recently worked for the Senate Armed Services Committee; and Paul Wolfowitz, a former civilian Pentagon official who Haig knows from his military days.

Missing from this group were some of the team's outspoken conservatives, including John Carbaugh, the young aide to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who had declared himself the group's expert on Latin America. A number of conservatives took these omissions as an indication that Haig might have reneged on reported promises to allow them substantial input into his planned "housecleaning" at Foggy Bottom.

Worried transition officials made a hurried round of phone calls to assure the conservatives that Haig was not going back on those promises and that his selection of team members to continue the transition was not final. The conservatives were told that Haig had asked the three to stay on simply because he was personally acquainted with them and that he would call back others as he reviewed the team's report.

Transition sources report that the conservatives, including Helms, agreed to take a wait-and-see attitude but suggested that Haig give some strong indications before the inauguration of his willingness to support their positions if they are to be counted on to fight for his confirmation.

This leaves Haig walking a political tightrope — a feat with which he is not entirely unfamiliar. All of this should make the State Department one of the most interesting places in which to observe the transition during the coming weeks.

Small Talk

By SUE COLEMAN

Celebration of Mrs. W.E. Dameron's 85th birthday on the weekend was climaxed by a party Saturday evening.

Her children and their spouses, Jane and Jitter Noland of Oklahoma City, Bill and Nicki Dameron of Salida, Colo., were hosts at an open house in the Country Club honoring Mama Jane.

"The place was packed," a guest described it, with friends from out of town as well as around the county, and family members including Mrs. Dameron's grandchildren and great-grandchildren, down to the smallest ones who helped entertain guests as they were passed from arms to arms to be admired and cooed over.

A grande dame on the Hereford scene, Mrs. Dameron is the daughter of pioneers and her husband was a prominent Texas rancher, civic leader and Hereford mayor. She has been and is enthusiastic in promoting interests as varied as music, cattle breeding and church activity.

More than that, she likes people, and as a friend said in response to a remark that "she was always so nice to me," "Jane is always nice to everybody."

That's why everybody joins in wishing her many more happy birthdays!

Those who are working on the new history of Deaf Smith County are finding their biggest difficulty convincing residents who didn't come here in a covered wagon, that even the most recent comers are part of the county's history and could submit their histories for a place in the book.

Much of the problem may be that Bessie Patterson's excellent history which was issued in the 1960's is subtitled Stories of Pioneer Families, and it stopped with people who came here in the 1920's.

The aim of this new book is to bring the Deaf Smith story up to date, including family histories of new residents as well as those who came 50, 40 or 30 years ago.

Too many of those say, "Why, I can't be in a history book; I'm not a pioneer!" And sure enough they aren't that old, but they have had a part in the growth of the county and maybe they did pioneer some of today's biggest industries, like cattle feeding and vegetable processing.

If Deaf Smith County is a part of your history, then you're a part of its history and your story is needed to make the book complete.

Somehow it seems to happen often that the smallest member of the band is lugging the tuba in the parade, while a 200-pounder is daintily carrying the flute.

I thought of that in the postoffice the other day when I saw Mary Panciera, certainly on the petite side, reach to the top row of boxes and unlock one to get the mail, stretching as far as she could on tiptoe. She would have the highest box!

Car Pool Matching System Designed

CANYON - Tired of commuting alone to and from West Texas State University? Angry about rising gasoline costs? Frustrated with a car pool or trying to find one?

The WTSU Student Activities Council-Student Programming has designed the Car Pool Matching System.

Forms for the Car Pool Matching System are available at the WTSU Activities Center. Interested car pool mates should provide a name, address and zip code, in addition to class schedules and times of departure. The request form also asks if the applicant prefers to drive only, ride only or share the driving.

Applicants will be matched by zip code. Within two weeks following registration on Wednesday, Jan. 14, for the spring semester, a list of applicants will be available at the Activities Center.

According to the enrollment report for the fall 1980 semester, 2,758 students commuted to WTSU. That figure does not include the number of commuting faculty and staff members.

Cut flowers are likely to last longer if you change their water daily.

A cucumber is not a vegetable, technically, but a fruit.

Hereford Girls Reel Off 18th Straight Win

Another One "Tascosa" Bites the Dust

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Brand Sports Editor

It was only fitting, that the recent cloud of uncertainties prevailing over the Hereford girls' varsity basketball team be laid to rest with an overpowering 49-36 win against Amarillo Tascosa here Tuesday night in the La Plata Gymnasium.

It had been the Rebels' upset minded (50-48) efforts of a month ago, after all, that pointed Hereford toward an unnerving trend of self denial (self inflicted selfishness coming primarily in the scoring department, as the once volatile squad relived unsure and narrowly won battles with more and more frequency).

And the foreboding of yet another possible upset wasn't completely out of the forecast in this most recent instance.

That is, until the female Whiteface unit, leading by as much as eight points and as little as three at times in the third quarter, essentially canned the victory by outscoring Tascosa five points (16-11) in the climaxing final period.

After holding off Amarillo's attempts inside the lane, to near futility in the third period, Hereford carried a 33-25 advantage into the fourth quarter and compounded that lead with a quick flurry of eight points to Tascosa's echoing three.

Tascosa's top scoring 5-7 All-District forward post, Sharon Mack (who led all other Amarillo scorers with 11 points on the night) popped in a hurried shot at the top of the lane in the opening of the final segment, before Louise Mays (Hereford's high point distributor with 16 total) took a ricochet of the boards and drove inside, drew a foul on TBS's Nettie Gilbreath and put in a layup.

Mays then dropped the front end of a one-and-one situation to precede two more HHS buckets, as defensive stalwart Amy Schumacher stole the ball once and set up a Terri Harkins score from 25 feet out before she stole it again for a layup on a Tascosa inbound pass with 6:04 remaining.

The once, relatively close ball game had since become Hereford's one-sided 41-28 ordeal. Color came back into the solemn faces of Sower's Sorority and smiles begat more smiles - the HHS squad could finally afford to breathe again at that point.

