FOR SALE

Housing glut hurting values, could lead to higher taxes for all

BY ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

Certain Hereford citizens may see the appraisals on their property drop if a Feb. 1 report from the state indicates that appraised values on a class of property are too high.

While this may sound good for the property owners who must pay taxes based on their property value, the possibility of lowered appraised values is not the kind of news the county, school or city want to hear.

"It (lowered appraisals) would take whatever percent off the tax base in Hereford," said County Judge Tom Simons, "and that means adjusting the tax base so the county will have the same amount of money coming in."

That means whatever money a homeowner saves on the possible lowered appraisal of his home, he might have to make up for in raised taxes.

Fred Fox, chief appraiser for Deaf Smith County, informed the city, county and school district recently to brace themselves for a possible decrease in appraised values, but Fox said Friday that the appraisals may be on line and readjustment may not be necessary.

"From all indications, it looks as though (the appraisals) are where they oughta be," Fox said. "They (state) tell us each year that we're low in our appraisals of vacant lots, but they never tell us that we're too high (on any property). If the appraisals do warrant lowering, we may lower them 2 percent or 3 percent."

Henry Reid, president of the Hereford Board of Realtors, said he would welcome lowered appraisals on the homes because he thinks the taxes on homes are close to 25 percent higher than they should be.

"Taxes are just too high (based on excessively high appraisals)," Reid said. "They need to be cut by 25 percent to equal the sales price people are getting on their homes. The homes from $80,000 and up are really taking a beating and so are the commercial buildings in town.

"If you lower the appraisals on all real estate, it's gonna help the immediate crisis and get the property moving again, but you've already figured it's gonna hurt the tax base and force the entities to raise their taxes to make ends meet."

The current glut of houses on the market started when employees of the Department of Energy and affiliated contractors quickly placed "for sale" signs in their front yards when they discovered the DOE was not locating its nuclear dump site in Deaf Smith County.

"When the DOE moved in, $80,000 homes were coming on the market for $90,000, and they sold," explained Fox. "So it affected the market. When the DOE moved out, these people who bought these $90,000 homes wanted to relocate and just licked it as a $10,000 loss and dumped it on the market. These are called distress sales and it affected where we are now a little bit."

Reid said there are now 190 houses on the market and 39 of those are listed at $80,000 and up.

If the state ordered the appraisals on homes to be lowered about 3 percent, an $80,000 home would be appraised at $77,600.

The homeowner of an $80,000 would in essence pay $118.31 less per year in county, city, school, hospital and water district taxes.

Grand champion's carcass condemned by USDA, FDA

DALLAS (AP)--The carcass of the grand champion steer of the 1988 State Fair of Texas has been condemned by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Food and Drug Administration.

The steer, shown by a Deaf Smith County 4-H'er and sold for $12,000 at the fair last fall, had some type of "antibiotic-like drug" in its tissue. Tests failed to identify the exact substance. Repeated tests at a FDA laboratory in Denver failed to identify the compound.

Allen Nelson, deputy regional director for the Food Safety and Inspection Service in Dallas, said the substance had "antimicrobial properties." Nelson also said "our decision had to be to condemn that animal" although the substance was never identified.

Nancy Wiley, a spokesman for the State Fair, told The Dallas Morning News that the steer would be declared an ineligible entry, resulting in forfeiture of the prize money.

The carcass was quarantined last Oct. 27 when a packing house found injection sites and an unidentified substance that had caused an inflammation in the animal's hindquarters.

Bank deposits up, loan amounts down

Money on deposit at Hereford's two banking institutions at the end of the year totaled $152.7 million, according to published statements this week.

First National Bank showed deposits of $84,053,000 at the close of business Dec. 31, 1988. This compares to $86.3 million for the same period a year ago.

Deposits at Hereford State Bank were listed at $64,682,000 on Dec. 31. Total for the same time a year ago was $68.3 million.

The big change in totals from last year at this time came in loans.

Total for loans at the two banks was down about $14 million.

First National showed loans of $39,092,000--compared to $50.3 million a year ago. HSB had loans of almost the same figure, $39,064,000, and that compared to a total of $41.8 million a year ago.

Deposits at both banks were up considerably from the last statements issued on 9-30-88. The December figures are normally the peak time for deposits.

First National's deposits were up $17.6 million over the Sept. 30 totals. HSB's deposits had risen by $5.9 million over the Sept. 30 total.

Business closing law 'unknown' here

BY ANDREA HOOTEN
Staff Writer

A Texas law to protect the consumer from false going out of business advertisements has been the stepchild of laws in Hereford--unnoticed and avoided since its inception in 1985.

The Texas Legislature passed the amendment to the Business and Commerce Code stating that a business must file an inventory permit with the county clerk and pay a $20 filing fee before it advertises that it is going out of business.

"This law was really written for the Houston area," said County Clerk David Ruland. "They really had some problems with businesses saying they were going out of business and then a little while later would have another going out of business sale."

Ruland said that he has never had a Hereford business file with his office since the law went into effect Sept. 1, 1985, but prosecuting the violators can be more hassle than it's worth, he said.

"The District Attorney's office and other businesses or the consumers are supposed to file a complaint with the DA's office before anything can be done," Ruland said. "The DA's office has enough things to do in trying to catch criminals--real criminals."

The number of businesses shutting their doors in 1987 and 1988 totaled 30, but Mauri Montgomery, advertising manager for the Hereford Brand, said he can only remember five businesses advertising in the newspaper saying that they were going out of business.

According to the law, persons publishing or broadcasting a going out of business advertisement must see a going out of business permit from the business before printing or broadcasting the ad.

Montgomery said he never knew about the stipulation.

"I was as uninformed as most of the other people in this town. The only policy the Hereford Brand has about going out of business advertisements is that we be paid in advance," said Montgomery.

"We're gonna change the requirements to say we need the permit before printing the ad and, as an advertising manager, I can see the advantage of the law concerning consumers' rights."

Joe Mandina, owner of The Cobbler Boot & Shoe Repair, 337 N. Mile Ave., is currently advertising his going out of business/retirement sale and had no idea such a law existed.

"I don't think it's fair that we have to get a permit and pay that $20," said Mandina after hearing the requirement. "It won't stop these businesses from taking advantage of the people. I guess you'll have to shoot me (before I'll get one)."

Not complying with the law is considered a Class A misdemeanor and each day of the violation constitutes a separate offense ($2,000 fine or jail not over one year). Roland Saul, district attorney, admitted that he did not know about the law and had never been requested to enforce it.

"I guess if it's a Class A misdemeanor, we could prosecute them," Saul said. "If anyone wants to complain, they can call a law enforcement agency and we will pursue it like any other criminal matter," said Saul.

The wording on a going out of business sale must imply that the business is terminating all operations in the county and adjacent counties.

Barrick Furniture and Appliance Company, West U.S. Highway 60, and McGee Furniture Company, 511 N. Main St., have both advertised "Must vacate the building" in several ads, but the wording does not imply a termination of operation.

McGee Furniture had planned to lease its building in late 1987, but when the plan fell through, the store advertised it was vacating its building to remodel.

Barrick Furniture advertised in the Brand last week that it was vacating its building, too, but the furniture store is just moving to a larger building.

The law also states that a business may not conduct a going out of business sale beginning within two years after the ending date of the most recent going out of business sale.

Vandalizing mailboxes costly 'fun'

A practice that has been in and out of vogue in Hereford--vandals destroying mailboxes--is a serious federal offense, and what seems like harmless fun could cost $1,000.

Mailboxes have not been the target of local vandals in the past two months, but several were destroyed around Halloween and Thanksgiving when vandals were throwing pumpkins at mailboxes on public and private property. Many of the targeted mailboxes were destroyed. Other times, mailboxes are defaced with spray paint or other items.

Sometimes, mail is reported stolen from mailboxes. "It may seem like harmless fun, but it's really a serious federal offense," said Hereford postmaster Charles Britten.

"Mailboxes (whether they're a U.S. Postal Service deposit box or a mailbox on someone's sidewalk or front porch) and mail are personal property, but they are protected by federal law. Anyone caught going through mailboxes and removing the mail or defacing a mailbox may be in for some stiff penalties."

The law says anyone defacing or destroying a mail box or any mail in a mail box could be fined up to $1,000 and jailed up to three years.

"That's quite a price to pay for what may seem to be a harmless prank," Britten said.

Britten said anyone who sees someone defacing a mailbox or tampering with mail should call the post office and the police. You can also call the Postal Inspector at the USPS Center in Lubbock at 762-7821. All information may be given confidentially if needed.

Local Roundup

Police arrest six

Six persons were arrested Friday by Hereford police, including Johnny Flores, 24, of Hereford, for possession of two ounces of marijuana and for driving while intoxicated.

Other arrests include a man, 55, for DWI; a man, 34, for theft under $20; a man, 21, for unsafe backing and leaving the scene of an accident; a man, 21, for third offense of no liability insurance and second offense of expired registration; and a man, 20, for public intoxication.

Reports included a civil dispute in the 200 block of Avenue K; theft of $90 worth of clothes from a clothesline in the 800 block of Irving; theft of a license plate in the 500 block of North 25 Mile Avenue; a radar detector worth $250 stolen from a vehicle in the 300 block of 16th Street; and theft of $189 worth of car parts in the 300 block of 25 Mile Avenue.

Police issued 24 citations Friday and investigated four accidents.

WHO needs volunteers

A training program for persons who would like to volunteer for the We Help Ourselves (WHO) program of the Hereford Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center will be held Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. each day at the Deaf Smith County Library.

The WHO program works with Hereford schoolchildren to help prevent victimization. For more information about the training program contact Sharon Pennington at 364-2311.

Warm weather Sunday

Sunday's weather forecast is calling for sunny skies and warm temperatures, with highs around 62. Southwest winds will be 10 to 20 mph and gusty at times.

A cold front will enter the region during the day Monday, dropping our temperatures to more seasonal normals.

Saturday's low at KPAN was 24 after a high Friday of 59.

Flights try to stay ahead of drugs

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Flying wingtip-to-wingtip with suspected smugglers or buzzing a boat to get a better look, the air crews of the U.S. Customs Service are on the front line in the war on drugs.

Equipped with high-tech radar that can spot a plane 200 miles away, they roam the skies at 20,000 feet or skim the waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

They know the thrill of an airborne chase.

"It seems like what we're doing is an act of war," says radar detection specialist Steve MacDonald as he scans the skies on his radar screen.

Using five four-engine P3 Orions the size of airliners and two smaller twin-engine E2C Hawkeyes, the Customs Service runs its surveillance detection operations here at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station on the Gulf of Mexico.

These crews have a tough job. They are responsible for patrolling the vast Gulf and the U.S.-Mexican border from Texas to California. Their equipment often fails. They get little help from countries south of the border.

The system of tethered radar balloons that will someday relieve much of their border coverage is behind schedule — only four of a planned 17 are operating.

But they are excited about their new $20 million P3 outfitted by its builder, Lockheed, with an airborne early warning (AEW) radar dome on top — similar to that of an Air Force Airborne Warning and Control plan (AWACS).

On this plane, radar operators sit at two computer keyboards, where they can track planes 200 miles away, assign color codes to friendly and suspect aircraft, and direct Customs planes on a chase. A second dome plane is due in April and Customs hopes for a total of four.

Stanley Adams, a Customs pilot and surveillance branch supervisor, likened current detection coverage to hiding a pea in a shell game. "You keep moving the coverage around" hoping to hit the right place on the right night.

This is not first-class flying. This is flying with erratic temperature controls that can leave you sweating, or can keep a soda ice cold without a refrigerator.

This is flying on a roller coaster, because during a chase, the pilots have little time to find "windows" through rough weather.

This is flying in the three-seat radar compartment of an E2C, which is so narrow that a quarter turn of a chair is all the room you have. It is so noisy on the plane built for aircraft carriers that special earplugs are required.

Compared to the Hawkeye, the P3 is a luxury, with a refrigerator and a microwave oven.

On a recent winter's night, the P3 is patrolling over the Gulf of Mexico when a call from a Customs intelligence agent in Houston sends the crew on a 200-mile chase.

The pilots gun the four prop-jet engines and the airspeed indicator jumps from 240 knots to 360 knots.

As the plane bumps through the clouds, two radar operators search for their target on their screens.

"Did they say his lights were off?" one crew member asks another on the radio.

"No self-respecting smuggler would keep his lights on," one of the pilots responds.

The thrill of the chase, as happens too often, evaporates when the P3 arrives in the target area. The suspect cannot be found, perhaps because he had already landed at a remote airstrip.

Sometimes, though, the Customs fliers strike pay dirt.

"A couple of weeks ago we chased a plane that landed on Cat Island in the Bahamas," says radar operator Buck Benham. "The drug plane had dumped its load at the airport. We saw cars headed for the airport to pick up the drugs. We sent in a helicopter. They rounded up the plane and pilot. We kept circling 150 feet off the ground trying to identify the vehicles, and the smugglers were running every which way."

When looking for boats, Customs planes fly right over the top of vessels and then circle them to get an identification.

"I wonder what they think down there," says one crew member as the four-engine plane buzzes a fishing boat.

As the plane skims the Gulf waters, the pilots have on their laps a list of suspicious boats provided by Customs' intelligence officers.

A fishing boat is spotted heading for the Alacran Reef about 80 miles from the Yucatan Peninsula of Mexico. The reef has a sheltered lagoon and sheds, where Customs believes drugs are stored.

Most flights are in this area, keeping track of planes coming from Mexico and South America

The plane circles several times, and bingo — one of the boats on the intelligence list is spotted. The Coast Guard is notified and will send a cutter to see whether there are drugs aboard.

Customs' chances of spotting suspicious planes increase dramatically when the P3 radar dome plane is flying.

detection by flying in an unusual air corridor at slow speed and low altitude with no lights, small tail numbers or with their numbers painted over. There is no transponder signal.

If the radar plane wants another Customs aircraft to tail a suspect, the computer is programmed to give the chase plane the right heading and speed.

The computer screen displays the angle needed for convergence, and keeps changing the speed, course and altitude the Customs plane must maintain. There are two computer screens and each can handle three intercepts simultaneously.

Little crosses on the screen automatically plot a smuggler's course, something that once was computed manually by an operator.

In the future, Customs command centers thousands of miles away will be able to transmit their radar pictures to the flying platform and have the P3 direct a chase.

When the AEW is flying, the four other P3s serve as long-range tracking planes that can keep a suspect on their radar for hundreds of miles.

But over the United States, the P3 will often call in a shorter-range tracker, possibly a jet interceptor, and a Blackhawk helicopter carrying a team of officers who can land quickly and make arrests.

The job is not without danger. Adams notes that the domed aircraft can be spotted from apartments that line the bay outside the base. "People can sit there with binoculars and can tell what time we're leaving."

"We don't tell the tower where we're going. We're maneuvering all the time. We control the planning, go on short notice and keep communications secure."

Smith suspects that air traffic controllers in Mexico "can monitor our search patterns and tip off smugglers."

"Look in the bay," he says. "There are 30 or 40 shrimpers working at night. All you need is a high frequency radio to call bases in Mexico. We give fake return to base calls to flush these guys out."

Adams says politicians and publicity also often hinder their effort.

During a special mission off Colombia last summer, when P3s were based on the island of Curacao, the local island newspaper published a story about the intense effort to detect airborne smugglers leaving Colombia.

During the recent Operation Alliance, a huge anti-drug operation along the Southwest border, politicians lined up to announce the latest major effort in the war on drugs.