THE HEREFORD BRAND SPORTS

Page 6-The Hereford Brand-Wednesday, January 14, 1981

"We finally came out of our shell tonight and at just about the right time with district play less than a week away," noted an elated Sowers who had even been known to smile once or twice between contortions on the bench. "We finally started getting the ball down the court in good fashion - playing our own kind of running game and it made the difference here tonight."

"Beforehand, we were sitting back too much, we were playing too cautious and the result of that allowed the defense to get set up thus keeping us from getting as much inside as we were capable of," he said. "To a certain extent we did that some early tonight, but we finally started getting down and ready to score midway into the second quarter."

"We started looking for people inside and we were getting those shots rather than having all our points come from the outside - I'm very happy that we finally started getting back on our track because Tascosa is a good club. I think they and a few other people were expecting an upset, and it could have happened had we not played so well."

Although the Whitefaces didn't reaffirm a substantial domineering stance until late in the conflict, the squad never did lose complete control of the advantage.

Led by rocketing long-distance shots from team captain Terry Harkins and Cathy Lane (both cagers shared Hereford's second leading scoring tallies after accumulating 10 points apiece) the Whiteface reeled off a 10-4 lead right off the bat, before Tascosa's irritated coach Nannette Ashley motioned for a timeout.

Lane hit a 35-foot shot from her well-worn spot at the baseline to send Hereford's lead to 12-6 with 3:35 left in the first quarter, and calmed an inclement dry spell by hitting another with 1:00 remaining to refurbish the Whitefaces with a 14-11 upperhand.

Yet, even then, the duel wasn't over. Both teams had trouble overcoming each other in the second and third periods, despite Hereford's ability to retain a narrow lead by outscoring the Rebels 6-4 and 13-10 in those respective rounds.

With less than a minute gone in the third quarter, Mays answered an earlier Sharon Mack shot by driving inside for a layup. That made the score ride in Hereford's favor 22-17. Cathy Lane plummeted a 25-foot jumper from the side and Joyce High added a soft jumper from the top of the key to extend that margin to 26-17.

Tascosa hit 5-6 free-throw attempts to narrow the score to 27-22 before the Whitefaces rebounded back to an eight point lead at the close of the quarter.

"We got half the battle won with this win here tonight," said Sowers referring to his squad's timely rise out of a previously winning but clinging playing slump. "We were finally coming back to our style of play tonight and made it work the way it's supposed to."

"And that's what we want to do in district play. Monterey is a club that likes to give away the trash shots as long as they can control the inside. We were getting inside effectively tonight and even missed some relatively easy scores by not paying attention, and considering they quality of club Tascosa is, I believe we can accomplish that inside task again in league play," he added.

The Whiteface team is scheduled to test that philosophy in district competition in Lubbock Friday as it travels to meet the Lubbock High Westerners at 7:45 p.m. The junior varsity match will precede that ordeal at 6:00 p.m.

The Hereford girls' junior varsity cage squad pushed its sprawling overall season record to 17-3 here Tuesday night as it dismembered Tascosa by a handy margin of 40-17.

Led by the scoring inputs of Gail Bartels and Sherrie Ellis, who knocked in respective high point tallies of 14 and 13 points, the Hereford junior varsity unit skunked Amarillo 10-0 in the first quarter, faltered in the second as Tascosa vaulted back and clipped off a 11-6 scoring advantage, edged THS 11-3 in the third and nailed the lid shut on the affair with a 13-3 melee in the final period.

Nicklaus Is Classic's Favorite

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) - Jack Nicklaus, enthusiastically and optimistically seeking improvement over one of his great years, opens his 1981 pro golf season in the $304,500 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

"I'm still interested in playing golf, excited about the competition," said Nicklaus, a week away from his 41st birthday and starting his 20th professional season in the 90-hole, 5-days event that began today. "Any time you win two majors, it's a good year," Nicklaus said of his great comeback in the 1980 season in which he scored record-setting triumphs in the U.S. Open and the PGA.

"But I didn't have the consistency I'd like. I won two majors but I didn't play very well in the other two. There's always room for improvement. I've worked some at home the last few weeks and I'm looking forward to the season," Nicklaus said.

Although he hasn't played competitively since early last fall, the Golden Bear, now the owner of a record 17 major professional titles, was one of the prime favorites for the a $50,000 first prize that goes to the winner of the game's longest tournament.

The unique format calls for the limited field of 128 pros to play one round on each of four desert courses, La Quinta, Indian Wells, Tamarisk and Bermuda Dunes.

Former President Gerald Ford, who plays one round each with Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Tom Kite and defending champion Craig Stadler, tops the amateur field which also includes Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill.

Sports figures include George Brett, Billy Martin, Pancho Gonzales and Johnny Bench.

Foul Play

Tascosa's Lisa Dawson (54) tries to pick off a layup shot by Lori Albracht, but winds up with a foul instead. Albracht's play, followed by several more such attempts in the third quarter of the two teams' competition here Tuesday night eventually boosted Hereford to a win. The highly successful HHS cage unit is scheduled to play its first district clash in Lubbock Friday as it meets the Lubbock High Westerners at 7:45 in the Lubbock High Gym. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

Drop Certain Win to Last Ditch THS Charity Shots Hereford Cagers Lose in Overtime

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Brand Sports Editor
AMARILLO — Head varsity basketball coach Dan Giliuson knew all too well the implications behind Murphy's Law, that being "If Any Thing Can Go Wrong It Probably Will."

He had just witnessed the greater meaning behind the law's theory as he watched his squad lose another disheartening battle, its eighth straight defeat, 47-45 in overtime to the Tascosa Rebels in Amarillo Tuesday night.

The loss dropped the squad to a 3-19 season mark only one game shy of district competition, and left a bad taste in Giliuson's mouth — as he preferred to put it, "We had the game in our pocket and we just lost it."