With such highly public operations as Alliance, Adams says, "We might as well go home."

The final home

Hospices becoming more popular for care in final days

By GEORGE ESPER
AP Special Correspondent
BRANFORD, Conn. (AP) — In a fit of depression, when her third bout with cancer had sounded a death knell, Julia Gebersky inquired through others whether her son, Robert, had a gun and could shoot.

Incontinent, her body scarred by bedsores, she had become a prisoner of her own helplessness. If euthanasia were legal, Bob Gery said, he would have helped his mother kill herself.

But there was another way out for Julie Gebersky. Like nearly 200,000 patients a year, she awaited her death in hospice, a way station for the terminally ill that benignly treats them not for prolongation of life but eases their dying and lessens their pain.

Gery's mother died without much discomfort in the gentle hands of The Connecticut Hospice, just as his father had died of cancer nearly 13 years ago under the same hospice care.

In that span, the number of hospice care programs in the United States has grown from fewer than 100 to nearly 1,700, according to a 1988 survey by the National Hospice Organization in Arlington, Va., which provides technical services for its 900 members.

While care is much the same, and about 90 percent of it is provided in the home, the programs are operated by a variety of organizations. For example, 41.8 percent of the programs are independently run, 26.6 percent are run by hospitals, 22.4 percent by agencies that provide care in the home, and 9.2 percent are run by a coalition of organizations such as nursing homes and hospitals working together.

"Hospice is not a place, it's a program of care," says Ira Bates, vice president of the National Hospice Organization. "We are the only health care provider that defines the unit of care as both the patient and the family."

Hospice does this by sending in a team, including volunteers and social workers, to help the family with housework and personal problems, to maintain the vigil while they take a break and to help with funeral arrangements once the patient dies. After that, hospice workers keep in touch with the family for at least a year to comfort them.

Many hospice programs are based in office buildings and lease beds from hospitals and nursing homes. "If there is a crisis in the family, then we can provide continuous home care in the home around-the-clock," Bates says. "If that's not enough, then we can move the patient to an inpatient setting."

The modern hospice system originated in England in 1967, when Cicely Saunders, a British physician, founded St. Christopher's Hospice.

What brought it about, say hospice authorities, was the leap in technical advances in medicine since the mid-1950s and the increasingly common dilemma of terminally ill patients being kept alive, sometimes against their wishes and the wishes of their families, at high costs in suffering and financial sacrifice.

Even some of those dealt the cruelest of hands in life, AIDS victims who are not only dying but are homeless, find refuge in some hospices like The Connecticut Hospice, the first and oldest in the United States and a leader in care for the terminally ill in the past two decades.

Connecticut Hospice began caring for the dying in their homes in March 1974 and opened a 44-bed hospice for inpatients in July 1980 in Branford. Two years ago, it bought an adjoining home and converted it into a cottage with five beds for the dying who have no home or no one to care for them.

Bates says Connecticut Hospice is unique in its much higher proportion of inpatient care to home care. It serves as a teaching hospice as well.

The average hospice, says Bates, has three or four beds, a paid staff of eight and 50 volunteers, dealing with about 110 patients a year. The discharge rate is around 10 percent, those who decide to seek treatment or who go into remission.

While hospice patients are mostly elderly cancer victims, as much as 90 percent, the '80s have brought a new challenge, a younger generation inflicted with AIDS, either cast aside by society or in self-imposed exile to keep loved ones from seeing them at their worst.

The latest data available from the National Hospice Organization show hospices served about 2,100 AIDS victims in 1986, among 154,700 patients in all. While later figures are not available, Bates estimates the number of AIDS victims cared for will reach 6,000 or 7,000.

Among them are men like Keith Jackson, 27, and Eddie Muniz, 36, who found accommodations in The Connecticut Hospice cottage last year, their gaunt bodies implanted with catheters, their shoulders propped up by hospice volunteers and friends so they could walk, their lips barely movable, slurring their speech almost as if they'd suffered a stroke, and coughing, coughing, coughing.

"I got a home but I don't want to be near the girls because I've been sick," Muniz, an admitted drug dealer and user and the father of three daughters, ages 8, 10 and 12, told a visitor last November. "I know I'm gone. I don't want to go..." He paused. "Yet."

Keith Jackson, a 27-year-old fashion model who is gay, lived with his divorced mother until she died two years ago. He said he would rather live in the cottage than move in with his father or siblings. "This is my home," he said.

Nurses, the heart of hospice care, and volunteers, the soul, give the men medication, feed them, do their laundry and take them out to dinner and to shop. Like many of the terminally ill, they dread above all dying alone, in confusion and fear. The hospices quietly ease those apprehensions.

For "sundowners," who fear the night and sleep by day, families are often bedded down by their bedsides in inpatient hospices like The Connecticut Hospice, which has its own building. Other hospices operate in a wing or ward of hospitals.

"One of the big complaints is that dying is so sterile," says Pat Jones, executive vice president of the Hospice Association of America, a Washington lobby group that represents 1,300 hospices. "People were isolated in a hospital room, maybe the family couldn't come in. I think it's related to the need to be in control of one's life. I don't think it's an accident that hospice started coming into being around the same time as home birth. It's taking dying back into the family, into the home."

Indeed, says National Hospice's Bates. "Most people want to die at home. Ninety-eight percent will say, 'I want to be at home with my wife

Teacher Appreciation Week proclaimed

Hereford Mayor Wes Fisher, seated, signed a proclamation on Thursday designating the week of Jan. 22-28 as Worldwide Teacher/Administrator Appreciation Week. Looking on are members of the Hereford High School Key Club, including Stuart Mitts, Carl Delozier, Jason Scott and Albert Cervantez.

Key Club honors teachers

Members of the Hereford High School Key club will join the 125,000 members of Key Club International in celebrating Worldwide Teacher/Administration Week this week. During the week, members of the Hereford Key club will pay tribute to teachers, administrators and support staff of the Hereford Independent School District in recognition of the contributions they make toward the education of youth.

Stuart Mitts, Hereford Key club president, said all local public school personnel will receive a Certificate of Recognition this week.

Crimestoppers offers reward

The Hereford Police Department is investigating a burglary that took place at an apartment complex located on the 400 block of North 25 Mile Ave (Highway 385). The burglary took place between Jan. 14 and Jan. 15, 1989. The suspect(s) forced their way into the apartment and took the following items:

Quasar VCR; Fischer stereo and two speakers; Zenith 19-inch color television with remote; Panasonic VCR; one black three-piece suit, size 42; one blue two-piece suit, size 42; Pentax 35mm camera in black case; zoom lens for Pentax camera; briefcase containing various items

Anyone giving information leading to the arrest and indictment of person(s) responsible for the Crime of the Week will receive a $300 reward. Anyone having information may contact the Deaf Smith County Crimestoppers at 364-2583 or 364-CLUE.

Any information regarding a crime may be given on the Clue Line. Anyone giving information leading to the arrest and indictment of a felony case may be eligible for a reward of up to $300. The caller may remain anonymous.

LANGUAGE PROBLEM
LONDON (AP) — At least one king of England could neither speak nor write English.

He was King George I (1660-1727), a German prince whose father was Elector of Hanover and whose great-grandfather was the English King James I.

In 1714, at the age of 54, George I succeeded Queen Anne as sovereign of England. In his 13-year reign, the king made no attempt to learn the English language.

Accent on Health

Be Prepared For Cold Weather

Although Texas is not among the states noted for severe winters, the Texas Department of Health (TDH) warns that extreme cold is part of the Texas climate, and residents should know its dangers.

Dr. Cliff Price, TDH Associate Commissioner for Personal Health Services, said, "Each year, people die from the cold in Texas. And despite our health warnings and more accurate weather forecasting, their numbers seem to be increasing. These are people whose primary cause of death is extreme loss of body heat-hypothermia."

In 1987 alone, some 27 Texans died from excessive cold according to the TDH Vital Statistics Bureau. The previous year that total was 26.

The most frequent victims of hypothermia are very young children, the sick, and the elderly, Dr. Price explained. Children's small bodies radiate reserved heat faster than adults'. People who are chronically ill, using medications, drugs, or excessive alcohol may have lower resistance to sharp temperature changes, and may react slowly in emergencies.

The increasing number of homeless people are further at risk where temporary shelter is unavailable. Also, beyond age 65, some persons begin to lose their natural reflex to shiver, which is both an automatic warming mechanism to stimulate the circulation and a means of alerting the individual to dangerous temperature.

Hypothermia starts when the deep body temperature drops to 95 degrees, just less than four degrees below normal. The victims become lethargic and confused. Drowsiness, slurred speech, falling blood pressure, shallow breathing, and a bloated or pinkish tint to the skin develop, and unless the individual receives warmth, coma and death are imminent.

"Many hypothermia victims die in their own homes, quietly, before anyone realizes the danger," Dr. Price said.

Relatively few people "freeze to death," since death occurs long before the body temperature reaches the freezing point, although extremities may freeze if exposed to severe cold, Dr. Price explained.

"The general public, even those who work outside in dangerously cold weather, often underestimate the HOSPICE and family.' So we make that possible."

All of health care, Bates says, is moving toward more choices, the kind of choices made by Julia Gebersky and Mark Marcucci, a 57-year-old retired steelworker from Bethel Park, Pa.

Like others with incurable cancer, they decided they had had enough of hospitals and doctors and that there was little else caretakers could do but keep them comfortable.

Mrs. Gebersky died as she wanted, surrounded by people she loved, her body free of the dreaded tubes. She had been cared for at her apartment in neighboring Hamden by a Connecticut Hospice nurse, who looked in on her twice a week, an outside nurse and a privately hired, live-in aide who took care of her around-the-clock.

Mrs. Gebersky fought a cancer in the parotid gland, near the ear, through surgery and radiation for seven years. Her condition worsened last fall and at her age, 76, she decided against further treatment with chemotherapy.

Her apartment had been decorated for a last Thanksgiving dinner with her family, and there was a Christmas tree in case there would be time for that, but two days before the holiday she slipped into a coma and was moved to The Connecticut Hospice at Branford, where she died on Thanksgiving Day.

elements, particularly wind-chill," Dr. Price added. A brisk wind combined with a temperature slightly below freezing can increase the chilling effect on exposed skin by almost 50 degrees below the thermometer reading.

Anyone who must be outside in very cold weather should pay attention to weather forecasts and should heed changes, such as increases in wind. They should wear loose-fitting, layered clothing, gloves and face covering, and should have an emergency plan for staying warm if conditions worsen.

Dr. Price added that common sense and at least a rudimentary understanding of the dangers of wind-chill are essential for anyone preparing to be outdoors in severe cold. "The best advice is to stay home and stay warm. But if you must go out, know what you are up against and prepare for it," Price said.

Toastmasters meet

Hereford Toastmasters met early Thursday morning at the Ranch House Restaurant.

Lynn Cook, president, conducted the business meeting. Dr. Milton Adams was presented his Able Toastmaster (ATM) certification.

Joe Walters was introduced as a new member. Wordmaster was Tom Weemes while Cook served as grammarian. Table topic master was Bruce Hernandez and general evaluator was Larry Leon. Toastmaster was Joe Weaver and Bob Lohr served as timer.

"The Only Thing Constant is Change" was the title of the ice breaker speech given by Walters. The speech chronicled Walters' background. Doc Adams served as evaluator.

Joe Don Cummings focused on dressing and grooming for success in his speech, "Look! A Winner!" Weemes was evaluator.

Best table topics speaker was Larry Leon and Cummings was cited as best program speaker. Weemes was recognized as best evaluator.

Other members present at the meeting were Joe Weaver and Clark Andrews.

Program on dyslexia given to Bay View Study Club

Bay View Study Club met Thursday at 2:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Wesley Fisher, 116 Centre Street.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Kenneth Halbert, president, who led the members in reading the Club Collect. The President and all members welcomed new member, Mrs. Alton Fraser.

Secretary Mrs. Abel Ruga read the minutes of the Dec. 1, 1988, Christmas meeting and the minutes were approved as read. Mrs. B.H. Futrell gave the treasurer's report and Mrs. J.A. Burran gave a report from the membership committee.

Mrs. Austin Rose reported on the Christmas Stocking Fund. Members chose Mrs. N.C. Hays, Mrs. Earnest Langley and Mrs. R.W. Eades to serve as a nominations committee for 1989-1990 officers.

After the meeting adjourned Mrs. Burran introduced Mrs. Charles (Marlene) Watson to give the program. Mrs. Watson is associated with the Hereford School System as an Alphabetic Phonics Therapist. She has received two summers of training as an instructor with Dyslexia students.

Mrs. Watson explained what dyslexia is, various ways the disorder manifests itself and how students with this problem can be helped. She explained and illustrated different teaching activities and told of case studies she has read about and experienced in working with students in the local school system. Members asked questions and participated in this discussion.

Following the program, refreshments were served to the guest and 18 members in attendance.

THE SPINAL EXAM

If you have a back problem or some other problem caused by a misalignment of your spine, a thorough exam can disclose where the problem is located.

The usual position for a spinal examination is lying on the examination table. But this is only one phase of a thorough spinal exam. For one thing, it won't give a full picture of your spinal condition when you're in a relaxed position.

The examination should include a study of how your spine aligns itself when you are carrying heavy objects, when you're standing, and also while walking or running in place. The doctor will also want to know how your spine reacts to stress. He will test various muscles to look for any weakness.

The spine is closely integrated with many parts of your body and the nervous system through which it flows. Areas out of alignment may not only affect the spine but other parts of your body as well. Only a thorough exam will tell if it's in good working order.

School discipline

One of the big problems in public education across the nation today, according to teachers, administrators and parents, is the lack of discipline.

Sometimes we see problems in our local schools, but these pale by comparison to the "blackboard jungles" we read about in big city urban schools. It is difficult to understand how the American people have allowed their schools to get to the point where uniformed police are required in the halls, where teachers dare not turn their backs on a class, where female teachers go to the restroom in pairs.

It all starts in the home, of course. There was a day when parents backed up the teacher and principal. If a student got a paddling at school, he sometimes could look forward to another at home. A stout paddle and a stern set of rules could be used to enforce discipline.

Times have changed. Now a teacher not only faces the possibility of an irate parent when discipline is handed out but she has to be aware of court cases that have upheld student rights. Sometimes the teacher has to tip-toe around personal prejudices. Various groups may think Hispanics are more apt to be disciplined than whites, while others may think teachers allow Hispanics to go undisciplined because they fear claims of discrimination. Others think boys are more apt to be punished than girls, or that poor kids or not treated as well as rich kids.

While these complaints may have some basis in isolated incidents, they are probably used as excuses the majority of the time. Everyone who is disciplined can find a reason why it was unfairly administered.

The Hereford schools have maintained a good learning climate over the years because discipline has been administered fairly and properly. Parents and the public must insist upon rules and regulations that preserve a good learning climate—one without the distractions of bad behavior, drugs, destruction of property and other things that go with a lack of discipline.

This can be achieved without destroying student rights.

Reagan's genius not in details

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — In an uncertain world, Ronald Reagan stood for certainty. He was unwavering, absolute in his convictions — especially when changing.

Consistency was not a hobgoblin of the Reagan White House. That style not only worked, it triumphed. The 40th president left office on Friday with the highest public approval ratings since the pollsters started keeping score.

A New York Times-CBS News poll conducted Jan. 12 to 15 showed that 68 percent approval of Reagan's job performance. That's 9 points higher than the farewell approval rating of Dwight D. Eisenhower. And Reagan made those numbers count politically. He was the first president in 60 years to leave office at the inauguration of an elected successor of his own party.