The Whitefaces, scratching and clawing their way to a 43-43 deadlocked score at the end of regulation time against the remotely successful 7-14 Rebels, worked their way to a controlling 45-43 advantage before losing the close-quarters affair in the final minute on two true Tascosa free-throws.

"We held the ball for a minute going into overtime and Gary Parman (Hereford's second leading scorer with 10 points) hit one to give us a two point lead," said Giliuson recalling the narrow conflict. "They came back and scored one and then we took a time out, preparing for one final shot. We worked the ball for a time and one of Tascosa's players stole the ball from Alan Wartes (Hereford's leading scorer with 12)."

That segment of play didn't terminate the clash, but the ensuing foul Wartes committed on the Tascosa thief did.

The Tascosa stalwart dropped in both ends of his charity opportunity to give Amarillo a two-point edge.

"We brought the ball back down with about 14 seconds to go and we shoot — it doesn't go in and that was the ball game," said Giliuson disapprovingly.

"The guys played an excellent ball game — they never panicked, played good defense and they did what they had to do to win — the basic reason we didn't claim a victory was that we just committed a few costly mistakes right there at the end," he said. "The funny thing is, Tascosa never really did hurt us until overtime. They tried to press us in order to speed us up, but the kids adjusted to it real well. We controlled the inside and kept up in scoring." "We did everything we were supposed to except get the win — it was a game we could have and should have won." Hereford is scheduled to meet the Dimmit Bobcats here Friday in the concluding pre-district clash of the year at 7:45 p.m. The squad will then play host to Lubbock Coronado in a district opener between the two squads.

Hereford's second-team All-District post Louise Mays takes a rebound and goes up and over Tascosa's Nettie Gilbreath (35) in Tuesday night's respectively close encounter between the two squads. Mays and Gilbreath had a battle of their own going — Gilbreath was latter injured after a miscalculated steal attempt sent her over the back of the Whiteface cager, and to the hard floor. The Whitefaces accumulated their 18th straight win after subduing the Tascosa team 49-36. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

Sipe Named MVP By Football Writers

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Brian Sipe, who's overcome long odds throughout his National Football League career, likes the underdog Oakland Raiders in Super Bowl XV.

"All year long, if some one told me it would be Philadelphia-Oakland, I would have bet the ranch on Philadelphia," said Sipe. "Now I wouldn't bet against Oakland. They're really hot."

"In order to beat Oakland, Philadelphia has to beat the individual man-to-man coverages. Oakland's style is to always try to get man-to-man matchups. Consequently, you're not beating defensive theories, you're beating matchups."

Sipe certainly has some first-hand experience. His Cleveland Browns were beaten 14-12 in the divisional playoffs by Oakland two weeks ago, when Sipe's last-minute pass, killing a deep drive, was intercepted by Mike Davis.

The forthright Sipe had shaken off his disappointment Tuesday when he was here to collect the Professional Football Writers' Schick Trophy as the National Football League's Most Valuable Player.

Sipe said the play was designed to go to Dave Logan, but Oakland safety Burgess Owens had picked up the Browns' wide receiver. "So I switched to (Ozzie) Newsome," Sipe said. "Our passing game is predicated on what the defense does. When Burgess did what he did, it changed my whole thinking."

"But I'm not at all trying to dodge responsibility. The play selection is not as important as the execution."

Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano called the play, although Sipe was in favor of a conservative approach to ensure a field goal try. But Sipe said Tuesday he didn't try to talk his coach out of the selection. "I just wanted to make sure we went over all the options," he said. "His last words to me were 'Just don't get sacked.'"

Sipe, also The Associated Press' MVP, was an afterthought draft choice, coming on the 13th round from San Diego State in 1974. Considered too small and supposedly possessing a weak arm, he spent two years on the taxi squad before becoming the Browns' starting quarterback early in 1976.

SMU Wins; Tech Edges TCU

By The Associated Press
"It's just another typical Southwest Conference basketball game," Southern Methodist University coach Dave Bliss said after the Mustangs upset Houston, 72-70, in triple overtime Tuesday night.

It was the second overtime upset for the Mustangs in as many weeks as they beat the University of Texas Longhorns in overtime at Austin last week. It also continued a string of SWC upsets, coming one night after Texas upset Arkansas.

In other Southwest Conference action, Texas Tech edged Texas Christian, 57-54, and Baylor whipped Rice, 72-61.

The hero in Tuesday night's upset victory for SMU was Gordon Welch, who earlier made a jump shot at the buzzer to give the Mustangs the upset victory over Texas. Welch scored 13 of the 20 points SMU scored in the three overtime periods and finished the night with 21.

"We just played our hearts out the whole game. It was 55 minutes of good, solid basketball," said Welch.

Houston coach Guy Lewis had little good to say about the game.

"This is certainly the worst first half of basketball we have played this year," Lewis said. "I kept thinking it would get better as time went on. But time went on and on and we didn't get any better." SMU held a 29-26 halftime lead.

SMU was able to keep Rob Williams, the SWC's leading scorer, slightly below his average. Williams, who went into the game averaging 25.7 points per game, got 24.

Texas Tech had to come from a 29-22 halftime deficit to beat Texas Christian, 57-54. Bubba Jennings had 16 points and Dave Swannegan had 14 to lead the Red Raiders over the Horned Frogs. Darrel Browder had 18 for TCU.

Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers praised TCU's performance, but had some criticism for the Red Raiders.

"They (TCU) played with more confidence and were just better than a year ago," Myers said. "We didn't play hard, just real sloppy," Myers said.

A new slate of officers were installed last night during the Chamber Women's annual installation banquet held at the Hereford Country Club. Additional officers installed were from left Carolyn Canon, vice president; Shirley Wilson, secretary; and Frances Berry, parliamentarian.

Reagan's Ad for Van Heusen Shirts Revived

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan is preparing to take over the reigns of power, but on the ad pages of three national magazines this week he's shown twisting, twirling, bending and curling a shirt collar.

Van Heusen Co. dusted off 27-year-old ads showing then movie actor Reagan wearing its Century shirts with the "new revolutionary collar (that) won't wrinkle ever" as a way to congratulate the new president.

"The wonderful thing about America is that sooner or later, everyone's dream can come true," the company says in a message accompanying the ad. "Congratulations, President-elect Ronald Reagan."

The original ad showing Reagan, then star of Universal International's "Law and Order," appeared in the Sept. 26, 1953, edition of the Saturday Evening Post. This week the ad, along with Van Heusen's congratulatory message, is in Time, Newsweek and People.

Van Heusen President Chuck Smith says the ad is a one-shot promotion and "a marvelous opportunity to congratulate the president and restate our feelings about America."

Reagan will not get any royalties for the ad, which is the customary arrangement with print advertising.

Robin Gray, a Reagan press aide, said the ads are "a nice gesture, and I suppose the governor will take it that way." Reagan has not yet seen the ads, Gray said.

Reagan also worked for General Electric Co. and U.S.

Borax, but spokesmen at both companies said there were no plans to revive their old ads.

Reagan was host of "Death Valley Days" for two seasons in the mid-60s on behalf of 20 Mule Team Borax and starred in eight episodes. He also was host of the GE Theater from 1954-62 and promoted the corporate concept of progress.

The Van Heusen Century shirt featured in the 1953 ad sold for $3.95 for white and $4.95 for colors and superfine whites. Van Heusen says it doesn't make a comparable all-cotton shirt any more, but an average Van Heusen today sells for about $17.

Pay for Employees Of House Debated

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A debate about how much House members should pay their employees sparked the first good shouting match of the 1981 Legislature.

A resolution, approved by voice vote Tuesday, sets a $1,550-per-month cap on staff members' salaries in 1981 and 1982. The limit for 1980 is $1,400.

Several House members said the salaries, as approved, are not sufficient to attract good help for their offices.

The resolution, proposed by Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center and chairman of the House Administration Committee, withstood several attempts to raise the cap.

Rep. Tony Polombo, D-Houston, wanted a $1,900 maximum in 1981 and a $2,000 cap in 1982. "They must eat also. Let's put it at a reasonable level," Polombo argued.

A vote against his amendment, Polombo said, would mean "you don't want a breadwinner of a family on your staff."

Laney said "$2,000 a month is a lot of money in Hale Center." However, Polombo said Laney should travel to Houston to see how far $2,000 goes in the big city.

The Polombo amendment failed, 99-43.

Rep. Jerry Benedict, D-Angleton, proposed a $1,900 cap in 1981, and no raise in 1982. It drew the support of Rep. Frank Gaston, R-Republican, who said he needs $1,000 per month to hire a "decent (secretary) who can spell."

"If (Laney) can get a secretary in Hale Center for $200, more power to him," said Gaston.

Benedict's amendment went down, 97-46.

The arguments peaked when Laney and Rep. John Whitmire, D-Houston, got into the session's first shouting match. Whitmire pointed out that staff workers on committees and for Speaker Bill Clayton are not restricted by any salary ceiling.

Mauzy Named Chairman

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby has stacked the odds against wiretap legislation by appointing an outspoken critic of the proposal as chairman of the committee that will consider it. Hobby, who has predicted

Gov. Bill Clements' wiretap proposal would not clear the Senate, named Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, on Tuesday as chairman of the Jurisprudence Committee. Hobby then referred the bill to Jurisprudence.

The Newspaper Bible

SHE MADE WHO'S WHO FOR A TWO-CENT GIFT

Later, as Jesus was teaching the people in the Temple area, He asked them this question: "Why do your religious teachers claim that the Messiah must be a descendant of King David?"

For David himself said - and the Holy Spirit was speaking through him when he said it - "God said to my Lord, sit at My right hand until I make Your enemies Your footstool."

Since David called Him his Lord, how can He be his son? (This sort of reasoning delighted the crowd and they listened to Him with great interest.)

Here are some of the other things He taught them at this time: "Beware of the teachers of religion! For they love to wear the robes of the rich and scholarly, and to have everyone bow to them as they walk through the markets. They love to sit in the best seats in the synagogues, and at the places of honor at banquets -

But they shamelessly cheat widows out of their homes and then, to cover up the kind of men they really are, they pretend to be pious by praying long prayers in public. Because of this, their punishment will be the greater."

Then He went over to the collection boxes in the Temple and sat and watched as the crowds dropped in their money. Some who were rich put in large amounts.

Then a poor widow came and dropped in two pennies. He called His disciples to Him and remarked, "That poor widow has given more than all those rich men put together! For they gave a little of their extra fat, while she gave up her last penny."

Mark 12:35-44

The lieutenant governor filled Mauzy's former job as chairman of the Education Committee with Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, D-Midland. Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, an advocate of bilingual education, was named vice chairman. Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, succeeded W.T. "Bill" Moore as chairman of State Affairs. Moore, a former Senate dean with 31 years experience, was defeated by Kent Caperton in the Democratic Party primary last May.

A Republican, O.H. "Ike" Harris of Dallas, was promoted to chairman of Economic Development, replacing Tom Creighton who did not seek re-election.

Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, replaced A.R. "Babe" Schwartz, who had a reputation as a strong environmentalist, as chairman of Natural Resources. Schwartz was defeated by Republican James "Buster" Brown in the 1980 general election.

Seeding Rangeland Boosts Grazing Potential

COLLEGE STATION -- Seeding rangeland is a step in the right direction for boosting grazing potential. But it's expensive and requires proper planning, selection of adapted plants, good seeding methods and careful management.

"First, look at the quantity and distribution of desirable plants currently present," suggests Dr. Tommy Welch, range brush and weed control specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "If desirable plants make up less than 10-15 percent of the vegetation, seeding is probably necessary." If desirable plants are uniformly distributed and make up more than 10-15 percent of the vegetation, grazing management can usually improve range conditions, notes the specialist.

"Seeding is usually necessary following a brush control method such as root-plowing that destroys existing turf. Also, seeding is usually the most effective way to establish desirable vegetation on abandoned cropland," says Welch.