For Reagan, the genius was not in the details but, more often, in avoiding them. He made U turns without a signal, and usually without a problem. He campaigned against deficits and tripled them. He won the biggest tax cut in U.S. history and later quietly signed the biggest increase. He denounced Moscow's "evil empire," then fashioned a "new closeness" with the Soviet Union under new leadership.

A prime exhibit: the swollen federal budget deficit.

"Time and again I have proposed measures to help curb federal domestic program spending," Reagan said in the budget he bequeathed to President Bush. "Time and again these proposals have been rejected by Congress."

He said the deficit problem began with the recession that hit early in his first term, and worsened because he couldn't get half the spending curbs he sought. By Reagan's reckoning, he hadn't changed, conditions had. So he kept making the deficit speech while the deficit soared on his watch.

But in six of the eight Reagan budget years, the budget passed by Congress actually was lower than that proposed by the administration.

Supplemental appropriations, approved after the budget resolution was adopted, pushed actual spending higher than the Reagan budget in all but two of those years. Those additions were the handiwork of both Congress and the administration.

Reagan campaigned in 1980 with a promise to balance the budget within a four-year term. The federal debt has nearly tripled, to $2.6 billion, during his two terms. The average deficit was $180 billion.

With deficits worsening, Reagan insisted that a balanced budget had not been a campaign commitment — "I've never said anything but that it was a goal."

He promised a military buildup and he delivered, a $2.4 trillion expansion during his eight years. That fed the deficit and the struggle over priorities that raged through both his terms.

Reagan political challenges stayed the hands of two presidents, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, in arms control dealings with Moscow. Ford dropped the word "detente" from his vocabulary while fending off Reagan in 1976. Compared with the Reagan-era thaw, Ford's detente was a chill.

Reagan's farewell address described "a satisfying new closeness with the Soviet Union." He and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev signed the treaty to scrap intermediate range nuclear missiles, met at the summit five times in three years and fashioned a dramatically different relationship between Washington and Moscow.

Reagan said that was possible because "this time, so far, it's different," the Soviet Union has changed.

Reagan changed, too, but he wasn't given to mentioning it.

When the Iran arms sales of 1985 and 1986 were disclosed, Reagan insisted he had not tried to trade arms for hostages.

The record showed otherwise. When his own investigating commission said so, the president acknowledged that what he called an attempted opening to Iran had deteriorated into arms for hostages.

Even then, he said "my heart and my best intentions still tell me" it wasn't a trade despite "the facts and the evidence." Soon afterward he reverted to the no-trade position and stuck with it to the end of his term.

For all that, Reagan's years were years of evolution. "They call it the Reagan Revolution and I'll accept that," he said, "but for me it always seemed more like the great rediscovery: a rediscovery of our values and our common sense."

Rediscovery or revolution, it rewrote the agenda, ending an era in which government programs multiplied to address each emerging problem. Reagan always said that government was the problem, not the solution.

He argued that the government shouldn't have more revenue because it would only spend the money. His parting budget advice was to curb deficits "by continuing to limit the appetite of government."

A troubling legacy to President Bush, the deficits Reagan rused may yet serve the purposes of the Reagan revolution. Limits on government are more easily enforced when borrowing is the only way the bills.

The Penultimate Word

THE FIRST TIME

In the Philippines they eat a thing called ballute. It is a duck egg a few days from hatching. They eat it feathers and all.

A Filipino asked me if folks in the United States actually ate rattlesnake. I told him some of the dumber ones did so. He could not imagine anyone eating a snake. I asked him if he ate ballute. He said he did. I told him I could eat snakes easier than ballute. He admitted it worked better if ballute was eaten in a dark room so you could not see what you were eating.

I am fascinated with some foods. The fascination to me is how anyone ever ate the stuff for the first time. Someone must have been mighty hungry the first time a ballute was eaten.

All the time I was in the Philippines, I wondered how they ever began to eat some of their foods, but we have foods the Filipinos would never be able to get down. They would never eat some of our cheeses. Matter of fact I wonder how some of our foods ever got to be foods.

How did anyone ever get guts enough to eat the first oyster? There was no one around to say what it tasted like, or if it would kill a person, and yet someone ate the thing. Later someone ate the first one raw.

How did we ever invent cottage cheese? That must have been a mistake on someone's part. The stuff just appeared and some brave soul tried it. Now it is a matter of course. It must be the most fattening food in the world; no one but fat people eat the stuff.

How did caviar ever get down someone's throat? Fish eggs, for goodness sake. After the first person ate the stuff, what kind of public relations genius ever got anyone else to eat it? Somehow it became the ultimate delicacy. folks will eat anything, no matter how it tastes, if they think it is the cultured thing to do.

Matter of fact they are still trying to get us to eat some inedible foods. Broccoli, cauliflower, egg plant and artichokes are all weeds someone in California is trying to build a market for.

Mushrooms are fungi that grow in the dark and yet they are trying to get me to put them on my steak. It's the same old deal they pulled with the caviar.

Editorial opinion around the state

Smoking Report Marks Change in Society.

It's been 25 years since former Surgeon General Luther Terry first told Americans that smoking was bad for their health.

Since then, the percentage of smokers has declined, particularly among men and the better educated.

What does this tell us?

First that the vast efforts to educate the U.S. public about the dangers of smoking has helped. In particular, Surgeon General C. Everett Koop has waged a battle against smoking. It was he who insisted on warning labels on every cigarette pack. It is his office that has disseminated tons of materials to schools and the media. His suggestions that health education on smoking be continued and expanded as made in his report last week, are well taken.

But the second development, one that Koop also supports, is that smoking simply isn't "in" anymore. It is social pressure that has stopped some people smoking and has kept some from starting.

As Koop said to The Associated Press: "This is not a prohibitive society. We're not going to tell people they can't smoke. We learned that we can't tell people they can't drink."

Yet programs such as Mothers Against Drunk Drivers have helped alleviate that serious problem. So has Koop's educational battle against smoking.

This democratic society likely will not prohibit people from smoking or drinking by law. But growing social pressure against both will be the best weapon in the battle to improve America's health.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

There are some children missing.

Approximately 1 1/2 million who have disappeared just in the past year. They are the children of abortions, they and their mothers, the recipients of our society's new "MERCY."

Odd, I remember when MERCY meant healing, forgiveness and hope and LOVE meant sharing, sacrifice and the giving of one's self for the good of another.

Abortion is none of these things, so why then has it not stopped? Could it be perhaps that we have become somewhat "unmerciful" and "unloving"? Could it be perhaps that an expedient and economical solution to a problem has come to outweigh what is morally right?

They say that history repeats itself and certainly it may. This is not the first time we have been victimized by such a mentality. It has been only half a century ago that the world went to war to rid itself of this same ideology. The "final solution" it was called—one nation's plan to rid itself of so called undesirable and less than perfect citizenry. Its targets - the unborn, the terminally ill, the aged, the mentally and physically handicapped and then the Jewish people. Millions of physically handicapped and then the Jewish people. Million so physically handicapped and then the Jewish people. millions of men, women and children destroyed, all in the name of a newly contrived "MERCY". Killed not at the hands of just one man but by a nation of people gradually conditioned to believe that what they were doing was right. Could it ever happen again? We have only to look around us.

In the past 16 years of legalized abortion in America, over 23 million innocent children have died. The medical community now hotly debates the moral ethics of using unborn and aborted fetal tissue for transplants. "Euthanasia" the elimination of the elderly and "living wills" are becoming commonly understood terms and accepted options to natural death. It was only through the intervention of President Reagan that newborn handicapped children are guaranteed the right to lifesaving medical care following birth. But how long will they be safe?

Only so long as you and I want them to be. We will decide what MERCY we will show in the future. Will it bring death or life, hope or despair, joy or pain? Will it be that same MERCY shown us by our Saviour, Jesus Christ as he hung nailed to a cross or will it be something newly defined by man? I pray it will be God's and not our own.

Sincerely,
Michelle Brisendine
328 Star

P.S. This Sunday, January 22, churches across the nation will be tolling their steeple bells in memory of the 23,000,000 who have died from abortion.

Poor Response

The measles epidemic in Houston was detected early and the alarm was sounded far and wide. Now it turns out Houston Health Department clinics were turning away some people seeking vaccinations.

That's a poor way to fight an epidemic.

After state and national resources were called in to help in an emergency, city clinics shouldn't have been turning away people because they showed up near the 7 p.m. closing time.

Health Department Director Juan Arradondo says the problem has been resolved. The mayor's office says it will be watching to make sure it has.

—Houston Chronicle, Jan. 13

Walton Getting Raw Deal

Ridiculous. In a word, that's exactly what State District Judge John Street's $11.55 million ruling against billionaire Sam Walton is.

Judge Street chose to make a mockery of the law when he fined the Wal-Mart Stores Inc. founder and chairman $1 million a day. Walton's misdeed was failing to personally appear for a deposition in a negligence case in Fort Worth in which a Houston man is suing Wal-Mart for a fall in one of its stores.

Trying to force Walton to appear in court seems a bit out of line, especially since Walton probably doesn't know much more about the case than the fact that he owns the store named in the suit.

The nation's richest man is getting a raw deal in this case, and Judge Street's ruling should be reversed before our court system is made to look even sillier.

—The Houston Post, Jan. 13

Not a Good Bet

Once again, Texas legislators are talking about the need for a state lottery to raise revenue. Once again, it would be a mistake. The extra revenue would not be worth the cost.

Lottery backers in the Legislature say they would be willing to earmark specific dollar amounts for specific purposes, say, education, in order to bolster their cause.

Who can argue against money for education? Yes, education needs more money, but Texas doesn't need to get it by preying on its own citizens. That's what a lottery does.

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek comes up with an odd idea this week.

Dear editor:

In his final budget before leaving office, President Reagan proposed a cut in farm subsidies, I suppose because the money is needed to bail out busted savings and loans.

This doesn't set well with farmers. We have just as much right to be bailed out as anybody else. We have just as much trouble living on our income as Congressmen say they do.

However I have thought this over and have concluded I'll take a cut in government subsidies if the proper arrangements can be made.

You see, everybody knows one of the absolute essentials for life on earth is oxygen. You can't go more than 2 minutes without it. And where does oxygen come from? It comes from the green plants and trees and shrubs and grass and weeds provided by the farms and ranches of this country. There's not one city with enough oxygen-producing greenery to keep it alive.

Therefore, I'll forego some of my government subsidy if the government will pay me for the oxygen I'm producing out here.

It's kind of hard to arrive at a fair charge for this, but I figure the bill will come to about what my present government subsidy is, plus any delivery charges I can squeeze in.

Meanwhile, farming goes on despite the terrible drought of last year which is continuing into this year in many areas.

I've been interested in what the experts say is the cause of such droughts. Some say it's the greenhouse effect, whatever that is, and others say it's the misdirection of the jet stream.

I haven't heard of a one who has looked out his window and said a drought is caused by a lack of rain.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Teacher honored

Patty Hill, pictured center with some of her third grade students at the Nazarene Christian Academy, was recognized as the school's Teacher of the Month. She has been teaching there for the past two years and served on the NCA board of directors prior to teaching. A graduate of Dimmitt High School, Hill earned a master's degree in education from West Texas State University. She is married to Dick Hill and they are the parents of Thad, age 13; Macy, 6; and Alyssa, 4. Her hobbies include reading and needlework.

Nutrition discussed at NCA PTF meeting

The Parent Teacher Fellowship of the Nazarene Christian Academy met Thursday night at the Nazarene Church.

Beverly Harder, county home extension agent, was guest speaker. She presented a program on basic nutrition for children, stressing the importance of eliminating sugar and fats from their diets.

Bruce Minefee was introduced as the NCA's newest teacher. Minefee majored in music and will be teaching piano, brass, woodwinds, and strings.

Feb. 13-17 will be Teacher Appreciation Week. The Parent Teacher Fellowship will honor the teachers with a special lunch on Feb. 15.

Pattie Hill was recognized as Teacher of the Month and she was given a certificate from K-Bob's Steak House.

The next meeting of the NCA PTF will be March 9 at 7:30 p.m. Esrael Silva will be the featured speaker as he will present a program and film on drugs and alcohol.

Liability laws cost Texas many new jobs

How bad is the current liability law system in Texas?

It is so bad that it's costing the state more jobs than those created by major new projects announced recently.

That's the conclusion of a survey which was recently conducted at the request of the Texas Civil Justice League. Dr. Ray Perryman, director of Baylor University's Center for the Advancement of Economic Analysis, conducted the broad survey of Texas manufacturers and industrial recruiters.

The survey comes at a time when the Texas Legislature is considering reforms in the liability laws system.

Dr. Perryman's analysis determined that "the negative economic impact caused by the costs associated with the current liability law system in Texas was greater than the combined positive direct and indirect impact of Sematech, the Supercollider, Fujitsu, Formosa Plastics and GTE."

Once they are fully operational, the analysis reports, these five locations will bring a total of $4.25 billion in new expenditures to Texas and will create a total of 52,714 jobs in all industries throughout the state.

By contrast, the current liability law system, even under very conservative assumptions, is responsible for a reduction in total expenditures of more than $8.15 billion, while a total of 79,361 jobs are lost—34,519 of them in manufacturing positions.

Some of the principal survey findings:

*3,200 Texas manufacturers, employing 340,000 workers, claim to be considering stoppage of all manufacturing operations in Texas and/or moving to another state.

*30,000 Texas workers have lost their jobs due to layoffs in which liability costs were an important consideration.

*3,000 Texas manufacturers have decided not to introduce a new product because of liability considerations, while 1,500 have discontinued an existing product for the same reason.

*Nine out of 10 Texas manufacturers involved in a liability law suit in the last five years believe they received unfair treatment.

*Eight of 10 economic development specialists believe that the current liability law system increases the cost of doing business in Texas, making the state less attractive as an industrial relocation and expansion state.

*Based on their own experiences, 70% of the industrial recruiters felt that Texas has lost a new business or industry to another state because of the current liability law system; 9 of 10 believe liability costs are a serious problem in Texas' ability to attract and retain jobs.

Names In The News

DENVER (AP) — Rep. Ben Nighthorse Campbell, D-Colo., went "back to the blanket" last weekend, an Indian phrase for returning to tribal settings.

Campbell, who has been making Indian jewelry since he was 12, was the featured artist at the Colorado Indian Market.

Wearing Western attire and a white cowboy hat with beaded band, Campbell talked to passers-by about art and politics. He markets his art under the name Ben Nighthorse.

Born to a Portuguese mother and a Cheyenne father, Campbell is the only American Indian in Congress.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Actor Griffin O'Neal is due to appear in court Friday for allegedly violating his probation by failing to perform 400 hours of community service.

The 25-year-old son of actor Ryan O'Neal was ordered to perform the community service as part of his sentence for a boating accident that killed a friend, Gian-Carlo Coppola, 23, the son of film director and producer Francis Ford Coppola.

O'Neal and Coppola were boating on the South River on Memorial Day 1986 when their 14-foot runabout struck a towline connecting two larger vessels. Coppola died of head injuries. O'Neal suffered minor injuries.

Can 49ers live up to Super expectations?

MIAMI (AP) — The never-ending search for "The Team" — of the season, of the decade, even of the day — is so pervasive that the San Francisco 49ers have found themselves explaining this week why it's possible that they can lose to the Cincinnati Bengals in Sunday's Super Bowl. Nobody believes them.