He advises seeding only on better range sites to insure reasonable chances of success. Do not disturb steep, potentially erosive sites. Seeding range sites that receive runoff water usually provides good results.

Another consideration is to select species and varieties of plants for seeding that are adapted to the area's soil, climate and topography (lay of the land). Also, select plants that are easily established, palatable to animals, relatively productive, able to withstand competition by undesirable plants, able to withstand moderate grazing, and able to prevent erosion under moderate grazing.

Welch suggests checking with county Extension agents or local Soil Conservation Service officials for information on adapted plants.

Planting into a well-prepared seedbed is essential. An ideal seedbed is firm below the seeding depth, is free from live plant competition, and has moderate amounts of mulch or plant residue on the soil surface.

tion is often used because most drills are not sturdy enough for rough rangeland, explains Welch.

Time seeding so that developing seedlings will have the best growing conditions. Warm season plants grow in the summer and will make their best and most vigorous growth if seeded in late winter or early spring. A late summer or fall seeding date for cool season plants may be best because young seedlings may not be able to tolerate hot, dry summers.

To get a newly seeded area established, protect it from grazing through at least one growing season, depending on growing conditions. During periods of harsh growing conditions, two or three years of deferment may be necessary to allow seedlings to establish.

Welch notes that weed control measures such as mowing, shredding or use of herbicides may be necessary during the first growing season to allow seeded species to become established.

"Preparing a good seedbed on abandoned cropland is possible without undue expense, but on rangeland it's a different story," says Welch.

"However, prepare the best seed bed that available resources will allow. For example, rootplowing followed by roller chopping or chaining is an acceptable method of seedbed preparation on brush infested rangeland."

When it comes to seeding rangeland, the two most common methods are broadcast and drill. Broadcasting places seed on the soil surface while drilling puts them into the soil and is superior where a drill can be used. However, broadcast seeding by aerial or ground applica-

Agriculture Computer Conference Scheduled

CORPUS CHRISTI -- Farmers and ranchers are in to computers just like the rest of the business world, and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is working to help them make the most of these technical marvels.

That's the purpose of a workshop on "Computers in Agriculture" to be held here Jan. 27-28 at the Holiday Inn-Emerald Beach.

"This workshop is designed to provide agricultural producers, agricultural lenders, commercial fishermen and Extension personnel an introduction to several of the computers available to them," points out Dr. Richard Trimble, Extension economist in management at Texas A&M University.

He notes that computer programs presently available as well as those soon to be available will be discussed. Also, participants will have an opportunity to operate several of the computer programs in "hands-on" sessions.

Discussions the first day will center around electronic decision aids in farm management, programmable calculators, micro-computers and time sharing systems. The second day will be devoted to workshop sessions in these areas: programmable calculators, micro farm accounting system, time sharing systems, micro-computer decision models, TI 99-4 Micro-Computer software, and APPLE programs in commercial fishing.

Speakers will include Extension Service management and marine economists and a data processing programmer.

Advance registrations are requested by Jan. 23. Registration information is available from Lawrence Lipke, Extension area economist, Rt. 2, Box 589, Corpus Christi, Tex. 78410 (512-265-9201).

ICA Head Opposes Soy in School Meat

AUSTIN -- Roy Wheeler, President of the Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas, says he is opposed to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's plan to buy frozen ground beef with soy protein added for use in USDA's school lunch program.

"The beef industry has already suffered enough due to lack of adequate markets and increased cost of production," said Wheeler. "It seems our government has been a hindrance rather than a help to our industry."

USDA recently announced it is buying a mix of 80 percent ground beef and 20 percent hydrated soy. The purchase will be made with the same basic specification now being used in the regular ground beef purchase program.

Wheeler quoted Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman as saying, "If ground beef with soy added is acceptable for school lunches, it would lead to substantial savings for the program."

"That may be true," said Wheeler, "but what is the value of saving money in one respect when you are contributing to the downfall of the most important segment of our country -- the food producers?"

The ICA president said he hopes the new Republican administration will guide the USDA into a more producer-oriented agency rather than a consumer-oriented agency "as it has been in the past."

He said one of the first priorities of the new administration should be to encourage and develop more markets, both national and international, for the "overabundance" of quality beef available for purchase in the United States.

"Through the free enterprise system, the American producer has developed a superior product which has fed the people of this country and the entire world for many years," said Wheeler. "We don't want to see our industry get in the position of such low profits that our producers are driven out of business, leaving America to depend on other countries for food supplies like we now depend on other countries for our oil supplies."

Cobb Named To NFIA Post

Charles Cobb has been named vice chairman of the Feed Manufacturers Section of the National Feed Ingredient Association (NFIA) for 1981.

Cobb is vice president of marketing for Creative Research Laboratories, Inc. That company is one of 300 members of NFIA, a national association concerned with animal nutrition which is comprised of feed ingredient suppliers, users and marketers.

As a section officer in NFIA, Cobb is involved in the planning of section programs, addressing goals and giving direction to section members during 1981. He has also served the association on its Specialty Ingredient Handbook Committee and on the Program Committee of the NFIA Mid Year Meeting.

A graduate of Texas Tech in animal science, Cobb has been with Creative Research Laboratories for 6 years. He is responsible for the direction of domestic and international marketing and distribution as well as private labeling. He previously was a self-employed marketing consultant.

Cobb and his wife, Wanda, reside at Star Route, Hereford, with three of their five children.

China, U.S. Agreement Will Continue Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) -- China and the United States have agreed to a cooperative agricultural research and exchange program in 1981 that Agriculture Department officials say will continue the benefits already emerging from previous exchanges.

Quentin West, director of the department's office of international cooperation and development, said Thursday that next year's program will involve 24 scientific and technical exchanges and the placement of 36 Chinese scientists and scholars in U.S. laboratories and universities. For example, he said, the American Soybean Association is participating in the exchange of research on soybean diseases and new germplasm.

Further, he said, "The growth of U.S.-Chinese agricultural trade and use of cotton breeding and grain handling team exchanges to upgrade this development point to the long-term benefits gained through technology sharing."

The two countries also have agreed in principle to begin a cooperative research program on tree improvement, sediment control and soil improvement in 1981, West said.

Haig Makes No Apologies for Wiretappings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alexander M. Haig Jr. says Watergate was a stupid and illegal abuse of power but it is not for him to render moral judgments against Richard Nixon or Henry Kissinger. "I must leave that to others, to history and to God," Haig told senators Tuesday during confirmation hearings on his nomination to be secretary of state. Haig denied any wrongdoing himself in Watergate and said he has no apology for the role he did play in wiretapping, covert Chilean operations and the Vietnam War bombing of Cambodia and Hanoi.

Haig made the statement after an angry exchange on Watergate during the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearings. The committee called him back for a fifth day of hearings today and scheduled a vote Thursday that almost certainly will clear Haig for confirmation by the full Senate. Haig's voice rose in anger as Sen. Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md., questioned him on each of the major Watergate issues and asked if he thought they were morally wrong. "I never willingly or consciously or unconsciously participated in an act I considered immoral or, above all, illegal," Haig exploded. "I didn't do it then and I haven't done it in 37 years of military service, service to the country," said the retired four-star Army general and former NATO commander. "And I am somewhat surprised at your persistence on this." But other senators took up Sarbanes' question of whether Haig thought Watergate was morally wrong and Haig finally replied: "I believe it was both illegal and stupid. I think if President Nixon were here, he would say it was stupid." Meanwhile, two other

Cabinet nominations were to be voted on today by the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee: former South Carolina Gov. James B. Edwards as energy secretary and James G. Watt as interior secretary. The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee plans to vote Thursday on the nominations of Terrel H. Bell as education secretary and construction executive Raymond Donovan as labor secretary. In confirmation hearings Tuesday: —CIA Director-designate William J. Casey said covert operations interfering in the internal affairs of other countries should be undertaken only when "it is in the highest interests of the United States." —Housing Secretary-designate Samuel Pierce, the only black nominated to Ronald Reagan's Cabinet, said the Department of Housing and Urban Development's budget might be cut by as much as 10 percent. He also said some federal housing subsidies may be eliminated. —Transportation Secretary-designate Drew Lewis said he would end the national 55-mph speed limit and let states set their own limits. In the Haig hearing, the secretary of state-designate said he sought as Nixon's chief of staff to "keep the country on an even keel" and prevent any further abuses in the closing days of the Watergate coverup. Later, Haig prepared and read to the committee a statement saying: "Were there abuses of power during Watergate? Of course there were." He said the break-in at the Democratic National Committee's Watergate office was one abuse and the Nixon White House effort to cover it up was another.

"But I cannot bring myself to render a judgment on Richard Nixon or, for that matter, Henry Kissinger," Haig said. "It is not for me — it is not in me — to render moral judgments on them." Haig also said in the statement that the bombing of Cambodia and Hanoi he recommended during the Indochina war were not abuses of power. He said the Cambodia bombing was justified to destroy sanctuaries used by North Vietnamese troops who were killing American soldiers and the 1972 Hanoi bombing "was essential to concluding the peace negotiations and achieving the return of our prisoners." Haig said the wiretapping of 17 Nixon aides and reporters, and U.S. covert operations against Marxist Chilean President Salvador Allende were legal at the time, although they would be improper under current regulations. He asserted he played only a small role in both in 1969, carrying out his orders as an aide to Kissinger, who then was Nixon's national security adviser. Thomas Jefferson's father, Peter, was a civil engineer of Welsh descent.

Character Portrayed in Movie Takes Offense

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A woman portrayed in the television movie "300 Miles for Stephanie" says she disagrees with the way her brother and his mentally retarded child were presented.

"My brother is hardly the hero the movie made him out to be," Lydia Rodriguez said after viewing the film.

The movie NBC aired Monday night was based on a trek former San Antonian Alberto Rodriguez made in 1977 to the Rio Grande Valley to pay a "promesa" at the Shrine of San Juan.

Rodriguez said he promised the Virgin of San Juan he would make the run if his daughter, Stephanie, were allowed to live until her fifth birthday. Doctors had given the child, suffering from birth defects, little hope of living to maturity, according to the movie.

A postscript of the film said Rodriguez would make another run on Stephanie's 10th birthday, March 20, 1982, if she lives until then.

"In October 1977, the same year he completed that run, he left Stephanie in my care. He seldom came to see her, didn't contribute any money for her treatments, and now he is in California and could care less about what she is doing," said his sister, who now is Stephanie's legal guardian.

Ms. Rodriguez said although many viewers were moved to tears by the dramatization, she was not affected in that way. She said she hoped the movie was inspiring to parents of mentally retarded children.

"It's a good movie, and I guess I would have been touched by it if I didn't know the true story behind it," she said.

Ms. Rodriguez said she has cared for Stephanie, played by San Antonian T.J. Olivas in the movie, since soon after her brother was divorced. The aunt said that both of the child's parents signed the release papers.

"It was easier to get Stephanie than I thought it would be. Neither of them wanted to take responsibility for the child," she said.

Alberto Rodriguez married another woman last year and moved to California, she said.

Rodriguez was a campus policeman at the University of Texas at San Antonio, instead of with the city police as portrayed in the movie, and finished the last 25 miles of the trek to San Juan on a bicycle which was not depicted.

Ms. Rodriguez, an office manager at a credit association, said she makes barely enough money to pay for Stephanie's treatments and day care services.

After her interview was printed Tuesday in the San Antonio News, Ms. Rodriguez said she received a telephone call from Tony Orlando, who played her brother in the movie, and his agent. She said they assured her details were being worked out with her attorney, R.A. Swenson, for a $100,000 donation Orlando is making to the child's care.

Orlando told The Associated Press he worked from a script and was not aware that Rodriguez completed the trek on a bicycle.