Not after four years of NFC dominance. Four years in which four different NFC teams have beaten the AFC by a cumulative score of 165-46, an average of 41-14.

Four years in which physical has overcome finesse, defense has overcome offense and quarterbacks of the stature of Dan Marino and John Elway have been overpowered.

So is it any wonder that during a Super Bowl week marred by racial disturbances in two Miami neighborhoods, all the 49ers — with the notable exception of cornerback Tim McKyer — have been apologizing for being favored by a touchdown while the Bengals have been poor-mouthing.

"I feel like the team that's going to play the Harlem Globetrotters every night," Cincinnati Coach Sam Wyche said as he arrived here with a 14-4 team that includes MVP quarterback Boomer Esiason and the NFL's best offense.

"Everyone already knows what's going to happen, that we're going in as a marked underdog playing way over its head against the giant out of the fog."

For a while, the game itself was overshadowed by the racial troubles. They took place Monday and Tuesday nights in Miami's Overtown and Liberty City neighborhoods, leaving three dead and shaking up a lot of players, particularly the blacks.

"It's real life out there," said Esiason, who is white. "It puts the game in perspective."

"A bunch of us went to the movies and saw 'Mississippi Burning,'" said his teammate, safety Solomon Wilcotts. "We came back and looked out the window and saw Miami burning."

In fact, for many of those here, the Super Bowl had already been considered an afterthought, the outcome a foregone conclusion.

Two weeks ago, after the Bengals beat Buffalo 21-13 and the 49ers overpowered the Bears 28-3 in Chicago's minus-20 wind chill, the guys in Las Vegas who know everything made San Francisco a 4 1-2 point favorite. Almost immediately, the public jumped on the 49ers; the line jumped to seven points and stayed there — despite an ankle sprain that will limit the mobility of Jerry Rice, perhaps the game's most dangerous offensive player.

Can it be that easy? The word among the 49ers, filtered down from Coach Bill Walsh, is an emphatic "NO."

"The odds are set because so many people bet on one team. That doesn't mean they know what they're talking about," says quarterback Joe Montana. "I can't envision a team being favored by a touchdown in a game of this magnitude."

"1988 has been very difficult," said Walsh, who is seeking his third Super Bowl win in a decade of running the 49ers, a tenure that he has hinted strongly will end with this game.

"We lost at home as a 13-point favorite over Atlanta and a 15-point favorite over the Raiders. We are very capable of losing."

Indeed. The 49ers lost six games this season, including those two upsets and one in which they blew a 23-point third-quarter lead in Phoenix. The Bengals lost just four, playing in an AFC Central that is arguably the NFL's toughest division.

At one point, the 49ers were 6-5, then ran off four straight wins before getting blown out 38-16 in their final regular-season game with the Rams, a game that led Phil Simms of the New York Giants to suggest that the 49ers "lay down like dogs" to eliminate the Giants after being outscored by New York 66-6 in the 1986 and '87 playoffs.

In fact, a lot of this lies in the search for a standout team amidst the fog of NFL parity.

Why isn't that team the Bengals?

To start with, these are the regal two-time champion 49ERS, who routed the regal 1985 champion BEARS, against the commonfolk bengals.

In other words, a national team from a national city that overpowered another national team from a national city; a team seeking to become the unofficial team of the decade with its third Super Bowl win in seven years.

The Bengals?

Just the AFC guys; a bunch of guys from a Midwest river town who were 4-11!!!! last season. So what if everyone knew they were better than a 4-11 team, that the strike skewered a lot of records. In the public mind, 4-11 is 4-11.

Ironically, all those problems started on Sept. 20, 1987, before 53,498 fans who came to watch the Bengals play these same 49ers at Riverfront Stadium. With six seconds left, Cincinnati held a 6-point lead and had fourth down and 25 at its own 30.

Instead of a punt, Wyche called a sweep designed to run out the clock.

But James Brooks was thrown for a 5-yard loss, leaving two seconds left on the clock and Montana then hit Rice with a 25-yard touchdown pass in front of Eric Thomas, a rookie in his second regular-season game, for the victory.

Then came the 24-day strike and the season went downhill from there.

"We were always in games," says Esiason, "we just seemed to lose them."

This year, the season began with a goal-line stand that preserved a 21-14 victory over Pittsburgh and was followed by a 28-24 win in Philadelphia that was preserved by a last-ditch defensive effort that stopped the Eagles at the Bengals' 11.

"That seemed to give our defense confidence," says Thomas, who has emerged in his second season as one of the NFL's most promising cornerbacks. "We all feel we can stop anyone, including Rice."

Thomas wasn't the only young player to emerge as the Bengals won five straight before losing for the first time in New England on Oct. 16.

There was David Fulcher, an oversized, 228-pound strong safety; Joe Walter, a 290-pound tackle who bested some of the best defensive linemen in the league; Tim Krumrie, who emerged as one of the game's best nose tackles.

And there was Ickey Woods, the second-round draft choice from Nevada-Las Vegas.

He took over from Stanley Wilson as the starting fullback a third of the way into the season and ended up leading the team with 1,066 yards. He also scored 15 touchdowns, punctuated by the "Ickey Shuffle," an awkward looking two-footed hop that somehow entranced Cincinnati fans and spread nationwide.

It was symptomatic of a season that ended 12-4 and was followed by victories over Seattle, 21-13, and Buffalo, 21-10, in the playoffs.

"You know all those games last year where we'd be right there and lose?" asks Esiason. "This year we'd win them."

"The way the league is now, there are probably 20 teams who can make the playoffs if things go right, and if you make the playoffs, you have a chance at the Super Bowl," Wyche says.

"It comes down to making one, two or three plays a game. This year we made them."

The 49ers made them and barely (See 49ers, Page 7A)

Herd drops close game

The Hereford Whitefaces lost a controversial 59-58 game on Friday night at Wolfforth against Frenship High School.

The Hereford Lady Whitefaces lost a key game, falling to the Frenship girls 56-47.

In the boys game, Hereford had battled back from a 27-18 halftime deficit to take the lead in the fourth quarter. Hereford had a three-point lead in the last minute of the game when a technical foul was called against the Hereford bench.

A Frenship player missed both technicals, but another technical was called against Hereford after the second shot, allowing the Frenship player to re-shoot the second shot and giving the Tigers two more shots. All three shots went in, tying the score.

Frenship had the ball stolen by the Whitefaces when the Tigers tried to in-bound the ball after the technical free-throws, but a foul was called on Hereford as the teams went after the rebound with a second to play. Frenship made the front end of the one-and-one to take the win.

Clint Cotten led Hereford with 20 points, while Stuart Mitts and Brad Smith each scored 10 points.

In the girls game, Hereford had command of the second quarter, taking a 32-25 lead at halftime. Frenship outscored the Lady Whitefaces 31-15 in the second half, however, to take the win.

Carmen Brockman led Hereford with 19 points. Stacy White was the next-highest scorer with eight points.

The Hereford teams will be at home Tuesday night to meet Pampa at Whiteface Gym at Hereford Junior High School.

49ers

squeezed by in their first two games — a 34-33 victory at New Orleans and a 20-17 win over the Giants achieved when Montana and Rice hooked up on a 78-yard touchdown pass with 41 seconds and no time outs left.

Rice, hampered for most of the season by the ankle that he reinjured in practice this week, finished with just nine TD catches in 16 games compared with a league-record 22 in 12 non-strike games in 1987.

But after that Giants game they lost five of nine, including a 24-23 defeat in Phoenix in which they blew a 23-0 third-quarter lead and a dismal 9-3 loss at home to the Raiders.

Moreover, the team was plagued by rumors that Walsh would leave and by the shuffling of Montana and Steve Young at quarterback.

In fact, the only positive note in that stretch was Roger Craig, who emerged as one of the league's best runners after spending most of his career as an all-purpose rusher-blocker-receiver. He finished the season with an NFC-leading 1,502 yards, including 190 in a 24-21 win over the Rams in which several of his runs were the stuff of highlight films.

But the season turned on Monday night, Nov. 21, when a series of big plays — including John Taylor's 65-yard punt return, gave them a 37-21 win over the defending champion Redskins.

From there they went on to win three more, lose to the Rams, then

Cotten gets a rebound

Clint Cotten (34) goes up for a rebound during Tuesday's win against Levelland at Whiteface Gym. On Friday, Cotten had 20 points to lead Hereford, but the Herd lost a controversial 59-58 decision to Frenship.

avenge last year's playoff loss with a 34-9 win over Minnesota and demolish Chicago in "Bear weather" as Montana threw three touchdown passes, two to Rice, who had five receptions for 133 yards.

That set them up as "The Team" of 1988 and perhaps the team of the '80s — three Super Bowl victories would top Washington's 2-1 record in Super Bowls this decade.

Walsh is thinking about it — "We're in position to do something no other team has done," he says, between waffling over to quit or not to quit coaching.

But he doesn't know if this is the team.

"The NFC has put out some great teams — the Bears, Giants and Redskins have been big, powerful and awesome," he says. "Our 1984 team was in that class. I don't know about this one."

The Bengals?
They're only thinking about avenging two losses — the 26-21 defeat to the 49ers in the 1982 Super Bowl and that game in 1987.

"You know what I dream about?" asks Esiason. "I dream that we're five points down with 30 seconds to go. That we move into scoring position. That I throw the winning touchdown pass to Eddie Brown with no time left. None at all."

"That's what I dream about."
That would indeed be a Super Bowl to dream about.

Matchups: Here are some key ones for Super Bowl

MIAMI (AP) — Here are the matchups for Sunday's Super Bowl between the San Francisco 49ers and Cincinnati Bengals.

WHEN SAN FRANCISCO HAS THE BALL

Unlike past San Francisco teams, these 49ers will probably first try to establish the run, relying primarily on Roger Craig (33), who led the NFC with 1,502 rushing yards. Fullback Tom Rathman (44) is primarily a blocker and receiver but is also a running threat — he gained 427 yards and averaged 4.2 this year.

The Bengals will try to stop the running game by using All-Pro nose tackle Tim Krumrie (69) to penetrate and 225-pound strong safety David Fulcher (33) to funnel Craig toward inside linebackers Joe Kelly (58) and Carl Zander (91).

But San Francisco remains one of the league's most balanced offenses, with two-time Super Bowl MVP Joe Montana (16) still capable of picking apart any defense. The main receiving threat, Jerry Rice (80), will probably play despite a sprained ankle but may not be at full strength. That makes Craig, who led the team with 76 catches; John Taylor (82) and tight end John Frank (86) more important as receivers. The 49ers are 9-1 with Frank; 3-5 in the games he missed with a broken hand.

They also have a capable backup quarterback in Steve Young (8), who adds a running dimension to a somewhat erratic arm but has been a good reliever in the past.

They will be throwing against a secondary — nicknamed "The SWAT Team" — that is probably the strongest part of the Cincinnati defense.

WHEN CINCINNATI HAS THE BALL

Like the 49ers, the Bengals will run first, pass second, although the running chores are spread out more among James Brooks (21), Ickey Woods (30) and Stanley Wilson (32), who started the season as the starting fullback until he was beaten out at midseason by Woods, who finished with 1,066 yards and 15 touchdowns to 938 and 14 TDs for Brooks. They run behind a massive offensive line led by left tackle 285-pound Antony Munoz (78), considered one of the best offensive tackles ever. Right guard Max Montoya (65), is also a Pro Bowler. One key matchup may be San Francisco nose tackle Michael Carter (95) against center

Bruce Kozerski (64). Carter is less a penetrator than Krumrie, funneling the runners toward linebackers Bill Romanowski (53), Mike Walter (99) and Jim Fahhorst (55).

San Francisco's best pass rushers are ends Larry Roberts (91) and Kevin Fagan (75) plus end-linebacker Charles Haley (94), who lines up all over. The 49ers may use both Haley and Roberts in passing situations against 320-pound Brian Blados (74) filling in at right tackle for the injured Joe Walter.

That may be negated by the mobility of Cincinnati quarterback Boomer Esiason, a left-hander who often scrambles left. Both wide receivers, Tim McGee (85) and Eddie Brown (81) are deep threats though the Bengals may also use McGee to clear out for Brown, who is extremely dangerous running with the ball once he catches it. Brown, however, is prone to dropping the ball. Brooks and tight end Rodney Holman (82) are also important targets.

Can 49ers live up to Super expectations?

MIAMI (AP) — The never-ending search for "The Team" — of the season, of the decade, even of the day — is so pervasive that the San Francisco 49ers have found themselves explaining this week why it's possible that they can lose to the Cincinnati Bengals in Sunday's Super Bowl. Nobody believes them.

Not after four years of NFC dominance. Four years in which four different NFC teams have beaten the AFC by a cumulative score of 165-46, an average of 41-14.

Four years in which physical has overcome finesse, defense has overcome offense and quarterbacks of the stature of Dan Marino and John Elway have been overpowered.

So is it any wonder that during a Super Bowl week marred by racial disturbances in two Miami neighborhoods, all the 49ers — with the notable exception of cornerback Tim McKyer — have been apologizing for being favored by a touchdown while the Bengals have been poor-mouthing.

"I feel like the team that's going to play the Harlem Globetrotters every night," Cincinnati Coach Sam Wyche said as he arrived here with a 14-4 team that includes MVP quarterback Boomer Esiason and the NFL's best offense.

"Everyone already knows what's going to happen, that we're going in as a marked underdog playing way over its head against the giant out of the fog."

For a while, the game itself was overshadowed by the racial troubles. They took place Monday and Tuesday nights in Miami's Overtown and Liberty City neighborhoods, leaving three dead and shaking up a lot of players, particularly the blacks.

"It's real life out there," said Esiason, who is white. "It puts the game in perspective."

"A bunch of us went to the movies and saw 'Mississippi Burning,'" said his teammate, safety Solomon Wilcotts. "We came back and looked out the window and saw Miami burning."

In fact, for many of those here, the Super Bowl had already been considered an afterthought, the outcome a foregone conclusion.

Two weeks ago, after the Bengals beat Buffalo 21-13 and the 49ers overpowered the Bears 28-3 in Chicago's minus-20 wind chill, the guys in Las Vegas who know everything made San Francisco a 4-1-2 point favorite. Almost immediately, the public jumped on the 49ers; the line jumped to seven points, and stayed there — despite an ankle sprain that will limit the mobility of Jerry Rice, perhaps the game's most dangerous offensive player.

Can it be that easy?

The word among the 49ers, filtered down from Coach Bill Walsh, is an emphatic "NO."

"The odds are set because so many people bet on one team. That doesn't mean they know what they're talking about," says quarterback Joe Montana. "I can't envision a team being favored by a touchdown in a game of this magnitude."

"1988 has been very difficult," said Walsh, who is seeking his third Super Bowl win in a decade of running the 49ers, a tenure that he has hinted strongly will end with this game.

"We lost at home as a 13-point favorite over Atlanta and a 15-point favorite over the Raiders. We are very capable of losing."

Indeed.

The 49ers lost six games this season, including those two upsets and one in which they blew a 23-point third-quarter lead in Phoenix. The Bengals lost just four, playing in an AFC Central that is arguably the NFL's toughest division.

At one point, the 49ers were 6-5, then ran off four straight wins before getting blown out 38-16 in their final regular-season game with the Rams, a game that led Phil Simms of the New York Giants to suggest that the 49ers "lay down like dogs" to eliminate the Giants after being outscored by New York 66-6 in the 1986 and '87 playoffs.

In fact, a lot of this lies in the search for a standout team amidst the fog of NFL parity.

Why isn't that team the Bengals?