In a telephone conversation Tuesday, Orlando said he talked to Ms. Rodriguez and quoted her as saying her remarks were "twisted out of context."

Later, Ms. Rodriguez said she talked to Orlando, but refused to discuss the remarks she made in the newspaper interview about her brother.

Orlando said he did not receive final payment from NBC until Friday and assured that $100,000 would be given for Stephanie's care when details were worked out with Ms. Rodriguez' attorney.

"It's very unfortunate if something so wonderful and beautiful turned out like that," Orlando said of Ms. Rodriguez's remarks. "We portrayed a segment of their lives three years ago. How it is now, I don't know."

Orlando said "300 Miles for Stephanie" was presented as accurately as possible from newspaper clippings and Rodriguez' version of the run.

"I think what happened was a miracle and should be left as such," he said.

Ms. Rodriguez told the newspaper she took umbrage at the movie's depiction of Stephanie, now 8 years old.

"My Stephanie is not the vegetable that T.J. plays in the film. She doesn't lay around all the time, doing nothing," she said.

Although the child usually needs a wheelchair to move around, she can walk with help, Ms. Rodriguez said.

"It's obvious nobody involved in that movie knows the Stephanie I know," she said. "She's pretty lively for a child in her condition. She can even hit a few tunes on her toy piano."

Orlando and Ms. Rodriguez both said they did not know how to contact her brother.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS
By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — One group wants to raise interest rates. Another one wants to lower property taxes.

A year from now maybe taxpayers will be paying out bank loans with money they saved from tax reforms.

Last session one of the Legislature's bloodiest fights involved an effort to remove the 10 percent ceiling on home mortgage loans. In days long gone by, when mortgage rates bobbed around four percent, the Legislature prohibited lending institutions from charging more than 10 percent interest. In recent years, inflation drove up the rate beyond the worst fears of past lawmakers.

The 10 percent ceiling, once believed a safeguard, became a hindrance. Texas lending institutions had to borrow federal money between 12 and 13 percent, and home mortgage loans came to a virtual standstill for a while in the Lone Star State.

Finally, after multiple threats flung back and forth, the Legislature raised the ceiling to 12 percent. However, when Congress temporarily suspended all state ceilings soon after, home mortgage interests shot up to 17, 18, even over 20 percent.

Voters took it in stride. Predictions that a vote to remove the 10 percent ceiling would result in doom for any legislator did not prove true. The subject was not a serious issue anywhere in the state during campaign season.

Back Again
Now, bankers, credit unions, finance companies, retailers and auto dealers are announcing they are joining forces to remove the new 12 percent ceiling on interest rates.

A consumer association has called it "a conspiracy of lenders to allow an open season on all borrowers," but the lenders say they need the credit opportunities for businesses in Texas.

Some are predicting the issue to be a bloody repeat of last session's fracas. Then again, depending on how lawmakers sense the attitudes of their voters, they may not be afraid to approve the issue. With the recent election in mind, anti-ceiling lawmakers may have fared far better than preceding colleagues.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Cough is a symptom

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mother has had a cough for the past two weeks. At first I just thought she had a cold but it seems to be hanging on longer than I think it should. She doesn't seem to have a fever. She doesn't seem to be sick in any other way. She doesn't smoke so it is not a cigarette cough. I was wondering if I should take her to a doctor or not since she doesn't have a fever. The cough medicines that I have bought for her don't seem to have helped much.

DEAR READER — By all means take your mother to a doctor. People tend to forget that a cough is a symptom and there are a lot of other things besides a cold that can cause a cough. Let me give you one example, heart failure. If the left side of the heart begins to fail, it may cause fluid to accumulate in the lungs. This can cause shortness of breath and a cough. Sometimes the problem is thought to be pneumonia until a careful examination is done and the real cause of fluid in the lungs is discovered.

Still another cause is cancer. Fortunately, most people with a chronic cough have some other problem but it illustrates the serious problems that may underlie what seems to be a simple cough from a cold.

Many people are confused about when to see a doctor for a cough so I will repeat here the four basic rules included in The Health Letter number 8-10, Cough: How And When To Treat It. 1) If your temperature is over 102°F or if fever persists over three days — see your doctor; 2) If you have pain other than a mild headache or sore throat — see your doctor; 3) If you have excessive weakness or prostration — see your doctor; 4) If your cough is over 10 days duration, even if you feel fine — see your doctor.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 5-year-old son has had swollen lymph glands behind the ears, in the neck and now in the groin. I need to know more about this condition.

DEAR READER — The lymph glands are part of the lymphatic circulation. Lymph is a clear liquid and contains many lymph cells which are a variety of white blood cells important in fighting infections. The lymph circulates in tiny vessels similar to blood capillaries. This network is all over your body and eventually drains into the large veins near your heart.

The lymph vessels enter lymph glands. Here the lymph is filtered. Lymph cells are produced here, too. Infections are localized by trapping bacteria inside the lymph glands. Hence if you have an infection in your finger, the bacteria are apt to be trapped in the lymph nodes under your arm. So infections that result in increased action of lymph nodes or trapping germs cause them to enlarge and sometimes to be sore.

If there is generalized enlargement of nodes or the cause is not known then it is very important to have an examination. They can enlarge in some serious generalized diseases. Those in the neck often enlarge in response to simple sore throats, particularly in children.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am in my late 50s and have recently developed "white heads" on what was a flawless skin. When I rub my fingers over my face in cleansing it, I can feel the bumps in various areas. They are small. I must have about 10 by this time. I tried to squeeze them out but they remain stubborn and I've had no success with it. Does this come with age? Is there anything I can do about it? Otherwise I am in excellent health.

DEAR READER — They will come at any age if the conditions are right; acne is certainly not limited to teenagers. Those little bumps are accumulations of sebum, the fatty secretions formed by oil glands inside your skin. We all have these glands but they can become overactive or they can get plugged up so they don't drain properly. The latter may be your problem.