To start with, these are the regal two-time champion 49ERS, who routed the regal 1985 champion BEARS, against the commonfolk Bengals.

In other words, a national team from a national city that overpowered another national team from a national city; a team seeking to become the unofficial team of the decade with its third Super Bowl win in seven years.

The Bengals?

Just the AFC guys; a bunch of guys from a Midwest river town who were 4-11!!!! last season. So what if everyone knew they were better than a 4-11 team, that the strike skewed a lot of records. In the public mind, 4-11 is 4-11.

Ironically, all those problems started on Sept. 20, 1987, before 53,498 fans who came to watch the Bengals play these same 49ers at Riverfront Stadium. With six seconds left, Cincinnati held a 6-point lead and had fourth down and 25 at its own 30.

Instead of a punt, Wyche called a sweep designed to run out the clock.

But James Brooks was thrown for a 5-yard loss, leaving two seconds left on the clock and Montana then hit Rice with a 25-yard touchdown pass in front of Eric Thomas, a rookie in his second regular-season game, for the victory.

Then came the 24-day strike and the season went downhill from there.

"We were always in games," says Esiason, "we just seemed to lose them."

This year, the season began with a goal-line stand that preserved a 21-14 victory over Pittsburgh and was followed by a 28-24 win in Philadelphia that was preserved by a last-ditch defensive effort that stopped the Eagles at the Bengals' 11.

"That seemed to give our defense confidence," says Thomas, who has emerged in his second season as one of the NFL's most promising cornerbacks. "We all feel we can stop anyone, including Rice."

Thomas wasn't the only young player to emerge as the Bengals won five straight before losing for the first time in New England on Oct. 16.

There was David Fulcher, an oversized, 228-pound strong safety; Joe Walter, a 290-pound tackle who bested some of the best defensive linemen in the league; Tim Krumrie, who emerged as one of the game's best nose tackles.

And there was Ickey Woods, the second-round draft choice from Nevada-Las Vegas.

He took over from Stanley Wilson as the starting fullback a third of the way into the season and ended up leading the team with 1,066 yards. He also scored 15 touchdowns, punctuated by the "Ickey Shuffle," an awkward looking two-footed hop that somehow entranced Cincinnati fans and spread nationwide.

It was symptomatic of a season that ended 12-4 and was followed by victories over Seattle, 21-13, and Buffalo, 21-10, in the playoffs.

"You know all those games last year where we'd be right there and lose?" asks Esiason. "This year we'd win them."

"The way the league is now, there are probably 20 teams who can make the playoffs if things go right, and if you make the playoffs, you have a chance at the Super Bowl," Wyche says.

"It comes down to making one, two or three plays a game. This year we made them."

Herd drops close game

The Hereford Whitefaces lost a controversial 59-58 game on Friday night at Wolforth against Frenship High School.

The Hereford Lady Whitefaces lost a key game, falling to the Frenship girls 56-47.

In the boys game, Hereford had battled back from a 27-18 halftime deficit to take the lead in the fourth quarter. Hereford had a three-point lead in the last minute of the game when a technical foul was called against the Hereford bench.

A Frenship player missed both technicals, but another technical was called against Hereford after the second shot, allowing the Frenship player to re-shoot the second shot and giving the Tigers two more shots. All three shots went in, tying the score.

Frenship had the ball stolen by the Whitefaces when the Tigers tried to in-bound the ball after the technical free-throws, but a foul was called on Hereford as the teams went after the rebound with a second to play. Frenship made the front end of the one-and-one to take the win.

Clint Cotten led Hereford with 20 points, while Stuart Mitts and Brad Smith each scored 10 points.

In the girls game, Hereford had command of the second quarter, taking a 32-25 lead at halftime. Frenship outscored the Lady Whitefaces 31-15 in the second half, however, to take the win.

Carmen Brockman led Hereford with 19 points. Stacy White was the next-highest scorer with eight points.

The Hereford teams will be at home Tuesday night to meet Pampa at Whiteface Gym at Hereford Junior High School.

49ers

squeezed by in their first two games — a 34-33 victory at New Orleans and a 20-17 win over the Giants achieved when Montana and Rice hooked up on a 78-yard touchdown pass with 41 seconds and no time outs left.

Rice, hampered for most of the season by the ankle that he reinjured in practice this week, finished with just nine TD catches in 16 games compared with a league-record 22 in 12 non-strike games in 1987.

But after that Giants game they lost five of nine, including a 24-23 defeat in Phoenix in which they blew a 23-0 third-quarter lead and a dismal 9-3 loss at home to the Raiders.

Moreover, the team was plagued by rumors that Walsh would leave and by the shuffling of Montana and Steve Young at quarterback.

In fact, the only positive note in that stretch was Roger Craig, who emerged as one of the league's best runners after spending most of his career as an all-purpose rusher-blocker-receiver. He finished the season with an NFC-leading 1,502 yards, including 190 in a 24-21 win over the Rams in which several of his runs were the stuff of highlight films.

But the season turned on Monday night, Nov. 21, when a series of big plays — including John Taylor's 95-yard punt return, gave them a 37-21 win over the defending champion Redskins.

From there they went on to win three more, lose to the Rams, then

Cotten gets a rebound

Clint Cotten (34) goes up for a rebound during Tuesday's win against Levelland at Whiteface Gym. On Friday, Cotten had 20 points to lead Hereford, but the Herd lost a controversial 59-58 decision to Frenship.

avenge last year's playoff loss with a 34-9 win over Minnesota and demolish Chicago in "Bear weather" as Montana threw three touchdown passes, two to Rice, who had five receptions for 133 yards.

That set them up as "The Team" of 1988 and perhaps the team of the '80s — three Super Bowl victories would top Washington's 2-1 record in Super Bowls this decade.

Walsh is thinking about it — "We're in position to do something no other team has done," he says, between waffling over to quit or not to quit coaching.

But he doesn't know if this is the team.

"The NFC has put out some great teams — the Bears, Giants and Redskins have been big, powerful and awesome," he says. "Our 1984 team was in that class. I don't know about this one."

The Bengals?
They're only thinking about aveng-

ing two losses — the 26-21 defeat to the 49ers in the 1982 Super Bowl and that game in 1987.

"You know what I dream about?" asks Esiason. "I dream that we're five points down with 30 seconds to go. That we move into scoring position. That I throw the winning touchdown pass to Eddie Brown with no time left. None at all."

"That's what I dream about." That would indeed be a Super Bowl to dream about.

Matchups: Here are some key ones for Super Bowl

MIAMI (AP) — Here are the matchups for Sunday's Super Bowl between the San Francisco 49ers and Cincinnati Bengals.

WHEN SAN FRANCISCO HAS THE BALL

Unlike past San Francisco teams, these 49ers will probably first try to establish the run, relying primarily on Roger Craig (33), who led the NFC with 1,502 rushing yards. Fullback Tom Rathman (44) is primarily a blocker and receiver but is also a running threat — he gained 427 yards and averaged 4.2 this year.

The Bengals will try to stop the running game by using All-Pro nose tackle Tim Krumrie (69) to penetrate and 228-pound strong safety David Fulcher (33) to funnel Craig toward inside linebackers Joe Kelly (58) and Carl Zander (91).

But San Francisco remains one of the league's most balanced offenses, with two-time Super Bowl MVP Joe Montana (16) still capable of picking apart any defense. The main receiving threat, Jerry Rice (80), will probably play despite a sprained ankle but may not be at full strength. That makes Craig, who led the team with 76 catches; John Taylor (82) and tight end John Frank (86) more important as receivers. The 49ers are 9-1 with Frank; 3-5 in the games he missed with a broken hand.

They also have a capable backup quarterback in Steve Young (8), who adds a running dimension to a somewhat erratic arm but has been a good reliever in the past.

They will be throwing against a secondary — nicknamed "The SWAT Team" — that is probably the strongest part of the Cincinnati defense.

WHEN CINCINNATI HAS THE BALL

Like the 49ers, the Bengals will run first, pass second, although the running chores are spread out more among James Brooks (21), Ickey Woods (30) and Stanley Wilson (32), who started the season as the starting fullback until he was beaten out at midseason by Woods, who finished with 1,066 yards and 15 touchdowns to 938 and 14 TDs for Brooks. They run behind a massive offensive line led by left tackle 265-pound Antony Munoz (78), considered one of the best offensive tackles ever. Right guard Max Montoya (65), is also a Pro Bowler. One key matchup may be San Francisco nose tackle Michael Carter (95) against center

Bruce Kozerski (64). Carter is less a penetrator than Krumrie, funneling the runners toward linebackers Bill Romanowski (53), Mike Walter (99) and Jim Fahhorst (55).

San Francisco's best pass rushers are ends Larry Roberts (91) and Kevin Fagan (75) plus end-linebacker Charles Haley (94), who lines up all over. The 49ers may use both Haley and Roberts in passing situations against 320-pound Brian Blados (74) filling in at right tackle for the injured Joe Walter.

That may be negated by the mobility of Cincinnati quarterback Boomer Esiason, a left-hander who often scrambles left. Both wide receivers, Tim McGee (85) and Eddie Brown (81) are deep threats though the Bengals may also use McGee to clear out for Brown, who is extremely dangerous running with the ball once he catches it. Brown, however, is prone to dropping the ball. Brooks and tight end Rodney Holman (82) are also important targets.

Laundry Located on Second Floor

COUNTRY KITCHEN BOASTS EXPANSION TO SUN ROOM

There are two bedrooms that could serve as master bedrooms in this plan, one on the first floor and one on the second. Extra rooms included are an office above the garage and a second floor laundry.

The first floor contains a formal dining room, wide foyer with open rail stair, enticing master bedroom suite with two walk-in closets and compartment bath, and a fantastic country kitchen handy to the sun room. A half bath is shown in the vicinity of the kitchen or family room for easily accessible day time use. A stair to the office or laundry above the garage, is provided from the country kitchen area and the kitchen itself is shown with an island cabinet, extra pantry, desk area, and side yard approach.

There are three bedrooms upstairs, one with two of the most spacious walk-in closets you have ever seen. Two full baths are shown up and an extra walk-in closet is shown central. Notice the large walk-in for another bedroom shown upstairs. The laundry boasts generous space for washer-dryer and special closet storage space.

The traditional exterior is constructed of brick, and is highlighted by roof dormers, glass arch over entrance and hip and gable roof combination. This is a computer plan. Some changes may be made from the plan stored in the CADD memory at less cost to you. Direct inquiries about CADD plan changes to the address below.

The plan is Number 4307. It includes 4,342 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

VALENTINE CANDY

NEW YORK (AP) — Nearly two out of three Americans give candy as gifts on Valentine's Day.

Industry sources estimate candy sales for this Valentine's Day will be approximately $600 million, which would represent an all-time high for the day, says Chocolatier magazine.

It says most of the purchases are made on the actual date of the holiday, which makes Feb. 14 the biggest candy-selling day of each year.

WOMEN'S ANKLES

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Why are women more likely than men to sprain or otherwise injure their ankles?

John Bernfield, head athletic trainer at the University of Rochester, says a woman's wider pelvis shifts her center of gravity inside her ankle joint instead of directly above it.

Bernfield, who is also athletic medicine coordinator for Strong

Memorial Hospital in Rochester, notes that a woman's shoes can make her more prone to ankle injuries, too.

"The higher the heel," he says, "the more unstable the ankle is."

Regular dental examinations have always been the best way to maintain healthy teeth and gums. But they help you care for the rest of your body, too.

Here are hints for all around your house

By ANDY LANG
AP Newfeatures

From various sources come these bits of information of interest to the homeowner:

The secret of getting your money's worth out of no-wax flooring is protection of the wear-layer with frequent cleaning. That advice comes from Pete McClure, international market associate for Johnson Wax floor care products. He says: "A regular cleaning routine improves floor appearance, since dirt does not stick to a clean surface as readily as it does to one that is soiled. What is more, dirt underfoot creates an abrasive action that will scratch and mar the no-wax flooring's wear-layer and substantially shorten the floor's life." An ingredient called "Zonyl" from DuPont is now used in many floor care products to lessen the surface tension of liquid cleaner so it wets the floor and spreads uniformly instead of beading on the surface. That means a uniform coat will dry more evenly without unsightly streaks.

You can increase your safety and protect your appliances from abuse by replacing old and worn electrical plugs and receptacles with newer styles offering extra safety features and conveniences. The Maintenance Technology magazine says that, to secure a plug that might be easily knocked out of the receptacle, a straight-blade plug with a locking screw can be used. This type of connection is especially important for appliances such as refrigerators, where the result of an accidental disconnection can mean real trouble. Another hint is that an angle plug should be used when you want to place furniture or an appliance closer to the wall. An angle plug lays flat against the wall instead of protruding from it. As for receptacles, isolated ground ones should be used whenever sensitive electrical equipment, such as computers, require a pure, noise-free ground. Surge suppression receptacles help protect electronic equipment from damage caused by transient voltage spikes.

New safety rules issued by the American National Standard Institute say a water heater intended for use on a hybrid system must now carry the warning that it cannot be connected into an existing heating system previously containing non-potable water. This is to prevent possible contamination of the potable water used for cooking and washing, since the hybrid system attempts to use the same potable water for circulation through the space-heating system. The Better Heating-Cooling Council says this cross-connection between the two different types of systems could create problems if the water in the space-heating contains non-potable chemicals. The homeowner may not be aware that chemicals previously were introduced into the sealed space-heating system. Water heaters which are not designed and manufactured for use in hybrid systems must be clearly marked so they can be used only for heating potable water. The council says it fears homeowners may not realize the permanent hot water in a sealed hydronic system is not the same as the flow of fresh water through a domestic water heater.

If you cut wood with a chain saw be sure to position yourself so as to prevent the cut log section from rolling and stress forces from acting against you. Solo Inc. advises holding the saw on the right side of your body, outside the line of sight across the chain. If the log shows signs of internal stress — recognized by a bowed appearance — the operator should not cut on the stressed side, since this could lead to pinching and result in a kickback of the saw.

Auction action heating up

By BARBARA MAYER

With 1988 behind us, some of last year's auction records can be entered in the books. Many were set — a few of the more startling include these:

In less than an hour, Christie's far exceeded its pre-sale estimate of $50 million to take in $85 million for 27 paintings and one sculpture that formed the Goetz Collection. The sale set eight artist records. A selection of 12 paintings from the Ganz Collection fetched $48.5 million at Sotheby's.

The latter also registered proceeds of $25.3 million for the Andy Warhol collection and Elton John's collection brought $8.2 million and a console table made for Marie Antoinette sold for $2.97 million at Sotheby's, setting a worldwide auction record for any piece of furniture.

Meanwhile, over at Christie's New York on Dec. 10, film star Barbra Streisand paid a record $363,000 for a single piece of Arts and Crafts furniture. Last year also saw a new American record — $47,500 for an antique doll — at Theriault's in Annapolis, Md. The ruby slippers Judy Garland wore in the 1939 film, "The Wizard of Oz," brought $165,000 while Humphrey Bogart's piano in "Casablanca" sold for $154,000. Top prices helped auction houses set records of their own.

Sotheby's, for example, reported worldwide sales of $1.8 billion, a 27.5 percent increase over 1987 — a sales record for any auction house, said Sotheby Holdings president, Michael L. Ainslie.

Christie's sales for the autumn season grew 67.5 percent over the same period in 1987 and for the New York galleries alone, sales were up 83 percent over the prior period, according to Roberta Maneker, vice president.

Both Christie's and Sotheby's executives said the records are being achieved not only because of the breathtaking new world record prices for unique artworks that make headlines across the world, but also through the sale of more moderate-priced art and decorative objects.

There is still so much that can be bought that people can afford, said Maneker, while Ainslie noted that "we successfully sold approximately 190,000 lots valued at under $10,000 and acquired in most collecting categories."

With interest in auctions at a high, learning how to bid and buy at auction have become priorities for those eager to get into the action.

Most auction houses require those bidding to register the day of the sale. Cash or travelers checks guarantee you can take your goods away but at a number of houses — including Christie's — one can establish credit ahead of time so that a personal check can be used, according to Maneker. Those who have bought before can often pay by check without re-establishing credit.

Some novices are fearful they may unwittingly scratch their nose or pull their ear and find they've bought something. Impossible, she says.

"The only people who can scratch their nose and make a bid are those who have made prior arrangements." The purpose of prearranged signals is to preserve the anonymity of the very wealthy or very publicity-shy bidder or dealer.

Another worry is whether or not your bid will be recognized. Normally, those who register are given a paddle with a number on it. The standard way to bid is to raise your hand with the paddle in it or without the paddle. If you've been raising your paddle then you are in a bidding mode and at a certain point the auctioneer will look to you for a nod of yes or no.

Auction goes find out about scheduled sales primarily through local newspaper ads and by checking the telephone directory for a list of auctioneers and contacting them. Regional antiques and collectors' periodicals carry auction listings, and many auction houses mail out announcements of upcoming sales.

Although it's buyer beware since there are almost no grounds for the return of any items purchased this way, buyers do have some protection.

In many localities, the sales are regulated and auctioneers are licensed. A government consumer complaint process may exist and, at the least, you'll be able to learn what the rules are that govern auctions. Auctioneers are generally required to clearly spell out conditions of sale and to announce them at the beginning of a sale.

Some good "rules" include the following:

Never bid on any item you haven't examined beforehand. Come back with an expert if you aren't knowledgeable. Study the pre-auction estimates published by the house and write down the lots you plan to bid on. Establish a top bid and try not to exceed it. When bidding, take into account that at many auctions, a 10 percent surcharge will be tacked onto the price.

A. - Exposure in that connection means that part of the shingle which is exposed to the weather. Usually it is the distance from the butt edge of one shingle to another.

Q. - We plan to refinish an old coffee table. The finish in most places is still in good condition but in a few places there are black spots. We tried to remove one without success. All it did was leave a mess. Is there anything special that will remove black marks such as these?

A. - As you have found, it is virtually impossible to remove such marks without redoing the entire piece. In fact, after you have taken off the old finish, you may find traces of the black still there. If so, you will have to bleach the surface, wipe off the residue of the remover according to the instructions on the container and then apply a bleach. When you are satisfied with the result (the surface should have a uniform light color), give it a coat of sealer before applying a stain and final finish.

Q. - I have an old piece of furniture which has no finish on it except shellac. Do I have to use a two-part bleach to get off the finish or will denatured alcohol be sufficient?

A. - It usually means the house is in great disrepair. Be very wary unless you are getting an exceptional bargain and can handle remodeling. Another term used for a house needing a lot of work is "deferred maintenance." That usually means "this house was not taken care of and is in very poor condition."

A. - Chances are denatured alcohol will do the job. Try it. If it takes off most of the finish, do it a second time. If that does not satisfy you, apply the commercial remover. Working on the furniture first with the denatured alcohol will do no harm.

Q. - The gates at two places along our house fence need replacing. In making them, can I use butt joints or do they have to be lapped?

A. - Lapped joints can be used for wooden gates, but you should reinforce them with metal angle plates at the corners. Also, the gates will be much stronger if you use a corner-to-corner wooden brace. One end of the brace should be on the hinge side near the top, the other end at the latch side near the bottom.

Q. - In ads for existing houses, I sometimes see the term "handyman's special." I have an idea what it means but I need it spelled out.

A. - It usually means the house is in great disrepair. Be very wary unless you are getting an exceptional bargain and can handle remodeling. Another term used for a house needing a lot of work is "deferred maintenance." That usually means "this house was not taken care of and is in very poor condition."

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newfeatures

Q. - It gets very cold where we live. There are two elderly people in our family and we keep the house quite warm. A lot of the heat undoubtedly escapes through the glass in the windows, especially in one room in particular. Would it help to install some kind of insulating material over the inside of the windows? If so, what's the best way to attach them so they can be removed easily?

A. - Get panels of styrofoam or a similar material and cut them to the sizes of the windows. You can do this yourself or have it done at a lumber yard. Place magnetic catches at the corners of the panels on the inside. When you place each panel against a window, the catches will keep it in place. You need merely to tug at them a bit in an outward motion to remove them. Some home centers or similar establishments sell such ready-made panels, but be sure to get the kind that can be removed every day and not just once a season.

Q. - What does "exposure" mean in reference to roofing shingles? I have seen the term used many times and can't get a satisfactory answer from my dictionary.

Couple exchange vows in Amarillo

San Jacinto Baptist Church in Amarillo was the setting of Saturday afternoon's wedding uniting Toni Michelle Bodiford and Daniel Neal Olson in marriage. Officiating was Dr. Stan Coffey, pastor of the church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Lee Bodiford of Amarillo. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd J. Olson of 122 N. Texas, Hereford.

MRS. DANIEL OLSON
...nee Michelle Bodiford

Among the church decorations were five tall brass candelabra bearing lighted candles. The candelabra were entwined with greenery and candlelight bows featuring satin streamers. The pews of honored guests were designated by large candlelight bows of satin ribbon.

Maid of honor was Melanie Shemwell of Panhandle and best man was Scott Holbert of Hereford.

Bridesmaids were Denise Demmer and Christy Olsen, both of San Antonio, and Mrs. Howard Reining of Panhandle, sister of the groom.

Groomsmen included Bobby Hardin of Sherman, the groom's nephew; Richard Olson of Amarillo, the groom's brother; and Warren Cornelius, also of Amarillo.

Ushers were Terry Bodiford of Houston, brother of the bride; Walter Olson of Canyon, brother of the groom; Eddie Larson of Amarillo, Garry Yosten of Hereford, and Wade Boren of Dawn. Bodiford and Olson also served as candle lighters.

Trainbearer was the bride's cousin, Jacquelyn Rhea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Rhea of Amarillo.

The groom's niece, Heather Hardin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Hardin of Sherman, served as flower girl. Ring bearer was Hayden Olson, nephew of the groom and son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Olson of Canyon.

Principal musical selections included "The Wedding Song," "Looking Through the Eyes of Love," and "The Wedding Prayer." Organist was Roney Wood and pianist was Mrs. Mickey Spoon, both of Amarillo. Vocalists were Dean Kelley of Amarillo and Mrs. Alan Hardin of Sherman, the groom's sister.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal European designer's gown of candlelight regal satin.

The bodice featured a princess-style waist, adorned with pearl swirls, a Victorian neckline sprinkled with tiny pearl drops and sequins. The long Edwardian sleeves were encrusted with pearls and sequins, and fastened at the wrist with tiny, satin-covered buttons. The back of the gown was adorned with tulle, sequins, and a trim of molded medallions and showed a runner of 50 tiny satin-covered buttons.

The skirt of the gown, full and flowing regal satin, featured Venice lace medallions, crystallized hand-beaded designs, a double-scalloped edge, sprinkled with tiny pearls and sequins graduating into a Royal Length Queens Court Cathedral train, elaborately decked with European lace, pearl drops, and sequins.

The bride wore a headband forming a wreath of tiny beaded leaves decked with sequins and pearl drops held by a finger-tip veil. She completed her ensemble with a pair of pearl earrings.

She carried a silk bouquet of candlelight gardenias, roses, and stephanotis entwined with soft greenery and framed in candlelight Venetian lace.

Bridal attendants wore tea-length formal gowns of burgundy Tina satin designed by Carbonell. Each gown featured a long, shirred bodice, low neckline, large puffed sleeves, and a large bow of tina satin at the side of the waist. The full-biased skirt of each gown featured a high-low hemline. Attendants complemented gowns with a strand of pearls and wore matching burgundy satin slippers.

Their headdress was of baby's breath and pearl strands. Each attendant carried a bouquet of silk candlelight roses, gardenias and stephanotis.

A reception followed and Christie Martin of Abilene and Dewayla White of Lubbock registered guests.

Refreshments were served from tables topped with floor-length covers of taffeta, lace, and velvet. Arrangements of rubrum lilies, baby's breath, white snapdragons, and mauve carnations accented the area in tall, lead crystal vases.

A four-tiered candlelight cake topped with a figurine of a traditional bride and groom was featured. Mrs. Paul Kessler of Charlotte, N.C. and Mrs. Larry Rhea of Amarillo, aunt and cousin, respectively, of the bride, served the bride's cake and poured punch from a silver and crystal service.

Mrs. Alan Hardin and Alana Hardin, both of Sherman, served cake from the groom's table. They are the sister and niece, respectively, of the groom.

The bride chose, as her traveling attire, a two-piece navy blue linen dress trimmed in white. The couple left on a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe, Nev.

Following their wedding trip, they will be at home in Hereford.

The bride graduated in December from Texas Tech University where she earned a bachelor of science degree featuring a major in merchandising and minor in marketing. She is a member of Texas Marketing Association and High Tech Fashions and served as treasurer of Alpha Tau Omega Little sisters of TTU, where she was on the Dean's Honor list. She is employed by Dillard's in Amarillo.

The bridegroom also attended TTU and graduated in 1983 from West Texas State University with a degree in agronomy. An alumni of Zeta Eta chapter of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, he also holds membership in Young Farmers of America and Texas and National Aerial Applicators Associations. He is the manager of American Dusting Co. in Hereford.

Prior to the wedding, the groom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner Friday night at Sutphen's Barbecue in Amarillo.

The Spanish once believed bread on the window sill would avert a storm.

March wedding set

First Presbyterian Church in Hereford will be the site of the March 4 wedding planned by Gina Robyn Griffin and Jeffrey Alan Blanton, both of Atlanta, Ga.

The bride is the daughter of Marie Griffin of Hereford and the late Jack Griffin. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murray of Amarillo.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome A. Blanton of Oakland, N.J. are the groom's parents. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Underwood, Jr. of Tarpon Springs, Fla. and Ms. Ella Blanton of Oakland, N.J.

The bride graduated from Hereford High School and Trinity University in San Antonio. She is a client specialist at Ernst and Whinney in Atlanta.

The groom graduated from Lake Highlands High School in Dallas and the University of North Texas in Denton. He is sales manager of Cable and Wireless Communications, Inc. in Atlanta.

Pacheco, Pena wed Saturday afternoon

Hereford residents Nancy Pacheco and Andres Pena, Jr., were united in marriage Saturday afternoon in St. Anthony's Catholic Church with Fr. Blum officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Manuel Pacheco of 425 Ave. C. Mr. and Mrs. Andres Pena, Sr., of Rt. 1 are parents of the groom.

Flowers decorating the church included white lilies and white carnations enhanced with royal blue ribbons.

Maid of honor was Tammie Pacheco, the bride's niece and best man was Daniel Pena, the groom's brother.

Bridesmaids were Ioma Lucero, Mary Puente, Nancy Pacheco, Linda Pena, and Mary Ann Pacheco.

Groomsmen included Bennie Lucero, Juan Puente, Manuel Pacheco, Jr., David Pena, and Carlos Pacheco.

Flower girl was the bride's niece, Pamela Pacheco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Pacheco, Sr.

Ring bearer was Anthony Puente, the bride's nephew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Juan Puente.

The bride's niece and nephew, Patricia and Jerry Pacheco, served as candle lighters.

Vocalists were Rudy and Dena Rameriz.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, George Pacheco Sr., wore a white satin gown featuring a high collar, and sleeves of lace which poufed at the shoulders in satin. The bodice featured a Basque waistline from which flowed the gathered skirt of satin, forming a train.

To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a head piece encircled with white, silk flowers and pearls descending down one side of her face.

She carried a bouquet of white flowers accented with baby's breath and a royal blue bow.

She wore pearl earrings belonging to her sister-in-law.

Dresses of royal blue were worn by the bridal attendants.

A reception followed in the VFW Hall. The serving table was topped with a white cloth beneath royal blue lace. Centering the table was a four-layered white cake accented with royal blue icing highlights. Linda Pena served cake to guests.

The bride graduated in 1983 and is now employed at G&G Tractor Repair as a secretary.

The bridegroom, a 1981 graduate, is now employed at Garrison Seed Inc. as warehouse foreman.

Out-of-town guests attended from Amarillo, Tucumcari, N.M., and Las Vegas, N.M.

Pizza party, program on women entertainers held

"Women Entertainers, Jeopardy-style" was the theme of Tuesday's program held in conjunction with the meeting of Xi Epsilon Alpha chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.

Members and two guests, Amy Cole and Danell Culp, were divided into three teams and were tested on their knowledge of contemporary female entertainers.

The program, conducted by Connie Matthews, and the meeting was held at Pizza Hut. Following a dinner of pizza, the business session was conducted by Peggy Hyer, president.

Secret Sisters were thanked by Holly Bixler, Denise Hafliker, Marge Bell, Sharon Bodner, and Hyer.

Program chairman Bell noted that the next meeting, set for Feb. 7, will feature Barbara Cochran as hostess, assisted by Hafliker. The program will center on astrology.

The Sweetheart Brunch, scheduled for Jan. 28 at 10 a.m. in the Community Center, was discussed. It was noted that the Valentine's Dance will be held in the KC Hall on Feb. 11 from 8 p.m. until midnight and will feature music by a DJ. Both events will be held for all three local sorority chapters.

Members attending included

Hyer, Bixler, Hafliker, Bell, Bodner, Arellano, Cochran, Pene Coplen, Matthews, Gaye Reily, Carol Kelley, Susan Shaw, and Melinda Whitfill.

Bowlers needed

Teams for the Jan. 28 Bowl-a-thon benefitting High Plains Epilepsy Association are still being accepted.

Set to begin at 2:15 p.m. that day in the Grand Bowl, 2109 South Grand in Amarillo, the annual event attracts bowlers from throughout the area.

Teams composed of five bowlers will compete for trophies in various categories. Each team will solicit sponsors for a minimum of $50 per bowler.

Proceeds raised by Deaf Smith County bowlers will help support medical services for High Plains Epilepsy Association clients here.

For more information, call HPEA office at (806)372-3891 or the local office on the first and third Friday of the month at 364-5281. The local office is located in the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

District president visits Pioneer Study Club Tuesday

The Pioneer Study Club met Tuesday at Something Special.

President Mary Panciera introduced the guest speaker, Lisa Kuhlman, Top of Texas District President, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs.

Kuhlman and her husband, Alvin, live north of Canyon. She is a native of Germany and told of her first awareness of the importance and influence of women in the free world.

When she came out of East Germany as a schoolgirl in 1948, she saw her first American magazine with a picture of Eleanor Roosevelt surrounded by federated club women. Under the picture was listed the accomplishments of these women; her dream was to some day become a federated club woman.

Kuhlman reported on the state convention which she attended in Beaumont last May. She explained the programs and the projects for the current 1988-1990 administration. Of primary importance will be the Centennial Celebration of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which coincides with the 80th anniversary of the Pioneer Study Club of Hereford.

She stated that "Rise to Life, Down with Drugs" is her special project for the district. She urged the club women to make a united effort to stop the sale and use of drugs, especially among school students.

A question and answer session followed her talk.