It is not a good idea to squeeze these. The fatty material can be broken down by tiny bacteria inside the skin pore and it is very irritating to the skin. The breakdown fats cause the red spots with acne. Antibiotics eliminate bacteria to prevent the fat breakdown and the irritation.

You should stop putting any oily or greasy substances on your face as this makes matters worse. You should see a doctor and let him prescribe for you. He will probably want you to use a peeling agent such as vitamin A acid. As the peeling occurs the pores open and the sebum can be drained, eliminating the little cheesy bumps.

Most cases of acne can be helped with current methods of treatment. And there are more effective means being tested for stubborn cases, which should become available, too, in time.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My wife dressed me up in her clothing for a costume party and the wore one of my suits. I was quite intoxicated and the next morning she told me she took a few snapshots of me and threatened to show them around if I didn't dress up for her that day. So I complied and wore her undies and a dress. She kept doing this and I started wearing some of her things under my suit to work.

Now I wear female underthings every day and usually put on a slip and dress when I return from work. She thinks she is making me do this but actually I enjoy it. I am now into makeup and seem more relaxed when wearing heels, nylons, bra, girdle, slip and dress. Why do I enjoy this? How can I make myself stop? I am very puzzled.

DEAR READER — Your behavior is that of a transvestite, a person who enjoys dressing in clothes of the opposite sex. Some psychiatrists classify this as a form of a fetish. It usually starts with some prank, or punishment in younger years. The male finds he enjoys it. The habit does not mean a person is less masculine. In fact, most transvestites are masculine in sexual orientation and most are married.

If you want to stop the habit, you might see a psychiatrist. There are reports of correcting it through behavior modification. Your wife's behavior is not the norm either and deserves evaluation.

POLLY'S POINTERS
Polly Cramer
=Washing fringed spread=

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — I have trouble washing a white bedspread with ball fringe on it. Can you tell me how to wash it without having the fringe get tangled or pulled off during the process? — ALFREDA

DEAR ALFREDA — If there is an easy way to do this, I, too, would like to know. The action of the washer and dryer causes tangling. The ideal way to wash such a spread is by hand in the bathtub. Let the spread soak and then lift it up and down as you wash. If possible, try drying the spread on a line outdoors on a breezy day. Ever so often, go out and shake it, so the fringe separates and fluffs up a bit. When dry it might be necessary to squeeze and soften each ball by hand. Hopefully, some reader has discovered a better and easier process. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I am now retired after teaching primary school for 31 years. I'd like to tell mothers how to teach a child simple addition and subtraction by "finger-stepping" with some simple instruments — a 12-inch ruler and a 36-inch yardstick.

Lay the ruler or yardstick flat with the zero to the left. For the problem of two plus three, place a finger on the numeral two and take three "steps" to the right. Your finger should stop at the numeral five. Do the same with a subtraction problem, say, seven minus five. Start with a finger on the seven and take five "steps" to the left, stopping at the numeral two.

I always gave numbered rulers to my first and second graders. Small children need such tools to understand and they can use them at home after learning the method. — PAULINE

DEAR POLLY — I spray my screen doors with insecticide to keep the flies and mosquitoes from hanging around and coming in when the door is opened. This is most helpful when one has children who go in and out all day. — BETTY

DEAR POLLY — I have six children, so I'm always looking for easier ways of doing things. This column has certainly helped make my life less difficult.

To get a child's snow boots on easier, I just slip a plastic bag over the child's shoe and the boot slides on like magic. I always save the plastic bags that things from the store come in.

When cleaning the bathroom and kitchen ceilings, I used to get on a ladder and it was a long, tedious job. When I was finished I was dizzy and had a headache, but now I have discovered I can do such jobs with my sponge mop. I find this works beautifully if I change suds and rinse water frequently. — PEGGY

Nightclub Rodeo Circuit Concerned over Suit

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge says he too would like to buy one of the whirling, bucking mechanical bulls that designer Joe D. Turner contends have become so popular on the nightclub rodeo circuit that three Houston competitors are trying to horn in on his device. Turner and Gilley's Enterprises Inc. are asking a federal court jury to enjoin

Buck N Broncos Inc., Southwest Rodeo Enterprises Inc., and Texas Rodeo Bulls Inc. from marketing "copies" of Turner's rodeo training device. The headless, legless demon used to amuse patrons at Gilley's — a Pasadena, Texas, nightclub billed as the world's biggest honky tonk — became a fad after actor John Travolta tamed the mechanical beast in the movie "Urban Cowboy," the plaintiffs contend. Country-western singer Mickey Gilley, who said he has "a big interest in this case" because without the mechanical bull there never would have been an "Urban Cowboy," is expected to testify today. His attorneys argue that there is "a sense of urgency" to the case because of the movie-generated "fad or craze" nature of the mechanical bull market. Turner testified Tuesday that although his machine is superior to those of the three defendants, the other bulls are essentially copies of his device. Defense attorney Russell Weaver, however, argued that Gilley's is trying to monopolize the mechanical bull market and that the patent Turner acquired in 1975 is invalid because he failed to inform the government about developments that would have negated the patent. Workmen wheeled an engine-driven bull made and sold by the defendants into the 11th floor courtroom of U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals on Tuesday and placed it near the "El Toro" model marketed by Gilley's. Under cross-examination, the defense asked Turner to examine the defendants' bull and explain the differences between the two devices. "It's hard to find anything that is basically different except the color," said Turner after he noted the length of some parts varied. At the request of attorneys, Turner, 59, a Corrales, N.M. native, demonstrated how the bull operates and compared it with other devices. He said his invention simulated the action of a rodeo animal, allowed the rider to modify the intensity according to his ability and skill and could be used indoors. After he finished, Seals inspected the bull and then asked, "Can anyone buy one of these things?" "Yes," Turner replied. "I'd kind of like to have one for my bedroom," the judge said.

Turner told the six jurors he started working on a rodeo training device in 1974 and it took five months to build the "first commercially successful mechanical bull" that used independently bucking and spinning motors to help cowboys sharpen their rodeo skills.