"My Turn" was given by Rosemary Thomas, who read a letter written by her grandfather. She recommended that each member should write interesting happenings in their life and also preserve interesting letters for posterity.

In the business session, Panciera urged each member to turn in their volunteer report this month along with the department chairman.

The meeting closed with a luncheon. Members present were: Lucy Fay Cocanougher, Bessie Hill, Bea Hutson, Billie Johnson, Helen Langley, Etoile Manning, Gladys Miller, Panciera, Eunice Petersen, Fern Sigle, Rosemary Thomas, and Willie Wimberly.

Vows recited by Nichols, Lee

Rebecca Ann Nichols of Hereford and Michael Stephen Lee of Cotton Center exchanged wedding vows in an evening ceremony Saturday, Jan. 14, at the Church of the Nazarene in Hereford.

Officiating was Rev. Bob Huffaker of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Ward of 605 Stanton and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Monte Lee of Cotton Center.

The altar of the church was decorated with a fan candelabra and a pair of spiral candelabra accented with greenery and red carnations. The family pews were marked with red and white pew bows.

The unity candle sat atop a brass stand and was surrounded by greenery and red carnations.

Donna Gallardo of Hereford, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and best man was the groom's father.

Bridesmaids were Rebecca Lee, sister of the groom, Caice McCutchen, cousin of the bride, and Kim Bridwell of Hereford.

Groomsmen were Aubrey Chapman of Edmonson, Frankie Garcia of Cotton Center and Wade McLaughlin of Dallas, cousin of the groom.

Wedding guests were escorted to their seats by Damon Parker of Muleshoe, cousin of the bride and Eric Lee of Olton, cousin of the groom. Ushers also lighted candles during the ceremony.

Pam Hill, sister of the bride, registered guests.

Brandy Gallardo, daughter of Donna Gallardo of Hereford, was the flower girl. Johnny Roberts, son of Dr. and Mrs. John Roberts of Temple, was ring bearer.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Nobles of Plainview vocalized "Only God Could Love You More", "Evermore" and "Endless Love" with Lisa Hilton accompanying.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown designed by Antonio D'Nucci of Paris. The white regal satin gown featured a sweetheart neckline, elongated waistline with a centerpiece of pearl floral work. The bodice was crowned with clusters of jeweled flowers. The cathedral-length satin train was accented with European cutout accents studded with pearls and jewels and featured a cascade of satin ruffles in a waterfall effect from the lower back.

The floor-length bridal illusion veil and blusher were attached to a hat decorated on one side with silk flowers and delicate pearls.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, tiger lilies, and stephanotis. She also carried a handkerchief belonging to Mary Kay Sandoval's mother, the late Ocholee Cooper.

The bride's jewelry consisted of a pearl necklace given to her by the groom. She also wore a ring belonging to her cousin, Leavell Parker. Completing the bride's ensemble was a traditional blue garter and a coin inside her shoe.

Bridal attendants were attired in tea-length red satin dresses with lace over fitted bodices and on lace sleeves. The fitted bodice fell into a slightly dropped waist which was marked with a bow in the back and a flared skirt. Each attendant wore matching red pumps and carried a white lace fan decorated with red roses and tiger lilies.

The flower girl was attired in an ankle-length red satin dress featuring white lace insets front and back with a flared skirt and rows of white lace topped with a red bow in the back. She carried a white basket containing rose petals.

A reception, catered by Chad Fitzgerald of Chad's Cakes Plus, followed in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table was covered in satin skirting with a lace tablecloth. The bride's four-tier Italian creme wedding cake was decorated with ruffle scallops and accented with fresh flowers, including red roses, red and white carnations, statice and greenery. The cake was topped with a kissing bridal couple.

Tammy Hardin and Angie Andrade attended the bride's table.

The groom's table, decorated by his mother, depicted the setting of a tent. The three double-layer chocolate cakes were placed on a mirror and decorated by a miniature tent; outside the tent lay a bridal bouquet, veil, bride's shoes, combat boots, and cap. The tent bore a "Do Not Disturb" sign hanging from the front.

Lexie Roberts, Jill McLaughlin and Elizabeth Roberts attended the groom's table.

The couple departed for a wedding trip to Red River, N.M. Afterwards they will be at home in San Antonio where the groom is stationed at Lackland Air Force Base and the bride will attend the University of Texas.

The bride, a 1986 graduate of Hereford High School, attended South Plains College in Levelland. She attended West Texas State University in pursuit of a degree in elementary education.

The groom is a 1984 graduate of Cotton Center High School and is in the U.S. Air Force where he is an E-4 in Police Security.

Out-of-town guests represented Muleshoe, Petersburg, Austin, Abernathy, Temple, Lubbock, Plainview, Big Stone, Va. and Argentina.

Wyche Club chronicles lives of recent U.S. First Ladies

Wyche Extension Homemaker's Club met in the home of Louise Axe recently. She gave the opening exercise on "Gift of Days."

President Audrey Rusher conducted the meeting. Members repeated the TEHA prayer and pledges to the U.S. and Texas flags. Roll call from 11 members was answered by "the first resolution I broke this year."

Program chairman Argen Draper presented the program about "The First Ladies of the U.S. from the Last 50 Years." Presenting a history of the First Ladies were Draper, Virgie Duncan, Louise Packard, Pet Ott, Rusher, Brenda Rusher, Coreen Odom, and Clara Trowbridge.

Histories were given on such First Ladies as Nancy Reagan, Rosalynn Carter, Betty Ford, Pat Nixon, Lady Bird Johnson, Jackie Kennedy, Mamie Eisenhower, Bess Truman and Eleanor Roosevelt.

Other members present were Carol Odom and Laverne Worley.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Coreen Odom on Feb. 2 at 2:30 p.m.

Extension News

BY Beverly Harder

When you eat out for lunch every day, making heart healthy food choices can help you feel better, keep your weight down and do your heart a favor!

Here are some suggestions for lunches, whether you eat at a fine restaurant or a fast food store:

-Visit the salad bar and load up with garbanzo beans or kidney beans. They are rich in the same type of soluble fiber oat bran contains. Avoid potato salad, pasta salad, bean salad, or slaw, all of which are loaded with oil or mayonnaise.

-Fill your plate with veggies; put a tablespoon of oil/vinegar based dressing on the side. Add an oat bran muffin and a serving of fresh fruit.

-A good sandwich choice is turkey on whole-wheat bread with lettuce, tomato, and a spicy mustard.

-At a fast-food restaurant, the best choice may be a plain hamburger with lettuce, tomato, pickles, and mustard.

-Eating broiled fish twice a week may reduce saturated fat intake while adding variety to noontime meals. But fried fish and fish sandwiches will just add fat to your diet.

Other good entree choices are bean burritos; soft chicken or beef tacos al carbon with a lettuce and tomato topping; spaghetti with a tomato or mushroom sauce; Chinese dinners with bean curd as the main ingredient; and chicken breast baked without the skin.

Soviet ballet troupe to appear in Amarillo

Ballet goes international with the debut American tour of "Soloists of the Bolshoi and Kiev Ballets with the Ballet of Los Angeles" stopping in Amarillo on Tuesday, Feb. 14. For an 8 p.m. performance at the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium.

The American/Soviet collaboration is being presented by the Lone Star Ballet.

Anatoli Kucheruk, premiere dancer with the Kiev Ballet will dance with his wife, prima ballerina Evgenya Kostyleva.

Kucheruk was trained at the Kiev State Choreographic School, and appear at the Franko Opera, and at the Ballet Theatre in Lvov, Ukraine. He was awarded the Silver Medal at the prestigious International Ballet Competition in Varna, Bulgaria.

Also appearing here will be Alla Khaniashvili-Artiushkina and Vitaly Artiushkin, stars of the Bolshoi Ballet. Artiushkin was born in Tallin, Estonia, and joined the Bolshoi ballet where he is a principal dancer. Last year he and his wife were featured artists with "Mays Plisetskaya and the Stars of the Bolshoi Ballet." Last fall they were guests artists with the Moscow Classic Ballet appearances in the United States. They will appear in a classical Pas de Deux, with the Ballet of Los Angeles in Balanchine's "Allegro Brillante," and in "Verdi Pas de Quatre" which John Clifford choreographed for them to Verdi's Ballet music from "I Vespi Siciliani."

The Lone Star ballet has accepted an invitation to perform on the same bill. Neil Hess, artistic director of the Lone Star ballet, is looking forward to this exciting opportunity for the Amarillo company.

For tickets and information stop by the Lone Star Ballet office in the Chamber of Commerce Building, 1000 South Polk Street, or call (806)372-2463, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on performance evenings at the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium beginning at 6:30 p.m. Special discounts are available for groups of 20 or more; Visa and MasterCard are welcomed.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters Match of the Month

Big Brothers/Big Sisters honors Big Sister Betty Stephens and her Little Sister, Neomi Villegas as the "Match of the Month." These two celebrate their first year anniversary this month.

Neomi is the daughter of Richard Villegas, and attends West Central Elementary School.

Big Sister Betty has provided a great role model for Neomi which is especially important as Neomi is being reared by her father. They enjoy cooking together and Betty is trying to provide guidance that only a female can give to a little 11-year-old girl who is growing up. Betty makes a lot of neat clothes for Neomi, also.

Neomi looks forward to spending the night on the Stephens' farm, a real treat for a little city girl.

We salute this match as an outstanding "pair" of friends in the Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization, a United Way Agency.

Dietz to highlight Week of Prayer

The Rev. Dr. Frank H. Dietz of Austin will be the featured speaker during today's (Sunday) service observing the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity.

The service will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Church of the Nazarene and will offer religious music by Susie Merrick and Jim Haile. The event will be held in conjunction with the Week of Prayer (Jan. 18-25) for Christian Unity observance.

Dietz is an ordained pastor of the United Church of Christ and is currently the executive director of the Texas Conference of Churches, having been elected to this ministry in 1982. He has served churches in Missouri, Illinois, and Texas, where he has served in the areas of Bryan-College Station and Houston. He and his wife, Karen, have two sons, Kevin and Mark.

A native of New Orleans, La., Dietz received an A.B. degree from Elmhurst College in Illinois. He received graduate degrees (B.D.) from Eden Theological Seminary in St. Louis where he was awarded the Honor Graduate Fellowship and a M.S. degree from Texas A&M University.

He has been involved in pastoral and local church planning, organizational development and social justice ministries for many years. An avid reader, he is interested in drama and art as they relate to religious and social issues and in creative communication of the Gospel.

Currently, he and the Texas Conference of Churches are involved in special preparations for the World Mission and Evangelism Conference to be held at Trinity University in San Antonio in May. He also aided in planning for the Papal visit in 1987 and the National Gathering of Christians in Arlington in 1988.

In Texas, Dietz is involved in several Central American Refugee projects, and serves on advisory groups with the Texas Department of Human Services, the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, and the Texas Church World Service and IMPACT boards.

4-H youth may travel abroad next summer

The 4-H International Youth Exchange Ambassador Program (IFYE) for 1989 has been announced. Trips from June 24-Aug. 2 will include destinations in Europe, Asia, Australia, New Zealand and Costa Rica. Applications are due before Feb. 1.

Participants will learn more about other countries and cultures and develop an appreciation of the social, economic, political and cultural contributions of all people, said Davy Vestal, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

While abroad, the exchangee will live with host families and actively participate in family life. He or she will take educational tours to acquire skills and knowledge of a specific project or activity.

The 1989 Ambassador Program will provide an adventure into culture and one of the following special study areas:

Sweden-Natural Resource; Italy-Small Businesses & Entrepreneurship; Germany-Camping & Canoeing; United Kingdom-Expressive Arts; The Netherlands-Water & Water Quality; Spain-Spanish; Belgium-Food/Nutrition & Hotel Management; France-International Careers; Switzerland-Agriculture; Luxembourg-Foreign Language (French, German & Luxembourgish); Australia-Photography; New Zealand-Sheep; Taiwan-Youth Program; and Costa Rica-Citizenship.

IFYE Ambassador Programs are designed for 15-19-year-old youths, Vestal said. Applications, references

April vows planned

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Osburn of Hereford announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Laura Michelle, to Michael Ross Precure of Muleshoe.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Precure of Muleshoe.

Wedding vows will be exchanged April 8 in Temple Baptist Church of Hereford.

The bride-elect graduated in 1987 from Hereford High School and is classified as a sophomore at Texas Tech University, majoring in speech pathology.

The prospective bridegroom, a 1986 graduate of Muleshoe High School, is engaged in farming in the Muleshoe area.

Extension club meeting held

The North Hereford Extension Club met Thursday in the home of Martha Lueb.

Naomi Brisendine presided over the business meeting and Marcella Hoffman served as program chairman.

Club members completed year books for 1989 and amended the By-laws.

About 35,000 people work in the twin towers of the World Trade Center in New York city. Another 80,000 visit on business each year.

Members present were Lueb, Evelyn Crofford, Peg Hoff, Brisendine, and Edith Higgins.

The next meeting will be held in Brisendine's home.

INDOOR WINTER SPORTS

You can and you should protect your eyes while playing racquetball or other sports this winter. The popularity of indoor racquet sports -- racquetball, squash and paddleball -- has been accompanied by an increase in eye injuries. Protective eyewear should become an essential part of the game.

The ultimate protection is an eyeguard with lenses that are made of polycarbonate, a plastic that is 80 to 100 times tougher than standard plastic. This material can stop a racquet ball spinning through the air at 125 miles per hour.

Eyeguards without lenses are useless in preventing eye injuries when playing racquetball. The small hard ball can come through the opening and cause severe damage even if you are wearing glasses underneath. Contact lenses provide no protection against these kind of injuries at all.

Soviet ballet troupe to appear in Amarillo

Ballet goes international with the debut American tour of "Soloists of the Bolshoi and Kiev Ballets with the Ballet of Los Angeles" stopping in Amarillo on Tuesday, Feb. 14. For an 8 p.m. performance at the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium.

The American/Soviet collaboration is being presented by the Lone Star Ballet.

Anatoli Kucheruk, premiere dancer with the Kiev Ballet will dance with his wife, prima ballerina Evgenya Kostyleva.

Kucheruk was trained at the Kiev State Choreographic School, and appear at the Franko Opera, and at the Ballet Theatre in Lvov, Ukraine. He was awarded the Silver Medal at the prestigious International Ballet Competition in Varna, Bulgaria.

Also appearing here will be Alla Khaniashvili-Artiushkina and Vitaly Artiushkin, stars of the Bolshoi Ballet. Artiushkin was born in Tallin, Estonia, and joined the Bolshoi ballet where he is a principal dancer. Last year he and his wife were featured artists with "Mays Plisetskaya and the Stars of the Bolshoi Ballet." Last fall they were guests artists with the Moscow Classic Ballet appearances in the United States. They will appear in a classical Pas de Deux, with the Ballet of Los Angeles in Balanchine's "Allegro Brillante," and in "Verdi Pas de Quatre" which John Clifford choreographed for them to Verdi's Ballet music from "I Vespi Siciliani."

The Lone Star ballet has accepted an invitation to perform on the same bill. Neil Hess, artistic director of the Lone Star ballet, is looking forward to this exciting opportunity for the Amarillo company.

For tickets and information stop by the Lone Star Ballet office in the Chamber of Commerce Building, 1000 South Polk Street, or call (806)372-2463, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on performance evenings at the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium beginning at 6:30 p.m. Special discounts are available for groups of 20 or more; Visa and MasterCard are welcomed.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters Match of the Month

Big Brothers/Big Sisters honors Big Sister Betty Stephens and her Little Sister, Neomi Villegas as the "Match of the Month." These two celebrate their first year anniversary this month.

Neomi is the daughter of Richard Villegas, and attends West Central Elementary School.

Big Sister Betty has provided a great role model for Neomi which is especially important as Neomi is being reared by her father. They enjoy cooking together and Betty is trying to provide guidance that only a female can give to a little 11-year-old girl who is growing up. Betty makes a lot of neat clothes for Neomi, also.

Neomi looks forward to spending the night on the Stephens' farm, a real treat for a little city girl.

We salute this match as an outstanding "pair" of friends in the Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization, a United Way Agency.

BETTY STEPHENS, NEOMI VILLEGAS

Special Thanks!

The sixth grade students and faculties at West Central Intermediate School and Bluebonnet Intermediate Schools would like to thank officer Roy Rector for a job well done in D.A.R.E., Drug Awareness Resistance Education.

We would also like to thank Mayor Wes Fisher, Hereford's City Commissioners, Judge Tom Simons, Chief Brush, Captain Langgood, and the Hereford Police Department for providing the program.

Our appreciation goes to Superintendent Charles Greenawalt and the Hereford school board for including this in our curriculum.

This program would not have been successful without donations from the Hereford Meat Market, La Mexicana Restaurant, Lions Club, Kiwanis, Whiteface Kiwanis Breakfast Club, Chemical People Task Force, VFW, VFW Ladies Auxiliary, Dale and Tonya Kleuskens, Danny and Lorrie Boyett, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brisendine, Hector and Norma Rodriguez, Lorenzo Anima, L.J. The bride-elect is employed as a radiation therapist at Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center in Amarillo.

The prospective bridegroom is manager of Action TV and Appliance in Dumas.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Yesterday I reported on the results of the survey. The question: Has your sex life gone downhill since marriage? If so, why?

As I said in yesterday's column, I received more than 141,210 pieces of mail, and 52 percent of the respondents were male. The ages of those who wrote were from 17 to 93.

Eighty-two percent of the respondents said sex after marriage was much less pleasurable. The percentage of unfulfilled females was almost the same as for males.

For a closer look at what goes on behind the bedroom doors of America, read on.

From San Francisco (male, 46): When we were going together, she used to meet at the airport in a raincoat with nothing underneath. Now we have three kids and she says, "Take a taxi. I'm too tired to drive."

From Newark (male, 52): Your question -- has sex gone downhill since marriage? -- is an insult to those of us who waited until marriage to have sex. You ought to tell your readers that if they don't eat the icing off the cake before dinner they are likely to enjoy the dessert more.

West Palm Beach (male, 55): Courtship, beautiful. Marriage, lousy. Booze ruined it. Alcoholics Anonymous saved me, but by then she had left.

Lawrence, Kan. (female): Our sex life was never terrific, but after we married his battery went completely dead. He tried to blame it on his heart medicine, but I found out he'd been having a 15-year affair with our next-door neighbor.

Grand Rapids, Mich. (male, 50): Downhill. Definitely. The sameness is boring. Same time. Same place. Same position. Won't try anything new. I would never cheat, but it's easy to see why so many men do.

Louisville (female, 38): How exciting can sex be with a potbellied, cynical, comatose couch potato? The man has nothing to say until the lights go out, then suddenly he is overcome with passion. He wonders why I'm not interested. Draw him a picture, will you please, Ann?

Waco, Tex. (male): Don't forget to include your gay readers when you write up the results of your marriage survey. My lover and I have been together 10 years. We both agree that our sex life isn't as good as it was before he moved in. The reason: Couples are on their best behavior when they date. You can't be together all the time and not get a little sick of each other.

Calgary, Canada (female, 46): Sex was fabulous before we married. Now it's on my birthday and our anniversary. There's a real communication problem and he refuses to accept counseling.

Atlanta (Male, 58): Sex after marriage? What's that? How can I get excited about a woman who weighs 250 pounds and doesn't bathe during any month that has an R in it?

Dickinson, N.D. (female, 44): Our sex life gets better all the time. Why? because it is an expression of a love based on respect, courtesy, honesty, admiration and mutual trust.

Manhasset, Long Island (male, 50, divorced): Downhill, of course. All the way. Why? Kissin' don't last. Good cookin' do.

Los Angeles (female): I just saw my husband's post card. He says our sex life is terrific. The big ox doesn't realize I haven't had an orgasm in 15 years. I'm canceling his vote.

San Antonio: (female): He's

Protestant. I'm Catholic. He's Anglo, I'm Hispanic. He's a Republican, I'm a Democrat. He tells me I'm gorgeous. I'm not. But sex gets better all the time because we are nuts about each other.

How much do you know about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? Think you can handle them? For up-to-the minute information on drugs, write for Ann Landers' newly revised booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." Send $3 plus a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Between the Covers

By Rebecca Walls
Noted columnist James J. Kilpatrick once stated "For most of us, troopers are faceless and nameless figures, with a trim uniform, Smokey Bear hat and coolly watchful eyes. Until I read Trooper Down: Life and Death on the Highway Patrol by Marie Bartlett it never occurred to me that troopers shed tears, made love, sire children, get in debt, go to church, and know fear as others do."

In this book a fascinating portrait of one of the nation's most elite law enforcement agencies is painted for the reader. Beginning with a "routine" patrol that is anything but, Bartlett presents a startling series of anonymous anecdotes from troopers who talk revealingly about their lives and work. Confrontations with knife-wielding drunks, strung out youngsters, inebriated nudists, chimpanzees, escapades both on and off-duty with the opposite sex, and aiding the injured and dying in highway accidents are a few of the incidents revealed.

The First Salute by Barbara W. Tuckman is one of the books listed on the New York Times Best Seller list. It is a view of the American Revolution which allows us a broadened understanding of the circumstances and events surrounding the birth of our nation, as well as the modern western world. "On November 6, 1776, a ship flying the red-and-white striped flag of the continental Congress entered the port of St. Eustatius in the West Indies. Adhering to custom on entering a foreign port, the ship fired a salute, and the guns of the island's fort returned a ritual response.

This act of recognition acknowledged that the vessel and its flag represented a legitimate nation. It was the first official salute to the United States of America. Although it took only a few minutes to carry out, it would have the most profound repercussions through the events of the next five years."

Alice Hardy believes she is escaping the restraint of her strict Victorian upbringing by marrying a wealthy British Lord. When Alice refuses to submit totally to her husbands will he becomes violent and cruel. Braving scandal a social ostracism she secures a divorce and creates a new life for herself and her infant daughter. Turning her talent for color, line and fabric into a prosperous dressmaking business, Alice soon becomes the most influential person dealing with the styles and fashions of Belle Epogue society.

In the years before the Great War Alice succeeds in revolutionizing the fashion world. Ladies throw away their corsets and begin to appear in the softly flowing gowns. As the war ends giving way to the Roaring Twenties Alice sees the future, senses what women will want to wear, and creates the fashion, thus becoming a classic figure of international acclaim. The very model of modern femininity Alice fights for those she loves and for what is hers, hiding the fear of being trapped and the overwhelming need for being loved. A Woman By Design marks the debut of a gifted and original storyteller, Frances Kennett.

Yeutter well-qualified for post

What will be the outlook for agriculture under the leadership of Agriculture Secretary Designate Clayton Yeutter?

According to an economist in marketing and policy with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Yeutter may well be the most qualified person for Secretary of Agriculture in the 126-year history of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Ron Knutson said Yeutter has a background in Nebraska beef farming, a Ph.D. in agriculture economics and a law degree, both from the University of Nebraska.

"This orientation toward Midwest agriculture was a desirable political stroke for a Bush administration which lost the Iowa primary vote to U.S. Sen. Robert Dole," Knutson said.

Knutson said, "Yeutter also is well-wired politically, having served as executive assistant to the governor of Nebraska in the 1960s, a member of the Committee to Re-elect President Nixon, and in two previous USDA posts."

He said Yeutter's past experience as the administrator of the Agricultural Marketing Service and assistant secretary in charge of marketing and nutrition programs makes the Secretary designate knowledgeable of the interworkings of the USDA.

"Yeutter also carries private sector experience, having served on the board of several agribusiness firms and as chief executive officer of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The latter position provided firsthand experience with the many factors that determine farm prices," Knutson said.

He said Yeutter's strongest asset—and political liability—includes his eight years of service to President Reagan as the U.S. trade representative.

"This position, located in the Executive Office of the President, is the key trade policy officer in government. As trade representative, Yeutter has spent a major share of his time preparing for and leading the GATT (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) negotiations," Knutson said.

The economist said Yeutter has been the major actor in framing the U.S.-GATT negotiating strategy of giving up our farm subsidies if the rest of the world, particularly the European Community and Japan, are willing to do likewise.

"It is this free trade stance that could be viewed as either an asset or a liability," Knutson said.

He said some producer commodity groups, such as cotton, dairy, beef and peanuts, have serious reservations about the ability of their producers to compete under free trade conditions.

Knutson said that in any event, Yeutter's former trade representative slot likely will make USDA's role in the trade negotiations stronger than they have been in the past.

"Yeutter's other major challenge could be sorting out the appropriate Bush administration position on the 1990 farm bill, while the GATT negotiations are proceeding. The relatively high subsidy levels of the 1985 farm bill placed the U.S.-GATT negotiations (Yeutter) in a strong position to bargain for multilateral concessions on the part of other countries such as the EC and Japan," Knutson said.

He said that in other words, the U.S. carried a big stick into the agricultural negotiations.

Anvik, Hopping get Holly posts

Holly Sugar Corporation has announced the recent employment of Richard C. Hopping as Assistant Factory Manager and the promotion of Terry Anvik to Manager Trainee at the Hereford factory.

Hopping, a native of Littlefield, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hopping of that city. He graduated from Texas Tech University in Lubbock in 1982 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Chemical Engineering. He is a member of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers and the Institute of Food Technologists. From 1983 to 1984, he was Shift Supervisor and Maintenance Superintendent of Archer Daniels Midland Company. From 1984 to 1986, Hopping was Plant Manager for Venture Chemicals, Inc. at the Seagraves, Texas, Division, and from 1986 to 1988 was Technical Manager of American Fructose Corporation in Dimmitt.

Hopping and his wife, Teresa, reside in Hereford.

Anvik, a native of Sidney, Montana, graduated from high school in 1976 and received a Bachelor of Science in Agricultural Production in 1981 from Montana State University at Bozeman. He is an alumnus of Future Farmers of America and worked on his family's farm near Sidney prior to joining Holly. Anvik joined Holly as an Agriculturist at Sidney in 1984 and in September 1986 was transferred in that position to Hereford.

Anvik and his wife, Mary Jane, are the parents of a son and a daughter.

Want Ads Do It All!

YOU WANT IT, YOU GOT IT
CLASSIFIED

364-2030
313 N. Lee

CLASSIFIED ADS
 Classified advertising rates are based on 14 cents a word for first insertion ($2.00 minimum), and 10 cents for second publication and thereafter. Rates below are based on consecutive issues, no copy charge, straight word ads.

TIMES	RATE	MIN.
1 day per word	.14	2.00
2 days per word	.24	4.00
3 days per word	.34	6.00
4 days per word	.44	8.00

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
 Classified display rates apply to all other ads not set in solid word lines--those with captions, bold or larger type, special paragraphing, all capital letters. Rates are $3.95 per column inch; $3.25 an inch for additional insertions.

LEGALIS
 Ad rates for legal notices are 14 cents per word first insertion, 10 cents per word for additional insertions.

ERRORS
 Every effort is made to avoid errors in word ads and legal notices. Advertisers should call attention to any errors immediately after the first insertion. We will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion. In case of errors by the publishers, an additional insertion will be published.

PHOENIX (AP) — Patrick Wayne, son of the late John Wayne, married Kyriaki Kokkodi in a private ceremony in the chambers of a Maricopa County Superior Court judge.
The couple took out a marriage license Tuesday morning. Judge Stanley Goodfarb said. They were married with two of the judge's staff serving as witnesses, he added.
Wayne, who played minor roles in some of his father's films, listed his name on the marriage license as Patrick John Morrison, using the surname his father was born with. He gave his address as Toluca Lake, Calif. His bride listed her home as Los Angeles.
Goodfarb said the couple told him they planned to honeymoon in Greece.
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Julius "Dr. J." Erving was honored when a bronze likeness of the 11-time National Basketball Association All-Star was unveiled in front of the Spectrum, where he played for the 76ers.
"When you look at this statue, see more than just a former athlete, see someone who considers himself your brother, your friend," Erving said at Wednesday's dedication.

The plaque at the base of the larger-than-life statue has Erving's impressive resume carved in stone, along with the legend: "Athlete-Sportsman-Gentleman."
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — New York investor and takeover artist Saul P. Steinberg has pledged $25 million to the University of Pennsylvania, the largest single gift in the Ivy League School's history, Penn President Sheldon Hackney said.
"He has been a champion of the university for many years, and his latest bold step is pivotal in our campaign to strengthen Penn's position in the front rank of America's universities," Hackney said.
The Wharton School, the university's business school, will get $15 million and the school of arts and sciences $10 million.
Steinberg, who is chairman and chief executive of Reliance Group Holdings Inc., received a bachelor's degree in economics from Wharton in 1959.
NEW YORK (AP) — Peter Falk as the rumpled Lt. Columbo will be back solving crimes for television audiences next month.

Falk made the detective a household name in the 1970s, and ABC announced last year that he had signed on for a revival of the series. The new "Columbo" was to have begun in the fall, but the writers strike delayed production.
Beginning Feb. 6, a series of two-hour "Columbo" movies will rotate Monday nights with two other movies: "B.L. Stryker," starring Burt Reynolds as a Florida private eye, which premieres on Feb. 13; and "Gideon Oliver," starring Oscar-winner Louis Gossett Jr. as a crime-solving anthropologist, makes its debut Feb. 20.
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer-songwriter John Beland figures he has a small place in music history for singing the theme song to television's "The Brady Bunch" and writing the theme for the Morton Downey Jr. program.
"They both are kind of cult shows," Beland said Thursday. "Years from now, people will ask me, 'You did that?'"
Beland, a former member of the Flying Burrito Brothers country-rock group, said Downey was his manager in the early 1970s.

"I've known him for so long, I see a lot of him in that character on TV," he said, referring to Downey's on-air persona.
"Eighty-five percent of what you see is what he honestly believes in. He's really a good guy."
Beland said he sang the theme song for "The Brady Bunch" some 20 years ago in Los Angeles.
LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles, who often has said how much he likes the art and architecture of the past, seized an opportunity to say he appreciates modern art as well.
The heir to the British throne on Thursday opened a major exhibition in London, "Italian Art in the 20th Century," that included bags of coal, bread rolls and a gilded relief map of Italy hanging upside down.
The prince, a patron of the show, took it all in stride.
"I actually believe the important thing is how you learn and build on the past which, after all, is a most essential aspect of the present and indeed the future," he told his audience.

Dear Loyal Customers,

ON FEBRUARY 28TH, FLOOR DECOR will move to West Highway 60 (Barrick Furniture Building) and will become POARCH'S FLOOR COVERING, owned by Jerry and Carol Poarch. This new location will allow us to offer Hereford and the surrounding area a large, in stock inventory of beautiful floor coverings. We must CLEAR ALL EXISTING INVENTORY at once and have slashed prices storewide! Stop today for best selection! All sales final! Must take delivery in February!
